

The First Trousers.

The pantaloons or trousers were made in Assyria in the reign of King Asshurizinpal B. Horses were introduced into the army as cavalry. Here now was a problem. The cavalrymen had to have some sort of a uniform and it was impossible for him to wear a skirt and ride astride a horse. The tailors to his majesty's armies wagged their heads a long time over the problem and finally decided to cut the cavalrymen's skirts from hem to waist band in both front and rear, letting each part fall on As can be readily imagined, this its respective side of the horse. split skirt made a poor article of clothing; yet humble apology for a garment was destined to be the father of the original trousers. "Why not," said one of the workers of the needle or shears, "sew together the edges of each division of the skirt and thus form a separate skirt for each leg," or in other words he invented a pair of pantaloons. CASS CITY AWAKE!

The Business Men Should Ever Be Reaching Out For New Enterprises.

WE NEED SEVERAL INDUSTRIES

All Things Come to Him Who Hustles For it-Spasmodic Movements do not Count, Steady Intelligent Planning and Work Alone Brings Success.

There was a small gathering of business men at the council room the other evening for the purpose of taking some measures in the development of the clay deposits which lie adjacent to Cass City. It is expected that in the very near future a quantity of the material will be sent to Bucyrus, Ohio, from which samples of brick will be manufactured. These brick will possibly be placed on exhibition during the National Manufacturers Convention, which convenes at Detroit in the early part of June. The few men present were deeply To be Built by a Stock Company interested in the project, and steps were taken to have the Business Mens' Association, or whatever is left this project further consideration. The question was asked whether the Business Mens' Association was still alive. The activity of the association has been of such a spasmodic character, that it is pretty hard to tell whether it is, or whether it is not. This leads the Chronicle again to remark, that the present condition of the Business Mens' Association indicates a lack of interest on the part of some at least, and just so long as this spirit of lethargy exists nothing will our natural resources or securing new industries for our town.

If Cass City is to grow, then new enterprises must be developed, and this takes brains, push and money. We think even the most phlegmatic merchant in town will agree with us on this point. Now, who is to furnish these requisites? Does it not stand to reason that every loyal citizen must and should be willing to make some sacrifice if necessary in order to bring about the desired end?

If this be so, then everybody must take hold of the work, and especially s it necessary that the Business Mens' Association should be constantly at work either through its officers or committees to bring about some definite results. Other places which are constantly on the lookout for new enas it is with private concerns. The the quickest. The Chronicle takes this view because of its unshaken faith in Cass City's future.

BROKE HER ANKLE.

Mrs. P. R. Weydemeyer Fell from Ladder And Sustained a Painful Fracture. On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Wey-demeyer met with a painful accident which will keep her in bed for several weeks at least. It seems she had stepped upon a step ladder to repair the wall paper on the ceiling which had been broken. While doing this the ladder broke under her weight and she fell heavily upon the floor. No one being near to help her she managed to drag herself to her bed where Mr. McArthur found her in the evening. Dr. Deming was called in and upon examination found that a bone was broken near the ankle joint.

Mrs. Wevdemeyer is making preparation to join her family in Montana soon. This misfortune which has overtaken her will possibly delay her departure for some time. Mrs. Weydemeyer has the sincerest sympathy of her many friends, and all hope for a speedy recovery.

The great town's treadmill servants dream-So dear God lightens their want and gloom-Of joys that beckon by sunlit stream, In whispering fields and orchard bloom.

The young man hears, in forest or farm. The Spirit's challenge and hotly frowns; Then wood and meadow have lost their charm-He pits his powers against the town's.

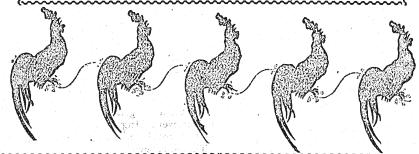

To men grown weary of age-old wrongs, In king-ridden lands past far-down seas, The Spirit speaks in fiery songs That smite and shatter unjust decrees.

BY KATE M. CLEARY. (Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) 'Shall you marry him, Leslie?" "It's manners to wait to be asked," returned Leslie. "Hasn't he asked you?" persisted Will Cable.

