

Two millage proposals on August ballot

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners Tuesday voted to put two millage proposals on the Aug. 5 primary ballot.

By a 4-3 vote, it approved the request of the Tuscola County Commission on Aging to put a .2 mill, four-year proposal for support of senior citizen activities on the ballot.

Commissioner Royce Russell of Elmwood township was among those voting yes.

The second proposal that will go on the ballot will be 1 mill for five years, with the levy, if approved, to appear on tax bills for the first time in December, 1981.

A half-mill will be for local road bridges and village local streets and the other half-mill for county operating expenses.

Commissioners decided to schedule the vote this year as waiting until 1981 would have required a special election. The senior citizen millage, if approved, will go on tax bills this December.

Also on those tax bills, the present 1-mill levy for bridges will appear for the final time.

The county Road Commission notified the county board it will no longer need the full mill to complete the bridge program, that a half-mill will be adequate.

With county finances getting ever tighter, and in severe trouble should federal revenue sharing funds ever be cut off, commissioners decided to seek an additional half-mill for county operations. The county presently gets 4.2 mills.

The two half-mill requests will be lumped together in a single take-it-or-leave-it proposal.

In Huron county, a question was raised over whether the senior citizen millage vote could be held as part of the Aug. 5 primary election as state law says millage votes must take place during general elections.

A check was made with the State Elections Commission prior to the vote in Tuscola and an assurance was received that Aug. 5 was permissible for the millage votes as primary elections.

You can learn if you want, new grads say

(First of two parts)

By James Iseler

You can learn if you want to at Cass City High School. However, most teachers will not put in extra time with students if the kids don't want to be taught.

That is the consensus of a number of Cass City seniors when asked about the validity of a high school education here.

"There are some teachers that make you want to learn, you know what I mean," said Sharon Lowe, a 1980 graduate. "But then there are some that figure if you don't get an 'A' fine, but if not they aren't gonna force it (learning) down your throat."

Asked if perhaps students should be made to work harder in high school, she agreed many students, herself included, could have benefited from academic prodding.

"I wish I would have worked harder. Now I do, but I suppose it's a little late," said Sharon of 4965 N. Germania Road, Snover.

Another student agreed, stating the grading system at school was not overly strenuous.

"I have a 3.7 and I hardly do anything," said Becky Hobart, of 4534 Oak Street. "I have homework, sure, but it's really nothing."

One judge for one county or three for two? Commissioners must decide

An issue thought to have been settled two years ago has reappeared.

The legislature last week approved and the governor signed a package of bills to allow the realignment of several circuit, district and probate courts in the state and authorize additional judgeships.

Included was authority to split the present Tuscola-Lapeer circuit into two separate circuits.

Lapeer county would then have two circuit judges and Tuscola one. Presently, three judges serve the two counties.

The issue first appeared two years ago when legislation was introduced to add a third judge to the then overworked two-judge circuit. The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners fought unsuccessfully to have a new single-judge circuit created here, one reason being so that the county would have its own judge. The two circuit judges then (and now) live in Lapeer county.

That fear was erased, however, when Patrick R. Joslyn, then Tuscola county prosecutor, was elected as the third circuit judge over a Lapeer county opponent. He still lives in Caro.

According to Paul Nagy, chairman of the Tuscola county board, commissioners continued to make their wishes known since then to area legislators in Lansing that they wanted a judge for Tuscola county.

Thus when the judicial package was introduced this year, Sen. Alvin DeGrow, R-Pigeon, inserted an amendment to split Lapeer and Tuscola counties into separate circuits.

The measure passed the Senate but Rep. Larry Burkhalter, D-Lapeer, was successful in getting it defeated in the House of Representatives.

DeGrow's original measure would have given final authority to split the circuit to the Tuscola county board.

A compromise was reached; that the district will be split only if approved by the boards of commissioners of both Lapeer and Tuscola counties. That was the measure that was signed Friday by Gov. Milliken, having been approved the previous day by the legislature.

If the circuit were split, Judge Joslyn would be the judge for Tuscola county. He told the Chronicle, "The question I have in my mind is whether I can handle the docket."

Although reluctant to outright oppose the proposal, he did mention a judicial study done as part of the original debate two years ago showed the caseload in Tuscola required more than one full-time judge while the caseload in Lapeer needs fewer than two judges. "I suspect Lapeer county will come out in much better shape with two full-time judges."

Problems develop in single judge circuits whenever the judge is away or out due to illness in scheduling a visiting judge, he said, pointing out that he will be attending a judge's conference in Reno, Nev., for a month, something that would be hard to do if he were the lone judge.

The other two judges, Norman A. Baguley and Martin E. Clements, both oppose the splitting of the circuit, which was also their position two years ago.

Nagy pointed out that DeGrow polled the Tuscola commissioners to make sure they still supported the split circuit before pushing the legislation through.

Before the board votes on the measure, he said he wanted to talk to all of the judges, prosecutor and lawyers about the effect a lone judge in Tuscola would have.

He did feel there would be some advantages, including the need for only one courtroom instead of the present two.

He hadn't seen the final legislation when contacted Monday by the Chronicle but it was his understanding the county commissioners in the two counties have until June 27 to make a decision.

Tuscola commissioners met Tuesday, but only discussed the proposal informally during lunch, according to Commissioner Royce Russell of Elmwood township.

The feeling was, he said, that their counterparts in Lapeer county will oppose the measure. If so, the three-judge, two-county circuit will remain as is.

Elkland-Novesta United Way has contributed $1,500 to the village park and recreation program, up from $1,000 last year.

