Intermediate district settles with teachers

The new Tuscola Area Skill Center and county special education programs got underway Wednesday, following tentative agreement Tuesday by the Tuscola Intermediate School District (TISD) and its professional staff on a new three-year agreement.

The settlement meant an end to the strike by the 103 members of the Tuscola Intermediate Education Association (TIEA), which began Sept. 3.

Still to be worked out, is how the days missed by the employees will be made up, which will be complicated because many of the professional staff work in local schools, where there was no strike.

The TISD also must reach an agreement with aides, bus drivers, secretaries and custodial workers, who belong to the Michigan Educational Support Personnel Association (MESPA), who are continuing to work under their old contract, which expired June 30. The union has more than 100 members.

The tentative agreement, according to Phyllis McCoy, chief negotiator for the Tri-County Bargaining Association, provides a 9.5 percent pay increase the first year, 9.8 percent the second and 10 percent the third, plus those not at the top of the pay scale will continue to receive their annual increments.

There were also "much improved" fringe benefits.

Full details of the agreement will be released once it is ratified by the two sides.

The Chronicle was unable to talk to TISD Supt. Bruce Dunn Wednesday morning because long-distance telephone service was not functioning. It talked to the union representatives Tuesday.

The TCBA, which represented the teachers in negotiations, had sought a two-year pact; the TISD Board of Education wanted the three years.

Tentative agreement was reached at 2:45 p.m., the negotiators having worked straight through from 10 a.m.

It was the first negotiating session since a more than eight hour meeting Sept. 2. At that time, agreement was reached on all issues except pay and fringe benefits.

Present Tuesday for the first time was state mediator Gordon Lee, whose being there had been requested by the TCBA.

"We think his presence was a help," Ms. McCoy said after the settlement was reached. In addition, "Both sides were ready to settle and we both came in and gave it our best shot."

The TIEA members — teachers, special education consultants, therapists and nurses — had the proposed agreement explained to them late Tuesday afternoon. They will be voting on it in about two weeks, after it is first approved by the TCBA bargaining council and the TIEA members have had the final written agreement for at least five days to study it.

CONFUSION

Skill center teachers and the itinerant staff — those social workers, therapists, speech therapists, teacher consultants, etc. — who travel to local schools work a 180-day year.

The ISD staff who work at the Darbee and Fostoria schools and Caro Regional Center (most of whom will transfer along with their students in October to the new special education center) work 230 days a year.

Their students live or are bused there, so making up the 10 days lost shouldn't be much of a problem, although the days will be mostly made up during what would otherwise be Christmas and spring vacations. Affected are about 340 special education students.

The problem is with the 180 day personnel.

The approximately 725 students who started attending the skill center Wednesday go there a half-day and attend their regular high schools the rest of the time.

If those students have to make up the lost time during vacation periods, is that fair to them when their fellow students in their home high schools are on vacation? And how will they get to the skill center when their local district school buses aren't running?

The itinerant staff travels to local schools to work with students and teachers. How are they supposed to make up their time during the vacation periods when the schools are closed?

The TISD administration will have to work out a solution with the local school districts, Ms. McCoy said, with the approval of the TIEA.

SUPPORT STAFF

In contrast to the agreement reached with the professional staff, Tuesday, the negotiating session which followed with the MESPA negotiating team ended without coming to an agreement. The session lasted about 2½ hours.

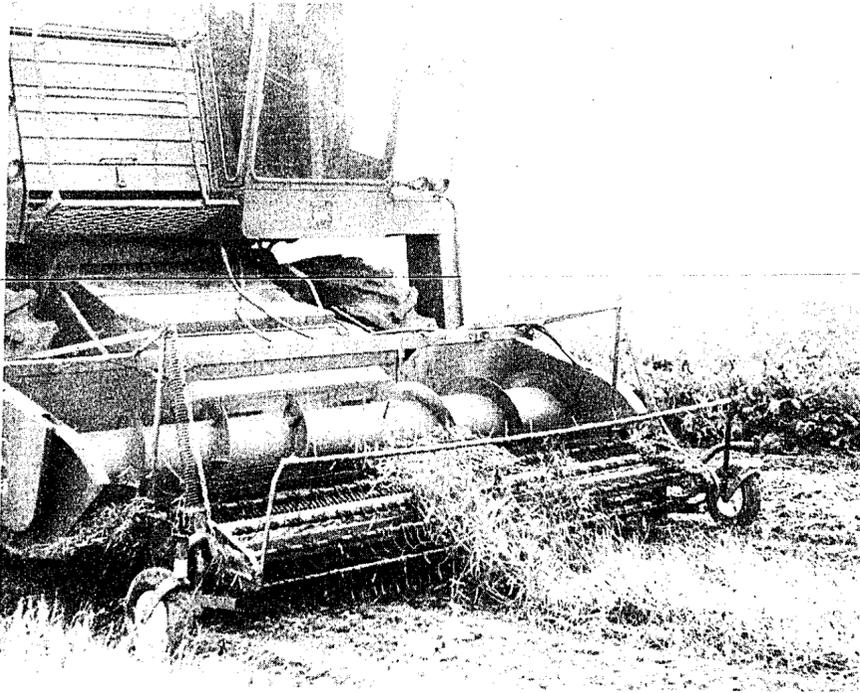

According to Richard Pomeroy, public relations co-chairman for the union local, only two negotiating sessions had been held prior to last Wednesday, when for the first time, there "was some movement."

However, at Tuesday's session, the MESPA negotiators "could not accept any proposals offered." No date was set for another negotiating session.

As mentioned, MESPA members are working under an extension of their old contract, which they can terminate on five days' notice. "I'm not saying we're going to strike or we're not going to strike," he commented before the bargaining session began. "It all depends on how things go tonight."

Under procedures of the old contract, aides and bus drivers have filed a grievance, protesting that what they said was their layoff as of Sept. 4 during the teachers' strike was a violation of their contract, which requires 30 days' notice of any TIGHT SQUEEZE -- Some farmers were able to get some bean harvesting done Tuesday before it started raining again, including this farmer combining a field along M-81, west of Cass City.

Repeat of 1977?

Bean crop not too bad, but rain making it worse

For most area farmers, the dry bean crop now being harvested isn't as bad as it could be, but if it keeps raining, it might.

The rain the past several days has started farmers wondering whether this fall will be a repeat of 1977, when continual rains made harvesting difficult and beans rotted in the fields.

Tuscola County Extension Agricultural Agent Don Kebler estimated Monday that 45 percent of the county's crop had been harvested, with the edge in favor of white beans over colored ones.

Yields vary widely depending on the area, but the present estimate for navy beans, he said, is almost 22 bushels per acre (13 hundredweight). It's 13-14 hundredweight for colored beans.

But, he pointed out, those averages mean some farmers are getting 25 plus bushels to the acre and others are getting 15.

Some aren't even getting that much. He saw a strip in the Fairgrove area that was yielding 8 bushels per acre.

The Fairgrove-Gilford-Reese area of the county had more rain than elsewhere, Kebler said, which has hurt yields the most.

At the Wickes Agriculture elevator in Cass City, Manager Bob Wischmeyer said, yields have been averaging about 20 bushels per acre, about 20-25 percent less than normal. He estimated 55-60 percent of the harvest is in.

In the Gageton area, Blount Agriculture elevator Manager Jim Turner said, yields have been averaging about 20-24 bushels per acre, which he termed about average. About half the harvest is in in the area.

According to Kebler, the Cass City-Gageton area didn't get as much rain, so yields are better than, for instance, in the Fairgrove-Gilford-Reese area.

Harvesting got off to a slow start at the beginning of the month and was hitting high gear last week when rain started Friday.

"Right now is the difference in between good and bad," Turner said Monday, when asked what the effect on the bean crop would be if it continued raining.

With a week of good weather, he said, 90 percent of the crop would be in, with some of the colored beans coming in a little late. Harvesting is about 10 days behind normal.

Wischmeyer also said it would take about a week of good weather to finish most harvesting, though he didn't expect some slow maturing varieties will come in until October.

QUALITY

Both managers said the quality of the beans coming in has been excellent.

White mold and rust this season, to which excessive rains in July and August were a major contributing factor, hurt yield, but not quality.

To save their crop, many farmers had their fields sprayed by airplane, at a cost of $10 per acre for rust protection and a minimum of $20 for mold.

Whether their investment paid off apparently isn't known yet. Kebler said unless farmers left part of a field unsprayed for comparison, there is no way to determine whether the spraying did any good.

The known effect of the spraying is that it means farmers are going to have to make more money off their crop in order to break even, much less make some money.

Both Wischmeyer and Turner said it's possible at present prices for farmers to break even or make a slight profit -- if they have a decent yield. "Farmers can make some money unless someone had a terrible yield," the latter commented.

The elevator managers may have a problem of their own. There's plenty of storage space for beans, but storage space could be short when corn starts coming in next month.

The elevators are having a hard time getting rid of the sprouted wheat they have in storage, and unless they can move it out, they may not have enough storage space for corn. The sprouted wheat is also the result of rain coming this summer when it wasn't needed.

OTHER CROPS

The corn crop looks good, Kebler said, but appearances can be deceiving. Some cobs, he has found, don't have kernels all the way to the ends, which means reduced yields.

