 Last minute settlement allows schools to open

THE STRIKE was settled in a last minute negotiation session Tuesday and the doors opened Wednesday for the first day of school as usual. Students hurried in to the Cass City Intermediate School when the doors opened for the first time for the 1980-81 school year.

Mrs. Crouse fighting school job rejection

Mrs. Joyce Crouse filed a complaint with the Michigan Department of Civil Rights in Saginaw Tuesday afternoon because she was denied a position as special education teacher in Cass City High School.

According to Mr. Weatherby, at the civil rights office, Mrs. Crouse said, after the complaint is registered it's out of my hands and the State of Michigan will pursue the case against the Cass City School Board. Mrs. Crouse said that she had Ernest Walpole, Caro attorney, attend a special meeting of the board last Thursday to explain to the board the legality of the situation.

Walpole told the board that not hiring Mrs. Crouse was sex discrimination and that there is now precedent in districts for hiring spouses in at least two incidents.

Mrs. Crouse is currently hired by the Huron County Intermediate District. Meanwhile, Principal Russell Richards said that he is awaiting direction from the school board for filling the special education teaching vacancy. The problem is that the school might end up hiring and paying two teachers for the same position, Richards said.

At the special meeting positions previously adopted by various board members were reaffirmed. Voting to honor a contract extended to Mrs. Crouse were President Geraldine Prieskorn, Dr. Ed Scollon and J.D. Tuckey.

Voting against were Dr. E. Paul Lockwood, Dick Albee, Theresa Burnette and Dean Hoag.

Before the official vote a telephone poll was taken. Several board members were called by Mrs. Prieskorn and others by Superintendent Don Crouse. At that time four persons appeared in favor.

Mrs. Prieskorn said she asked if there was an objection to hiring Mrs. Crouse and that at that time 4 had no objections.

One of the four, Hoag, said that what he said at the time of the phone call was that he had no objection to interviewing Mrs. Crouse.

At a meeting held Tuesday, Aug. 26, Hoag said that he was against hiring Mrs. Crouse and he voted that way in the balloting held Thursday. The remaining trustees that voted against the contract had said, "no," when called on the phone.

After the interview by the principal who offered a contract to Mrs. Crouse the superintendent started to take it to various board members for signatures.

It was then that the conflict was discovered.

2 teens' spree ends in arrest

Two Kingston boys will be appearing in probate court after a wild Friday night and early Saturday in which they stole a pickup truck and two cars and drove two of the vehicles into ditches.

The pickup truck was parked at the Kingston State Bank on M-46, after having been repossessed. The keys were in the ashtray.

According to Caro State Police, the two boys, one 16 and the other 15, were driving the vehicle northbound on Phillips Road, south of Bevans Road, when it went off the east side of the road, struck a mailbox and then a small tree. That was at 2 a.m.

The two boys then went to the home of Louis Wenzlaff, 2751 Phillips Road, Kingston, and took one of two cars parked in front.

They didn't get very far. When Wenzlaff reported the theft to the sheriff's department at 5:27 a.m., the deputy soon found the car in the ravine on the east side of the road, just south of Wenzlaff's home.

The boys then returned to the home, it was later learned, and took the second car parked there.

It was found later Saturday parked in the driveway of a vacant home on Jane

Willy demoted at wastewater plant

After 25 years as superintendent of the Cass City wastewater treatment plant, Nelson Willy was demoted by the village council Tuesday evening.

At a special session, the council members voted unanimously by voice vote to hire a new superintendent with class B certification for the plant.

Willy, presently licensed to operate class B plants, will be allowed to stay on as an employee should he be willing to do so. Until a new superintendent is hired, he will remain as superintendent.

The council's decision was made at the end of an almost two hour meeting, all but the first and last few minutes of which were conducted in closed executive session.

During that time, Willy met with council members a half-hour the first time, about one minute the second and about 10 minutes the last time.

Council members made no mention at the conclusion of the meeting why they took the action they did and afterwards, Village President Lambert Althaver declined comment.

Willy, after emerging from the first session with the council, said the accusation against him was, "I cannot supervise men." Council members did have praise for his technical abilities, he said.

What spurred the council was the resignation of Ken Miller as assistant operator at the plant, after about 18 months on the job. He recently passed examinations for his Class D license.

His resignation was accepted by the council Tuesday, effective the day before.

The plant has one other employee, a laborer paid with federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds.

Presumably another factor in the council's decision was that sometime during the final three months of 1981, the greatly enlarged and modernized sewage treatment plant will go into operation, which will take at least four men to operate and possibly five or six.

Probably two men will be certified plant operators.

The present plant is classified Class C but the new one will be Class B as it will have a larger treatment capacity and third treatment stage. The present plant only has two stages.

Willy, who worked alone at the plant until 1966, expressed varying emotions while the council deliberated his fate. "The good Lord

Would-be bandit gets surprise

As of Wednesday morning, the search was continuing for a man who attempted to rob the Whoopee Bowl store in Unionville Friday, but left with an injured left cheek.

Steven Goodro told Unionville police that the man entered the store at 4:20 p.m. carrying a brown paper bag.

He came up to the counter, pulled a .32 caliber revolver out of the bag and asked for money.

Goodro's response was to pull a tire iron from under the counter and swing it at the would-be robber, hitting him in the left cheek.

The man commented, "Only fooling," and left the store.

He got into what is believed to be a 1971-76 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, blue with a white top and a lot of rust, and left.

The suspect was described as white, about 23 years old and 160-70 pounds, 6-foot tall, with blond medium length hair and a blond mustache. He was wearing a blue and gray plaid flannel shirt and blue jeans.

The driver of the car had shoulder length blond hair.

Investigation is continuing by the sheriff's department and Unionville police.

Strike delays skill center opening

The new $4 million Tuscola Area Skill Center didn't open as scheduled Wednesday morning because the teachers employed there by the Tuscola Intermediate School District, plus special education teachers and nurses were on strike.

The strike became a certainty when contract negotiations ended about 12:15 Wednesday morning, when bargainers reached an impasse.

"The money just wasn't there," said Phyllis McCoy, chief negotiator for the professional staff.

Seventy-five percent of the members of the Tuscola Intermediate Education Association (TIEA) present at a meeting Monday night, voted to strike if no settlement was reached, she said. There were 80 persons there, which was all of the intermediate district's special education staff and nurses plus some skill center teachers.

Most of the non-economic language had been settled when the talks broke off early Wednesday. "Once the money is out of the way, the other non-economic issues will fall into place," she commented.

One of the non-economic issues that was resolved was that teachers in the skill center are now recognized as part of the bargaining unit.

The intermediate board's last economic proposal, Ms. McCoy said, was an 8 percent pay increase for each year of a two-year contract, plus teachers not at the top of the pay scale would continue to receive their annual increments.

The Tri-County Bargaining Association, which is representing the teachers, is asking 10 percent the first year (plus annual increments) and 2 percent plus a cost of living increase of from 6-8 percent, depending on the inflation rate.

Dr. Bruce Dunn, the intermediate district superintendent, confirmed those were the figures each side is proposing.

At Tuesday's session, he said, 12 of 14 issues were resolved, leaving only salary and fringe benefits to settle.

Negotiators met last Wednesday, Friday and Sunday, and, he said, a lot of progress had been made.

With picketers marching outside the district's buildings, he referred to the strike as illegal and chastised teachers for ignoring "the legal channels of using state mediation or fact finding in an attempt to reach an agreement."

As of Wednesday morning, he said the intermediate school board was not planning any action other than bargaining to end the strike "and I don't know if and when we would."

"At some time in the future, we will have to get to the table to get this ironed out . . . I just can't say when."

No new meeting date has been set. "We just called off bargaining because we couldn't reach agreement," Ms. McCoy said.

