The Cass City Fair held last week was a success financially and the weather conditions were very favorable. The attendance was fully as Thursday there was the largest crowd ever seen on the grounds, a conservative estimate given as over 6,000 persons. A heavy downpour of rain that afternoon caused the crowd to disperse a little earlier than usual.

The exhibits in every department excepting stock were very good, the agricultural hall presenting a better appearance than in any previous year. The exhibit of the public school was good.

"Midway" was not as well filled with side shows and other minor attractions as in some years and the disappointment was keenly felt by all on account of the fact that the special attractions booked for the four days failed to put in an appearance. However, on Friday, there were plenty of attractions which had been secured by hard work by the officials. Natives and Americans Give Him Hearty Welcome.

He Throws Considerable Light on Open Door Policy of Nation and Points Out Great Advantages to Be Gained by China.

Shanghai, Oct. 9.—Secretary of Wai William H. Taft and the members of his party arrived here Tuesday on the steamer Minnesota which is conveying him from Japan to Manila. The Chi nese and the foreign residents of Shanghai united in giving the distinguished visitor the heartiest welcome that ever has been extended to a foreign statesman.

In the afternoon Mr. Taft dedicated the building of the Young Men's Christion association. He made a brief address and was followed by several Chinese officials who spoke in approval of the undertaking.

At 4 o'clock the secretary was given an elaborate reception by the Chinese residents. This function was out of doors in a native garden. The decorations were most picturesque, embroidered banners and a multitude of Chinese lanters making the garden look like fairly land. The promoters of the reception were prominent Chinese merchants representing 45 of the guilds formerly in the boycott movements against American manufactures. The change of sentiment was marked. Chinese Speak.

Speeches of welcome were made in English by local Chinese business men, officials and the representative of the viceroy. The Chinamen emphasized the cordial relations existing today between China and the United States.

In reply, Secretary Taft thanked the Chinese for their reception, which can people and government. At the conclusion of his address, the secretary was presented with a handsome

This reception marked an epoch in the matter of the status of women in China, fcr Chinese women of aristocratic families were present at the reception and even presided at tables whence they served refreshments. This is th first time such a thing has happened in China.

The American residents gave a banquet in the secretary's honor last evening. At this entertainment the foreign consuls and a number of prominent foreign business men were present. It was in every respect the largest and most representative banquet ever given in Shanghai.

In reply to an address of welcome, Secretary Taft made a speech which was listened to with deep interest He prefaced his remarks by saying that he spoke as an American citizen, not as a representative of the government. He said the United States had no intention of selling the Philippine islands, saying that the country was in nonor bound to retain them or give the Filipinos their independence.

Praised Filipinos. He praised the islands and their inhabitants, and then turned his attention to the open door in China. He declared that American trade was now second in China and that certain branches of this trade was sufficiently important to make it incumbent upon the American government to listen to the protest of every legitimate businss man against diminution in or injury to this business, or political preferment for any competitor.

"We do not complain," the secretary continued, "of loss of trade that results from the employment of greater enterprise, ingenuity or attention to the demands of the Chinese market. or the greater business acumen shown by our competitors. We would have the right to protest at being excluded from the trade of China by reason of our insistence upon the policy of the open door. The acquiescence in this policy of all the nations interested has been so unhesitating and emphatic that it is hardly worth while to speculate upon the probable action of the United States in case the interests of American merchants were placed in jeojardy, and how far the United States would go in the protection of its Chinese trade, I cannot say.

"The United States and the other powers favor the open door, and if they are wise they will encourage the empire to take long steps in administrative and governmental reform, the development of the resources of Chito China's strength and roution as a self-respecting government."

Continuing, the secretary said that the gold standard for China would rebound to the benefit of the empire, and that the cry of "China for the Chinese," need not frighten any man.

"China has no territory we desire," Mr. Taft went on, "and she can have ne prosperity that we will begrudge, nor will we resent any degree of political power or independence as an empire that is justly exercised."

There is no doubt that Secretary Taft's visit to Shanghai will increase the cordial relations between China and the United States and add to the prestige of American trade in the orient.

SENT INFERNAL MACHINES

Young Man Mails Them to Colorado's Governor and to a Bank President.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 9 .-- Governor Henry A. Buchtel, David H. Moffat, president of the First National bank of Denver, and Charles B. Kountze, president of the Colorado National bank, received through the mails Tuesday infernal machines containing sufficient dynamite to have caused great destruction of lives and property, had they been exploded; but warning had been given to the recipients of the machines by Chief of Police Delaney, who ha dobtained a confession from Kemp V. Bigelow, by whom they were mailed, and no one was hurt.

Bigelow confessed also that he had sent infernal machines to Lawrence C. Phipps and Edward Chase, but these were not delivered Tuesday.

The machines received by Messrs. Moffat and Kountze were turned over to the police. The one sent to Governor Buchtel was received by the governor's private secretary, Alfred C. Montgomery, who removed the wrapper and disclosed a box with a sliding cover. His suspicions were aroused and he reported the matter to Governor Buchtel, who then informed him tnat he had been warned by the chief of police to be on the lookout for an infernal machine.

Adjutant-General Kelley and officers of the police department were called of them were changed. and the box was carefully opened. It was found to contain two sticks of dynamite to which were attached fuses and caps which were packed in black powder. The sliding top was lined with sand paper, and matches had been placed with their heads in contact with the sand paper.

The other infernal machines were counterparts of this. Bigelow gave no satisfactory explanation of his motive for sending the machines and seemed to have no other purpose than to cause a sensation.

Bigelow is 21 years old. He arrived in Denver several weeks ago and became a clerk in a book store. He claims to be the son of C. L. Bigelow, superintendent of schools in Bryan, O.