It should be a good year for sugar beets, but cool nights are needed for best yields and high sugar content.

Soybeans have looked "fairly decent" all year.

Despite all the rain this summer, he concluded, "Crops look a lot better than everyone surmised they would be."

The same can't be said for present prices farmers are getting for their crops, at present levels, which haven't kept pace with inflation and are "not ... up to where they should be."

TRA benefits go to Krome workers

Employees of Kingston Krome Co. have been declared eligible for Trade Readjustment Act (TRA) benefits by the federal government.

Affected are 10 or 11 people, now back to work. The TRA benefits will compensate them for the difference between what they received in unemployment benefits and 70 percent of their salaries for the period they were out of work.

The federal Trade Adjustment Assistance Program provides the additional benefits for employees of American companies whose operations have been severely affected by foreign competition.

Kingston Krome is the last of four companies in Tuscola and Huron counties owned by Trim Trends Inc. of Clawson whose employees were found eligible for TRA benefits.

One of the companies, Mayville Moulding, was closed by Trim Trends about six months ago, which meant permanent loss of employment for about 85 workers.

The others and the approximate number of employees eligible for TRA benefits were Snover Stamping, 35, and Deckerville Die Form, about 50. All are now back to work. Snover Stamping employs 85-90 persons, not all of whom were laid off.

Trim Trend plants only make parts for the auto industry, according to Lowell Driver, general manufacturing manager. The present full employment at its three upper Thumb plants is due to heavy production by the auto makers of the new 1981 model cars.

State budget cuts have effect in Tuscola, but worst ahead

By Mike Eliason

Most of the news of late out of Lansing has been about the latest budget cutbacks as the state attempts to keep its budget in line with shrinking revenues.

Whatever happens in the state capital has an effect throughout Michigan.

It appears that in Tuscola county, most of the shocks are still ahead, because most of the cuts announced of late are proposed for the 1980-81 fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

Adding to the uncertainty is that the legislature has yet to approve the budget. It normally does that by June.

That makes it tough for school administrators, for instance, to plan their budgets since it isn't known what the amount of state aid will be.

The latest recommendation from the governor is a reduction of $150 million for education in grades K-12 from earlier recommendations.

According to state Rep. Loren Armbruster, R-Caro, $350 million has been cut from the present fiscal year budget and another $150 million has to be cut out in order to finish the fiscal year which ends Sept. 30 in the black.

More than $300 million has to be deleted from the budget for the new fiscal year that starts Oct. 1 to get it in balance.

The latest recommendation of Gov. Milliken to the legislature calls for a 1980-81 budget of $4.57 billion, down from $4.75 billion in 1979-80. That's the first time in 40 years that the state will spend less than it did the year before.

The Senate has basically completed work on the budget, according to Armbruster, but the House of Representatives hasn't.

He said House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, was recently quoted as saying he doubted the House will be done with the budget by Oct. 1.

Part of the problem, according to the Caro Republican, is the uncertainty of state revenues and a reluctance by some legislators during an election to cut popular programs. "Some don't want to bite the bullet."

The following examines the effects of some state budget cutbacks in Tuscola county.

REGIONAL CENTER

In June, members of the union which represents 572 employees at the Caro Regional Center were picketing to protest planned layoffs at the state facility.

At that time, 16 had lost their jobs and the latest plan was to eliminate 179 of 793 positions. Sixteen is all that have lost their jobs, Dr. Marlin H.

Roll, the center director, said Friday.

What happened was that Roll's request to the State Department of Mental Health for increased staffing ratios for the four buildings with 12 residents was approved. The new ratios are one attendant for six residents daytime and 1:12 nighttime, versus 1:8 and 1:16 in the older residential units.

That meant an end to layoffs, but as of now, Roll is barred from filling any vacancies, though that may change shortly.

As of Aug. 30, the center was 25 employees short of its authorized level of 735.5 personnel.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

As part of a $9.6 million cut in the state police budget, 80 troopers will have their last day on the job Sept. 27, of which 77 graduated from the state police academy last year. The Caro post will lose one officer of its present 10 road patrol officers; Bad Axe post, one trooper, leaving 11 for road duty, and Sandusky, two troopers, leaving only eight.

State funding for the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department special road patrol unit, which consists of three deputies, expires Sept. 30.

Sheriff Hugh Marr expects the statewide program will be continued, although funding may be reduced, which could mean a layoff.

WELFARE

In order to save $144 million, Gov. Milliken has proposed eliminating general assistance payments for all able-bodied persons who are single and under age 45.

In Tuscola county, according to Onalee Detwiler, director of the county Department of Social Services, it would mean 86 persons will lose their benefits, at a savings of $21,000 a month. General assistance, she Generally the bean crop in the immediate area has been only fair to poor, judging by reports coming in from area farmers. We appear better off than farmers in the Saginaw valley heartland where rain really drowned out the crop.

Twenty-five miles or so down the road in Arenac county authorities are saying that beans average about 35-40 bushels to the acre and all the rest of the crops are better than they have been in years.

The Chronicle welcomes letters to the editor. We insist that they be signed. If there's a good reason, we'll withhold names when requested.

We turned down a chance to publish a letter to the editor this week. It was super critical of Supt. Donald Crouse. The author wanted the name withheld.

We refused to publish the letter without the name. Not because it was critical, but because the author had been at odds with the superintendent previously. Obviously that had a bearing on the letter and for that reason the Chronicle felt the reader should know the author when considering the material presented.

There's been considerable debate about how long the new signs will last at the Cass City exercise trail. Vandalism is feared. The fears were realized last week when vandals smashed about six of the 20 signs.

The signs were not completely destroyed and the village crew quickly repaired them. There was little real damage. With that behind us perhaps the trail will now remain untouched for the general benefit of everyone.

Those townwide sales that shoppers enjoy are the result of plenty of work by merchants through the Cass City Retail Committee.

Thursday, new officers for the group were named. The president is Mike Shaft, who replaces retiring Tom Proctor. It didn't take the new crew long to get started. A moonlight madness sale is planned for Thursday, Oct. 2.

Retiring Sheriff Hugh Marr will be honored at a retirement party at Sherwood on the Hill in Gagetown Nov. 7. It's being arranged by the staff at the department. Marr has served the county for 18 years. It seems almost like yesterday that he won a surprise victory in a spirited campaign to take office for the first time.

WATERMELONS -- Brothers Mel (left) and "Doc" Johnson returned to Cass City last week with this load of watermelons after visiting their sister, Eva Runyon of Cainsville, and a nearby melon farm. The two big melons on top weigh about 80 pounds each. It was dry in Missouri this summer. In a normal year, they were told, the big melons would have weighed 125 pounds.

Accident sends two to Caro hospital

A Friday accident near the Caro Regional Center sent the two drivers involved to Caro Community Hospital.

Injured were Isabelle Fournier, 59, of 4711 State Street, Gagetown, and Alice J. Shoemaker, 74, of Bad Axe. The hospital reported both were treated and released.

Caro state police reported witnesses said the car of Ms. Fournier, headed northeast, crossed the centerline and collided with the car of Mrs. Shoemaker, who was headed in the opposite direction.

Ms. Fournier was ticketed on a charge of driving left of center. The accident took place at 3:45 p.m.

Cass City police reported two accidents Saturday.

In the first, at 12:45 p.m., Steven W. Pasanski, 18, of 5102 Schwegler Road, was turning left from westbound

Main Street onto Comment Drive when the car behind him struck his vehicle in the rear.

The other driver was Ross L. Downing, 17, of Caro. At 1:30 p.m., Michael J. McKenna, 20, of 286 Crawford Road, Deford, northbound on Seeger Street, was attempting to turn left onto Main Street and collided with the southbound car of Ralph T. Castronova, 61, of Detroit.

At 8 a.m. Monday, according to village police, JoAnn Smithson, 35, of 4375 Koepfgen Road, northbound on Oak Street, saw an eastbound car on Rose Street stop. She pulled into the intersection after stopping, as the other car started to move and they collided.

Officers said the eastbound driver, Padgett Randall, 17, of 4196 Schwegler Road, couldn't see the other car because of the bright sun.

Earl L. Allen, 52, of Vassar, was southbound on Cemetery Road, north of Elmwood Road, at 4:40 p.m. Sunday, according to deputies, when he heard a clunking noise. The car then went out of control and veered into the west side ditch.

It was discovered that the steering rod had broken on his 1966 model car.

At 8:45 p.m. last Wednesday, according to the sheriff's department, Gerald W. Heronemus, 39, of 6950 Pringle Road, Cass City, was eastbound on Severance Road, east of Crawford Road, when his car collided with a deer.

At 10:20 p.m. Friday, deputies said, Randall L. Perry, 20, of 4510 Leach Street, Apt. 2, Cass City, was westbound on M-81, west of Schwegler Road, when his auto struck a deer.

"If It Fitz. . ." I'm not myself

By Jim Fitzgerald

"You can be anybody you want to be," the husband said. "Diane von Furstenberg says so."

"Who can you be?" the wife asked.