"That would be telling," Leslie Marsh replied.

Then she laughed up at the young giant leaning over the high back of a colonial chair and regarding her with a look at once quizzical and puzzled. He was just as gentle, as retiring, as shy as ever. And yet the world had great things to say of his wisdom, his indomitable pluck in the face of distressing obstacles, the lofty scientific value of his researches and discoveries. He had been interviewed and lauded. The critics were unanimous in his praise. And here he was, back in the beloved, book-lined old room where they had quarreled as children —just the same delightful fellow of five years before.

"I suppose you know we're awfully proud of you, Will," she said. She had been watching him dreamily, trying to fancy that powerful, cropped, dark head adorned with the soft waves of the lad who used to be so careful of his personal appearance when he was home from college on his vacations. Carriage wheels had stopped before crossing the hall. "Mr. Reginald Raymon," announced the man.

Mr. Raymon, bland and placid, cound-faced, round-eyed, hat in hand and monocle in eye, made his appearance. Was he too early? Was Miss Marsh ready? He had been assured the first act was unusually strong. Mr. -; ah, yes, Mr. Cable, to be sure! He had heard of Mr. Cable. self!" Quite pleased to meet him! Was this

But, although she heartily enjoyed "Oh, I do!" she cried, and laughed the gay comedy to which they went, out. "Indeed I do! You were taking | she had no faintest idea of the comedy in which she played a wholly unconscious part. How could she dream that Reginald Raymon had finally decided to bestow upon her the inestimable honor of his favor?

He was making no rash decision. He repeatedly strengthened his heart by this reassurance while they drove to the theatre, while he sat by her side at the play—was her vis-a-vis at supper. Her family was one of not only social but intellectual pre-eminence. Her father had been twice senator from his state. Her brother had held a high diplomatic post abroad. Their friends were of the most exclusive. Their acquaintances were those of the cultured -the artistic world. To be sure, the Marshes had no money to spare. Butwhat was money to him? And when it came to grace, and wit, and distinction, and beauty, and above all, that exquisite, indefinable possession we call breeding-there was not a girl in the state who might be mentioned in the same breath with her-no, by George! not one! And he would marry herhe would! He'd tell her so this very night.

He turned to study her again-and with pulses that quickened as he looked. Faultless of form, graceful as only a beautiful woman and a tigress can be-with features perfect as those cut on the silver coins of Syracuse, she was worth the incense of men's homage-worthy the quite as precious glory the door. They could hear the servant of woman's jealousy! There was just a glimpse of creamy flesh through the meshes of Mechlin at arms and bosom.

The eyes that looked out from under TALMAGE'S long, white lids had the laughing loveliness of a child's. One fancied the full scarlet lips could be as scornful as they were sensitive as passionate as they were sweet. And those who knew Leslie Marsh knew the warmth her proud heart held, the brilliance her brain harbored, the gentleness which was as much a part of her divine power as her beauty itself! Yes, he was making a perfectly proper choice. Would she be overwhelmed to be selected as the bride of a millionaire? To have a palace at Newport, a town house in London? There was a charming old mansion on a blue Scottish moor he would buy for her if she fancied a sojourn in the land of the heather. As for jewels—he smiled again there. All women loved jewels. How many men could offer to the chosen companion of his life such rare gems as he? 15.

But, while he found himself, the envied of all men, sailing beside her down the Adriatic-he had almost fixed on the Adriatic for their wedding trip—he used his language as the sapient Frenchman divined-to conceal his thoughts.

There Is None Like That, Give It Me" -(1) Samuel xxi, 9-Temptations of the Traveler-Preachers Are More Resourceful than in Former Days.

Washington, May 5.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls the roll of influences once antagonistic but now friendly to the gospel and encourages Christian workers; text, I. Samuel xxi, 9, "There is none like that; give it me."

David fled from his pursuers. The world runs very fast when it is chasing a good man. The country is trying to catch David and to slay him. in its praise. The Eternal Master. Worldly philosophy said: "Matter is eternal. The world always was. God did not make it." Christian philosophy plunges its crowbar into rocks and finds that the world was gradually made, and if gradually made there must have been some point at which the process started. Then who started it? And so that objection was overcome, and in the first three words of the Bible we find that Moses stated a magnificent truth when he said, "In the beginning."