The finance committee was given authority to make preliminary application for workers' compensation insurance through the Michigan Municipal League which should save the village 20 percent over its present premium of about $15,000 annually to Auto Owners Insurance.

Progress on a

Council was in word on sewage plant

The Cass City Village Council is going to have to wait a little longer for the new sewage plant to rise and the old grain elevators to fall.

A pregnant secretary is part of the reason for the first delay.

The council was informed Tuesday that all is in readiness for the start of the construction on the wastewater treatment plant expansion project except for the final okay of the construction bid and cost breakdown by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The EPA has given its verbal okay, village President Lambert Althaver reported, but the letter giving the official okay, being prepared at the agency's Chicago office, had to be redone because of mistakes. Then the secretary apparently responsible for typing the letter left on maternity leave.

The village has now been informed if it doesn't receive word by Wednesday, June 4, it should call the EPA in Chicago.

Village superintendent Lou LaPonsie reported a pre-construction meeting with the village engineers and the contractor, H.C. Weber Construction, was held May 20. The contractor said it hopes to have all the concrete work done by December.

Althaver told the council the results of his telephone conversation with James R. Suchodolski, Wickes vice-president for eastern operations, regarding demolition of the firm's old elevators on Vulcan Street.

The council has been after the firm for several months to have the elevators torn down and in March authorized its attorney, Clinton House, to begin condemnation proceedings.

Althaver said his aim was to try to get the structures torn down faster than would take to complete lengthy condemnation proceedings.

According to the village president, Suchodolski first said the hoped for sale of the cleared property to General Telephone had fallen through and that Wickes was turning the property over to a real estate agency for sale, with hope for progress within a month.

Althaver responded that wasn't soon enough. The Wickes executive then contacted his firm's headquarters in California and called the village president back Tuesday to tell him he had received authority to have the demolition bids updated that it obtained several months ago.

Suchodolski then told Althaver he will call back within two weeks to report what progress has been taken.

The village president told council members "I guess I would recommend another 30 days of patience and it will be underway."

He directed the public safety committee to work with attorney House in examining the railroad's proposal.

Stopping at the crossing presently isn't required.

Other items

The council approved changes to two village ordinances, both to take effect June 17.

One puts the village ordinance in accordance with state law by raising the stated allowable drinking age from 18 to 21. The other applies the junk car ordinance to the entire village. The present prohibition on storage of inoperable or partly dismantled motor vehicles applies only to areas zoned residential.

The estimate of Keck Consulting Services, Inc., of East Lansing, of $11,762 for its hydrogeological study of the Cass City landfill, including eight test wells, was approved. Its proposed work plan must be submitted to the state Department of Natural Resources by Sept. 1 and the final study by some time in 1981.

Aim of the state required study is to determine if groundwaters are being polluted from the landfill. The village won't have to pay for the study until 1981.

The swimming pool will be open Saturday and Sunday afternoons, weather permitting, until school is out, when daily hours will commence.

The art and crafts program will start June 11.

Cost of installing a drinking fountain by the softball diamonds proved excessive, almost $1,000, so instead a water faucet will be installed.

Action will commence on changing the present zoning ordinance prohibiting new apartments downtown in buildings that didn't have them when the zoning ordinance went into effect.

The Elkland-Novesta United Way has contributed $1,500 to the village park and recreation program, up from $1,000 last year.

The finance committee was given authority to make preliminary application for workers' compensation insurance through the Michigan Municipal League which should save the village 20 percent over its present premium of about $15,000 annually to Auto Owners Insurance.

One effect of having a fifth policeman on the village force is more parking meter tickets being written. The four-man force wrote 39 overtime parking citations in April, 1979; 152 in April of this year.

THE THREE VOLLEY SALUTE was fired by representatives of the various branches of the Armed Forces at the Memorial Day service at Elkland township cemetery Monday to honor the war dead. (Other pictures, page 15).

Uncle is Las Vegas chef

A gourmet's delight for Todd's graduation

MMMMMM! -- As indicated by the expression on Todd Toner's face, the food his uncle prepared for his Sunday graduation open house was good.

ALMOST TOO GOOD -- This plate of hors d'oeuvres prepared by Jim Reifsnyder looks almost too fancy to eat. The bird is sliced from a single apple. The Las Vegas chef started preparing the food for the Sunday open house on Friday.

There are graduation parties and graduation parties.

Then there was Todd Toner's.

His reception Sunday afternoon was catered by the chef of the Quarterdeck seafood gourmet restaurant at the Mint Hotel in Las Vegas, James Reifsnyder.

Reifsnyder doesn't cater just anyone's graduation, of course. He happens to be Todd's uncle.

Todd, who graduated from Cass City High School last Thursday, is the son of Dan and Ellen Toner, 4117 Doerr Road. Mrs. Toner and Reifsnyder's wife, Marie, are sisters.

It was a special reception for a special graduate. Todd Toner is autistic, a developmental disability, exact cause unknown, which occurs in five of every 10,000 births.

Autistic children can have various behavioral difficulties and most spend their lives in institutions. Todd is the first person with autism to graduate from a Tuscola county high school.

He will now be taking additional training at Caro Area Services for the Handicapped, with the eventual aim of being a small engine or electronics repairman.

HIS AUNT AND UNCLE had been planning to come to his graduation for a couple of years as part of a vacation. It was only when Mrs. Toner started asking her brother-in-law for suggestions on what to serve at Todd's reception that he decided he would do the preparation.

It was quite a smorgasbord that greeted the approximately 75 guests who came to the Toner home during the four-hour open house.

There were all kinds of hors d'oeuvres, baked ham, chicken, seafood, salad molds, and desserts, all suitably and beautifully decorated.

