DAMAGED OR NOT, wheat still had to be harvested.

but because of the rain, it wasn't worth as much as before.

Combining a field Friday was Bill Merchant of Cemetery

THE DAMAGE doesn't show in the photograph, but the hand of Duane Ertman holds some of the sprouted kernels picked from this handful of wheat. About 25 percent of the kernels in the field farmed by Bill Merchant, for whom Ertman works, had sprouted.

Rains mean loss for wheat growers

by farmers, but of late, it has been most unwelcome. The effect of the unwelcome rain coming during what should have been wheat harvest time has hurt farmers where it hurts most, in their wallets.

Harvesting of what appeared to be a bumper crop was starting to get underway Friday, July 25, but rain the next day brought the combines to a halt.

By the time farmers could get back in their fields last week, the damage had be-

What the rain did, just when the wheat was ready for harvesting, according to Tuscola County Extension Director Bill Bortel, was cause it to begin sprouting.

Sprouted wheat hurts the milling quality, which means the farmer gets less when he sells his harvest.

He said he had seen some fields where as much as 50-100 percent of the crop had sprouted.

At the Wickes Agriculture elevator in Cass City, Manager Bob Wischmeyer said the average number of sprouted kernels has been 20-25 percent. Yields have peen averaging a minimum 50 bushels per acre, which is considered very good. (The 1979 state average was 43 bushels, the highest in at least five years.)

The rain has also hurt the wheat crop in two other ways Because the longer the delay, the more sprouting there would be, farmers couldn't afford to wait for it to dry naturally. Friday afternoon, Bill Merchant was harvesting

Rain is usually welcomed wheat in a rented field off which makes it hard for air Schwegler Road, south of Milligan.

One load taken off the field, according to Duane Ertman, who drives a truck for Merchant, had a moisture content of 19.1 percent, whereas normal is 14-15

Of the first load taken to the elevator, 25 percent of the kernels had sprouted. (One hundred kernels are examined to determine the percentage that is bad.)

The high moisture content means farmers have to pay extra, either at the elevator or for fuel for their own driers, to get the excess moisture removed.

The moisture also puffs the wheat up, making it lighter, which also hurts the price as it requires more volume to make the same

The combination of the sprouted wheat, excess moisture and lighter test weight, Wischmeyer said, can cost farmers as much as 50 cents per bushel.

With wheat otherwise selling for about $4 a bushel, the loss of 50 cents can mean the difference between making money and losing it. Only "very few" farmers could make money on wheat at $3.50 a bushel, he specu-

Barring further rain, he expected wheat harvesting to be almost all done by Thursday. Although the rain has been beneficial to corn and sugar beets, Bortel said, it has been harmful to dry beans as well as to wheat.

Saturday fire leaves family of seven homeless parently out of confusion An early morning fire

The home, between Plain and Froede Roads, belonged to Jack and Sandy Putnam. They have three boys and one girl, plus another boy lives with them.

No one was home at the time of the fire.

Caro Fire Chief Don Berry said the house was so completely destroyed, it was impossible to determine the cause or even where it began. "I guess the cause will have to remain unknown.

He estimated the house and contents were worth perhaps $40,000-50,000.

By the time his department arrived at 2:37 a.m., the roof and walls had already collapsed.

The Elkland Township Fire Department arrived about five minutes later, both having been called by the sheriff's department, apover which department's territory the burning home was in. The Caro department was called first.