Worldy philosophy said: "Your Bible is a most inaccurate book. All that story in the Old Testament, again and again told, about the army of the locusts-it is preposterous. There is nothing in the coming of the locusts like an army. An army walks; locusts fly. An army goes in order and procession; locusts without order." 'Wait," said Christian philosophy, and in 1868 in the southwestern part of this country Christian men went out to examine the march of the locusts. Temptations of the Traveler. Again, I remark that the traveling disposition of the world, which was adverse to morals and religion, is to went down to Jericho and fell amid travelers. There is many a man who ences attending it. A good many men now cannot stand the transition from one place to another. These mail trains, why, they take our port our missionaries: these sailors. rushing from city to city all around the world are to be converted into Christian heralds and go out and preach Christ among the heathen nations. The gospels are infinitely multiplied in beauty and power since Robinson and Thompson and Burckhardt have come back and talked to us about Siloam and Capernaum and Jerusalem, pointing out to us the lilies about which Jesus preached, the beach upon which Paul was shipwrecked, the fords at which Jordan was passed, the Red Sea bank on which were tossed the carcasses of the drowned Egyptians. A man said: "I went to the Holy Land an infidel. I came back a Christian. I could not help it." Universality of Religion. So it has also been with the learning and eloquence of the world. People say, "Religion is very good for aged women, it is very good for children, but not for men." But we have in the roll of Christ's host Mozart and Handel in music, Canova and Angelo in sculpture, Raphael and Reynolds in painting, Harvey and Boerhaave in medicine, Cowper and Scott in poetry, Grotius and Burke in statesman ship, Boyle and Leibnitz in philosophy, Thomas Chalmers and John Mason in theology. The most brilliant writings of a worldly nature are all aglow with Scriptural allusions. Samuel L. Southard was mighty in the court room and in the senate chamopened the batteries of his eloquence on Bunker Hill, that rocking Sinai of Worldly philosophy said, "All that the American Revolution, but on that case he showed his affection for the Old time worldly philosophy said, Christian religion and eulogized the "The light comes straight." Much of the art of the world has been in the possession of the vicious. What to unclean Henry VIII. was a beautiful picture of the Madonna? What to Lord Jeffreys, the unjust to Venice, looks at the "Crucifixion of Christ" and comes back to the American pulpit to talk as never before of the sufferings of the Savior. The private tourist goes to Rome and looks at Raphael's picture of the "Last Judgment." The tears start, and he goes back to his room in the hotel and Shriveling like a parched scroll, Christ's Social Position.