"I don't know who I can be, but I know who I can't be. I can't be myself," he said. "Among men, only Mark Fidrych can be himself. Women have it a lot easier. A psychologist says so."

Diane von Furstenberg designs women's clothes and wears them in TV commercials. And she is wafer-thin. No one ever describes Diane von Furstenberg without saying she is wafer-thin.

In a recent newspaper interview, Diane said: "It doesn't matter what her age is. Today's woman can decide who she wants to be."

A Detroit psychologist named Dr. Kal Kaplan was asked by a sports columnist to explain why baseball fans go nuts over Tiger pitcher Mark (The Bird) Fidrych.

"He is himself; few of us are. Certainly it's a rarer quality in men than women," Dr. Kaplan said.

Naturally, it bugs the husband that his wife can be anybody she wants, and he can't even be himself.

"Diane von Furstenberg says you should wear your clothes and never let your clothes wear you," the wife said.

"I know what she means," the husband said. "Just the other day I saw a red gabardine pantsuit wearing a woman. It looked silly, especially when the woman had to open her mouth so a scarf could put her on."

"My clothes don't have a thing to wear," the wife said. "My only problem is that with the whole world to choose from, I can't make up my mind who I want to be."

"Why don't you be Diane von Furstenberg? Then you will be wafer-thin and able to slip through slots in pay telephones. I will nickname you Necco, and we will be all the rage next season at St. Moritz when our friends want to phone home."

"Why can't you be yourself?" the wife said.

"Dr. Kaplan says it's because I don't do things my way," the husband explained. "Mark the Bird does his own thing his own way, but I don't, and that's why he can be himself, but I can't be myself."

"If you don't do things your way, whose way do you do them?"

"I don't know. All I know is if I'm never able to do things my way, I'll never be able to close my nightclub act, and I'll never know who I am. It isn't fair that women can be anybody they want, but I can't even be myself."

"The Bird jumps around a lot and talks to baseballs because that's his way. He doesn't worry about appearing immature," the wife said. "Maybe you would be yourself if you did something immature."

"I already talk to our TV set, and how many times have you seen me punish our car by pounding it on the steering wheel? It seems to me that I'm immature enough to be myself."

"That's true," the wife admitted. "It must be your clothes. I can be anybody I want to be because I don't let my clothes wear me. Are you letting your clothes wear you?"

"To my knowledge, my pants have never put me on. In fact, I was being sarcastic when I said I saw a red gabardine pantsuit wearing a woman," the husband said. "I really don't know what Diane von Furstenberg means when she says people shouldn't let their clothes wear them. How can clothes wear people?"

"Don't be dumb. She simply means that your clothes shouldn't dominate your appearance. They should be your backdrop. It should be you that people see, not your clothes."

"But if people see me, who will they see? Not me, because I'm just not myself today. I am . . . who?"

"That's it," she said. "You are first baseman for Abbott and Costello. Onward and Upward."

Bike-a-thons set

"Wheels-for-life" bikeathons to raise money for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital will be held this Saturday in Gagetown and Saturday, Sept. 27 in Owendale.

Rain date for each will be the following Saturday.

In Gagetown, sponsor forms are available at the elementary school and stores. In Owendale, they can be obtained at the high school and Lucky 13.

The Gagetown chairman, Bill Fischer, and Owendale chairman, Joan Andrakowicz, both stress their events are open to adults as well as children.

Riders collecting at least $25 in pledges will receive a St. Jude T-shirt and $75, a back pack.

In addition, at Owendale, there will be prizes for the top three fund raisers.

Both events will start at 1 p.m.

Starting point in Owendale will be the village park. The entire route will be on village streets and will be one mile in length. Riders can go around as many times as they want.

Assembly point in Gagetown will be the township-village fire hall at noon.

From there, riders will proceed east on Bay City-

Forestville Road to Dodge Road, the starting point for the ride at 1. Fischer is hoping to get the Owendale-Gagetown High School band to lead the procession. There definitely will be a police car and fire truck there. Riders can go right to the Dodge Road starting point if they don't want to be in the procession.

The bikeathon route will be south on Dodge Road to M-81 and return, the round trip being eight miles.

In honor of the bikeathon, Village President William Downing has proclaimed Saturday as St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital Day in Gagetown.

Like at Owendale, riders can travel the route as many times as they want, with the events ending whenever everyone is done riding.

Out-of-town residents can show up on the day of the event without obtaining sponsorship forms in advance.

This is the second year for both events.

St. Jude's Hospital, in Memphis, Tenn., founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, is funded primarily with public contributions. It is both a hospital for children and a research center for childhood cancer and other diseases.

Time obscures and I can't recall the details now of the famous "Fort Zigenhardt" case where a farm family defied a tax law and finally lost their farm for a small fraction of its value, as they fought for a principle.

The law was clearly served and obeyed in the final reckoning. I've always had reservations about whether justice was served as well.

That all occurred over a quarter century ago, so why dwell on it now? It's because cases with the same end results just keep popping up and the legal solutions just don't seem to be the just solutions.

I thought of Zigenhardt again Friday when a metro daily broke the story about Louis Speer, a musician who had been ripped off.

Speer caught a couple of crooks ripping off the tools of his trade from his van one night. They took off with $6,000 worth of amplifiers, public address units, guitars and drums. When they came back to rip out the carpet Speer awoke, called the cops and they picked up one of the two thieves.

The other got away and police said they couldn't get a warrant to search the suspect's apartment because they didn't have "probable cause."

That's not where we part company with the law. I feel the protection provided by "probable cause" for a search warrant is basic to the freedoms we are so proud of and a major deterrent to a police state.

What bugs me came later. That afternoon the man accused of robbing Speer called him up and offered to exchange the loot for no prosecution.

That appealed to Speer, who needed the equipment for a job and he met the accused at the courthouse.

The judge was gone and Speer picked up the file and took the complaint he had signed from it.

He could have dropped charges much easier by just not showing at the arraignment, but he didn't know. Most ordinary citizens who never brushed with the law don't. Speer is definitely ordinary when it comes to lawyers, judges and courts.

Anyway, Judge John C. Seiler of Wayne has ordered obstruction of justice charges against Speer. That's a felony and carries a maximum of 5 years.

A felony conviction also makes it impossible for him to perform in Canada or to hold a liquor license.

It's probable that there will be a plea bargain before the examination is set for Oct. 8. Certainly there will be lawyers and lawyers' fees involved and it could be a very expensive proposition at the very least before the cloud that hangs over Speer dissipates. If it ever does.

It's another "Fort Zigenhardt" all over again.

There must be a better way.

HEALTH TIPS

Many couples solve infertility

By Frank Chappell
American Medical Association

Couples of child-bearing age who want a child become understandably concerned and frustrated when a planned pregnancy fails to occur.

This is a not uncommon occurrence. Some 15 percent of marriages are involuntarily childless and another 10 percent of couples have fewer children than they desire.

Advances in the past 40 years in knowledge of infertility and what to do about it has made it possible for more than 50 percent of couples with infertility problems to achieve parenthood, the American Medical Association points out.

Both husband and wife should undergo a general medical examination by their family or personal physician. He may refer the couple to specialists in evaluating fertility, or may perform the studies himself.

The husband may be studied first because his examination is less time consuming and less expensive. In about 30 percent of cases of infertility, the husband is the significant factor. In another 20 percent he plays a contributing role. There may be factors that interfere with sperm production, sperm passage or sperm delivery. There may be glandular problems.

The wife's urogenital system also requires evaluation. The opening of the uterus may be obstructed by heavy mucus, or there may be mucus of abnormal chemical properties that kill sperm cells.

Many times treatment will correct the problem. Or the physician can place the husband's sperm cells past the point of obstruction.

There are many physical reasons that could be involved in infertility.

A common problem, however, is lack of proper timing of intercourse. The most likely time for conception is at or near the time of ovulation, usually about 14 days prior to the beginning of the next menstrual cycle. The time of ovulation can be detected by a slight rise in body temperature. Correct timing is more likely to produce conception than is frequent intercourse.

An investigation for infertility may be time-consuming. In some cases, examination and counseling by a physician may be all that is needed.

In others, when problems are more complex, the solution may take more time and expense. While success cannot be guaranteed, pregnancy does occur in more than half of the infertile couples who seek help.

Artificial insemination, in which sperm cells from a donor are placed within the opening of the uterus, may permit the woman to become a mother.

PEDALING AROUND

Varied verbosity

By Mike Eliasohn

Idle thoughts (most of my thoughts are idle):

President Carter is making a big mistake in not participating in the upcoming television debates.

Granted, he was in a no-win situation as long as John Anderson participated.

Anderson is much more likely to draw votes away from Carter than from Reagan, thus the Illinois congressman's appearance in the debates will be detrimental to the President.

On the other hand, maybe he would have garnered lots of sympathy with Reagan and Anderson picking on him.

Now, however, the reaction of the public will be that Carter didn't have the guts to defend his policies on national television.

If he does change his mind before the first debate, Sept. 21, that will only reinforce the image of Carter as a man who can't make up his mind.

Politically, my leanings are probably closest to those of Anderson, though I doubt I will vote for him.

I go along with those -- probably Carter supporters, mostly -- who feel the Illinois congressman's candidacy is a creation of the media.