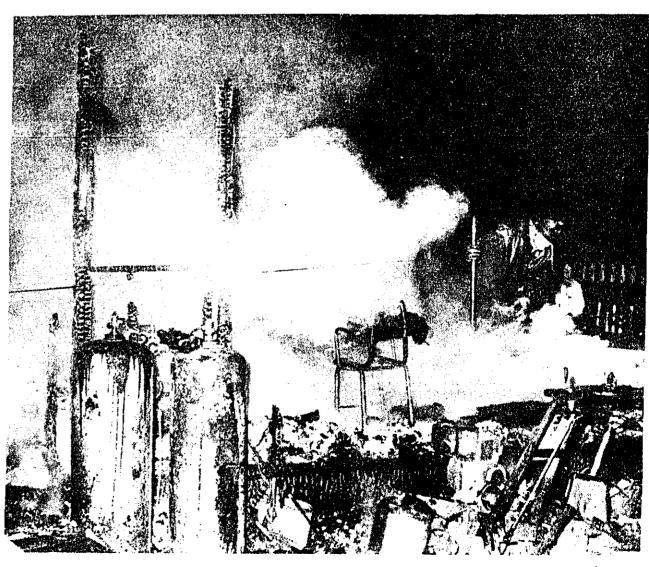

Berry said Monday that according to his map, the Kingston Fire Department should have been the one Firemen from the two departments that were called got back to their respective stations about 5

Firemen spent much of their time searching through the still smoking rubble out of fear that one of the Putnam children, 10 years old, had been trapped inside.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam and some of their children were at a lake in Clare county at the time of the fire and the others were staying in this area. The parents were eventually located by the Clare County Sheriff's Department and shortly before

AMID THE SMOKE coming from the Jack Putnam home, firemen searched for a 10-year-old boy thought to have been trapped inside. Fortunately, he wasn't. Elkland township and Caro firemen fought the blaze for about 21/2 hours early Saturday.

During the Republican convention in Detroit, a park close to a fire hydrant and promised to keep an eye evening to make certain it wasn't stolen or, worse yet, ticketed

You think that was a nice cop? How about the kind policeman who went to the rescue of the West Virginia delegate who broke the heel off one shoe? It happened on the convention floor and, for a few tense moments, there was anguish in the West Virginia delegation. No state wants to be represented by an unbalanced delegate.

Someone called the cops. A police sergeant carried the wounded shoe to a shoeshine stand, borrowed a hammer and nailed the heel back in place. Glad to be of help, ma'am.

These and other heartwarming stories about police niceness received considerable publicity during and after the Republican convention. It was great news for the natives, many of whom hadn't realized they could get their shoes repaired by a cop.

"It gives me a secure feeling to live in a city where I can dial 911 and get a cobbler," I told my wife. "Let's go to the movies," she said

It was a new and interesting experience. I often hear delegate from Maryland babies cry in theatres, and praised a cop who let him adults talk, and yahoos yell. But this was the first time I'd been able to monitor on his car throughout the police calls while watching a movie. Naturally, I turned around to give the two policemen my full attention. In fact, I turned around and looked at them dozens of times.

This is what I always do when there is noise behind me in a theater. It is my non-violent way of letting the noisemakers know I hear them and I want them to shut up because I didn't pay $3.75 to sit in a dark room and listen to them make

If the noise is coming from in front of me, I hiss sssshhhh at it. And then everyone sitting in front of me turns around and looks at me, and I realize they didn't pay $3.75 to sit in a dark room and listen to me sssshhhh. Life isn't easy.

It is less complicated to sit in front of the noise, but never foolproof. Sometimes the people get my message and clam up when I turn around and look at them five times in one minute. And sometimes they don't. The two cops didn't.

"Why don't you just politely ask them to either turn off their radios or leave," my wife whispered.

"What I should do is tell them I am parked outside next to a fire hydrant," I said. "They would immediately go guard my car of, say $5,000, not enough to make any difference in your taxes at all. There can be no financial reason at all for looking for a replacement at the top. The next question is the quality of the education, which I submit is good. That's not to say that it couldn't be better. There's room for improvement, test scores indicate, and it's one area where the administration and the board have vowed to pay close attention. To retain most of the quality we have, the board says that another mill is necessary. That still leaves us at or near the bottom in costs for every child we educate in the district. When you compare the cost and what it will buy for the children and all the community, doesn't it come up as worth the money? The REAL bottom line is how much education our children are receiving for the number of dollars spent. We rank at or near the top.

Living a dog's life

By Mike Eliasohn

Granted, there are a few dogs that work, police tracking dogs and ones that sniff out narcotics, for instance, but most live a life of sloth. It isn't the dogs' fault. It's their human owners that pamper them.

