Events set for Hospital Week

Hills and Dales General Hospital has planned special events in conjunction with National Hospital Week, which starts Sunday.

Free blood pressure screening will be conducted in the hospital lobby from 9 a.m.-noon Monday through Friday.

Students ages 11-15 who are interested in baby sitting can take a free class in child care. If interested, they should call Jane Mitchell, RN, at the hospital at 872-2121.

First graders from Campbell Elementary School will be touring the hospital in the afternoon on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

"We're America's Health Team," is the theme of National Hospital Week.

"Our 1980 National Hospital Week theme compares the hospital to a well-trained and coordinated sports team," said hospital Administrator Ken E. Jensen.

"We think of the hospital staff as a team where each member contributes his or her own special abilities to achieving the hospital's goal, which is, of course, the highest possible quality of care for our patients. And, in a more general sense, the entire hospital functions as a leading member of the community health team working to build a healthier way of life for everyone."

National Hospital Week is sponsored each year by the American Hospital Association and its approximately 6,000 member hospitals.

Two make dean's list

Two Cass City students have been named to the first semester dean's list at Spring Arbor College, Spring Arbor, Mich.

They are Mary J. Lockwood, 4509 Downing Street, and Wendy L. Ware, 4653 Hospital Drive.

A minimum 3.5 grade point average of a possible 4.0 is required to be named to the dean's list.

New books at the library

AMANDA-MIRANDA, by Richard Peck (fiction). V. Mary Cooke arrives at Whitwell Hall where she is to be servant, she is astonished by her uncanny resemblance to her new mistress, Amanda Whitwell. But she is unnerve when this fiery young woman willfully rechristens her "Miranda" and goes on to decree her duties as a kind double! Only bit by bit does Miranda piece together the reason for Amanda's strange passion -- a passion that goes beyond the magnificent Whitwell estate to a London town house, where a shameful secret lies hidden.

MARY FRAN AND MO, by Maureen Lynch (non-fiction). Now a graduate student in a special education program, the author describes the year she took off from her undergraduate studies to live in Seattle with Mary Fran, her then 22-year-old mentally retarded sister, who was eager to sharpen her skills for living a normal, independent life. While Mo does not gloss over her ambivalent feelings about the project, her love and concern for her sister overshadow her frustrations and doubts in what became ultimately a successful effort. This warm, upbeat personal narrative, in which both young women emerge as real, caring individuals, will certainly encourage and inspire those wanting to help the mentally retarded.

ARABIA: A JOURNEY THROUGH THE LABYRINTH, by Jonathan Raban (non-fiction). Raban winds his way through the intricacies of the land, language, and culture of the Yemenis, Qataris, Saudis, and Egyptians with an open questing spirit. The result is a frank, evocative portrayal of a people that the author had found rudely caricatured in his native England. The British and Arabs encountered on his travels are rounded, intriguing characters, so effectively introduced that the reader will find them readily familiar. A similar emotion is engendered about the cities, deserts, and villages described with crisp, perceptive comments.
