

COAST TO COAST CYCLIST is Janet Umpfenbach of Pine Street, Cass City. She pedaled with the Wandering Wheels group from San Diego, starting June 8. They arrived in St. Augustine, July 7. The bike she is riding isn't the one she rode on her trip.

Pedals 2,700 miles

From ocean to ocean -- Janet Umpfenbach does it by bicycle

Janet Umpfenbach always knew she would make it. And despite lizards, heat, thirst and almost every part of her body being sore or numb, she did.

What she did was pedal a bicycle from San Diego, Calif., to St. Augustine, Fla., in a month, a distance of about 2,700 miles.

The 23-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Umpfenbach of 4657 Schwegler Road, Cass City, had never been more than a casual bicycle rider, but a long distance bicycle trip "was something I always wanted to try."

She wasn't sure quite how to go about it, but shortly before she graduated from Central Michigan University last December, Luanne Kelley, wife of Salem United Methodist church pastor Rev. Eldred Kelley, told her about a group called Wandering Wheels.

The organization, founded in 1966 with headquarters at Taylor University in Indiana, is Christian oriented.

According to a leaflet, it "was originated . . . to help increase the interest of young people in the message of Jesus Christ. Those involved in WW represent many levels of spiritual growth. It is our desire that through their involvement this growth will increase."

The 5 ft., 4 in. blonde started getting in shape by riding a bike a lot and running. The farthest she rode, however, was 30 miles in a day, to Elkton and back. On her trip, she would be averaging 100-110 miles a day.

Then came early June and she was off to San Diego by plane.

ON JUNE 8, THE 62 persons who were going on the trip symbolically dipped a wheel of their bikes into the Pacific Ocean and the long journey began.

The riders ranged in age from 15-62. Only one of them wouldn't make it, a boy 15 or 16, who dropped out after the second day.

The trip didn't start out easy. The group hit mountains the first day, which lasted until New Mexico, into the second week.

Physically, Miss Umpfenbach said, "I'd say the first week was definitely the hardest."

That was not the worst part of the trip, however. "I think the desert was most trying on everybody. It was hot. There was no place for shade."

A car that accompanied the riders and carried water stopped about every 45 minutes but didn't have enough water to quench everyone's thirst. "I don't know if you could ever carry enough water."

In addition to the car, a truck also accompanied the riders. It carried all of the riders' gear (sleeping bags, etc.) except what they needed during the day, which they carried on their bikes (cameras, suntan lotion, etc.). It also carried the portable kitchen.

The Wandering Wheels staff prepared all breakfasts and most other meals, with the riders only having to buy Please turn to page 11.

Rules needed for village park, councilmen decide

Some written "dos and don'ts" are needed for the Cass City Recreation Park, the village council decided at a special meeting last Wednesday.

The council was informed that the wastewater treatment plant project has encountered another delay. (See story below).

What spurred the decision about the park was problems encountered during the softball tournament there the week end of June 30-July 1.

Present for the council session were representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees, which sponsored the tournament, and softball players.

The problem, everyone agreed, stemmed from its raining the entire week end, so the players and those with them didn't have anything to do because it was too wet to play softball.

Problems included camping on soft ground and refusing to move to a gravelled area after being asked to do so, driving over soft ground, climbing over the fence to the swimming pool to go swimming when the pool was closed and taking wood from the woods to use for fires on the bare ground.

Although camping is not encouraged in the park, due to lack of proper facilities, there is no ordinance prohibiting it.

What was agreed to was that there is a need to have a written set of rules as to what is and what isn't allowed in the park.

Councilman and softball player Elwyn Helwig suggested the rules could be included with tournament information sent out to teams.

Jim Turner, who was director of the recent tournament, added that violation of the rules could subject a team to expulsion from the tournament.

Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie, in consultation with the council park committee, should have the rules prepared in time for review by the council at its special meeting Aug. 14. It isn't intended that they will be approved in the form of an ordinance.

The discussion also included the question, first mentioned by chamber President Tom Herron, that maybe there should be a designated area in the park for camping.

Councilman D.E. Rawson responded that the village doesn't have enough money to install such facilities as toilets and showers. Herron and chamber member Dick Albee replied that all that would be needed would be "primitive campsites," with sites marked off and toilets, which are already there.

With the chamber officials there, there was also a brief discussion about the July 4th festival.

Village President Lambert Althaver said the village spent on $2,500-3,000 for overtime paid to village employees, extra police help, cleanup and electricity for the event.

That was money the council hadn't anticipated spending as of the beginning of the year -- "We'll squeeze it out of the budget somehow," -- and he suggested that possibly the village should be reimbursed by the Chamber in future years for festival expenses.

Albee advocated that the village should keep bearing that expense as the festival may not do as well in future years as it did this year.

Aime Ouvry, one of the festival organizers, said by the time all bills are paid, the festival will have cost the chamber $800-1,000 more than it took in.

EXERCISE TRAIL

The park committee of Dr. Rawson and Jim Ware was given final authority to approve the course for the Rotary Club exercise trail in consultation with Bill Malone, who is in charge of the project for the club.

Malone had presented a proposed course of about 1.1 miles which ran through the woods in the north end of the park.

Rawson objected, however, to use of the eastern portion of the woods for the course. To keep the trails there above water year-round, he explained, they would have to be elevated 1-1½ feet, which would change the flow of water through the area. That in turn would endanger some rare plant life growing there.

"What we have is so unique, I hate to see it lost because once it's lost, we'll never get it back."

He didn't object to use of the western portion of the woods for the exercise trail, however, so it was expected that the park committee and Malone will be able to lay out a course so that work can begin within a couple of weeks.

The course will have 20 stations with a different exercise, -- knee bends, touching toes, etc. -- prescribed at each station.

OTHER ITEMS

Aug. 14 at 7 p.m. was scheduled as a dual public hearing on the proposed rebuilding of Doerr Road between Main and Garfield and Garfield between Doerr and the railroad tracks.

It will be the first of two special assessment hearings for those who will be assessed to pay for curb and gutter, plus a general hearing required by the state highway department on the project itself.

Seventy-seven percent of the project is being paid for with federal funds administered by the highway department.

Because of the session then plus the special meeting last Wednesday, it was decided not to hold the regular meeting scheduled July 31.

It was reported scheduled paving this year of the alleys north and south of Main Street between Oak and Maple Streets won't be done until 1980 because some drainage problems there need to be corrected first, which will be done this year.

The only paving to be done this year, by Frank Strausberg and Sons of Saginaw, will be patching of some streets where the paving has broken up plus paving of some of the streets in Northwood Estates, the latter to be paid for by developer Tom Herron.

C.R. Hunt Construction Co. was awarded the bid, opened June 26, for completing installation of storm and sanitary sewers and water lines in the industrial park, plus road grading.

Its bid, the only one submitted, was $136,438, but it had to be trimmed to $99,000, the amount of money available. The Farmers Home Administration is providing $90,000; the Cass City Development Corp., $9,000.

That will be enough money to do all underground work and build enough streets so that all of the industrial lots can be reached.

Sewage plant delayed again

It had been hoped that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency would approve its 75 percent funding for the $6 million sewage treatment plant improvement and sewage project by June 30.

Despite pressure from village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie, the project engineers, Hubbell, Roth and Clark, U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler and the state Department of Natural Resources (which caused an earlier delay), the EPA didn't get the grant approved by then. That means that the project must now comply with some additional requirements that went into effect July 1.

The change is that the plans submitted with the funding application now must include a description of how industrial users will be charged, plus the charges for all users of the facility.

Preparing that will cost an additional $20,000, which will come out of the funding for the overall project. The work will be done by Hubbell, Roth and Clark.

Preparing the new documents, telling how much customers will have to pay, is something that would have had to be done anyway, village President Lambert Althaver explained after the Wednesday council meeting.

Until the rules were changed, that could have been done while the plant was under construction.

He had no idea whether the delay might be in weeks or months.

He added that that is the third or fourth time the project has been delayed because of new regulations imposed after planning for the project was underway.

The delay is cause for another concern. The village's $1.2 million share of the intended total construction cost is being funded from bonds sold to the Farmers Home Administration at 5 percent interest rate, much lower than if they had to be sold to banks.

The fear is that with the FHA's fiscal year ending Sept. 30, so may its commitment to buy the bonds, which means the village would have to apply anew for the FHA loan.

Closing of home for troubled youngsters may be temporary

Tuscola county's PATCH House is no more, although it may reopen again.

PATCH stood for Professional Assistance to Tuscola County Children's Home.

What it was was a five-bed home for children, ages 6-17, suffering mental, emotional or behavioral problems.

It was opened by the county Community Mental Health Services agency in October, 1974.

The home, located on State Street on the west side of Caro, was closed early this month.

The immediate reason for the closing was inability to hire new house parents who met the qualifications.

The longer term problem was the need for a new PATCH facility.

For some months now, the mental health agency has been asking the county Board of Commissioners to appropriate $55,000 for materials to build a new one.

