$6 million program underway

Ground breaking ceremonies for the $6 million Cass City wastewater treatment plant expansion and improvement project will take place early Tuesday,

The village received a letter this past Monday from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) giving the final okay needed of the construction bid and cost breakdown.

The council will meet at 7 a.m. to approve a loan resolution from the Farmers Administration, which is loaning the village the money for the local share of the project, and the initial operating budget. Action on those two matters were awaiting the okay from the EPA.

In a non-related matter, the council will also vote on a contract with the state Department of Transportation to have it oversee the Doerr Road-Garfield Street reconstruction project. An earlier contract submitted by the DOT had been sent back by the village for

After the meeting, village officials will go to the sew-age plant site, off Doerr Road, for the ground break-

Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie said they hope to have everything completed by 8 a.m.

The letter from the EPA authorized an increase in its originally authorized 75 percent grant of $4,531,350 by an additional $77,100 to cover the slight increase in the contractor's bid over the original estimate. The state pays 5 percent of the construction cost and local taxpayers, 20 percent.

The contractor, H.C. Weber Construction Co. of Bay City, started preliminary work at the site Monday, as soon as the letter from the EPA was received. The project should be done in 18

Total cost is now set at $6,041,800.

murder clues

The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department is still hoping for a break-through clue that will enable them to solve the Wednesday, June 4, murder of Tommy Lee Smith.

The Saginaw man, 39, was shot to death between about 5 30 and 5:45 p.m. while fishing in a channel off the Quanicassee River in the northwest corner of the county.

Officers later questioned two male suspects at their homes in Saginaw, later in Caro, and finally released them after further investigation showed they were not involved.

Undersheriff Bruce Tait described them as "victims of circumstance," having been seen driving a car the color of the one being sought and having bought ammunition in Sebewaing the day of the murder and doing some shooting at a range near that community.

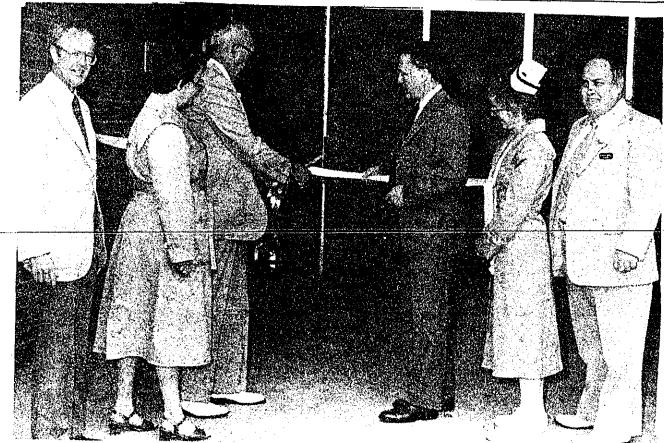

"We just don't have nothing right now," he commented. "If we had a motive, you got something to sink your teeth into."

Smith and a friend. George Davis Jr., had gone fishing after work last Wednesday at the General Motors nodular iron plant in Saginaw. At the time of the shooting. Tait said, Davis had been near Old State Road and didn't discover his friend had been shot until he walked back. He then went to a telephone and called authorities. That was at 6

The nearest witnesses, according to the undersheriff. were .3 mile away. Gunshots are not uncommon in that area, as some people shoot at carp, so all witnesses noticed after hearing the shots was a green car being driven south on Van Buren Road, occupied by two white men. The car had a squared off rear trunk above the Millage defeats to cut school funds by $95,000

Cass City School District voters okayed a renewal of 3.5 mills, turned down a request for an addition .6 of a mill and refused to allow the Headlee rollback to be repealed on school taxes in heavy balloting Monday.

In addition voters elected Incumbent Dr. E. Paul Lockwood and Dick Albee to seats on the board. Albeereplaces Art Severance who retired after serving for 12

There were eight candidates seeking the two board seats. The number of votes each candidate received were: Albee, 341; Lockwood, 289; Ben Hobart, 259; Dave Loomis, 255: Frederick Matthews, 224; Rev. Harry Capps, 217; Dan Allen, 203, and Walter Zmierski. 128.

The refusal of the voters to approve all three ballot measures means that the school will be forced to operate with $90,000 to $95,000 less than requested. The cash shortfall could Supt. Don Crouse was not prepared to say what measures he might recommend to the board because of the miliage defeat.

