The Quality of the Clothing is the Key to The Values.

Quality includes something more than mere materials, in these prosperous days, when appearance has such an important bearing on success. In our grandfather's days, Grandma wove the cloth and made Grandpa's clothes, but Grandpa wouldn't take a thousand a minute

Quality, with us, includes Style and Fit and Workmanship. It means clothing which a a man can wear anywhere—business or church—and look well dressed and respectable. And we are selling this kind of clothing at the very lowest prices at which stylish, up-to-date garments can be sold. Everything we offer is the very latest in style—the very best in fit—the very best in materials that your money can buy. We have no old stock and when you buy of us you get clothing which does not make you feel like a back number every time you come near a well dressed man.

Come in and see it before you buy. We have no special bargains—everything is marked in plain figures at the lowest prices at which GOOD clothing can possibly be sold.

Cass City Boys Show Much Improvement in Playing in Friday's Game.

In the game of football played here last Friday between Bad Axe and Cass City high school teams neither side was able to score. This leaves the title of "Champions of the Thumb" to be claimed by two teams as neither team has an open date on which the tie can be played off.

From the standpoint of scientific foot-ball the game was devoid of most of the spectacular. Bad Axe, outweighing Cass City about fifteen pounds to the man, relied altogether on straight old fashioned football to make their gains. Cass City made the most of the "new" game and worked many tricks.

The first half began by Bad Axe kicking to Wickware who returned the ball 10 yards to the 25 yard line, then by a series of tricks and end smashes mixed with a forward pass the ball in Cass' possession on the Bad

MICHIGAN BANKS ARE O. K.

No Need To Worry Says Banking Commissioner.

State Banking Commissioner Zimmerman issued the following announcement Friday on the Michigan financial situation:

There is absolutely no excuse for becoming exercised the slightest degree about the financial situation in Michigan. Our banks are maintaining a high reserve and can meet every legitimate need. The united action of the banks doing a savings business in taking advantage of the rule requiring notice of withdrawals is commendable and wise. Our banks were never in better condinion and the action taken simply demonstrates clearly that our bankers are determined to keep the banks in the excellent condition they are now in.

Oregon Boundary Settled.

It is an interesting coincidence that while Ezra Meeker, pioneer, has been making an ox team trip back over the old Oregon trail which he traversed on the outward trip in 1852, marking this trail with suitable monuments at prominent points, the United States Advertising rates made known on and Canada have been engaged in placing markers to denote the boundary line between the two countries along the line which divides the Amer-| ican and the Canadian sections of the old "Oregon country."

Bronze pillars have been placed at intervals of about a mile and a half along the boundary line for 400 miles, there being 273 of these little monuments, bearing on the northern side the word "Canada" and on the southern side the words "United States." On the east face is inscribed "Treaty 1846" and on the west face "Renewed 1902-07."

This means that the matter of the division of the old Oregon country between the two nations, which was in fierce dispute for thirty years or more up to 1846 and has been disputed since then as to the actual boundary, is settled definitely at last.

It will be remembered that a strong element of American statesmanship demanded the entire Oregon country, reaching right up to Russian territory, now our own Alaska. These statesmen claimed the entire region concerned because of American discovery and exploration. Great Britain, through the Hudson's Bay company, thrust in settlers and finally managed to split of the currency for producing an exthe Oregon country in half and keep a firm hold of the northern part, thus making a long break between the two sections of the United States—the "States" and Alaska.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

WILL NOT BE CALLED FOR VERY GOOD REASONS-WOULD BE IMPRACTICABLE.

Regular Sessions Begin in Four Weeks and There is Time Enough to Act at December Session.

The deep concern which members of the administration, including the president himself, experienced during the recent financial disturbance was made manifest when more details were learned in regard to the possibility of calling an extra session of congress. The extra session will not be called, but the president's decision not to do so was reached only after an earnest discussion of the matter in last Friday's meeting of the cabinet. The developments of the last three or four days have inspired a feeling of greater confidence on the part of the administration and the impression is that the panicky condition of week before last has gone not to return in the near future. Among the conditions which have combined to produce this feeling of reassurance is the fact that hundreds of national bankers all over the United States have indicated their eagerness to cooperate in the plan of the secretary of the treasury and the comptroller pansion of national bank circulation. Admiral Evans Wants to Go to Yokahama With the Battleships.

Rear Admiral Evans was given a linner by the Lotus club in New York Saturday night and in response to a toast to his health said: "This fleet of 16 battleships and other vessels will sail from Hampton Roads on December 16. I do not think anybody wants to stop it. I don't think anybody will stop it, for I know the men and I know the ships. You won't be disappointed in the fleet, whether it proves to be a feast, a frolic or a fight. It would please me very much to take the fleet to Yokohama. I know the Japanese and I know that we would get a welcome there. I know it would not be the welcome we would get from a certain gang in San Francisco. I do not fear the flower shows and the dog shows, but I do fear the hospitality of the western people. When I took charge of the fleet two and a half years ago we had some target practice out there which I thought was good, and it was good. But during the last target practice in Massachusetts Bay we did better than was ever done in the world be-

Evans described the target practice when a 30x30 feet target was shot at at a range of 51-4 miles, just as would be done in battle. He said, proudly, that the target was practically destroyed in two minutes and 15 seconds.