Bryan, O., Oct. 9.—Kemp V. Bigelow is the son of Abe L. Bigelow, teacher of the school at Farmers Center, seven miles from here. The young man's mother and several brothers and sisters reside in Bryan. The family bears a name above reproach. Moriarty Raises Neat Question in the Senate.

SENATE BOXERS ON WARPATH

Looks as Though They Would Down Primary Bill - Governor Has Another Message on Tap-New Kink Put Into Primary Measure.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 9.—Senator Moriarty has raised a neat question, which involves the right of the present senate to sit. The last legislature reappointed the senatorial districts and that law took effect Sept. 28, so that the districts as now represented by the senators no longer

With that as a basis, the question arises whether the senators have any right to act and whether it would not be necessary to have an election in order to secure proper representation for the new districts, as practically all

On the other hand the constitution provides that senators shall be elected for two years.

Bird Is Silent.

The matter has been referred to Attorney-General Bird, who did not care to give an opinion until he could look into it very carefully.

It looks as though there would be no primary bill passed in the senate. Very little else will get through aside from the Mt. Pleasant appropriation and the military bill.

The senate boxers held a long caucus last night with fifteen present, the only absentee being Senator McKay of Caro, who is too ill to came until his presence is really necessary. They take the view that Governor Warner is trying to use the primary bill to play politics, and they don't propose to let him.

When the bill comes up the boxers will debate it section by section, and then vote against it, which spells defeat, as the administration can muster but sixteen votes.

Not only does the special session of the legislature promise to become interesting, for Governor Warner is going to keep the pot boiling at all hazards, but its original scope is going to be greatly widened. The governor has changed his mind about several matters and in consequence will give the solons plenty to do.

Tuesday afternoon he finished the draft of another message which he will send to the legislature Thursday. It was given out that this message would refer only to the necessity of amending the military bill and enacting a new juvenile court act, which a committee of probate judges are draft-

As a matter of fact the message goes way beyond this, the governor recommending that a bill be passed placing the telegraph and telephone companies of the state on an ad valorum for the purpose of taxation; that ocean mileage be eliminated in determining the value of express companies, and that the state railroad commission be given authority over the stocks and bonds of railroad companies in order to prevent over capitalization.

Revamp Primary Bill. The administration played its star card Tuesday by revamping the primary bill so as not to disturb the 40 per cent provision and at the same time keeping the state convention from making nominations in case the candidates failed to receive the required percentage. This is accomplished by providing for two primaries for the nomination of governor and lieutenant-governor. The schedule, as outlined, provides a primary on the first Monday in April for the nomination of the candidates for governor, lieutenant-governor, delegates-at-large and district delegates to the national conventions. It is ther stipulated that if no candidates receive the required 40 per cent of the votes cast the two highest candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor shall be placed upon a primary ballot without petition and voted for at the general primaries to be held on the third Tuesday in August.

Under this plan a nomination is assured and all chances of the possibility of the nominations being thrown into the state convention are avoided The administration senators caucused all morning and part of the afternoon before the provisions were whipped into shape. A meeting of the committee on elections was then called and the bill was reported out and made a special order for this afternoon. Some of the boxers declare that the bill is full of legal defects and will submit it to the attorney-general for his opinion. Both houses were practically idle

Tuesday so far as doing any work was concerned. The members amused themselves by singing, "We are here because we are here.'

The house elections committee decided to hold up the primary bill until the senate takes some action or fails to take any, so there was nothing doing along that line.

IN BATTLE CREEK

SITI IN BATTLE UNLLN
Citizens' Industrial Session of America

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 9 .- The convention of the Citizens' Industrial Session of America Tuesday met in Independent Congregational church for the second day's session. In some respects the most interesting address of the convention was that by James W. Van Cleave of St. Louis, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in the morning, on "The responsibility of labor unions."

Having obtained considerable publicity by reason of his suit to restrain he American Federation of Labor from boycotting the goods manufactured by his company, it was expected that Mr. Van Cleve would devote considerable time to a discussion of that suit, but he did not, explaining that this would be left to his legal representatives. However, Mr. Van Cleave gave boycotts in general a rap.

After mentioning abuses perpetrated by unionism, the Van Cleave paper continued: "In order to supply the lack of the apprenticeship system, which the labor unions have virtually abolished, we should use all our influence to have a manual training department attached to every public school of the primary grade in the United States, where boys from 10 to 14 years of age would learn to handle most of the tools used in the more important mechanical trades. And we should establish public industrial high schools, open to boys who take the manual training course in the primary schools, and from these industrial high school, after a two or three years' course, boys could graduate as first class mechanics."

Van Cleave advises national and state enactments to abolish the boycott and blacklist.

Rev. S. C. Dickey of Indianapolis, president of Arona Technical institute, declared that America has not enough colleges. There are, he said, but 144,000 students in all the country's large schools. Of 500,000 pupils in the public schools, less than 70,000 graduate. If there were more trade schools, Mr. Dickey said, more of the 500,000 pupils would be really educated.

Arthur D. Dean of Boston, industrial secretary of the Y. M. C. A. there, also advocated trade schools.

C. W. Post was re-elected president of the Citizens' Industrial association in the afternoon, his election being unanimous. James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, was named for first vice-president and D. M. Parry of Indianapolis, T. A. Frank of Sioux City and J. P. COWARDLY HUNTER.