Its unanimous vote came despite being told by the senior judge for the circuit, Norman A. Baguley, that by doing so, "You would really be doing a disservice to the people of your own county.'

The final decision now rests with the Lapeer County Board of Commissioners, which must also approve the split, in accordance with a bill recently approved by the legislature and signed by the governor.

Baguley, who spoke to the Lapeer commissioners last week, predicted they will approve the change. "Their feeling is, why should they save Tuscola county. Let them fall on their face."

The Lapeer commissioners referred the matter to committee. They have until June 27 to make a decision.

Baguley based his argument on the fact that a single judge in Tuscola, who will be Patrick Joslyn of Caro, will have a bigger caseload than the two in Lapeer.

As of March 31, there were 627 pending cases in Tus-cola, with 166 of them ready for trial.

In Lapeer, which will have two judges, there are 820 pending cases, which means Baguley and Judge Martin

The Tuscola County Board E. Clements will have 410 Commissioners voted each. Baguley described hadn't counted the number

In response to a question from Commissioner Donna Rayl of Akron, he said the state pays the entire cost for visiting judges who are retired, but due to the state's budget crunch, it has suspended paying them for the rest of the fiscal year, until

If it is an active judge who is visiting, the benefiting county must pay him 1-250th per day of the difference between the supplement he receives in his own county and that paid in the benefiting county (Tuscola's supplement is_low), or $25 per day, whichever is greater.

Clements told the commissioners that having a lone judge means lawyers and their clients are always subject to that judge's prejudices "because every judge . has a different view-

Commissioners their morning session by voting to refer the matter to the personnel committee for further study and a recommendation.

After lunch, however, they continued discussion and called some lawyers by telephone, then voted unanimously for the split.

According to Commissioner Royce Russell of Elmwood township, the lawyers expressed varying opinions. The members of the Tuscola County Bar Association met last week to discuss the matter but decided against taking an official position

One reason commissioners voted the way they did, Russell told the Chronicle, was resentment over Lapeer county commissioners setting their supplements higher than the amount desired by the Tuscola board. Lapeer pays each circuit judge $8,500 in addition to what they receive from the state. Tuscola pays $4,500.

They also feel some day Tuscola will have two circuit notes. The discussion of various concerns at the high school began with parent Sandy Peters asking for reinstatement of study halls.

Erickson responded that those who remember when the district did have them were split, with some considering them as having been a waste of time. Others "got a lot of work done." He later promised to put the issue on the board's July agenda, with the possibility of scheduling study halls

Questions were asked about high school students driving down Main Street in Owendale in a reckless manner during lunch hour and causing other mischief. Erickson and High School Principal James Barr responded it was the same 10 percent of the students causing the problems "over and over and you don't get any backing from parents."

Concern was expressed by Sally Draschil about students roaming hallways when class was in session. The response was that it is sometimes harder to solve the problem than it is to define it and that perhaps study halls might help, for students who don't have a full schedule of classes.

Questions were also asked about the poor condition of textbooks, whether band should be considered an extra-curricular activity, why only 12 of 47 seniors went on the senior trip, and why there was no school play this year.

The poor condition of textbooks stems from their having to be provided free to the students, because of a court ruling several years ago.

The Cass City school vote Monday was described as heavy. And it was . . . using the numbers that usually vote at school elections.

But examine it from another angle and maybe we don't have much to be patting ourselves on the back about as it

There were 1,030 votes cast and that less than a third of the more than 3,500 registered voters in the district.

The Cass City school board and the administration should be gratified with the results of the balloting for candidates. A case could be made for voter satisfaction with the running of the school. All of the top vote getters Monday expressed satisfaction with the school now and promised to try to improve an already fine system when they made statements for the voters before the election.

One of the ways that the Chamber of Commerce is financing the second annual July 4 Festival is through the sale of buttons. The buttons cost a buck. Not only do they help pay expenses, but they advertise the event, too.

FATALITY

Vern Thomas, 49, of Unionville, died June 1 at Bay Medical Center, Bay City, of injuries suffered in a May 17 accident.