acumen and tact. When Christ was upon earth, the people that followed him for the most part had no social position. There was but one man naturally brilliant in all the apostleship. Joseph of Arimathea, the rich man, risked nothing when he offered a hole in the rock for the dead Christ. How many of the merchants in Asia Minor befriended Jesus? I think of only one-Lydia. How many of the castles on the beach at Galilee entertained Christ? Not one. When Peter came to Joppa, he stopped with one Simon, a tanner. What power had male Weakness disappear before it, Christ's name on the Roman exchange or in the bazaars of Corinth? None. The prominent men of the day did not want to risk their reputation for sanity by pretending to be one of his followers. Now that is all changed. Among the mightiest men in our great cities today are the Christian merchants and the Christian bankers, and if tomorrow at the board of trade any man should get up and malign the name of Jesus he would be quickly silenced or put out. In the front rank of all our Christian workers today are the Christian merchants, and the enterprises of the world are coming on the right side. There was a farm willed away some years ago, all the proceeds of that farm to go for spreading infidel books. Somehow matters have changed, and now all the proceeds of that farm go toward the missionary cause. One of ways go out to see the bull fights, the finest printing presses ever built whom we worship, and this old Bible built nearer to the sea than ten miles publishing infidel tracts and books. Now it does nothing but print Holy Bibles. I believe that the time will come when in commercial circles the voice of Christ will be the mightiest | of all voices and the ships of Tarshish will bring presents and the queen of Sheba her glory and the wise men of the east their myrrh and frankincense. I look off upon the business men of this land and rejoice at the prospect that their tact and ingenuity and talent are being brought into the service of Christ. It is one of the mightiest of weapons. lyn elevated road branches just before it gets to the Franklin avenue station, one division continuing out Fulton street to East New York and the city line, the other going out to Flatbush and Brighton Beach, says the New York Sun. As a train from the bridge was approaching the station late yesterday afternoon a stout, elderly man among the crowd waiting for it fell off of the platform on the tracks. The train was about forty yards away, and coming at a clipping gait. Half of the crowd screamed to the old man to get out of the way, but he seemed somewhat dazed by his fall, and made two attempts to get up from the tracks without success. By this time the train was barely fifty feet away, and coming with a rush. A half-dozen women began to scream, four or five men rushed down the platform signaling the train to stop, and a young fellow in overalls jumped down on the track, ran across it and laid hold of the old man's shoulders. But the old man was a load, and his struggles didn't help matters. Most of the women on the platform looked away and covered their eyes. The young fellow in overalls made a last desperate, unsuccessful pull, and the train turned off twenty feet from where the old man lay and rattled on to the Flatbush station. Then, after a moment or two, the crowd laughed, but not much. The young fellow in overalls and several others helped the elderly man on the platform, and he went down stairs limping. A stout woman went back into the waiting room and fainted.

Vienna's Club of the Divorced. Vienna has a new society which should rouse some American cities to noble emulation. No woman not divorced is eligible to membership, but there is nothing frivolous about the organization. It is to be called the Humanity club, and its badge is a silver ring, engraved with that word, and worn on the wedding ring finger. The appropriateness of the name seems a trifle occult; but, presumably, a divorced woman has more troubles of her own, in Austria, than here and needs moral support. The idea of a band of divorced women meeting weekly "for mutual entertainment and support" will probably strike the average American citizen as distinctly humorous; but it is a serious matter in Vienna. and the club proposes building for itself a permanent home.—New York

A DOCTOR THIS TIME.

Portland, May 6th.—Dr. E. A. Rose, a practising physician, formerly of Yates Center, Kans., was on what everyone supposed was his death bed. He had Diabetes, and six of his brother doctors were in attendance and consultation at his bedside They had done everything that medical skill could suggest to save his life, but they were at last reluctantly forced to tell him that he must prepare for death. His aunt had been summoned to his dying bedside. After the doctors had given her nephew up, she insisted that as a last resort, he be given a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

So I remark it is with business From the very first dose, the tide turned in his favor. His life was saved, and he is hale and hearty today.

This case and its cure has amazed the physicians, and is the sensation of the hour. It is interesting to note that while many others are being cured this great discovery in medicine, the physicians themselves are among the first to benefit, and that while the simpler and more prevalent forms, such as Rheumatism, Sciatica. Bladder and Urinary Trouble and Fethe more malignant forms, such as Bright's Disease, Diabetes and Dropsy, which have always been regarded as incurable, are yielding just as easily. Dodd's Kidney Pills are fast superceding all other treatment for Kidney Disease, and as nearly all human sickness and suffering has its origin in the Kidneys, the use of this wonderful medicine is becoming almost universal.

All Doctors have tried to cure CA-TARRH by the use of powders, acid rasses, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experience practioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stoping the dis-POTATOES—Car lots, 28 @ 30c; store ots, 35c per bu.

The Eminent Specialist who performs such marvelous cures that patients from the east and west visit the Clinic, will make the following regular monthly visits.

At Cass City FRIDAY AND SATURDAY. May 24 and 25.

The best the world has to offer in the way of scientific treatment. There is no chance for comparison. No comparisons are possible.

CONSULTATION FREE! and Strictly Private in Every Case.

It makes no difference how difficult, or what your case may be, nor how many have failed to cure you, there is always hope for you, until you have consulted the Detroit Clinic, and been told that your case is incurable. The reputation of this Clinic has been made by curing cases that were supposed to be incurable.

