

SOMEWHERE amid all the flying dust is Randy Rieck of Fairgrove, who took second place in his mini-hobby division of Friday's tractor pull at Cass City.

Your Neighbor says

I enjoyed the July 4th festival

"I enjoyed it. I thought it was nice," was the reaction of Norma Szarapski to Cass City's second annual Fourth of July Celebration.

Her personal favorite part of the festival was "looking at all the handmade articles" in the flea market and crafts building, though she resisted the temptation to buy anything.

She also enjoyed the chainsaw woodcarving demonstrations.

While she was doing that, her husband Dick and four sons were watching the tractor pull all afternoon. "That's something they enjoy," she watched about the last hour of that.

Their four sons, all at home are Rick, Joe, Brent and Paul.

She and her husband liked the Lions Club chicken barbecue.

Mrs. Szarapski also liked the parade. "That was beautiful. I enjoyed that very much."

She attended last year's festival. One difference she noticed was, "I didn't think there were as many people (this year). It just didn't seem to be as crowded."

She feels the reason is that this year's festival was on the first day of a three-day weekend, so many persons

City, reported to sheriff's deputies last Wednesday morning that an 8-month-old Holstein calf weighing 300 pounds and valued at $300 was missing.

She reported she went to feed her cattle at 6:30 a.m. but immediately noticed they were not in the barn or open area. The barn doors were open and a gate down.

It took her and her son several hours to round up their cattle from the fields, but the one calf wasn't found immediately. It was thought it might possibly be in a wooded area.

Mark Witezak, husband of Owendale-Gagetown High School band director Laura Witezak, reported to Huron county deputies Saturday that two flutes were missing from the band room.

One belonged to his wife and the other to a student, Jackie Kain. They were valued at a total of $300 and were taken from the band storage room some time between May 30 and June 30.

Jesus Olivo Jr. of Gaines reported to Cass City police Saturday afternoon that the rear window of his car exploded from the heat while he was in Cass City. It was valued at $200.

Linda Herron of Spruce Street, Cass City, told village police last Wednesday that the bicycle of her son, Donnie, was missing.

It was taken from behind Erla's Food Center, where it had been parked, some time between 1 and 3 p.m. The West Point 20-inch wheel cycle was valued at $50.

County board upholds sheriff

The personnel committee of the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners has upheld Sheriff Hugh Marr in a grievance filed against him by Deputy Paul Berry.

The committee, as part of the grievance procedure outlined in the contract between the county and Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), which represents the deputies, conducted a hearing last Thursday. It released its decision at the county board meeting Tuesday.

Berry, a Republican candidate for sheriff to replace retiring Sheriff Marr, filed the grievance after the sheriff reassigned him from road patrol duties to the county jail as a turnkey. Berry claimed the decision was political.

Marr said it was his discretion as sheriff to assign his officers when and where they were needed.

The personnel committee concluded that it could find no violation of the contract between the county and FOP, that it provides for work assignments to be made by the sheriff.

Berry didn't learn of the ruling until contacted by the Chronicle Tuesday evening. Other than to say that he disagreed with the decision, he declined to comment on whether he might appeal until he first talked to his FOP representative.

The next step in the grievance procedure is submitting the grievance to formal arbitration. The first two steps in the procedure, the personnel committee being the third, were at the supervisory level within the sheriff's department.

The personnel committee, consisting of Commissioners Donna Rayl, Robert Russell and Ken Kennedy, met with Marr prior to the formal hearing, at which Berry, who was not present, was represented by E. Ray Harwood of the FOP and Deputy Arthur Adams, the union steward.

Also present were the county's labor consultant, Charles Minner of Lansing, and personnel director, Jackie Larson.

Afterwards, the committee again met with Marr. The total proceedings Thursday lasted several hours.

