STILL ROLLING -- Or in this instance, halted to discharge students at Campbell Elementary. School administrators aren't worried about getting enough fuel to keep buses rolling -- they've been assured of 100 percent allocation of what was used last year -- but paying for the ever more costly fuel is a concern.

paying 72.9 cents. The Cass City buses use a lot of the fuel. During the past school year, they traveled 326.613 miles taking students to and from their homes and only 14,777 miles

Unfortunately, there isn't much that can be done to cut down on the number of miles to be driven, and thus reduce ever mounting fuel bills, Crouse said.

Even if all athletic events and field trips were eliminated, which isn't about to happen, that would only reduce the miles driven by 4.3 percent.

Thus the only way to make big savings would be cutbacks in daily student transportation. What that would require -- which the school board has NOT discussed -- would be to establish pick-up points along bus routes, which the students would have to walk to.

Since most field trips are taken in the spring, the board hasn't discussed possible cutbacks there yet.

There will be some changes in scheduling of athletic events, however, as a result of action taken by the Athletic directors of Thumb B League schools.

The one change to be inaugurated this year, according to Athletic Director Roland Pakonen, is that freshman basketball games,

They don't come cheap, close to $30,000 each instead of about $20,000 for conventional ones. Plus, a diesel fuel storage tank had to be installed. The district figures it will get its money back, however, according to Business Manager Mark Tenbusch, as diesels get twice the miles per gallon of conventional buses, or about 11-12 mpg on student runs in good weath-

The district is presently paying 75.2 cents per gallon for diesel fuel, versus 72.9 cents for gasoline for the

This summer, the one station in Owendale closed, which means some buses will have to be driven to Gagetown just to get their tanks filled. The owner of the station, who lives in Pigeon and rented it to the operator, has offered to let the district use the station's tanks as a bulk storage facility.

The district has declined, however, because doing so would discourage someone from renting the station, which is its goal. A reopened station, Supt. Ronald Erickson pointed out, would serve the district and the residents of Owendale, who now must drive elsewhere to get their own vehicles' gas tanks

1 teachers approve new 3-year contract

Kingston teachers and the school board reached tentative agreement last Wednesday on a new three-year contract.

The members of the Kingston Education Association (KEA) approved the pact the next day by a vote of 16-3. It is the first such contract of more than oneyear duration.

As of Wednesday morning, the school board had yet to set a date to vote on the new pact, but Supt. Robert Cameron expected the board will probably hold a special meeting Monday to do so.

With three of seven board members having been at the final negotiating session, he said, "I expect it (the contract) will be approved."

Classes in the Kingston district began Aug. 28. The old contract expired Aug. 30.

The two sides had met seven times prior to last Wednesday's five hour session, when agreement was reached with the aid of a state mediator.

The financial package calls for a 7 percent to the base pay rates over what was paid last year, another 7 percent the second year and 7.5 percent the third year, according to KEA President

Last year, starting pay for a teacher with a bachelor's degree was $9,600. Maximum pay with a bachelor's, in the 11th year, was $16,300.

Under the new contract, starting pay is $10,300, with maximum (with bachelor's) of $17,600. During the 1980-81 school year, the range in-creases to $11,021 to $18,832; in 1981-82, $11,848 to $20,244.

As in the old contract, holders of masters degrees receive $500 additional.

In the past, the amount of added pay for each additional year of service varied. A teacher starting the second year, for instance, might receive a different amount than one starting the seventh year. At the request of the teachers, according to Dave Szybala, one of the KEA negotiators, the steps were made uniform.

On top of the 7 percent increase, teachers employed by the district last year will get an added $730; next year, $781, and in 1981-82,

Thus, a beginning teacher this year with a bachelor's degree would get $10,300. Next year, he or she would get $11,021 (7 percent increase), plus the step II increase of $781 for a total of

The board, as in the past pays the entire cost of health insurance, with teachers having a choice between Blue Cross-Blue Shield and a Michigan Education Association program, MESSA. Those choosing the latter will receive an improved plan. The BC-BS program improves in 1981-82.

Teachers not using from the 6th-10th sick day will get $17 for each unused day this year, $20 in the second and third year of the pact. It had been $15.

An increase in pay was negotiated for extra-curricular activities, with coaches for girls' sports receiving the same amount as the boys' team coach if a comparable activity (for instance, basketball).

There was also an adjustment in maternity leave, in accordance with a change in the law.

Mrs. Shields and Szybala did the negotiating for the KEA, with MEA representative Sue Schwab being present at part of two sessions.

Supt. Robert Cameron negotiated for the school board, with some board members being present at the session last Wednesday with the state mediator.

New contract deals with fee dispute

A continuing dispute over the Kingston Education Association by non-members of the union may have been resolved in the new contract negotiated by the union and school board -- though per haps not to the satisfaction of the non-members. Back in May, the KEA asked the board to dismiss 11 teachers who had declined to pay the 1978-79 assessment, though the request was later downgraded to two teachers.

The problem, according to President Carol Shields, was that although the old contract required non-members to pay a service fee to the union as a "condition of employment," nothing was specified as to how the fee was to be collected.