Left Man to Die After Accidentally Shooting Him.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 9.—It has been long since there has been as much indignation on the Menominee iron range as that which has been occasioned by the cowardly murder of Peter Rasmussen, a well-known citizen of this place. The man was unintentionally shot and killed by an un known hunter, who is believed to have been headlighting for deer, but it was murder nevertheless, for after shooting Rasmussen he ran away and per-The unfortunate man was riding on a railroad velocipede, on the C. & N. of buckshot. The charge was fired at a distance of not to exceed 30 paces. It was foggy. Hearing the velocipede approaching and thinking it was some animal, the hunter fired the moment it swung into sight. Then finding the deer a man he ran away. The doctors who performed the autopsy express the belief that Rasmussen had more than a fighting chance to recover had he not been so cruelly deserted. It is believed that he lived fully 30 minutes after the wounds were inflicted. There was evidence of an awful struggle on the part of the man to stop the flow of blood that was sapping his life—of a struggle to reach assistance, pimples, bad color blackheads, etc. to give an alarm. An Old Timer's Story of the Game That First Saw It.

IT WAS USED BY AN AMATEUR

According to This Old Professional Player, Arthur Cummings Was the Young Pitcher Who Was the Originator of the In and Out Shoots.

Speaking about the early history of baseball the other day, an old time professional player said there many things not known generally.

"There is, for instance, the matter of curve pitching. Who pitched the first curved ball? No; don't name any of the men that won pennants and got $10,000 a year. The pioneer wasn't a rofessional, but an amateur—that is, he was an amateur until his curves made him famous. "His name was Arthur Cummings, and he was a New York boy, a tall, thin young fellow with hair as blond as a chorus girl's. How he came to discover curve pitching I don't know, but it was generally believed afterward that he hit on it by accident. He tried it out for the first time in 1867 in a game between two scrub teams in Washington.

"The famous Excelsior club of New York was then visiting Washington as the guest of the old National club, and the two played a series of games on the old White lot. Toward the end of the series some one suggested that the young New Yorkers who had come over with the Excelsiors make up a scrub nine and play a nine of Washington boys as a sort of comic inter-

"The suggestion was adopted, and the New York nine consisted of four or five Excelsior substitutes and a number of other young fellows, among them Arthur Cummings. The Washington nine was made up in the main of players belonging to the Junior Nationals, the crack amateur team of Washington.

"Cummings was a rising young pitcher, but no one thought that there was anything remarkable about him, and the Junior Nationals prepared to knock him out of the box. But when the first batsman fanned out the Washingtonians began to look surprised.

"'It's the darndest thing I ever saw," said this batsman. 'I struck right out at all three balls, and every one of them seemed to jump aside just as it got near the plate. One jumped outward, another inward, and the third seemed to rise. Maybe I'm beginning to see things.'

"It puzzled Jewell, the catcher, too, not to speak of Al Mills, the umpire Jewell caught all of the balls because it was then the custom for the catcher to stand far back and catch on the first bounce, but it made him dizzy.

"The second batsman of the Junior Nationals went to the bat and walloped the air three times too. Al Mills came up close to the plate to see what was wrong. It looked to him as

"'Just keep your head there,' he said to the third batsman, 'and you'll get

"This third batsman had a steady hand, and, sure enough, he got his base on balls. Cummings pitched the ball, and it seemed to be coming straight for the plate, when suddenly, just as it was ten feet or so away, it curved out and missed the plate by a foot. Mills called a ball.

"The next ball came straight on, but the batsman, hoping to hit it and profiting by his experience, swung his bat far out. But, instead of curving out like the last one, it seemed to jump. It crossed the plate on a level with there without making a move until a succession of wild balls sent him to first base. The fourth batsman struck out so easily that it was pathetic.

more control over the ball after that first inning, and Mills had to admit that it was coming over the plate; but, except by accident, not a single Junior National batsman could touch it. It jumped; it sank; it wabbled from side to side. Mills rubbed his eyes and wondered how the thing was done. Cummings merely smiled.

"In the fifth inning one of the Nationals by dumb luck landed on the sphere and drove it into the next couny. There were two men on bases at the time, and this home run brought them home. That gave the Nationals three runs. So far as I know, they

By mutual agreement the firm of Herman Bros. has been dissolved to take effect January 1, 1908.

In order to reduce the stock to comply with the requirements we have got to sell ten thousand dollars worth of goods in the next 85 days, and we will set the ball rolling at once by reducing prices on everything from 10 to 25 per cent.

This is the greatest opportunity ever offered to the people of Caro and vicinity to buy seasonable goods at such a low price. Our stock was never so complete in new up-to-date Clothing and Men's Furnishing Goods as it is this fall, and it is all of that high quality that we have sold in the past.

The S. B. & L. Clothing, the acme of perfection in high class tailoring. The cream of Rochester's market, the city that is as famous for Clothing as Milwaukee is for beer.

J. Capps & Sons' Clothing, the line that is guaranteed 100 per cent pure wool. No other line in the market gives such a strong guarantee of quality and wear at such a low price.

The Longley Hat has more staunch friends than any other hat ever sold in Caro.

The Monarch Shirt has the best reputation the country over.

The STALEY WOOL UNDERWEAR and STEVENSON UNION SUITS are one of our strongest cards. These goods are so much better values than any other make that it is irksome to try to match them.

The STEEL BROS. FUR COATS is another superior line at the price. We mention a few of these lines which you probably know the superiority of, and know it will pay you to come miles to buy at the reduction.

Don't confuse this sale with the semi-annual, monthly, semi-monthly and weekly sales advertised in Caro.

This is a bona-fide sale and bona-fide reductions from the regular prices of new, up-to-date merchandise of the highest standard, at the beginning of the season, just when you want the goods, and when other stores are trying to get their longest profits.