I admit dogs can be cute, cuddly and provide companonship, but leaving aside emotional reasons, they're not very practical.

The common excuse is that dogs make good watchdogs, but a determined burglar isn't going to let a dog stop him, at least, not a burglar with a gun. Burglar alarms don't al-

That's a rather forthright and not very original opening for the occasion of my departure from the Chronicle. But it does sort of sum things up, don't you think?

By the time you read this. I will have cleaned out my dwelling above Schneeberer's, packed my dictionary, notebook and camera, and left the town that occupied my time and energy this summer.

But it did more than that. Cass City left its mark on me in ways that probably won't appear for months or in some cases, years.

You see, it's the little things I learned that made this summer. The bits of knowledge gained that one doesn't even know they have here. It took the better part until a situation arises and they use it by instinct. For living and working in

Van Allen participant in exercise

Navy Aviation Boatswain's Mate 2nd Class Ronald B. Van Allen, son of Douglas W. and Hilda M. Van Allen of 6386 Severance Road, Cass City, recently participated in exercise "Multiplex 1-80" in the Indian Ocean.

He is a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier USS Dwight D. Eisenhower homeported in Norfolk, Va.

The two-day multi-threat exercise placed emphasis on U.S. and British Royal Navy joint anti-air and anti-surface warfare tactics. The exercise was the first of a series conducted with the British force during the ship's deployment to the Indian Ocean.

The multi-mission aircraft carrier is 1092-feet long and carries a crew of 3,300. The ship can accommodate 2,800 air wing personnel and 100 aircraft.

A 1976 graduate of Cass City High School, Van Allen joined the Navy in October of that year.

Warning -issued on

bean mold

Bean growers across the Saginaw Valley and Thumb area were cautioned last week by Greg V. Varner, the Michigan dry bean industry's director of research, to watch for potential white mold development in their bean fields.

White mold can reduce yield potential from 10 to 301 percent. Research conducted at Michigan State University has proven that white mold can be controlled by an aerial application of Benlate. MSU recommends that 112 pounds of Benlate be applied per acre between 501 percent and 100 percent of full bloom.

Rainfall during months of June and July have created textbook conditions for the development of I white mold.

Farmers with a field history of white mold should | definitely consider spraying this year. The dense plant canopies and the wet conditions that have prevailed as } beans progress toward blossoming are conditions that | should not be ignored. Vainer added. Farmers are urged to check their fields now and if concerned about the condition of their bean crop, call their county extension office or check with the local f Mr. and Mrs. Bob Swack- elevator for advice on t hamer of Bad Axe were whether to spray.

New books at the library

HELEN AND TEACHER: THE STORY OF HELEN KELLER AND ANNE SULLIVAN MACY, by Joseph P Lash (non-fiction). The author considers the lives of two genuine American heroines, Helen Keller and "the miracle worker," Anne Sullivan Macy. Lash has undertaken the first book that treats both women in depth and gives a full rendition of their unique and touching relationship.

REAR-VIEW MIRROR, by Caroline B. Cooney (fiction) Susan Seton, while out in the countryside one day, witnesses t a scene where two men next to a white station wagon are throwing a big plastic bag into the river. As she watches horrified, they attempt to put a two-year-old girl into another bag and throw her in too. Susan runs over to rescue the child and her nightmare begins.

THE EPILEPSY FACT BOOK, by Harry Sands and Frances C. Minters (non-fiction). Epilepsy is one of the most misunderstood of physical disorders, and the person who has it suffers enormously from the ignorance and prejudice he encounters. "The Epilepsy Fact Book" is addressed to those whose lives are touched by this complex illness--to persons with epilepsy, family members, teachers, and employers. Written in simple, nontechnical language, this book helps answer the questions asked by those who must deal with epilepsy as an illness and as a way of life.