The new contract, which has yet to be approved by the school board, says that teachers have 30 days from their first day of employment to pay the assessment. If not paid by then, the school district will deduct the amount from their pay and turn it over to the union.

Amount of the assessment payment of a service fee to is to be set by the union and according to Mrs. Shields, it will be 100 percent of the amount paid by KEA members. Last year, it was 60 percent.

> The KEA doesn't have much choice in the matter, she indicated. The Michigan Education Association (MEA), with which the local is affiliated, now requires payment by the local of the same amount for state and National Education Association dues from non-members as from members. That will total $229.10 this year.

The local only gets to keep what it charges in addition to that. The KEA hasn't set local dues for this year yet, but Mrs. Shields' co-negotiator for the new contract, Dave Szybala, said local dues will probably be around $20, thus making total dues -or the service fee paid by non-members - $250.

MEA representative Sue Schwab pointed out that state law permits unions to charge a service fee up to the full amount of dues charged to members if an "agency shop" clause exists between union and employ-

The number of non-members involved in the service fee dispute has apparently varied, but the latest count was 12. Of those, Mrs. Shields said, one teacher still has yet to pay and that person's case will probably be taken to small claims court, according to Mrs.

Two have paid the service fee to the KEA and the other nine have paid the amount into an escrow account, pending findings of the state MEA escrow committee.

Although seemingly E stacked deck in the union's favor, Ms. Schwab said there have been instances where the committee awarded refunds to protesting non-union teachers.

If, however, it decides the amount of the service fee was fair, the money comes out of escrow and goes to the union. If the teachers don't like the decision, they can then appeal to an MEA-appointed committee of "out-

A Deford man escaped injury Tuesday night when forced to make an emergency landing in his plane.

The pilot was Tony W. 38, of Deckerville

According to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, Yost lost power in his single engine plane and was trying to land in a hay field. In coming down, the landing gear hit some power lines, Laring loose the left side landing gear.

The plane landed heavily and bounced into the ditch alongside Crawford Road. The incident took place about a half-mile south of Gilford Road, about 11/2 miles from Yost's home landing strip.

The plane suffered damage to the landing gear, propeller and engine cow-

Yost told the Chronicle the engine did not lose power completely. He did not know the cause of the problem. He did not jump out of the plane before it touched ground, as was reported by the Caro radio station.

The incident took place shortly before 8 p.m.

The plane was still at the crash scene Wednesday morning, pending possible inspection by a Federal Aviation Administration official, the FAA having been contacted by the sheriff's department.

In April of this year, the previous plane Yost owned was heavily damaged when the strain from high winds broke a tether and the plane flipped upside down on top of

"If It Fitz..." I'll take Canadian Club

By Jim Fitzgerald

The husband often feels the lure of bright lights. Constantly blinking in a foreign land, across the river border from his highrise home, is a huge neon sign advertising Canadian Club whisky.

"I think I will defect to -Canada," he told his wife. "What about your loyalty 'to Kentucky bourbon?" she asked. "The only time I lived in Kentucky I was held politital prisoner inside Ft.Knox and not allowed any bourbon for eight weeks. I don't want to live in a country that violates the human rights of bourbon drinkers," he said.

"When did you decide to defect? "I've been thinking about it for a long time, but I finally made up my mind just the other day on the freeway while reading the bumper sticker on the big truck in front of me. It said: Guns, guts and God made his country great. Let's

'You mean you're leaving because this country doesn't have enough gun controls?" "It's more than that. That bumper sticker made me realize that the people with uncontrolled guns also have uncontrolled guts, and they think God is on their side. Many of these righteous people drive huge trucks. I don't want to live in a nation where, if I'm hit by a truck, I can't be sure it was an accident. It might be God punishing me for cowering in public while wearing an empty holster."

"Is there any other reason you are defecting?'

"Yes, I'm ashamed of my president. It's not comfortable to live in a country where you can't be proud of your leader."

"What's bugging you about Jimmy Carter?" the wife asked. "The way he handled the Andrew Young affair?

"No, it's his undershirt and baggy shorts," the hus-band said. "When the president went down the Mississippi in a sternwheeler, it was supposed to improve his public image. But the pictures on TV and in the newspapers showed him jogging on shore in his underwear. He didn't even wear a T-shirt with sleeves to cover his scrawny shoulders. He revealed knobby knees and skinny shanks. Abraham Lincoln would never had appeared in public looking like that, not even to split rails. Whatever happened to the dignity of the presi-president simply wanted to show ordinary people that he looks like an ordinary person," the wife insisted

"If I have a president who looks like me, I want him to have sense enough to keep his clothes on while posing for pictures," the husband said. "Also, he should have sense enough not to give the presidential seal of approval to jogging. For the president to give joggers more to talk about at cocktail parties ('Do you have any Gatorade?) is one more violation of human rights of bourbon drinkers. I can't take any

"But why Canada?" 'Because it's there, right outside our window. For years I've over three watched that big sign spell out 'Home of Canadian Club' letter by letter, in red and white lights that reflect and shimmer on the river and bounce against our window. I think that sign has hypnotized me. I have this great urge to move into the home Canadian Club. Besides, the bridge toll is only 75 cents, and the immigration officers always believe me when I say I'm just going to Canada for dinner and have no intention of defecting."