The plan calls for county high school building trades students to construct the building with the materials provided.

So far, the county has tabled the request due to lack of funds.

According to Mental Health Services Director Dennis Johnson, the search for houseparents is continuing, as is an effort to find another house to rent for the program. The agency has enough money in its budget to do so. He looks on that as a temporary measure and is still hopeful county commissioners will appropriate the money to build a new structure.

"I BELIEVE THE SERVICE is still needed," is the obvious opinion of Randy Atwell, mental health agency social worker and PATCH supervisor.

"I would like to see the (new) facility built," he continued. "What will happen (with it closed) is the kids will end up in state hospitals, wards of the court or in correctional facilities."

Youngsters who stayed at PATCH House were referred there by mental health therapists who felt their mental, emotional or behavior problems couldn't be helped if they remained in their own homes. Some referrals were made by probate court.

For the year Oct. 1, 1977 - Sept. 30, 1978, 13 children were sent there and the average stay was three months.

The figures are misleading, Atwell explained, because some children were there only a day or two as their behavior was so disruptive, they could not be treated there without making life difficult for the others.

For those that did stay, the average stay was about a year.

The children usually attended Caro schools.

TREATMENT TOOK several forms. Counseling with mental health therapists took place at the agency office. Various group activities at the home were designed to help the youngsters overcome their problems. Further mental health treatment in the home depended on the qualifications of the houseparents.

While this was going on, the child's parents were also receiving help.

In some instances, Atwell said, children were at PATCH House because they would have been in danger if they had remained in their homes with their parents.

He described admission to PATCH House as "kind of a last resort," after other means of counseling were unsuccessful.

Youngsters were screened before entering the program and screened again before being released to go home.

Therapy continued after that, which provided an added check that the youngster was making improvement.

Based on the end-of-program screening and continued therapy, Atwell feels the program was a success. He cited the case of a boy who suffered from excessive nail biting, not eating and skipping school, all of which improved by the time he left PATCH House.

THE IMMEDIATE REASON for closing the facility was inability to find new houseparents.

The criteria called for a childless couple, college educated, who both were willing to be there full-time. Neither could have an outside job. The pay was $13,500 annually, plus their room and board.

The last couple there had been there since October.

There were three boys there when the home closed. One went home and the other two went to foster homes.

The longer-range need was a new facility, because of repairs needed at the now closed one, which was rented. The owner of the home has it up for sale.

The hope had been to keep using the structure, with possibly minor repairs made, until the new building Please turn to page 10.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Ah! The raspberry season is here and berries seem to be in good supply. The first arrived at the Haire's hutch Monday evening and I can not tell a lie. I had a whole quart. (Loved every luscious minute of it.)

The relative interest of trivia topics varies with the individual. Editor Mike Eliasohn believes the one coming up is an especially good one. . . . I feel it's blah. Whose right? If you care to comment we'll be happy to listen and pass along your reasons, pro or con.

This is the item:
Some long distance runners run for exercise, some for inner well-being and some for glory.

Then there was a 19-year-old Brian Renshaw, who finished first in the 5 kilometer portion of the July 4th Festival marathon.

The still panting Grand Blanc resident asked where Miss Michigan was.

When informed she had been here to crown the festival king and queen and then presumably left, the disappointed Renshaw responded, "I thought she was going to give out the trophies. Rats."

The Harold Isard golf tournament has been running now for several years. It's a fun time for the golfers. One of the highlights is the hot dog and refreshments served after the round.

Not many golfers realize it but two gals have been preparing the after game snack since the event started. The two are Linda Marshall and Norma Wallace. Kudos to them both.

It has to be true. Those reports you've been hearing about the tourist business slump in northern Michigan appeared confirmed Saturday night in Gaylord.

Saturday, you'll recall, was one of the hottest days of the year. Ideal to chase urban dwellers north. In recent years an August Saturday night in July you started hunting for sleeping accommodations about noon among lesser motels. . . the chains and better units were always booked by reservation.

Saturday we pulled into a new chain motel at about 7 p.m. and were welcomed with open arms. There were vacancy signs all over town.

Grant twp. man in zoning hassle

If Joel Ingles wants his request for rezoning to go before the Huron County Planning Commission, he'll have to wait until it meets Sept. 5.

Ingles didn't fill out the proper forms and pay a $40 commercial property fee before Monday at 5 p.m. so the commission could consider his request at its Aug. 8 meeting.

He can make his request at any time, however, a spokesman for the Huron County Building and Zoning Office said.

More than 18 months ago, Ingles purchased five acres of land in Grant township that he thought was zoned residential.

The property is located southeast of the intersection of Sebewaing and Elkton Roads, just south of and adjacent to Janssen's Party Store.

He was given a permit to place a mobile home on the site by the Huron county zoning office soon afterwards.

His long-range intentions were to build a house and have a portion of his property rezoned to business, so he could open a television sales and repair shop.

But, through an unusual sequence of events, Ingles learned that his land was actually zoned commercial, rather than residential. In addition, he learned the building and zoning office had erroneously issued him the permit for the mobile home.

Now Ingles finds he can build the TV repair shop, but not his permanent home.

His plight culminated Tuesday, July 10, when the county Board of Commissioners voted 4-3 to recommend that the planning commission "reconsider"

Ingles' request to rezone a portion of his land residential so he can build a house.

Ingles' problem was brought before the commissioners by Chairman William Nugent, Bad Axe. But Nugent, who made the motion to send the matter back to the planning commission, voted against it after it was amended.

Nugent vehemently opposed the amendment, which will require Ingles to pay 50 percent of filing costs to bring the matter before the planning commission. The fee for commercial property is $80 and Ingles would be required to pay $40.

Nugent said Ingles was misled when the county wrongly approved his mobile home permit and, therefore, should not be required to pay the rezoning fee. The board chairman apparently voted against the final motion because of this principle involved.

The decision returning the matter to the planning commission was made after Prosecutor Peter Burns Capling gave the board a legal opinion.

The commission meeting was delayed more than a half hour while he discussed the matter. Ingles was not present.

Capling said that despite the error by the county, Ingles, under the zoning ordinance, should receive no special consideration when it comes to having his property rezoned. The prosecutor noted that Ingles should have been aware when he bought the land that it was zoned commercial.

The normal procedure for rezoning is to file a request with the zoning office, which retains a deposit while the request is being processed. As of Monday, Ingles had not filed a request.

The matter is then brought before the planning commission, which makes a recommendation to the board of commissioners. The latter has final authority, unless its decision is appealed to the zoning board of appeals.

Nugent claims the issue never reached the board of commissioners because the planning commission would not consider Ingles' request.

He also said that because the county made an error and issued a permit for a mobile home, Ingles should not have to go through the red tape.

Nugent turned the chair and supervision of the meeting over to Bruce Kuhl, vice-chairman, then brought the matter before the board.

Following the discussions, Nugent moved to have the planning commission reconsider the rezoning at no cost to Ingles.

Several commissioners, however, said they were afraid a precedent might be set. Albert Thoms, Harbor Beach, proposed an amendment that would require Ingles to pay one half the normal fee.

The original motion as amended was approved, 4-3.

The Haire Net

About every six months or so one of the Detroit newspapers outlines a trip through the Thumb. The schedule is as predictable as a McDonald's hamburger.

And like a McDonald's, the suggested sojourns are good quality and maybe if it's your first trip it's like your first hamburger . . . terrific at the price.

The grindstones at Grindstone City are worth seeing. Lake Huron shoreline is fine and the museum at Pioneer Huron City has undoubted tourist appeal.

You'll always find Frank-enmuth on a tour of the Thumb and on the travel itinerary published Sunday, Bay City and Midland were included. There's undoubted interest in these communities but they just aren't part of the Thumb.

After the three or four-day suggested tour, the visitor will have no more insight into the Thumb than a person who would understand religion by looking at the outside of churches.

If our neighbors from the big town really want to take a trip that's different he or she could do well to start with one of the churches.

One of the churches that pop up in unexpected places like the Methodist church in Grant township or the Lutheran church at Columbia Corners or any of a dozen others.

That will start his education about the Thumb and its people. He might make a point of dropping in for lunch at an affair like the Shabbona RLDS church stages once a month. He'll get an insight there that he couldn't find in a hundred of the suggested tours.

On our tour the visitors would stop at a farm along the way. If they weren't too pushy they'd find one where they could talk a minute. Learn about the land, the crops, the problems, and return at the very least with a better yardstick to measure what's happening in what essentially is a different lifestyle.

If fate is kind he could run into a celebration like Cass City's Fourth Festival or Ugly Home-Coming. Mingling with the crowds, maybe a little of the friendly neighborliness will rub off . . . an atmosphere that never will be found on the midway at the State Fair.

What our trip boils down to is a trip designed to find the real Thumb.

It's not apparent at the tourist information desk of the local Chamber of Commerce.