Reifsnyder, 54, has been in the restaurant business since he was 14, having started as a dishwasher.

After World War II, he was associated with members of his family in a restaurant in his native Pennsylvania as a cook.

He then was employed for several years as night chef and manager of two inns in Ephrata, Penn., then as executive chef and purchasing agent for the American Legion hall in that community.

He got out of the restaurant business and went to work for Capital Airlines (later merged with United) as a cargo sales manager. He was eventually transferred to Detroit, where he met his wife, who also worked for Capital. They have been married 18 years.

He got back in the restaurant business as executive chef at the Coldwater (Mich.) Inn.

IT WAS 14 YEARS AGO that he, his wife and family moved to Las Vegas, where his mother and two sisters already lived.

The Reifsnyders have two children, Charles, 17, and Lisa, 15. The family lives in Henderson, 13 miles from Las Vegas, but close to Lake Meade, where the chef can enjoy his fishing hobby. (He also makes custom fishing rods).

His first job in Las Vegas was as saucier (in charge of all sauce work and all sautéed foods) at the Golden Nugget.

After two years there, he switched to a small club as executive chef and purchasing agent.

He was there four years, during which time he was accepted into the Fraternity of Executive Chefs of Nevada, which is affiliated with the American Culinary Federation.

Through the ACF, he is now a certified chef, which requires years of experience, outstanding qualifications and background and a careful checking of those credentials before being accepted.

Following the club job, he was employed as a sous chef at the mammoth MGM

Grand Hotel. A sous chef has complete charge of a shift at any one of the restaurants or other food facilities. The MGM has six restaurants, plus employees' cafeteria (for 10,000 -- ten thousand -- employees), commissary for banquets and private parties and room service.

He was there four years as a floating sous chef, working wherever he was needed.

FOR THE PAST COUPLE of years, he has been specially room chef of the Quarterdeck room seafood gourmet room in the Mint Hotel, one of four restaurants there.

He has complete charge of the restaurant and staff of 18 (cooks, waiters, etc.). "I run this room just like it is my own personal restaurant," he explained. "The executive chef checks with me once a day and that's it."

The room has a sailing ship decor and eating there, according to Mrs. Reifsnyder, is a "delightful dining experience."

Dining is by reservation only. The room seats 63 persons and is only open from 5:30 p.m.-12:30 a.m.

It is not a place where one goes for a quick meal. Diners are there a minimum of two hours and can be there as long as four hours.

A full six or seven course dinner, with the most expensive item on the menu (lobster) and appropriate wines can set a couple back $150.

The cheapest two persons can eat there is a total of about $50.

When Reifsnyder isn't working, he shares his cooking duties at home with his wife and children.

Marie Reifsnyder is a registered nurse and nursing supervisor at Valley Institute of Psychiatry. Son Charles is following in his father's footsteps and is working as a chef's apprentice at the Mint.

What does the chef of what is considered the finest seafood restaurant in the Las Vegas area like to eat at home?

Ham and eggs or hamburgers are just fine with him.

In fact, Reifsnyder has no qualms about taking the family to McDonald's to eat.

"What's wrong with that?," he asks.

A CHEF'S TOUCH -- Food must not only taste good, it must look good. Making sure everything is arranged just right is Jim Reifsnyder, CWC (certified working chef.) The prepared food covered two picnic tables.

Scouts and folks watch U.S. Army

More than 500 Scouts, Cubs, Webelos, parents and friends from all over the Thumb area gathered at Camp Pine Acres near Caro Saturday, May 17, for the 1980 Scout-O-Rama.

The U.S. Army put on demonstrations in first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, drilling, as well as a special feature of the "slide for life" by the pathfinders of the 101st Airborne.

Cubs, Scouts, parents alike gathered as an airplane (sponsored by the Tuscola County Air-Travelers - T-Cats) dropped over 1,000 table tennis balls. The balls, donated by the "Whoopee Bowl" in Unionville, contained special numbered balls and were exchanged for gifts from the Army, Corbishley's in Bad Axe, and the Whoopee Bowl.

Winners of the week-end competition among Scout Troops for best campsite was Troop 554 of Sebewiang.

The Webelos also competed in Webelo-ree Testing. The first annual Thumb District Pinewood Derby took place with the Cub Scouts racing in age groups.

Because of rain, the Saturday night closing was around an indoor campfire. Everyone sang "Happy Birthday" to the Cub Scouts on their 50th anniversary and to the Scouts on their 70th anniversary.

Scouts to hold model car derby

The Deford Cub Scout Troop 3593 will sponsor its third annual Pinewood Derby race Sunday, June 1. It will be at the Deford United Methodist church. In case of rain, the race will be in the Deford School gym.

Registration begins at 1 p.m. and the race will start at 1:30 p.m.

Twelve trophies will be awarded. The public is invited.

Sloppy cycling

By Mike Eliasohn

I like to think of myself as being rational, but if you would like to argue that getting up at 4 on a Saturday morning in order to drive two hours to ride my bicycle 40 miles in the rain is irrational, I won't disagree.

immodestly admit, I loved every minute of it.

(I will be doing an article about my bike -- I always wanted to interview myself -- once I finally get all the bugs out. It might be winter by then.)

That is what I did May 17, the date of the annual Detroit News Wolverine 200 Bicycle Marathon on Belle Isle in Detroit. I would even do it again.

Everything was perfect that Saturday except for the weather. While on my first five-mile lap it started raining and it didn't stop.

As a bicycle enthusiast, that is the one event in Michigan on my "don't miss" list and the one I can justify using gasoline to drive to.

Bicycles are not at their best in the rain. They don't stop good and without the proper raingear, which most cyclists don't have, the rider gets very wet.