Speaking to the Chronicle early Wednesday, she left open the possibility the teachers may ask for the next negotiating session, possibly yet that day.

She thought she would probably meet with the TIEA members Wednesday afternoon to review the status of negotiations "and take direction from there."

ROTARIAN KEN JENSEN, the key man in the construction of the Cass City Exercise Trail, takes time out to pose with the sign showing how the trail works. Dedication is set for 2 p.m. Sunday.

Almost weekly the Chronicle tosses out want ads from firms advertising money making schemes that offer payment for work at home or sales of products that require investment in stock.

We do it because readers lured by these ads get bilked. Usually you can't make any money at the home work and the payment for stock in get-rich-quick schemes is many times more than the worth of the material.

Occasionally one gets by us. We were in good company. It also got by many of the big city dailies. The ad was for "Stewardesses 18-32. Free Training. Contact Jetliners, etc."

What the ad didn't say was the plane ran from Chicago to Naked City and to serve you had to strip, get naked. Naked City is the largest nudist resort in the world.

For the first time in 30 odd years there was no one at the Chronicle on Labor Day. In the past, the Haires spent at least part of Labor Day at the office. This year we were out of town and the joint was closed.

That we can close Monday and still meet the Wednesday deadline is progress. We do it faster today than we did before.

If circumstances hadn't taken us out of town Monday there's no doubt we'd have been in the office even though we didn't absolutely have to.

Monday holidays make an ideal time to get work finished uninterrupted and make Tuesdays of short work weeks much easier.

There will be new football pants on Cass City's football players this fall. The pants cost $1,800. That's expensive, says Coach Don Schelke, but the pants last for six years or more. The formerly used pants lasted just one season.

What really makes it good business for the school is that the Varsity Club kicked in $1,000 towards the purchase that was raised through the sale of popcorn and similar activities.

Brock pleads guilty to two charges

Terry E. Brock, 20, of Sebawaing, pleaded guilty to two charges when he appeared in Tuscola County Circuit Court Tuesday.

Before Judge Martin E. Clements, he pleaded guilty to attempted absconding bond because of his failure to appear for trial Jan. 30 on a charge of unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle.

Brock was apprehended in Dallas, Texas, in July and waived extradition to Michigan.

His plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Sept. 15. Bond was continued.

Before Judge Patrick R. Joslyn, Brock pleaded guilty to joy riding in connection with the charge for which he was to stand trial. He was charged with having driven away a truck-tractor June 10, 1979, in Indianfields township.

That plea was accepted and sentencing scheduled Sept. 15.

Brock also is to be sentenced Oct. 14 by Judge Norman A. Baguley for violation of probation in connection with another case.

Also Tuesday before Judge Joslyn:

Sentencing of Dean M. Keyser, 17, of 3036 Warner Road, Cass City, for malicious destruction of property over $100 was delayed to June 8, 1981. Costs of $200 were assessed, plus he is to pay restitution to Jesse J. Bruce Jr. of Barrons Road, Deford, for damage done to Bruce's two tractors and slashing bags of Atrazine May 30.

He pleaded guilty to the charge July 21.

James A. Mazzola, 32, of 3150 Deekerville Road, Cass City, was placed on three years' probation for breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling.

He was also sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, with credit given for five days served, fined $100 and assessed attorney's fees.

He pleaded guilty to the charge July 21, of breaking into a storage building April 17 near Caro.

DISTRICT COURT

Judge Richard F. Kern Tuesday sentenced Ronald

Roberts, 30, of 6362 Fourth Street, Cass City, for driving under the influence of liquor.

He was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail, five to be served now and five deferred, placed on one year's probation, fined $100 and assessed $150 court costs.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Aug. 13, having been arrested April 26 in Cass City.

The Haire Net

The polls show that Ronald Reagan has slipped dramatically in public popularity in the last two weeks. So much so that the Carter brain trust has decided to cancel plans for advertising attacking the Republican presidential candidate.

Carter backers gleefully say that Reagan is doing more damage to his campaign than they could.

I'm running counter to the polls again. There's more respect for Carter here now than there was previously.

That's because in the last couple of weeks he has been telling it the way it is or at least the way he feels it should be.

That really gives voters a chance to decide. If that brand of conservatism turns you on you should spare no effort to get to the polls.

That's been one of my two complaints against Reagan from the first. His conservatism. His stand on the issues. The other is that his background as an actor doesn't convince me that he's capable of running the country.

There's a horror story that keeps flitting across my consciousness like a message center bulletin illuminated with red light. Suppose Reagan should consider tossing out an atomic bomb for another noble cause?

Some staunch Republicans keep saying that even if he isn't the strongest of candidates, he'll have able people around him and we can dump Carter and bring in a party that can do something about the economic ills of our time.

The Reagan of the last two weeks casts doubt on that theory. I'm sure that when he went speaking to the Veterans of Foreign Wars about the noble Vietnam War; vows to seek absolute nuclear superiority over Russia; applauds a platform by Rev. Jerry Falwell who urges that the government be put in the hands of persons who share his religious beliefs, and then speaks out for Taiwan and later recants when the China reaction came in, wasn't advised to take those stands by any of his advisors.

Or, if he was, you'd have to at least question the wisdom of the people advising him now and who would presumably be swaying his opinion if he were elected.

Of course it's a long time to November. I've been at the point of convincing myself that Jimmy Carter wasn't all that bad. Maybe with 4 years' experience he'll be able to muddle through.

Just when that self-delusion seems viable Carter pulls an abrupt about face and the question remains, can we stand another four years of this?

So it boils down as the lesser of two evils in my mind and in the minds of most Americans.

Right now Carter has the inside track simply because he didn't take any precipitous action that got us into war.

Isn't it sorrowful that a president may be decided on a negative instead of a positive evaluation?

SWEET 'N' LOW

Even when money talks in a whisper, nobody seems to have the least little trouble hearing.

"If It Fitz. . ." My core is melting

By Jim Fitzgerald

Today, the subject is cars and why I finally lost my cool and decided I'm mad as hell and not going to take it anymore, although I may change my mind if I win an Academy Award.

Donald Kaul is a good place to begin. He is a former Detroitier who makes his living in the most honorable manner possible — writing a newspaper column. He does it in Iowa, for the Des Moines Register. Recently he visited his old hometown, then wrote:

"Detroit has always been a creature of the auto, of course. Indeed, for decades it was synonymous with the manufacture of cars. The Motor City, they called it. But in creating cars, it created its own destruction. It's as though a town given over to the distillation of whisky had turned into a community of helpless alcoholics."

Kaul's beef is that Detroit has too many freeways and parking lots. This makes it possible for people to work in tall buildings downtown and live in suburban housing developments where farms should be. The city loses its tax base and is fragmented into ugly patches by crisscrossing freeways. Kaul is mad at the car for causing all this absurdity.

OK for him. I'm mad at the car for being a car. It should be something else. It should be a moving sidewalk, or a subway like the one in Toronto, or the old streetcar we sold to South Americans 30 years ago. I'd settle for a fleet of decent buses if the drivers promised to treat passengers like live people instead of crated cargo.

Anything is better than a car. Walking is best, when practical. The nicest thing in my life is that I can walk to work. But sometimes I must travel long distances, and a car is the only way to go. That's what happened last month, and I was reminded, once again, that cars aren't manufactured to provide transportation, they're manufactured to give auto mechanics something to do, and parking lot attendants something to park.

At first I thought it was deja vu. An unpleasant smell and a wisp of smoke were oozing from the dashboard of my Oldsmobile. "I have the strange feeling I've lived this moment before," I told my wife. "You have," she said.

The first time it happened was last October. The service manager at the dealership where I bought the car said I had a burned-out heater core, whatever the hell that is. I took his word for it, and he took my $153 for a new core, including $28-per-hour labor. Less than 5,000 miles later, I needed another new core, whatever the hell that is.