You have to hunt to find it, but it's worth it when you do.

"If It Fitz. . ." Threat of a precedent

By Jim Fitzgerald

It is generally believed that precedents are dangerous, the same as bear traps. I don't know where this belief began. It might have been in a church of undisclosed value.

People are always growling about the setting of dangerous precedents, which is the same way bears feel about the setting of traps near their paws. If there are ever any safe precedents set, they don't get much publicity.

On the other hand, dangerous precedents get lots of media attention. They are continually mentioned in newspaper and TV reports about the people who fight to prevent dangerous precedents from being set. Most people opposed to dangerous precedents believe an ounce of prevention is better than a mangled paw.

A good example is the National Rifle Association (NRA). Whenever it is suggested that little children shouldn't be allowed to own nuclear weapons, the NRA sights a dangerous precedent on the horizon.

While agreeing it may be risky for little kids to play with intercontinental ballistic missiles, the NRA insists it would be wrong to forbid it. A dangerous precedent would be set:

"If the government is allowed to take missiles away from children, how long will it be before a grown man is unable to shoot his wife because some noney bureaucrat confiscated his pistol?"

The latest dangerous precedent to gain widespread publicity is one being fought by several Michigan church groups. This dangerous precedent, if set, would threaten the church's constitutional right to say nuts to the tax collector.

Some state legislators believe all churches should be required to make an annual public report of the value of their untaxed land and buildings. This way, taxpayers would know how much they are paying to make up for what the churches aren't paying.

Most churches claim they wouldn't object to revealing the value of their property; except it would set a dangerous precedent:

"If the government could demand to know the value of church property, how long would it be before the FBI began counting the number of prayers being said in the 18-story parking garage owned by St. Mickey's of the Lake Church?"

The historical reason for the tax exemption is to preserve the separation between church and state. This is important to the freedom of religion. If the government were allowed to tax a church, it could use this taxing power to coerce the pastor into making a sermon favoring Jimmy Carter's energy policy.

People favoring public disclosure of the value of church property claim they have no desire to put the state in the pulpit. But many of them do admit to being suspicious of how much worshiping is done from the grease racks in St. Mickey's garage.

"Most churches are OK, I'm sure," one skeptic told me. "But what about those bald-headed people who panhandle in airports and buy mansions with the money? What about the TV faith healers who collect hundreds of thousands of dollars to buy mountains and build high-rise apartment complexes to shelter saved souls? These people take a lot of property off the tax rolls. They are subsidized by the public and I think they should be required to regularly disclose what they own and what it's worth."

Many church supporters concede there are a few churches that may stretch the tax exemption to cover condominium counseling and franchised loaves and fishes. But these supporters still object to a law that would force any church to reveal how much it's worth.

"It would set a dangerous precedent," the churchman said. "The door would be open. Once the lawmakers learn the value of church property, the next step would be to amend the Constitution to allow a complete government takeover of the top four floors of St. Mickey's Parking Garage."

Oh ye of little faith. Obviously, there would be no problem if the church people would believe it's possible to set a precedent that's not dangerous. All they need is faith enough to stick in a paw to find out.

PEDALING AROUND

Safer cycling

By Mike Eliasohn

Look, ma, no hands. Look, ma, no brakes. Look, ma... whoops! As a bicycle "freak," I notice what gets pedaled around town, and much of it, unfortunately, I find appalling.

For instance, there was the 10-speed converted into a one-speed with no brakes. The rider "stopped" it by putting her foot against the front tire.

If there hasn't been a bad bicycle accident yet in Cass City, some day there will be because a rider wasn't able to stop because there were no brakes on the bike or a motorist didn't see it at night because there were no lights or reflectors on it or because the rider was trying to ride with one hand on the handlebars and the other around a sack of groceries.

There are days when the weather is lousy and there is no way I'm going to ride my bike, so I am not advocating riding them all the time.

But, there are lots of nice days and in these times of $1 a gallon gasoline and possible shortages, using a bicycle as much as possible makes a lot of sense — plus it's good exercise.

Thus one bothersome thing I see, or more correctly, don't see, around here, are baskets on bikes.

It is somewhat ludicrous to drive to the grocery, get home and put the groceries away, then go for a bike ride for exercise.

Using a bike for grocery hauling may not be practical for a mother with lots of mouths to feed or for someone living several miles out into the country but two large side baskets can each hold a sack of groceries, so for many, using a bike for such purposes is practical.

In addition to baskets making bikes useful beasts of burdens, they also enable the rider to keep both hands on the handlebars at all times, which is the only safe way to ride a bike. (Even less safe is riding with no hands on the bars. Hit a pebble or a bump and the result can be a quick fall.)

Worse is riding a bike with no brakes, which I see fairly often, or only a front brake. (Trying to stop with only a front brake when moving fast will flip the bike — and the rider — head over heels.)

Brakeless bikes are usually ones with hand brakes. Either the brake pads have fallen off or because nothing has ever been lubricated, nothing works.

I have also seen coaster brake bikes with the brake arm not connected. (It won't work unless it is.) Although it doesn't affect safety, I have also seen lots of bikes with gear shifting mechanisms that don't work.

The bicycle industry could, if it chose, build machines that don't need any maintenance.

Since it hasn't chosen to do so, that means either the owner or a bike shop must maintain the bikes.

Part of the lack-of-maintenance problem in Cass City is obviously because there is no place here to get bikes repaired. (The nearest place is Caro.)

But bicycles aren't that complicated and it doesn't take that much know how to do simple repairs, such as relubricating brake and gear shift cables, cleaning and relubricating bearings, etc.

The other lack is lights and/or reflectors on bikes ridden at night. At a minimum, parents should make sure their kids' bikes — and their own — have reflectors (required by law on new bikes) or use reflectorized tape so that the bikes can be seen from all directions by auto drivers at night. (Also needed is for the bike rider to look where he or she is going.)

What it boils down to is this: It's not worth getting one's head split open or bones broken because the rider lost control because he or she only had one hand on the handlebars or ran into a car because the bike couldn't stop or was hit by a car at night because the driver didn't see the bike in time.

Most drinking water not for drinking

At least 80 percent of the drinking water produced by most American communities is not used for drinking at all. Instead, it's used in industry and irrigation, washing cars and cleaning floors. In a recent report, the experts at the American Chemical Society, a leading scientific organization, pointed out that highly treated wastewater could be an alternative supply for these needs, doing away with a lot of water wasting. This cannot, however, be put into effect very easily under our existing water control system.

Good jobs often dodge the fellow who has a lame reputation.

Teen pageant 'worth it,' local contestants say

Two local girls were among 95 finalists in the Miss Michigan Teen USA pageant July 6-8 at the Kalamazoo Hilton Hotel. They didn't win, but had a "great time meeting people and making new friends from all over the state."

"Just to experience something like that was worth it to me," said Gail Compo, 17, of Cass City. "It wasn't like we were at each other's neck in order to win the title; in fact, we were always wishing each other good luck. Some of us got to be close friends in that short time."

Miss Compo is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Compo, 3540 E. Cass City Road. She will be a senior at Cass City High School this fall.

The other area finalist was Tammy Lee Becker, 17. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Becker of Cass City Road, Ubyly. She will be a junior in the fall at Ubyly High School.

The pageant was designed to recognize and honor outstanding young ladies from their respective communities for civic and scholastic achievements.

"We were notified through the mail last March (1979) that we were selected," Miss Becker said. "They referred to the high school, church groups and even former contestants for this year's selection."

EACH FINALIST HAD TO find sponsors to help defray the cost of crown, banner, trophies, emcee, entertainment and other expenses incurred in the production of the state pageant. The total each contestant needed from sponsors was $200.

"It's really not a rip off," Miss Compo said. "I didn't have that much trouble finding sponsors and I guess the money went to worthwhile causes."

She had four sponsors, each contributing $50. They were: Ouvry Chevrolet, Walbro, the Charmont and Cass City State Bank.

Miss Becker wasn't as fortunate.

"I was still looking for sponsors up until the end of the last week," she said. "That was because a lot of the area business people didn't know much about the contest and were a little wary."

Her sponsors were: Copeland-Gornowicz Insurance, Alexander's Trucking, Holbrook Helpers 4-H Horse Club and the Crazy Horse Riding Stables in Decker-ville.

The sponsors were advertised in the state program under the photograph of the girl they sponsored and were also recognized when each contestant was introduced on the night of the pageant.

"Sponsors also received a certificate of appreciation and two free tickets to the pageant," Miss Becker said. "Parents had to pay $5 per person if they wanted to get into the pageant. They also had to furnish transportation to and from Kalamazoo. That was sort of a rip off."

Both girls agreed the worst part of the week end was the food served in the hotel.

"Friday night's dinner was chicken a la king and a bunch of girls got really sick that night," Miss Compo said. "Three went to the hospital that night and one went Saturday. They (chaperons) weren't sure if it was food poisoning or a virus. My guess was the food."