The unofficial count was that 4,500 cyclists started the event, so it is my one chance each year to mingle with lots of people with a common interest. In terms of numbers, it is the largest bicycle event in the state.

I got very wet, as did my bicycle. I was, of course, more concerned about my bike than about me.

Driving to Detroit via M-53 was interesting. There isn't much traffic at the hour I drove there, but I could have safely assumed that without getting out of bed.

I slogged on for 40 miles, which took me about 5 1/2 hours, record time for slowness. The farthest I have ever ridden in a day, done at Belle Isle a few years ago in dry weather, is 60 miles, which to many cyclists is a short excursion.

Almont is a truly beautiful community, at least from what can be seen from M-53. Wall-to-wall trees, beautifully maintained old homes and no franchise hamburger stands.

The record at Belle Isle for the 24 hours of the event is more than 400 miles. Because of poor weather, the farthest distance recorded this year was 235 miles.

Jane Rabideau gets degree from Aquinas

Jane Rabideau, of Gagetown, received her bachelor of arts degree from Aquinas College in Grand Rapids during commencement exercises May 10.

Also saw Michigan's hope and despair. I drove past the missile plant in Sterling Heights, which is to be converted into a Volkswagen plant employing 4,000. Just south of the bridge to Belle Isle is the Uniroyal tire plant, to be closed permanently in July resulting in the loss of 1,700 jobs.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rabideau, 2125 Hobart Road, Gagetown.

At last year's marathon, I rode for a while alongside a laid-off Chrysler Corp. worker, who was white. This year I rode for a while alongside a laid-off Detroit school security guard, who was black.

Miss Rabideau is presently living in Grand Rapids but her mother said she is enrolled in the graduate studies program of Michigan State University and will begin classes next year.

This year's event was a very special one for me because for more than a year-and-a-half, I have been building a bicycle, starting from scratch, so Belle Isle marked its debut in the cycling bigtime.

Having returned in January from France where she studied for one semester, she plans to pursue a career in psychology. The French studies program was made available through Aquinas College.

It is not a normal bike. The pedals are in front of the rider, instead of underneath, and the seating position is lower than on a regular machine. Thus I attracted lots of attention and must SENIOR SWING-OUT -- Cass City High School seniors finally got to "swing out" last Thursday as they paraded through town in full graduation dress, led by the high school band. High School Principal Russ Richards said the event ran smoothly with the lighting of a smoke bomb at the end being the only shenanigans. He said he thought the tradition would continue next year but was not certain. The event was originally scheduled Sunday, May 18, but was postponed due to rain.

Pair charged with drunk driving in area accidents

Two persons were arrested by sheriff's deputies on charges of driving under the influence of liquor following accidents last Thursday.

At 5:10 p.m. in Gagetown, they reported, Donald J. Twomey, 32, of 4679 South Street, was backing from the alley by Mr. Kelly's Market on Lincoln Street and backed his pickup into the trailer of a beer distributor's truck parked in front.

her car, Ryan Skinner, 4, of Linden Street, Kingston, was thrown forward, resulting in a bruised head. He did not require medical treatment.

Both Twomey and Keys were taken to the county jail and later released after posting $100 bond. Arraignment for both in district court is scheduled June 2.

THREE INJURED

Three Ugly teenagers were taken to Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, after a 2:50 a.m. accident Saturday.

The driver, Francis A. Sweeney, 19, told Huron county deputies he was westbound on Wadsworth Road, east of Nugent Road, when he turned to miss a deer in the road.

His car went off the south side of the road, traveled 296 feet and came to a halt in a ditch.

Sweeney was released from the hospital Sunday. His two passengers, Robert W. Talaski, 17, and Andrew J. Sweeney, 16, were both treated and released.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Tuscola county deputies reported that at 1 a.m. May the car in the rear. The accident occurred May 20 at 9:40 p.m.

No injuries were reported when a bicycle ridden by Patricia L. McDonald, 16, of 6167 Main Street, was struck by a car driven by Esther M. Buehrly, of 6415 Garfield Avenue.

The Buehrly auto was southbound on N. Seeger Street, slowing for the red light, and hit the bicyclist as she was crossing the street in the crosswalk on the "walk" light.

The accident occurred at 7:20 p.m. last Thursday.

CAR-DEER

The car of Richard N. Jones, 39, of 6340 Shabbona Road, Decker, struck a deer when he was westbound on Deckerville Road at the Hurds Corner Road intersection.

The collision occurred at 5:15 a.m. Saturday, according to the sheriff's department.

Annette M. Robinson, 16, of 6778 Third Street, Cass City, hit a deer when it ran in front of her car. Miss Robinson was eastbound on Schwegler Road at the Milligan Road intersection. The accident took place at 5:26 p.m. Monday, deputies said.

Bruce L. LeValley, 29, of 4225 Sherman Street, collided with a deer Sunday as he was heading east on M-81, east of Crawford Road. Cass City police investigated.

Plans set for foster care month

Governor Milliken has again declared May as Adult Foster Care Month in Michigan. Activities planned in Tuscola county will be an open house at the VanWinkle Home, a foster care facility, 1710 W. Caro Road, (M-81) this Thursday from noon-4 p.m.

The providers and residents will hold the annual adult foster care picnic June 7 at Indianfields Township Park from noon-4 p.m.

Licensed adult foster care homes provide a supportive 24-hour residential environment. Residents are persons 18 years of age and older who due to age, physical or mental handicap are unable to maintain themselves independently, but do not require nursing care.

Tuscola county has 138 residents living in 28 foster care homes. These adults may need supervision, protection, training or assistance as they learn to care for themselves.