Carter did the right thing

When President Carter refused to send any top-ranking diplomats to the Shah of Iran's funeral in Egypt, he made the right decision, according to Arlan Hartwick. He said that the position of the administration has shifted from the times when Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger considered the shah one of America's closest allies. "They have our hostages now and we're not gonna rile up the Iranian radicals any more than we have to, Hartwick said. He agreed that it was alright for former President Nixon to attend the funeral as a private citizen but as for anyone from the government, Hartwick said no wav Hartwick said sending someone to the funeral just complies with the popularly held notion that the shah was important to the United States, which he does not agree with.

"He'd come to Washington and strut around with all those medals -- that he probably awarded himself and say 'Look at me I'm the shah. I'm God.' But he wasn't that great.'

In fact, it was mostly the shah's strict rule of his people that led to his final undoing, Hartwick main-

U.S. needs to emulate farmers, Earl Butz says

America needs to emulate the farmer in working hard if it wants to remain a strong nation was the message former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz presented to area Republicans Friday night.

The holder of the nation's top farm job from December, 1971, to October, 1976, spoke at a fund-raising ox and corn roast Friday evening for Norman Hughes, Republican candidate for the eighth Congressional district seat now held by Democrat Bob Traxler.

The event, attended by a couple hundred persons, culminated a day-long schedule of activities attended by Butz in behalf of Hughes that started in the Saginaw area.

mentioned more than once that the hands he had shaken that evening of the mostly farm audience were "calloused hands with tractor grease in those cracks."

Farm men and women, ne commented, are those who think there is nothing wrong with an honest day's labor for a honest day's dollar.

The problem is, "We're always trying to get more by working less, which is making us a second rate nation." Last year, of the western industrialized nations, he said the United States ranked at the bottom in non-agricultural productiv-workers are paid under their latest contract and that cars supposedly produced on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays are better made because some regular workers don't show up on Mondays or Fridays, he commented, "The Japanese are working and we're sitting on our fannies."

Farmers aren't afraid to accept new technology and to work hard. "You haven't learned to take Mondays off," he said to his farm audience.

Butz, former dean of the school of agriculture at Purdue University, saved many of his numerous barbs for government.

"We are Republicans because we believe in a philosophy of government. We believe you know better how to spend your money out here than they do in Wash-

He had criticism for bureaucrats -- "They're gaining on us." -- and excess government regulation. "We could do with a little less regulation. We've been doing pretty good for 200 years (without it)."

The best regulation, he claimed, is competition, citing as an example a John Deere dealer in the audience, who faces competition from dealers for competing makes.

"I don't think government should be in the commodity business," Butz argued. The U.S. owns 4 million tons of wheat, which he claimed it will put out in the market in order to keep prices down.

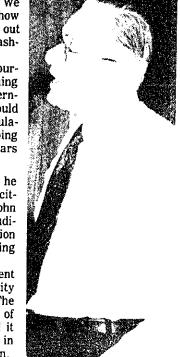

The obvious solution from his standpoint was a Republican president Ronald Reagan is going to make a great president." -- and a Republican Congressman --"I want somebody who will understand the importance of agriculture out here."

Other than on the telephone, Butz had met Hughes for the first time that day. The former agriculture secretary closed with a quote from Wendell Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential candidate, that "Only the strong can be free and only the productive can be strong.'

Master of ceremonies for the program was Jack Laurie of Dodge Road, Cass City, who serves on Hughes' agriculture advisory committee. Rev. Myra Sparks of the Gagetown and Owendale United Methodist churches gave the invocation.

Among those in the audience were Michigan Department of Agriculture Director Dean Pridgeon and Dr. Gordon Guyer, director of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension

PAWS claws thin air: abandoned dogs still used for research

By James Iseler

Whatever happened to PAWS?

The organization -- Prolective Animal Welfare Society of Tuscola County -- is presently "in abeyance," according to its founder and president Sue Maxwell of

She says support for the group has fallen off. Others, formerly involved with PAWS, said they pulled out after they saw the group becoming "vindictive" and geared toward one issue.

The group was founded 112 years ago with the intent of providing protection for dogs and information for their owners, according to the group's former vicepresident Jerome Lewis.

But when the group set out to force the county to stop dealing with animal dealer

Fred Hodgins, at the expense of the other projects, some members felt it was time to resign.