THE COMPETITION started Friday night with the speech and talent show. Everything that was performed by the contestants was to be patriotic in nature. Miss Compo recited a speech on Clara Barton and Miss Becker did one on Susan B. Anthony.

Kingston, Ubyly may get grants

Kingston and Ubyly will apparently become eligible for special U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development grants, Congressman Bob Traxler announced last week.

Also apparently eligible to apply for funds under the Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program will be Caro, Indianfields township and Unionville.

Confirmation of their eligibility is expected shortly.

The UDAG program, Traxler explained, combines the efforts of the federal and local governments with private investors to revive lagging local economies.

The federal government awards grants to local governments after securing commitments from private investors for investments totaling at least 4-6 times the amount of the government grant.

The action grant program was authorized by Congress in 1977 to "assist severely distressed cities and urban counties to revitalize local economies and reclaim deteriorated neighborhoods." Projects should be "of maximum benefit to low and moderate income persons."

Eligibility is determined by a community's relative rating in such criteria as physical and economic distress, age of housing units, per capita income, population outmigration, unemployment, poverty and job lag in retailing and manufacturing.

Bad Axe was recipient of a UDAG grant last year which paid for extension of water lines and roads in an industrial park. The project is expected to bring in $2 million in private investment.

DETROIT EDISON OFFERS EIGHT IMPORTANT TIPS TO HELP YOU GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR AIR CONDITIONER THIS SUMMER.

Fortunately, Detroit Edison customers have plenty of electric power available. Now and in the future. It's the result of planning, development and investment and the fact that over 84 percent of Detroit Edison's power is generated from coal, the nation's most abundant fuel. The balance is generated from other fossil fuels. Even so, none of us should waste energy. So follow these tips and stay cool and comfortable all summer long.

-  1 Keep your air conditioner on a moderate setting. When leaving home, set the temperature higher.
-  2 Pull down shades and close draperies to keep out the hot sun.
-  3 Be careful not to block the flow of cool air.
-  4 Shade windows from outside with ventilated awnings, solar screens, trees or shrubs.
-  5 Keep air filter, coils, registers and return ducts clean.
-  6 Flush out hot attic air with a powered ventilator.
-  7 Use heat and humidity-producing appliances — such as your oven, washer and dryer — early in the morning or in the evening.
-  8 If you're buying a new air conditioner, you'll save electricity if you select one with an energy efficiency rating (EER) of 8 or higher. The EER is figured by dividing the BTUs by the watts.

CASH planning $45,000 drive

Starting with an art fair Sunday, Caro Area Services for the Handicapped (CASH) intends to raise $45,000 between now and Dec. 1.

The money will be used as follows: $20,000 to support existing rehabilitation programs during this fiscal year which ends Sept. 30, and $25,000 to be used in the new fiscal year starting Oct. 1 as a 20 percent matching share of a $125,000 federal grant to be used to build additional program space at the Cleaver Road site. CASH will also purchase a van with a hydraulic lift for wheelchair clients and audio-visual equipment to assist in the teaching of job-seeking skills.

It hopes to raise the needed funds through the following activities which will be scheduled throughout the summer.

- 1) Direct mail campaign beginning in July.
- 2) Big Las Vegas party.
- 3) Radio talk-a-thon on WKYO.
- 4) An art fair Sunday, starting at 10 a.m. and running all day at the CASH workshop, 1186 Cleaver

Road, on the east edge of Caro.

Featured will be furniture built by the CASH Caro Creations Group, items made by disabled Tuscola county residents through the CASH Home Employment Program, bake sale, flea market, refreshments, entertainment for children, plus free baby sitters.

In addition, CASH hopes to arrange a bike-a-thon, swimming event and possibly another visit by Stevie Wonder.

The organization is also contacting private foundations outside of Tuscola county as its services reach not only every village in Tuscola county but also adjoining counties.

Fund raising committee includes: Wayne Turner, chairman of the CASH Board of Directors and manager of Caro Manufacturing Co., Suzanne Lane, vice-chairman, from Vassar, Al and Dolly Jones, Laura Lockman, Al and Karan Mahan, and Ted and Margaret Hull.

The program expansion will permit CASH to develop a larger sheltered workshop program permitting it to serve an additional 15 to 20 disabled citizens. It also will be in a better position to prepare individuals for competitive employment.

The handicaps served by CASH include cerebral palsy, mental retardation, epileptic, emotionally and psychologically impaired, the blind and physically handicapped.

Country is getting older

Once regarded as the country of the young, the United States as a nation of people is rapidly aging: while the total population has nearly tripled since 1900, there are now seven times as many people over age 65 as there were then.

Most economists estimate that for people to retire in the style to which they have become accustomed, they would need an income equal to 60 to 70 percent of their earnings immediately preceding retirement, with occasional adjustments for inflation.

Your Neighbor says

Tina Grammatico

Fed up with political pledges

If Tina Grammatico's reaction to President Jimmy Carter's speech Sunday night is any indication of what the rest of the country feels, his new energy program needs to convince the public he is a capable leader.

"I watched most of the speech, but near the end I got bored," she said. "We (the public) keep hearing the same thing over and over again. I'm fed up with unfulfilled promises."

Miss Grammatico admitted she has lost confidence in Carter's capabilities as President, and wants him to face the truth and restore dignity into the American way of life.

"I think he's been avoiding problems until now. But I still want more definite answers. I've heard too many campaign promises."

She hopes Carter's proposed $142 billion energy program for the next 10 years will stir the country away from its dependence on oil from foreign countries.

"Synthetic fuels must be increased and the American people have to learn to use less energy," Miss Grammatico said. "But Carter is the one who has to show the kind of leadership to get us out of the crisis."

In his speech, Mr. Carter said the problem is an "erosion of our confidence in the future. As President, I need your help. So I decided to reach out and listen to the voices of America."

But Miss Grammatico believes he's not.

"I don't think he is taking into consideration the common people and their concerns," she said. "It's always more about what the government thinks and wants and less on our dreams and hopes for the future."

I really believe someone else could do a better job in the White House; maybe Ted Kennedy or someone like that. Someone who will take charge and have the nation behind him 100 percent."

Miss Grammatico believes if Carter is going to run for President in 1980, this (energy program) is his last chance to regain any support from the American people.

"Americans are fed up with empty promises. We need to see action."

Miss Grammatico is a library assistant at the Rawson Memorial Library and lives at 4689 Shabbona Road, Cass City.

Cass City police probe several equipment thefts

An outboard motor worth $500 was reported stolen to Cass City police Sunday.

Elmer Francis of 6446 Pine Street told officers the 6 horsepower Evinrude was removed from his boat, parked on his lawn, sometime between 4 a.m. Thursday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

James E. Spencer of 6057 Severance Road, Deford, reported to sheriff's deputies July 5 that numerous items had been stolen from his garage.

Taken were a tool box and tools, $280; engine valve covers, $30; distributor, $50; intake manifold, $200; dual feed carburetor, $110; and chrome air breather, $10. Damage to the garage door was estimated at $50.

The four wheels taken off the car parked outside, two black and two chrome, were worth a total of $100.

Stanley Otulakowski reported to deputies July 3 that 40 2-by-4s worth $75 and three boxes of nails, weighing 100 pounds and worth $50, were taken from his house under construction on Crawford Road, south of M-81.

Peggy Curtis of 4488 Leach Street told Cass City police Sunday that she had found parts of a parking meter behind her apartment.

She said she first noticed the meter by the door of her apartment missing at noon Saturday.

The meter had been broken off about 1 inch above the sidewalk. Officers later found the pole and the top part of the meter behind Cass City Floral and the bottom part on the roof of the rear portion of the Trade Winds store, both on Main Street.

Ray Armstead of 4391 Seeger Street told village police at 3:45 a.m. last Thursday that someone had just taken an electric saw from his pickup truck. A neighbor had seen a man taking it.

Police matched the description with someone they had seen on the street 10 minutes earlier. They went to where he lived, in the Colonial Inn, and he gave them the saw, which was given back to Armstead. He declined to press charges.

A clerk in Kritzman's Clothing Store, 6447 Main Street, Friday afternoon caught a 14-year-old girl wearing a pair of jeans from the store underneath her trousers.

As of Tuesday, police hadn't decided yet whether to turn disposition of her case over to probate court.

Sheriff's deputies, Caro state police and Cass City police were dispatched shortly before 10 p.m. Sunday to a reported fight on Phillips Road in Novesta township.

As of Tuesday noon, a report on the incident still wasn't available from the sheriff's department.

A. Yanosko, 83, buried Sunday

Andrew Yanosko of Cass City died Sunday at the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility in Caro.

He was born March 20, 1896, in Czechoslovakia, coming to the United States June 2, 1921. He came to Cass City in 1931.

Yanosko married Mrs. Michalina Hudima Glowicki in Mount Clemens in 1936. She died March 8, 1967.

He attended St. Pancratius Catholic church of Cass City.