There is a new service manager at my dealership. Most dealerships rotate service managers every few months so faulty work can always be blamed on someone who "doesn't work here anymore." I suggested that I hadn't received my $153 worth and that I deserved some kind of a discount on a second core. The new service manager said there was no way this could be done. Apparently the chronic burn-outs at my core were an act of God and, unfortunately, God doesn't have a GM dealership.

The only way I knew how to demonstrate my displeasure was to take my core business elsewhere. Amazingly, I stumbled upon a GM dealer who charged $112 for a new core, including labor. In these days of multiple-digit inflation, there was only one explanation of why the same thing cost $41 less eight months later: I was really screwed on the first core.

The next day, circumstances forced me to drive to work and park in the lot across the street. The charge is $3.50 maximum for anything more than two hours. I needed the space for six hours but, in the middle of the day, I had to take the car out for an hour. The lot attendant said customers weren't allowed to leave and return for the same $3.50 and I would have to pay $7 for his crummy space.

That's when I became mad as hell. I told the attendant I wasn't going to take it anymore, and I drove off without paying the second $3.50. If the cops are looking for me, they will probably sniff me out the next time my core burns out.

PEDALING AROUND

Struck and unstruck

By Mike Eliasohn

As a reporter, I have mixed emotions about strikes and labor negotiations.

News is always nice, but like any issue where there are two sides, covering the story can be a bit of a pain.

I am writing this on Thursday, Aug. 28. Come Wednesday morning, the day the Chronicle comes out in which you will be reading this, I know I will be taking one of two photographs for the front page.

The photograph will either be of children returning to school or teachers carrying picket signs.

I will get more mileage newswise if the teachers are on strike -- heaven knows how many stories will be written before a settlement is reached -- but like probably everyone, prefer that agreement is reached without a strike.

Having never observed a negotiating session, perhaps I don't understand why it is often so hard to reach an agreement.

It makes no difference whether it is the United Auto Workers and General Motors or a school board and teachers.

Both sides know when they sit down for the first time they eventually will reach an agreement.

I suppose I sound idealistic -- especially for a cynic like me -- but I don't understand all the rigmarole that is part of negotiating.

Management offers much less than it knows it will have to give and the workers submit a list of proposals (a polite word for "demands") that is much more than they know they are going to get.

Eventually, sometimes after a lengthy strike, both sides reach a compromise. Why couldn't they have compromised in the beginning?

The answer, of course, is that management thinks it can get away with less by holding out and the workers figure they can get more by holding out.

School boards, at least in theory, have more reason to hold out than private employers. Unlike General Motors, a school board cannot raise its prices to compensate for higher wages.

Complicating the situation is the question of what is considered a fair wage for someone who works less than nine months a year, granted that some work very hard during that period.

The way teacher pay is determined has changed quite a bit from the days when the superintendent figured out his budget for the year and then told the teachers, "Here is how much you are going to get." Both sides in most instances now have professional negotiators to do most of the talking.

Part of the reason is that teacher contracts are very complex these days and it takes an expert to understand them. The agreement with the Cass City teachers that expired runs 37 pages; Owen-Gage's was 33.

The major reason for professional negotiators, I suspect, is that it allows both sides to be nastier. It's the idea of a hired gun.

It's hard to be demanding when the persons on both sides of the table see each other every day and may play golf or bowl together.

But whereas the superintendent, if doing all the negotiating, can say to a teacher negotiator, "Now, John, you know we can't afford that," when it's two professionals doing the talking, such niceties are presumably missing.

I get the impression that if Cass City teachers go on strike, they feel the public will take their side -- that is, put the pressure on the school board to settle.

I don't have much supporting evidence, but I suspect the opposite is often true. The public doesn't give teachers the respect it once did, but it also feels that as educators of its children, if teachers are to be respected, they shouldn't be striking.

The result is that many members of the public, instead of supporting the teachers, think of them as greedy.

Nobody is perfect department:

Albert Miljare died in 1918, not 1912, as mentioned in last week's centennial farm story.

Someone finally told me. A month ago when we ran a photo of Germania Road being blacktopped between Bay City-Forestville and Cass City Roads, I said it was in Evergreen township. I'm sure Greenleaf township would be happy if Evergreen helped pay for it.

At the last Elkland township board meeting, a complaint was lodged about a gravel pit operation in neighboring Greenleaf township. I should have asked him sooner, but Greenleaf Supervisor Gerald Bock said there were two operations, maintained by different asphalt paving contractors, and both temporary.

It may be more difficult to make friends than to make enemies, but friends are well worth the trouble.

TAKING PLEDGES in the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy telethon Monday afternoon in Cass City were, from left, Sherry Kappen, Betty Greenleaf and Karen Fischer. The local effort, sponsored by United Steelworkers Local 6222 netted $2,239 in telephone pledges and $1,232 in cash contributions, down from the more than $5,000 raised last year by the union. Nationally, a record $31.1 million was raised.

DROPPING IN the money collected by him and his brother Rob to combat Muscular Dystrophy was Scott Albee. They collected about $60. Guarding the fishbowl for cash contributions were John McDonald and Jackie Heronemus.

Life in this world will be better when people learn to bear other folks' burdens as cheerfully as they air their faults.

Summer youth job program big success

The federally funded Summer Youth Employment Program, now ended, was a big success, it was reported last Thursday to the Thumb Area Consortium Administrative Board.

For the first time since the program began in 1969, all available positions were filled.

Slightly more than 400 youths, ages 14-21, from low income families received employment with various government agencies, paid at the minimum wage of $3.10 an hour for 20-40 hours per week of work.

The Human Development Commission, which ran the program for the consortium, overspent its original allocation of $461,101. Consortium Executive Director Frank Lenard worked out a 3-for-1 swap with the state Bureau of Employment and Training (BET), receiving $30,000 in unused summer youth program funds, in exchange for which the consortium gave up $10,000 in Youth Employment Training Program funds, which is a year-round program.

The summer youth program also received a clean bill of health from the state bureau, an employee of which interviewed participants and worksite supervisors Aug. 18-19. A review of records was conducted earlier.

"As no major problems surfaced in the review," the letter from BET official Milton O. Waters said, "no corrective actions are needed." As always, Region 7A (Thumb Area Consortium) has demonstrated its ability to operate an exemplary Summer Youth Employment Program.

In other action, the consortium board adopted an affirmative action timetable for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1. The timetable sets goals for percentage of minorities to be enrolled in each of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs run by the consortium.

The "bench marks" are set by the state, based on data obtained from various sources. By Sept. 30, 1981, the timetable calls for women to make up 45-55 percent of total enrollment (the percentage varies, depending on the program); blacks, 1 percent; Hispanics, 4.4-5.6 percent; other non-whites, 1 percent; handicapped, 11.1 percent; and older workers (55 and over), 4.3-5 percent. As of June 30 of this year, the percentages enrolled were: females 46-64.9 percent; blacks, 4-1 percent;

Hispanics, 2.1-5 percent; other non-whites, 3-2 percent; handicapped, 6.3-12.3 percent, and older workers, 1.2-3.1 percent.

If the goals aren't met, Lenard said, the federal government might withhold some funds, but he doesn't expect that will happen as long as an earnest effort is made to comply with the minority requirements.

Reports submitted for the April-June quarter for the various CETA programs run by the consortium showed 7 percent of its total funds being spent for administration, versus 15 percent allowable, and the lowest of the 10 consortiums in the state.

The Thumb consortium will spend a total of almost $7.8 million this year for programs and administration.

The board authorized leasing of an IBM photocopier and collator (sorter), for $711 per month, which includes service and making of up to 15,000 copies per month, to replace another machine. The consortium makes from 8,000-10,000 copies a month now.