Watch Your Watch

Look inside your watch a moment. The balance wheel is making 18,000 vibrations an hour if its in good condition. If the movement is sluggish, there is something wrong. It will move 3.558 miles in a year and it requires less than one-tenth of a drop of oil to make it run. But it needs that little badly. The least increase of friction on the bearings alters the motion. Don't take chances. Let me clean and oil and put your watch in order for a year. It will pay you and make you like your watch better.

Portrait and Slipper.

A touching anecdote, associated with a picture in the National gallery at Edinburgh, is told by an English lady in her book, "Potpourri From a Surrey Garden." She writes: Several pictures stand out with peculiar interest, especially the life sized Gainsborough of the young Mrs. Grahame. She sat for the picture as a bride, but before it came home she was dead and her husband had gone to the wars. When he came back he never had the courage to open the case which contained his young wife's portrait. On his death, many long years after it was painted, it was opened by his heirs, and inside the case was the little white slipper she had left with the painter to help him to finish his picture. The portrait was given to the Edinburgh gallery, and the slipper was kept by the family.

OLD BRUTON CHURCH

LONGEST IN CONTINUOUS USE IN UNITED STATES.

Gifts from President Roosevelt and King Edward to Mark Celebration of Three Hundredth Anniversary of Establishment.

Richmond, Va.-October of the present year will be memorable in the history of old Bruton Parish church, in Williamsburg, Va., because of the announcement made a year ago that King Edward of England will present to the church a Bible and President Roosevelt a lectern in commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of the establishment of permanent English civilization with the English church on this continent.

October has been chosen as the most appropriate month of the tercentennial year for the presentation because the general Episcopal convention will be held in this city that month. Dignitaries of the church will journey to the old capital on October 5, when the presentation ceremonies will take place.

The lectern which is to be the gift of President Roosevelt has been completed and accepted. It is the work of J. Stewart Barney, of New York, and is to support the Bible which will be the gift of King Edward. The figure stands on a globe, with one foot resting on Great Britain and the other on the United States. The globe in turn is supported by the British lion on one side and the American eagle on the other. Between these figures is the coat of arms of the English Washington family.

Each of the three tablets at the base of the lectern bears an inscription.

DRIVER TELLS OF STRAIN.

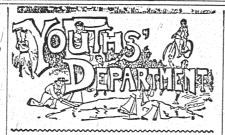

Nervous Tension of Man at Wheel of Automobile.

The nervous tension under which the driver of an automobile racer labors has been graphically described by two Vanderbilt cup chauffeurs. Clement says: "When you first start, the ground seems to be rising up in front of you, as if to hit you in the face—that is, until you get your auto eyes adjusted. But even then there's always the thrill, and you haven't time for anything but the thrill and the watching of the long, narrow road in front. You haven't time to see what is on one side or the other. The people-that's about all we had on the sides in the Vanderbilt cup racesjust seem to be a black-and-white border to the dark streak in front. Yes; you hear them shout, but by the time you realize it you are gone." And Wagner describes his sensations in Outing as follows: "Beginning the eighth lap nearly eight minutes in the lead, the mental and physical strain became acute. My brain was in a dizzy whirl, and my hunger amounted almost to famine. But the price of satisfying it was prohibitive when every minute counted. The constant crashing and lunging of the car, the vigilance required at the frequent turns, the haunting fear of fatalities, and the anxiety regarding tires and mechanism were so exhausting that we lost over two minutes on the eigth round. Hunger remorseless and gnawing with almost sinister persistency, as it seemed. So we began the Cleveland Man the Victim of Mean Practical Joker.

A Cleveland (Ohio) man was coming down from Toledo the other day when he noticed a little crowd on a station platform and at once concluded it meant the departure of a bride The Archbishop of Canterbury was and groom. The train only stopped for a minute or two but the Cleveland man had time to see a lot of handshaking, and then, as the train started, a young fellow on the platform thrust a card through the open window and said, "Say, old man, hand that to the couple who just got aboard, won't you?" The Cleveland man nodded and the train sped on. He looked at the card. It bore the word "Congratulations!" Then he went up the aisle to where the newcomers were seated and smilingly handed the card to the bridegroom. "What's this for?" growled the stranger. "Just married. aren't you?" the Cleveland man chuckled. "Just married!" roared the stranger. "Just married! Why, you miserable shrimp, me an' my wife here are havin' a spat at this very moment over what we are goin' to do with our 21-year-old son! Just married! You measly little-" But the Cleveland man had fled. And now he yows he'll no er again be made a catspaw for another practical joker.

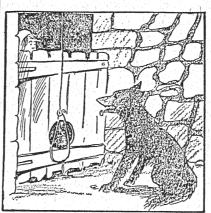

CATCHING THE WOLF.

Grandma's Story of Her Adventure When a Girl.

Alice had just been to the Zoo. She was telling grandma all about her trip. Among other things, she told about a great, big wolf she had seen.

"Did I ever tell you about the wicked volf that nearly made a meal of me?" "No, no!" cried Alice, excitedly, her eyes big and round. Snuggling up to grandma, she whispered:

"Do tell me about it, please! Almost

"Many years ago your great-grandfather and great-grandmother and myself lived in a wild country, just beyond a great forest. There was no other house for miles around. Indeed, you wouldn't call our dwelling a house, as it was merely a rough log cabin.

"One day I was out watching our few sheep at pasture when I espied a big wolf slyly coming from the woods.

"Calling to the sheep, we all ran helter-skelter to the barn. Fortunately, we hadn't far to go, but we had hardly reached shelter before the wolf arrived.

"Now father used a rope with a pulley to draw things to the loft of the barn, which was the best place for storage we had. The noose on the end of this rope dangled before a great hole in the door.