The best he ever did in a primary was second place, but instead of dropping out like the other losers, he decides to run as an independent and the national media treats him like the candidates for the two major parties.

If you don't believe me, watch the 6:30 network news shows. Disregarding coverage of Carter as president, which is unavoidable, Anderson gets about as much air time as do Reagan and Carter (as candidate).

No wonder politicians have a tough time saying "no" to spending money.

Congressman Bob Traxler has released results of his latest constituent poll.

Eighty percent said they were in favor of a tax cut, even if it means a deficit budget or cut backs in government programs.

But in another question, Traxler listed 14 spending categories and asked whether the government should be spending less, the same or more for each category.

In 13 of the categories, the greatest percentage wanted as much spending in the past or more.

The only category in which they favored less spending was foreign aid, and out of a total 78-79 budget of $500.2 billion, the latest for which I could find the figures, only $7.7 billion was budgeted for that purpose. That's 1.53 percent, so eliminating all foreign aid wouldn't make much difference.

The latest contribution to our throwaway society which was never needed in the first place is thin plastic store bags, usually white.

Supermarkets are still using paper bags, but the plastic ones are increasingly popular with other types of stores for bagging customer purchases.

Paper bags are made from a renewable resource, trees, and when thrown out, will gradually decompose.

Unless there is some new process involved, I assume the plastic bags use petroleum in their manufacture, which is not a renewable resource, and when thrown away, do not decompose.

What a waste.

Registration deadline is Oct. 6

All 17-year-old individuals whose birthday falls on or before the Nov. 4 election can help select our next president, according to Secretary of State Richard H. Austin.

To be eligible to vote, however, all such individuals must register prior to the Oct. 6 deadline.

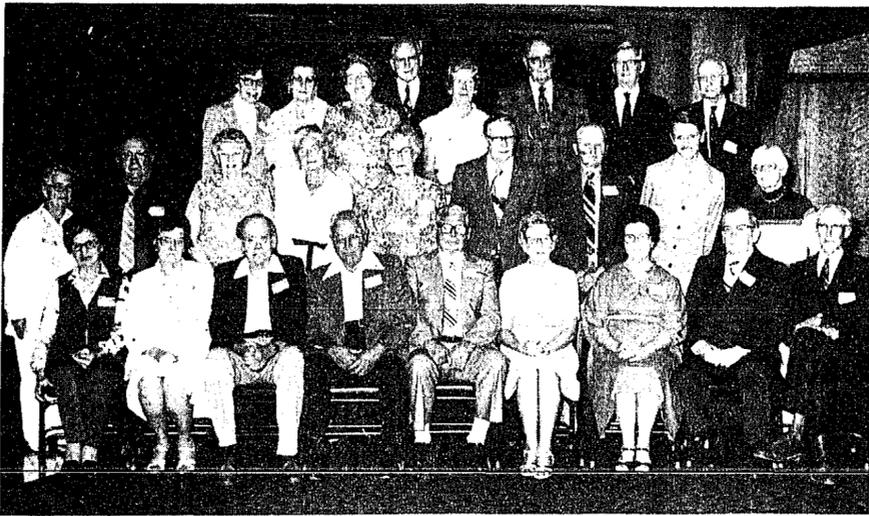

Any individual may register with the clerk of the village or township where they reside or at any of the 200 statewide Secretary of State branch offices, Austin said.

Jury finds pair guilty of raping pregnant woman

A Tuscola County Circuit Court jury Friday found two Millington men guilty of the March 28 rape of a Richville area woman who was pregnant at the time.

Found guilty of criminal sexual conduct (1st degree) at the conclusion of the four-day trial were James Paquette, 20, of 10269 Sheridan Road, and Alvin Thrasher, 22, of 10370 Oak Road.

Circuit Judge Martin E. Clements, who presided, scheduled sentencing Oct. 20. Bond was continued until then.

The woman, who was 4-5 months pregnant and married, according to preliminary examination testimony, ran out of gas north of Millington during the day in question.

The two men found guilty picked her up, drove her into Vassar to buy a container of gasoline, then drove south into Arbeta township, where they assaulted her.

A Circuit Court jury last Thursday found Paul S. Luketich, 56, of Mt. Morris, innocent of a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property over $100.

He had been charged with possession of a stolen garden tractor in August of last year in Vassar township.

Judge Patrick R. Joslyn presided over the three-day trial.

He then presided over a two-day trial, which ended

Friday with the jury finding Douglas G. Mitchell, 19, of Flint, guilty of a charge of assault with intent to commit great bodily harm.

Sentencing was scheduled Oct. 20. Mitchell was returned to the county jail.

He was found guilty of assaulting Clyde Shingler Oct. 9, 1979, near Millington.

JUDGE CLEMENTS

Clifford Billings, 61, formerly of Walnut Trailer Park, Cass City, stood mute at his arraignment Monday before Judge Clements to charges of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling and of breaking without entering.

Pleas of innocent were entered and pretrial hearing scheduled Oct. 6.

A motion for reduction of his $10,000 bond was denied, although the judge said posting of 10 percent of the bond or a property bond would be allowed.

As of Tuesday afternoon, Billings was still in the county jail.

The breaking and entering charge is in connection with the break-in of a mobile home March 17 on Hurds Corner Road, Ellington township.

The breaking without entry charge is in connection with the theft of chickens, turkeys and some items from a barn on E. Dutcher Road, Ellington township.

Mayville, stood mute Monday to charges of breaking and entering and malicious destruction of property over $100.

A plea of innocent was entered and bond continued at $5,000, pending a pretrial hearing.

He is charged with breaking into Mayville Elementary School and damaging two driver education cars that belong to the Mayville schools.

Shirley G. Martens, 37, of 5223 Lobdell Road, Mayville, was placed on one year's probation for insufficient funds. She was fined $100 and assessed $100 court costs.

She was charged with writing a check for $51 to a Caro shoe store in February, although she either did not have a bank account or sufficient funds in her account.

Gary S. Colmus, 17, of Saginaw, was placed on three years' probation for malicious destruction of property over $100. He was fined $200 and assessed $300 court costs.

Serving of 120 days in the county jail was suspended until the end of his probation.

He pleaded guilty to the charge July 21, the incident having occurred in connection with a June 15 break-in of Romain's market in Fostoria.

He is charged with damaging a car that belonged to the Vassar Schools and the utility station wagon of Thomas Asperger, both incidents occurring July 25 in Vassar.

Francis Sheldon, 43, of 2162 Ohmer Road, Mayville, was sentenced to 180 days in the county jail for receiving and concealing stolen property over $100. He was credited with three days served.

He pleaded guilty to the charge Aug. 4, of having possessed a stolen van May 6 in Dayton township.

Vandalism reported in Cass City

Raymond Brink of 4391 Brooker Street told Cass City police Monday afternoon that a large window on the west side of his home was broken by stones.

The value was $80. The damage was apparently done by boys shooting stones with slingshots.

George P. Hawley of 2732 E. Caro Road, Ellington township, reported to sheriff's deputies last Wednesday that wheels with bald tires were stolen from a pile of tires outside his house.

They were worth $15.

Polish class begins

A class in "Polish Language and Culture," sponsored by Saginaw Valley State College's Institute of Polish Studies in cooperation with the Cass City Community Education Department, starts this Thursday. Sessions will be held in room 305 at Cass City High School and are scheduled for eight Thursday evenings from 7-9 p.m.

Instructor will be Mark W. Witzak, special education resource staff for Laker senior and junior high schools. Witzak, who holds a bachelor's degree in education and a master's in administration, is fluent in Polish and familiar with the Slavic languages. Some knowledge of Polish is helpful, but not required. For more information, contact Kathleen O'Donnell, director of community education at 872-4151.

Those attending were Billy Coston, Cass City construction supervisor, who resides with his wife Sharon and daughter on Herron Drive, and Tom Marker, who lives on Dickerson Road, Unionville.

Methods to maintain air dryers, refrigeration units that supply dry air pressure to telephone cables, are taught in the five-day course. Major telephone cables are pressurized to keep moisture from entering cables and disrupting telephone service.

It's surprising what odd things folks will do to get even.

MATTER OF PRIDE

After all is said and done, it takes a lot of courage to admire the man who makes a success of what you gave up as a bad job.

Cardiologists join staff at hospital

Hills and Dales General Hospital has announced the appointment of two cardiologists (heart specialists) to its staff, Dr. Roger Kahn, M.D., and Dr. K. Mohan, M.D.

Mohan graduated from Medical College Hospital, Kottayam, Kerala, India, and did his residency in medicine at Leeds (St. James) University Hospital, England; Westminster Hospital, London, Ont., Canada, and St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N.J., and his fellowship in cardiology at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

Kahn graduated from Wayne State University Medical School and did his residency in cardiology and internal medicine at William Beaumont Hospital. He has a fellowship from the American College of Cardiology and American College of Physicians.

The doctors are in practice together in Saginaw and one or the other will have clinic hours at Hills and Dales every Friday afternoon. For an appointment call Hills and Dales out-patient clinic. The doctors will send the results of an exam to the patient's family physician upon request and confer with him regarding his or her care.

