Harvest fuel supply just 'adequate,' Bergland says

Area farmers were assured last Wednesday that they would have enough fuel allocated to harvest crops in 1979-80, but "just barely, with nothing to waste," U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said in a visit to the Thumb.

"If it appears that a fuel shortage is developing, the ASCS (Agricultural Soil and Conservation Service) will quickly gather and send local and area information up the line," he said. "At the top, I can order an oil company to re-allocate supplies. But I must have three or four weeks notice at least."

Bergland greeted more than 400 area farmers at the Carl Vollmar farm, northeast of Caro. After a few opening remarks, he began an informal question and answer period.

One farmer immediately called out, "I'm sure you know that you're in sugar beet country and we need U.S. protection from foreign imports. Will you be with us on this?"

"All the way," said the graduate of the University of Minnesota. "And the administration is also backing supports."

But he warned that the sugar bill will be in trouble on the floor of the House of Representatives. "It's going to be a knockdown, drag-out fight on the floor of the House. But if it passes there, the Senate will also pass it, and the President will sign the bill."

He added that he favors a version of the farm bill that would provide a 15.8 cents per pound price for raw sugar in 1980, and that a current 50 percent tax limit on imports should be removed.

Congressman Bob Traxler, D-Bay City, was Bergland's host for his three-day Michigan tour. Traxler has been at the forefront of efforts to pass meaningful sugar legislation.

"I am cautiously optimistic," Traxler commented. "But most of the representatives are from urban-suburban districts and they need more convincing (about the need for supports)." A vote on support is expected to take place early this fall.

Bergland and Traxler explained that most of the urban opposition is based on the desire for lower sugar prices by both general consumers and industrial users, most notably soft drink manufacturers.

The secretary also told farmers that "about 8 to 14 million tons of unused foreign sugar are hanging around looking for a market while dealers wait to see how the floor fight will come out."

The member of President Carter's Cabinet for 30 months said a major reason the administration backs firm sugar price supports is because without them, the domestic industry would be wiped out.

"We would be in another OPEC-like situation, dependent upon foreign suppliers for a needed resource."

He added that if a foreign sugar cartel gained control of the supply, sugar would probably not remain cheap very long.

WHILE AT THE VOLLMAR farm, the secretary was also asked what might happen to grain prices if an expected record harvest comes this fall. He replied that there appear to be exceptional opportunities in export markets this year.

"Japan alone now buys 20 million tons of grain per year," the former three-term Congressman said. And, he noted, the Russian harvest, usually the largest in the world, is not meeting expectations.

When a farmer questioned the low price supports for grain, Bergland answered that it was a simple matter of competition.

"High price supports would be counter-productive," he explained.

Bergland went on to explain that wheat from the U.S. competes directly with rice in most of the foreign markets, with the buyer purchasing the cheaper of the two. Wheat from the USSR, Canada, Australia and Argentina also compete.

"And the Soviet Union is the world's largest wheat producer. They produced more wheat than the U.S., Canada, Australia and Argentina combined. They play tough ball in the big leagues when it comes to trade."

THE SECRETARY whose 600-acre Minnesota farm is now controlled by a blind trust, said he favors a much more expanded role for farmer cooperatives to provide better balanced competition in the world's market-place.

"All of the co-ops in the country combined have only 10 percent of the exports," Bergland noted. "It needs to be more."

The secretary had good news for dairy farmers, saying the industry should be assured 80 percent parity by October. Demands in the industry are strong and no surplus in dairy products can be expected until 1981 or later.

When asked about what the government is doing to keep persons "down on the farm," Bergland said the country lost one million farm families in the last 10 years through retirement and other causes, but that only about half a million new farmers have started in that time.

"I'm not one who believes you have to go into farming first class," he said, but referred to new federal loans programs to aid new farmers, especially young people in making land purchases.

Bergland was optimistic about the future of farming. Funds available for agricultural research are rapidly being increased.

"By 1981, there should be enough to finance a massive program to find better ways of growing more and better crops. And more efficient ways of selling them for a reasonable profit."

Traxler presented the secretary with a sugar beet tie tack near the end of the session in appreciation for his hearing the concerns of the Thumb's farmers.

Alcohol treatment program just 'scratches the surface'

"Over a hundred million people in the U.S. drink alcoholic beverages. Of these, approximately 13 million, or one out of every eight, develops the disease alcoholism. People afflicted with this disease are referred to as alcoholics. They start drinking for similar reasons and under similar circumstances as do social drinkers, or those who do not develop the disease. Some social drinkers consume as much alcohol, and some become intoxicated as frequently as alcoholics; yet they do not develop the disease alcoholism. There is considerable speculation that only certain persons have the capacity to become alcoholics. There is a missing link. . . . an X-factor."

By Ron Przyslas

The behavior of an alcoholic is slowly being tolerated socially in the United States, thus making the job of W.C. (Spike) Johnson and many other alcoholism counselors tougher all the time.

"When you tolerate the behavior of an alcoholic, you are condoning it," said the director of the alcoholism program in Tuscola county. "We just can't keep up with the number of new drinkers every year. Our program is barely scratching the surface."

Johnson's program, which he started in June, 1973, helps some 300 persons annually, who come to him for counseling. On the basis of the population of Tuscola county, the certified alcoholism counselor said there are approximately 4,000 alcoholics in the county.

"Hardly no one goes for alcoholism treatment on his own," Johnson said. Out of the 300 that come to his program, "only three or four realize they have a problem and come on their own will. The rest are sent by their wives, parents, employers or friends."

THE TUSCOLA COUNTY program offers one-on-one counseling as well as family advising for those who come in and look for help.

But it's currently short-handed and in need of more county and state money.

"There is only one counselor (Louis Langenburg of Cass City) besides myself working with the program," Johnson noted. The other counselor, Dave Ghent, resigned Aug. 17 to return to Central Michigan University to get his teaching degree.

"I'd like to start training someone right away, but financially we just can't do it. We don't have the money."

Johnson's and his clerk's salaries are paid by the state, which funds approximately 60 percent of the program. The rest comes from the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and local county funds, each paying 20 percent of the program's cost.

"The CETA funds are getting cut from the government, which is trying to financially cram many of its other programs, including ours. But what some people don't realize is that the government pays for the alcoholic through his court costs, jail expenses, welfare and other ways."

Johnson estimated that about half ("maybe more") of the criminals in the United States are behind bars because of their drinking problem.

"It's like everyone is trying to treat the symptoms and not the disease, alcoholism."

HELP FOR THE ALCOHOLIC started in 1936 when Alcoholics Anonymous was formed in the U.S. Men and women come to meeting places to share their experiences, strengths and hopes with each other to try and solve their common problem and help others recover from alcoholism, Johnson said.

"Now the treatment, diagnosis and counseling for alcoholics have reached every corner of the earth. But it's difficult to crack the stigma of the alcoholic, those who drink against their will."

The alcoholism program in Tuscola county tries to break and arrest the addiction an alcoholic has before his problem progresses too far.

OUT OF EVERY 10 WHO come into the program,

Johnson said, three quit completely, another three stop for a while and then start again, three more quit for a longer period, maybe six months, but then start again, and one out of every 10 is unable to be reached.

"We've had children in here for help as young as 13 years old," Johnson said. "And we've had people as

Derailment hits phone service

Long distance telephone service was knocked out in most of the Thumb, including Cass City, for much of Monday and Tuesday because of a train derailment in the Gera-Reese area at 9 p.m. Monday.

Ten cars of a 48-car Chesapeake & Ohio train went off the tracks.

In doing so, it stretched but did not break one of two long-distance cables to Saginaw, according to Bob Stevens, General Telephone area customer services manager.

The affected cable was above ground. An underground cable was not damaged.

The damaged cable affected most long-distance service, since all calls are routed through Saginaw, he explained. Even a call from Cass City to Bad Axe, for instance, is routed through Saginaw.

Since the underground cable was not affected, some calls still got through, although getting through was difficult since the one cable was overloaded.

At times, while repairs were being made, Stevens said, all service was cut off. A temporary cable was laid on the ground to restore service.

Normal service was restored about 4 p.m. Tuesday.

BACK TO SCHOOL -- It was back to the books for Cass City area youngsters Wednesday morning. These students, showing a mixture of determination and enthusiasm, were getting off the bus at Campbell Elementary.

Head-on crash kills two near Vassar

Two Vassar residents were killed in a head-on collision Friday evening northwest of that community.

Dead are Dwight C. Gohsman, 36, and Albert A. Stadler, 68.

The lone survivor was Addie Hergenreder, 67, of Vassar, a passenger in the Stadler auto, who was reported in fair-to-good condition Tuesday afternoon at Saginaw General Hospital.

Based on what a witness told them, Caro state police reported that the Gohsman vehicle, headed northwest on M-15, crossed the centerline and collided with the oncoming Stadler auto.

The two victims were the 11th and 12th to die in Tuscola county traffic accidents this year. That compared to 20 as of this date a year ago.

The accident took place at 8:30 p.m.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Rebecca Mears, 12, of Ubly, was reported in good condition Tuesday afternoon at Harbor Beach Community Hospital, where she was taken after a bicycle mishap Monday in Ubly.

A witness told Huron county deputies that the girl had stopped her bike on Garfield Street to talk to Desalee Bensinger, 17, of Ubly, who was driving a car. She leaned the bike against the car. As Rebecca started to leave, Ms. Bensinger drove forward, pushing the bike over and dragging it and the rider about 8 feet.

Jennifer Putnam, 19, of 3614 Seventh Street, Owendale, was ticketed by Tuscola county deputies on a charge of driving left of center after a 3:50 p.m. accident Saturday.

They said she was eastbound on Bay City-Forestville Road, west of Sheridan Road, drifted left of the centerline, and collided with a westbound car.

The other driver involved was Vernon Zimmer, 72, of Huron Line Road, Unionville.

Deputies reported that at 6:50 p.m. last Wednesday, Daniel Maxson, 16, of Rossmann Road, Kingston, was eastbound on State Street in Kingston and collided with a westbound car as he was turning north onto River Street.

Anthony J. Barren, 27, of 1526 Main Street, Snover, was the other driver involved.

"SPOOK" gave birth last Wednesday to eight kittens, all the same color. The cat belongs to the Douglas Thane family of 2195 Cemetery Road, Deford. Holding her is daughter Vicki, 11. A normal litter is probably 4-6 kittens. Spook's first litter (this was her second) was four kittens.

Pettinger, Esckelson speak vows

Cari Lynn Pettinger and Clifford Lee Esckelson were united in marriage Aug. 18 at 3:30 p.m. at the Methodist parsonage in Millington.