"I felt the group was becoming vindictive towards the dealer," Lewis explained.

Along with Lewis, PAWS' animal abuse investigator Brendan Boyle, also left the Boyle said he withdrew because he did not agree with Mrs. Maxwell's methods of dealing with people in the group's effort to halt the county's dealings with Hodg-

"The way she did things tended to make people not want to go along with her,' Boyle said.

BUT THE DEMISE OF her group has not tempered Mrs. Maxwell's fervor towards having Tuscola county stop doing business with the animal dealer.

Hodgins comes from Howell once a week to pick up all dogs and carcasses from the Tuscola County Animal Shelter. He disposes of those that are sick or dead and sells the healthy ones to research hospitals.

Mrs. Maxwell maintains the dogs in those hospitals are mistreated and "tortured," and that the experiments performed on them are not always necessary.

The county pays Hodgins $50 per week for his services. Last year there was talk of Hodgins' paying the county $1 per cat and $1.50 per dog but the county didn't take him up on his offer.

IF SUCH A DEAL WERE struck, Hodgins would pick up only the healthy dogs and the county would have to destroy and dispose of the rest on its own.

Even

Loose Change

Can Turn

Into

And that would be a lot of Tuscola Animal Control Officer Jeff Quinn reported that in 1979 5,189 dogs passed through the shelter. Of that number only 490 were returned or found new homes. The rest went to Hodgins, who contends he only gets about 15 "good dogs" a week. That leaves approximately 4,000 dogs the county would have had to take care

For the county to do that would cost an extra $15,000-$20,000 a year, according to Board of Commissioners Chairman Paul Nagy.

He said he is convinced the dogs are treated humanely and the present system is the cheapest route for the county to follow, cheaper than using the decompression chamber incinerator that was built into the yearold shelter on M-81 west of Caro. The cost of staff and fuel needed to destroy dogs in the manner would be too exorbitant, he said.

"If we knew then what we know now, we probably would not have put in that incinerator," Nagy stated. The facility has never been used, according to Quinn.

IN SAGINAW COUNTY. where dogs are killed by injection then either destroyed by incinerator or picked up by the Wayne Soap Co., the cost breakdown is more expensive.

The injections cost a total of $4,000-$5,000 annually. Gas bills for the incinerator, which burns shelter refuse along with animals, run $3,000 per year. Wayne Soap Co. charges $250 a month to pick up the carcasses that are not decomposed.

These figures are for a county that handles nearly three times as many animals per year.

ONE OF MRS. MAXwell's main gripes is she is unable to determine where dogs from this county are shipped after Hodgins picks them up. She blames the county board for that.

Last year, when the furor over Hodgins' service was going on, the board told Mrs. Maxwell she would have to present evidence the dogs were being mistreated if the commissioners were to do anything. That information is not readily available. Hodgins sells some of the dogs to hospitals in Michigan. He also goes out of Often that means shipping them to the East where many states have laws against using pound animals for research.

One of the places the dogs go is Bio-Medical Research Inc., an animal dealership in Freidensburg, Pa. From there they are sold to hospitals but Mrs. Maxwell has been unable to trace which ones. Subsequently she cannot determine how the dogs are treated.

'As a taxpayer I have the right to say 'I want to know where those animals are going'," she said.

But Nagy disagrees. He claims once the dogs leave Michigan it is no longer the board's business what happens to them.

Hodgins deals with 14

Michigan counties and arrangements in each vary.

tured", just as fervently as Nagy claims they are "treated humanely." Nagy has the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which regulates Hodgins and his colleagues, on his side while Mrs. Maxwell has the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals backing her up.

The second question is also a matter of preference. While Mrs. Maxwell voices her feelings that animals, like humans, have souls and feelings, Nagy claims medical techniques should be tested before being used on humans.

'I'm 100 percent behind it. I don't care who argues with me, I'm 100 percent behind the use of animals," he said.

Default judgment granted against Cass City couple in Circuit Court

Clements Monday granted a default judgment in favor of Summerfield GMC against Alvin Werschky, of Cass City, doing business as Valley Transport, and his wife, Sue.