Bean group to meet in Sebawaing

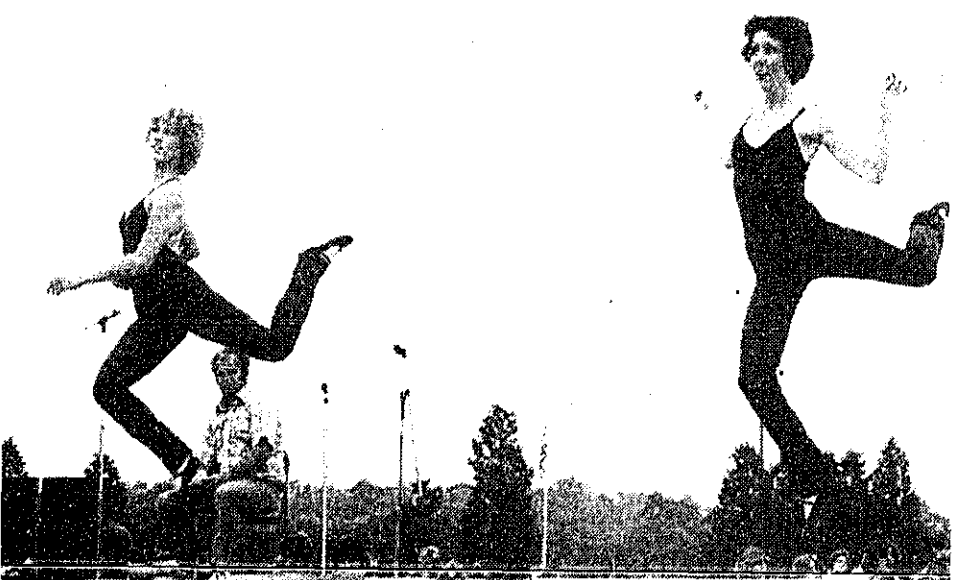

The next meeting of the Michigan Bean Commission will be Tuesday, July 15, at the Heidelberg Inn in Sebawaing.

Huron County bean grower and chairman of the commission, Gerald Elenbaum, stated, "The meeting will begin at 10 a.m., and we would like to see as many growers and other interested persons at this session as possible."

Topics to be discussed will include the many promotional programs the commission has undertaken on behalf of bean growers, foreign market activities and programs to be pursued in the coming year.

James Byrum, executive secretary of the commission, requests that anyone who wishes to attend and bring an issue before the meeting contact him at the commission office in Lansing so that a time can be allocated on the agenda.

The Michigan Bean Commission is funded by a 5-cent assessment on every bag of beans sold by growers and an additional 1-cent assessment on each bag which is paid by shippers. The shipper funds and 1-cent of the grower assessment is used for dry edible bean research programs. The balance of the grower funds are used for activities which promote the use of Michigan dry edible beans.

UPS AND DOWNS—Jazz dancers Kim Bussure of North Branch (left) and Sally Porritt of Cass City entertained the audience at the Fourth of July Celebration talent show. Unfortunately, the movement captured by the camera wasn't a particularly graceful one. Cass City teachers sponsored the show.

Sally Porritt to teach summer dance classes

Sally Porritt of Cass City will be one of the instructors for dance classes offered this summer by the Caro Arts Society.

Miss Porritt, a 1978 graduate of Cass City High School and an instructor the past two years for Cindy Marsh School of Dance in Marlette, will teach classes in tap and jazz dancing. The classes will run one day a week for four weeks.

Her tap dancing classes will start Wednesday, July 16, and continue the next three Wednesdays.

Tap dancing, divided by age groups from age 5 to adult, will be in the afternoon.

The jazz dancing class for 13-15 years will be Wednesday evenings, with classes for other age groups (8-9 year-olds through adult) on Thursdays.

Those who like what they learn this summer can continue the classes with Miss Porritt this fall. They will run eight months.

Miss Porritt has been tap dancing for 10 years and studying jazz dancing for two. She has taught disco dancing in the Cass City Community Education Program. Her talents were on display during the talent show Friday at the Cass City 4th of July celebration.

Offering of classes in dance and mime is a new undertaking for the Caro

Arts Society. All classes will be on the third floor of the Caro Home Furnishings building in downtown Caro.

Connie DuBois of Fairgrove will teach ballet on Mondays and Tuesdays to children and adults, starting July 14. Raoul Beacon of Caro will teach mime and pantomime on Monday evenings to high school students and adults, also starting July 14.

For more information, call 673-7021 or 673-3383.