Rev. Paul Amstutz performed the double-ring ceremony in the presence of families and close friends. Cari was given in marriage by her grandmother, Mrs. Harold McGrath. Cari is the daughter of Sally and Mike Cobb of Vassar and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold McGrath of Cass City. She is a former resident of Cass City. Clifford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Esckelson of Vassar.

She was attended by Cathy LeValley, her matron-of-honor. Bridesmaid was Connie Esckelson, the groom's sister.

Best man was Tino Piazza, friend of the groom. David Kennard, also a friend of the groom, was groomsman.

The couple greeted friends and relatives who attended from Cass City, Mount Pleasant, Uby, Detroit, Snover, Clarkston, Vassar, Owendale, Bad Axe, and Munich, Germany, at the VFW Hall in Vassar. The wedding cake served was prepared by Mrs. Clair Auslander of Decker, a friend of the bride's grandmother.

The newlyweds left the following week for their home in the Northwest Apartments, on the campus of Central Michigan University, where they both attend classes.

It's relatively easy to give up, but it takes grit to keep up.

Rabbit Tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Notes on a trip to Canada:

There is a language barrier in Quebec. The farther north you go, the more extreme it gets. In a restaurant in Chibougamau it was decided that a bowl of French onion soup would hit the spot.

So we ordered it. In English, naturally. She spoke little English, naturally. What happened? We received a delicious bowl of . . . French fried onion rings.

You can tell it's French dominated when you watch the miners. In the States more often than not a couple will come in and share a pitcher of beer. In Montreal more than half of the patrons were sharing a pitcher of wine.

In Chibougamau a family was holding an outing. Included was a youngster, perhaps 10 years old. He licked up a water glass full of wine with his meal with obvious relish.

There are similarities in the two countries. To be sure not to lose our luggage we had it sent only to the first plane change on the return home. That's from Chibougamau to Montreal. What happened? Nordair Airlines lost our fishing tackle anyway.

Most of the time when we get samples of papers from other areas the donor encloses a note so we know from whom and why it was sent.

No such luck with a paper that hit the desk this week. The donor is anonymous. Anyway the paper sent is "The Hawaii Times." It's printed with a process that the Chronicle abandoned about a decade ago called letterpress.

There is probably a good reason for this. And the reason is (I'm guessing) that the first two pages are in English and the next six in Japanese (I'm guessing again). But it sure wasn't English.

That requires a special type and special machines and is probably not available in photo offset that nearly all papers now come from traditional trade sources. The paper is on file in your care to look it over.

LAST SEASON Bill Hacker's bean crop was severely cut by a herd of deer. Bean blossoms are a favorite deer food. Corn is not supposed to attract the whitetails but they have extensively chewed portions of fields on Krapf Road, southeast of Cass City. Hacker has a permit to harvest does and fawns but says that several bucks are doing much of the damage and declares that they must be harvested, too, if crops are to be protected.

Animal control law gets board okay

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday approved a new animal control ordinance.

Included is a change in dog license fees.

The fee had been a flat $4, but now neutered dogs will only cost $2. It remains $4 for the rest. After March 1, the late payment fee will be $10.

The board set millage levies that will be reflected on December tax bills.

In accordance with provisions of the Headlee amendment, millages were reduced to compensate for valuation increases higher than the rate of inflation.

The county operating levy will be 4.0139 mills, rolled back from a normal 4.2 mills, and the normal 1-mill levy for bridges will be .9557 mill.

Tabled, probably until the Sept. 11 meeting, was a request from county Drain Commissioner Ed Goodchild for the board to approve the county's limited faith and credit backing for bonds to finance the Moore Drain project in the Vassar area. Sent to the finance committee for its review was the application of Sheriff Hugh Marr for $84,091 in state secondary road patrol funds for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1. After the committee's review, the application goes to the state.

The amount is the same as received the first year, but that was only for nine

State renews Provincial House license

The Michigan Department of Public Health has issued an annual renewal license to Provincial House, Cass City. The facility has 117 beds.

Also receiving license renewals in the Thumb area were the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility, Caro, 123 beds; Sanilac County Medical Care Facility, Sandusky, 62 beds, and Marlette Community Hospital, 91 beds.

A dollar may not go as far as it used to, but it's still much easier to get one to replace it.

The Haire Net

At first glance your sympathy is with Anne Needham, 26, of Chicago who was awarded $800,000 because the jury felt she contracted vaginal cancer because of a drug her mother took to prevent miscarriage.

The drug, Diethylstilbestrol (DES), was administered to about 3 million American women to prevent miscarriage. Relatively few knew which of 14 manufacturers produced the DES.

Certainly no amount of money will compensate any woman for exposure to cancer. If the drug companies were negligent they should be made to suffer the consequences.

That's the key. Negligent. This drug was approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

It was later proved ineffective and the cancer link was established by a Boston physician in 1971.

That's bad, you say. Exposing all those women to cancer with a drug that wasn't any good anyway. You are right, too.

But what if the drug had proved to be as effective as the drug companies expected? It would be a boon to would-be mothers prone to miscarriages. Applauded by all families having trouble. So you measure the possible benefits against the possible risks.

If drug companies are to be liable for huge damage claims 30 years after the fact it's sure that it will be a deterrent to the introduction of all new medication. Settlements like this will of course skyrocket insurance costs and eventually the cost of all medication.

Every few months or so you read about promising drugs to arrest or cure cancer of one type or another.

That's the headline. In the story it's revealed that the results were achieved in the lab or, at best, on a control group of volunteers.

It's then explained that it will be several years, at least, before the new "cure" is available to patients.

Meanwhile, sufferers go on dying every day from the very type of cancer that the new breakthrough is expected to cure.

Certainly a reasonable amount of care, of caution has to prevail.

But if companies face massive settlements after meeting all reasonable standards of caution the agonizingly slow appearance of new drugs will be even slower than it is today.

And stricken patients will continue to suffer and die while needed help lies waiting on the shelves of companies hesitant to sell them.

"If It Fitz. . ." Sanity and pleated pants

By Jim Fitzgerald

Sometimes something is missing for so long that you forget it was ever there. But then it returns and you remember it fondly, and you're glad it's back. You wonder where it has been, and why it went away, and why it has returned.

That's how I feel about pleated pants.

My family chipped in and bought me a pair of off-white trousers for my birthday. I put them on and looked in the mirror, and it was a few seconds before I realized why my new pants looked different from the pants I've been wearing for so many years I can't count them. Then I put my hands in my pockets and was startled to find enough room to make fists. I pushed my fists outward and noticed the fabric billow below my belt. Pleats!

I thought of George Raft. He always had great pleats in his pants. I also thought of a slim young man whose favorite pants had belt loops several inches lower than usual. He would tighten his skinny belt and the effect was similar to tying a string around the top of a paper sack of licorice sticks. The pants bloused out below the belt and fanned out above it. He loved those pants because they were the first ones he purchased after three years in pleatless Army uniform. He was me.

The birthday pants that caused this fit of nostalgia have four definite folds across the top. Two of the folds evolve into conventional creases that descend to my shoes. The other two folds serve no purpose other than to create pleats. They are purely decorative, even frivolous, if you wish. Where have they been all these years.

I have a 21-year-old son who has never known the frivolity of pleats in his pants. He has known nothing except pants that stretch tightly and blahly across his abdomen without the slightest ripple in the fabric. He grew up believing that pant creases have always ascended no farther than the crotch.

He never has known the pleasure of putting his hands in his pockets and jingling coins. He never has carried a dime that didn't leave an impression of Franklin D. Roosevelt's face in his thigh. He never has sat down without risking embarrassment.

It is dumb enough for skinny boys to wear tight pants. But old men with big stomachs also wear them, which is really stupid. Fat women can hide under full skirts, but fat men must wear pants the way apples wear peel.

At least that's been the fashion for so many years that I'd forgotten all about pleated pants. I can't remember for sure what caused their disappearance. I think it had something to do with the dramatic rise in the price of imported pleats during the 1950s. The government warned citizens not to become dependent upon foreign pleats, and there were no domestic pleats available. They all had been folded into Liberace's shirts — or something like that. I don't know if pleated pants are making a comeback. My family might have purchased my birthday pants at an archeological dig in the ruins of an ancient Hart, Schaffner & Marx factory. I hope not.

If cleanliness can be next to godliness, comfort is certainly next to sanity. It is insane for anyone to wear too-tight pants on purpose. The return of pleated pants to the United States would serve as a sign to the rest of the world that this nation is regaining its sanity.

I walked to work in my new pants yesterday. I jingled the coins and keys in my pockets, and I luxuriated in the soft parting of my pleats. I thought about George Raft and the sane pants I bought with my mustering out pay. It was marvelous.

As I neared my office, I joined steps with a woman I know. She was tottering on spiked heels. I asked her if she knew comfort was next to sanity. She asked me if I knew my pants were baggy. I shook a fist at her without taking it out of my pocket.

Criminal charges highlight cases in county courts

Martin D. Peters, 23, of Flint, pleaded guilty Tuesday to armed robbery in connection with the Feb. 15 robbery of Leo Waterman of Mayville.

Circuit Judge Norman A. Baguley took his plea under advisement and scheduled sentencing, if the plea is accepted, Oct. 9.

Peters was remanded to the county jail without sentencing.

The defendant and another man were charged with having robbed Waterman of about $100 and a cigarette lighter after threatening him with a tire iron, after the trio left a Fostoria bar.

Also Monday, Jonathan W. Martinez, 23, of Kinde, was sentenced to 32-48 months in the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson for violation of probation. Vocational training was recommended.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Aug. 13, of having failed to report to his probation officer in November and December, 1978.

He was placed on 36 months' probation in February, 1975, later extended to 60 months, for larceny in a building.

Douglas L. Forshee, 21, of 6711 Houghton Street, Cass City, pleaded guilty to attempted forgery.

His plea was taken under advisement. If accepted, sentencing will be Oct. 9. A motion for setting of personal recognizance bond was denied.

He is charged with having written a forged check in July, made out to the Cedar Closet in Caro.

Monday in District Court, Forshee was sentenced to 25 days in the county jail and placed on one year probation for entering without permission, to which he pleaded guilty Aug. 13.

He was assessed $75 court costs and ordered to pay $93 restitution to Dale Hunt of Fostoria.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Aug. 13, to having entered Hunt's home July 23.

According to the court file, the incident apparently stemmed from Hunt's signing of a complaint against Forshee in the forgery case.

Friday in Circuit Court before Judge Patrick R. Joslyn, Paul L. Walencik, 17, of Pontiac, pleaded guilty to attempted receiving and concealing stolen property over $100.

His plea was accepted and bond continued until sentencing Oct. 12.

Originally charged with receiving and concealing stolen property, Walencik pleaded guilty to the lesser charge in a plea bargain with the prosecution in exchange for his testimony in other criminal proceedings.