Many can benefit from community involvements by participating in various social, educational, and recreational activities. Many can learn to develop new hobbies and be employed in sheltered work settings. Helping them along the way are adult foster care providers, Department of Social Services workers, and other public and private agencies.

With the support of contributions of prizes and refreshments from Caro merchants, the annual picnic has been an event residents look forward to each year. All foster care providers and residents are invited to attend the picnic again this year.

Anyone who has an interest in becoming an adult foster care provider may call one of the adult services workers at the Tuscola County Department of Social Services, 1900 W. Caro Road, telephone 673-4144.

Revenge may give satisfaction, but try and collect on it.

Sales, earnings up at Walbro

Walbro Corp. had 1979 earnings of $1.4 million or $1.84 a share, up from $1.3 million, or $1.68 a share for 1978, Walter E. Walpole, chairman and chief executive officer, reported at the company's recent annual meeting in Cass City.

A 23 percent increase in sales was due in part to price increases, while strikes at Walbro's Auburn Diecast Group and at other diecasting suppliers hampered U.S. operations for the international manufacturer.

Lambert E. Althaver, president and chief operating officer, reported a first quarter sales increase of 6 percent, with reduced earnings due to increased energy and material costs.

He also predicted substantial reductions in sales and earnings for the second quarter because of the general economic situation and the seasonal sales pattern of Walbro's Carburetor Group.

Optimistic forecasts for 1980 were presented by Victor M. Guernsey, senior vice-president of the Automotive Products Group; Robert H. Walpole, senior vice-president of the Carburetor Group; Garry Hoffman, general manager of the Plastics Group, and Howard Johnson, general manager of the Auburn Diecast Group.

Immunization, family planning clinics set

The Tuscola County Health Department will conduct its monthly immunization clinics Thursdays, June 5, 12, 19 and 26 at its office on M-81, west of Caro.

The first clinic will run from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-7:30 p.m. The rest have the same morning hours. Afternoon hours are 1:30-3:30. The clinics are free.

The family planning clinic will be Monday, June 2, from 1-4 p.m.

Equal Rights Amendment should be voted down

With the issue of equal rights for women again raising its head, this time a vote on the Equal Rights Amendment by the Illinois legislature, Jane Raatz of 4694 State Street, Gageton, has some very definite feelings. And those sentiments are very negative toward the ERA movement.

"They always want the good things in the ERA without looking at the whole thing," Mrs. Raatz said. She feels there is very little good about equal rights for women. Aside from the fact women would be subject to the draft along with men and possibly have to pay military, she said the ERA and the women's movement takes jobs that rightfully belong to men.

"After all, they (men) are supposed to be the breadwinners of a family. You don't need to see a woman on a bulldozer, or a train."

Additionally, it adds to the destruction of the family as unit, she claimed.

"If more women stayed home and were mothers like they ought to be, there would be less juvenile delinquents. Kids would be able to come home to a hot meal."

Mrs. Raatz said that if a woman must support the family because her husband has died, then she believes it is alright for them to seek a job but not otherwise. She does agree that women should receive equal pay for equal work. But she claims women rarely do an equal amount of work as a man at the same job.

"They're always complaining that they can't lift something. It's too heavy. Well, I say they should do the same work as a man if they want to be paid like one."

HEALTH TIPS

Summer can be harmful to health

By Frank Chappell
American Medical Association

Winter is the favorite time for colds and flu and sneezes, but there are some health and accident hazards that do their worst in hot weather.

Sun strokes and heat strokes are more likely to occur in July and August than in January.

Too much exposure and too much exercise in hot sun may produce sun stroke. Prolonged excessive heat, either in or out of doors, can cause heat stroke. The symptoms are similar and in either case it is important to keep the victim cool and call a physician at once.

Sunburn has hospitalized many a vacationer, the American Medical Association reminds.

Everyone should know that gradual exposure to the sun, beginning with a few minutes a day, is the recommended course. But many of us forget to watch the clock and take precautions against sunburn in the excitement of the first day at camp or at the seashore.

Swimming is fine exercise and also is good for cooling off on a hot day. Those with sinus or ear troubles should be careful about swimming.

Swimmers should make certain that the water is safe from pollution. A clear mountain stream may look beautiful, and also be loaded with germs. Campers can disinfect water by boiling or by commercial tablets.

If there are horses or cows around, there is likely to be tetanus. Tetanus, or lock-jaw, is very serious. It can be prevented by injections of tetanus toxoid. If your family hasn't had tetanus boosters recently, get your shots before going to the country.

Flies, roaches, mosquitoes and ticks are troublesome in hot months. Insecticides and screens usually can keep them under control. In tick country it is essential to make a close examination after disrobing to remove all ticks.

for the program and business meeting.

The hour preceding this is a get-acquainted period when persons selling, building, or promoting alternate energy systems or devices will have an opportunity to meet the public.

Paul Bondarenko of Akron, agent for LPC Inc. of Richland, Minn., makers of an innovative solar panel for space heating, will explain the system. The possibility of sponsoring an alternate energy fair will be discussed.

The public is invited. Contact either Louis Severance, Akron, telephone 691-5484 or Randy Burns, Caro, 673-7201, if more information is desired.

Never too old to learn — Lillian Otulakowski, 82, goes to school

One is never too old to learn. Just ask Lillian Otulakowski, age 82. Thursday evenings she can be found in Mark Witezak's Polish Language and Culture class at Cass City High School.

The class, sponsored by the Cass City Community Education Department and Saginaw Valley State College's Institute of Polish Studies ran for eight weeks starting Feb. 7 and was renewed for a second eight weeks, starting April 24.