CETA Title VI work project requests approved included four workers for Elmwood township, four for Columbia, four for Wells and three for Elkland, all to cut roadside brush in conjunction with the Tuscola County Road Commission.

Also approved were three workers for Grant township to cut brush and clean up the cemetery and four in Sheridan township to paint the township hall.

Most of the projects will expire by Sept. 30, when funding runs out.

Bulla faces 4 charges after brush with Cass City police

A Cass City man faces four charges in district court, the aftermath of a high speed chase early Saturday.

Arrested Monday before Judge Richard F. Kern on charges of attempted assault of a police officer, resisting arrest, driving under the influence of liquor and no operator's license in his possession was Lawrence J. Bulla, 22, of 6777 Kelly Road.

Bond was set at $3,000 and a pretrial hearing scheduled Sept. 30. Bulla posted 10 percent of the bond and was released from the county jail.

Cass City police reported that when they were on patrol at 2:40 a.m., a car turned from Main Street onto Seeger, headed south at a high rate of speed.

The officers started pursuit and on Cemetery Road were going as fast as 95 miles per hour and gaining only slightly.

The car turned east on Kelly Road, pulled into a driveway and the driver and one of four passengers ran into the house. The officers then pulled in behind.

Two minutes later, the driver returned, said he didn't have a driver's license in his possession, when he was asked, and denied he had driven the car.

Officer Phil Klaus asked the man to come to the patrol car, but he reportedly pushed the policeman backwards. He and officer Ken Schott had to push the man to the ground in order to put handcuffs on him. The man kicked and spit at one of the officers.

He was taken to the county jail.

Cass City police arrested George E. Russell, 29, of 5077 Koepfgen Road, on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor at 2:35 a.m. Friday.

His car was stopped on Koepfgen, after being followed from inside the village limits.

He was taken to the county jail and later released on bond, pending arraignment in district court Sept. 8.

Diana Paskowski of 4260

Seeger Street reported to village police last Wednesday that a $200 ring was stolen from her room June 27, during an open house for her brother's graduation. It was thought the ring, which contained two diamonds, might have been lost, so the theft wasn't reported earlier.

A representative of Delta Star Utility Co., 3283 Elmwood Road, Elmwood township, reported to the sheriff's department last Wednesday that an undetermined amount of gasoline was siphoned from vehicles parked on its property and the gas caps were thrown away. Loss was estimated at $50.

New books at the library

LIVING ARROWS, by Gilliam Martin (fiction). An exceptional, evocative perception of a woman's relations with her mother-in-law. The painful arrows slung throughout a lifetime are recalled, then dismissed and replaced with more gracious images as the daughter-in-law sits beside her husband's once flighty and abrasive mother during her final hours. The author offers a sensitive portrayal of women ensnared by family ties but with a less romantic and more starkly realistic outcome.

DAMN YANKEE: THE BILLY MARTIN STORY, by Maury Allen (non-fiction). The name Billy Martin is synonymous with baseball turmoil. From his days as the brawling second baseman of Casey Stengel's champion Yankees to his more recent managerial triumphs, including the modern-day Yanks, Martin has always been the center of controversy. And he has almost been successful; that's the problem. As a loser he would have become a baseball footnote, but as a winner the game can't seem to let him go. This sympathetic, at times, humorous portrait by New York Post columnist Maury Allen covers Martin's life from his poor Italian upbringing in California through his playing career to his recent dismissal (s) as the Yankee manager.

BOTH OF ME, by Mary Stuart (non-fiction). In 1951, Mary Stuart starred in the first episode of "Search for Tomorrow," CBS's longest-running soap opera. All the years since, she has continued to play Jo, the character whose eventful life has paralleled Mary Stuart's and reflected the rapidly changing times. This candid and engaging autobiography covers traditional ground and much more. While it provides inside looks at the early days of television in New York and moves on to the glamorous Hollywood of Errol Flynn and Judy Garland, Both of Me is also a personal history of hard work, sudden success, and the need to reconcile marriage, family and a soaring career in an age when such complications were not the norm.

Bank opens branch near Bad Axe

The Verona township office of Farmers & Merchants State Bank of Sebawaing, has opened for business at 704 North Van Dyke, Bad Axe, it was announced by Norman H. Schroeder, president of Farmers & Merchants. The office is located temporarily in a mobile unit, immediately north of the C & O Railroad track, on the east side of M-53. The opening came following receipt of the Certificate of Authority from the Financial Institutions Bureau in Lansing, Schroeder said.

Two area 4-H'ers from Sanilac county won top honors in state 4-H competition Aug. 19 at Michigan State University.

Michelle Magraw of rural Kingston, riding "Romeo's Wilf," was judged grand champion in fitting and showing at the 4-H horse show.

She also received a gold award in western pleasure and a silver in hunter seat equitation.

Diana Eckenswiler of Argyle earned first place in senior fitting and showmanship and second in the senior meat quality division of the 4-H rabbit judging and showmanship contest.

It's a good idea to remember that life is a game of chance and the cards are usually stacked against most of the players.

Your Neighbor says

U.S. should spend more for defense

The amount of money the United States spends for defense is an issue in the Presidential campaign and in Congress.

Tim Hill is among those who feels our country should be spending more for defense.

He views the issue from the inside, as an airman first class at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The U.S., he feels, needs to get its military technology on a level with Russia, so that the Soviets won't be able to play "such a dominant factor in world politics."

A lot of the military vehicles he sees, "if there ever was a war, I don't think they could stand it."

Other new equipment is needed, he commented, for instance, "we should replace the B-52," the bomber that is about 25 years old.

Servicemen are due to get an 11.7 percent pay increase starting Oct. 1. "It will definitely help, but they need to do more after that."

"For a single guy, it's not bad," he said of the pay, "but for married personnel... it's kind of discouraging."

The result is that many don't stay in. He has been told that half the married enlisted personnel are eligible for food stamps, although many don't apply because of pride.

Hill doesn't have that problem as he is single.

He is the son of Howard and Bonnie Hill of 5296 Robinson Road and a 1978 graduate of Cass City High School.

A munitions specialist, he said he likes being in the Air Force. He has been in one year, has five years to go on his present enlistment, and as of now, plans to stay in for 20.

Seek accord in Pigeon River dispute

Officials on both sides of the dispute on oil drilling in the Pigeon River Country State Forest are raising the possibility of holding discussions to try to reach an agreement that would put an end to litigation that has surrounded the drilling question for the past four years.

The talk of a possible agreement comes as the Legislature is considering a bill to facilitate oil drilling in the area. The bill is pending in the Senate Commerce Committee.

The purpose of such talks would be to see if a compromise solution to the controversy over oil development in the Pigeon River area is possible without continuing court litigation.

Currently, an order allowing drilling development at 10 sites in the lower part of the southern one-third of the Pigeon River forest is being appealed.

Earlier court cases had led to drilling being restricted to the southern one-third of the forest. A request that Shell Oil Co. be prohibited from drilling at the site was denied by the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court.

Worry is a way of putting today's sun behind tomorrow's cloud.

Several minor injuries in area automobile accidents

Thirteen-year-old Ronald Voss II was treated and released from Hills and Dales General Hospital Sunday after a mishap which started when a dog began chasing his motorcycle.

Cass City police reported the youth, of 8160 Crawford Road, Deford, was eastbound on Shabbona Road, east of Englehart, when the dog ran alongside and started nipping at his foot. He looked down and lost control.

A passenger was unhurt. The mishap occurred at 5:15 p.m.

At 9 p.m. Sunday, according to sheriff's deputies, Robert L. Bureson, 23, of 4153 Maple Street, Cass City, was southbound on Crawford Road, south of Mushroom, turned too fast into a driveway on the east side of the road, and his car didn't complete the turn. It struck a tree off the south side of the drive.