He had been injured when his motorcycle went off Thomas Road, near his home northwest of Akron, and landed in a ditch. His helmet was found nearby but sheriff's deputies were unable to determine if he was wearing it and it came off during the crash or if he had been carrying it on his cycle. The accident took place about 2:25 p.m.

Thomas was the seventh person to die in a Tuscola county traffic accident this year, compared to nine as of June 10 a year ago.

If you took the time to read carefully the statements of the school board candidates last week you noticed most were all gung-ho for better communication between parents and schools. Incumbent Dr. E. Paul Lockwood didn't say anything about communication in the community, but I'm sure that he would say that it is very important.

Perhaps he didn't because he has found that communication is easy to talk about and hard to achieve.

I submit that the fault lies not with the board, but with residents in the district. Moms and pops with kids in school and taxpayers who moan about the bite that schools put in their pocketbooks every year.

In a quarter century of monitoring the activities of the Cass City board, I can count on one hand the number of persons who attended a board meeting without an axe to grind.

The truth is that we don't bother much about the school until something pops up that hits us where we live.

Over the years there have been a half dozen attempts to get a teacher-parent organization functioning. None has cut the mustard. They go for a bit and then the attendance dwindles to a point where they quietly die.

Before the election the candidates' drive for votes put the school on the front burner again for a bit.

The campaigning and the millage issue brought people to the polls. Besides, it rained and the farmers couldn't get in the field anyway. With all that going for it 1030 of more than 3,500 registered voters cast ballots. That's less than a third and is considered a large turnout.

It's a safe bet that at least half of the voters went to the school to vote for a specific candidate and really didn't take the time to study the issues facing the school at

Given this apathy, how does a school board member communicate better with the community?

No one has come up with the answer to that one yet, although newly elected board members have tried with zeal and enthusiasm when they first won seats. After trying and failing, members tend to listen to complaints and air them at the meetings. That's the extent of citizen-school communications. Board members have found and new board members will find that it's hard to communicate when no one is listening.

"If It Fitz..." What to worry about

By Jim Fitzgerald

It was several years ago, sometime around noon on Day 984,467,893 of These Troubled Times, that I decided I should stop worrying about being different. Up until then, it had worried me deeply that I was apparently the only person in the United States who thought "I Love Lucy" was a stupid TV feel like an outsider, but I miss "Dallas.

I used to be afraid there don't worry about it. was something wrong with me. I didn't like what everyone else liked. Sometimes I was only bored by things that interested an audience of millions. Other times, I was strongly opposed to people and events that fascinated everyone else. I worried that I was some sort of a snob or, worse yet, that I was making an iconoclastic bid for attention, growing Indy fans says it's fun and two heads simply so people would notice my two hats.

But then I decided I had more important things to worry about in These Troubled Times. In fact, one of the las," currently the most reasons I never care who wins the Kentucky Derby is so I'll have time to care who wins the American League Pennant. I hope that makes sense to you. I'm saying a person has only so much time for worrying and he should allot that time wisely. Certainly he shouldn't waste time worrying about why he doesn't worry about what everyone else worries about.

Stick with me (unless you have more important things to worry about). The 24hour-a-day limit on worrying time is my secondary reason for not worrying about the Kentucky Derby or any other horse race. My primary reason is that I'm not convinced horses are as crazy about racing as people are about betting on win, place or show.

Recently, an immensely popular race ended in a dispute when one jockey was accused of whipping another jockey's horse. It is not fair to whip the other guy's horse. A jockey should whip his own horse only. He can also kick it, and shoot it if it breaks a leg trying to escape the whip. This is a lousy way to treat a horse. So I don't worry about who wins a horse race because I think horse racing is cruelty to

I make a similar argument against prize fighting, except the animals aren't dumb. Horses have no choice, but fighters choose to fight, and that's their business. There are comparatively few prize fighters, so I don't feel out of step with the world for not wanting my face punched. It's too bad Masao Tsuboi and Mieko Kainotsu never met Bob Traxler, the Congressman from this area. They might have been able to help each other. Traxler has decided he can save the American economy by declaring war on Japanese cars.

- Masao and Mieko decided it was cheaper to get mar-ried in the United States than in Japan.

I suppose Traxler is a bit more enlightened than Ronald Reagan. The Republican presidential nominee-to-be thinks all of Detroit's problems are due to excessive government regulation, ignoring the fact that foreign car makers who sell their products here have to meet the same regulations.