Admittedly, Mrs. Otulakowski isn't learning a lot in the class, because she already knows a lot. She was born in Poland and still speaks, reads and writes Polish fluently. "I just like to go back and learn a little bit more," she said.

The class marks the first time she has been in a schoolroom since she left her native Poland in December, 1912, when she was 14, and came to Detroit.

Her parents had preceded her, leaving her and her two brothers with their grandparents. After their father died, their mother had them come live with her.

When her parents left Poland, she was only four or five. When she and her brothers, who were younger, arrived in Detroit on the train from New York, they only had a photograph with which to identify their mother, who met them. She, in turn, did not know what her children looked like.

Mrs. Otulakowski's two brothers and one of two sisters born to her parents here before their other children arrived live in Detroit. The other sister is deceased.

MRS. OTULAKOWSKI, whose maiden name was Gorecki, was almost 17 when she was married for the first time. Her husband was killed four years later in an automobile accident.

By then, she was the mother of two children, Stella Leszczynski, who lives in Detroit, and Leo Leszczynski, of Sterling Heights.

During this period, she worked in a cigar factory and later as a parts press operator in an auto body plant.

In 1926, she married William Otulakowski, a widower with two children, one of whom is living, in Detroit. They had five children together, Richard, now living in Detroit, Eugene, Cass city, and Stanley, St. Clair Shores, and two daughters, Pat (Mrs. Joe) Walsh, Uby, and Lillian (Mrs. Evans) Gibbard, Cass City. Mrs. Otulakowski also has 33 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

She and her late husband, also born in Poland, moved here from Detroit in 1944, settling on a farm south of Cass City. He had grown up on a farm in Poland and her father had farmed and operated a water-powered grain mill. William Otulakowski died in 1969," she explained.

She has never been able to fulfill one dream of hers, to go back to her native country for a visit. She does Polish class at the high school and persuaded her mother to also take it. Mrs. Otulakowski points out with pride that all of her children have at least some knowledge of Polish, although most can only read it.

Although instructor Witezak spent the first 12 years of his life in Poland, occasionally Mrs. Otulakowski lends him an assist. "I'm that old, but I still remember from my younger years and everything," she explained.

IT WAS HER DAUGHTER, Lillian Gibbard, who had the idea to take the correspond occasionally with cousins who still live there and reads newspapers and other materials printed in Polish.

If she did go back to Poland, she doubts that she would recognize anything. She also believes that the local or regional accents that existed there when she grew up have disappeared.

She is, incidentally, especially proud of one Pole. A photograph of Pope John Paul II hangs in her kitchen.

As for whether she might take another class once the Polish class is finished, she replied, "If my daughter will, maybe I will. I really enjoy it."

'Foreigners' in Polish class

Who takes a class in Polish language and culture? Perhaps surprisingly, the majority are not of Polish descent.

According to class instructor, Mark Witezak, about 40 percent of those enrolled are of Polish descent.

The first 8-week session, which began Feb. 7, had 40 students. The second 8-week session, which started April 24, had a little less than half that number.

Those attending the first time came from Cass City, Uby, Harbor Beach, Port Austin, Bad Axe, Elkton, Caro, Fairgrove, Decker, Kinde, Sebawaing, Deford and Oak Beach.

As for why they took the class, the reasons varied. One consideration of students who are of Polish descent, of course, was learning something about their heritage.

One first-session student has already gone on a trip to Poland. Others were planning visits, including some as part of a church mission group.

A nurse employed at a nursing home wanted to be able to converse with elderly residents who only speak Polish. A doctor wanted to be able to talk to his Polish-speaking patients.

Witezak, a special education instructor in the Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port Schools, immigrated to this country from Poland at age 12. He still has a brother and relatives living there.

The class is sponsored by the Cass City Community Education Department and Saginaw Valley State College Institute of Polish Studies.

Local business club receives money gift

Twenty-four members of the Cass City Business and Professional Women's Club and two guests attended the May 21 meeting. Frances Kloc is a new member.

During the business meeting, President Mable Wright reported on the state convention in Lansing. Announcement was made of the gift of money and the presentation of a certificate to the club from the state and national organizations, recognizing the local club as sponsors of the new Bay area club.

"Thank you" notes were read from Tammie McKee, Kelley Hall and Anna Osenotki for the scholarships awarded by the club.

Nina Davis reported on the bike-a-thon to raise money for St. Jude's Hospital, to which the local club had made a contribution.

Verna Mae MacIae was in charge of installation of officers for the coming year. Antoinette Stachura will be the new president.

The June meeting will feature a potluck meal.

POLISH STUDIES -- The Polish Language and Culture class Lillian Otulakowski (left) is taking is the first subject she has studied in school since leaving Poland in 1912. Next to her is her daughter, Lillian Gibbard. At right is Frances Kloc.

Place Hagood on probation

James Hagood was sentenced Tuesday for malicious destruction of property under $100, in connection with an attempted break-in.

160 attend ladies' banquet

One hundred and sixty attended the mother-daughter banquet Friday evening in the fellowship hall at the Novesta Church of Christ. The meal was served by the men of the church.

The theme of the program was "A Garden of Memories."

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. Vern Lockard. The tribute to mothers was given by Suzanne Little and the tribute to daughters by her mother, Mrs. Harold Little.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Jane Henderson of Kalkaska.

April 11 at Veronica's Restaurant, Cass City.

Hagood, 21, of 5163 Lakeside Drive, Cass City, pleaded guilty in district court May 9 to the charge, in a plea bargain agreement with the prosecution. He was originally charged with attempted breaking and entering.