Bureson sought his own treatment for minor injuries.

A passenger in a vehicle involved in a 6:45 p.m. accident Saturday sought treatment from a private physician afterwards.

Injured was Loretta Martin, 16, of 2811 Cass City Road, Ubyly, one of two passengers in the vehicle driven by Glenn Sharrard, 28, of 60 S. Kingston Road, Deford. Deputies reported he was southbound on Phillips Road, north of Shabbona Road, when his truck hit some bumps in the gravel road, slid sideways, rolled halfway over and collided with a tree off the east side of the road.

At 10:30 a.m. last Thursday, according to Caro state police, Robert L. Becker, 40, of 4125 West Street, Cass City, was headed northeast on M-81, southwest of Gerou Road, when a stone thrown from a mower being operated alongside the road shattered a side window of his car. The mower belonged to and was operated by an employee of the Tuscola County Road Commission.

Deputies reported that at 10 p.m. Sunday, David J. Kenward, 22, of 3800 Cumber Road, Ubyly, was headed northwest on M-24 near Mayville when he failed to make the curve.

His vehicle went off the south side of the road, then traveled 339 feet, striking a newspaper box and rolling over onto its top before coming to a halt.

Randy T. Bergh, 28, of 4118 S. Seeger Street, Lot 23, was northbound on Hurds Corner Road, south of Rossman Road, according to deputies, when his car struck and killed a pig. The mishap took place at 6:15 a.m. Monday.

PIGS FOR CARDINALS — Edward Bilicki rakes the coals as eight hogs turn on the spit in preparation for the third annual Kingston Athletic Boosters pig roast and barn dance, held Saturday on the Fred Ruggles farm near the high school. About 800 attended, who unfortunately only had appetite for six of the animals. Proceeds totaled about $3,000, which after deduction for expenses, will be used to buy uniforms and equipment for the Kingston athletic program.

BRIDGE WORK — Construction of the new Main Street bridge in Ubyly began about six weeks ago and should be completed by Nov. 15. Cost is about $150,000, of which the federal government is paying 80 percent; the state, 10 percent, and the village, 10 percent, plus engineering expenses, making Ubyly's total about $33,000. William Brothers of Ionia is doing the construction.

Seek compromise with big oil companies in Pigeon River drilling

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

After more than 12 years of bickering and court battles, one of the leading groups opposing oil drilling and development in the Pigeon River Forest Area presented a compromise they said could resolve the longest and most controversial environmental issues in Michigan history.

Ken Sikkema, executive director of the West Michigan Environmental Action Council, said the compromise could stop action on legislation (SB 1119) which, he said, could have an impact far beyond Pigeon River.

He said that bill, pending in the Senate Commerce Committee, would repeal all environmental laws that affect oil and natural gas exploration and development.

Webb Smith, a lawyer representing three oil companies, said he was not optimistic the so-called compromise would be acceptable to the oil companies.

SIKKEMA SAID THE compromise was developed over several months and it consists of five points. He added that the group was not "wedded" to further details beyond the five points.

The points require sequential development of oil lands, beginning with the least sensitive areas; a specific time on oil activities; additional environmental controls, particularly limits on off-road vehicles; public involvement in all phases of development, and additional monitoring and enforcement efforts to ensure compliance with the development plan.

Sikkema said the proposal will end the decisive debate on the Pigeon River, provide good state policy and end litigation over the area and drilling rights thereon.

The area has been embroiled in controversy since 1968 when mineral leases were first sold in the area. In 1976 a consent order was issued allowing for drilling in the southern one-third of the forest.

THAT ORDER WAS opposed by a number of different organizations besides the West Michigan group, including the Sierra Club, Michigan Lakes and Streams Association, Detroit Audubon Society and East Michigan Environmental Action Council.

In 1979, the state Supreme Court prohibited drilling at 10 test sites.

If the compromise is accepted, "people interested in the comprehensive statute will take another look at SB 1119. To the extent that this is a reasonable alternative to the legislation, it seems only right to hold off on SB 1119," Sikkema said.

Smith, representing Shell Oil, Amoco Oil and the Northern Michigan Exploration Co., said even if the compromise was accepted, the companies would likely continue to support the pending legislation.

THE COMPROMISE would not allow any drilling in the northern two-thirds of the forest and it would divide the southern third into three more sections. The southern most section, the least environmentally sensitive would be developed first with the other sections following, Sikkema explained.

Sikkema said the West Michigan group has not sought any endorsements for the plan but the group felt it could unite all the different factions.

Smith said, however, that while his clients were still studying the proposal, the oil companies felt the 1976 consent order provided enough protection.

Helpful friends ease fire loss burden for Putnam

Things are looking up for the Jack Putnam family, whose home on Mushroom Road, Wells township, was destroyed by fire Aug. 2.

Putnam and his wife Sandy have four children, plus a neighbor boy lives with them.

The seven moved Friday into the used mobile home which was purchased and now sits on their property.

A concrete slab for a permanent foundation was to have been poured Tuesday, according to Putnam's sister-in-law, Pauline Putnam. The mobile home has an expansion unit, so has enough room for the seven, at least temporarily.

Once the insurance settlement is received, the Putnams are hoping to buy a nearby house, she said.

Prior to moving in the mobile home, the family had been living in a motel and with her and her husband, Cecil.

The Putnam family, who were away at the time of the fire, lost almost everything except the clothes they were wearing.

Thanks, however, to the many persons who responded to appeals, most of their needs have been met.

According to Pauline Putnam, her in-laws were given food, clothing, furniture, pots and pans, dishes and even a Bible. One elderly couple went door-to-door collecting items from their neighbors.

Calls are still occasionally received. A woman Friday brought a bed.

The family still could use a few blankets, davenport and another chair, she said. Pauline Putnam can be called at 872-3871.

Bicycle motocross — Fast and fast growing sport for kids

By Mike Eliasohn

J.R. Newell's bicycle is worth $400.

J.R. Newell is seven years old. The Owosso youngster is one of an increasing number of participants in a sport called bicycle motocross — BMX for short.

The bikes do not have motors. The "moto" part of the name comes from the motorcycle sport of motocross, after which BMX is patterned.

In both, the riders race over a short dirt course with jumps, hills and turns, the difference being that in BMX, the course is much shorter and leg power is used instead of engine power.

In both, special machines are used. The BMX machines, with the exception of the cruiser class for older riders, use 20-inch wheels. The bicycles usually use wide knobby tires, have one speed, and are light but strong, normally 25 pounds or less.

Because of the extensive use of lightweight components, the bikes are not lightweight in price. The cheapest BMX bike runs about $150 and wouldn't be very competitive. The most expensive cost several hundred dollars.

That's not the kind of bread most kids carry around in their jeans, so by necessity, BMX is a family sport, even if not all members of the family participate directly.

Girls can race, either against each other or in the regular classes with the boys, but BMX remains a largely male sport.

The minimum age for the sport is five. Until the last few years, riders stopped participating by their late teens, when they got too large for their small bikes.

That problem has been solved by the invention of cruiser bikes, which use 26-inch wheels and are somewhat akin to the old "balloon tire bombers" that were the standard kids' bike before the advent of 10-speeds and 20-inch banana seat bikes.

With the cruisers, even parents can get into the action.

J.R. NEWELL — J.R. sounds classier than Jeff — was one of several hundred riders competing on a recent week end at the Great Lakes National BMX event on a track near Lansing.

It was possibly the largest and certainly the most prestigious BMX event ever held in Michigan and attracted participants from as far away as California. (The Golden State is where BMX originated about 10 years ago.)

According to J.R.'s father, Bob, an ex-motorcycle racer, getting involved in the sport was a joint decision. They went to a few races last year, liked what they saw and "both decided to try it."