After examination, if your case is not curable, you will be so informed, and it costs you nothing.

FACTS FOR SICK PEOPLE.

The News-Tribune of July 30th, 1898, said: "It is no invidious comparison to say that no specialist in Detroit or in the State of Michigan, has had such a wide experience, and as an expert diagnostician there are few equals in

Mrs. Edna Johnson, of Detroit, who has been seriously afflicted with a com-lication of diseases for years, makes he following unsolicited statement. She says: "I wish to state that for years I have been a great sufferer from eart disease, and catarrh of the stomach, with nervous debility. I would have nervous spells every few days in which I would lose consciousness. Having treated with more than a dozen different doctors, with no benefit. I determined to try the Detroit Clinic, having had a number of friends who were cured there. I placed myself under treatment at the Clinic, and am happy to say that I improved right along, and all of the distressing symp-toms have left me, and I most heartily recommend the wonderful treatment to all sufferers."-Edna Johnson.

Mr. George Lancewood, of Marquette, says: "I can never repay the Detroit Clinic for the great benefit I have received from them. When I commenced treatment I only weighed 108 pounds, and had a distressing cough and night sweats. After taking six months' treatment I have gained twenty-three pounds; cough is all gone, and I am as well as ever. After two months' treatment I was well enough to resume my work, that of a stationary engineer, and have been at work since. The treatment did not interfere with my work."—George Lance-

The great success with which the Clinic treats all kinds of diseases is the wonder and admiration of all scientific men. The specialist in charge is noted for his skill, and the care with which every case is treated. No case that is not curable will be treated, but curable cases are treated with the latest scientific methods, and in no case does it interfere with the work of the patient.

Remember, it costs you nothing to consult this specialist, such an opportunity does not offer itself very often to people outside of large cities, and our citizens will certainly do well to take advantage of this one. Roll a"Pumpkin.

The Rev. John Haynes was famous for his pithy sayings. At one time, says one of our exchanges, he overheard his daughter and some young friends criticising certain neighbors more severely than was pleasing to him, whereupon he proceeded to read them a lecture on the sinfulness of scandal.

"But, father," remonstrated daughter, "we must say something" "If you can do nothing better," retorted Mr. Haynes dryly, "get a pumpkin and roll it about. That will be at least an innocent diversion.' Not long afterward a conference of ministers met at his house. During the evening an earnest discussion on certain points of doctrine arose, and from the lofty pitch of some of the voices, it seemed as if part of the disputants at least were in danger of los ing their temper.

At that juncture Mr. Haynes' daughter quietly entered the room, bearing a huge pumpkin. She put it down in front of her father and said: "There, father, roll it about. Roll it about.'

Mr. Haynes was called upon for an explanation, and good humor was restored.

Knew They Were Americans. A compliment and a slur in the same breath are in a letter I received from a Washington girl in Paris.

"We were dining at Joseph's the other night." she writes, "when a delightfully dressed woman sitting at a table near with a party of three sent one of the men with her to ask father if we were not Americans. She seemed to be saying 'I told you so' to her friends, and as we came out she stopped me in the corridor to explain her odd proceeding. She was politeness itself.

"'Mademoiselle will pardon me,' she said with the most charming accent, but it was a wager. I have wagered my husband that we shall see 50 Americans this evening. It is now 35 we have seen, and Mme. B., who is with us, would not believe you were Americans. Mais, I was sure-sure!' "'Why were you so sure of it?' I ask-

"Madame flashed a dazzling smile at

"'Oh!' she said, 'the Americans have always the voices of the worst and the manners at table of the very, very best. I was sure!" — Washington Post.

Largest of Animals.

Mr. Beddard in his book on whales reminds readers that although imagination is apt to picture the giant reptiles of the jurassic and cretaceous periods as having exceeded in size all modern animals yet in fact there is no evidence that the earth has ever contained either on the land or in the sea creatures exceeding the whale in bulk. The mammoth was larger than the elephant, but the ichthyosaurus could not match the whale for size, although with its terrible jaws it would doubtless have been the whale's master.