"The wolf rose on his hind legs and looked over the door. Seeing nothing,

It was Mabel and her twin brother Harry. They had been inseparable companions before our marriage.

"Mabel," Hal was saying, "what is the matter? You have been crying; what is the trouble?"

Mabel sat drooping on the couch. I was startled to see how pale and thin she looked. Hal stood in front of her, his face and attitude expressing the utmost indignation.

"Andrew is low-spirited about money matters," Mabel went on mournfully; "you know this house cost us more than we expected; then I knew nothing about housekeeping, and our expenses every month were dreadful. It was not so much my fault, Hal," said Mabel, her voice trembling a little. but her eyes looking out bravely through the tears, "as it was my raising. I have tried so hard since then. Nervous Indigestion

The action of digestion is controlled by nerves leading to the stomach. When they are weak, the stomach is deprived of its energy. It has no power to do its work. If you want permanent relief, you must restore this energy. Dr. Miles' Nervine restores nervous energy, and gives the organs power to perform their functions.

"For many years I was an acute sufferer from nervous indigestion; at times I was so despondent life seemed almost a burden. I tried all kinds of remedies and various physicians with little or no relief, until ope night last summer I saw Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure advertised. I resolved to make one more trial which I did in the purchase of one bottle of Nervine and one of Heart Cure. In a few days I began to feel better, which encouraged me so much that I continued the medicine until I had taken more than a dozen bottles. I are very much improved in every way; in body, mind and spirits since. I make a special point to recommend the medicine, and I feel a sincere pleasure in knowing that several persons have been benefited through my recommend tions." fited through my recommendations.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your drugglest, who will cucrantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it falls, he will refund your money.

A CRITICAL MOMENT.

This picture illustrates an incident in the life of a noted philanthropist, sportsman and man of letters, who, after firing his last shot at the oncoming bears had the courage to stand his ground and when the leading bear reached him with wide-opened mouth jammed the rifle barrel down his throat with such a disconcerting effect on the animal that he turned tail and, with his companion, fled. NEVER SAY DIE. While there is life, there is hope! This we say to people afflicted with coughs, colds and consumption. For nearly fifty years Piso's Cure has been helping, and many times curing, cases that were deemed incurable. Read the following sworn testimony:

Bruton Parish church is the second oldest in the United States and the oldest in point of continuous use. It was the court church of colonial Virginia from 1699 to the revolution. Here, in silk panoplied pews, worshiped the colonial governors, two of whom lie buried in the aisle of the church. And here, in that part of the church bought and paid for by the Virginia house of burgesses, worshiped Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Madison, Henry, Marshall, Mason, Tyler, Bland, Lee and many others.

The present church was built in 1715, during the rectorship of the Rev. Commissary Blair, official representative in Virginia of the Lord Bishop of London and the founder and first president of the College of William and Mary. The work of restoration. which is now completed, leaves unchanged the exterior of the church, but the interior, which was changed and distorted by architectural and sozial conditions which no longer exist. has been restored to its ancient form and architecture, the present completed church conforming as nearly as may be, both inside and outside, to the exact appearance the structure presented 200 years ago. PELICAN AND CRANE.

How the Former Was Robbed of a Good Fish.

The pelican plunged his bill downward into the water and brought up a fish. Right beside him stood the crane.

"By the way, did you ever hear the story of the fox and the cheese?" asked the crane.

The pelican paused in his meal the fish still squirming in his bill. He shook his head.

"A crow once stole a piece of very fine cheese. Flying with it to a tree. he was about to eat it, when he espied Mr. Reynard underneath the

"The fox straightway began to praise the crow, and, at last, begged for one of his charming songs. So pleased was the foolish crow with these compliments that he opened his bill to sing, when, lo! the cheese dropped from it into the jaws of Mr. Revnard, who then trotted contentedly away."

The pelican looked at the crane for a moment. Then he opened wide his great bill in a hearty guffaw. An instant, and the crane had inserted his long bill and had drawn from that of the pelican the wriggling fish.

The room was empty, but the writing desk stood open as if she had but just left it. I stepped over to close of paper lying on the floor. I stooped to place it inside the desk, when my attention was attracted by these words—"My lost love." Startled, I picked the sheet up and read:

THE PEOPLE DEMAND IT.

LOBBY EVIL STILL PREVAILS.

Chief Executive of State Calls Attention of Legislators to Necessity of Putting Special Lobbyists Out of Jusiness-Appropriation Needed For Maintenance of Central Michigan Normal College.

"To the Forty-Fourth Legislature:

"Acting by virtue of authority vested in the governor by Section 7 of Article V. of the constitution of the state of Michigan I have convened the legislature in extra session, sincerely believing that the failure of the legislature at its recent regular session to enact a better primary election law and to make necessary provision for the maintenance of Central Michigan Normal college, fully warrants such

"There cannot, I firmly believe, be the slightest doubt in the mind of any candid person who has given the matter even casual consideration that a vast majority of the people of Michigan desire that there be embodied in our statutes provisions which shall apply alike to all offices which they affest and which shall place the nomination of candidates for these offices absolutely and finally in the hands of the people without recourse at any time or under any conditions to a delegate convention. The truth of this assertion is so apparent that it should be unnecessary to more than state it. It cannot be successfully controverted. No Percentage Mentioned.

"This demand of the people has been recognized in all primary election legislation thus far enacted in this state, save only as such legislation applies to the nomination of candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor. In all cases where it applies to the nomination of candidates for congress, the legislature and county and city offices, it provides that the candidate receiving the highest number of votes cast at the primary shall be the party nominee. In no such case is there any reference whatever to a percentage, however small, of the total vote cast. These laws were petitioned for by the people because of their desire to make their own nominations and not delegate that power to conventions which might or might not carry out their will. Not only is there no percentage provision in the laws covering the nomination in the cases mentioned. but no legislature ever had the temerity to suggest the inclusion of such a provision. All clearly understood what the people demanded.