I admit there is cause for concern. So far this year, foreign cars have captured 27 percent of the U.S. auto market, with more than three of every four of them being Japanese.

Traxler claims that for every 1 percent of foreign cars sold here, 10,000 direct automotive jobs are lost. I think his figure is a bit high, since 27 (percent) times 10,000 roughly equals the number of auto workers who are laid off, which ignores the fact that overall total U.S.-made car sales are down by a bigger margin than Japanese car sales have increased.

The bill he has introduced in Congress would force an immediate 35 percent cutback by the largest Japanese importers and require 75 percent American content

His bill applies only to manufacturers who import more than 200,000 vehicles a vear into this country, which would only affect Datsun, Toyota and I think Honda. The latter, however, is building a plant in Ohio (next to their already-in-production motorcycle plant), which will begin churning out cars - in 1982, if memory serves me

I don't like restrictions on trade because if I need to buy something, I should be able to buy the best available, even if it isn't made in this country.

Rather than just criticize, I will offer an alternative. Let's call it the Automotive Wedding Act of 1980. That sounds impressive.

Back to Masao Tsuboi, a 44-year-old radio reporter in Japan, and his 29-year-old bride. They wanted a big wedding, but in Tokyo, it would have cost them $8,000-12,000. (And fathers here think they have it tough.)

For only $4,000, they flew to Sausalito, Calif., recently, were married in a big church wedding, spent their honeymoon here and re-

I propose that for each Japanese car sold in the U.S., one Japanese couple will have to come here to get

That way, Japan could continue to sell as many cars here as it wants and a major new "industry" would be created in this country. Perhaps the old and now closed Dodge Main plant in Hamtramck could be remodeled into the world's largest wedding chapel, with unemployed auto workers hired as wedding attendants.

My proposal could even become an instrument of international good will. The Japanese couples arriving here could drive the imported Japanese cars to their new owners.

If I ordered a Toyota, for instance, a couple could drive it here from the docks of California, spending lots of money along the way, and get married in Cass City. On second thought, they better get married in California. We wouldn't want them living in sin all the way to Michigan.

THE QUALITY, HIGH PERFORMANCE, VERSATILITY AND PRICE OF A SNAPPER MOWER.

You'll find a SNAPPER is worth more because it does more. And its price is competitive with other quality mowers. Look at all the outstanding SNAPPER quality and performance features: 1 "Vacuum" power for a smooth professional cut and the ability to bag cuttings under tough conditions. 2 With an optional Mulcherizer, your SNAPPER is converted to a mulching mower which chews up cuttings so fine they become lawn food. 3 Another option, the Snapperizer, converts your SNAPPER to a leaf shredder and lawn vacuum so you can go over four times as far without emptying the bag. 4 Self-propelled models have rear wheel drive and six forward speeds for mowing slowly in tough grasses or quickly in normal situations. A fingertip control disengages the drive for trimming in tight places.

Long distance telephone rates increase

Telephone customers who call other states within the continental United States, Canada, Mexico and overseas will be affected by increased rates for interstate long-distance calls which went into effect June 6, according to Jim Whalen, General Telephone's vicepresident-marketing customer service.

The new rates, an increase of 5.12 percent, represent the first interstate rate increase in more than four years.

"The best way customers can save is by direct dialing station-to-station calls compared with placing operatorhandled calls and by using discount calling periods,' Whalen said.

The new rates were recently approved "under bond" by the Federal Communications Commission for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. The FCC's approval "under bond" assures that if the FCC later modifies or reverses its decision, funds to reimburse customers will be available.

AT&T establishes interstate rates for all telephone companies since it provides almost all of the interstate long-distance facilities.

Ubly man carves dreams from wood not stopped him from work- lein also made jewelry. ing altogether.

Simmerlein's home is adorned with wood carvings and sculptures fashioned by his skilled hands.

Until recently, Simmer-

"I'm always getting compliments on these," his wife, Mary, says, showing off one example of her husband's jewelry making, a brightly polished pendant which began life in 1927 as a silver dollar. Much of the coin had been carved away leaving only the face of Miss Liberty, the date and the word "Liberty" inside the ring of silver.

Simmerlein has made everything from tie tacks to earrings but had to stop making the jewelry due to the high cost of silver.

