

BISHOP HANDY

SAYS
"I Cheerfully Recommend Peruna to All Who Want a Good Tonic and a Safe Cure for Catarrh."

Prominent members of the clergy are giving Peruna their unqualified endorsement. These men find Peruna especially adapted to preserve them from catarrh of the vocal organs which has always been the bane of public speakers, and general catarrhal debility incident to the sedentary life of the clergyman. Among the recent utterances of noted clergymen on the curative virtues of Peruna is the following one from Bishop James A. Handy, D. D., of Baltimore:

"I take great pleasure in acknowledging the curative effects of Peruna. At the solicitation of a friend I used your remedy and cheerfully recommend you Peruna to all who want a good Tonic and a safe cure for catarrh."—James A. Handy.

OTHER NOTABLE CURES. A Husband Escaped the Pangs of Catarrh of the Lungs.

Most Cases of Incipient Consumption Are Catarrh.

Mrs. Edward Stevens of Carthage, N. Y., writes as follows:
 "I now take pleasure in notifying you that my husband has entirely recovered from catarrh. He is a well man today, thanks to you and Peruna. He took six bottles of your medicine as directed, and it proved to be just the thing for him. His appetite is good and every thing he eats seems to agree with him. His cough has left him and he is gaining in flesh, and seems to be well every way. I hope others will try your medicine and receive the benefits that we have."—Mrs. Edward Stevens.

When the catarrh reaches the throat it is called tonsillitis, or laryngitis. Catarrh of the bronchial tubes is called bronchitis; catarrh of the lungs, consumption. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other location. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of catarrhal diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate; it cures.

Mrs. Frederick Williams, President of the South Side Ladies' Aid Society of Chicago, Ill., writes the following words of praise for Peruna from 973 Cuyler ave., Chicago, Ill.:

"My home is never without Peruna, for I have found during the past six years that there is no remedy will do more to alleviate suffering and actually cure, as Peruna does. Four bottles completely cured me of catarrh of the head of several years' standing, and my husband feels badly, and I have caught cold, and at once take Peruna, and in a day or two it has thrown the sickness out of the system."—Mrs. Frederick Williams.

Mrs. W. A. Allison, of 759 Sheffield avenue, Chicago, Ill., is the Assistant Matron of the Peoples' Hospital. She has the following to say about Peruna:

"I have had frequent opportunities to observe the wonderful curative effects of Peruna especially on persons suffering with a congested condition of the head, lungs, and stomach, generally called catarrh. It also cures pain and soreness, increases the appetite and so tones up the entire system that the patient quickly regains strength and health."—Mrs. W. A. Allison.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SKUNK FARMS DO NOT PAY.

Official Report on the Subject to the Secretary of Agriculture.
 A newspaper story of the profits made by raising stunks for their skins is giving officials of the agricultural department no end of trouble. It first bobbed up about a year ago. It set forth that the agricultural department had been studying skunk culture, and had found that the beasts were more profitable than a gold mine. As a result of the story the department has received many letters of inquiry. T. S. Palmer, assistant chief of the biological survey, wants to correct this misapprehension. In a report to Secretary Wilson he says: "Misled by the statements about the rapid increase of stunks and the high prices paid for their skins, many persons seriously considered starting skunk farms. For several years a list has been kept of such farms located in various parts of the country, but so far as can be learned, most of them have been abandoned. Raising fur-bearing animals for profit is not a new idea. The industry, however, has apparently never advanced beyond the experimental stage, except in the case of the farms for raising the Arctic or blue fox, established on certain islands of the coast of Alaska."

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

A Veteran of the Civil War Tells an Interesting Story.
 EFFINGHAM, Ill., April 22. (Special).—Uriah S. Andrick is now 67 years of age. Mr. Andrick served through the whole of the Civil War. He was wounded three times by ball, and twice by bayonet.

When he entered the service of his country in 1861, he was hale and hearty, and weighed 198 pounds. Since the close of the War however, Mr. Andrick has had very bad health. "For fifteen years, he never lay down in bed for over an hour at a time. He had acute Kidney Trouble, which grew into Bright's Disease. His heart also, troubled him very much."

On Oct. 18th, 1900, he was weighed, and weighed only 102 pounds, being but a shadow of his former self. He commenced using Dodd's Kidney Pills on the 26th of last December, and on Feb. 20th was again weighed, and weighed 146 pounds. He says: "I have spent hundreds of dollars and received no benefit, until on the 26th of December last, I purchased one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I am cured, and I am free from any pain. My heart's action is completely restored. I have not the slightest trace of the Bright's Disease, and I can sleep well all night. I was considered a hopeless case by everybody, but today I am a well man, thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

THE CENSUS.

Its Modern Use Is Due to the Initiative of the United States.
 The census was an important feature of the governments of ancient Rome, Greece, Egypt, Persia, and the Babylonian empire. A census of the vast Roman empire and its dependencies was in progress at the time of the birth of Christ. But this enumeration of population fell into disuse in the Middle Ages. Down to the end of the 18th century even the most trustworthy geographers had to depend entirely upon guesswork in formulating an estimate of the population of the various countries in Europe. It is to the United States that may be said to belong the credit of reviving the census, the constitution of 1787 including a provision for census to be taken every 10 years. The enumeration was rendered necessary by the fact that the population of the several states constituted the basis of representation in congress, and, while it is true that the national census was incorporated in the constitution from political rather than philosophical considerations, it must be confessed that this nation deserves the glowing eulogium of M. de Montesquieu, who declared that "the United States presents a phenomenon with parallel in history—that of a people who instituted the statistics of their country on the very day when they found their government, and who regulated by the same instrument the census of inhabitants, their civil and political rights and the destinies of the nation."