The Slent March. When the march begins in the morning And the heart and foot are light, When the flags are all a-flutter And the world is gay and bright, When the bugles lead the column, And the drums are proud in the van, It's shoulder to shoulder, forward march!

Ah! let him lag who can.

For it's easy to march to music With your comrades all in line, And you don't get tired, you feel inspired.

And life is a draught divine.

When the march drags on at evening, And the color-bearer's gone, When the merry strains are silent That piped so brave in the dawn, When you miss the dear old fellows Who started out with you, When it's stubborn and sturdy, forward march,

Then it's hard to march in silence, And the road has lonesome grown, And life is a bitter cup to drink,

Though the ragged lines are few.

But the soldier must not mourn. And this is the task before us, A task we may never shirk, In the gay time and the sorrowful

We must march and do our work. We must march when the music cheers

March when the strains are dumb, Plucky and valiant, forward, march! And smile, whatever may come.

For, whether life's hard or easy, The strong man keeps his pace, For the desolate march and the silent, The strong soul finds the grace. -Margaret E. Sangster.

Embroideries for Military. Women, and only women, are employed in embroidering shoulder knots, cap devices, sleeve and belt symbols for the officers of every departmental and military organization in the land. Expert men needle workers never attempt it, for it requires a deftness and delicacy of touch peculiarly feminine, although it bears no slightest likeness to the embroidery done on pliant fabrics. We seek out good military embroiderers; they don't have to hunt for us." said a Washington outfitter. "See this number '5' on the shoulder knot? The officer is in the Fifth artillery and is getting a new uniform. Not many workers could execute gold embroidery as smoothly as this. It requires years of practice and understanding to handle such material. The experts make good incomes and have home and take orders. We are glad give them all the time and material they wish to effect such results. Now, I'll show you what we call stock work. The eagles and emblems on some ordinary steamship company's uniforms. The lines are scraggy and Inferior compared with the expert's work. Yet a woman able to direct a workroom of girls doing this grade of insignia in our factory gets $30 a week. Military embroidery is done with the finest of gilt or silver tubing on heavy stuff much

"Sometimes women amateurs come here to get material to work insignia for their husband's and brother's uniforms. They have been taught embroidery; have done quite beautiful work, they say, and are confident that, after practicing with the right material they will succeed in doing a device gatisfactorily. We give them the measurements, proper materials, and some hints how to begin, and they go off, but invariably return, saying they can't make the figures look right. Then we take the materials they bought and have the markings done in shape. No amateur embroiderer, however skilled she may be in tapestry, silk or linen applique, or even in doing beaded work, has ever, to my notion, made a device for a soldier's coat or cap that was fit to look at. I have in my head now the, insignia of every military, naval and departmental device used in the United States," said an embroiderer. "I must keep up with such matters in order to be able to fit each device to the rank it belongs to without instruction. The cavalry, the artillery, the infantry, the engineers' corps, the staff of physicians, surgeons, commissaries, all have different badges and behave occurred in governmental matters for the last forty years. I learned the work from a regular French dewhen the civil war created a demand for such service. To learn military emvoung girl. Two of my best assistants began with me as errand girls when barely 14 years old. It is not work start. Persistent apprenticeship is required before rewards begin. But once mistress of the craft, one has good paying, interesting work for a lifetime. Each time an officer is promotpeace times the military companies

Then the military and naval academies now demand superior equipment for their ranking officers. In foreign countries the court and contingent ceremonies make much call for orders and decorations. Paris has always led in such matters, but the country, and the orders have been lavish of late years. The work is like beadwork, and yet it is not. You must take up the tiny sections of tubing bit by bit on the needle and sew it fast to the foundation, but an accurate eye for proportions and a steady hand is needed to get the effect smooth and symmetrical. Once done wrong, it can't be altered. There are no flowing lines and fancy innovations as in embroidery with silks or crewel.