AT THE MOMENT, HIS main love is woodcarving. Simmerlein is more than just a nickle-and-dime whit-His most recent accomplishment, which he claims is 'my pride and joy until I make something better," is a pinewood bald eagle measuring approximately 3 feet long and 1½ feet high.

The project took him three months to complete and after examining its workmanship, the time was clearly worth it. The flags furled below the eagle are stained red, white and blue with colored stain made by Simmerlein. The stain is better than paint because it shows off the beauty of the grain, he says.

SIMMERLEIN IS NOW working on his next "pride and joy," a scale model of the famous Budweiser Clydesdales. The eighthorse team, recognizable television commercials, sits in various stages lein's worktable. He also has plans for a wagon and detailed rigging.

Although not sure whether the project will be sold to the beer company, Simmerlein has talked to representatives of Anheuser-Busch Inc. and "They seemed very impressed.

So far, Simmerlein has sold none of his handiwork, preferring to keep it himself after all the work is done.

Aside from the sculptures, Simmerlein also carves wall plaques, which is how he got started in the art about two years ago. The main problem with his hobby is getting the right kind of wood in large enough quantities.

SIMMERLEIN LIKES TO use hardwoods for their rich grain, but usually uses softer scrap wood, such as pine. Oak, maple, mahogany and cherry are all beautiful woods, he says. The problem is the beautiful wood is expensive and harder to work with but Simmerlein said if he could get it, the extra trouble would not both-

When working to turn a piece of lumber into a work of art, problems arise with cracking and knots in the wood.

Often he tries to work the knots into the design of the sculpture.

"You've got to look at a piece of wood and see how you can utilize it," Simmerlein says. "You've more or less got to make the design to fit the wood.

"PRIDE AND JOY" -- George Simmerlein shows the pinewood eagle that took him three months to carve. Unable to find wood large enough, Simmerlein glued several pieces together, then carved his masterpiece.

CRACKING CAN ONLY be avoided by drying the wood quickly in an oven, a process too expensive for Simmerlein whose only income is from Social Security benefits and a small pension from General Motors, where he worked for 12 years. Still, the Simmerleins and their two sons, George, who will be 14 June 8, and Greg, 11, are not complaining. Simmerlein and his wife agree life in the Thumb is more relaxed and friendly Appointed as the new member to represent the township board was trustee Fay McComb.

Zoning board members continuing on the planning commission are Bob Tuckey, Tom Herron, Jack Laurie, Ed Karr and Howard Muntz.

Basically, the switch to a planning commission is a change in name only, Tuckey said. The state zoning ordinance laws give powers to a planning commission that a zoning board does not

The board approved a Class C liquor license for John and Kally Maharg, owners of Rolling Hills Golf Course. It must now be approved by the state Liquor Control Commission.

The board had approved a license application last fall. It was thought at the time it allowed selling of liquor by the glass at the golf course, but turned out only to authorize beer and wine sales.

DONAHUE: MY OWN STORY, by Phil Donahue (non-fiction). As America's most popular morning talk-show host, there's no subject too hot for Phil Donahue. And now, as an author, there's little he considers too personal to share. From the major moments in his early life to his painful divorce, his role as single father and his relation-

GLITTER AND ASH, by Dennis Smith (fiction). A dedicated young fire marshal is called in on the arson investigation of a tragic blaze that killed 43 people at New York City's newest and most chic disco. Rivalry between the police and fire departments, a corrupt city official, the social jet set, and the gay subculture are but a few of the elements and people that come across the marshal's path as he searches for the motive and the person behind the

VON RYAN'S RETURN, by David Westheimer (fiction)

The daring and irreverent Colonel "Von" Ryan, who led escape of POWs via a Nazi prison train in "Von Ryan's Express," comes back for an undercover assignment in

Nazi-held Italy during World War II. After a series of escapades with partisans and Nazis, the colonel makes his way to the Contessa di Montalba, who is sure he will never be an officer and a gentleman but who nevertheless joins him in a daring game of bluff and battle. The aristocratic contessa is an ideal foil for the American, who accumulated more gigs at West Point than any cadet since U.S. Grant.

HEALTH TIPS Blood tests give useful health data

By Frank Chappell American Medical Association

My doctor says I need a blood test. What does this mean? Will it hurt? Why cals in the blood help the does he want to test my blood?