"It is well known to all of you that the 40 per cent provision of the present law was included in that statute as a matter of necessary compromise. The house passed a general primary bill which contained no percentage feature. In this form the bill could not pass the senate, and in order that the best possible start toward the accomplishment of the reform demanded by the people might be made it was necessary to include the percentage provision. If this had not been done, no primary legislation would have been enacted, at that session of the legislature.

A Weak Argument.

"In 1906 a total of 864 candidates for political office, including candidates for state, congressional, legislative and county office, were nominated by States senator by direct vote, you will direct vote. This number likewise included 79 subsequently successful candidates for seats in this honorable body. Yet in 862 of these cases no one ever for a moment thought of requiring that the successful candidates poll and give percentage of a total vote. It would be as reasonable to suggest that the constitution be amended so as to require that unless some party candidate for governor or lieutenant-governor received 40 per cent of the total vote cast at the general election, the choice of those officials should be made by the legislature as to make it necessary for a delegate convention to choose the party candidate if no per- | fluence. Public hearings and the right son polls 40 per cent of the total vote cast at the primary. There is no argument that can be advanced in support of the one proposition that will not apply with equal force to the On the other hand, the absolute weakness of the so-called argu ment in its application to either proposition is so apparent as to admit of no dispute.

"The utter folly of maintaining that the protection of the people demands that, in order to become the nomines | fessional lebbyist. His rights should of his party for governor or lieutenantgovernor, a person must poll at any specified percentage of the total vote cast, whereas the constitution of the state provides that the person having at the general election 'the highest number of votes for governor or lieuterant-governor shall be elected,' must impress itself upon the mind of every intelligent person. It hardly seems necessary to throw any greater safe guard around the nomination of a candidate for an office than the consti. tution of the state thrown about the election after the nomination is made. For nearly 60 years the person re ceiving the highest number of votes has been declared elected to office in this state, and no one has yet even thought of advocating a change in this provision of the constitution. Object of Opponents.

"The fact is that no argument worthy of the name has been or will be advanced in support of the retention of the 40 per cent clause in the present primary law of Michigan. Beneath whatever may or can be said in support of this clause lies the desire of its advocates to preserve, if posible, the old delegate convention system and thus keep from the people the right to make these nominations themselves. This phase of the matter is so real that it needs simply be mentioned. Even those who in public strenuously advocate retention of the percentage clause, frankly admit in private the truth of this statement. It is hardly to be presumed that a delegate convention will come any nearer expressing the will of the people than will the people themselves by direct vote. The percentage provision of the primary aw now on the statute books of this state should be repealed.

I am firmly of the opinion, too, that the members of the different political parties should be afforded the opportunity to elect by direct vote the delegates to the national convention. Delegates to conventions act in a purely representative capacity and should be chosen by the most direct method. I know of no reason why the county and state conventions should come between the rank and file of the party and the national convention. The first and second choice of candidates for delegates should be indicated on the ballot. In any event it is altogether probable that there would be candidates for delegates whose presidential choice would be well known and in accord with well defined public sentiment. This primary election could be arranged for with but little expense, as the delegates could be elected on the first Monday in April and election day throughout the state. A general law of this kind for electing these delegates would prevent the nolding of snap caucuses and conventions long before the call for the national convention is issued and enable those who are expected to elect the nominees to have more to do with their nomina-

Observe the Law. "In this connection I desire to call your attention to the necessity of providing more stringent regulations gov erning the holding of county and district conventions in localities where the direct nomination system does not prevail. No convention should be called to elect delegates to a national, state or district convention that has not been called. The other course is semetimes taken from good motives. no doubt, but they are seldom made public. Cleaner politics and good government will be promoted by making such practices against the letter as well as the spirit of the law.

"Experience has conclusively demenstrated that there should be but one primary day, and upon that day all nominations under the provisions of this law should be made. This change would result in a large saving to the people.

"I would be pleased to see needed amendments made to existing special primary election laws affecting specified localities, in order that all laws on this subject may be made as uniform and harmonious as possible. The extension of the primary election system to meet any demands of the people would have my approval.

"The desire of the people of Michigan to directly participate in the nomination of candidates for United States senator is, I believe, generally conceded. The method of gratifying this overwhelming wish of your constituents is simple, and thoroughly understood by all of you. By making provisions in the primary law so as to permit the people of the state to nominate party candidates for United perform an act that will have the unqualified approval of the people of the state, regardless of political affiliations.

Lobbying Hasn't Abated.

"The lobby evil is no less dire and corrupting than it was when I directed your attention to it at the commencement of your regular session. At that time I said:

In all matters of legislation the people are entitled to your best thought and most conscentious judgment, and you should see to it that your thought is not directed nor your judgment affected by any undue inof petition as to all matters coming before the legislature are legitimate methods of influencing legislation. The legislature should always be willing to grant public hearings to and receive petitions from all who may be interested in measures under consideration, whether those persons represent public or private interests. Aside from the hearings there should be no place either in the legislative halls, the committee rooms or the lobby for the probe simply those enjoyed by the humblest citizen of the state. The professional lobbyist has no proper place in legislation and the sconer he is eliminated therefrom the better, not only for the public, but for the special interests by which he is employed.'