"Naturally they believe you," the wife said. "United States officials think no one wants to leave this country on purpose. That's why they kept that Russian ballerina in a grounded airplane in New York for three days and made her cross her heart and spit to die before they'd believe she preferred to live in Russia. They were really surprised and let down."

"Maybe they can get a boat person to dance in her place in New York," he said. The husband hasn't defected yet. His wife closed the drapes, and he forgot where he wants to go. He hasn't forgotten why.

Football is back. Correction. It has been back for several weeks on the boob

Forgive me, all you jocks, if all I can feel is mildly discouraged.

Forgive me when I say that professional football and most college football is getting less and less interesting.

I'm discouraged because I read there will be more prime time football, not less, this fall. So what else is new? Each year the networks add a game here or a game there to the schedule. If I read it right some weeks football will be on every night except Tuesday and Wednesday. That's bad news for me. I realize that I'm in a minority. If the Neilsen ratings went down indicating fewer viewers the football exposure would be sliced accordingly. Maybe it's because I'm not really a football fan. I can watch a baseball game of the week between a couple of teams that really don't interest me much and enjoy it providing it's close enough to be a contest. Forget it if one team is ahead by four runs or so. Contrast that with football where every game seems about the same on the pro circuit. There would be a revival here if the Lions were to be in the title race along towards the end of the season. I enjoy watching Michigan-Michigan State go at it if I get the chance. There's an excitement that makes it enjoyable.

Maybe the reason that I enjoy baseball is that it's not over exposed. Baseball is played in the summer and at best you only catch snatches of it on TV.

That leaves you fresh for the play-offs and world series.

Place pro basketball right in there with pro football. All those players with those extraordinary skills should be a delight to watch.

They are when they are trying. But it seems like they play forever and the demands of the game, the travel makes it impossible for them to play the game the way they can night after

Miscellaneous ramblings

By Mike Eliasohn 🏽

"Who's Minding the Mint?" may have been a movie title, but I think it's lso appropriate. Who is minding the mint?

I wonder who it is that makes the big el-floppo decisions, the latest one of which is to come out with a new dollar coin, only slightly Narger than a quarter.

I'm not even sure why it was needed. We seem to thave gotten along fine with-*out it.

A couple of years ago, it was the $2 bill. How many of those have you seen lately? And going back to the 4.960s, there was the Ken-Inedy half dollar. I guess the mint is still making those, -but it's rare I or anyone else ever sees them.

My appeal for suggestions about whether the Chronicle should keep running the names of all the blue ribbon winners from our coverage farea at the county fairs did et some response -- three tters and three phone calls or in-person comments, as I

Cother than our proofreader, not included in the above totals, everyone favored continuing our present pracce, with one slight excepkion.

The one exception, from a 1-H leader, was the suggestion that IF we do make a change, we should list each club and the club members who had entries at the fair. Since not every 4-H'er wins a blue ribbon, even though he or she may work hard on a project, everyone would get their name in the paper.

That is one reason why sose who responded to my query supported continuation of our present policy.

Lots of kids who otherwise wouldn't get their name in the paper get it in (excluding those who don't win blue ribbons). In addition to makg them and their parents happy, as one 4-H'er pointed out, relatives who get the paper also see the names.

The same person pointed out that it gives her (the letter was unsigned but I think it was a she), a chance to see how her friends did, since she doesn't get a chance at the fair to see all their projects.

Also, the 4-H'ers can put the articles with their names in them in their leader books, I was told.

So chances are, we will continue the same policy that we had in the past, listing the blue ribbon win-

Thanks to all who expressed their comments.

Two of the letters we did get on that subject, incidentally, weren't used because they were not signed.

The Chronicle, if for a good reason, will run a letter unsigned, but it must be signed when we get it and should have the address (and obviously a good reason, if the writer doesn't want his or her name used). We reserve the write to edit letters. We only run "thank you" letters of a general nature, for example, thanking the Chamber of Commerce for putting on the July 4th festival.

The Chronicle does not run thank you letters of a specific nature, for instance, "In behalf of the XYZ Club, I would like to thank the ABC Co. for donating the hot dogs for our picnic .

We do like to get letters and they do not have to be on local subjects. If you wish to express your opinion about President Carter, the energy shortage, or whatever, please feel free to.

$6,500 pickup stolen

A pickup truck with the keys left in it, an unlocked bicycle and a money bag containing $100 left in an unlocked car were all stolen in Cass City during the week

As of Tuesday, only th€ bicycle had been recovered. Richard J. Ewald of Care reported to Cass City police at 3:05 a.m. Sunday that his pickup had been stolen. He had parked the 1978 Ford, valued at $6,500, in the General Cable lot on the west side of the building at 2:15 a.m.

Police driving through the lot 15 minutes later didn't see it there.