THE BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY OF THE COUNTRY AND ITS GROWTH. ON SUPERIOR POLITICS.

Upper Peninsula Situation Shows a Reach Out for a Larger Share of the Plums.

Michigan Sugar.

Carman N. Smith, manager of the Owosso Sugar Co. and president of the Michigan Sugar Manufacturers' association, says: "If people in Michigan fully understood the importance of the beet sugar industry to the state and the peril in which it is being placed by the proposed Philippine tariff they would be a unit in demanding that the legislation under consideration be shelved immediately and indefinitely. The trouble is that people don't understand how great this industry has grown to be, and how much is involved in the proposed tariff changes," he continued. "We have in this state now, sixteen factories with a capacity of slicing 10,000 tons of beets a day There are three in Bay City, one each in Saginaw, Caro, Croswell, Sebewaing, St. Louis, Alma, Owosso, Lansing, Blissfield, Holland, Mt. Clemens, Menominee and Charlevoix.

"These factories represent an actual investment of $10,000,000. Last year they paid to farmers $4,750,000 and their output in sugar was valued at $8,750,000. There are 30,000 farmers in the state who raise sugar beets.

"So much for the state. In the whole country the value of the beet sugar product in 1906 was $39,500,000. The farmers got $20,000,000 of this for their product and there is invested in 64 factories $60,000,000.

"This entire great industry inevitably will be wiped out if the Philippine tariff bill becomes law.
"More than that: This great business was built up because of the direct promises of protection by the United States government and that government today is seeking to destroy it for the sake of mere sentimentalism.

A Political View.

It is said that the announcement of Governor Warner's intention to become a candidate for re-election next year was received with great satisfaction in nearly all parts of the upper peninsula. The majority of the newspapers are with the governor in his fight against the boxers and will support his candidacy.

In case of the governor's re-election he will also find his friends of the op-position ranks in line. There is not the slightest question of the return of Senators Moriarty and Charles Smith to the next senate, if these gentlemen so desire. The governor cannot reach them; they will be nominated under the convention system and their districts are overwhelmingly Republican. The eastern part of the upper peninsula, however, will send a senator who will indorse any sane-reform policy of the administration. Senator O. B. Fuller has the full indorsement of the upper peninsula press in his candidacy for auditorgeneral. The impression is general that for the many years of faithful support of the Republican ticket, the upper peninsula is now entitled to more than a mere figurehead as the lieutenant-governor's position is considered, but to something worth while and to all appearances the position of auditor-general is considered the right one.

Banks Are Safe.

State Banking Commissioner Zimmerman has issued the following announcement on the Michigan financial situation:

There is absolutely no excuse for becoming exercised the slightest degree about the financial situation in Michigan. Our banks are maintaining a high reserve and can meet every legitimate need. The united action of the banks doing a savings business in taking advantage of the rule requiring notice of withdrawals is commendable and wise. Our banks were never in better condition and the action taken simply demonstrates clearly that our bankers are determined to keep the banks in the excellent condition they are now in.

He did not hurry toward rather, with his right hand clinched parcel which had suddenly been en-It was the instinct to guard a treasure tary action. He was preoccupied, disturbed, vaguely striving to grasp a vision that seemed to elude his exact

What did it all mean? Was it really possible that he, Philip Anson, orphaned, beggared, practically a starving tramp, should have the riches of Golconda showered upon him in this mad fashion? If the small stone he and shown to the jeweler were worth hundreds, then some of those in the paper were worth thousands, while as for the stone in the back yard of his house-well, imagination boggled at the effort to appraise it. The thought begot a sense of caution, of reserve, reveal his secret to anybody. Perhaps ninepence, neither. Tomatoes, mum? it would be best not to take Messrs. Isaacstein & Co. wholly into his confidence. He would simply show them possibly spend during many years.

Above all else was it necessary that his meteor should be removed to a safer place than Johnson's Mews. Philip had scruples about appropriating it. Lords of the manor and crown rights he had never heard of.

His mother, watching his every action from some Elysian height, had sent the diamond loaded messenger as a token of her love and care. It was his, and no man should rob him of it. It behooved him to be sparing of explanations and sturdy in defense of

A good deal depended on the forthcoming interview, and he wished he could convert a small fraction of the wealth in his pocket into a few honest pennies with the king's head on them. The excitement and exercise had made him hungry again. His breakfast was not of ample proportions, and his meals of yesterday had been of the scantiest. It would be well to face the diamond merchants with the easy confidence that springs from a satisfied appetite. Yet how to manage it? He was sorry now he had not borrowed a sixpence from O'Brien. The cld soldier would certainly have lent it to him. He even thought of returning to the Mile End road to secure the loan. but he happened to remember that the day was Saturday, and it was probable that the Hatton Garden offices would o'clock, and he could not risk the delay of the long, double journey.

At that instant a savory smell was wafted to him. He was passing a small restaurant where sausages and onions sizzled gratefully in large tin trays and pork chops lay in inviting prodigality amid rich, brown gravy. The proprietor, a portly and greasy man with bald head and side whiskers, was standing at the door exchanging views as to business with his next door neighbor, a greengrocer. Philip, bold in the knowledge of his wealth, resolved to try what he could achieve on

He walked up to the pair.