He is charged with having had possession of a stolen 1979 Pontiac in Mayville in May.

Meredith Auten remembers

Editor's note: This is one of several anecdotes written by Cass City's pioneer resident and will appear weekly as long as they last.

The Cass City State Bank at one time had steps leading down in front to a basement barber shop operated for many years by Ball and Bailey.

Saturday night was the big night of the week for the barbers. Tickets with numbers on them were given out and patrons took their places as the numbers were called.

Henry Nolan, a giant of a man, was there every Saturday night. He was very proud of his horses and had a team of colts. On one occasion he let Harry, his son, drive the team. It ran away, and I heard Henry, we called him Hank, proclaim, "The next S.O.B. (he didn't use the letters!) who drives this team will be myself."

On one occasion we asked Hank to put a piano upstairs over the bank. He placed some flat boards on the stairway and with admonitions to all of us to get out of the way, he pushed the piano by himself to the second floor.

We purchased the Decker State Bank, which was closed. We asked Hank to bring over the safe and vault door - no questions asked. He had a Model T Ford truck. He put the safe in our barn, for which he charged $25.

After a few years, we asked his son to move the safe from the barn. The son couldn't load it. He broke all his timbers and the weight in the rear would stand the truck right straight up.

I went down to the garage to get some help. Four telephone men were waiting at the garage for their truck to be repaired. I told them I would leave the men working on their truck, if they would help move the safe.

Two men sat on the front fenders to hold the front down. It took six men to haul it in place in the bank. I felt Hank would have been a good man to send a message to Garcia.

In 1910, when I came home from college, Charlie Billstein wanted to know if I had heard that the bank was blown up. He said he would tell me what happened if I wouldn't get him in trouble.

Alfred Freeman, the only Negro who ever graduated from Cass City High School, was liked by everybody. He worked for Bigelow's Hardware.

He and Billstein got some sticks of dynamite and placed them back of the bearnery, which is now the Ford Garage.

Not knowing just what would happen, they moved the dynamite up to a spot about where Frank Reid's house is and set it off.

The explosion was much louder than anything they had hoped for. It woke up the whole town.

The telephone operator, Bernice Kolb, whose office was in the top floor of the bank called father and told him that the bank had been blown up.

A large group congregated around the bank with guns. They ordered the "gangsters" to come out with their hands up. Nothing happened.

After a time, father got up enough courage to go into the bank. All was serene.

They proceeded over to the Finney Bank, which was also quiet. They then visited Hendrick's Jewelry Store, after which all went home, having no idea what had occurred.

The Michigan Court of Appeals Monday in Detroit heard oral arguments in the Goslin parcel property transfer case involving the Owendale-Gagetown and Cass City School Districts.

Owen-Gage Supt. Ronald Erickson, who was present, said the judges gave no indication when they would be issuing their ruling, that it could be a week from now or it could be six months.

The last time the appeals court heard the Goslin case, it took about three months, according to the superintendent.

Arguing Owen-Gage's position was its attorney, James F. Schouman of Dearborn. Another of its attorneys, William B. Fitzgerald of Lansing, was also present.

Arguing in behalf of the state Board of Education's 1976 approval of the transfer of the property to the Cass City district was assistant Attorney General Gerald Young.

The attorney for the Goslin property owners, Robert Kleeb of Howell, was in the audience, according to Erickson.

The arguments presented Monday centered around interpretation of the state law that says that if more than 10 percent of a school district's valuation is up for transfer to another district, it must be approved by public vote in the "losing" school district.

Owen-Gage contends that after 10 percent of the original district has been transferred away, all subsequent transfer requests must be approved by voters.

The state board's contention is that a vote is required only if each individual request involves more than 10 percent, hence, in the case of Goslin, public approval isn't needed.

Presentation of arguments before the court lasted about a half-hour.

Regular meeting of Cass City Village Council

The regular August meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held August 14, 1979 at the Municipal Building at 7:00 p.m. All Trustees were present.

Under Federal guidelines for advertising the Safer-Off-Systems Project all requirements were met and no request for a hearing was received. Under the local Ordinance No. 98 the Public Hearing on the Safer-Off-Systems Grant Project was opened. After discussion and hearing no objections a motion was made by Trustee Helwig and supported by Trustee Ware that the Safer-Off-Systems project for the Village of Cass City for grading, curb and gutter and surfacing of portions of Garfield and Doerr Road be closed and the project be approved. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

It was agreed that the Special Assessment Hearing be held at the regular September 25, 1979 meeting.

Reviewed was the petition from residents on Houghton Street requesting that their street be 39' instead of the standard 32' in residential areas. Hearing no objections a motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Hampshire that the Houghton Street project between West and Brookier continue at a 32' street as was discussed and approved at the previous Public Hearing. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

James McCoy from T.V. Cable was present requesting a company name change, a rate increase from $7.00 to $8.00 for the regular services and a $10.00 charge for a home movies contingent upon improvements made to the service. After discussion a motion was made by Trustee Helwig and supported by Trustee Tuttle that the rate increase be granted as described contingent to improvements made to the service and a $10.00 charge added for those who wish to request the home movies and approve that the name be changed from T.V. Cable to First Michigan Cable T.V. Corp. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

Reviewed with the Village attorney was the McNeil property. It was reported that the jurisdiction of condemned property has to go through the County Health Department and that they have been notified and will review the matter.

A motion was made by Trustee Helwig and supported by Trustee Stahlbaum to amend Ordinance No. 93 (Uniform Traffic Code) and adopt Ordinance No. 99, updating the Uniform Traffic Code. Roll call vote 6 yeas, 0 nays. Motion carried. The minutes as presented were reviewed and approved.

The financial statements for June and July were reviewed.

The Treasurer's report was reviewed. It was reported that 80.3 percent of the taxes have been collected to date. A motion was made by Trustee Helwig and supported by Trustee Rawson that the collection period be extended for one month. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

It was reported by the Public Utilities committee that the sanitary landfill has received the operation permit for the 1980 year.

A motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Stahlbaum to adopt the Signature Authorization Resolution (attached) for the F.H.A. grant. Roll call vote 6 yeas, 0 nays.

A motion was made by Trustee Helwig and supported by Trustee Rawson to accept the Trunkline Maintenance Contract and to adopt the attached resolution to designate Lou LaPonsie as Street administrator. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

The Superintendent's report was reviewed.

It was stated that the next regular meeting will not be held August 31. The next meeting will be the regular September meeting to be held September 25, 1979.

There being no further business a motion was made by Trustee Helwig and supported by Trustee Tuttle that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried 6 yeas, 0 nays.

Village sued by Mary Jane Ryba

The village of Cass City is defendant in a suit filed by Mary Jane Ryba of Milligan Road, who was injured when she fell on a sidewalk.

The incident took place on the south side of Main Street between Maple and Sherman Streets.

The suit claims that "by reason of the broken, depressed, dilapidated and uneven condition of the sidewalk, plaintiff did fall onto the sidewalk whereby she was severely, permanently and painfully injured."

The amount in controversy, according to the document, is more than $10,000. Sought is judgment "in whatever amount plaintiff is found to be entitled, plus statutory interest, costs and a reasonable attorney fee."

The suit, filed Friday, has been assigned to Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn.

Mrs. Ryba is being represented by attorney George A. Holmes of Caro.

PEDALING AROUND

One potato,
two potato

By Mike Eliasohn

In the mail recently came a press release promoting an "information gathering week-end convention for all singles."

I have no intention of going, but I have lots of time to change my mind. It's not until Nov. 9-11. It will be in Dearborn.

In addition to "over 40 workshops dealing with all aspects of life and single life," there will be exhibits "displaying products and services directed towards the single person."

I find that interesting, because I have trouble conceiving of products especially for "single persons."

I may be unwed, but I don't think my buying habits are unique, only that I buy less.

It reminds me of the time when I was in what was called advanced individual training in the Army and there was discussion about a minor accident in which a major was involved (an unintentional play on words).

One of my fellow peon privates exclaimed, "That was a major!" to which the lieutenant replied, "He bleeds like the rest of us."

That's why I have a hard time thinking of products just for "single persons." A can of shaving cream will work just as well for a married man as a single one, and maybe for women. (Do they use that stuff for shaving their legs?)

And if I go into a clothing store to buy a pair of pants, the clerk doesn't ask if I am single or married.

It's possible now to buy a single-seater car (made in Minnesota), but chances are when I buy another car, it will have room for more than me.

The one problem in being single in terms of consumption is buying food.

Anything more than an 8 oz. jar of mayonnaise and it gets rancid before I use all of it. But it took me four stores before I found one that sells 8 oz. jars of mayonnaise.

In contrast, I have a hard time conceiving of anyone who buys a gallon of anything other than milk. A gallon of mustard or salad dressing. For me, it would be a lifetime supply. (If it were mustard, it would be more than a lifetime supply, since I don't use the stuff.)

I don't think I have bought flour in two years and the smallest bag of sugar I can buy will last about a year.

The really big problem is with fresh vegetables. If I buy a head of lettuce, it's a race to get it eaten before it all turns brown around the edges. I don't dare eat out, or I would fall behind in my race with brown rot.

The same with celery, only that it doesn't turn brown if kept too long. It gets limp. Somehow, celery isn't the same if you bite into it and it doesn't go "CRUNCH!"

I also have a problem with potatoes. The only time I eat them at home is when I get a craving for potato pancakes, which is, by the way, the most complicated thing I cook.

I am not a gourmet chef, but I pride myself on rarely eating TV dinners.

I am lazy, so I like the kind of meal where all I have to do is rinse it off, sprinkle some paprika on it, stick it in the oven, go take a nap and 1½ hours later, it's done. (In the case of chicken, cooking it is the easy part. It's cleaning the pan and the baking rack that's difficult.)

But back to the potatoes. Not all stores will sell them in amounts less than 10 pounds and I only buy two spuds at a time.

I suppose it's like going to a gas station and buying only a gallon of gas.

WHEN AUCTIONEER LORN HILLAKER said "sold" for the final time Friday it marked the end of one of the older businesses in Cass City. Leonard Damm & Son started selling to farmers in 1940, 40 years ago. The sale attracted a large crowd and the consensus of farmers in the audience was that the equipment and supplies sold for good prices.

General Cable workers

Union aiding muscular dystrophy telethon

United Steelworkers of America, Local 6222, has a big show planned Sunday and Monday, and it's all for a good cause.

The General Cable employees have several activities lined up in conjunction with the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association in what will be a first-time effort by the union local.

First off, viewers of the telethon, to be broadcast in this area over WJTV-TV, Channel 5, Saginaw, will be able to phone in their pledges by calling a Cass City number.