Yanosko is survived by two stepsons, Joseph Wilks of Detroit and Ted Glowicki of Chelsea, Mich.; four stepdaughters, Mrs. Gladys Szmanek of Marine City, and Mrs. Marie Strack, Mrs. Joseph Kuczmarski and Mrs. Nellie Kinsman, all of Detroit; 25 step-grandchildren; 70 step-great-grandchildren, and three step great-great-grandchildren.

A rosary was recited Tuesday evening from Little's Funeral Home, Cass City.

Funeral mass was conducted Wednesday morning from St. Pancratius Catholic church with Father Joseph Morales officiating.

Burial was in Novesta cemetery.

Study politics

4 girls from county attend annual Farm Bureau seminar

Entering their "own world of politics" June 18-22, four girls from Tuscola county were among over 200 Michigan high school juniors and seniors who took part in the 1979 Michigan Farm Bureau Young People's Citizenship Seminar at Albion College.

The four girls were Karen Stine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Stine, Deford; Sharon Petzold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Petzold, Millington; Julie Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter, Deford; and Sonja Petzold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Petzold, Millington.

The seminar, sponsored by the Michigan Farm Bureau and county Farm Bureau organizations, emphasized the importance of an informed, involved electorate in the democratic process of self-government.

Students were encouraged at the seminar to take part in political activities of the fictitious Federalist, Populist and Independent parties, to express their concerns on individual issues through political party conventions and to run for a "political" office.

The young people were also introduced to the social, economic and political viewpoints expressed by guest speakers. They were: Mary Coleman, chief justice; Michigan Supreme Court; Lt. Gov. James Brickley; Dr. Clifton Ganus, president of Harding College, Searcy, Ark.; internationally-noted lecturer and author Dr. John Furbay; Dr. Paul Kindig; ger. commodity activities and research director, Michigan Farm Bureau; Marid Schultz, Ukrainian refugee and now naturalized U.S. citizen; Al Almy, public affairs director, Michigan Farm Bureau, and Joseph McNamara, manager of the Free Enterprise Institute, Amway Corp.

4 face district court charges

A Cass City man pleaded guilty in district court last Thursday to larceny under $100 in connection with the theft of five pieces of scrap iron from the dump at the Caro Regional Center.

The plea of Charles A. Lane, 18, of 6594 Pine Street, was accepted by Judge Richard F. Kern, who scheduled sentencing July 30. Lane is free on personal recognizance bond.

A pretrial hearing for William A. Enos, 23, of 427 Fremont Street, Caro, also charged with larceny under $100 in connection with the same incident, is scheduled Aug. 14 in district court. He is also free on personal recognizance bond.

The two were apprehended July 3 by a Regional Center security guard who saw their car coming from the dump. The scrap iron was in the trunk.

The state facility normally waits until enough scrap accumulates, then sells it to the highest bidder.

Steve Walter, 18, of 3295 Huron Line Road, Cass City, pleaded guilty Friday before Judge Kern to larceny under $100 in connection with the June 27 or 28 break-in of the Quaker Maid Dairy Store, 6614 Main Street.

His plea was accepted and sentencing was scheduled July 30. Bond was set at $1,000 cash or surety, which has since been posted.

Charged with aiding in a breaking and entering in connection with the same break-in is Jeff Auvil, 20, of 6374 Fourth Street, whose pre-preliminary examination is now scheduled July 23 and preliminary examination, Aug. 3.

Taken in the break-in was a total of about $930 in cash, food stamps and lottery tickets, not all of which was recovered.

In Huron County Circuit Court Monday, Judge M. Richard Knoblock sentenced Jon F. Lenhard, 22, of Gagetown, to six months in the county jail for unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle.

He was credited with 46 days already served. Psychiatric counseling was ordered.

Lenhard pleaded guilty to the charge June 8, in connection with taking the car of Van Fritz of Bay Port May

Hopes are high for Babe Ruth teams as playoff time nears

If both Cass City teams have success in the last part of the Babe Ruth Baseball League, the playoffs may end in a battle between the two squads. That's what both coaches believe after what they've seen from their players in the first half of the season. Both expect more success from their teams as the regular season winds down. The Cass City A team continued their winning ways July 11 with a 14-1 thumping over Bad Axe that improved their record to 6-1. Jim Atkins went the distance on the mound, pitching five innings because of the 10-run rule. He gave up only two hits, one run and two base on balls while striking out six.

Barry Lapp led the hitting attack with his two singles and a double in four trips to the plate. Darryl Hoag contributed with two singles and catcher Greg Hutchinson smashed a double and a triple in the game.

With those two hits, Hutchinson is tied with third baseman Willard Burdon for the team batting lead, each hitting at a torrid .522 clip. Coach Ray Piaskowski said the team batting average stood at an impressive .372 after seven games.

"I'm very pleased with the progress this team is making," Piaskowski said. "We've got a good chance in the playoffs but it'll be a dog fight between us, Port Austin and Harbor Beach. Cass City B is coming on strong in the second half of the season too."

Piaskowski said the 6-1 record is due to the team effort his 10 ballplayers give every game. He hopes he can keep those 10 healthy and on the team.

"We started with 15 players and now we're down to 10," he said. "That is because of injuries, summer jobs or something else."

One of Piaskowski's better players, Tom Rutkowski, broke his leg in the Ugly game a few weeks ago as he slid into home plate. "He's out for the season."

But hitting hasn't been the only ingredient for the team's success. Good controlled pitching has helped them when it was needed the most.

Piaskowski has two left-handers and one right-hander that have been outstanding. "Jim Atkins and John Krol are two of the best left-handers in the league," the coach said. "Ray Ferris, the right-hander, is also doing very well for us."

With its 6-1 record, the A team has managed to knock off Kinde in a doubleheader, come back in the late innings to defeat Harbor Beach 9-5, and defeat Ugly, Cass City and Bad Axe with little difficulty. Their only loss was at the hands of Port Austin, which scored five runs in the sixth inning to win it 10-5 over Cass City.

B TEAM

The Cass City B team, however, is not enjoying as much success. But then, coach Phil Robinson is in charge of a very young squad.

"The Babe Ruth League is for boys 13-15 and most of my players are 13-year-olds and have never played on this size of a diamond before," Robinson said. "I think we're doing pretty good and we still believe we are definite contenders in the playoffs."

The team's hitting attack is led by Pete Martin, Gary Robinson, Kirk Wischmeyer and Tim Babich.

Coach Robinson said his starters are tough but the bullpen is weak and when the starter of a game gets tired, they're usually in trouble.

Fred Zawilinski went the distance against Port Hope when Cass City won 8-4. "He has turned out to be a very effective starter," Robinson said.

Along with Zawilinski, Robinson said Kevin Downing and Gary Robinson have also pitched well.

The B team's record sank to an even .500 (4-4) when it was bombed by Port Austin, 20-6, July 11. But, the members think they can still get in the top four teams in the division and enjoy a home field advantage.

Weather permitting, the playoffs will start this week with the top four teams in the final standings hosting the bottom four. The first place team will play the last place team, second place team will host the seventh place team and so on.

So far, Cass City A, Harbor Beach and Port Austin have clinched home field advantage with the last spot undecided. Cass City B and Kinde are the two teams fighting for it with 4-4 records.

The playoff finals will be July 23-25, weather permitting, at Port Austin.

Cass City drops Bay City in summer tourney

Cass City defeated defending champion Bay City All Saints 57-49 to win the fifth annual Cass City summer basketball tournament.

The win was Cass City's third straight summer tournament championship and coach Ron Nurnberger hopes this is a forecast of things to come.

"This tournament provided the best balanced competition to date," he said. "As the scores indicate, all games were close and provided all entries with keen competition."

Brighton's 6-foot-3-inch forward Bob Bachelor scored 42 points to lead the Bulldogs to a third place consolation victory over Ovid-Elsie 95-87.

Cass City showed balanced scoring and team depth in defeating Bay City All Saints in the finals.

Cass City will conclude its summer basketball program at Benzie Central July 27-28. That tournament will feature teams from Benzie,

Bay City All Saints, Traverse City Central, Mason County Central, Niles, Frankenmuth, Cass City and Traverse City St. Francis.

Patch House no more

was ready -- had the county board appropriated the funds.

The proposal calls for it to be constructed on county-owned land off Cleaver Road, although that will have to be approved by the board if it appropriates the $55,000. The commissioners will probably reconsider the money request this fall when it plans its 1980 budget.

Johnson, head of the mental health program, said he feels a new building will make it easier to recruit houseparents, as well as having the advantages any new structure would have.

THE PATCH HOUSE in Caro for Tuscola county children with severe mental, emotional or behavioral problems was closed in early July, after having been in operation since October, 1974. The home, which was rented, is for sale.

80th birthday

Party held for Hazel Moore

A birthday party was held Saturday in the village park for Hazel Moore of 4364 Seeger Street, who celebrated her 80th birthday Monday.

Her six children, five stepchildren, several grandchildren and some great-grandchildren were among those present.