Your blood test helps your doctor to help you, the American Medical Association points out.

Blood helps every tissue in the body to stay alive and function properly. It carries tissues and takes wastes from them to the organ of elimination. It helps regulate temperature and protects the body from disease.

Blood also reflects many of the changes that occur during both health and illness. This is why doctors use blood tests to supplement their own examination procedures.

It does hurt — just a little. Like a pin prick. And it's soon over. The doctor himself, his assistant or the technologist in the hospital will draw the blood specimen. Sometimes only a fingertip prick is needed to get a few drops. Sometimes blood is drawn with a hollow needle and syringe from a vein near the forearm.

Red cell counts within normal limits tell the doctor that you most likely are in good health. Too few red cells and too little hemoglobin indicate some form of anemia. The white blood cell count goes up in acute infections. It becomes quite high in leukemia.

Blood serum, the fluid part that is left after clotting, contains antibodies, substances developed by the body as a reaction to infec-

Tests of blood serum can give information on many of the infections an individual has had in the past.

Rabbit fever, undulant fever, typhoid, bacillary dysentery, mononucleosis and some virus diseases, such as polio, are among those that leave their tracks in the blood serum. Similar tests are routinely used to detect syphilis.

Olszak announces candidacy

Shirley Olszak of 5584 Walsh Road, Gagetown, has announced her candidacy for the Republican nomination for Tuscola county commissioners from the second district.

She will be opposing incumbent Royce Russell in the Aug. 5 Republican primary. It is her first bid for elective office.

Shirley Olszak

Mrs. Olszak, 54, moved with her husband, John, and family to the Gagetown area five years ago from Utica.

She attended Oakland University and Detroit Business Institute and sold real estate until moving.

Since moving to the area, she has been active in the Owen-Gage Band Boosters and as a scout leader.

The housewife and her husband have four children. The oldest two are married. John will be starting sixth grade in the fall at Owen-Gage and Kimberly, eighth grade. Her husband, semi-retired and a part-time farmer, is a Navy veteran, Farm Bureau member and a past president of the Tuscola County National Farmers organiza-

Survey: voters want same services for less money

District seem to want the same state services for less money, according to a survey published by state Sen. Alvin Degrow, R-Pigeon.

In a questionnaire sent to Ill constituents, 91.5 percent of those replying said they do not want a tax hike in order to balance the state budget.

However, in all but two cases, a majority of the same people responded they would like to see the amount of services provided remain the same.

The two exceptions were n the areas of welfare costs and transportation. Approximately 40 percent said less money could be spent on welfare, compared to 21

The July meeting will be with Mrs. Little.

Citizens from the 28th percent who said they wanted the amount to stay the same and 39 percent who wanted a welfare increase.

> Only 29 percent of those surveyed wished to see transportation spending remain the same. Slightly more than 39 percent said less money could be directed to the state's roads; 31.5 percent said more should be spent in that area.

Constituents were closely divided on the issue of the environment with 35 percent in favor of increased environmental spending, 35.5 who said they wanted it to stay as it is and 29.5 in favor

Fifty-nine percent voted to keep education expenditures right where they are.

On other issues, the survey reported that 87.5 percent of the respondents were in favor of reinstating the death penalty for serious crimes.

The law and order stance was continued as 53.5 per-cent said they would be in favor of additional prisons being built, even in their own community, to alleviate overcrowding in present penal institutions.

But if it were up to the people of this area, money would not be spent to build those prisons. Sixty-two percent said spending on corrections facilities in Michigan should stay at the present level, while 20.5 said prison facilities should be expanded.

Only 10.5 percent said they would be in favor of granting early releases to prisoners to alleviate overcrowding.

However, 90 percent favored letting those convicted of minor offenses pay their debt to society by doing community service work rather than serving jail terms or paying a fine.

The level of state public protection is fine right where it is, according to the survey. Only 15.5 voted to increase funding of the state police, compared to 63 percent who wanted the same and 21.5 percent who said less could be spent in that

Golf, tennis guide now available

The snow and frost on eastern Michigan golf. courses and tennis courts has finally melted away and to assist golf enthusiasts on where to go and what to expect, the East Michigan Tourist Association has published its 1980 Golf and Tennis Guide.