In investigating the theft, officers did find an old 26-inch wheel bicycle, purple with chrome fenders, lying on the ground close by. They believe the thief possibly. rode in on the bike and drove away in the pickup.

The pickup had an orange roof, cream sides, side exhaust pipes, saddle gas tanks and no tailgate. "Dirty, Mean and Nasty" was inscribed on the rear mud flaps. The keys had been left in the vehicle, hanging from a heater knob.

Mark Guinther of 4445 Oak Street reported to police late Saturday that his $210 Fuji 10-speed bicycle was stolen from behind his house between 9 and 11:15 p.m.

Police later found the bike parked behind a trailer in Walnut Trailer Park while searching for the stolen Ewald pickup.

The four men inside the trailer denied knowing about the bicycle and police didn't have enough evidence to link any of them with the theft. The bike was returned to the

At 6:45 p.m. Sunday, Marguerite Krause of 4011 W. Deckerville Road, Snover, reported to village police that a money bag had been stolen from the car of Marie Snell of Rt. 2, Snover.

The bag, with Kingston State Bank written on it, was taken while the two women were inside the Big D Restaurant at Main and Nestle Street. They were inside for about five minutes.

Most of the contents of the bag belonged to the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints. Inside it was $90 in cash plus $10 inside an envelope, two bank savings books, one belonging to Mrs. Krause and the other to the church; a check book in the name of Mrs. Krause and the church, and two personal checks worth a total of $15.

Patricia McIntosh of 4409 Brooker Street reported to Cass City police at 8:30 a.m. Friday that during the night, some persons took 6-8 watermelons from her garden and smashed them over her yard and a neighbor's.

Some radishes were pulled out and rose bushes broken at a neighbor's on Main Street. Officers said there was evidence the vandals been in some other yards, but the owners had not contacted police.

AROUND THE FARM Corn

Proper harvest and storage of corn silage results in a top quality, high energy forage for cattle and sheep. Corn silage as a roughage, produces more feed energy than any other crop where soil and climate are adapted to its production. Corn silage is an excellent source of energy and is lower in crude protein than alfalfa. However, less grain is required in the animals' diet than if they were fed just haylage.

Harvesting corn at the right stage of maturity can make the difference in the quality and energy potential of the silage. Corn should be harvested at 30 to 34 percent dry matter (DM) at the medium dough stage. Corn harvested at the right stage and chopped fine (38 to 12-inch) will pack and ferment well.

Corn harvested too early will suffer excessive deterioration of protein during fermentation. The silage from immature corn is too low in DM and high in soluble sugars. This permits energy to be lost through seepage when the material is compressed in upright silos. On the other hand, corn that is too mature may be too high in DM, making packing difficult and silage hard to compress.

Corn silage treated with nonprotein nitrogen (NPN), such as ammonia or urea, has increased crude protein content that is well utilized by cattle. Adding 8 to 10 pounds of urea, or 5 to 6 pounds of ammonia to 1 ton of silage increases the protein content (dry basis) from 8 percent to 12-13 percent. Ammonia also inhibits mold and yeast growth.

Proper storage of corn silage is essential for good fermentation and high energy content. Silage needs continuous packing during filling of either bunker or upright silos.

Fill silos as rapidly as possible to retard heating and mold growth. Fill bunkover the entire silo floor. The silage will build up and continually fill and exces- acle of God's grace and sive exposure of the silage to Christian conversion.' the air will be avoided.

It is desirable to cover bunker silos with plastic and weigh it down properly to keep rain out and prevent leaching. The plastic also forms a seal that protects the silage from exposure to the air. Upright silos should be filled with silage along the sides, as well as the center, and finished with a slight crowning at the Feeding corn silage and hay or haylage has been found to be a practical method for most Michigan farmers. The two feeds provide adequate energy, protein and minerals for most ruminants.

Meredith Auten remembers

Clayton MacKenzie was known as the village cut-up. Clarke, his brother, was cashier of the bank. He graduated from high school at 14 years of age. Clayt, as he was called, reported in the barber shop that Mr. Auten asked him to take more interest in the bank, so he said he took $40, which he displayed. They had been $40 short in the cash. When Clarke heard of this, Clayton was promptly discharged.

Shortly before his dismissal, a hypnotist and mind reader had appeared in town and dumbfounded all the natives. He had a man said to be hypnotized in the Hitchcock Building all afternoon with his head on one chair and his feet on anoth-guess the evening performance was marvelous. A number of prominent businessmen were called up on the stage. They assisted one another in securely tying the hypnotist to a chair so that it looked impossible for him to move. Screens were placed around him with a door opening in front. The door was closed and immediately loud noises came from the cabinet. The door was opened and there he sat. The door was closed. More noise.

The door was opened and out stepped the hypnotist. He asked if any man on the stage had a watch whose number he knew. Alex Mac-Kenzie had one. He said he knew the number of the watch. He was told to think real hard.

The hypnotist, who was also a mind reader, with great effort and deep concentration called the numbers off one at a time. He astounded everyone.