The father has invested about $600 so far, and figures the minimum to get started would be about half that. (In addition to the bike, there is also the cost of protective clothing and safety helmet.)

The Newells — Mrs. Newell also goes along — usually travel with a group of families from Owosso involved in the sport. It's possible to go somewhere every week end, and the Newells have gone as far as Elkhart, Ind. BMX can be a year-round sport if one chooses as races are held indoors during winter. As for why families get involved, Bob Newell explained, "The kids really love it. That's really the situation."

In his first year of competition, J.R. has done very well. It takes five wins in the novice class in his age group to move up to the expert class and he has already accomplished that.

JEFF FOSHAG, 16, of Monroe, has also done very well in his first full year of competition, collecting nine trophies in 11 races.

A lot of his friends were involved in the sport, which got him interested, so he bought a used bike, raced once last year, liked it and decided to get involved heavily this year.

His parents gave him a $120 frame for Christmas and he has been doing various odd jobs (and getting advances on his allowance) to earn money for components, which he constantly upgrades. He figures he now has between $400 and $500 invested in his 21-pound machine.

After Jeff got involved, brother Robert, 11, got interested, and after that their parents, so now the entire family goes to races almost every week end.

So far they have been to such places as Detroit, Woodhaven, Birch Run, Petoskey and Elkhart, Ind. "We've been to every one," said their father, Walter, who exhibited as much enthusiasm for the sport as did his two sons.

A FEW PERSONAL PRECAUTIONARY NOTES:

BMX racers wear safety helmets, protective clothing, there is safety padding on the bicycle and the cycles are extra strong so that they won't break, plus there are medical personnel at the events in case of injury.

Would-be BMX racers, after reading this, should not try such riding on standard bicycles. Something could break, for instance, the handlebars, resulting in serious injury to the rider. Standard bikes can be strengthened to take the stress, but the result is an already heavy bike being made heavier.

There are many inexpensive bikes sold that look like motocross bikes, but aren't, as they don't have the necessary strengthened frame, wheels, handlebars, etc., so shouldn't be used for BMX riding.

The nearest BMX track is Baja Acres, southwest of Millington.

Anyone who would like more information about the sport can call me at the Chronicle in the evening. M.R.E.

THEY'RE OFF — A starting gate that drops down ensures an equal start for all racers. A maximum of eight riders race per heat, which consists of one lap of the track.

SPLISH, SPLASH — The slick track made staying upright on the banked turns difficult, as this female rider found out. Injuries can happen, one circumstance being when a rider goes down in a pack and is run over by others.

Getting soaked

Are you a tub person or a shower person? Taking a shower uses about 10 gallons of water, while a bath uses 20 gallons. To save on water bills, take showers instead of baths. And if you prefer baths, after bathing let the water stand in the tub until it cools. The heat from the tub is sufficient to warm a small house on a chilly summer or fall evening.

BMX RACERS spend most of their time standing on the pedals, as opposed to sitting down.

CONDITIONS for the Great Lakes bicycle motocross event at the Jack Pine track north of Lansing were very muddy, which slowed speeds and made negotiating banked turns like this one tricky.

OVER THE HILL — Under dry conditions with faster speeds, these racers would have been flying off this hill instead of riding over it. BMX racers can get several feet off the ground.

Pledges can be made to Tuscola

The Tuscola County United Way Board has announced a change in the designation policy for United Way pledges this year.

According to President Iris Tuckey, Tuscola residents who are employed in Saginaw county can now designate 50 percent of their pledged amount to Tuscola County United Way.

They cannot designate their pledges to local United Way organizations, such as the Elkland-Novesta United Way, but the new policy will still be of benefit locally, said Mrs. Tuckey, the outgoing president of the Elkland-Novesta fund drive.

She urges all Tuscola county residents employed in Saginaw county to ask for a special designation form when filling out their pledge card at their place of employment.

Saginaw County United Way was the last in Michigan to allow some of the funds it collects to be designated for other counties, Mrs. Tuckey said. Tuscola county residents employed in all other counties should also ask for the special designation form.

The Elkland-Novesta United Way fund drive starts Oct. 7. The United Way drive in Saginaw county starts a couple of weeks earlier.

Fundamentalist Church rally set Sept. 13

Several area fundamentalist churches will sponsor a rally Saturday, Sept. 13, with the theme of "America - Back to God."

Featured speaker will be Dr. Al Jamney, a representative of fundamentalist causes in Washington, D.C. who is in regular contact with members of Congress.

A large choir and a singing group will provide music.

The churches which have organized the rally are Baptist and Bible churches in Tuscola and Lapeer counties which are "fundamentalist" in their theology.

Besonen sees O-G in fight for title

It will be hard for the Owen-Gage football team to top last year's outstanding season, but they won't be accused of not trying.

The Bulldogs won the North Central D League title in sweeping to their perfect 9-0 regular season and qualified for the state championship playoffs, though they didn't get past their first game.

Graduation left head coach Arnie Besonen, back for his 11th or 12th season, (he forgets), with some big holes to fill.

The biggest problem facing the team, he said, is inexperience, as he will be forced to start four freshmen and sophomores on offense and defense, three of them playing both ways.

Lost by graduation were the whole left side of the line, Dan Warack, Rich Powell and Alan Haag, right tackle Pete Klemkowsky, who was an all-stater, speedy backs Brad Erickson, also all-state, and Jeff Hallock and quarterback Kirk Carolan.

Advancing to the helm will be junior Craig Gettel, who played the past two years at defense and was second string quarterback. "Looking good" was the coach's summation of his new signal caller after watching him in practice. He expects the 5-10, 165-pounder to "throw as much if not more" than did Carolan, who was known for his passing.

Owen-Gage has been known for its speedy backs and upholding the tradition this season will be Jim Glidden, who ran 10-second 100-yard dash in the state track and field championships last spring, and Scott Gaeth, both seniors. The other starting back is scheduled to be freshman Alan LaValley.

The defense, Besonen said, "looks pretty healthy," with Scott Gaeth, Robert LaFave and Kendall Howard, in his third year as defensive end, being the stalwarts.

Besonen expects his Bulldogs to again be contenders for the league title, but much will depend on his players remaining healthy as the team has "no depth at all."

He predicts the final league standings will read North Huron, Akron-Fairgrove, Kingston, Carsonville-Port Sanilac, Peck and Caseville, with Owen-Gage at or near the top.

The schedule, with games starting at 8 p.m. unless stated otherwise, is:

- Sept. 5 at Twining Arena Eastern (non-league, 3:30 p.m.)
- Sept. 12 Caseville
- Sept. 19 at North Huron
- Sept. 26 Kingston (homecoming)
- Oct. 3 at Akron-Fairgrove
- Oct. 10 Peck (dad's night)
- Oct. 17 at Napoleon (non-league)
- Oct. 24 at Carsonville-PS
- Oct. 30 at Michigan School for the Deaf, Flint (non-league, Thursday, 3 p.m.)

Hawk girls set to defend Thumb B League crown

Cass City lost some talented girls from the championship quintet that brought the Hawks their first Thumb B Conference title in history last season but the girls that remain promise to make a strong bid to successfully defend the championship. Coach Lloyd Schinnerer will be able to field a veteran, talented team when the season opens Sept. 4 at Harbor Beach. There will be some big shoes to fill and it's probable that the rebounding and all-around play of Libby Hartel will be missed. Graduated is play-making three-year veteran Nancy Tonti. Vickie Pobanz is another that will be missed. She was a rugged rebounder that helped the Hawks to the title and the finals of the regionals in 1979. Also gone are Tammi Rabideau and Connie Clark.