There will be three telephones manned at the union hall during the entire telethon, from 9 p.m. Sunday until 6:30 p.m. Monday (Labor Day).

The union hall, where all the activities will be held, is in the Hahn Real Estate Building, 6240 Main Street, between Veronica's Restaurant and Ron's Automotive.

The Cass City telephone numbers will be broadcast by Channel 5 during the event.

To guard against prank calls, verification calls are made to those who pledge more than a certain amount to make sure it was actually them who made the calls.

Also during the entire length of the telethon, there will be a fish bowl in the building for those who would like to personally drop in donations.

All day Monday, various bands who have volunteered their services will be playing outside the building. In the afternoon, WKYO disc Jockey Dave Eberline will be broadcasting from there.

Starting at 11 a.m., hot dogs, soft drinks and coffee will be on sale until all has been sold, with proceeds also going to fight muscular dystrophy. The food is being donated by Eria's and Cass City IGA. Richard's TV is donating use of a television set to monitor the national telethon.

Helen Bartle, one of the local organizers, said probably 50 union members will be helping out at the telethon, working in 4-hour shifts.

HELP Line merges
for better service

The Human Development Commission Board of Directors Aug. 14 approved the merging of the Tuscola County HELP Line with the HDC for the purpose of expanding the latter's Information and Referral Service.

According to HDC Director Mary Ann Vandemark, the merger "will provide not only expanded hours but much stronger service than either one of us has been able to provide."

Since 1971, HELP Line, manned by volunteers and funded primarily by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Posse and other donations, has answered over 7,000 calls from people in Tuscola county.

By merging with the HDC the service has been expanded to include Huron, Sanilac, and Lapeer counties, as well as Tuscola.

Anyone living in the area needing assistance in any of over 225 human service problems may call the HDC free of charge at 1-800-292-3666.

Volunteers specially trained in listening and empathy skills, and having access to complete, up-to-date files and information will answer the phone and help the caller locate agencies or individuals who are specialists in the problem area. All calls are confidential and no identification is required.

HELP Line will remain in operation until the end of August at which time the merger will take effect.

Volunteers are needed to help man the WATS line for this combined Information and Referral Service. Two week-end training sessions are being planned for the end of September.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer may call the HDC volunteer recruiter, Cyndi Burleson, at 673-4121 in Caro for details.

Michalski finishes basic

Pvt. Ronald G. Michalski recently completed Army basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

The private's father, Ronald Michalski, lives at 6183 W. Main Street, Cass City. His mother is Marylee V. Almas of Mayville.

Arkansas man visiting here dies

Dewey Alston, a lifelong resident of Ozark, Ark., died Friday at Hills and Dales General Hospital, after an illness of two years. He had been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Imogene Fleming of Cass City.

He was born April 5, 1898, in Ozark, the son of Obert and Ida Mae Alston.

Alston married Reta Wisdom in Mulberry, Ark., in December, 1919.

He served in the U.S. Army during World War II and was a member of the Ozark American Legion, Post No. 63.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Percy (Imogene) Fleming of Cass City and Mrs. Steve (Patsy) Lawrence of Farmington Hills; five brothers, Walker Alston, Wallace Alston, Rass Alston, Fritz Alston and Bettis Alston, all of Ozark; two sisters, Mrs. John L. Brown of Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Glenn Walker of Fayetteville, Ark., seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. One son and one daughter preceded him in death.

Alston was taken from Little's Funeral Home, Cass City, to the Shaffer Funeral Home in Ozark, where funeral services were conducted Wednesday.

Burial was in Rankin cemetery, Lone Elm, Ark.

Luck or genius seldom accomplishes as much as hard work.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Barring a last minute reversal by the membership-at-large of the Cass City Teachers Association, teachers will be in their classrooms when school is scheduled to open Sept. 3. It's a virtual certainty that the recommendation of the bargaining team will be accepted and teachers will work under an extension of last year's contract.

Cass City Village Council inched closer to approving a new ordinance governing peddlers and solicitors. As written, the new ordinance is tough. "It would be harder to sell ice cream in Cass City than run for President," Trustee James Ware said.

The Cass City High School class of 1969 held its fifth anniversary reunion Saturday night at Sherwood Forest Country Club, Gagetown, with about 60 persons present.

Gagetown's blooperball team took the league title Wednesday night in a double-elimination round at Gagetown, splitting two games with the Chrysler Crew team from Sebewaing. Gagetown won the finale 6-3 after dropping the opener 2-1.

Owen-Gage High School could open without a principal following action Monday night by the Port Austin Board of Education. The Port Austin board refused to accept the resignation of high school Principal John VanWinkle, who had planned to take over as principal at Owen-Gage.

Eight members of the West Elkland 4-H club competed and exhibited 30 projects at the Tuscola County Fair. The following exhibits were chosen to go to the state show: Joyce Donnelly, meal accessories; Doris Matthews, baking goods; Grace Donnelly, forestry; David Matthews, electricity; and Mary Donnelly, entomology.

The 75th anniversary of St. Agatha's Catholic church in Gagetown will be observed on Labor Day when parishioners gather on the church grounds for the annual homecoming celebration.

The Cass City Gavel Club elected Edward Baker president for 1954-55 Tuesday evening at its regular meeting at Parrott's Dairy Bar. Others elected were: C.R. Hunt, vice-president; Bernard Ross, secretary; and Alden Asher, treasurer.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

PFC John Krawtz of Cass City was with the glider troop that held off Nazi divisions while American, English and Canadian soldiers were wading to the beaches of France on D-Day.

First Lt. Dwight E. Turner of Cass City was recently awarded his second bronze oak leaf cluster to the airmedal.

Rev. Lorne Lee, formerly of Cass City and pastor of the Vassar church of the Nazarene, was chosen to serve the Cass City church by a unanimous vote of the congregation.

Charles Mann and Walter Turner, both of Cass City, are among 28 Tuscola county men to be inducted into the armed service Wednesday.

Early figures of enrollment at Cass City High School Wednesday indicate that the total is 313, about 20 more than last year. The ninth grade has 94 students; 10th, 72; 11th, 84, and 12th, 63.

Two Tuscola county men, Sherman P. Currell of Vassar and Jeness W. Eastman of Cass City, were among 53 Michigan State College graduates awarded doctor of veterinary medicine degrees Friday.

New trail ride contest set for 4-H

New head coach Mike Yedinak greeted 60 Cass City football hopefuls Monday morning as the Red Hawks staged their initial practice for the start of the 1954 grid season.

The A.T. Barnes Construction Co. of Cass City is building a pier 585 feet into the Saginaw Bay at Port Austin.

Lee Russell of Gagetown is among eight Tuscola county men who will be inducted into the armed forces Thursday, Sept. 9, the selective service board at Caro reported.

For more information and applications, contact the ride secretary: Gail Werner, 8869 Patterson, S.E., Caledonia, Mich. 49316, telephone (616) 891-1681. Entries are due Sept. 8.

Drinking age change shows effect

Has Michigan's new drinking age law had any impact on the traffic accident rate?

The State Police think so, according to State Rep. Loren Armbruster, R-Caro.

The State Police comparative drinking driver tables for the first three months of 1979 indicate that there have been 6.8 percent more drinking drivers involved in accidents than for the comparable period last year. But when those statistics are broken down by age, they show that there was an increase of 13.9 percent in alcohol related accidents for drivers of all ages except the 18-20-year-old drivers.

This age group actually saw a decrease in alcohol related accidents of 24.6 percent. Broken down further, this means that since the law went into effect, there have been 606 fewer alcohol related fatal, injury and property damage accidents.

For the rest of the driving population, those same kinds of accidents increased by 1,521 for the same period last year.

Although other factors, such as the increased cost of gas and beer, have probably influenced the accident rate for the first three months of the year, the State Police statistics illustrate that the new drinking age seems to have had an impact on reducing accidents by 18-20-year-old drivers.

Potrykus leaves for Navy camp

Robert Dale Potrykus, 18, departed Aug. 7 for Navy basic training at the Great Lakes station in Illinois.

Bean-Beet day moved to Sept. 13

The Bean and Beet Field Day at the Saginaw Valley Bean and Beet Research Farm in Saginaw county has been changed from Sept. 6 to Thursday, Sept. 13. The change is partly due to weather conditions.

Activities begin at 1:30 p.m. The field day will provide farmers and industry personnel current information on Michigan State University research. The event is sponsored by MSU Cooperative Extension Service and the Michigan beet and bean industries.

One of the four tours scheduled at the farm is a demonstration on direct harvesting of new upright bean varieties.

Other demonstrations include a comparison of mono-ammonium and di-ammonium phosphate fertilizer sources on sugar beets, a sugar beet breeding program where the beets are cloned from tissue culture, and a soil management program where soil compaction is significantly reduced due to the use of alfalfa and no secondary tillage.

The direct harvest demonstration is the main event at the field day.

"With direct harvest, growers could go through the fields once with a combine and be finished, said

MSU agronomist Dr. Milton Erdmann. "With conventional methods, it takes two trips, one to pull and windrow the plants, and the second to combine them. Direct harvest saves time, money and fuel."

The research farm is located west of Saginaw at the corner of Swan Creek and Thomas Roads. There is no twilight tour this year.

Powells hold reunion

The children of Roy and Florence Powell and William and Anna Powell, descendants of Ambrose and Melvina Powell, held the first annual Powell reunion at the Cass City park Sunday with 82 in attendance.

The Vern Powell family was in charge, with game organized by Mark and Diane Battel.

In charge of next year's reunion will be the Milton Powell family.

The oldest present was Anna Powell of Lake Orion in her late 70s. The youngest was Tommy Fulcher of Cass City, born Aug. 7.

Next year's reunion will be held at the Cass City park on the second Sunday in August.

Hendrick- Downing reunion held

The Hendrick-Downing reunion was held Sunday at Potter's Park in Lansing with 83 family members in attendance.

Theo Hendrick of Cedar Run Road, Cass City, was the oldest present. He will be 87 Sept. 3.

The youngest was 3-week-old Joshua McDonald, son of Larry and Pat McDonald of Lansing.

All officers were re-elected for 1980: President, Irene Tracy, Cass City; vice-president, Douglas O'Dell, Cass City; secretary-treasurer, Harriet Fox, Lapeer.

Area residents who attended were Theo Hendrick, Mr. and Mrs. George Fisher Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. Don Whittenburg, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Duane O'Dell and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas O'Dell and Erin.

AROUND THE FARM Visit corn test plots By William Bortel

The four Tuscola county corn plots are looking excellent. During the next month would be an excellent time to be looking at individual varieties.

You may wish to stop at one or more of the corn plot locations and compare varieties and look at the various characteristics of individual corn.