I remember my father and mother discussing it at the dinner table. Father commented how much damage the mind reader could do. Mother said how much good he could do. The whole town was agog.

Many years after, Clayton told Clarke he had cut a hole in the stage floor. He had come up and untied the magician; that he had furnished him likewise with the number of his father's Clarke wrote and asked me if I had remembered the performance. I sure did.

Teachers should be able to strike -- sometimes

Michigan also means the annual season for teachers' strikes.

The count varies from day to day, but as of last Friday, 11 school districts were being struck, none of which were in this area.

Although state law prohibits teachers from striking, it hasn't stopped them from doing so, so periodically there are calls for strengthening the laws so that they could not engage in a work stoppage.

Val Clark believes that teachers should be able to strike under certain circumstances

"I think teachers should be allowed to strike . . . only if they have a good reason, not just because they want another dollar." If money is the issue in contract negotiations, she feels they should keep teaching "because the child has got to get an education." Once a settlement is made, it will be retroactive to when the old contract expired, so "they're going to be getting their money any-

If, however, the teachers are striking for purposes of improving education - to

The start of school in protest poor working conditions, lack of materials, etc then she feels a strike is justified. "You can't teach a child if you don't have the materials to do it," Mrs. Clark has about five weeks to go before completing the St. Clair Community College practical nursing program in Bad Axe. She and her husband Robert and family live at 3973 Van Dyke Road, Decker. They have five children: Charles, in the Navy; Robert, starting at Michigan State University this fall; Connie, 12th grade; Philip, 11th grade, and Jodi, third

County cancer unit apparently makes its goal

The American Cancer Society Board met Aug. 29 in the Advertiser meeting room in Caro.

Sandy Gaudreau, crusade chairman, announced that the door-to-door crusade held the previous week in Caro netted $1,413 and she was confident that by Aug. 31 the goal of $42,500 will be reached as she still has money coming from several townships. Calendar and cook book sales also helped and are still available. Any money received after Aug. 31 will go toward the 1980 crusade. Betty Kochalka gave the treasurer's report, which as of that date was $41.680.02 for this year's crusade.

The service report included two new patients added to the list. A gift of three hospital beds and the purchase of an additional wheelchair for loan to cancer patients was reported. Anyone needing assistance may call Mrs.Joe Young at 868-4415.

Ione Perry reported on a delegate meeting she attended in Lapeer.

Plans were made for the 'round up'' meeting with potluck supper Monday Sept. 17. All volunteers are especially invited to attend but anyone is welcome. Bring a dish to pass and your own table service.

A 6:30 social period will precede the 7 p.m. potluck at the Sacred Heart parish hall, W. Frank Street, Caro.

Emphysema may be 'hidden asthma'

By Frank Chappell, American Medical Association

emphysema patients may instead have a newly discovered--and reversible-condition called "hidden asthma," according to the American Lung Association of Michigan. This is the surprising finding of an extensive study of patients at the University of Colorado Medical Center, whose original purpose was

Some people diagnosed as, to evaluate a pilot program of home-based care for emphysema patients. Nearly 20 percent of those diagnosed as suffering from irreversible emphysema responded early in treatment to bronchodilators and corticosteroids.

All patients entered into the study with at least 50 percent loss of lung function. The unexpected, fast response to treatment of some patients prompted closer examination.

The features of these patients were a family history of asthma and obstructive lung disease without a very heavy smoking history," says Thomas L. Petty, M.D., Chief of Pulmonary Disease at the University of Colorado Medical Center.

Unlike emphysema, which is caused chiefly from heavy cigarette smoking, asthma can be triggered by an enormous variety of events. While asthma involves a constriction of the air passages of the lungs, emphysema results in destruction of the air sacs, where oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged. Both involve marked difficulties in breathing.

A spirometry test, which measures the amount of air in exhalation, was invaluable in unmasking hidden asthma patients. Those whose expiratory volume of air was relatively high during the first second showed the greatest improvement during continuing treat-

Using the test, says Dr. Petty, "should and will become a standard tool for general practitioners and internists, not just chest physicians."

A year ago, 20 persons had died in Tuscola county traffic accidents as of the beginning of September.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

At 7:15 p.m. Saturday, according to deputies, Andrew R. VanBlaricum, 30, of Sandusky, was northbound on Crawford Road, south of Deckerville Road, when his car went out of control.

It went into a ditch on the west side of the road and rolled over onto its top.

At 5:40 p.m. Sunday, deputies said, Penny Fader, 18, of 4669 Green Road, Cass City, was southbound on Ringle Road, north of Elmwood Road, when her car crossed the centerline.

She overcorrected and the car went off the west side of the road and rolled over, coming to rest upside down in a bean field.

At 5 p.m. Aug. 28, according to Cass City police, Diane Bresky, 16, of 4320 Oak Street, westbound on Main Street, just past Weavleft turn.

At 7:15 p.m., Aug. 28 according to deputies, Dan

James Ewald of Unionville tried to pass her on the right but found his way blocked by cars parked by the north curb. He then started to steer the other direction and ran into the Bresky car.

ny Lee Steinman, 16, oi Mayville, was northbound on Kingston Road, south of Mushroom Road, when his car struck a deer.