"I have not got any money just now," he said to the restaurant keeper, "but if you will let me have something to eat I will gladly come back this afternoon and pay you double."

Neither man spoke at first. Philip was always unconscious of the quaint discrepancy between his style of speech and his attire. He used to resent bitterly the astonishment exhibited by strangers, but today he was far removed above these considerations, and he backed his request with a pleas-

The fat man grew apoplectic and turned his eyes to the sky. "Well, I'm"- he spluttered.

The greengrocer laughed, and Philip

"Do you refuse?" he said, with his downright manner and direct stare. "Well, of all the cool cheek"- The stout person's feelings were too much for him. He could find no other words. "It is a fair offer," persisted the boy. "You don't think I mean to swindle ou, surely?"

"Well, there! I never did!" But the greengrocer intervened.

"You're a sharp lad," he guffawed. "D'ye want a job?" "No," was the short reply. "I want something to eat." "Dash my buttons, an' you're a likely sort of kid to get it too. In you go. I'll pay the bill. Lord lumme, it'll do me good to see you."

"Mr. Judd, are you mad?" demanded his neighbor, whose breath had re-"turned to him.

The boy held out his hand. "Thank you, Mr. Judd," he said frankly. "I will return without fail. I will not insult you by offering more than the amount you have advanced for me, but some day I may be able to render you good service in repayment." Then he walked off toward the viaduct steps, and Mr. Judd looked after him.

Yes'm. Fresh in this mornin' After crossing Holborn viaduct Philip stood for a little while gazing into the the stone he had exhibited to Mr. Wil- showroom of a motor agency. It was son and take the best price they of not that he was interested in Panhard fered. Then, with the money in his or De Dion cars, then but little known possession, he could effect a much to the general public in England, but needed change in his appearance, visit rather that he wished to rehearse carethem again, and gradually increase his fully the programme to be followed supply of diamonds until he had ob. with Mr. Isaacstein. With a sagacity tained more money than he could unlooked for in one of his years, he decided that the meteor should not be mentioned at all. Of course the diamond merchant would instantly recognize the stone as a meteoric diamond and would demand its earthly pedigree. Philip resolved to adhere to the simple statement that it was his own property and that any reasonable inquiry might he made in all quarters where neteoric diamonds were obtainable as to whether or not such a stone was missing. Meanwhile he could obtain from Mr. Isaacstein a receipt acknowledging its custody and a small advance of money far below its real worth, leaving the completion of the transaction until a later date. The question of giving or withholding his address if it were asked for was a difficult one to settle offhand. Perhaps the course of events would permit him to keep Johnson's Mews altogether out of the record, and a more reputable habita> tion would be provided once he had the requisite funds.

Thinking he had successfully tackled all the problems that would demand solution, Philip wasted no more time. He entered Hatton Garden and had not gone past many of its dingy houses until he saw a large brass plate bearing the legend, "Isaacstein & Co., Diamond Merchants, Kimberley, Amsterdam and London." He entered the office and was instantly confronted by youth who surveyed him through a grille with an arched opening in it to admit letters and small parcels. "Is Mr. Isaacstein in?" said Philip.

"Oah, yess," grinned the other. "Will you kindly tell him I wish to ee him?" "Oah, yess." There was a joke lurking somewhere in the atmosphere, but the young man had not caught its drift The gaunt and unkempt visitor was evidently burlesquing the accent of such gentle people as came to the office on business.

Philip waited a few seconds. The boy behind the grille filled in the interval by copying an address into the stamp book.

"Why do you not tell Mr. Isaacstein am here?" he said at last.

"Oah, yess. You vil be funny, eh?" The other smirked over the hidden humor of the situation, and Philip understood that if he would see the great man of the firm he must adopt a more emphatic tone.

"I had better warn you that Mr. Wilson of Messrs. Grant & Sons, Ludgate Hill, sent me here to see Mr. Isaacstein. Am I to go back to Mr. Wilson and say that the office boy refuses to admit me?" There was a sting in the description, coming from such a speaker. "Look 'ere," was the angry retort. Go avay und blay, vil you? I'm pizzy."

Then Philip reached quickly through the little arch, grabbed a handful of shirt, tie and waistcoat and dragged the big nose and thick lips violently against the wires of the grille.

"Will you do what I ask or shall I try and pull you through?" he said

But the boy's ready yell brought two clerks running, and a door was thrown open. Phil released his opponent and instantly explained his action. One of the clerks, an elderly man, looked a little deeper than the boy's ragged garments, and the mention of Mr. Wilson's name procured him a hearing. Moreover, he had previous experience of the youthful janitor's methods. With a cuff on the ear, this injured personage was bidden to go upstairs and say that Mr. Wilson had sent a boy to see Mr. Isaacstein. The added insult came when he was compelled to usher Philip to a waiting room.