"Strike" Legislation Must Cease. "The first step in this direction must necessarily be taken by the individual legislators in treating with contempt the introducer of any so-called 'strike' legislation designed for the sole purpose of attracting the attention of these special interests, thereby inviting them to either pay tribute or to employ the professional lobbyist in self defense. Such legislation and its spensers should be publicly denounced and their real purpose exposed. All proposed legislation should stand or fall on its merits alone, and any argu-

The prudent animal, not being hungry I am in hearty accord with the doctrine laid down by the supreme court of her prey. of the United States so far back as 1853, when in the case of Marshall vs. realized the brute's intentions, and he Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company, that tribunal said: 'All persons whose interests may in any way be affected by any public or private act of a legislature have an undoubted right to urge their claims and arguments either in person or by counsel professing to act for them before legislative committees as well as in courts of justice, but a hired agent assuming to act in a different character, is practicing a deceit on the legislature, and services involving the use of secret means or the exercise of sinister or personal influences are illegal.'

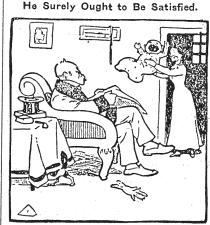

"To legitimate services rendered in a legitimate way, no reasonable objection can be made. But all appearances for or against measures before the legislature should be made publicly and before the proper committees only. There should be no lobby that will not stand the light of the fullest publicity.

"Legislation of the nature I have in mind has already been enacted in New York, New Jersey, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, Colorado and other states, and in recent conversations with the governors of several of these states I have been assured that it has very largely eliminated the evil at which it is directed.

"I emphatically renew the recommendation previously made by me that you enact a law that will free this state from the corrupting influerce of the professional lobbyist and provide for the registration and regulation of all persons who appear before the legislature or committees thereof to urge either the passage or defeat of pending measures. The law should not apply to duly accredited counsel or representatives of municipalities, public boards and public institutions.

THE PREY OF A GRIZZLY.

By a Little Oversight Bruin Was Ropbed of a Good Meal.

In the early settlement of California grizzly bears were numerous and troublesome, but few men ever had a more singular experience with a grizzly than Paul Sweet, who kept a tannery near Santa Cruz. The story is told by Mrs. Dall in "My First Holiday."

Mr. Sweet was one day walking alone in the woods when he came suddenly upon a grizzly bear and her two cubs. He was quite unarmed, and before he had time to consider any plan of action the bear was upon him. She Maruck him down, but he kept his presence of mind and lay perfectly quiet.

The grizzly stood over him for a minute or more, then seized him by the waistband and began dragging him ments as to those merits should stand ged him for a dozen rods to a little along. Mr. Sweet's heart lightened as he began to hope that he might escape. He waited a few minutes after the bear had covered him in, and then, thinking that she had retired from the scene, he began to work himself free very cautiously. The grizzly was on the watch, however, and at the first movement of her prey rushed to the spot and with two or three strokes of her paw snugly tucked him in again.

Mr. Sweet instantly became motionless again and allowed himself to be reburied in the sand. Luckily his hat had slipped over his face, so that the sand did not fill his nose and eyes, and by raising his head a little he was able to throw off the sand sufficiently to

He was more wary next time and lay still for an hour or two until he felt pretty sure that the grizzly had retired from the spot. Very cautiously then he worked himself free from the sand and crept away.

LAPSE OF REASONING.

Instances by Two of the World's Greatest Benefactors.

To illustrate the kind of lapse of reasoning power from which great inventors are known to suffer, like that under influence of which Sir Isaac Newton cut one hole in a wall to let a cat pass through and then a small hole for the kitten, an old story in the life of Morse will answer well. Long before he invented the telegraph Morse was known to the officers of the patent office as a persistent applicant for patents. When his great invention of 'distance writing" was about completed he wanted the Baltimore and Ohio Railway company to try it.

To get rid of him the president of the road turned him over to a subordinate. This official was struck with "An oversight in connection with the beauty of the invention and became so interested in it that he sat up half ular bi-ennial appropriation for the the night discussing it with the inventor. Bismarck's Retort.

One evening when the German troops were before Paris Duke Ernst of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha began grumbling in Bismarck's presence because the iron cross of the first class, given for bravery in the field of battle, had been distributed too indiscriminately. Bismarck replied that the distribution of such decorations was always a delicate and difficult task, "for," said he, "conspicuous merit has to be rewarded, but in some cases conspicuous position. with or without merit, cannot be overlooked. See now," he said, "Moltke has it, Roon has it, Blumenthal has it. Excellent! But," he added, "your highness and I have it, too, and surely it is not for us to grumble!" An Odd Legacy.

Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the Jefferson family of actors, was remembered curiously in the will of member of Garrick's company. Weston's will contained this item:

The King of Diamonds

BY LOUIS TRACY

Author of "The Wings of The Morning," "The Pillar of Light," etc. ILLUSTRATED BY BERGER

This, like many of the best stories you have ever read, begins with a boy. Philip Anson's mother, to whom he is devoted, dies in poverty leaving her boy of fifteen alone in the world.

Just when he has determined to commit suicide he comes into the possession of diamonds of fabulous value in such a strange manner that they seem to be sent from heaven the gift of his mother.

To secure his vast wealth in spite of enemies and the persecution of the law is a problem that would tax older and wiser heads.

But the stars in their courses fought for Philip. His adventures in his new position make a story of extreme fascination—even if a high born little lady had not appeared to him in his poverty to fill his soul with a vision which he carried until it became a reality.

We will not ask you to read this story. We are going to publish the first chapter in a few days. If you can refrain from reading it or stop when you have begun you will be a greater wonder than Philip's fortune

A LEGEND OF WORMS.

Prophecy of the Jewish Sage and Its Strange Fulfillment.