There is a large county sign at the entrance of each plot. You will also find small individual stakes marking each individual variety within the plot. Some of the corn companies have placed their company signs beside their varieties.

You will find the four individual plot's location listed below.

Burns Poultry Farm -- The plot is located on Irish Road, southwest of Millington. Location is 1 1/2 miles south of Millington to Birch Run Road, west 1 1/2 miles to Irish Road and south on Irish Road one-eighth mile. It is on the east side of the road.

Dan Herman Farm -- The plot is located 4 miles west of Unionville, northeast of the Bay Park and Thomas Road intersection.

Dave Milligan Farm -- The plot is located on Koepfgen Road, northwest of Cass City. The plot is 1 mile west of Cass City on M-81, then north 1 1/2 miles on Koepfgen Road. The plot is on the west side of the road.

Arnold Zwerck & Sons Farm -- The plot is located on Wilder Road, east of Richville. The plot is 3 miles east of Richville on M-46 to Bradleyville Road, north 1 mile to Wilder Road and east a half-mile. Plot is on the north side of the road.

School tells correct prices

The Owendale-Gagetown schools erred in announcing lunch prices for 1979-80 which were reported in the Chronicle last week.

The correct prices, subject to change at any time throughout the school year, are: Grades 1-6, 40 cents; high school, 50 cents, and adults, 75 cents.

Noted expert to be at reading dinner

Dr. Kay Stickle, nationally-recognized authority on reading, will be the featured speaker at the first annual dinner meeting of the Thumb Area Reading Council Wednesday, Sept. 19.

The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Arrowhead Golf and Country Club, Caro. The public is invited. Marilyn Peters, president of the Thumb Area Reading Council said Dr. Stickle will present a "Power-Packed Reading Lesson: Developmental or Content."

The speaker has been a member of the faculty of the Teachers College, Ball State University, Muncie, Ind., since 1968 and currently holds the academic rank of associate professor.

Dr. Stickle has conducted employee education programs for General Motors and Chrysler Corp. and has worked with the Michigan and Indiana prison systems in the development of education programs.

Previous to joining the Ball State faculty, she was a teaching assistant at Michigan State University where she earned her master's degree in 1964 and her Ph.D. degree in 1972. She has done additional graduate work at Wayne State University and Syracuse University. She was awarded a bachelor's degree by Eastern Michigan University in 1959.

During the winter of 1964-65, she was on loan from Michigan State to the Southern Leadership Conference and worked in Alabama with Dr. Martin Luther King as her boss.

HEALTH TIPS

Keeping fit is important after 40

By Frank Chappell,
American Medical Association

Many men and women over 40 fight their own physical fitness.

They assume that because of their age they are no longer capable of much physical effort. One of the greatest dangers to men past 40 is falling into sedentary ways.

The American Medical Association points out that the individual past 40 can do something about his or her exercise program, or lack of it.

If not reasonably adept at a specific sport — bowling, golf, tennis, or swimming — take lessons and learn to do at least one individual sport fairly well. Exercise is more fun if it comes incidental to playing a game that is fun.

Take an inventory of physical activity in the course of regular daily activities. This includes activity on the job and at home. It might include housework, maintenance chores, gardening, or sports.

For the sedentary person who resolves to become more active, a good starting point is walking. This means a brisk posture walk, holding the belt line level and raising the breastbone.

Then, in addition to regular physical activities, start devoting part of each week end to something that you enjoy — golf, tennis, dancing. Fifteen minutes of exercise every other day is hardly enough to produce noticeable results quickly, but it is a start. Over a period of time, benefits will be evident.

With regular exercise, the sagging, dragging middle-aged will begin to exhibit a total change in his or her attitude. Meals will be more enjoyable, physical appearance is more vital, life is more interesting.

For the man, or woman past 40 who decides to begin an exercise program, a visit to the physician for a physical examination is advisable. To make certain there are no conditions that would limit exertion.

Novinski in Hong Kong

Marine Pfc. Michael J. Novinski, son of Dale and Sandra Moore of 3176 Vatter Road, Snover, recently visited Hong Kong.

He is a member of the Marine Detachment aboard the Kitty Hawk, based in San Diego and operating as a unit of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

During the remainder of the cruise, the Kitty Hawk will be combining regular training operations with an extensive search of the Gulf of Thailand and the South China Sea, looking for Southeast Asian refugees in distress. Additional port visits are scheduled in Japan, South Korea, and the Philippines.

The Kitty Hawk is 1,062 feet long and carries a crew of 2,800 officers and enlisted men, plus 2,150 personnel assigned to an attack aircraft wing. Novinski joined the Marine Corps in September, 1978.

Community booster

Dr. Scollon: A civic worker

Editor's note: this is one of a series sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce about community boosters who are members of the organization.

Dr. Edward Scollon has been operating his veterinary clinic on North Seeger Street for 15 years and during that time has been a solid civic worker in the community.

Despite his practice and the time required to take courses to keep up with current or new trends in his field, Scollon has served in several organizations.

He is the past president of both the Cass City Lions Club and the Thumb Veterinary Medical Association. He is a member of the Cass City School Board.

Scollon graduated from Michigan State University in 1961 with a DVM degree. He worked for Dr. Muir in Deckerville for a year and then joined Dr. Thorne in Marlette for a year and a half.

He purchased his practice from Dr. Robert Hervey in February, 1964.

Scollon and his wife, Dotty, bookkeeper for the clinic, have five children. Teresa attends Interlochen Arts Academy. John, Suzy, Katy and Mike attend Cass City Schools.

Two very special girls are looking for Big Sisters. They live in the Unionville-Colwood area and are 12 and 14 years old. They like to sew, fish and cook. They have had a very mixed up life and need the companionship of a woman.

An energetic 15-year-old from Unionville would like a Big Sister. She enjoys listening to records, playing the piano, and talking with friends.

A sweet little boy from Caro would like a Big Brother. He likes to read, ride bikes and go to movies. He is nine years old and would make a nice little brother for any man.

IGA WIN UP TO $1,000

TOUCHDOWN DOLLARS

RULES: FOR TOUCHDOWN DOLLARS

1. Get one free ticket from a participating store. NO PURCHASE REQUIRED. Only adults (18 years and older) eligible to play.

2. You can win the dollar prize printed on your ticket. On Tuesday morning, participating stores will post the score of the professional football game played the evening before on network T.V. The last number of the score of each team determines the winning tickets, as in conventional football pools, so that by way of example: if the score number on your ticket is 5 for Pittsburgh and 8 for Dallas, any number ending in a 5 for Pittsburgh and any number ending in 8 for Dallas would make that ticket a winner.

3. Submit any winning ticket at a participating store for verification. Verified winners of $1, $5, $10 will be paid immediately. $100 and $1,000 winning tickets must be verified by the sponsor and verified winners will be paid by check. Winning tickets must be submitted by Saturday following the Monday night game, or they are forfeited and cannot be paid. Tax liability is the responsibility of the prize winner.

4. Game tickets must be verified. If not obtained from and verified by authorized personnel or if any part is illegible or is otherwise irregular in any way, the ticket will be void. Game void where taxed or prohibited.

5. Employees (and their IRS listed dependents) of the sponsor, participating stores and companies which have had any connection with the game are not eligible for prizes.

Neither this game, its producer, copyright owner, sponsor nor participating stores has any affiliation with, or relationship to, any team, conference, league or association of which the teams are members.

your ticket. On Tuesday morning, participating stores will post the score of the professional football game played the evening before on network T.V. The last number of the score of each team determines the winning tickets, as in conventional football pools, so that by way of example: if the score number on your ticket is 5 for Pittsburgh and 8 for Dallas, any number ending in a 5 for Pittsburgh and any number ending in 8 for Dallas would make that ticket a winner.3. Submit any winning ticket at a partici-

Required test for graduation good idea

School officials throughout the state are expressing concern that high school seniors are graduating as "functional illiterates" and hope that some type of survival skills test will be required before they receive their diplomas.

Chester Kulinski thinks that's a good idea even though it might not be very popular with some of the students.

"The students, community, teachers, everyone would benefit from some type of mandatory test like that," he said. "But those students who are just trying to get by could be upset if they had to take it."

A state pilot program was initiated in May at Lawton, southwest of Kalamazoo, and educators hope this will be the start of giving competency tests in high schools across the country.

"Almost anyone can get a high school diploma nowadays," Kulinski said. "Some students graduate who can't spell right, add or subtract, or even read a sentence. They are the ones who are going to have to try to learn a little more and maybe study a little harder to pass that test."

Kulinski suggested that high school students be required to take two tests. One at the end of the 11th grade and the other in the middle of the 12th grade "so there will still be time to educate them if needed."

What he thought could be more beneficial to the student is to encourage schools to make learning more interesting so that the subject taught are worthwhile and practical in everyday life.

"If you improve the school system, you are improving the community and that's what the schools should be doing."

Kulinski is a retired farmer and lives at 4918 Lamton Road, Cass City, with his wife Alice and four of their nine children.

Relatives meet at local park

The annual McConnell-Shagena reunion was held Sunday, Aug. 19, at the Cass City park. Potluck dinner was served at 1:30. Ice cream cones were served later, following games.

Oldest relative present was Mrs. Nina Shagena, and youngest was Bradley David Speirs, five-week-old son of David and Karen Speirs.

The same officers were retained for next year: John Shagena, president; Suzanne Shagena, vice-president; and Dorothy Taylor, secretary-treasurer.

The reunion is scheduled the third Sunday in August, 1980, at the village park. Any McConnell or Shagena family member who is not on the current mailing list is urged to contact Mrs. Maurice Taylor, 6351 Greenland Rd., Cass City 48726.

Exchange farmer reports milk glut

Swiss dairy farmers have problems

Swiss farms just can't compare in size to the ones in the United States.

That observation was noted by Stefan Weber, 22, of Switzerland, who is working at the Arnold Broecker farm on Hadley Road, Decker, through the Work Experience Abroad program sponsored by the Future Farmers of America.

"A big dairy farm in Switzerland would have about 40 cows," which is what his father had, he said. "That's quite a difference from a dairy farm here in America."

Weber was born and raised in the small town of Merenschwand, 20 miles west of Zurich. After finishing high school, he worked for a year on different farms, including his father's 55-acre crop farm.

"My father was a dairy farmer until 1973, then he switched to crop farming because he couldn't find enough workers to milk the cows. Everyone was going to the factories to work."

After working with his father for some time, Weber went to two agricultural schools in Muri, Switzerland, to learn more about farming. He went to school during the winter months and got practical experience on farms in the summer.

He also worked in Sweden for seven months in 1976 and for a year in 1978.

"Michigan is a lot like Sweden in appearance," Weber noted. "The buildings, the red barns, the wide-angled roofs; the farms are a lot like Sweden."