The oldest person there was Mrs. Ethel Crafts, in her 80s, of North Branch.

The youngest was a great-granddaughter, Kimberly Burman, 8 weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Burman of Attica.

A meal was served. The cake was made by a granddaughter, Mrs. Dave Romar of Chicago.

In addition to those communities mentioned, other guests were from Big Rapids, Mio, Au Gres, Saginaw, Livonia, Middleton and Davison.

Hazel Moore

Ruth Dorman lauds Mrs. Hazel Moore

Dear Friend at the Chronicle:

While in the garden, I was thinking about Mrs. Hazel Moore. Her birthday was July 16 and she was 80 years old. She was married to Paul Silvernail. He was killed in July, 1926 by a runaway team of horses while haying.

She was left with four small children and a baby coming in December. She didn't get ADC or Social Security but raised chickens and milked cows and hoed, gardened and canned to provide for her family.

In later years, she has roomed and boarded and cared for many many persons. She has babysitted for working mothers. Her heart is full of love for others. Mrs. Meyers who now is at Provincial House formerly lived with her. She has no children so for her birthday Mrs. Moore invited Sarah to her place for dinner.

She at one time cared for the William D'Arcys in their home and the Smiths next door and many others. She has taken in school children and college youth who had jobs.

As the saying goes - "She has a heart as big as a washtub."

Mrs. Dickinson, who recently passed away, was there for three or four years. She went across the road to the Schneeberger Apartments and cared for Flossie Crane and others. Chauncy Tallman roomed and boarded there after Mr. Silvernail died.

In 1927, she married Steve Moore, a thrasher, whose wife died leaving him with five children also. Later they had a daughter Wau-nita Moore. Her husband died in 1963.

The children often brought home playmates who were always welcome.

ROCKING CHAIR DONATED -- The Tuscola County Foster Care Association donated a rocking chair to the pediatric floor of Hills and Dales General Hospital Monday morning. Youth 'fair' after blasting caps explode

Brian Lee Vandemark, 17, was reported in fair condition Tuesday afternoon at Hills and Dales General Hospital where he is recovering from injuries suffered when dynamite blasting caps blew up in his right hand.

According to Cass City police, who were called to the hospital emergency room to investigate, the incident took place in Novesta township at 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Officers reported the youth had three of the caps, which he struck with a hard blow and was then going to throw. Before he could release them, they exploded.

He wouldn't tell officers where he obtained the caps.

HOME TO ROOST

It seems that the fellow who discovered that honesty is the best policy had probably experimented with them all.

MAP SHOWS the approximate route taken by the Wandering Wheels group from San Diego to St. Augustine. Except for the final Sunday, the cyclists only rode Monday through Saturday.

Rides 2,700 miles on bicycle

five meals elsewhere each week.

Most of the time they slept in church basements, but sometimes in schools and twice at colleges.

SOME OF THE TIME they slept under the stars, including two nights in the desert. That's where the lizards came in, during one of those nights.

The girl sleeping next to Janet jumped up about every half hour when one of the reptiles got inside her sleeping bag.

The Cass Cityan had her sleeping bag tied so tightly around her they couldn't get in, but, "You could feel them running over you all night long but you were so tired you didn't care."

The other girl's jumping up, however, meant both of them didn't get much sleep that night, which caused another problem the next day - sleepiness.

It is possible to fall asleep while riding a bike. In fact, she said, it's very easy, especially on long boring stretches.

And if the rider fell asleep, there was a good chance he or she would bring down other riders with them.

The 62 cyclists on the trip were divided into groups of usually six, based on temperament and how fast they wanted to pedal.

They often rode close together in single file so that the rider in front would break the wind for the rest of them.

That required that each rider be extra alert, but touching wheels and resulting falls were common.

THE MOST SERIOUS accident on the trip was caused by a truck that went through a stop sign in Shreveport, La. The truck just missed Janet but hit the girl behind her. She was knocked unconscious and was taken to a hospital but the next day was riding again. All riders, incidentally, had to wear helmets.

The big mechanical problem on the trip was flat tires. Miss Umpfenbach said her group of six averaged about five flats per day. They were fixed by the group leader, veteran of previous coast-to-coast trips, who carried a tire pump and patches.

EACH DAY BEGAN AT 4:30 with getting ready, eating breakfast and 15-minute devotionals conducted by Wandering Wheels founder and leader, Bob Davenport. "I needed that," Miss Umpfenbach said of combination prayer and discussion sessions. "To just get out on a bike, to not have anything that would apply, it just didn't mean anything."

She also found the spiritualness of the group was important in their being so supportive and understanding of one another.

The group was on the road by 6 each morning and usually had 60-70 miles in by lunchtime at 1. Then came another 40-50 miles before quitting at 7-8 p.m.

Sometimes her group would decide to "lollygag" and make more stops along the way. Sometimes they would be in a hurry and maintain a steady pace. The longest distance covered in one day was 130 miles. "After 130, 100 miles seems like nothing."

The group arrived in St. Augustine July 7, complete with police escort to the beach where dipping their wheels into the Atlantic Ocean ended the journey.

MOST THEN RODE A Wandering Wheels bus to Taylor University. From there, Janet got a ride to Grand Rapids with the parents of a girl who came to get their daughter, who had gone on the trip. Mr. and Mrs. Umpfenbach picked up their daughter in Grand Rapids. She got home July 9.

She presently is working as youth director at Salem United Methodist, a job she started two weeks before going on the trip. She is considering going to Asbury Seminary in Wilmore, Ky., in January to study Christian education.

Her trip cost her $395, which included use of a 10-speed bike furnished by Wandering Wheels, plus air fare to San Diego and incidental expenses.

Would she go again? "There were days I thought, 'When will this four weeks be over?' but by the third week I knew I didn't want it to end."

"The day I got back, I wanted to go again. I'd go again in two minutes."

Owen-Gage to borrow $350,000

The Municipal Finance Commission in Lansing Tuesday approved the request of the Owendale-Gage-town School District for permission to borrow $350,000 in anticipation of property tax revenue.

The district will now solicit bids from banks on the interest rate they will charge to loan the money, which will be repaid with property tax revenues that Owen-Gage starts receiving in December.

Receipt of the loan money will enable the district to resume paying its employees, who last received paychecks June 8, plus give them their back pay.

Supt. Ronald Erickson said it will probably take about 10 days to get bids from banks, at which time the school board will hold a special meeting to award a bid to the bank charging the lowest interest.

Community booster

Eleanora Trost cleans up while others dropped out

Editor's note: this is one of a series sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce about community boosters who are members of the organization.

Long before women's lib became popular Mrs. Eleanora Eicher Trost was successfully running a cleaning business and participating in community events.

She opened the Cass City branch of Eicher's Cleaners in 1946 and has survived and prospered while other cleaning firms left the field.

The company kept going during the slump caused by polyester fabrics and the trend to silk and wool has aided business today.

The company cleans household furnishing, pillows, drapes, rugs, bedspreads and arranges for cleaning of leathers, furniture and carpeting.

Mrs. Trost has held important posts in the county, district and state organizations of the Michigan State Federation of Women's Club.

Mrs. Trost is a Blue Star Mother and a member of the VFW Auxiliary. She is a member of the Women's Society of the Lutheran church and was the first woman president of the Pigeon Chamber of Commerce. Naturally, Eicher's is also a member of the Cass City Chamber.

A son, Allison Eicher, lives in Bloomfield Hills and a daughter, Mrs. Glen Schaaf, lives in Pigeon.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Questions 3-hour wait

Dear John,
Re: Your statement in "Rabbit Tracks" that people had to wait in line 3 hours for chicken at the Lions Club chicken barbecue.

I think that statement was a bit exaggerated. If that was the case, they may have purchased tickets, tired of waiting in line, left, and went back.

Considering that it was the Lions' first attempt at such a large undertaking, they are to be lauded for the attempt.

It was a large project for novices, it is not as easy as cooking on your back yard grill, nor was it easy standing over hot fires all day.

Perhaps you could have softened the criticism by mentioning the fact that the end product was certainly worth waiting for. It was absolutely delicious.

Two persons hurt in police chase

An accident Friday night that ended a police chase sent two persons to Hills and Dales General Hospital.

The driver of the motorcycle involved, Randal D. Ramsey, 18, of 6764 Main Street, was released from the hospital Sunday afternoon. His passenger, James W. Wright, 16, of 5505 Shabbona Road, Decker, was treated and released.

According to Cass City police, officer Phil Klaus was attempting to stop the pair. Instead of stopping, the cycle led a chase down several streets. It then crossed the Hills and Dales lawn headed south, crossed Hospital Drive and went into the ditch on the south side of the road where it "wiped out."

Charges were pending against Ramsey, police said, in connection with the incident, which ended at 10:35 p.m.