"He wants nothing, sir," said Philip. 'He sent me to see you on a matter of business. It is of a private nature. Can you give me a few minutes alone?" Isaacstein was a big headed, big houldered man, tapering to a small point at his feet. He looked absurdly ike a top, and surprise or emotion of any sort caused him to sway gently. He swayed now, and every clerk looked up, expecting him to fall bodily on to the urchin with the refined utterance who had dared penetrate into the potentate's office with such a re-

"Is this a joke?" All the clerks guffawed in chorus. Fortunately Isaacstein was in a good humor. He had just purchased a pearl for £250 which he would sell to Lady Somebody for £800 to match another in an earring.

"It appears to be," said Philip when the merriment had subsided. For some reason the boy's grave, to you." "Ah, I see. Sit down there," indicating a chair near the door. The diamond merchant himself sat at his desk, but they were both in full view of each other.

"Where did you get it?" he asked.

"Quite so. But where?"

"At this moment I do not wish to go into details, but it is mine, mine only, and I am quite willing that you should make every inquiry to satisfy yourself that it was not stolen. I suppose that is what you fear.'

Sheer wonder kept the man silent for a space "Do you know its value?" he said, with a sudden snap. "Mr. Wilson told me it was worth several hundreds of pounds." "Did he really?" "Yes. He said you would treat me quite fairly, so I wish you to advance me a few pounds until you have deeided upon its real price. You see, sir, I am very poor, and my present appearance creates an unfavorable impression. Still, I am telling you the absolute truth, and I show my confidence in you and in my own case by offering to leave the diamond with you on your receipt, together with a small sum of money.'

Philip thought he was getting on very well. Isaacstein's large eyes bulged at him, and speech came but slowly. He leaned forward and rummaged among some papers. Then he opened a drawer and produced a magnifying glass, with which he focused the diamond. "Yes; it is worth £600 or £700," he announced, "but it will be some time before I can speak accurately as to its value. I think it may be flawless, but that can only be determined when it is Isaacstein moved on his seat. Even in a chair he wanted to wabble. There was a slight pause. "Have you any more like this stone?

I suppose not, eh?" "Yes; I have many more."

"Eh? What? Boy, do you know what you are saying? "No doubt you are surprised, sir, but not more than I am myself. Yet, it is true. I have some—as big again." Philip, in his eagerness, nearly forgot his resolution to advance slowly. How the diamond merchant would shake if only he could see some of the white pebbles in the meteor. "As big again! Where are they?" The chair was creaking now with the rhythmic swaying of its occupant.

"Where this one came from, Mr.

Isaacstein."

Philip smiled. He could not tell how it happened, but he felt that he was the intellectual superior of the man who sat there glowering at him so intently. Already the boy began to grasp dimly the reality of the power which enormous wealth would give him. Such people as this man and his satellites would be mere automata in the affairs of his life, important enough in a sense, with the importance of a stamp for a letter or a railway ticket for a journey, but governed and controlled utterly by the greater personage who could unlock the door of the treasure house. For the first time Philip wished he was older, bigger, more experienced. He even found himself beginning to wonder what he should do until he reached man's estate. He sighed.

Isaacstein was watching him closely, trying to solve the puzzle by the aid of each trick and dodge known in a trade which lends itself to acute roguery of every description. The look of unconscious anxiety, of mental weariness on Philip's face seemed to clear away his doubts. He chuckled thickly.

"How many, now," he murmured. "Ten, twenty—of assorted sizes, eh?" "Far more! Far more! Be content with what I tell you today, Mr. Isaacstein. I said my business was important. When you are better acquainted with me I think you will find it sufficiently valuable to occupy the whole of your time." Philip was ever on the verge of bursting out into confidences. His seeret was too vast, too overpowering, or a boy of fifteen. He wanted the mowledge and the trust of an older nan. He did not realize that the merhant, beginning by regarding him as A thief, was now veering round to the opinion that he was a lunatic, for it is known to most men that the values of diamonds increase out of all proportion to their weight. While a one carat stone is worth, roughly speaking, £10, a twenty carat gem of the same purity is worth any sum beyond £2,000, and the diamond Philip had submitted for inspection would probably cut into ten or twelve carats of fine luster. To speak therefore of an abundance of larger and finer stones company alone could use such a figure of speech, and even then only at isolated dates in its history.

was a simple absurdity. The De Beers

The boy, with his eyes steadfastly fixed on the man's face and yet with a distant expression in them that paid slight heed to the waves of emotion exhibited by the heavy cheeks and pursed up mouth, awaited some final utterance on the part of his questioner. urely he had said this man keenly alive to the commercial value of the "business" he offered. Under the conditions Isaacstein could not refuse to give him sufficient money to meet his immediate wants.

The man, seemingly at a loss for words, bent again over the stone. He was scrutinizing it closely when a heavy tread crossed the outer showroom and the door was flung open. "I have sent for you, constable, to take this boy into custody," he cried excitedly. "He came here ten minutes ago and offered for sale a very valuable diamond so rare and worth so much that he must have stolen it." Philip, too, sprang up.

"It is a lie!" he shouted. "How dare you say such a thing when I have told you that it is mine!

The policeman collared him by the "Steady, my young spark," he said.

'Mr. Isaacstein knows what he is about, and I don't suppose he is very far wrong this time. Do you know the boy, sir?" he went on.