Algon Quilt Still Flourishes.

The craze for Algon novelties appears again among the new laces, where the wreath and the eagle are elaborately represented. For skirt trimming there is a three-inch Mechlin lace insertion with a wreath of lace leaves as large as a tea plate extending up at intervals, while inside of this is a black lace eagle nearly filling the space, says the New York Sun.

Algon Belt Buckles are distinguished by laurel wreaths and spread eagles in gold and silver, and then there is the Algon umbrella handle, which is a gold ball with an eagle perched on top. Roses with most realistic dewdrops scattered over them have been worn as hair ornaments all winter, but now you can purchase the dewdrops by the dozen and stick them on to suit your own fancy. They have some adhesive substance on the back which assures their permanent position and are as readily disposed of as postage stamps.

A DARE-DEVIL FEAT.

Two Men Coast Down a Two-Mile Mountain Side in Wyoming.
 It is difficult to imagine a more daredevil and thrilling adventure than that of two men sliding down a steep, ice-crusted mountain, one in a prospector's pan and the other on a miner's shovel. Yet such a hazardous undertaking was accomplished by Pete McGoff and "Yankee Bill" Murphy, miners and prospectors in the Sierra Madre mountains, when they flew like the wind down the side of the treeless Quartzite mountain, a distance of two miles, with a descent of about thirty-five degrees and landed in twenty-five feet of snowdrift in the 40-foot chasm of Cow Creek, a few miles west of Grand encampment, Wyoming.

Pete and "Yankee Bill's" love of adventure will brook perils of any kind and at any time for the pure love of sport—perils at which the tenderfoot would stand aghast. Both are known for the chances they take with their lives. The greater the danger the more ready they are to enter into it. It was a jesting wager simply that they raced down the mountain side, Pete in the pan and "Yankee Bill" squatting on the shovel, both finishing with a record-breaker and what might have been a neck-breaker.

They had climbed to the top of the peak, over two feet of snow, to wash out a decomposed quartzite which showed rusty iron ore, and which led them to believe they would carry gold. In the afternoon it turned so cold that the surface of the mountain resembled glass. It was near sundown when the two men finished prospecting and started to retrace their way down the mountain. The slippery, ice snow impeded their progress, making the journey slow and dangerous at best.

Less than 100 feet down Pete jestingly proposed to "Yankee Bill" that they slide down on the pan and shovel. "I'll beat you," said Pete, sniting the action to the word by getting into the pan.

"You can't beat me," replied Yankee Bill," at the same time squatting down on his shovel, unmindful of possible danger.

At first both slid along at a jerky fashion, for they were obliged to push themselves along at times. Suddenly, however, the descent became much more abrupt, and the two men launched into the ozone and shot down with accelerating speed like comets through space. The sensation they felt can neither be described nor imagined. They tore down the mountain side like an avalanche, each holding on to his metal steed with a vice-like grip. A mile was covered in apparently an instant, when a ridge formation turned them off their course, and they fell still faster at an acute angle. The 40-foot chasm of Cow creek was inevitable and before they had time to realize the danger they had leaped over its edge, cleared Cow creek, and, as if human drills, had bored the snowdrift twenty-five feet.

When dug out Pete and "Yankee Bill" did not exactly need the coroner, but there were not enough plasters and linaments in camp to soothe their bruises. They came up smiling, however, each stoutly maintaining victory.

"Now Don't Get the Blues."

When a cheerful, brave and light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the blues, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way: She has been feeling out of sorts for some time, experiencing severe headache and backache; sleeps very poorly and is exceedingly nervous.

Sometimes she is nearly overcome by faintness, dizziness, and palpitation of the heart; then that bearing-down feeling is dreadfully wearing.

Her husband says, "Now, don't get the blues! You will be all right after you have taken the doctor's medicine."

But she does not get all right. She grows worse day by day, until all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake. She loses faith; hope vanishes; then comes the morbid, melancholy, everlasting blues. She should have been told just what the trouble was, but probably she withheld some information from the doctor, who, therefore, is unable to accurately locate her particular illness.

Mrs. Pinkham has relieved thousands of women from just this kind of trouble, and now retains their grateful letters in her library as proof of the great assistance she has rendered them. This same assistance awaits every sick woman in the land.

Mrs. Winifred Allender's Letter.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have received from your wonderful remedies. Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I was a misery to myself and every one around me. I suffered terrible pain in my back, head, and right side, was very nervous, would cry for hours. Wounds would appear sometimes in two weeks, then again not for three or four months. I was so tired and weak, could not sleep nights, sharp pains would dart through my heart that would almost cause me to fall.

"My mother coaxed me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had no faith in it, but to please her I did so. The first bottle helped me so much that I continued it. I am now well and weigh more than I ever did in my life."—MRS. WINIFRED ALLENDER, Farmington, Ill.
