3rd try: Grant seeks one mill

"If at first you don't succeed . . . " is the attitude of the Grant township board, which will be trying Tuesday for the third time to get a special millage approved for road improvements.

Such a levy was rejected by voters in 1976 and 1978. The board is seeking one mill for five years for roads. It also is asking voters to approve for the first time a one-mill levy for three years for fire protection and ambulance service. There was to have been a third proposal on the ballot, to allow "sale of spirits" within the township, but that measure will now be on the Nov. 4 ballot. The need for the additional money for roads is "desperate," according to township Supervisor Helen Ellicott. Roads aren't in too bad a shape now, but some are almost impassable in wet weather, she said.

One mill will raise about $35,000 for the purpose.

The township plans to spend about $25,000 this year in general fund and federal revenue sharing monies for roads, but that doesn't go far these days, she pointed out.

She cited figures from the Huron County Road Commission that the charge for grading and graveling a mile of road, necessary ditch work, depending on the work needed, etc., is $25,000-40,000. Preparing a mile of road for eventual paving costs $40,000-65,000. The supervisor anticipates the township board will still appropriate money from the general fund and federal revenue sharing to augment the millage, if it passes. Grant township contracts with four fire departments years is approved, the fire protection subsidy will no longer come from the general fund, freeing that money to help pay other increasing expenses.

At present, Grant does not subsidize either area ambulance service (Cass City and Elkton), which means its residents must pay more for ambulance service than those living in townships which do subsidize the serv-

"People don't realize they need one (an ambulance) until they need one," Mrs. Ellicott commented, adding that that also applies to fire protection.

She explained that the money could go into a fund to continue to provide the subsidy after the levy expires in three years or the board doesn't have to levy all of it or even any of it if it isn't needed. "It won't be

Seek mill for Huron bridges

"Without the millage, we'll never catch up. That is why, according to Huron County Road Commission Director of Finance John Martin, a 1-mill levy for five years for repair of bridges is being sought.

The proposal appears on Huron county ballots Tues-

Starting with this December's tax bills, if approved, the levy will run five years. It will generate about $560,000 the first year.

With present funding, the agency is replacing or rebuilding two or three bridges a year. If the millage is approved, Martin said, the hope is the pace can be increased to six or seven bridges a year.

Present funding for bridges comes from the county board, which this year is contributing $300,000 for the purpose, half of which comes from property tax revenue and the other half from federal revenue

The Road Commission contributes a minimal amount in the form of engineering services, administration, etc. Townships do not contribute anything.

It is anticipated that if the millage is approved, the $300,000 from the county will continue, but that is a decision the county commissioners will make from year-to-year.

When the county commissioners earlier this year approved putting the proposal on the ballot, Road Commission Engineer Robert Tufts warned that without the millage, 35 bridges would have to be closed within a year.

After studying the 131 bridges in Huron county last year, Tufts rated 24 of them in excellent condition, 22 good, 29 fair, 39 poor and 17 very poor.

The Road Commission started 1979 with a priority list of 59 bridges that needed repair or replacement, based on such factors as amount of traffic, condition and whether used by school

At the end of this year, Martin said, there will be 54 bridges to go. If federal and state money being applied for for bridges is received, along with the millage, the timetable can be speeded up so that more than six or seven bridges a year can be repaired. What happens at the end of the five years -- assuming the millage passes -- is still a question mark, Martin said. If all the federal and state money requested is received, continued millage might not be needed.

More likely, millage will be needed for a few more years in order to take care of all the bad bridges, after which the bridge maintenance program can be maintained from regular county and federal funds.