Other services available at the out-patient clinic are special foot care by Dr. Malcolm Pike, D.P.M., podiatrist, who has clinic hours on the first Thursday afternoon of each month. He does routine foot, nail, callous and corn care. Pike also specializes in foot correction appliances and diabetic foot care (which is covered by Medicare).

Dr. C.K. John, M.D., is a urologist who has clinic hours on Thursdays. For an appointment with any of these doctors, call the clinic at 872-2121, ext. 271. Speech therapy is available through Kenneth Miklash. The schedule is variable. He works with anyone who has speech problems, such as stroke or laryngectomy patients.

EEGs and Holter scan grams are also done at the clinic.

Hospital Administrator Ken Jensen also announced this week that two doctors have applied for staff privileges at the clinic. One is a gastroenterologist, who specializes in problems of the stomach and intestines. The other is an endocrinologist who specializes in diabetes, thyroid problems and other glandular diseases.

Their names will be announced after their credentials are approved and they are appointed to the staff, a process which should take about two months, Jensen said.

'Help line' phone service starts soon Assault Crisis Center year old, aims to help victims of assault

The Tuscola County Assault Crisis Center (ACC), which celebrated its first anniversary last week, is alive and well and needed, according to its president, Kathleen Boyle.

The organization has mainly been getting organized during its first year, but will soon be offering more services. Despite its name, it does not have an office.

Although the Crisis Center most likely will mostly be aiding women who are victims of rape or abuse by their husbands, its service will be open to persons of both sexes, such as for children sexually abused by parents, senior citizens victimized by their children and men abused by their wives, though she doesn't expect too many men in that category will ever seek help.

The need for such services is indicated by sheriff's department statistics for 1979. Mrs. Boyle commented. It recorded 18 sex offenses that year and 493 domestic assaults. The figures don't include such incidents recorded by Caro state police and individual police departments in Tuscola county.

There are a dozen active members, women and men, Mrs. Boyle said, plus some infrequently active ones. Members include housewives and mothers, persons involved in law enforcement and employees of social service agencies. Mrs. Boyle is a Tuscola county assistant prosecutor.

The big step forward for the organization will be the result of a recently approved agreement with the Human Development Commission to allow the ACC to use the latter's toll-free information and referral service telephone line. (The number is 1-800-292-3666.) HDC employees man the line during office hours, but volunteers do it afterwards. The line is open 8:30 a.m.-10 p.m., Monday through Friday.

In exchange for making referrals to the crisis center, its members will serve as volunteers in evenings. Three have already taken the required 40-hour empathy training course required for volunteers.

Mrs. Boyle will be meeting with HDC representatives this week to work out details and set up a publicity program. She is hopeful the new referral service can be in operation within a month. ONCE IT IS OPERATIONAL, the persons in need of help because of assault situations will be able to get it by calling the toll-free number. If one of the Crisis Center volunteers is there, the person can receive direct advice; otherwise, she or he will be told to call the ACC volunteer who is on stand-by duty that evening.

The first step, she said, is talking. What happens after that varies. A woman abused by her husband who needs to get away can be referred to the shelters in Saginaw, Bay City and Flint.

The person can be advised of agencies or persons that can assist them, such as mental health, social services, legal aid, HDC and churches.

"One of the things we can do is to help people sort through options and decide what is viable for them," Mrs. Boyle explained.

IN THE WALL -- Firemen had to rip off the siding next to the chimney Sunday night at the Grant Strickland home, 4431 S. Seeger Street, to extinguish a fire in the wall. The fire spread from the fireplace, where it was supposed to be, into the wall. Firemen received the call at 10:40 and were there about 20 minutes.

Rain brings bean harvest to halt in Michigan

Tuscola county isn't the only place where it has been raining.

The Michigan Bean Shippers Association reported Monday that week-end rain had brought harvesting to a halt throughout the bean growing area.

Based on calls to extension agents in the 12 bean growing counties, it estimated 28 percent of the estimated 346,600 acres of navy beans were harvested, and 26 percent of the colored beans.

Following is the report for each county. Yields are reported in hundredweight (cwt.) per acre. (One bushel equals 60 pounds). No report was available from Isabella county.

Tuscola -- 45 percent of 57,000 acres of navy crop harvested, with yields estimated at 13.2 cwt. per acre. 42 percent of 22,000 acres of colored beans off, with yields estimated at 13.8 cwt.

Sanilac -- 15 percent of 40,000 acres of navy beans off, yield estimated at 12 cwt. Less than 5 percent of 15,000 acres of colored beans harvested, with yields averaging 14 cwt.

Huron -- 55 percent of the 65,000 acres of navy beans harvested, with average yield 14 cwt. 40 percent of black beans off and 75-80 percent of pintos, with colored beans averaging 18 cwt.

Arenac -- Yields running 14 cwt. for 20 percent of 8,000 acres of navies harvested so far. 35 percent of colored beans off, with yields of 14 cwt.

Bay -- 30 percent of navies and more than half of colored beans probably harvested, with yields of 12 and 15 cwt. respectively.

Clinton -- About 10 percent of navies and 15 percent of coloreds off, with early yields averaging 5-15 cwt.

Eaton -- 10 percent of 21,000 acres of navy beans harvested, with yield averaging 13 cwt. Less than 5 percent of estimated 4,000 acres of colored beans off, with yields averaging 12-13 cwt.

Gratiot -- About 10 percent of 50,000 acre navy crop harvested with "some progress" made on 15,000 acres of colored beans. Yields estimated at 12 and 13 cwt. respectively.

Midland -- The 5-10 percent of the navy beans harvested are yielding 7-9 cwt., with no figures yet on colored beans. Two inches of rain fell Saturday.

Montcalm -- The 25,000 acres of colored beans will probably average 14-15 cwt.

Saginaw -- 20 percent of the 38,000 acre navy crop harvested, with yields figured at 10 cwt. 20-25 percent of 19,000 acres of colored beans off, mostly pintos, with yields averaging 12 cwt.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated last Thursday that Michigan's dry bean crop will total 7.28 million cwt. The last time 7 million cwt. was exceeded in Michigan was in 1972.

The 1,300 pounds per acre yield forecast in the state is 337 pounds less than the nationwide average. Michigan's crop should be 31 percent of the entire U.S. production.

Other than that, there haven't been any fund raising efforts made so far because "we're more interested in putting energy into delivery of services."

Most of the present volunteers are from the Caro area. Mrs. Boyle would like to recruit some from elsewhere, since the ACC is supposed to be a county-wide organization.

The HDC and its toll-free line serve four counties, Tuscola, Sanilac, Huron and Lapeer. For that reason, the center volunteers will be willing to talk to anyone in the four counties, but for practical reasons will provide direct services, such as in-person visits, only to Tuscola county residents.

Persons who would like to join the Crisis Center, make a donation or are in need of its services can call the HDC toll-free number, listed previously, leave a message, and someone will call them back.

An application was made -- thinking big -- for a $100,000 federal grant for hiring of a paid staff, office, etc. but since only three such grants are to be made nationwide, she doesn't expect the ACC will get it.

Ubly cheerleader tells how it is

Cheerleaders train for tourney glory

Don't try to tell Michelle Fligger that cheerleaders aren't athletes.

She has the muscles to prove they are.

Not only that, cheerleaders these days compete against other cheerleaders and win and lose like in more conventional sporting events.

The May graduate of Ubly High School spent the summer as a staff member at U.S. Cheerleading Association (USCA) clinics in six states, teaching younger cheerleaders to improve their techniques.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fligger of N. Ubly Road, Ubly, began her career as a cheerleader for the seventh grade basketball team.

In high school, she was a member of the junior varsity squad two years and the varsity squad two, which in her senior year finished fifth in the state in Class C competition and 21st nationally.

Getting a job with the USCA isn't easy. Pauline Hess, an instructor at Michigan State University who started the organization 25 years ago, conducts 15 or 16 tryouts across the country.

Michelle's tryout came April 20 in Lansing, where she had to perform various cheers, tumblers, dance routine and other talents. Of the 600 who tried out nationally, only 60 were hired.

Those selected were split into 10 separate staffs, with a director for each, with each group assigned to a different part of the country.

Michelle found herself assigned to staff 9 and by the time summer was over, she was in Cincinnati, Alliance and Columbus, Ohio; Valparaiso and Muncie, Ind.; Danville, Owensboro, Lexington, Louisville, Ky.; Huntington, W. Va., and Spring Arbor, Mount Pleasant and Lansing, Mich.

She left home June 6 for a one-week orientation at Hartland, and didn't return until Aug. 23.

The 18 clinics she helped conduct, each 3½ days long, were held on college campuses, with the participants staying and eating in the dormitories.

The cheerleaders who attended, an average of about 130 per clinic, ranged from elementary school age through college, though Miss Fligger didn't teach any of the latter. She worked a lot with the elementary youngsters.

THE EMPHASIS WAS ON cheers and techniques for use at games, but not all the squads came to the clinics for that purpose.

Competition is held the final two nights of each clinic and for those squads who chose to compete, the big prize was an invitation to the USCA Grand Nationals, held in Lansing Aug. 21-23. At least one team from each clinic was selected and as many as the judges thought were deserving could go.