Editor's note: this is one of a series sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce about community boosters who are members of the organization.

When Dr. Edwin C. Fritz founded his dental practice in Cass City in July of 1937 he was only doing what came naturally. After all he is the son of the late Dr. I. A. Fritz who was a dentist in Cass City from 1882 to 1946.

Born and reared in Cass City, Fritz prepared for practice here by working for a year in Saginaw after earning his master's in prosthetic dentistry in 1936 from the University of Mich-

He is a charter member of the Cass City Gavel Club and belongs to the Trinity Methodist church.

There has been a Fritz serving the community for 97 years. Over the years that Edwin Fritz has been serving Cass City there has been tremendous changes in dentistry and all for the good, Fritz believes.

More persons are seeing dentists on a regular basis today than ever before. The result has been that the percentage of persons needing dentures has decreased. There is more concern for the care of teeth today, Fritz believes.

Medical work runs in the family. Mrs. Doris Fritz is an RN and has been active in Hills and Dales General Hospital and in the hospital auxiliary.

The couple has two boys Michael Henry, administrator at Harper Hospital in Detroit, and James E. working on his doctorate at Michigan State.

Half of Michigan Citizens Support Reduction Of Marijuana Penalties.

A survey conducted for the Commission of Criminal Justice has reported half of Michigan's citizens now support reducing the penalties for personal possession of marijuana.

For the first time in three years when the question was asked, 50 percent of those surveyed expressed basic agreement with legislation cutting penalties for marijuana possession.

Meanwhile, even though an increasing majority of citizens believe penalties should be reduced, a large majority (66 percent) believe it should remain against the law.

Also the survey showed that legalizing marijuana use is no more acceptable than legalizing prostitution, with 66 percent also opposing legalization of that games against bigger, nonleague opponents, against Lakers and twice with Ubly. Coach Campbell's biggest problem is filling the big hole left by Laurie Andrakowicz, the team's high rebounder and second high scorer last year, and the The team also has three slightly smaller hole left by Tammy Wissner, the other starter. Also gone from last year's squad is Jan Rapson. With the exception of one senior who hasn't played since the ninth grade, everyone on the team has at least two years' experience. There are five seniors and seven juniors on the team, including six who were on the varsity last year. As of last week, the starting lineup was to be Becky Howard, Julie Andrakowicz. Carol Goslin and Tammy Kain, with the fifth spot still unfilled. Part of Miss Campbell's debate over filling the fifth spot is whether she wants to use Howard as a center or forward on offense.

The coach, in her fifth year at Owen-Gage, is usually cautious about predicting the season outcome, but sees three teams battling for the North Central crown. One is her Bulldogs.

Peck should be the toughest team to beat as this will be the fourth year for the same varsity lineup. Caseville should also be a strong contender.

Port Hope could be a surprise, as it also has the same starting team back from last year.

Junior varsity games start at 6:30, followed by the varsity contest. Miss Campbell also coaches the JVs.

He and all of the other American youngsters went to Labo camp. They were spread among the five Labo camps in the country.

The high or low point at the camp he attended was a 212-hour hike to a waterfall in 100 degree temperatures. It was worth it, Jamie said, "because there was water there.

Partisan politics spelled doom to a proposed weeklong series of meetings designed to rewrite cost premiums and benefit levels of the state's workers' compensation liability program.

By Warren M. Hoyt

No matter how hard both sides try, there are basic differences between labor and business when considering proposed reforms for the compensation

A task force on workers' compensation got off to a fast start in the opening sessions of a week-long series but partisan haggling put a halt to any progress.

The scheduled concentrated hearings were unable to be completed as both sides agreed there was nothing to gain by continuing them at the present rate. They were postponed for at least 30 days to allow both sides to cool.

LABOR WAS SUCCESSful with the adoption of a principle that maximum benefits should be 100 percent of the average weekly wage beginning January, Business opposed the decision, warning that establishing a 100 percent maximum on benefits could increase benefit costs for employers from 18-25 percent. Additionally, they suggested workers' compensation insurance premiums could also increase by as much as 10 percent.

Twenty-one states have already adopted 100 percent of the average wage as the maximum benefits and some states have even higher maximums.

Labor, however getting 100 maximum, wanted to set the maximum of 133 percent of the 1980 average wage by 1982 and at 200 percent by

DURING THE SECOND day of discussions, the group reversed itself and recommended that minimum benefits for disabled workers be abolished.

Business argued for the elimination of minimum benefits, saying it would prevent the occasional situation where a worker gets more under workers compensation than he did while still working. Labor advisors warned, however, that elimination of minimum benefits could also mean workers with debilitating injuries would be left with benefits as low as $10 to $15 per week.

Currently the state requires benefits of two-thirds the average weekly wage for death and total disability.

UPON THE ELIMINAtion of the minimum benefit level, task force chairman David Plawecki (D-Dearborn Heights), who is also chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, said he was afraid the group was falling into a partisan split on the labor issues, but continuing bipartisan support on business issues.