Rashi lived during the time of the first crusade, and one of the legends of Worms connects him with this event. He was one day seated with "Why don't you fasten the wires to I learn my fate from thee. I have know whether my undertaking will succeed. Answer me at once. I have no time for delay."

The rabbi replied: "Thou wouldst parn the future from me? Alas, I am unable to foretell it. God alone can say what the future will bring forth. I have no powers of divination, and my faith forbids the assumption of them. Pray, therefore, forgive me if I am unable to accede to thy request."

"Rabbi," exclaimed the knight in tones of passion, "I will listen to no refusal. Well I know that thou canst foretell the future if thou wilt. As truly as I am Godfrey of Bouillon, so truly do I promise to protect thee and thy community from all harm, even if thou shouldst foretell disaster to me. But if it is a successful issue that thou hast in store for me I will right royally reward thee in addition on my return. What? Art thou silent? Speak or by heaven my sword shall open thy mouth wide enough."

"My liege lord," answered the Jewish sage, "there is only one above who can penetrate the future. Unless I would deceive thee, which I dare not do, at most I can but venture an opinion of what will happen to thee. Thy undertaking will only succeed in part. Of thy immense host but three men Weston, who was himself an esteemed and one horse's head will return in safety." With blanched countenance Godfrey of Bouillon turned to depart, exclaiming as he went, "Take care, ceived me!" Godfrey of Bouillon went up to Jerusalem, captured it and became its first king.

But his success was short lived, and the tide of war turned against him. Defeat and disease decimated his vast host until there remained but four riders of them all who made their way to Worms. "The Jew has not spoken the truth," he remarked as the gates of the city came in sight. "He said we should return with only three rid-If you cannot obtain what you want ers and a horse's head. He has lost his reward." They rode up to the gates and demanded admission. The massive door behind was raised, and they passed through. But as the fourth rider was about to follow it fell down again with a heavy thud, decapitating the horse and leaving its trunk and burden outside the city. "Conduct me to the rabbi," said Godfrey of Bouillon. "I must see him at once." But the rabbi had long since left Germany.

Knew His Habits.

The following anecdote is given by an Indian officer as illustrative of the manners and customs of the wily Pathan: A certain general and his staff, while wending their way through one of the narrowest valleys were annoyed by the attentions of a solitary marksman, who from time to time sent a bullet unpleasantly close. At last the general turned to his orderly-a Pathan sowar-and told him to dismount, take his carbine and try and stalk the mountaineer. The sowar started off, and presently there was a crack and a gray bearded old Afridi tumbled headlong down the mountain side. The sowar rejoined and fell into his place.

"Well done!" said the general. "But how on earth did you manage it so

ON THE SIDE,

One of the most remarkable robberies ever perpetrated in Cass City took place shortly after midnight Saturday. R. B. Harrington, who resides over his poolroom in the Hitchcock Block, was awakened from his slumbers early Sunday morning by a queer noise at the front door of the pool room. Hastily peering through a window upstairs; he discerned the shadow of a man below. A crash of dishes caused by the family cat in search for a lunch convinced Bob that the burglar first seen had an accomplice and that one was doing the stealing while the other was guarding against a surprise. Drawing these conclusions, his actions were then directed to the capture of the men. Hastily donning a light attire, he slipped from the building, empty shot gun in hand, and with feet unshod, ran to the residence of Deputy Sheriff Morris, whom he awakened from his the astonishing story of the robbery which was at that moment under way. Not waiting for his worthy, the vicinity.

deputy sheriff, to prepare his toilet, Bob turned homeward. In the meantime, a feminine voice from the rooms over the robbery scene tried in vain to arouse neighbors from their innocent slumbers. The voice was unheard by them, but attracted the attention of a young man further down the street and he came to investigate the cause bona or Greenbank next Sunday owing of the disturbance. FATHER AND SON.

Pathetic Tragedy of the War Between

Not all the sad stories of wartime come from the battlefield. Many a heartbreak is not recorded on the list of the killed and wounded. The civil war knew no more tragic occurrence than the following incident, taken from the New York Sun: A soldier had enlisted from his home in Georgia, where his father remained undisturbed through the struggle. The young man fought through the war without a scratch, save a slight wound which left him a little deaf. This affliction ne never mentioned in his letters.

After the surrender he sent his father word that he would reach home about a certain date. Travel then was uncertain, and he could not tell just when he would arrive.

His father prepared to receive him. He had brought out the best plate, which had been secreted for a long time, and with gold which had been exhumed he bought such substantials and delicacies as the southern market at that time afforded. As many of the old time neighbors as were living in the vicinity were invited to the home soming.

The young soldier arrived on the plantation the night before the earliest date he had mentioned. It was late, and the family had retired, but the dog heard the noise and began to bark. The sound roused the father, who rose and got his shotgun. The country was overrun at the time with stragglers and sneak thieves. The father, gun in hand, went to the door, saw the approaching figure and challenged it. Dave Skinner purchased a fine pair The young man, being deaf, made no reply, but still advanced, whereupon the father raised his gun and fired. His son fell, shot through the heart. It was a pitiful sight to see that al-

Every private burial ground had in it a grave made by the war, but no funeral like that ever took place in the vicinity or possibly in the whole south.

The Spanish Duchess.

A duchess enters a shop. Do you imagine she will be more courteously received than a little milliner? Not at all, for both are instantly made at home and treated to the hidalgo's finest manner. But she will never be the less a duchess because she and the shopkeeper are on the best of terms. Her unconsciousness of her rank in everyday relations, which would stupefy an English duchess, comes from the fact that she belongs to a prouder race. Had she a mind to sport her coronet in a shop the owner and his attendants would speedily make short work of her decorative dignity. To them it would simply mean an underbred and it.