Lida Lord Reed gives in the Century a true account of "A Woman's Experiences During the Siege of Vicksburg." It concludes with an extract from "a letter which gives a graphic history of the rest of our experiences with General Grant and his army, and has the advantage of having been written and posted on the spot.": George came in today, and such a description as he gave of the destruction and desolation in the county! Oakland, where our things were, was completely sacked. I had fitted up two rooms with my own furniture, lace curtains, and mantel and toilet ornaments. I left a pantry stocked with provisions for many months, a cedar chest full of handsome clothing, the rector's fine library packed in boxes, and even my little trunk full of sewing materials, and my writing desk and work table just as they stood. The soldiers cut the carpets into strips with their pen knives, and tore the lace curtains from the windows with their bayonets. Valuable books were torn from their covers and thrown to the winds. Our cloth ing was piled in a heap in the yard and barrels of flour and molasses poured over it. The men stirred the heap with their bayonets, and called it a 'rebel stew.' They tore my bonnets up, and tied the pieces to the bedposts. and even went so far in wanton mischief as to kill a sheep in the parlor and cut it up on the handsome table. I had never believed the stories we heard of such things, looked upon them as newspaper items gotten up for excitement, yet ours was one of many cases. But I must tell you about our interview with General Grant. After much discussion it was decided that I had better go to Grant, and ask him to send us out with our soldiers as prisoners of war to New Orleans. We feared the exposure of the children to the heat of the July sun, after their underground life and scant fare and the hardships of travel in wagons. So things their own way. They stay at Grant, who received us with every Jennie and I called upon General courtesy, and gave us papers which secure us transportation through his lines. He behaved through out our interview like a brave soldier and kindly gentleman. He expressed himself as being anxious to aid the people all he could, admired the heroism and self-sacrifice of our army as much as I could ask, and "as for the women of the south," he said, "they cannot be conquered." Those were his very words. While we were there Admiral Porter entered, and we were introduced to the man who for eighteen months had been bothering us with bombs. On our way home he passed a wagonful of Confederate soldiers, who, when we bowed, as we always do when we meet them, filled the air with their cheers. Our whole army is devoted, every man of it, to the ladies who shared with them the trials and dangers of the siege Thanked and Damned.

Gen. Felix Agnus, proprietor of the Baltimore American, and one of the bravest and most popular of Maryland's soldiers in the Union army during the war of the rebellion, tells this story of his experiences during the troublous times of the early '60's: "I was wounded at the battle of Gaines' Mills. The bullet entered my chest and shattered my shoulder bone and I fell unconscious. When my senses returned I found that a Confederate, also wounded, had fallen across me, for | ly direction back to the 180th meridian the battle had been a hand-to-hand affair. My books would show all he said, 'thank you.' And then he addthe various changes in insignia that ed, with equal sincerity: 'Damn you.' Not long ago,' continued Gen. WHERE THE DAY BEGINS. The International Date Line, as Recognized by Our Navy.

What is known as the International Date Line, where the day changes as vessels sail across the Pacific, lies along the meridian 180 degrees west of Greenwich, but does not follow it exactly. It deviates slightly to the east and again to the west at various points in order to include certain islands into the area in which the American date is. kept and vice versa, to include other islands in the area in which the Asiatic date is kept. When this line is crossed going west skippers gain a day: when they cross it going east they lose one. The United States navy recognizes the line as beginning at a point north of Siberia, southeast to Bering Strait, through which it passes midway, leaving the St. Lawrence island on the American side, and, turning, passes in a southwesterly direction, crossing the 180th meridian at about latitude 60 degrees north, to a point just to westward of the Near Islands, so that all of the Aleutian Islands may be on the American side, thence in a southeasterly direction back to the 180th meridian at a latitude of about 48 degrees north, thence along the 180th meridian to a point 5 degrees south latitude, thence in a direction about southeast by south to a point midway between the Fiji and Samoan Islands, the Friendly Islands being on the Asiatc side; thence about south by west to the vicinity of Chatham, leaving it on the Asiatic side; thence in a southwesterwhere it remains.

The Parent of a Dreadful Curse. There is a farm in Wisconsin for the raising of wormwood, from the oil of which that dreadful drink, absinthe, is procured. The oil has a remarkable penetrating power and for this reason is much used in the making of ointments.