Isaacstein gave a voluble and accurate summary of Philip's statements. Each moment the policeman's grip became firmer. Evidently the boy was the mere agent of a gang of thieves. though it was beyond comprehension that any one short of an idiot should choose an emissary with broken boots and ragged clothing in order to effect a deal with the leading house in Hat-

Philip listened to the recital in dumb agony. His face was deathly pale, and his eyes glowed with the rage and shame that filled his soul. So the man had been playing with him, merely fooling him until some secret signal by an electric bell had sent a messenger flying for the police. His dream of wealth would end in the jail, his fairy oasis would be a felon's cell. Very well, be it so. If he could help it, not all the policemen in London should rend his secret from him. With a sudden glow of fiery satisfaction he remembered that his clothing contained no clew to his address, and he had not given his name at either Ludgate Hill or Hatton Garden. How long could they keep him a prisoner? Would others find his meteor and rob him of his mother's gift? In less than a fortnight men would come to tear down "Steady! You are not in such a 1+ mattered not. The courage of dethe buildings in Johnson's Mews. Well, hurry, eh? You won't tell me where spair which nerved him the previous ors as to the reason for the almost tonight came to his aid again. He would defv them all, careless of consequence, The policeman was saving:

"It's a queer affair, sir. Did he really say he had lots more of 'em?" "Yes, yes! Do you think I am romancing? Perhaps they are in his possession now." "Have you any more of these stones,

Philip, with lips tensely set, was desperately cool again. He moved his arm, and the constable's grasp tight-

"You are hurting me," said the boy. 'I merely wish to put my hand in my pocket. Are you afraid of me that you

The policeman, like the rest, did not fail to notice Philip's diction. The challenge of the final question, took him aback. He relaxed his grip and grinned confusedly.

Philip instantly produced his paper of diamonds and opened it widely so that all the stones could be seen. He handed the parcel to the policeman.

"Take good care of them, constable," he said. "Judging from results, they would not be safe in that man's hands.'

But Isaacstein did not hear the insult. When he saw the collection he nearly lost his senses. What had he done? Was he or the boy mad? Veins stood out on his forehead, and he wab oled so fearfully that he clutched the desk for support. A scarecrow of a boy wandering about London with thousands of pounds' worth of diamonds in his pocket wrapped up in a piece of newspaper like so many weets! There were not any meteoric liamonds of such value in all the museums and private collections in the world. He began to perspire. Even he policeman was astounded, quite as much at being called "constable" by Philip as by the mean appearance of articles presumably of great value.

"This is a rum go. What do you make of it, Mr. Isaacstein?" he said. The query restored Isaacstein's wits. After all, here was the law spenking. It would have been the wildest folly or a man of his position to dabble in this mysterious transaction.

With a great effort he forced himself o speak.

"Lock him up instantly. This matter must be fully inquired into. And do be careful of that parcel, constable. Where do you take him? To the Bridewell station? I will follow you in a eab in five minutes.'

So Philip, handcuffed, was marched lown the stairs past the gratified office oy and out into the street.

As for Isaacstein, he required branly, and not a little, before he felt able

RARE COPPER CENTS.

Coin Collectors' Theory to Account For Their Scarcity.

That some of the rarest and most valuable of the United States cents, particularly those dated 1799 and 1804, owe their scarcity to the fact that Fulton built the steamboat Clermont is the theory held by some coin collectors. They believe that thousands of the old time large copper cents went toward making the copper boiler for the pioneer steamboat.

This theory would explain the mystery that has long puzzled coin collecttal disappearance of the cents of the dates mentioned.

The first cents struck at the United States mints at Philadelphia were of large size. The copper blanks, or planchets, were imported from England, being sent over in kegs.

Copper at this period was a scarce article in this country. With the exception of the small quantity produced at the only copper mines then known in the United States, those at Granby, Conn., nearly all the metal used here came from England.

Builders of steam engines in those days were of the opinion that boilers constructed of iron were unsafe and impracticable, and as a consequence boilers were made of copper, all the boilers that came from England being, scornful superiority of his words, the | it is said, constructed of that metal. Fulton was likewise of the belief that copper was the only fit metal to be used in boilers.

It is therefore possible that, finding a scarcity of metal with which to construct the boiler of the Clermont, he finally resorted to the most convenient source of supply, which happened to be the large United States copper cents. Of course the cost of such a boiler would represent a large sum, but it is on the records that the steam frigate Fulton, launched in 1815, the year of the inventor's death, had a boiler entirely constructed of copper, which alone cost the large sum of $23,-

That the supply of cents of this period was large enough to meet such a demand is also likely enough. From 1793 to and including 1795 1,066,033 cents were coined, and in 1796 974,000 were struck.

Babies In the East.

In Cypress, at the important date of the first tooth appearing, friends gather, singing songs, while the child is bathed in water and boiled wheat. Afterward thirty-two of the boiled grains are strung on a thread and stitched to the baby's cap, which, of course, promptly produces the safe cutting of the other teeth.

A pretty custom prevails on the isle of Rhodes, for there, on the eighth day from birth, the infant, after a final bath of wine and myrtle, is tenderly laid in a cradle surrounded by lighted tapers while a child approaches, touches its lips with honey and says, "Be thou as sweet as this honey."-Los Angeles Times.