District Judge Richard F. Kern Monday placed the defendant on probation, assessed $100 costs and ordered him to pay $52 restitution.

If Hagood complies with all provisions of his sentence and probation, the charge against him may be dismissed in a year.

He was arrested by village police early April 11 after an officer discovered four windows at the restaurant had been broken.

By the time some folks get ready to work, it's too late.

That is Cass City's vocational education program.

Ed Zimba, of Mushroom Road, Deford, said he is able to apply knowledge learned in vocational agriculture classes to everyday situations. Ed works with his father and brother on a family dairy farm.

Although many elements of the classes were repeats of what he had already gained through on-the-job experience, there was much

Pastor tells it from the church top

Not all ministers would climb on top of their churches on a windy Sunday evening but if it brings more people to his church, Rev. John Lange feels it is worth it.

The pastor climbed to the top of the Novesta Baptist church Sunday at 7:30 p.m., fulfilling a promise he made to church members that if they reached their goal of a 125-person congregation, he would preach from the roof.

The goal was exceeded by 18 people at a regular Sunday service, he said.

At the rooftop sermon, 75 people turned out to hear Rev. Lange talk about a watcher for King David who climbed to the roof to watch for a runner coming with a vital message.

The sermon was part of a program known as "Building a Wall" in which a two-by-four inch block was presented for each person attending the church during each week of the campaign. A visitor was worth three blocks and each Sunday school class had a goal which, if met, was good for five blocks.

In the end the five-foot long wall got so high it was in danger of falling over, Rev. Lange said. "We couldn't pile last Sunday's blocks it was so tall."

Increasing attendance at the church has been a goal of his since he came there two years ago, Rev. Lange said.

Attendance has doubled each year since. "That's quite a growth for a small country church like this," Rev. Lange estimated more people would have shown up at the sermon except the holiday week end occupied some members' time.

He originally planned to scale the roof the week before but rain cancelled the service.

to be learned in four years of vocational agriculture at Cass City, Ed said.

A member of the Future Farmers of America, Ed said club projects such as dairy judging at Michigan State University also gave him valuable knowledge.

Other areas were helpful also, although he admits he did not work as hard as he could have in some of his other classes.

English holds no special interest for him, but government and current affairs classes help him keep up with events, Ed said.

"I'll hear something on the radio and be able to follow it fairly well," he said.

Aside from classes taken in school, Ed and classmates of his, are able to get credit and practical experience at the same time.

A co-op program set up between the school and area businesses allows some students to get valuable job experience before they graduate.

Experience in the job market is invaluable once graduation rolls around, if one chooses not to go to college, Sharon agreed.

"I'm glad I got out last year and found a job. I think a lot of kids are gonna be surprised," she said.

Although they won't know until they are part of that "real world" how well high school has prepared them, those interviewed seemed to feel they were ready.

Next week: How some graduates of recent years now feel about the education they received.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICE -- Delivering the message at the service at the Elkland Township cemetery Monday was Rev. P. Thomas Wachterhauser of Trinity United Methodist church, who stressed condemnation of war, but that those who died in wars protecting our country did not die in vain. Master of ceremonies was Jack Esau. The Cass City High School band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

GOING FOR A RIDE -- On the Cass City Preschool Nursery float, there were lots of children -- and adults -- looking at the spectators looking at them.

Diesel gas tax to aid truck stop operators

The per gallon tax on diesel fuel has been increased by an act of the legislature, coupled with a permit system for truckers to qualify for a six-cent per gallon discount on the new 11-cent per gallon tax.

The plan is part of a program designed to aid truck stop operators, especially those near state borders, who have been suffering from lost sales as truckers have not been purchasing fuel in the state due to Michigan's higher taxes.

The tax was increased from 7 to 9 cents per gallon in 1978 as part of the revenue package of the mass transportation plan. That per gallon tax, coupled with Michigan's sales tax on diesel fuel, has cost truck stop operators much business.

The recently approved compromise package has been in the works since the enactment of the transportation package in 1978.

The package further requires out-of-state truckers to either purchase fuel in the state or pay a tax equivalent to the number of miles driven within the state.

Commercial trucking companies wanting to qualify for the six-cent per gallon discount on the diesel fuel tax, would be required to purchase a qualifying permit at a cost of $92 for each vehicle.

With the sticker, the discount would be given at the pump by the truck stop operator.

The $92 permit fee would make up much of the lost revenue given as a discount plus aid in covering the cost of administering the program.

The other lost revenues are expected to be picked up by increased sales resulting from truckers finding Michigan per gallon costs competitive with other bordering states.

DOING THEIR FLING -- Except when this photo was taken, the many baton twirlers in the parade weren't flinging or twirling their batons. They still have lots of years to learn the more spectacular aspects of baton twirling.

Traveling with kids

If you long for a transatlantic trip, don't let a tyke tie you down -- take her along!

Children are often surprisingly good and good-tempered travelers. If you want to really experience the surprises and delights a foreign country is, nothing beats seeing it through the naive eyes of a child!

Another delightful thing about traveling with a child is that she will attract the winks, then the smiles, and soon the conversation of even the most reserved adults--and often help open up hearts and homes to you!

To help make your trip with your youngster a real success, leave little to chance. A tour will eliminate many of the frustrations and snafus that can make traveling with children trying.

Choose places to visit that have intrinsic interest not only for the child but for you as well!

MEMORIAL DAY PARADE -- There were lots of children -- and adults -- watching the parade down Main Street in Cass City Monday.

Public service to be part of probation term

Probationers could be required to perform community service or pay restitution as part of their probation under legislation recently approved by the Michigan House of Representatives.

The bill establishes the options a sentencing judge has when ordering the conditions of a probationer's release.