Absinthe itself is becoming a powerful curse to mankind. It has secured such a stronghold in Paris that the government is taking steps to stop the sale of the "green terror" in France. It was absinthe in the hands of Mc-Allister, Campbell, Kerr, and Death which caused Jennie Bosschieter's death one lonely night at Paterson, N. J., for which crime the men were sen-

Living Down a Hoodoo. A New York hotel that is daily overcrowded with patronage of the first class was designed as an apartment house and occupied as such until ghosts drove the tenants away. Every night there were strange noises in each of the 350 or 400 rooms. The occupants lost sleep and nerves. Women were afraid to be left alone in broad daylight. Leases were ruthlessly broken and people moved away in swarms. The news that the place was haunted spread all over the country, enticing scores of bold investigators. The noises continued, but no ghost was seen. The proprietor was in despair. Some advised him to burn the house down, others to wreck it. Finally he sold. Another of New York's sevenday sensations dropped out of mind, and presently new tenants, who had never heard of the "haunts," flocked in to take avantage of the reduced rates. Today we witness the spectacle of a hoodoo lived down in the very heart of our great city.-New. York Press.

"What thing, Aunt Harriet?" asked her niece, faintly.

"Don't prevaricate," said Lady Eagleton. "I warn you it is best to be open and above-board with me. Speak the truth-is it possible that you have had a cotton merchant's family on terms of intimacy at King's Abbot, enjoying free association with your daughters, your sons?"

Poor Lady Caroline felt herself a child once more, in hopeless bondage to her aunt, and crossing her soft, white hands helplessly upon her lap, looked with imploring eyes at Mildred, and Mildred looked straight into

"They were friends of George's Aunt Harriet," she ventured to murmur. "Then they were here?" ejaculated the old woman, in an awful voice.

"Yes, they were here, confessed Lady Caroline, in a nervous whisper. "Mabel, my smelling salts," said the dowager; and Mabel rose to comply with her demand.

"Would you wish for some eaude-cologne, Aunt Harriet?" she asked. meekly. "It might do you good."

"I always felt George was a radical," she said, in an aggrieved voice; "I always knew his tendencies were low. But that he should go to the length of introducing to his private circle people connected with trade never for an instant occurred to me as possible, even in my wildest flights of imagination. How could you, Caroline, stand tamely by and permit such proceedings to be consummated in your house? How could you allow low, vulgar persons to associate with the members of your household?"

"But they were not at all vulgar," Lady Caroline ventured to remon-

"Do not tell me," interrupted her aunt, warmly, "and do not try to excuse your conduct by endeavoring to throw a halo of respectability round such people. Edward spoke of a son; was he the sort of person to be thrown in your daughters' way-to aspire to the hand of one perhaps? Mildred, I appeal to you, as the most rightlyjudging individual in this house, what was your opinion of this Mr. Younge?" Mildred's long dark eyelashes quiv-

WHERE COFFEE CAME FROM. Legend Gives the Lethean Berry a Ro

mantle Origin and History. There is extant a tale of the discovery of coffee, a story which might have suggested to Charles Lamb the idea This is the legend: Toward the middle of the fifteenth century a poor Arab was traveling in Abyssinia, and finding himself weak and weary from fatigue he stopped near a grove. Then, being in want of fuel to cook his rice, he cut down a tree, which happened to be full of dead berries. His meal being cooked and eaten, the traveler discovered that the half-burned berries were very fragrant. Collecting a number of these and crushing them with a stone he found that their aroma had increased to a great extent. While wondering at this he accidentally let fall the substance into a can which contained a scant supply of water, Lo, what a miracle! The almost putrid liquid was instantly purified. He brought it to his lips; it was fresh. agreeable, and in a moment after the traveler had so far recovered his strength and energy as to be able to resume his journey. The lucky Arab gathered as many berries as he could, and having arrived at Arden, in Arabia, he informed the mulfti of his discovery. This worthy divine was an inveterate opium smoker, who had been suffering for years from the effects of that poisonous drug. He tried an infusion of the roasted berries and was so delighted at the recovery of his own vigor that, in gratitude to the tree he called it cabuah, which in Arabic signifies force.—Chicago Chron-