During the third meeting of the group, which was to make recommendations to the Legislature on workers' compensation, partisanship was in the open and the total process was beginning to break down.

The group was beginning to consider inflation protection and coordination of

A stalemate over major issues developed by Thursday and the task force adjourned for 30 days, thus spelling doom for reform for the remainder of the current calendar year.

THE WORKERS' COMpensation question is always listed as a top priority item for every convening Legislature. Additionally, it is always left unresolved when the final pieces fall into place.

Even with the art of compromise, such items as workers' compensation and unemployment compensation cannot be solved when both business and labor feel # so strongly about the issue and are willing to go to the mat for their benefits. In Michigan, where labor is constantly challenging business, it is all that much more important for business to at least hold its ground. For these reasons, workers' compensation and unemployment compensation will continue to be listed as top priority items for each subsequent Legislature with resolution not available in the near future.

Foil theft attempt " Sunday

Would-be thieves were unsuccessful Sunday in an tractor belonging to James Rainey of Farmington.

The caretaker for his property, Jesse Bruce Jr. of 5100 Barrons Road, Deford, told sheriff's deputies Sunday afternoon that he spotted the tractor with attached hog brush in a ditch on the west side of English Road, south of Riley Road.

He then checked the Rainey barn, located about a quarter-mile from his (Bruce's) property and found the hasp pulled away from the door.

From inside the barn, he said, the tractor was driven northeast across a field to the ditch, where it got hung up on the embankment. The person or persons who took the machine then abandoned

The tractor was taken between 9 a.m. and 12:15 p.m., when Bruce discovered it in the ditch.

The incident is still under investigation.

For Lori Ziehm

Year in Brazil 'definitely worth it'

Lori Ziehm was a little apprehensive when she left Aug. 12, 1978 for a year's a stay in Belo Horizonte, Brazil as a Rotary Club ex-

Portuguese. "Usually the exchange student gets a letter from the hosting family that welcomes her to the country," the 17-year-old said. "But I didn't get one and I did not know Portuguese that well, so I was a little frightened on Lori returned from Belo Horizonte, about 250 miles north of Rio De Janeiro, July 18. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ziehm of 6221 Green Road, Gagetown, and will be a senior at Cass City High School this fall.

"The most impressive part of my stay in South America was seeing how and friendly the were," Lori explained. "I hardly knew Portuguese but everyone was willing to help me in any way they could."

Portuguese is a hard language to learn, she noted, and for the first two months she spent much of her time

'crying out of frustration. By the third month, I was beginning to speak Portuguese and by Christmas I was doing quite well in speaking it. Later on I was able to hold a conversation on the telephone, which is very difficult because you can't see the person's mouth when he speaks.'

By February she was able to read and write Portuguese with relative ease. Watching a lot of TV down there helped me to learn the private Catholic institution called Santo Agostinho, she stayed four where months and "loved every minute of it.

"The classes were really hard but it wasn't strict there," Lori said. "Everyone who goes to school wants to study because you have to pay for your elementary and high school education. Col-lege is supposed to be paid by the country.

Students in Brazil go to high school for three years and then spend their fourth year reviewing what they've learned so they can take what could be referred to as an entrance exam for col-lege, called the vestibular.

The test is very hard and from what I found out, not very many pass it so they could go on to college," Lori explained.

Some of the classes Lori took included biology, Portuguese, English, chemistry, history, math, physics, religion and geography.

"Carnaval is a four-day celebration where all of Brazil stops and no one works. It used to be a religious festival that builds up to the start of Lent, but they don't recognize it as that anymore."

Lori said the Brazilians sleep during the first day and then dance in the streets for four consecutive days and evenings. There is much drinking, eating and celebrating during that time along with floats and parades as well.

14-year driving veteran at 28

Aaron Anthes dirt track racing king

Aaron Anthes started racing cars before he was old enough to legally drive on the highway. And now, at 28, the Dodge Road, Gagetown, resident is having his best year yet.

Saturday night at Auto City Speedway, Flint, he won all the races he was in to clinch the season championship there. He topped that off by winning the 50 lap (25 miles) season championship race at the track on Labor Day. It is the high point of a season which began in Florida and will take him and his crew to Ohio before the year member of the team is Fred Fahrner.

Anthes is the first one to point out that he couldn't do

The Gagetown express traces its beginnings back to when he and cousin Bud Anthes started putting cars together as youngsters.

By age 15, he couldn't any longer. He got his parents' written permission and his first race was at the Owendale Speedway. Maurice Winchester and Fred Fahrner -- the latter from Owendale, the others are from Gagetown -- joined the team about four years later and they have been together since.

Anthes began his racing with 1955 and 1957 Buicks. Then came a progression of cars, leading up to a modified class car with a

1929 Ford body and American Motors engine. The team got too good locally. In their last season of racing at the Owendale and Thunder Road (near Cass City) tracks, Anthes won all but three races.

Instead of receiving cheers, he was getting boos from spectators tired of almost always seeing him win. The team decided it was time to move on.