BUT WHEN ASKED TO compare the Michigan farms to his home country, Weber chuckled and simply replied, "Everything is so much bigger here."

"Swiss farmers use every square foot of land available. There are mostly dairy farmers in Switzerland but some crop farming is done also. The milk is used to make cheese."

Weber said the dairy farmers are currently having trouble because their cows are producing too much milk and the farmers can't sell their product.

"The Swiss frank (unit of currency) is too high and people are buying cheaper cheeses. This is taking away money the Swiss farmers could be making."

Dairy farming isn't the only type of agrarian work done in Switzerland.

Many other farmers plant corn, wheat, grapes or hay, depending on where they live and what type of land is on the farm, Weber said.

Grapes are cultivated for wine on the hills of the western part of Switzerland near France, while corn and wheat are harvested on flatland. Hay and grass are for the dairy cows to consume where nothing else can be grown.

"An average farm in Switzerland is usually 25-35 acres," Weber said. "And the average price for an acre of land can run $10,000-15,000. There are very few people who can afford to buy a farm in Switzerland, including me."

The Swiss, who has three brothers and a sister, said his oldest brother will inherit his father's farm. He must look elsewhere to purchase his own farm.

ies, where the average number of workers usually ranges from 10-20.

"The small farms, around 10 acres, are becoming less popular and farmers are selling out and going to work in the factories. They can't afford to stay on the farm. They're not making enough money."

"THERE IS A STRONG feeling of nationalism in Switzerland," he said. "The people are very proud of their country. But there is also a lot of difference when you travel from one town to another."

There are four major languages spoken in Switzerland: Swiss-German, French, Italian and an old language, Rumanish.

"Between a third to a half speak Swiss-German, about a third speak French, a smaller number speak Italian and a very small percentage speak Rumanish," Weber figured.

"But you go from town to town and a different accent is spoken."

INFLATION IS RELATIVELY low, Weber said, may-

Novesta to study rezoning

The Novesta Township Planning Commission will meet Tuesday, Sept. 11.

Purpose is to discuss possible rezoning of all of Section 4 from light industry to agricultural-residential. The square mile section is bounded by Warner (south of the Cass River), Elmwood, Cemetery and Kelly Roads. Its present zoning is because of the cement block plant there.

A change in the zoning, according to Planning Commission member Joan Little, won't affect any present uses of property within the section.

The commission is considering making the change, she said, to make it easier in the future to use suitable property for residential use.

Purpose of the meeting will be to hear comments from the public about the proposed change. It is not a formal public hearing.

The meeting starts at 8 p.m. in the township hall in Deford.

Divorce: group seeks to adjust

A discussion group for persons legally separated or divorced who are encountering "inherent adjustment difficulties" has started in Caro.

Topics to be discussed may include anger; projection of hostility; guilt; feelings of hurt and loss; re-direction of energy into more positive, self-fulfilling roles; children and divorce; discipline, limits and controls in child rearing, and dating and the formulation of new relationships.

Philosophy of the discussion group will be to deal with emotional aspects of legal separation and divorce, not the legal process or implications. Emphasis will be on mutual problem solving and support.

Although the first of 10 once-a-week sessions was this Wednesday, it is not too late to participate, according to James Parsell, who will conduct the discussion group.

Persons can call him at 673-7853 in the evenings to sign-up, or show up at the next session, Sept. 15. The meetings are held from 7-9 p.m. Wednesdays in the board room of the Tuscola County Community Mental Health Services building off Chambers Road, near M-81, west of Caro. The group will be limited to 18 persons maximum.

Parsell is a recipient rights advisor at the Caro Regional Center and has a background in psychology. This is the fifth year he has offered the program. A fee is charged.

Dance on Saturday

The Tip of The Thumb Singles Club will have its next dance Saturday at the Methodist church gym in Bad Axe from 8:30 p.m.-12:30 a.m.

Music will be by the Calvin Weltin band.

Anyone over 25 years old who is widowed, single, or divorced is welcome.

Goodell graduates at Ferris

Mary Goodell received her associate degree in nursing at the end of the summer term at Ferris State College, Big Rapids.

Mary Goodell

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Goodell of 6200 Green Road, Gagetown, and a 1976 graduate of Cass City High School.

She is now eligible to take her state licensing examination to be a registered nurse.

Miss Goodell will be living in Bay City and is seeking employment in the Bay City-Saginaw area.

Health nurses offer services

Dear Editor,

Since I became the county commissioner for District No. 2 last January, I have made every effort to become more familiar with the various county department operations.

One of the departments which I have learned quite a bit about is the Health Department. Prior to this exposure, I had some knowledge of the general operation of the department, but a limited knowledge of the specifics, especially of the nursing division.

I am wondering if the residents of Cass City, Gagetown, and Kingston are aware of the many services provided to our community by our public health nurses.

The two nurses who serve our area are Millie Feighner, RN, and Anita Harrard, RN. These nurses are rendering a variety of services to our residents which is truly impressive.

They make home visits to provide skilled care, instruction, and observation for many people who have had recent hospitalizations for surgery, cardiac conditions, blood pressure problems, amputations, and many other problems. They also make visits to mothers of new babies to offer help and support during those first trying weeks when a baby can be such an enigma.

They also work in the weekly immunization clinics at the Health Department, help in the schools when they are needed, and Anita makes regular visits to Hills and Dales Hospital to help coordinate the care between the hospital and home. Anita is also the nurse who teaches most of the diabetic classes at the Health Department, which are offered every few months. Millie teaches classes on parenting skills. All told, they are providing a great deal of very valuable service here in District No. 2. (Elmwood, Elkland, Ellington, Novesta township, plus north half of Kingston township: editor.)

I also think we should all be proud of our Hills and Dales General Hospital which was willing to be the participating hospital so that the Health Department could become Blue Cross certified for its home health program. Because of this, all of the residents of the county who have Blue Cross can have their home health care visits paid for by Blue Cross. That is a real community service, in my mind.

I think a "pat on the back" is in order for our public health nurses and our hospital.

Yours truly,

Royce Russell

43 report for practice

Hawks definite Thumb B title threat

Coach Don Schelke is going around these days with a gleam in his eye as pre-season football practice continues and he sorts out the talent among a 43-man varsity squad.

The gleam comes from a wealth of lettermen, plenty of size and good depth that he sees among the grid hopefuls.

The only thing that puts a shadow on the bright picture is the lack of speed on the squad. Cass City promises to be big and experienced but not very quick.

The Hawks have 11 players that weigh 200 pounds or more and one, Guy Nanny, who checks in at 305.

Just how many of these grid hopefuls will be able to crack the starting line-up remains to be seen. A scrimmage Thursday night at Akron-Fairgrove at 6:00 p.m. should help separate the wheat from the chaff.

There are openings in the line-up. Graduation leaves some big shoes to fill.

Start with co-captains Mike Truemer and Ray Piaskowski. Both were two-way players. Piaskowski anchored the line and Truemer was a line backer and guard. Gone, too, is Doug Erla, a three-year veteran in the offensive line.

Coach Schelke has set Wednesday, Sept. 5, as the time for the meet-the-team night. The annual event will be held at the game field at Cass City Recreational Park starting at 7:30 p.m.

A major problem for the Hawks will be the replacement for Tony Doerr. The burly fullback was a vital offensive cog last season and also filled in on the defensive line in critical situations.

Other linemen that will be missed include Paul Guernsey, a fixture at guard, Keith Pobanz, end, Jeff Jensen, tackle, and Mike Lefler, guard. Todd Alexander played a big role in the defensive backfield.

Dave Heins, a work horse in the offensive and defensive backfield and Don Doerr, a defensive back, have also graduated.

The team is bound to feel the loss of these quality performers but Schelke can turn to no fewer than 20 letter winners remaining.

Start with Ken Martin, the team captain, and an outstanding end. Back, too, is Bob Sawdon, probably the best back, pound for pound, in the Thumb B Conference.

Tim Sontag, a junior, was outstanding in the defensive backfield last season as a sophomore. Another regular is Rusty Hoag who handled the quarterbacking for the Hawks.

There is a host of other candidates who earned letters and should help make the Hawks serious contenders for the league title.

In addition there is a real nucleus of talent coming up from last year's Junior Varsity.

Included are Brian de Beaubien, a quarterback and excellent passer; Mike and Tom Loomis, a back and lineman respectively; Jim Jensen, an interior lineman, and Bob Leslie, an end.

THE COMPETITION

Schelke sees Bad Axe, last year's runner-up in the state tournament as the team to beat despite losses by graduation.

Also strong will be Caro and Vassar. Vassar is the only team to beat Cass City's JV squad last year. North Branch is new to the league this year but has a strong winning tradition in football and must be regarded as a dark horse challenger.

The schedule:

Sept. 7	Standish (there)
14	Caro (there)
21	Bad Axe (Home)
28	North Branch (Home)
Oct. 5	Sandusky (there)
12	Marlette (Home)
19	Vassar (there)
26	Lakers (Home)
Nov. 2	Mayville (Home)

Lose at Port Austin

Osentoski set for state slow pitch tournament

It's off to Portage for the Osentoski Realty Cass City team, which will be playing there Saturday in the state class D slow pitch tournament.

It will be the wrapup for what will have been a busy eight or nine days for the team.

It didn't start out the period on a winning note, however. At the league tournament over the week end in Port Austin, it was eliminated in the first round

Saturday when it was embarrassed by the Schlitz Beer team of Port Austin, 20-12.

Pete's Bar of Bad Axe was the ultimate winner of the 24-team single elimination tourney.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, the Osentoski squad will be playing in the first round of the TSPL playoffs, which wrap up Sept. 15.

The team qualified for the state tournament with wins in the district championships Aug. 7 in Bay City.

There will be 19 teams competing in the state championship Saturday and Sunday at Portage, a Kalamazoo suburb.

Osentoski's first game in the double elimination tournament will be at 9 a.m. against the Nickel Cigar team of Battle Creek.

Its second game will start in early afternoon. First round winners play winners; first-round losers play losers.

Hawk golfers face uphill task in defense of title

The defending Thumb B Conference champion Cass City Red Hawk golf team faces an uphill task in defense of its crown.

That's because two of the stalwarts of the title squad are missing. One is Jeff Prieskorn. He was all-everything for Cass City last year and earned all-state class C honors. Also graduated was Tim Severance, a steady performer. If the Hawks are to successfully defend their title the burden will fall on the returning lettermen who were regulars last year.

They include Steve Richards, Tim Johnson and Scott Krueger.