Darren Mathews, 14, of 3234 River Street, Kingston, was reported in good condition Tuesday afternoon at St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw, where he was taken after a motorcycle accident at 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

He was transferred there from Caro Community Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies said he was northbound on a trail on private property in Kingston township when his cycle collided with a southbound machine which was rounding a curve, ridden by Scott Woidan, 16, of 3323 Washington Street, Kingston.

Woidan was reported as being injured, but was taken home.

A Cass City youth and his passenger escaped injury in a Saginaw county accident at 4:30 p.m. July 11.

They were the driver, David Whittaker, 16, and his passenger, Ann Whittaker, 20, both of 6766 Third Street.

According to Caro state police, Whittaker was northbound on Midland Road and ran into the rear of the vehicle in front of him, which had stopped suddenly.

The other driver, Arthur Helfrecht, 67, of St. Charles, had stopped when the vehicle in front of him was turning. Reportedly, his vehicle had no brake lights.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, deputies said, Lois Ann Dennis, 40, was backing from her driveway at 2004 Bevans Road, Caro, and backed into an eastbound car.

Driver of the other car was Millie C. Mark, 56, of 3756 Elmwood Road, Cass City. The mishap took place east of Pierce Road.

Deputies reported that at 1:05 a.m., July 10, Edmund J. Wesolowski, 21, of Marlette, was westbound on M-81, east of Lazell Road, when his car struck a deer.

Zoning can't halt start of any foster care home

Rejection by the Cass City Village Council in June, 1976 of a requested rezoning to allow use of a single family residence as an adult foster care home couldn't happen today if the same request were made.

The requested rezoning was for a home on Church Street near Hill Street, for purposes of using it as an adult foster care facility. There would have been room for six persons.

For that purpose, it had to be rezoned from single-family residential to multiple-family. Property on one side of the home was already zoned multiple-family.

The council rejected the rezoning request because of pressure from neighbors, whose concerns included a feared loss in value of their property if the foster home were allowed.

The following year, however, the state legislature passed a law "that persons in need of community residential care shall not be excluded by zoning from the benefits of normal residential surroundings."

In order to achieve that, the law said, "a state licensed residential facility providing supervision, or care, or both, to six or less persons shall be considered a residential use of property for the purposes of zoning and a permitted use in all residential zones, including those zoned for single family dwellings, and shall not be subject to a special use or conditional use permit."

The law applies to privately-owned homes for adults in need of supervision or care and foster children.

Foster care homes for persons released from adult correctional institutions are not protected under the law.

Another section of the law says that such facilities, existing or proposed, cannot be within 1,500' of one another (3,000 feet in Detroit).

Purpose of the law was twofold, according to James Quigley, director of the Division of Adult Foster Care Licensing for the state Department of Social Services.

One was to prohibit communities from keeping out foster care facilities by use of zoning laws.

The other was to avoid a concentration of such facilities in communities that did permit them, hence the reason for the 1,500-foot minimum rule.

Quigley said the law has worked "very well." Although there have been some court cases involving the law, he added, there have been no challenges as to its constitutionality.

Although the law allows foster care homes in residential areas, that doesn't mean that anyone can open one, according to George McPeak, a state adult foster care licensing consultant for a five-county area, including Tuscola.

The homes must meet criteria including adequate space and safety in order to receive a state license.

He added that the issue of keeping a foster home out of a community comes up occasionally, but when the community governing council consults with its attorney and is informed of the new law, that has always ended it.

That doesn't mean everyone is content about having foster care homes in their communities.

"I've had people say to me that there might be nothing legally they can do to stop them living there," said Barbara G. Kelley, another foster care licensing consultant, "but they say they won't stop their kids from throwing rocks in the windows."

There is only one licensed adult foster care home in Cass City now, according to McPeak, which is licensed for only one person.

Village officials are aware of the new law, according to village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie. It hasn't been an issue since the rezoning tumult in 1976, because no one since then has wanted to open a foster care home here.

As written, the Cass City zoning ordinance defines "family" for areas zoned for family residential use as: "One or two persons or parents, with their direct lineal descendants and adopted children (and including the domestic employees thereof) together with not more than two persons not so related living together in the whole or part of a dwelling comprising a single housekeeping unit."

That is, of course, superseded by the state law.

Cable TV asks for rate boost

Thumb TV Cable Company is requesting approval of an increase in the monthly rate for service from $7 to $8, and for the optional movie channel, a $10 monthly rate in Cass City, Caro, Vassar, Indianfields and Almer townships.

These charges represent the first such request made by the company in over two years and will make additional services possible plus establish uniformity in the rate structure for all areas, according to James A. McCoy, president of Thumb Cable, Inc.

Present rates will remain in effect until new rates are approved.

McCoy said the latest state-of-the-art electronic equipment is now either being assembled, or is on order and will make possible the following services for those areas which TV Cable Company has served since 1974:

-Satellite signal reception to provide cable subscribers with live coverage from virtually any place in the United States.

-Simultaneous re-transmission of all signals received at the Caro location for viewing at all areas being served. This means the same picture quality and program selection will be available to all cable customers.

-Addition of an optional movie channel, bringing first-run commercial-free motion pictures, special shows and sports events to subscribers who wish to order this feature.

TV Cable Company has also announced the formation of a new corporation which will insure a "sound capital structure" so that expansion plans for the remaining communities may continue with a minimum of delay.

The First Michigan Cablevision Corp. will be headed by Warren Schuemaker, a man with several years' experience in all phases of communication, and James H. Lanham, a certified public accountant.

McCoy said he will continue to manage all systems from the present Caro headquarters. "Each community to be served will have either a local office or a toll-free telephone number to ensure that prompt service will continue," he said.

The transfer of the permit to operate will affect the communities of Marlette, Sandusky, Mayville, Frankenthum, Reese and Sebewaing.

Jamie Doerr off to Japan for 5 weeks

Jamie Doerr, 15, of Ubyly will be among 34 Michigan teenagers who will be saying "sayonara" Friday and boarding a plane for Japan, according to Danny Sandmann, Sanilac county 4-H youth agent.

The youths will fly to Japan as part of the second phase of the Japanese LABO - 4-H teen exchange.

Doerr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Doerr, 7381 Germania Road, Ubyly.

Each teen-ager will spend five weeks with a Japanese host family. The American exchange students will be treated as a member of the family - working and playing together with their Japanese hosts.

During their stay, many of the American youths will tour Japan with their host families and visit such cities as Tokyo, Kikko and Snasu. The youths will also participate in a four-day LABO summer camp.

"The exchange involves young people, ages 12-18, in a true cross-cultural experience," Sandmann said. "The youths learn to know and appreciate other people and cultures by participating in the normal day-to-day activities of the host family."

The Doerr family first became involved in the LABO exchange in 1978 and when they hosted a Japanese youth visiting the United States.

The exchange is jointly coordinated by the Michigan State Cooperative Extension Service and the LABO Exchange Foundation of Japan. The program was instituted in Michigan in 1974.

When Doerr returns to school in the fall, he will be a sophomore at Cass City High School.

Too often a good reputation gets the tar-and-feather treatment by idle gossip.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuscola county farmers prepared for one of the largest wheat harvests in recent history, aided by good weather and up to 50 percent more acreage planted in wheat this year than in 1973. County Extension Director William Bortel said Monday a little red wheat has been harvested but the winter white wheat harvest should begin by the end of the week.

The Methodists knocked the Lutherans out of the running for the regular season Church League title this week and remain strong favorites to take the crown this year. Their chief challengers, the Catholics, kept their title hopes alive by winning to remain a game behind the leaders. Since the two teams have yet to meet, there is still time to dislodge the leaders from the top... but it promises to be a tough task.

Rev. Douglas Wilson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church for five years, preached his last sermon Sunday at the church and then headed out for a short vacation with his three-year-old daughter, Lynne, before starting new duties Aug. 1 in Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Swimming will be a lot safer for nearly 200 Cass Cityans thanks to Sue Koepfgen, 21, and Gail Hoffman, 24. That's the number of persons who will know how to swim and how to administer basic lifesaving techniques thanks to the Red Cross-based swim classes the two instructors have conducted.

Cass City will be a busy place this week end. In addition to the traditional sidewalk sales slated Friday and Saturday, two stores have announced grand opening celebrations that coincide with the sale days. Cass City IGA Foodliner is celebrating a store now nearly doubled in size and Gross Meat Market is holding a grand opening under the new management of Hans Schuchmann.

TEN YEARS AGO

If the price is right, the village and Elkland township are now agreed that the property between Leach and West Streets owned by C.R. Hunt is the best available for a new Elkland Township Fire Hall.

Plans are being completed for the big 88th annual Tuscola County Fair which opens its gates Monday at the Caro Fairgrounds for a six-day run.

Gagetown Mayor Elery Sontag submitted his resignation Monday night at the scheduled meeting of the Gagetown Village Council. James England was named acting mayor for the remainder of the year.

Erla's successfully defended its Uby Recreational Softball League title Friday by rolling over Carling's of 3rd Ave 10-2 in the game that decided the regular season championship.