The judgment finds them liable for $29,009, plus costs and interest after Jan. 4.

The Gary, Ind., firm filed firm was operated from the

He pleaded guilty to the charge June 3, of having taken cash and checks from Churchill's Bar in Akron April 23.

A circuit court jury last Wednesday found Monte A. Neuville, 20, of 125 Alexander Street, Caro, innocent of a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property over $100.

The trial, presided over by Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn, lasted two days.

Neuville had been charged in connection with the Aug. 23, 1979, theft of the registered Palomino quarterhorse gelding of Charlotte Fisher of rural Caro. The horse, later recovered, was valued at $4,000. Two Mayville men, James R. Gillespie and Randy J. Berlin, both pleaded guilty last October to attempted larceny of livestock in connection with the theft and subsequently served sentences in the county jail.

With less money to spend, fewer people came to the fair as attendance at the event dropped for the second straight year, according to Walter Jackson, fair board of directors president.

General admission sales front of the grandstands. were 16,150, in addition to 361 season passes purchased. That number compares with 17,223 general admission tickets sold last year and 459 season passes. And, according to others, the problem is all around. "People from the carnival said all the fairs they've been to have been down," Jackson said.

Another factor that may have led to poor attendance was some bad weather. Rain dampened the spirits of many fairgoers.

"If it didn't rain right here in Caro then it rained nearby," he explained.

Even so, some events at the fair enjoyed successful turnouts. Jackson said the demolition derby, tractor pull and motorcycle races

Jackson said he won't know until about one month from now how the fair did financially.

He guessed the fair would break even this year but added they usually turned a profit in past years.

Although plans have not yet been set in motion, next year's fair will probably have some added attractions since it is the 100th anniversary for the festival. Among the displays Jackson hopes to have are an antique section, depicting earlier fairs, and a parade.

Scott Hobart of the Cass City FFA saw his grand champion individual market purchased by the Thumb National Bank, Cass City branch, for $3.55 for each of its 137 pounds. The price compares to the $2.55 per pound paid for the 1979 grand champion.

He also had the grand champion pen, with Pigeon Co-operative Elevator buying the 130-pounder for $1.05 per pound and Thumb Cooperative Terminal of Elkton purchasing the 134pounder for 95 cents. (Comparative prices last year were $1.55 and $1.45.)

Scott Hutchinson of the Cass City 4-H Livestock Club has the reserve champion individual lamb, purchased for $1.50 per pound by Richard Fox. He also had the reserve champion last year, which sold for $1.40 per

TOP MIDDLEWEIGHT -- The Limousin-Angus of Eric Stoll, 14, was judged the top middleweight steer at the fair. The May-King 4-H Club member is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Stoll of English Road, Kingston.

Steer and hog prices go

All the top sheep were Suffolk. The market price last Thursday was 62 cents per pound.

SWINE

Richville 4-H Livestock Club members made a clean sweep of all the top swine categories.

The 226-pound grand chaser of one of Scott champion of Mark Palm- Trump's reserve champion reuter was purchased by Laethem Farm Service of Fairgrove for $2.50 a pound, down from the record $3.60 per pound paid last year.

Buyer of Stephanie Trump's 230-pound reserve champion was Uckele Animal Health Distributors of Blissfield for $2 per pound ($1.80 paid last year).

Frankenmuth Bank and Trust, Reese branch, bought half of Audra Keinath's grand champion pen for $1.75 per pound. Farmer Pete's bought the other animal for $1.15.

Frankenmuth Bank and Trust of Richville was purpen for $1.15 per pound. Weber Lumber of Richville bought the other for $1.20.

The market price last Thursday was 46 cents per pound.

The sale ran about 41/2 hours, longer than in 1979, because more animals went on the auction block this year. There were 113 hogs sold this year, compared to 91 last year; 43 lambs (41 in 1979); 27 steers (23), 10 rabbits (11), and for the first time this year, five broiler pens (chickens).