The other spots will be filled by new faces. Five boys are working out under the watchful eye of Coach

Mike Gogola in preparation for the golf season which opens Sept. 5 against Capac at Rolling Hills Golf Course. The schedule:

Sept. 5	Capac, home
7	Millington, away
10	Caro, away
12	Bad Axe, home
17	North Branch, home
19	Sandusky, away
24	Marlette, home

Girls expected to battle for Thumb B loop cage crown

Coach Lloyd Schinnerer's Hawk basketball squad will be one of the favorites to cop a championship in the Thumb B Conference race this fall.

The girls will be able to field a team of veteran players with fairly good size and good quickness at the guards.

There are six letter winners back and all of them piled up considerable playing time as the team posted an 11-7 over-all and 9-5 Thumb B Conference record last season.

But there are some holes to fill. Gone is Kelli Winter, starting center; Pat Otulakowski, who saw considerable action at guard, and Kari Witherspoon, a forward that filled a vital role coming off the bench.

But Schinnerer's returning troops include a front line that could feature Libby Hartel, 5-9; Vickie Pobanz, 5-9, and Padgett Randall, 5-10. They should dominate the boards against most of the teams they meet. Randall was a first team all-conference selection and Hartel won league honorable mention honors.

Randall, in her third year on the varsity as a junior, is an outstanding offensive player who could well lead not only her team, but the conference in scoring.

Hartel is an excellent rebounder, tough under both boards. Schinnerer says that Pobanz is an excellent all-around player who excels at starting the fast break. Another challenger for a spot in the front line is Connie Clark. She earned a letter last year.

Two veterans at the guard slots are Tammi Rabideau and Nancy Tonti. Rabideau came along strong last year and plays a strong defense. Tonti is the team ball handler and floor general. She's a senior and this will be her third year as a regular.

A host of juniors up from the JV squad should provide good bench strength for the team.

FINAL DAY of vacation for James Wutzke, 14, of 4259 Ale Street was a good one. He caught this 24-inch pike at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday from the M-81 bridge over the Cass River, east of Cass City, using bacon for bait. His cousin, Mark Dohn of Deford, caught a 22-inch pike elsewhere on the Cass River about the same time.

Group questions all-year traffic on Great Lakes

By Warren M. Hoyt
Michigan Press Association

The environment and economics have clashed again, this time over a possible extension of year-round shipping on the Great Lakes.

Business and industry in the northern lower and upper peninsulas have been pushing for extension of the navigation season to get raw materials in and iron ore and finished products out during the winter months.

Meanwhile, environmentalists question an expanded navigation year and say they cannot be sure what effects the extension would have on the environment of the lakes and shoreline.

A modest extension of the Great Lakes shipping is reasonable, according to a recent report issued by Governor William G. Milliken, but a proposal for year-round activity was rejected.

He said he could not support the year-round proposal because of a lack of study of alternatives and of environmental and economic impacts.

The shipping season normally ends in mid-December.

While the year-round plan was designed to increase the capacity of the Great Lakes navigation system, the governor's Environmental Cabinet said extension of the season is only one means. A cabinet report noted a comparison of economic cost-benefits or environmental impacts of alternatives is lacking.

The cabinet's policy statement specifically disapproved a suggestion by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to evaluate environmental impacts while the program is in operation.

It recommended a two-phase system of first studying environmental and economic aspects of increasing the system's capacities along with alternative methods before implementing an alternative.

The Milliken policy supports extending the mid-December closing to the end of January, plus or minus two weeks depending upon conditions; making studies to establish permanent policy to determine conditions that require ending the season, and a determination of the impact of oil spills in ice conditions.

"Michigan, which has more to gain or lose than any other state from the impacts of year-round shipping, must insist on full environmental and economic studies and a full exploration of other alternatives. Michigan has moved on many fronts to protect its magnificent coastal resources and must continue to address itself to everything that affects our fisheries, erosion areas, wetlands, transportation and recreation," Milliken said.

Police take most 'drunks' home, not to treatment centers

When the state law barring arrest of "incapacitated" persons who were not disturbing the peace went

Report many mishaps

At 5:30 p.m. Friday, according to Cass City police, Ruth Fritz, 69, of 4405 S. Seeger Street, was turning right onto Church Street from northbound Seeger.

She turned the corner too wide and struck the vehicle headed west, driven by Ronald Przystas, 21, of East Lansing. He was driving a pickup owned by Dale Damm.

Thomas E. Chambers, 44, of Sandusky, was westbound on Mushroom Road, east of Kingston Road, when, he told deputies, he braked to avoid hitting some deer. The car went out of control, went off the north side of the road into a ditch and rolled over. The mishap occurred at 8 a.m. Saturday.

At 3:50 p.m. Sunday, according to deputies, Dora F. Hull, 63, of 5568 Hurds Corner Road, Galetown, was passing a car while southbound on M-24, south of M-46, when the other car started to turn left, apparently into a private driveway.

The other driver, Nancy Ann Frenzel, 24, of Mayville, turned into the side of Mrs. Hull's car.

Phillip T. Copeland, 18, of 5517 Pringle Road, was westbound on M-81, east of Schwegler Road, at 6:45 a.m. Tuesday, when his car struck a deer. Cass City police investigated.

into effect in mid-January, 1978, the problem for Tuscola county police units was that they had no place to take intoxicated persons.

Now, it seems that problem is solved, but law enforcement officers in Tuscola county are still not sure where they should take the drunks.

Legally, there are three places the person can be taken to: An approved service program, an emergency medical service, or a transfer facility, from which the person is to be transferred to the emergency medical service.

What that means is a detoxification center, where the person is "dried out" and then consults with a social worker who determines if he or she has a drinking problem. If the social worker determines the person needs help, a referral is made to a treatment program.

But the law has not worked out that way, for the most part.

According to Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson, most of the persons his department picks up for drunkenness are taken home.

"This has been our best result," Chief Wilson said. "I think we've taken three people to Hills and Dales (Cass City's designated detox center) since the law was put into effect. I'd rather take them to their home."

Because the person is not required to stay at the detox center, Wilson doubted any have stayed longer than 20 minutes.

"As soon as we leave, they're usually gone. But usually we don't find them again so they're not a problem."

Tuscola County Sheriff Hugh Marr can't afford the manpower to take drunks deputies pick up to detox centers, because of the distance involved (to Bad Axe or Saginaw).

"We can't afford to take them. That takes two men off the road in the middle of the night," he said. Instead, the usual routine is to take them home.

He did see one advantage to the law in that fewer people are sent to jail, which has helped the problem of overcrowding. "Our jails are full now."

TROOPER RONALD SCHNEIDER, community services officer for the Caro state police post, said that "not more" than six persons have been picked up and taken home by state police officers since the law went into effect.

"I believe only three have been taken to detox centers, two to Caro Community and one to Hills and Dales," he said.

DRUNKS CAN BE TAKEN to any hospital in the upper Thumb, if designated as a receiving unit under the law, but only one of those, Huron Memorial in Bad Axe, has a regular treatment program, with full-time counselors available. The formal treatment program runs 10-14 days.

At the other hospitals, a person can be kept there a maximum of 72 hours, basically for purposes of drying out, since none have regular staff for helping those with alcohol problems.

"That 72 hours is not enough time for the person to get the necessary treatment he should receive," said Steve Crabtree, substance abuse coordinator for the Human Development Commission in Caro.

The HDC served as coordinating agency for the law when it went into effect by conducting training sessions for police officers and getting treatment facilities established.

The Huron Memorial facility has 18 beds. Counselor Earl Kilbourn said some months, 40-50 persons go through the treatment program; in other months, only 25.

On an average, he said, only three persons are brought there a month under the "no arrest" law, and only one of those chooses to take the treatment program. Most persons who take it either sign up voluntarily or are referred there by some agency.

While enrolled in the program, persons stay at the hospital and attend classes, group discussions, and Alcoholics Anonymous meetings, see films and receive individual counseling. Families are also involved in the counseling. Cost of the program is usually paid by the individual's insurance company.

Persons interested in the program can call the hospital at 269-9521 in Bad Axe.

THE LAW DOES NOT APPLY to drunk drivers, who, according to Chief Wilson, "no matter what still go to jail."

He noted that drunk driving arrests in his department are running ahead of last year's total at the same time. As of Aug. 16, Cass City police have made 15 arrests for drunk driving and Chief Wilson projects the year's total "to be about 20."

That number is more than twice the number arrested in 1978 (nine) which Chief Wilson claims to be "an unusual year."

"They (drunk drivers) are out there and there are more of them all the time," he said.

In 1977, Cass City police made 17 arrests for drunk driving.

According to Michigan State Police records, 182 persons were arrested in Tuscola county in 1978 for driving under the influence of liquor, compared to 135 in 1977 and 167 in 1976.

Persons arrested for drunkenness in 1978 totaled three (prior to the advent of the new law), compared to 77 arrests in 1977 and 134 in 1976 in Tuscola county.

But whether drunks are arrested for driving under the influence or picked up for being intoxicated, the Tuscola county lawmen agree that they want to protect the safety of the general public and the intoxicated person by getting him off the street.

"We've arrested the same drunks for years and never accomplished a thing," Sheriff Marr said when the law went into effect.

old as 90. We get doctors, lawyers, secretaries, men, women, all kinds from all walks of life. All with the same problem, the same disease - alcoholism."

An untamed land

Fish Quebec if wilderness turns you on

By John Haire

Seen from the air it was like a houseboat floating solitarily on one of the Great Lakes. They were the buildings of the Square Tail Fishing Club perched on a peninsula of forest green amidst greyish-blue water.

It was one of only two sets of buildings carved out of over 100 square miles of trees and water, water, water. It was our introduction to northern Quebec.

When the bush plane landed on Lake Troilus, 75 miles north of Chibougamau, pronounced Sha-booga-moo, with the accent on the second syllable, and 400 air miles north of Montreal it capped a trip for me and Clarke Haire that consumed parts of three days.

The trip was a culmination of several years of reading brochures, planning and hoping.

It didn't turn out exactly as the copy writers pictured it, but it was a fine eight days anyway.

Our first jolt came before we left Tuscola county.

Because time was limited the entire trip was by air. Travel arrangements to Chibougamau were handled by a travel agency in Caro.

Because of horrendous flight connections it was necessary to drive to Windsor then fly to Montreal. That made the entire flight in Canada and we naturally assumed that the 15 percent plus discount for Canadian money would apply.

Not so. When the ticket is written in the United States you pay the full amount in United States currency. If we had picked up our tickets at the Windsor airport the discount would have been in effect. We learned that too late to make any changes.

Before getting into what happened at the fishing camp let me dwell a minute on the two communities where we stayed overnight on the way in.

Montreal was fun . . . and expensive. The high prices don't deter the tourists. On the way in a stewardess recommended a spot in Montreal to eat.

This was Tuesday night. We arrived at the recommended French restaurant at about 7 p.m. only to find that it was sold out until 10 p.m.