Eighteen Saginaw black youths spent the day Thursday at the Donald DeLong farm as part of a 4-H group project headed up by Bernard Jardt, county 4-H youth agent.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

At a special council meeting Tuesday evening, the Cass City Village Council was informed by the village's engineers, Hubbell, Roth and Clark, that the enlarged sewer system for Cass City will cost $165,000.

Donald MacLachlan, elder commissioner, and Rev. Melvin R. Vender, pastor of the Cass City Presbyterian church, attended a special meeting of Flint Presbytery held in Vassar Presbyterian church Sunday.

Kingsley C. Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Bennett of Mt. Pleasant, is a recent graduate of Northern Illinois College of Optometry at Chicago.

James K. Brooker, a former resident of Cass City who now lives in Bay City, was singled out for praise by H.G. Salsinger, sports editor of the Detroit News, recently.

A county-wide poll conducted in Sanilac county for the Sanilac County Republican-Tribune, a newspaper in Sandusky, indicates that E.B. Schwaderer is the Sanilac voters' preferred candidate for State Senator of the 20th district.

James Baker, serving in the U.S. Air Corps, is on his way to Manila in the Philippines.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The first local council of veterans' affairs in Tuscola county has been organized at Cass City this past week with W.L. Mann as president.

A report was recently received from the Fifth Army in Italy relating an incident regarding a platoon of infantrymen from the 34th division, one of whom was S. Sgt. John Krug of Gagetown. The platoon had been cut off from its own company but through the efforts of Krug and two other men, they were able to hold 19 German prisoners until relief came.

Herman Doerr was recently elected county chairman of the Democratic party at a meeting of delegates at Caro.

Tuscola county is within $59,051 of reaching its fifth War Loan bond quota, according to figures released Wednesday morning by County Chairman Clarence Bougher. Sales had reached $1,286,949. The quota of $1,346,000 should be reached by the end of July, Bougher said.

In order to encourage greater and more successful home food preservation, a series of canning demonstrations are to be conducted throughout Tuscola county by specialists from Michigan State College and the Farm Security Administration.

30 attend first energy group session

"It looks like it's a going thing," said Louis Severance after 30 persons came Friday evening to the first meeting of the Tuscola County Energy Society.

The meeting was held in the Severance workshop on W. Akron Road, Akron.

General topic for the first meeting was windmill power plants.

Temporary officers were elected, with Severance as president; Jim Blades, Cass City, vice-president, and Randy Burns, Caro, secretary-treasurer. Permanent officers will be elected at the annual meeting in November.

Many a man has found to his sorrow that he cannot keep both himself and his business in a liquid condition.

Altar Society plans organ fund raiser

The St. Michael's Altar Society met July 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the rectory basement. There were 15 members present plus three visitors.

Father William O'Shea opened the meeting with prayer. The corresponding secretary was asked to send the society's president, Florence Szostak, another get-well card as she is still in Ford Hospital.

The Red Cross home nursing course was discussed and Lea Wolak gave the date it will begin. Starting Sept. 12, it will run from 7:30-9:30 p.m. each Wednesday for six weeks in the rectory basement.

The Bloodmobile will be in Kingston Monday, Oct. 29, at the Methodist church.

Father O'Shea mentioned purchasing a new organ for the church as the present one is in need of extensive repair. It was then decided to have a garage sale for the purpose of helping purchase the organ. It will be Aug. 9-11 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. each day. It will be in the rectory basement or outside if weather permits.

Rose Ann Wolfrum was asked to close the meeting with a prayer.

New books at the library

FLYAWAY, by Desmond Bagley (fiction). A superb adventure-suspense thriller which hangs on a bizarre double hunt: A detective's search for a missing man, and the missing man's search for his father. Bagley, author of "The Enemy," takes the reader into the world of high finance and on a hair-raising journey into deepest Africa, where a deadly chase is played out across the sands of the southern Sahara. Sandstorms, angry Arabs, mountain climbing, attempted murders—all make "Flyaway" a great trip.

DO YOU EVER HAVE QUESTIONS LIKE THESE? by Margaret Taliaferro (non-fiction). "Is there really a God?" "How far can God's love reach?" "Who made the world?" "If God made the world, who made God?" "Is God always with me?" These are questions that children ask and that Evangelical parents often find very difficult to explain. In her new book, Margaret Taliaferro answers these and other questions in a simple, warmhearted style. And all the answers are Evangelical. The book is hand-lettered with simple stick-figure drawings that make the complex Christian dogma comprehensible, even to children. A book to be read by children and their parents together.

THE GILT FEATHER, by Dora Polk (fiction). A young woman returns to her family's home in England to recover from the shocking events surrounding her father's death. There is little time for mourning, however, for she becomes an unwitting witness to strange events on the moor and an unknowing candidate for murder.

Mrs. Gerry Carolan attended the William Johnston family reunion at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. W. Conners at Caseville Saturday. Approximately 50 guests were present from California, Detroit, Bay City and Gagetown.

A group of ladies from Gagetown enjoyed a day at Frankenmuth sightseeing last Thursday. Holly Weber of Frankenmuth was a house guest of Janet Koch for several days last week. Julia Hrycko attended Girl Scout camp with her troop from Cass City, at Camp Nyeeti, for several days this past week. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weber Jr. and Holly and Heidi of Frankenmuth and Karen Koch were supper guests of the Harold Kochs Wednesday.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters

This eight-year-old from Gagetown would like a Big Sister to teach her new things. This little girl is very eager to have someone to talk to, and she likes to do most anything. Why not give her a try?

From Caro and six years old, this little one is looking for a Big Brother. He would enjoy doing most anything outdoors and is anxious to learn new things.

A real cute little nine-year-old has been waiting a year for his Big Brother. He enjoys fishing, baseball, swimming, and biking. He would be lots of fun for any man.

This 11-year-old from Caro has a wide variety of interests. She likes swimming, football, roller skating, dancing, cooking, and many other things. She is full of energy and would profit from a one-to-one relationship with a woman.

HEALTH TIPS

Keeping your heart healthy in summer

With the arrival of summer, many people change their habits considerably from those of winter.

"And it is wise to keep in mind how some of those habits can affect our hearts," notes Daniel T. Anbe, M.D., Henry Ford Hospital cardiologist and president of the Michigan Heart Association.

"In a very short period of time—sometimes a matter of weeks or even days," Dr. Anbe said, "our winter-long eating and exercise habits are discarded."

"People are out of winter's heavy clothes, and out of doors, enjoying summer activities, often abandoning 'winter' foods for summer ones and sometimes skipping meals altogether," said Dr. Anbe. "All of this can be either beneficial or harmful to your heart, depending on how you go about making the changes," he said. "First, it should be noted that hot weather itself puts an additional strain on the heart, which must work harder to cool the body."

"At the same time, many people who may have exercised very little during the winter are now out mowing the lawn, biking, hauling a boat in and out of the water or swimming. All of a sudden, then, the heart is called upon for a lot of extra work," Dr. Anbe said.

Dr. Anbe suggested the following guidelines for summer heart health:

—Give your heart some "notice" that more is going to be required of it by beginning summer sports and other activities gradually.

—Limit physical exertion during hot spells.

—Stay (as much as possible) in one environment—either hot and humid or air conditioned.

—Be sure to eat a heart-healthy diet which includes sufficient potassium and sodium salts—but note that some people with high blood pressure or renal (kidney) failure may be on low sodium or potassium diets and should check with their physician before making any dietary changes.

Good sources of potassium include bananas, cantaloupe, grapefruit, orange and tomato juice, potatoes, certain fish, broccoli, butter-milk and skim milk, water-melon, lean beef and chicken.

Ridenour takes course in Muskegon

Charlotte Davidson of the college will be at Hills and Dales at 1 p.m. Tuesday to explain the program.

Interested LPNs can also call Madelyn Skaggs, acting director of nurses at Hills and Dales, at 872-2121, or Sandra Furst, director of nurses at Caro Community Hospital, at 673-3141, for more information.

Classes will start in September, Mrs. Skaggs said. Their location will depend on the number who sign up. If there are only enough for one group, the location might be Cass City. If two groups are needed, classes might be held in Caro and Sandusky or Bad Axe.

The program, which is being offered for the first time, is intended for the entire upper Thumb.

Credits earned for the LPN program will be applicable for the RN degree.

Based on meeting two nights a week for two hours each time, year-round, Mrs. Skaggs guessed it will probably take at least two years to earn the associate degree and be eligible to take the RN examination.

Robert D. Ridenour, of Cass City, installation and maintenance supervisor for General Telephone, recently completed the company's Speak Your Language course at its education center in Muskegon.

The course is intended to develop the communication skills of the company's supervisory employees. During the one-day course, students explore methods used to identify, understand and adapt to various communication styles as an aid to more effective management.

Ridenour, a 15-year employee, and his wife Florence, live on N. Seeger Street, Cass City.