The Brute.

"Such an angel of a hat," chirped the vain woman as she twirled before the mirror. "Yellow and white. What does it remind you of, my dear?" The big man in the embroidered slippers looked up from his paper. "Yellow and white!" he repeated. Well, now, on the level, it reminds me of a fried egg."-Chicago News.

There Is Nothing The Matter

HERE IS NOTHING THE MATTER WITH BUSINESS. WALL STREET IS AGITATED, BUT WALL STREET IS A WORLD BY ITSELF. IT KICKS MONEY AROUND AS THOUGH IT WAS A FOOTBALL. IN THE MAIN, IT IS A GREAT GAME OF SPECULATION.

At times the country is filled with wonder at the POWER OF A FEW TO TIE UP MONEY and to project it into great corporation movements that for the time being make banks and trust companies their partners and indirectly affect the mercantile business. But the great country is not affected by the SPASMS of Wall street. It can be counted on to continue in good financial health. The REAL BUSINESS of supplying the wants of 80,000,000 people has to go on because wants go on.

Wages are higher than ever before in the history of the country and, I believe, fully offset the high prices prevailing. I feel sure that it can be proved that a large majority of the mercantile world WAS NEVER IN SO SOUND A CONDITION.

I was asked when abroad my ideas about American business and financial conditions. I say now, as I said then, that those people who have GOOD securities can lay them away with the assurance that if they wait a little while their securities will bring their true value. I told Europeans that America is not to be "MARKED DOWN" by a few mistakes in railroad management and in combinations when but a small fraction of the people are responsible for such mistakes or are affected by them.

AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN ARE HONEST BUSINESS MEN, AND THERE ARE TOO MANY OF THEM TO FALTER OR SINK THROUGH BY TEMPORARY CONDITIONS WHICH ARE SURE OF RECTIFICATION.

Manufacturing cannot let up because I find that in many classes of goods, and particularly the best classes, SUPPLIES ARE SCARCE. Merchants are not speculating, but they have funds, made in business, which they are taking care of and using to discount bills.

Before making this last purchase, he took out his pencil and figured

"The range which I am now compelled to discard cost $30.00 and was in use 33 months making the service received from it cost me Ninety Cents per month, and 'junk' is all there is left."

"Now my neighbor's MALLEABLE RANGE has been in use Six Years or Seventy-two Months and as it cost $55.00, the service it rendered cost him but Seventy-six Cents per month and his stove is as good

"A MALLEABLE RANGE is the one to buy though its first cost is nearly double that of the Chicago stove, its real cost is but half or less." "You may send up a MALLEABLE as soon as you can get there. I'm afraid the pesky old hulk will burn the house down."

DINING IN WALL STREET.

What Lunch Hour Means to New York's Financial District. When one descends upon Wall street, either from the Broadway slope of Trinity church or from the Nassau street hill, at noontime any week day the air is fraught with many conflicting odors of the kitchen. From over the roars of the clamoring curb folk way down in the valley of Broad street there arises from a score of cookeries and "handouts" a decided smell of the stewpot blended with the ever glorious onion. From the eaves of the New York Stock Exchange come the more pretentious fragrance of spiced meats and strong coffee. From the basement antiquated frame house as well, come all sorts of fuming evidences that the men of affairs are eating. To realize what this luncheon hour means to Wall street one must stop to think of the thousands of persons who are in particular part of the day. Hundreds of restaurants meet the rush with their doors flung wide, and their keepers have grown rich upon nickels and brief Jake Hildebrand has a span of hours of midday. Men have grown rich and retired to palatial mansions in the suburbs selling cup custards and "sinkers" to millionaires, stenographers, clerks and bankers alike during the busy hour or two at noon. Thousands of pounds of meat, countless oysters and clams, barrels of gravy, unaccountable gallons of coffee and tea and tons of bread are consumed foreigner has found justification for his criticism of Americans for fast eating. -Pittsburg Dispatch.

SAWED OFF ITS HEAD

Storm a Wooden Statue of Andrew Jackson Raised.

ON A FAMOUS OLD FRIGATE.

A Bold Boston Sea Captain Mutilated the Constitution's Figurehead and Then Went to Washington and Defied the Authorities.

The figurehead which was placed on the frigate Constitution is now at the Naval academy in Annapolis. It is a figure of Andrew Jackson, and connected with it is a curious incident. The original figurehead of the Constitution was a figure of Hercules. This was destroyed by a cannon ball at Tripoli, and then a figure of Neptune was erected. This also came to grief, and at the time the vessel was rebuilt there was no figurehead except a billet. At the time the new ship was finished Captain Jesse Duncan Elliott of Hagerstown, Md., who had distinguished himself in the battle of Lake Erie, was in command at the Boston navy yard. Captain Elliott was an enthusiastic Democrat and an ardent admirer of President Andrew Jackson.

The president had lately been in Boston and had been most hospitably received, and Captain Elliott conceived the idea of placing a figure of the president at the prow of the Constitution, believing that it would give the people of Boston much pleasure. The navy department gave him permission, and so a wooden figure of "Old Hickory" was put in position on the ship. This act raised a storm of dissent in the Hub, and Captain Elliott was threatened with a coat of tar and feathers. The excitement was intense, and the language was virulent. Handbills denouncing the act, denouncing the president and Elliott were circulated in the streets, and the newspapers took up the cry, and in this day and generation the partisan violence and vituperation which raged in New England are inconceivable.