In Michigan, where competitive cheerleading is more developed, more squads came for the opportunity to qualify for the nationals than to learn. "Michigan is bad competition," Michelle explained.

"They're out to kill."

Competition routines can run 1½ minutes, tell a story (going on a "shopping spree and went to buy a victory," being one example) and can be "as good as Broadway plays even."

As for the idea of cheerleaders cheering on the guys to victory, forget it.

The top rated team at the nationals was from Lakeview High School in St. Clair Shores, which practiced eight hours a day, seven days a week, all summer prior to the big event. "You can't say they got out there and did it for the guys," Michelle commented.

MOST OF THE CHEERLEADERS she encountered weren't out to win and she found her job was a strenuous one.

Sessions ran from 9 a.m. to lunch time, 2 p.m. until supper and 7 p.m. until late as 12:30 a.m. on the final night of each clinic.

Jumping around for two hours, she said, "that's a workout."

At night, the staff members were still on duty, keeping order in the dorms. Clinics ended in the morning and if the next one was on the same campus, it started in the afternoon. If the staff had to travel to another place, the most time they had was a day to get there.

"It's a lot of hard work," she said, as she flexed one arm. "I feel like a Russian weight lifter." (She does not look like a Russian weight lifter, however.)

THE WORST PART OF her experience, other than the packing and unpacking, was being on the go constantly. "The hardest part was to be peppy when you wanted to sleep, because you don't get much sleep on this job."

"You actually feel guilty if you're sitting down."

She admitted there were times when she said to herself, "Shut up, you little brats."

Michelle departed Labor Day for Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo where she plans to major in dance with the aim of eventually teaching "little kids how to dance." She doesn't think she will try out for the WMU cheerleading squad her freshman year.

Despite the trials and tribulations and low pay ($500 for the summer, plus room and board), the Ubly graduate hopes to be an instructor at the cheerleading clinics again next summer.

"I loved it because the kids made it worthwhile."

MICHELLE FLIGGER

Area to feel budget cuts

pointed out, is "the bottom of the barrel," being the catch-all program for those who don't qualify for other welfare programs.

If the general assistance cutback is approved, those affected will hopefully find jobs or live off family or friends.

Meanwhile, the caseload at the Caro office is skyrocketing. Since October, 1979, the Aid to Dependent Children caseload has increased 29 percent (to 1,097 cases); general assistance, up 28 percent (to 154), and food stamps, up 38 percent (to 1,343 recipients).

Although Mrs. Detwiler didn't have any statistics available, she said, "more and more" welfare recipients are laid off workers who have exhausted their unemployment benefits.

DSS employees are paid by the state and one result of the state's financial crunch is she can't hire as many workers as needed to handle the burgeoning caseload.

On a recent day, she said, 25 persons seeking to apply for benefits were told to come back another day because the staff didn't have enough time to take care of them.

Another result of the staff shortage, she admitted, is that some otherwise mandatory home checks to verify what the welfare recipients say regarding their eligibility aren't being done.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT

State revenues, such as from income tax, intangibles tax and sales tax, make up a substantial portion of the Tuscola county budget.

In 1979, state revenues totaled $568,930, out of total revenues to the county of $2.7 million. (Property taxes make up about half of the total.)

So far in 1980, according to Ken Kennedy, chairman of the finance committee of the county Board of Commissioners, state revenues have held up fairly well, but that could change with receipt of the revenue report for the third quarter of the fiscal year.

The county board recently had to authorize expenditure of about $15,000 for an audit of 1979 county revenues and expenses, to be performed by a certified public accounting firm.

That is a function that according to the state constitution is supposed to be done by the state for all counties, but the state doesn't have the money.

In addition to it being good financial practice, an audit is necessary in order to continue receiving federal revenue sharing funds, which amounted to $320,000.

Of the county community mental health services budget of $572,000 for the present fiscal year, Director Dennis Johnson said, $38,000 comes from the county, with the rest coming from the state.

The county's share is supposed to increase by a half of a percent in 1980-81, but how much money the state will provide is still up to the legislature.

The county program had to refund $10,000 to Lansing during the present fiscal year because of a budget cutback.

Johnson added that as more persons are unemployed, the number of persons in need of mental health counseling has increased.

Lansing pays 20 percent of the county health department budget, which by law was supposed to be increased to 30 percent in 1981. The state has now announced that because of lack of money, its share will remain at 20 percent next year.

County commissioners will approve the 1981 budget in November, but with the state cutbacks and department county heads and judges up for pay raises, Kennedy predicted, "I look for quite a struggle."

Area workers to receive aid

Whether the present "strong surge" remains depends on how well the new cars sell. "We're just hoping it stays there," he commented.

Employees at Kingston Krome buff and polish parts made at the other Trim Trends plants.

Although 10 or 11 are employed there, Driver said, more than that may be eligible for the TRA benefits since more than that may have worked there during the eligibility period.

Those eligible who have or yet applied should do so through their local Michigan Employment Security Commission office.

Driver said it is his understanding the MESCC sends out the TRA benefit check in one lump sum. The Kingston Krome workers should have their checks by the end of the month.

The executive didn't know the total amount they will be receiving.

Once the company applied for the TRA benefits in behalf of its employees, he explained, it was about a six month process before approval was granted.

The U.S. Labor Department examines the finances and operation of the plant to determine whether its operations were severely affected by foreign competition.

Once that determination is made, the government examines each employee's records to determine the amount of benefits to which he or she is entitled.

The eligibility period for Kingston Krome dates back to Sept. 7, 1979, the date established by the Labor Department as to when the company first began to be affected by imports. In essence, Driver said, that means the date when the first layoffs began.

There were some periods of 2-3 weeks, according to the executive, when the entire plant was closed.

The 14,000 finalists will be notified in February that they will be competing for about 4,500 merit scholarships to be awarded in the spring.

Exciting and exhausting

MaryAnn Wilkinson digs history in Israel

ANCIENT DIG -- Part of the excavation at Tel Anafa. This is the "trench" MaryAnn Wilkinson worked in, which started at ground level at the beginning of summer and went down seven feet by the end.

MaryAnn Wilkinson spent her summer digging a trench in a war zone.

The University of Michigan graduate student was in northern Israel in June to mid-August working at an "archaeological dig" that dated back to about 300 B.C.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wilkinson of Rossman Road, Kingston, is a 1971 graduate of Kingston High School and 1975 graduate of U-M, with a major in French.

After various odd jobs, she returned to U-M, where she will be receiving her master's degree in art history in December. Her specialty is renaissance art (15th-early 17th century) in Italy and France.

After receiving her M.A., she hopes to get a job in an art or archaeological museum and may some day work on a doctoral degree in art history.

She described the opportunity to spend the summer in Israel as a "good work experience and a good scholastic experience," as well as a good travel opportunity.

The archaeological dig, in its third of four years, was sponsored by the U-M and University of Missouri.

Miss Wilkinson, 27, was part of the paid technical staff, "people who are supposed to know what is going on." The 15 or 16 people stayed the entire summer.

In addition, there were volunteers who paid all their own expenses, ranging from college students to college faculty members to two women, age 62, "who just wanted to come." The volunteers came in two groups and stayed for a month, June or July.

There was a total of about 45-50 persons working at the site.

THE DIG WAS LOCATED in a big hill in the middle of a cotton field. The name of the site was Tel Anafa. "Tel" in Hebrew means "hill."

Three different civilizations existed on the site, with the Greek one dating back to about 300 B.C. The Roman civilization dated to about 150-200 A.D. and the Arab one to the 15th century.

The civilizations were not continuous. The Greek settlement may have been abandoned for a couple of hundred years, walls collapsed and the site became covered with wind-blown soil.

When the Romans came, they may have used the original foundations or used stones from the original buildings to construct their own. The same process was repeated by the Arabs.

"People tend to leave debris wherever they are, and that's very important to archaeologists," Miss Wilkinson explained.

WHAT OFTEN WAS found, and of great use, was pottery and coins.

Enough is already known about pottery that when fragments are found, and that is usually all that is found, they can be approximately dated by such factors as type of clay, color and type of glaze. (Glazing was first used in the 14th century.)

Coins often bore the likeness of the then current ruler and sometimes even had a date on them.

The archaeologists from the two U-Ms were primarily interested in the Greek civilization at the bottom, which meant digging through the Arab and Roman layers. Each of the six "trenches" at the site were about 16 feet square and went down 7 feet.

Everything found was catalogued, photographed and preserved, so that the information and items would be available to those studying the later Roman and Arab civilizations.

WHAT THE SCHOLARS were trying to find out was the function of what they knew to be a small city.

The initial speculation was that it was a trading outpost, but it may have been an artist's colony, or manufacturing center.

The excavation site, about half as long as a football field, apparently was the acropolis, the high point of a larger community. Pieces of pottery could be found while walking in the cotton fields, dug up by the agricultural implements, so it is known the community was larger than what was at the excavation site.

MISS WILKINSON HAD two jobs. The first was digging at the site, which was done from 5 a.m.-1 p.m. to avoid the hottest part of the day. Temperatures averaged about 100 degrees, though very dry.

Her second task was as registrar, who had to catalogue each find as to color, size, age (if possible) and give it a permanent number so it could always be found.