Auctioneers were Lorn Hillaker, Boyd Tait and RESERVE CHAMPION market lamb at the Tuscola County Fair belonged to Scott Hutchinson, 13, son of Dean and Nancy Hutchinson, 4630 Spencer Road, Cass City. He is a member of the Cass City Livestock Club. The number was for the livestock sale.

joins with FABC of Kalamazoo

Latest bank to join First American Bank Corporation of Kalamazoo is First National Bank of Alger County in Munising, according to James H. Duncan, chairman of FABC, and Robert A. Schweyen, executive vicepresident of First National. An agreement of affiliation between the two banking organizations has been completed, and is subject to approval by the Upper Peninsula bank's shareholders and regulatory authorities.

The agreement is of special interest to this area, because Farmers & Merchants State Bank of Sebewaing became an affiliate of First American Bank Corporation earlier this year. Another point of interest is that Norman H. Schroeder, president of Farmers & Merchants, was chief executive officer of the Munising banking institution prior to coming to Sebewaing.

First National was founded in 1908, and is headquartered in Munising, a vacation center known for its access to Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore on Lake Superior. The bank has a branch office in Grand Marais, and has assets of $15,109,000. If the affiliation agreement is approved, FABC will purchase all of First National's shares at $66,50, through a combination of cash and notes. Total purchase price is $1,064,000.

at the ending of 1981. Aug. 11, the following questions will be discussed: 1) Do you think that most older people understand the extent of coverage that exists in private insurance policies and the government sponsored programs of Medicare and Medicaid?

2) Do you think that the health insurance options available to older people (Medicare, private insurance, and Medicaid) adequately cover their health care costs?

3) Do we need a national health insurance plan which would simplify insurance reimbursement and guarantee basic health care for all people? 4) Have you been able to find adequate health care in this area, or have you been forced to go to the larger cities to find it?

5) Has the amount of health care available to you in the Thumb increased over the last 10 years?

6) What types of health facilities are either totally missing or in inadequate numbers in the Thumb area?

7) Should preventive care be a major objective of our health care system?

8) Do you think it is more important to attempt to increase services in the home to help with such tasks as minor home maintenance and repair or to increase housing complexes for the elderly such as the one in Caro?

9) Do you think apartment housing complexes should be developed for the elderly which would also offer some basic services such as a noontime meal, light housekeeping assistance, etc.?

10) What are the three most important services which would help older persons maintain their independence in their own

Jobless rate up in June

The unemployment rate in Tuscola county rose slightly in June to 19.6 percent from the May figure of 19.4, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

That rate is considerably higher than the state's June figure of 14.0. The state figure for July rose slightly to 14.1 percent with the national figure also rising by .1 percentage point from 7.7 July figures for individual counties are not yet available. The county jobless figure for June is up 12 percent from this time last year.

In Huron county, unemployment rose from 16.2 percent to 16.5 percent, MESC officials reported.

That is up 8.3 percent from last year.

In Sanilac county the figure dropped, from 21.2 to 20.4. The June rate for 1979 was 10.4 percent.

Wickes' Agriculture, concerning their property at Garfield Street. Mr. Suchodolski informed Mr. Althaver that the bids on the demolition of this property will be let Aug. 4, 1980 and that he will contact the office as to the details of the letting.

The Superintendent's report was reviewed along with the Pool report and the Arts and Crafts report.

Ken Miller of the Wastewater Treatment Plant has received his Class D certificate as a Wastewater Treatment Operator. A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Stahlbaum that three bills for the gutter work is expected to Wastewater Treatment Exbegin on the Garfield portion pansion program in the amount of $121,771.66 be approved for payment. Motion carried 5 yeas, 0 nays. A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Stahl-> be approved for payment. Motion carried 5 yeas, 0 Trustee Hampshire questioned the service being received from First Cablevision Corp. President Althaver requested that Village Superintendent, Lou LaPonsie contact James

McCoy to invite him to our next regular council meeting concerning this problem. tention of the council that It was also brought to the attention of the council as to corner is in poor repair and parking meters in the downtown area. Streets and parking committee will look into the matter and make a recommendation to the council.