On a dark night in July the deck of the ship was invaded, and, although a sentry was close at hand, the head of Jackson was sawed off and taken away. New England was delirious, and for a time the perpetrator of the act was unknown to the public.

Six months later one Samuel W Dewey, a Boston sea captain, took the dissevered head in a bag to the secretary of the navy at Washington and avowed himself as the criminal. That official was amazed at the man's audacity and asked him if he did not know that he would be severely punished. Dewey calmly replied that he had considered the matter and had ascertained that the legal penalty was slight and could not be applied until he was convicted by a jury in Essex county, Mass.

"And if you think a jury in that county," he added, "will punish a man for cutting off the head of Andrew Jackson you are welcome to try it."

The secretary went to the White House for instruction, while Dewey was detained. General Jackson laughed heartily at the whole incident and forbade the man's arrest. Before this Captain Elliott had provided a new dimes that fall into their tills like a head for the figure, and the wooden napolis was at the prow of the vessel for forty years.

Captain Elliott's last voyage on the Constitution was from the Mediterranean to Hampton Roads in 1838. Here he was removed from command because of charges of severity to the men and of having incumbered the berth deck of the ship on the homeward voyage with jackasses for the improvement of the breed in the United States. The Constitution finally went out of commission for active service at Portsmouth, N. H., after a career of nearly fifty-eight years in the service. In 1860 she was transferred to Annapolis for the use of the midshipmen. When the civil war began her position there was deemed unsafe, and she was sent to the New York navy yard. In 1865 she was returned to Annapolis, where she remained until 1871. when she was taken to Philadelphia, where she was again rebuilt. In 1878 she was used to transport exhibits to France for the Paris exposition of 1878, and her career at sea finally ended in 1881. The centennial of her launching was celebrated at Boston in 1897, where she was built.—Baltimore

STATE PAWNSHOPS.

French Rate Is 7 Per Cent-Sometimes No Interest Is Charged.

With none of the timidity or hesitation or the shamefaced aspect of our user of pawnshops does the Parisian perform his journey to the money lender. Far from feeling, after the door has closed behind him, that he is in the country of the enemy, the Frenchman can have his patriotic ardor at its highest, for over the pawnshop flies the tricolor of France instead of the gilded balls, and the guard at the door is a helmeted, white gloved republican guard. The customary whispering as the borrower exchanges goods for cash is unknown. Borrowing is a business transaction with the government.

It is not out of appreciation of these conditions, of course, that 7,000 people daily visit the municipal pawnshops, but their business trip includes a knowledge of the fact that whatever profits will accrue to the establishments will finally go back to the peo-

There is no haggling, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record. On jewelry four-fifths of the value of the object can be secured; on the other articles two-thirds. The interest is 7 per cent per annum. Should a borrower be in the unfortunate position of having paid interest for many years without being able to release the article the authorities will return it. When interest has not been paid the object in question goes to the auction, and then the righteousness of Paris pawnbroking is decidedly in evidence, for after the sale has been consummated and the original loan and interest are deducted from the money secured by the sale the surplus goes to the borrower. Should the money remain unclaimed it is turned over to the Paris hospitals, and, curiously enough, these hospitals profit to the extent of 100,-000 francs a year.

When one has made a study of French pawnbroking laws it is easily seen that the first object served by these laws is to protect people who want mmediate money advantages. France (and we may say France, for municipal pawnbroking is to be found in every corner of the country) cares little that many transactions are carried on at a loss. In one year of some 2,000,000 pawned articles in Paris 1,000,000 were effected at a loss, since no auction will bring a complete return on small objects. Of course this is offset by the return from loans on the other million articles, but should there be a deficiency the municipality has no hesitation in going down in its pockets and thus has an indirect mode of taxing the well to do to support the needy. Since no country has raised a cry against charity, this, as one form of it, can be passed without criticism. The fact is, money is lost on all loans under 20 francs.

The capital of the pawnshops consists of legacies, gifts and subventions of the state, department or the commune. Occasionally, as at Grenoble and Montpellier, the establishments are so well endowed that no interest is charged. Paris, for no unfathomable reasons, does the largest pawnbroking business on the continent, 34,000,000 francs being the average yearly pledges and 30,000,000 francs redeemed. The total revenue is 4,000,000

"It will be impossible for us to transact any public business tonight," saidthe president of the city council, "because of the lack of a quorum."

"Mr. Chairman," said the new member, arising quickly, "I have been elected on a pledge to my constituency that I shall work untiringly and unceasingly for the upbuilding and uplifting of our city, and I now and here move that a committee be appointed to consider the immediate purchase of as good a quorum as the market affords and that the committee be instructed to secure the quorum and have it properly installed by the next meeting night. And furthermore," he said, with a fine patriotic touch, "let us obtain a good American quorum and not one of those ancient Roman things!"-Success Magazine.

In the Swim.