Her cataloguing was done in the afternoon "and in the evening, I usually collapsed."

Living conditions were quite spartan. The excavation team stayed at a youth hostel about 15 minutes away by bus from the excavation site. Clothes had to be washed in buckets and the rooms were so crowded, Miss Wilkinson usually slept outside.

The nearest town, Qiryat Shemona, about the size of Cass City, was about 1 1/2 miles from the hostel.

THE TOWN WAS ABOUT three miles from the borders of Lebanon and Syria.

Though the Americans were never in immediate danger, "We could hear bombs frequently in the distance." Jet planes and helicopters flew by frequently and there were "always soldiers around." There were a couple of times, she admitted, "we were pretty scared."

At the end of the summer, all of the finds and tools were taken to the project worksite in the basement of an unused monastery in Jerusalem.

A representative of the government Department of Antiquities went over the summer's finds to determine what had to remain in Israel as property of the government and what could be taken to the United States. "Most countries won't allow anything to be removed," Miss Wilkinson pointed out, so the Israelis are generous in allowing some to be removed.

THE HIGH POINT OF her summer was finding two Roman coins and an intact Greek pot. "That makes it exciting."

Despite the hard work -- "It's not a vacation, by any means" -- and the fact that her stipend wasn't enough to cover all her expenses, she would like to go back next summer, if circumstances permit.

Her stipend paid all except about $200 of her air fare, plus spending money had to come out of her pocket.

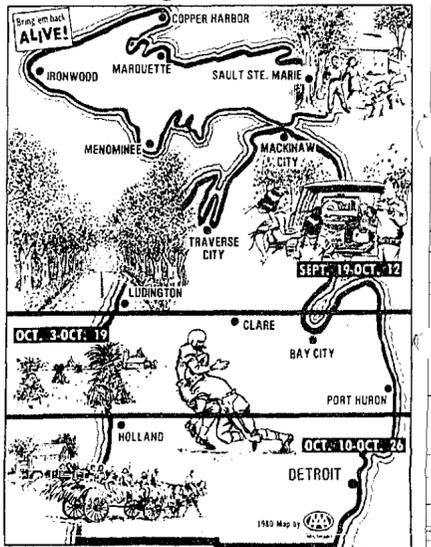

As for what good will come out of the excavation at Tel Anafa, she explained, "It's like any other kind of scholarship. We're doing it as part of research."

"It's not going to make the cost of eggs come down or anything. It helps us understand how ancient civilizations lived."

Proposed tax hike likely doomed in legislature

By Warren M. Hoyt
Mich. Press Association

Admitting legislative approval of a proposed tax hike plan may result in greater support for the Tisch tax cut amendment, House Taxation Chairman George Montgomery has introduced a $972 million tax increase package to partially offset revenue loss should the amendment be approved by the voters.

Although under constitutional tax limitations which prohibit the imposition of more than $700 million in additional taxes this year, Montgomery said he offered the larger package to give lawmakers some options on what taxes to impose.

However, legislative observers do not feel the Montgomery plan will have much support in the Legislature, especially in the House where the membership faces election this year.

Montgomery, meanwhile, will retire after this current session and does not have to worry about his political future by authorizing such a tax hike plan.

The executive office will also oppose the package and Governor William Milliken already directed state department heads to prepare a plan to implement the Tisch tax cut should it be adopted.

THE MONTGOMERY plan calls for an increase on most current taxes and proposes new taxes on radio and television advertising, cigars and pipe tobacco.

Montgomery wants the new taxes in effect by Oct. 1 and then expire on Nov. 4 if the $2 billion Tisch tax cut measure is not approved by the voters.

He called his proposal one of revenue insurance "which would be absolutely needed if Tisch is adopted and desirable in any case for the Oct. 1-Nov. 4 period to supplement sagging 1980-81 revenues."

Even with the passage of the proposed new taxes, Montgomery said he fears state government may not survive in recognizable form.

He said even though passage of $700 million in new taxes may anger voters and cause them to support Tisch, taxpayers should know how they will fare if Tisch is adopted.

POINTS OF THE MONTGOMERY package include:

- Raising the income tax by 1 percent, $600 million in revenue; raising the single business tax by 3 percent, producing $220 million; raising the per barrel beer tax, producing $22 million in new revenue; raising the cigarette tax to 17 cents per pack and imposing a tax of 8.5 mills on each cigar and on each 1-10 of an ounce of pipe tobacco, to produce $70 million in revenues, and imposing a new tax of 60 cents on each minute of radio advertising and $1.80 per minute for television advertising, producing $17.5 million.

The plan also calls for reducing the state payout for lottery prizes to 40 percent from 45 percent, thus saving the state $20 million annually.

New books at the library

ANIMAL DAYS, by Desmond Morris (non-fiction). Desmond Morris, best-selling author of "The Naked Ape," was for many years the curator of mammals at the London Zoo. He has devoted his entire life to animals, and in this delightfully amusing memoir he shares a veritable menagerie of animal tales, from the chimpanzee whose paintings startled the art world and earned praise from Picasso and Miro, to the misguided whale whose voyage up the Thames posed a fishy problem for London police.

SHELLEY: ALSO KNOWN AS SHIRLEY, by Shelley Winters (non-fiction). A quality actress, Winters has written a quality autobiography. Coming from a Brooklyn ghetto, she had a sufficient amount of moxie (and certainly talent) to work her way into stage and movie acting, and then stardom. She is frank about her love life, but without a kiss-and-tell attitude. From early on in her life, she bounced from escapade to escapade, and her detailed recollections of them all are clear and entertaining.

GLADYS, DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH, by Hugo Vickers (non-fiction). The life of Gladys Deacon, second wife of the English Duke of Marlborough, is a sort of riches-to-rags story. She was born in Paris of rich American parents, well placed in fashionable society, and grew up privileged, intelligent, beautiful — and eccentric. With a slew of suitors, she led a bohemian existence in Europe, finally marrying in 1921, at age 40, the divorced Duke of Marlborough. They got along abominably, then separated, and Gladys became a recluse, living in unbelievably squalid conditions and dying in an institution in 1977. Vickers had 65 visits with her during the last two years of her life, and he relates her biography neither slavishly nor sensationally, but with compassion.

Sally Goodall of rural Cass City won both the hog calling and husband calling contests at this year's Michigan State Fair.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Rotary Group study team from South Africa and Rhodesia defended racial segregation and explained national problems at various meetings held during their five-day stay in Caro and Cass City.

25 YEARS AGO

pointed commanding officer of the U.S. Army medical dispensary at Aschaffenburg, Germany.

ing to Fred Mathews, Tuscola county clerk. Cass City Schools received $10,126.

Gen-Tel seeks rate increase

Responding to inflationary pressure, General Telephone Co. has asked the Michigan Public Service Commission for permission to increase phone rates, according to Donald G. Prigmore, the company's president.

General Telephone's request for a general rate increase would provide $28.8 million in additional revenue annually, although the company would retain only about $14.7 million after paying state and federal taxes.

The new rates proposed by General Telephone would cause residential service to increase an average of about 22 percent. Single-party rates now range from $6.95 to $9.75 per month. The proposed increase will be $1.81 in each case.

In addition, the company proposes to allow customers the option of leasing a standard, single-line telephone from the company at $1.50 per month or providing their own phone at no additional cost.

The last time General Telephone applied for a rate increase was in 1975, though the request was not approved. The company previously filed for general rate increases in 1970 and 1974.

Prigmore cited increases in the cost of equipment, interest rates, wages and salaries and taxes since 1975 as the reason for the need for the increase.

General Telephone serves 451,000 customers in 549 communities throughout Michigan.

Lakers bow in defensive struggle

A crucial test — Hawks vs. Caro Friday

The first crucial game of the 1980 football season for the Cass City Red Hawks will be played Friday when the Hawks host Caro in a clash of Thumb B conference unbeaten teams. Both Caro and Cass City survived scares in last week's conference clashes. Caro defeated Sandusky in overtime and Cass City edged the Lakers, 6-0. Credit the defense with chalking up Cass City's second straight win of the season. Aided by a break early in the first period, Cass City's defense kept the Green and White from scoring. It was especially strong when the Lakers threatened to score.

It was the defense that provided the only score. With just 3:22 left in the game Tim Sontag intercepted a Laker pass at midfield from his safety position.

He ran to the left sidelines and was hemmed in. He reversed his field, picked up a wall of blockers and raced into the end zone.

Early in the first quarter it appeared as if the Lakers were going to cap a drive with a score.

Moving smartly down the field on power running plays it was third and two for a touchdown. A fumble, recovered by Cass City, stopped the drive.

Cass City mounted a drive of its own in the second quarter. Rob Sawdon picked up valuable yardage on runs around his own left end.

Quarterback Brian de-

Beaubien rambled for 25 yards on a busted pass play and Cass City was first and 10 on the Laker 19. But a pass was intercepted by the Lakers to end the threat.

The Lakers then mounted a drive against the clock and moved to the Cass City 8-yard line before running out of downs just as the first half ended.

Neither team was able to generate any semblance of a sustained drive in the second half.

Cass City squandered a golden opportunity in the third quarter, taking over on the Laker 29, but was unable to move the ball.