Along with community service and restitution, a probationer can also be ordered to pay fines, pay prosecution costs, be imprisoned for no more than six months or perform other legal functions.

Current law allows a judge to order restitution, but critics said the law was unclear on the conditions that could be imposed.

The bill would also allow a judge to order immediate restitution, or payments in specific installments.

Restitution cannot be ordered, however, unless the probationer actually can make the payments.

Most worry is self-inflicted -- many people become victims of their own impatience.

Bay City Towing made it to the championship game of the three-day tournament Sunday evening with a 4-0 record while the Misty bar went 3-1.

The Cozy Corner Saloon, from Flint, finished third and last year's winners, Raymond's Sports Center, of Saginaw, came in fourth.

Trophies were awarded to Tom Armstrong, Bay City Towing, for most valuable player and Pat Dunkel, Bay City Towing, for most valuable pitcher.

Other teams competing in the tournament, held at the Cass City Recreation Park were: Tri-County Sports, Reese; Eddie's Party Shop, Flint; Pee Wee's Barbecue, Flint; Severance Tool, Saginaw; The Station, Cass City, and Munger Merchants.

Girls still alive in race for 2 softball crowns

Cass City High School's softball team is still alive and now ranks as a bona fide contender for a share of the Thumb B Conference title and the district toga in the state tournament.

The Hawks trail North Branch in the league competition but are all even in the important loss column. If the team wins its make up games it will end the year as co-champions with the Broncos.

Both the Hawks and the Broncos had a chance to win it all in a double header last Wednesday at North Branch.

The two teams split. North Branch won the opener, 9-2, and the Hawks took the nightcap, 5-2.

The Hawks then played a district contest at Brown City and moved into the final rounds of the districts with an easy 16-6 decision.

Now Cass City plays Mayville Friday at Cass City Recreation Park. In the other bracket USA will meet the Lakers with the winners meeting for the title at 5 p.m.

The Hawks made this easy for Tammie Root with a 15-hit attack that started with a five-run, five-out splurge in the first inning and went on from there. Vickie Pobanz lashed off three hits while five other Hawks collected two each.

While Cass City had trouble generating an attack against Brown City, they were different in the open against North Branch.

Chris Braidwood, the winning pitcher, gave up 8 hits and walked 8 but was tough, tough in the clutch. Shirley Fleming walked five hits and walked seven and the Broncos made their hits count in the game, 9-2.

The Hawks turned in tables on North Branch in the second game to keep their title hopes alive. Tammie Root allowed six hits and walked five but closed the door when it counted in the 5-2 win.

It was all tied after ten innings, 2-2. The Hawks scored once in the fifth and added two more big counts in the top of the sixth (full inning to ice the decision).

Libby Hartel rapped off two hits and the big blow in the game was a circuit clop by Pobanz who was credited with three runs batted in.

Beth Sieradzki pitched with a double in two hits while Beabe McLemore rapped a triple. Sue Nolleback was two for two.

North Branch.

The important rainout game against Bad Axe will be played June 2 at 4:30 p.m.

The season for the Owen-Gage baseball squad came to an end Friday when it dropped a 4-3 decision in nine innings in the pre-district game at Carsonville-Port Sanilac.

The Tigers now advance to the districts this Friday at Owendale.

The Bulldogs led 3-1 at the bottom of the seventh inning, which would have normally been the final one. The Tigers had two runners on base, two outs and pitcher Pete Klemkowsky had two strikes against Jim Olesnavage. Olesnavage then banged out a single to drive in the two runners to send the game into extra innings. In the ninth, with the score still 3-3, Tiger Joe Prusik got on base due to an Owen-Gage error. He then stole second and a wild throw allowed him to advance to third.

Klemkowsky then walked the next batter intentionally, in order to get to Bill Thomas, normally a weak hitter. He got a single when it counted, however, to drive in the winning run.

The Carsonville effort was aided by the strong performance of Dave Regnier, the winning pitcher, who struck out 17, walked four and gave up six hits.

Wednesday, the Tigers will win the league title with an 11-3 mark.

SOFTBALL

The Bulldog softball squad lost its first game of the season May 20 when it split at home against non-league Lakers.

Owen-Gage lost the opener, 5-3, but recovered in the nightcap, 7-5. The loss gives coach Judy Campbell's squad a final regular season mark of 15-1 (14-0 in the North Central D League).

Cindy Dubs was the winning pitcher in the first game, surrendering six hits and striking out three. No walks were issued.

Losing pitcher Dana Laurie walked six, struck out three and issued five hits.

Deb Gettel hit two singles for the Bulldogs.

Tammy Kain was the winning hurler in the 7-5 nightcap, striking out four and issuing four hits and eight walks.

Dubs was the losing pitcher this time, surrendering eight hits, walking three and striking out three.

Julie Andrakowicz hit a single and a double for the Bulldogs and Carol Goslin collected two singles.

Junior High teams post unbeaten track seasons

If their track team is any indication, Cass City Intermediate School has a fast bunch of kids within its halls.

Both the boys' and girls' teams went undefeated this year in the Thumb League.

Boys' Coach Larry Robinson attributes the team's success to a talented group of kids willing to work hard for their accomplishments.

The distance runners and hurdlers were the most consistent portions of the team, continually placing in meets, he said.

However, athletes in every event contributed to the team's success. Robinson said both the track and field events had their share of winners.

Girls' Coach Laura Seibert

echoed Robinson's remarks, although she pointed out the track side was the strong point of this year's team. Not many girls competed in the field events which explained the fewer number of top places in those areas, she said.

Last year the girls' team also went undefeated.