In looking for a new world to conquer, they settled on the Auto City Speedway in Flint because it was the best paying track around and because it was dirt.

Anthes rarely races on paved tracks. "I prefer dirt to asphalt because I was raised around here and I grew up on dirt (tracks)." Both the Owendale and Thunder Road speedways are unpaved.

At Flint, Anthes has raced in the late model super stock class. He started with an American Motors Hornet, switched to an AM Javelin and this year is driving a Chevrolet Camaro.

There isn't much that is "stock" about the cars. About all that is original off his present car is part of the body, mainly the roof and roof pillars, the front part of the frame, and part of the front suspension.

How Anthes got his present car is a story in itself. He had a pretty good season at Auto City in 1977, winning three features in the Javelin, but the next year was a disaster. He dropped out of 10 races because of engine problems.

His one win was the 50-lap (25 mile) feature race of the mid-season championship program, driving a Camaro

The Beaverton resident has a national reputation as a car builder and driver and doesn't let just anyone drive his cars.

Anthes still doesn't know for sure why Howe picked him to drive his car, but can only conclude that having seen him race, the car builder was impressed with his driving.

The confidence paid off with Anthes winning the race by a wide margin. It undoubtedly was the high point of his career, as indicated by the fact that a photograph of him inside the car holding the checkered flag sits on top of his television set.

At the end of the season, Howe had the car for sale. Anthes and his crew could have solved their engine problems, but their car was too heavy and had an outmoded rear suspension, thus a new car was necessary if they were to be competitive in 1979. But after their disastrous season, they couldn't afford a new car. But loyal fans Bill and Carol Leyva of Gagetown could, and bought the Howe car for Anthes to drive.

The Anthes team does all the work on it and the four of them own the two engines they use.

Racing is not a cheap sport, as indicated by the fact their No. 1 engine, built by an Ohio firm, costs $7,600. The highly modified 355 cubic inch Chevy V-8 puts out 676 horsepower.

The Gagetown team debuted their car in Florida at a three-race series in February at a track in the Tampa-St. Petersburg area.

Although most of the drivers were from the Sunshine State, there were others from all over the country. Anthes did exceptionally well, coming in third overall in the standings for the three races. Finishing so high is an indicator of his driving skill, because the southern drivers' cars were several hundred pounds lighter, as they prefer to sacrifice strength and hence safety in favor of performance. In March, the crew journeyed to Knoxville, Tenn., but Anthes couldn't get used to the high banked dirt track car, we should have done and finished out of the better."

money. The season at Auto City started in late May. Prior to a big 7: mile race that is the Labor Day week-end races, despite leading the season point champion standings, winning five feature races, numerous heat races and being fastest qualifier nine times, Anthes feels, "For the caliber of the

After the season ends there in mid-September with going to attract some of the southern drivers, the Gagetown four plan to go to several Ohio tracks and possibly further south.

There are some super stock drivers who race three or four nights a week and Anthes has been tempted to try it full-time but he knows it is an impossibility. There is his wife, Elaine, and daughter, Denise, 8, to support.

Plus, he and cousin Bud make up half of Anthes Brothers house moving firm. (They are the fourth generation in the business. The others now are Albert.

Aaron's father, and Amasa Jr., Bud's father. Bud is Amasa III.) With Aaron and Bud gone, the business c viously couldn't function.

Thus, Anthes describes his racing as "more or less a hobby." And after 14 years of racing, he adds with a smile, "We've always done it and don't know what else we would do on a Saturd; stationed in each area, with the remaining three as back-

A central dispatch station would be set up, probably in or close to Cass City, according to Parsell.

Service would be of two "Clients" of the human service agencies would continue to get rides to and from the programs they attend, for instance, to the CASH workshop in Caro.

The one difference would be that instead of one agency clients, a bus would transport clients from different agencies. The new system should eliminate some present duplication -- two buses going to the same area to pick up persons enrolled in different programs. The agencies, instead of providing their own transportation, would contract with the transportation corporation, using the money previously used to run their own vehicles. The money from that source, according to Parsell, would be used as matching money in order to receive state and federal funds to help finance the service. Secondly, senior citizens needing a ride to the supermarket, doctor, etc., could call the central dispatch and be picked up at their home. They might have to schedule the ride a day in advance. The senior citizens would be charged. Suggested is $1 per passenger, with a small added charge if the destination is in another zone. The transportation corporation will be governed by a board of directors, members of which will likely be appointed by the three county boards of commissioners.

The first step in starting Phase I, Cupla explained, will be to get the human service agencies to agree to pool their vehicles. All were given a presentation of the plan last week.

If they give the go-ahead, there will probably then be a joint meeting of the three county boards of commissioners.

If no trouble is encountered there, service could start within 60-90 days.

PHASE II

Phase II, 1-11/2 years away at the earliest, would be public transportation for anyone who wants to pay for a ride.

Proposed would be bus service over fixed routes connecting main villages and cities in the upper Thumb.

Persons not living close to those routes would call the central dispatch for a bus that would take them from