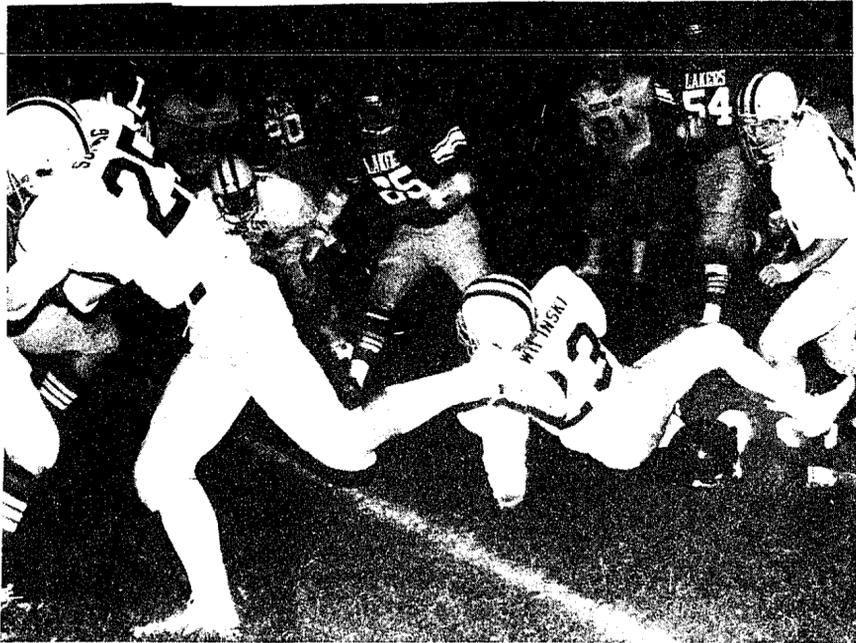

Coach Don Schelke says that he expects the defenses to be the key in Friday's clash with the Hawks at home.

It's possible that the Tigers were looking past Sandusky last week and maybe we were looking towards Caro, although all we talked about during the week before the Laker game was the Lakers, Schelke said. To no one's surprise Sontag was named Red Hawk of the week. Besides his touchdown, Sontag intercepted two other passes and was credited with 19 points in Schelke's point rating system. He also was used at fullback on offense. Chuck Erla was next with 12 points.

Touch grid loop forming

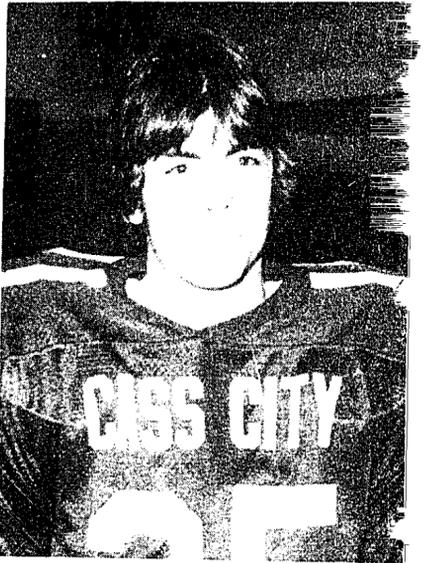

Men's touch football will soon become a reality in the Caro area. Games will be played at the fairgrounds in the evenings throughout the fall months.

Team and player fees will be used to pay for lining the playing field, the league president's fee, referees, and trophies.

Teams may have from 7-17 players. The only restriction is that they must be 18 years or older and not in high school. Players may register as a team or as independents. Once there is a sufficient number of independents, they will be organized as a team.

Registration will continue through Thursday, Sept. 25. For more information, call the Caro Community Services Office at 673-3166 and ask for Erl Nordstrom.

RED HAWK of the week against the Lakers was Tim Sontag, who played the best game of his career. He intercepted three passes, one of which he ran back for the only touchdown of the game.

O-G prepares for Warriors after edging Caseville, 12-0

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs, having gotten by Caseville last Friday, 12-0, face what could be the supreme test of the season this Friday when they travel to North Huron.

The Warriors, at least prior to their upset by Peck last Friday, 12-4, were most prognosticators' pre-season choice to win the North Central D League title.

North Huron, said Bulldog coach Arnie Besonen, is solid, has good size -- their tackles are "humongous" -- and fast. "They're loaded."

After the Warriors' upset loss to Peck, he predicts, "They're going to come on us like a bunch of roaring buffalos."

Adding to their incentive, no doubt, will be a desire to make up for last season's humiliating 33-6 loss to Owen-Gage, when the team was also predicted to be a contender for the league title. The Warriors Friday also have the home team advantage.

Owen-Gage will have to do two things Friday to win, get past the tough Warrior defense and stop their potent offense, spearheaded by backs John Binder and Wally Baranski.

Although Caseville last Friday didn't have much of an offense, it did have a tough defense. "Caseville gave us a rough game," Besonen commented. "They shut us down from tackle to tackle."

The first successful drive against the Eagles came in the second quarter when Dan Glidden caught a Craig Gettel pass, the 50 yard play capping a 76 yard drive.

Gettel's kick attempt for the extra point was no good. The other touchdown came in the third quarter when Caseville was forced to punt from its 15 yard line. Craig Enderle blocked the kick and the ball bounced into the end zone, where Alan LaValley recovered it for the TD.

Gettel's second kick attempt of the night for the extra point was also unsuccessful.

The two teams were fairly evenly matched on the ground, with Owen-Gage collecting 109 yards in 32 carries and the Eagles, 93 yards in 30 carries.

The big difference came in the air, with Gettel tossing seven passes, with four completions for a gain of 86 yards, and one interception.

Caseville only had three completions of 14 tries, with one interception, for a loss of 3 yards.

The team collected eight first downs for the evening, compared to the victors' seven. The Bulldogs fumbled once.

Dan Glidden was Owen-Gage's top receiver with two catches and 70 yards gained.

On the ground, Jim Glidden gained 61 yards in 12 carries and Gettel had 22 yards in six carries.

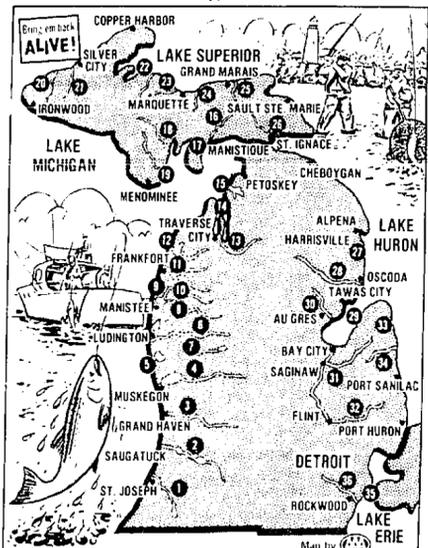

Top Eagle carrier was Mike Kelly with 51 yards in 13 carries.

Defensively, Robert LaFave had eight tackles for the Bulldogs; Scott Gaeth, seven, and Jim Glidden, Kendall Howard, Jim Kehr and Gary Erickson, five each.

Brian Lukasiak brought down Owen-Gage players eight times.

A-F cagers no match for O-G

Despite efforts to keep the score down, Owen-Gage defeated Akron-Fairgrove in girls' basketball last Thursday by an embarrassing 48-10.

The game was highlighted by Bulldog Becky Howard scoring her 1,000th career point in her four-year varsity career. She finished the night with 23 points and a total of 1,013.

Joan Mosack contributed nine points for the victors.

Julie Andrakowicz collected 13 rebounds and Howard had 12.

All of the Bulldogs got lots of playing time and coach

Judy Campbell finally got her players to stop shooting in an effort to keep a victory margin from growing even wider.

Owen-Gage is now 3 overall, 1-0 in the league. The Bulldogs also had a effortless time in the junior varsity game, winning 22-

Golf loop champs crowned

The annual season's ending tournament and banquet for the Cass City Golf League was held at Scenic Golf Course, Sunday. The day was highlighted by a two-man best ball tournament and the awarding of prizes and trophies to tournament and season champions.

In the tournament competition the team best ball championship was won by Larry Davis and Ken Zdrojewski with a score with handicap of 16 under par. Carl Palmer and Russ Richards were second.

Maynard Helwig was the low actual and the low handicap golfer. Since league rules prohibit the awarding of more than one prize to a member the prize for low actual score was given to runner-up, Dale McIntosh.

There were a host of other prizes awarded in various "mini contests" including least putts, longest drive, closest to the pin and similar events.

SEASON'S WINNERS

In addition to the tournament prizes, awards won during the regular season were distributed. Winner of the A division was Mike Murphy who received a golf bag, club covers and a trophy. Runner up was Don Ouvry who received a gift certificate.

Winner in the B Division was Gary Jones who received a bag, covers and trophy. The runner-up gift certificate was won by Herman Umpfenbach.

Winners were determined in a play-off. First and second flight players competed for the A crown and flight three and four champions played for the B crown. In addition to the top two, there were prizes awarded to second and third place finishers in both the A and B division. In the A division, Clint House was second and Jude Patnaude, third. In the B division, Lambert Althaver was second and Mike Shaft, third.