That's the bad news. Start the good news with Padgett Randall. A 5-10 forward with a sharp shooting eye for the bucket, Randall will be after her fourth varsity letter this fall. She owns all the Hawk scoring records and many observers feel that she may have the talent to become a major college player after she graduates.

There are three other seniors that were vital cogs in last year's team and are counted on this season. Shelly Lapeer was the sixth player last season. She's aggressive, quick and a tough competitor. If she refines her basketball skills this season she could be one of the best. Beth Sieradzki will probably take over Tonti's role this season. She's a ball handler and hustler. Kelly Seurnyck is called a very smart player by Schinnerer and is sound fundamentally.

Inexperienced but showing promise are several sophomores including Michelle Fahrner, Carrie Lautner and Jill Root.

Schinnerer sees a wide open race with Bad Axe, Marlette and Caro fighting with the Hawks for the title.

The schedule:

Sept. 4 Harbor Beach, away	8 North Branch, away
9 North Huron, away	15 Sandusky, home
17 Lakers, away	20 Marlette, away
18 USA, home	22 Vassar, home
24 Caro, home	27 Lakers, home
25 Harbor Beach, home	29 Caro, away
Oct. 1 Bad Axe, away	Nov. 3 Bad Axe, home

Officials seek return of funds

Michigan officials have initiated a lawsuit against the federal government which they say unfairly apportioned a $1.1 billion reduction in highway funds. The state lawsuit seeks to recover about $31.5 million for road construction, of the $131 million the Federal Highway Administration removed from prior allocations to Michigan for the May 1 - Sept. 30 period. The action brought about postponement of 189 projects throughout the state. The suit is based on the fact that states who have spent less of their funds were cut more than states who already had spent a large portion of federal funds. Michigan had obligated $123.3 million of the $24 million originally allocated for the state for the current year, which placed it among at least a dozen states with below average rates for committing the allocated funds.

Hawks host Standish in first test of grid season

Cass City Red Hawks will be playing football Friday night against Standish-Sterling regardless of whether a contract is signed with the Tri-County Bargaining Association. Coach Don Schelke said that he promised the kids that there would be football this year when they started working out early in the season and he would keep that promise. Schelke said that he considered his job as football coach different from his position as a teacher in the system. It will be the second time in recent years that Standish has faced the Hawks. Cass City played at Standish last year and came home with a 28-12 decision.

Schelke looks for a much tougher time this season as the visitors have 19 lettermen returning.

Friday will really be the first time we have had to see this year's team against real competition. Standish is a small class B school and should show whether the team is for real this season or not.

In a pre-season scrimmage last week at Akron-Fairgrove, Cass City looked good against A-F and Saginaw St. Mary's. But both are much smaller schools and didn't provide a real test of the team.

Although not predicting a Thumb B Conference title this year, Schelke says he figures Cass City will be in it all the way.

I believe in giving an honest opinion. When this year's seniors were sophomores on the Junior Varsity they lost only one game and the talent is there.

Schelke has announced a tentative starting offensive line-up. Rob Leslie and Randy Severance will be at the ends. The tackles will be Dave Whittaker and Scott Stine. At guards will be Dave Osentoski and Clayton Harmer. Terry Sweeney is the center. At quarterback will be Brian deBeaubien. Doug Sowden is the fullback. At left half is Rob Sawdon and at right half Buck Zawilinski. The defensive team was not announced. Schelke said that Leslie and Severance will be two-way players.

The Standish game is the tune-up contest for the regular conference competition for both clubs. After that the Hawks travel to Lakers.

Tuesday the Laker teachers were on strike and how that will affect the game has not been announced. After that the Hawks return home for a contest with Caro. Traditionally a big game on the schedule, this year it looms even more important as many observers are saying that Caro is one of the teams to beat in the Thumb B.

Season tickets now on sale

Athletic Director Roland Pakonen announced this week that season tickets for Cass City High School fall sports go on sale Thursday at the high school office. Tickets for adults are $6 and for students, $4. The tickets are good for admittance to all fall events with the exception of post season tournaments.

CHAMPIONS OF THE CASS CITY Ladies Golf League were determined last week. They are, from left: Esther Reagh, first flight; Mary Lou Eria, second flight; Jan Hunt, third flight, and Nancy Ruggles, fourth flight.

TEN CASS CITYANS were in Cadillac recently and Tom Woody, pro at Maguire's, arranged a tournament for the group. The women played nine holes and the men, 18. The winners were Marilyn Peters and Bob Stickle. From left, Judy Woody, Peters, Stickle and Woody. The Woodys are former Cass City residents.

Safety belts offer safety in crashes

By Frank Chappell
Science News Editor
American Medical Assoc.

Motor vehicle crashes claim almost 50,000 lives each year. Injuries number in the millions.

Most of these crashes need not be fatal or serious. Many injuries and deaths can be prevented by the regular use of safety belts.

A pamphlet from the American Medical Association points out that the most effective safety belt is the combination lap-shoulder harness, but even the lap alone will help keep you safe.

Safety experts estimate that safety belts save more

Fortson in Army drill

Pfc. John D. Fortson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton A. Fortson, 6594 Pine Street, Cass City, recently participated in the annual training of the Kansas National Guard's 9th Brigade at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Fortson is a rifleman with the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Making both ends meet requires no end of money these days.

than 3,000 lives annually, and that between 7,000 and 9,000 additional lives could be saved each year if safety belts were fully utilized.

The belt protects only if you buckle it. All too many motorists neglect to buckle up and utilize the protection that is readily available.

Most motor vehicle crashes occur in the home neighborhood at speeds under 40 miles per hour. At speeds under 40 seat belts have a remarkably good safety record.

Children need safety belts too. The arms of a parent or other adult are not strong enough to restrain and protect a small child, even in low speed crashes. If the parent is not wearing a belt, he or she may be thrown forward.

Children up to age 4 should ride in a specially designed infant carrier or child restraint that is secured by the safety belts already in the auto.

Under all circumstances, fasten your safety belts before the ignition is turned on, and keep them fastened whenever the vehicle is in motion. Drivers must demand that passengers buckle up.

Regular inspection reduces hazards for restaurant patrons

You are eating at a restaurant, look down and discover a cockroach walking across the floor. Or you discover that not all the grease is on the grill, that some of it is on your supposedly clean glass. Statistics indicate restaurants are "pretty safe" places to eat, according to Ed Kimbrue, director of environmental health for the Tuscola County Health Department. But there can be exceptions, and a person with a complaint about a restaurant can call the health department in the county in which the restaurant is located. By law, restaurants must be inspected every six months, which in actuality can vary between five and seven months, depending on the schedule of the inspector. The same schedule and requirements apply to school cafeterias. Since the sanitarian charged with restaurant inspection can't be everywhere, and since any restaurant operator can "fall down some," the health department will act on complaints, Kimbrue said, which do not have to be signed. There are 129 restaurants in the county, according to him, of which the department continually works with one to two dozen who must be constantly prodded to stay in compliance with health requirements.