Over 100 golf courses are described with appropriate locations given.

Tennis comprises the other half of the new guide's contents. The addresses for each tennis site is given along with how many courts are available.

For a free copy of the new Golf and Tennis Guide, contact the East Michigan Tourist Association, One Wenonah Park, Bay City, MI 48706 or call 1-800-322-4825.

Federal standards, according to the union, require an attendant to resident ratio of 1:8 during day and evening shifts, 1:16 during the midnight shift.

The planned cuts, or replacing the laid off resident care aides with domestic care staff "constitutes a violation of recipient rights in the eyes of this local." The first 16 persons to be laid off, all direct care staff, had their final day on the job Dr. Marlin H. Roll, the center director, told the

The reduction requirement has varied, but the latest plan is to eliminate 179 of 793 positions by eliminating an average of about 12 persons each two-week payday, according to Roll.

There has been some misunderstanding of the positions being eliminated, he explained. Although the first layoffs were all attendants, most of the rest will be non-direct care positions.

However, since all but attendant and domestic service positions are a step higher positions have bumping rights in accordance with state civil service and union rules.

Thus a truck driver's position may be eliminated, but the truck driver might bump an attendant to get his job, thus it is actually the attendant who will lose the job.

The truck driver, having started out as an attendant and worked his way up the ladder, is still qualified to work as an attendant.

One hope that the layoffs might be averted, according to Roll, won't happen. It was thought that some residents of two private care facilities in the Detroit area

Hospital closes year solidly in the black

Hills and Dales General Hospital closed its fiscal year solidly in the black, as of March 31, it was reported at the annual meeting Tues-

The hospital had an excess of revenues over expenses of $124,238, up $15,199 from last year, according to a report read by Robert Tuckey, a certified public accountant.

In reality that figure could make the hospital's financial year look better than it really was, Tuckey said. Revenues for the year were down to $3,462,233 from $3,481,190 but costs increased only 5 percent compared to a national average of approximately 10 percent, Tuckey said.

This, combined with factors such as a favorable adjustment on its cost report, gave the hospital its

The debt owed on that facility will be met, Bauer said with certainty.

"I have no fear of meeting this debt if we are prudent and watch our spending from here in," he said.

A highlight of the meeting, which met with applause from those present, was the burning of a $90,000 mortgage for X-ray equipment that was recently paid off. Administrator Ken Jensen had the pleasure of the financial torching. In his address, he praised the new facility and remodeled building as a safer, more efficient place to work and be treated in.

The other hope that some of the layoffs might be averted stems from the fact that some new living units house 12 residents instead of the normal-16.

Twelve residents make it difficult to maintain the required minimum 1:8 and federal funds. attendant-resident ratios. Roll has applied to the state Department of Mental Health for funds to have enough staff to maintain 1:6 and 1:12 ratios in the new units, which will mean fewer layoffs.

Memorial

IN MEMORY OF Clayton Carr, who passed away June 13, 1976. Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall. You had a friendly word for each and died beloved by all. Thy voice is mute and still, thy heart that loved us well and true, from one so good as you. You are not forgotten nor will you ever be. As long as life and memory last. We miss you now our hearts are sore. As time goes by we miss you more. Your gentle face no one can fill your place. Sadly missed by his family grandchildren, niece and nephew. 13-6-12-1

Card of Thanks

I WISH TO thank our relatives, neighbors and friends for their prayers and many kind deeds, beautiful flowers, gifts and cards sent to me while I was a patient in Hills and Dales Hospital. Also, I want to thank Pastor VanDellen, the hospital staff and Dr. Jeung. I am now at my home in Cass City. Mrs. Oscar Seeley.

MANY THANKS to Dr. Jeung and the nurses at the Hills and Dales Hospital for the wonderful care I received while I was a patient. Also to the Novesta Church of Christ for the plant and, to all who sent cards and prayed for me. A special thanks to Frances Justin, who took me into her home and has given me wonderful care since my surgery. May God bless you all. Helen 13-6-12-1 Little.

ATTENTION EMPLOYERS

Hiring new help? Why not try local residents of Huron, Sanilac or Tuscola counties? ON-THE-JOB training can be of monetary assistance to you by providing up to fifty (50) percent of a new employee's hourly wage or salary.