The stewardess said that the spot recommended was moderately priced. Judging by the menu posted on the wall a dinner for two would have been in the neighborhood of $30 without drinks.

In contrast to the price of food, the price of public transportation was cheap. Cheap and good. Any major city in the United States could do well to emulate Montreal's system.

It's possible to go all over the city for 50 cents. We just about did it as we took the Metro (subway) in the wrong direction a couple of times.

You can't blame that on the system.

The Metro runs fast and on time and the connections with busses are good. We went from the airport to downtown Montreal in about 25 minutes, as quick as you could drive it.

Montreal has something else going for it that is missing in all large cities in the States.

Women of all ages walked the streets, rode the subway and went where they pleased evidently without fear for safety that is common here.

The next night was spent in Chibougamau. It's a bustling town of about 14,000 that serves as a jumping off spot for undeveloped northern Quebec.

There are two flying services based at Lake Cashe and private float planes scoot in and out all day. Chibougamau survives on service to the north and extensive mining interests in the area.

It takes about three-quarters of an hour to fly from Chibougamau to the fishing club deep in the bush country. There is a single road that winds its way for 50 miles or so into the wilderness but we never saw a car on it flying in or out.

HARSH COUNTRY

There's a reason why this section of Quebec is practically undisturbed, much the same as it must have been centuries ago.

The short growing season and the lack of soil makes it impractical for development.

There's a thin covering of top soil over the rocks, maybe six inches in most places. It causes the trees to run their roots along the ground instead of into it. That makes winter kill easy and patches of white withered trees stand out starkly from the forest green maze seen from the air.

Because there are no people there is no pollution. The streams we fished, the Broadback and Rupert in the Assinica and Mistassini preserves, were the ones we drank from. Our reluctance was overcome when the camp operators assured us that the water had been tested pure.

Now, what about the fishing? It was good but not as great as we thought. We were after speckled trout and it's a specialized type of fishing in Quebec.

The rivers are always connected by lakes, varying from 10-acre ponds to large bodies of water covering several miles. There are literally thousands of them.

In the rivers between the lakes there are often rapids. It's there that the fishing for trout is.

The rapids vary from perhaps a quarter of a mile to a half mile long. Sometimes a rapids is divided by a small pond and it's possible to fish two of them during the same day.

The camp operates its own float plane and flies guests to rapids pinpointed on a map. Often it may be the first time that the rapids has been fished.

That doesn't mean it's good. We fished one like this and picked up just two trout all day. And since you fly in there's no leaving until the plane picks you up in the evening.

We did have good days. A couple of them we caught and released 40 or so trout with the biggest running about 20 inches.

There was only one trophy fish caught. It weighed 7½ pounds. Unfortunately it wasn't caught by either Clarke or me. It had returned to the rapids to spawn after moving out to one of the lakes.

The trout population is held in check by the pike in all the lakes. They eat many of the lesser sized fish that leave the sanctuary of the rapids as they mature.

Clarke caught a pike 36 inches long and estimated at 12 pounds while trout fishing where the rapids enter the lake.

NOT FOR EVERYONE

A plus to the vacation for us was that this camp is truly away from it all. No phones, radio, TV. There was an inside toilet shared by all. The log cabins were rustic and ours had the luxury of a propane heater.

Two other cabins had wood stoves. Fires were needed every night. During the day temperatures rose to the high sixties.

You have to enjoy this type of living. If a motel with a swimming pool is your cup of tea, don't visit Northern Quebec.

If shore cookouts performed by a Cree Indian guide, home made pies made from the profusion of wild blueberries and raspberries growing everywhere and the majestic grandeur of an untamed land turns you on, a trip like this will fill the bill.

It was a great trip for both of us, but we agreed next time we'll try something different.

After all there is fishing in Argentina and Alaska, too.

As far as the eye could see in any direction this scene was repeated, and repeated, and repeated. . . .

HOME FOR A WEEK for John and Clarke Haire was a cabin surrounded by Lake Cache, foreground, and the Broadback River, not visible.

THIS PLANE transported guests from Chibougamau to the Square Tail Fishing Camp. A smaller one was parked at the camp for jaunts to unexplored sections of two rivers.

THIS CREE INDIAN had trouble understanding English but no trouble at all in the Quebec wilderness. He cooked a can of beans over an open fire. The beans were piping hot but the turned back lid of the can could be handled with bare hands.

YOU WON'T FIND many trout in calm water above the rapids because of pike but when you do they are giant size. A 7½-pounder was caught in water just like this.

TROUT ARE SAFE from predatory pike in rapids like these but are often eaten when they leave to feed in connecting lakes.

SAVED! THE STORY OF THE ANDREA DORIA, by William Hoffer (non-fiction). At 11:10 p.m. on the evening of July 25, 1956, two enormous radar-equipped luxury liners collided off the coast of Nantucket. It was a devastating tragedy compounded by an inept captain and an unscrupulous crew. Based on research and interviews with survivors, "Saved!" tells the entire, unforgettable story of extraordinary disaster and rescue.

SKELETONS, by Glendon Swarthout (fiction). A femme fatale in the most literal sense, Tyler Vaught, sends three of her lovers in succession out to a small town in New Mexico to investigate the history of her family and "to find out who I am." The first two pay with their lives; the third, a mild-mannered writer of children's books, manages to stay alive and to trace the gothic history of Tyler's family.

LACY MAKES A MATCH, by Patricia Beatty (youth). The marriage of her oldest brother gives housework-weary Lacy Bingham some ideas on how to get rid of the other two. Her precarious attempts at matchmaking and her efforts to learn how she came to be left with the Bingham as a baby fill her 13th summer. Set in late 19th century California.

Real estate course slated by U-M

A course in Real Estate Finance will be offered in Caro this fall by the state-wide Real Estate Program of The University of Michigan.

The course begins Sept. 13 and runs each Thursday for 11 sessions from 7-10 p.m. It will be held in Room 306 of Caro High School, 301 Hooper Street.

The finance course involves a thorough study of residential home financing, types of lending institutions available and explanations of the mortgage procedure. The Michigan land contract will also be covered.

Although advance registration for the course is advised, students may also register at the class site prior to the opening session.

For further information, contact the Real Estate Program, University of Michigan Extension Service, 350 S. Thayer, Ann Arbor 48109; phone (313) 763-2170.

LIVE IT UP

Vacationers often spend a few weeks on resort sands and the rest of the year on the rocks.

Gillespie faces larceny charge

A Mayville man, James R. Gillespie, has been charged with larceny of livestock and breaking and entering of a building in connection with the theft last Thursday of a registered Palomino quarter-horse valued at $4,000.

Gillespie, 21, of Blackmore Road, was arraigned Monday before District Judge Richard F. Kern, who set bond at $3,000 surety (10 percent of which must be posted). Pre-preliminary examination was scheduled Sept. 4; preliminary examination, Sept. 14. As of Tuesday morning, he was still in the county jail.

Charlotte Fisher of 2351 Sanilac Road, Caro, reported the horse missing to the sheriff's department at 8:43 a.m. last Thursday. She told officers she had last seen the 7-year-old gelding at 9 p.m. the day before when she had put it in her barn.

Gillespie was arrested by deputies at 9:50 p.m. Sunday in the parking lot at Barriger's Travel Stop at M-46 and M-24, south of Caro.

Information was not immediately available as to what led to his arrest.

Mrs. Fisher's husband, Karey Fisher, told the Chronicle deputies returned the horse by trailer to them Monday morning. It had some scratches, a leg was banged up and it lost considerable weight, but would recover.

He said deputies told him he and his wife would be informed of all that transpired once the investigation was completed.

Fisher didn't know yet whether the $500 reward he and his wife offered for recovery of the horse was a factor leading to Gillespie's arrest.

Success or failure is usually a reflection of a state of mind.

Labor, business seek change in worker compensation law

For the first time in many years, both business and labor are meeting as members of a special task force on workers' compensation to begin this year's attempt to rework the billion dollar workers' compensation system.

Workers' compensation along with the state's unemployment compensation system have created battle lines with neither side seeming to get an inch.

Business contends the systems are abusive and costing employers millions yearly, with payment going to undeserving recipients. Leaders say the systems are driving up the cost of doing business in the state, causing less expansion in the state.

Meanwhile, labor says the system is ancient and unrealistic in providing deserved benefits to those who qualify. They want to increase benefits but hesitate to open the whole system for a total revision.

Recently, the special task force was given outlines of the priority issues of both business and labor groups and approved a subcommittee to determine the cost of various proposals.

The first head to head meeting of the two groups indicated that both are a little closer in reaching some agreement yet this year.

The task force, which is scheduled to meet weekly, hopes to present a balanced proposal to the legislature by October.

They sent a letter to legislative leaders calling for support of the eventual proposal, rather than negotiating essential points of any agreement that will be presented in legislative form.

Taking Charmont trophy sends two men to county jail

Two young men took the trophy early Saturday, but it wasn't for anything they won.

The trophy was taken from a shelf in the game room at the Charmont in Cass City.

No one realized it was missing, however, until after Caro police found it in the possession of the two men.

According to Caro police, officers made a routine traffic stop of a car at 2:30 a.m. and then discovered the 4-foot high trophy inside. Inscribed on it was "Charmont Memorial Invitational Champ 1978."

Subsequently arrested were Timothy Lee Fry, 18, of Hurds Corner Road, Cass City, and Kenneth Kirkpatrick, 20, of Washburn Road, Vassar.

Caro police notified Cass City police and they in turn checked with the attendant at the Charmont, who then discovered the trophy missing. It was valued at $70.

Both men arrested have been charged with receiving and concealing stolen property under $100.

Fry was arraigned Monday before District Judge Richard F. Kern, who scheduled a pretrial hearing Sept.

25. Bond was set at $1,000 personal recognizance.

Kirkpatrick appeared before Magistrate Joan Maki Tuesday, who scheduled an arraignment before Judge Kern Sept. 4. Bond was set at $1,000.

Motorist attacks lawn

To the detriment of Robert Dilman's lawn, a motorist didn't know when to stop early Saturday. Damage was estimated at $70.

His house is at the corner of Kennebec Drive and Huron Street. He reported the damage to Cass City police Saturday afternoon. It occurred sometime between 11:30 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m.

Saturday.

According to police, the vehicle came up Leach Street, crossed Huron and a small ditch onto Dilman's back yard. The wheels dug up two large patches of lawn. The vehicle then ran over two forsythia bushes and six raspberry bushes and through a horseshoe pitching pit onto the neighbor's lawn.

It then circled a tree and crossed back across Dilman's lawn onto Huron Street and headed east.

The property owner told police the bedroom of his home is on the opposite side of the house from the yard and neither he nor his wife heard anything during the night.