Staying in compliance makes good sense for the restaurant operator, he pointed out. In addition to avoiding health problems, a clean restaurant is also good public relations in terms of attracting customers back. RESTAURANTS AREN'T notified beforehand when the inspector will come. If the sanitarian finds any major hazards, they must be corrected immediately, such as storage of toxic materials (cleaning supplies, etc.) next to food. Restaurants are graded, with each fault found being deducted from a possible 100 points. Once they fall below 70, inspectors start checking with a "fine tooth comb." The restaurant operator receives a written evaluation after the inspection, and depending on the findings, follow-up inspections are made if necessary, usually within 30 or 60 days. The most common deficiency, lack of cleanliness, Kimbrue indicated, is the easiest to fix. By use of enough "elbow grease," deficiency scores can often be cut in half. Other common problems can involve the method of food storage used. Sometimes the problems are harder to solve, often times stemming from the restaurants being in old buildings with old equipment. For instance, if the problem is an old range hood and fan clogged with grease that must be replaced, the health department tries to work out a schedule of compliance, as a replacement can cost from $3,000-8,000. KIMBRUE HAS BEEN with the health department 13 years and during that time, he can recall three restaurants being closed because of inability to comply with health requirements. The owners were given the opportunity to "close for remodeling" or some other excuse and not reopened. "That doesn't mean, of course, that restaurants don't close for other reasons, such as lack of customers, or that some don't legitimately close for remodeling.) Car fire damage minor

Most of the damage was confined to wiring in a car fire Tuesday afternoon. Owner of the car was Nancy Brown of Bay City-Forestville Road, Cass City. It was being driven by her son, Bob Brown, three miles north of Cass City on Cemetery Road when the fire started under the hood. Elkland township firemen received the call at 3:50 p.m. Due to a malfunction, the fire siren also sounded in Gageton and firemen from there arrived on the scene first, though it was in Elkland's territory. The fire was apparently almost out when the Gageton firemen arrived, but they used their equipment to make sure it was out. Elkland firemen said. No monetary damage estimate was available. The car was a 1974 Ford.

Despite a shortage of personnel due to budget cutbacks, Jordan insisted his office is keeping up with the basic inspection requirements. "When we run into problems, that's where we spend our time." Priorities are established, which may mean ignoring dust because the store has a more serious problem of rodents or insects. Weights and measures are part of the division's responsibility. Myshock escapes over fence from county jail

Thomas P. Myshock was still at large Wednesday morning after having escaped last Thursday from the Tuscola County Jail, clad only in a pair of green gym shorts.

The Fairgrove resident, 34, was scheduled to be sentenced Tuesday by Circuit Judge Patrick R. Joslyn for the Feb. 27 armed robbery of Zabriskie's Market in Watrousville.

A jury found him guilty of the armed robbery charge July 22. According to the sheriff's department, Myshock had just finished getting a haircut and was standing in the hallway outside.

The barber was clipping the hair of another inmate and the deputy on duty, Arthur Adam, was elsewhere, apparently opening the doors for the janitor, who was fixing a sewer problem.

The officer normally would have been close to the area where the barbering was being done.

The door from the hallway Myshock was in, which led to the exercise yard, was open for ventilation. The inmate went outside, climbed over the 10-foot high fence, which is topped by barbed wire, and escaped.

A shirt was found outside. Inmates normally only wear shower thongs or go barefoot so he wasn't wearing shoes.

It is believed Myshock may have taken some clothes from one of the yard sales in the area.

As he had four previous felony convictions, Prosecutor Artis Noel said, it's doubtful that Myshock would have received a sentence of less than 25 years in prison and could be sent there for life.

Escape from jail carries a maximum sentence of 1 year. If and when Myshock is caught, he may not be prosecuted for escaping, the prosecutor said, as a sentence for that would be served along with the one for the robbery, thus he would not serve additional time.

Ribbon cutting Sunday for exercise trail

The ribbon will be cut Sunday at 2 p.m. when the Cass City Exercise Trail, built by Cass City Rotary, is dedicated and turned over to the village.

The dedication will mark the end of two years of work for the club. Total cost of the work has not been computed but it is sure to be several thousand dollars, in addition to hundreds of hours of labor by club members.

The expense and the work will be worth it, club members agreed, if the community uses the trail located in the western edge of the woods at the north edge of Cass City Recreational Park.

It appears likely that the trail will be used. There has been a resurgence in conditioning for good health in this country and Cass City has followed the trend.

Rotarian Ken Jensen, the prime mover who ramrodded the trail to completion, said that one week end when he was working there were an estimated 50 persons trying out the trail long before it was completed.

It's hoped that all of these persons will be back Sunday and joined by many others in the community for the dedication and inaugural running.

To encourage participation the Rotary has arranged for free pop to be given away together with hot dogs furnished free by Rotarian Dick Eria.

Authorities said that "runners" is probably not a good description for persons using the trail.

The trail is designed so that participants can make it as strenuous or as easy as desired. In fact, members advise taking it slow while working up to the full program in easy stages.

The trail is 1.6 miles long and about two-thirds of it winds through the woods over a well-marked trail complete with signs.

Each of the 20 exercise stations is covered with wood chips and includes needed exercise paraphernalia.

The aim of Rotary was to provide a means of non-competitive physical exercise in an aesthetically-pleasing environment.

The trail is wide enough so that two adults can run side-by-side and there is enough room at each exercise station for at least 2 to exercise at the same time.

At some of the stations fairly elaborate exercise devices have been erected. All others all that is needed is the chip-covered area.

The 20 stations and the exercise to be performed at each one are:

- No. 1..... arm swings
- No. 2..... toe touches
- No. 3..... knee bends
- No. 4..... waist stretches
- No. 5..... toe touches
- No. 6..... deep stretch
- No. 7..... arm swings
- No. 8..... chin-ups
- No. 9..... bar vault
- No. 10..... bar swing
- No. 11..... sit-ups
- No. 12..... step-ups
- No. 13..... side stretch
- No. 14..... log hops
- No. 15..... jump-ups
- No. 16..... log lifts
- No. 17..... push-up
- No. 18..... leg stretches
- No. 19..... stretch-bend
- No. 20..... balance beam

The equipment for the exercise trail has been built with the use of discarded utility poles whenever possible to help keep the trail as natural looking as possible.

2 teens' spree ends in arrest

Drive off Weeden Road, east of Caro, it having been noticed by a neighbor, who called the sheriff's department.

The keys had been left in the ignition of both cars at the Wenzlaff home. It was apparently coincidence that the cars were taken from the Kingston State Bank manager.

According to Caro state police, the foster father or guardian of the two boys heard about the vehicle thefts and realizing they were gone all night, called the post.

A trooper then went to their home and questioned them.

The sheriff's department report indicated the boys were being first questioned about the pickup theft and then admitted taking the two cars.

It said deputies will seek to have the boys petitioned into probate court. In the interim, they remain in the custody of their guardian.

File no charges in fatal crash

No criminal charges will be brought against a Fairgrove teenager who was the driver of the car in a June 23 accident in which three passengers were killed, Tuscola County Prosecutor Artis Noel said Friday.

The driver was Terry L. Campbell, 18, who was hospitalized for a time after the accident.

Those killed were Glen S. Kosik, 18, Kimberly Kay Connelly, 17, and Paula Jo Monte, 16, all of Fairgrove. Noel was waiting for the results of the state police and sheriff's department investigation before making a decision.

The question to be answered in deciding whether to issue a warrant, he explained, is whether the driver was negligent in such an instance.

However, the circumstances surrounding the accident were unexplainable, according to the investigators, thus there could be no grounds for issuing a warrant.

The car driven by Campbell, sheriff's deputies reported at the time, was eastbound on Gifford Road at 12:15 a.m., east of Unionville Road, when it went off the south side of an S curve, hit a road sign and then a driveway culvert, went airborne and spun around before coming to a halt.

The three victims were pronounced dead on arrival at Caro Community Hospital.

Saving energy

Are you wasting water bill dollars when watering your lawn? To check how much water your lawn sprinkler is using, place an empty coffee or soup can on your grass.

An inch of water per week is enough for most lawns. If you're exceeding this amount, reduce the water pressure or cut back on the length of time you water your lawn.

Speaking of fall, now is the time to plan your early-bird attack on next winter's heating bills. Energy experts agree that the fundamental step is making sure you have an adequate amount of fiber glass insulation in your attic. (Savings vary. Find out why in the seller's fact sheet on R-values. Higher R-values mean greater insulating power.)

That was followed by, "I'll never understand how people can judge a job they don't know nothing about."

He expressed willingness to work at the plant under someone else if the work is "reasonable."