A serious accident happened at the supper table. Somebody-it's always "somebody" who is to blame-upset a pitcher of water over the cloth. There was a general scampering and a calling for somebody to remedy the mischief.

Do It Better.

Enterprising business men who do 'things' better than their competitors succeed in business. This is the secret of the success of The Greening Nursery Co., Monroe, Mich. This firm began doing business in a small way in 1883 and by their push and business ability have built up a business that covers the entire country. They write that the reports published in the daily papers to the effect that the trosts of last fall and this spring had injured nursery stock in the southern part of the state were fictitious and that they will have a complete line of trees, shrubs, plants, roses, etc., for delivery this fall and next spring. They sell thousands of trees in this vicinity.

Working the Wage Workers

People Should Be Careful of References, for Big Men's Names Are Often Obtained by Fraudulent Means and Unauthorized—References Should Never Be Taken for Granted.

By JOHN MITCHELL, President United Mine Workers of America.

Conspicuous among the enemies constantly preying upon the wage earner while he is fighting the battle of organized labor, is the investment swindler. He has all the craft of a wolf, his purpose seeming to be to attack the workingman from the rear while his attention is absorbed by the forces facing him. And these promoters of the small investment | to a hard and cold business basis, be swindling game have grown so in numbers, in boldness and in cunning that their attacks must receive attention before their depredations amount to quite as much as the losses which might come from unfair wage scales or unjust restrictions upon labor.

When a workingman engages in a struggle to advance the cause of organized labor, he feels that he is doing something substantial for himself, for his family, and for his fellows. And so he is; but if he turns over to the fake investment sharpers all the concrete results of the advantage thus gained, how far ahead is he? How much more of comfort can he give himself or his family as a net result of the transaction?

It is time for the wage earners of America to awaken to the fact that they are being systematically swindled by the small investment brokers, and swindled out of millions of hardearned dollars every year. Unless they arouse themselves and protect their savings they might about as well go back to the old labor conditions, since there is not much practical choice between giving the fruits of honest toil to an over-reaching and unjust employer and handing them over gratis to a systematized project for swindling.

In my opinion there is no class of people so fit to drink the dregs of human contempt as are those who glut themselves upon the small savings which the wage workers have slowly and patiently put away in the family stocking. And if I could know that this word of warning would be the means of deterring workingmen who read it from investing their savings without first making a thorough investigation of the proposition offered, I should feel that I had rendered a service to the wage earners that I could look back upon always with satisfaction. If there is one sacred duty resting more heavily than another upon the shoulders of the workingman, it is that of conserving instead of scattering the small surplus which belongs to his family. It is a most serious responsibility and any man who is sensible of its weight will proceed cautiously, will sift the situation down fore he surrenders those savings to anyone, particularly to an unknown promoter of an investment "sure to bring large returns within a brief pe-There are several ways by which one can tell whether or not an investment offered him is sufficiently solid to warrant his putting his savings into it. In the first place, use all the sober common sense you have, and this with a realization of the fact that thing of the cost of selling stocks by as you cannot bargain advantageously as an individual with the employer who hires hundreds of men and is experienced in the art of getting the most for his money, neither can your untrained common sense be a safe guide when it comes to dealing with men whose business is to dissemble. Go to a man whom you know to be an honest man conversant with money and corporation matters and who can detect an investment fraud at a glance. Common sense—the shrewd, natural ability to form accurate judgments-is always at a disadvantage unless one has the best information upon which to act, and about the most it can do for a man under such circumstances is to cause him to get the real facts before forming a judgment and a decision. You would not think of trying your own case in court if you found yourself involved in litigation. Yet the majority of small law suits are simple in comparison with the devices which the investment sharpers have evolved. They know that they can reap a golden harvest if their scheme is only presented properly and that they can afford to employ the most expensive aids in the way of crooked lawyers to defend them and to advise investors, and unscrupulous advertising agents to prepare booklets, prospectuses, and "confidential" letters.

When these baits are so skilfully set that hard-headed and experienced business men (who themselves know some of the tricks of the trade), are deceived by them, what chance do you think a workingman-whose financial experience is confined, usually, to making the contents of his pay envelope cover the household bills-has to see through the mysteries of the proposition?

There are a few of these financial semaphores, however, which every wage worker should know how to read, and can know. At first glance they seem to show a clear right-ofway, to give the signal to "come on" at full speed, with your savings account in your hand; but when you know the rules of the road, you can see a red light—a danger signal swinging from every one of these semaphore arms.

Here are some of the danger signals of this sort which are very deceptive at first glance:

"This company is going to be kept in the hands of the common people and out of the hands of the capitalists."

"The shares of this company have increased 50 per cent. since our fiscal agents put the first block of development stocks on the market, 60 days ago; they will be advanced 20 points on the first day of next month and you must act promptly and remit at once if you wish to take advantage of this handsome advance."

"We need only a limited amount for immediate development work and in order to secure the requisite sum without delay, we are making the confidential offer of a bonus of one share of preferred stock for every ten shares of the common, which you can secure at 30 cents on the par value if you respond at once. Just as soon as our needs for development . expenditures are met by subscriptions on this liberal basis, it will be impossible for you to secure the common, as it will be withheld from the market except on offerings of 60 cents or

"You are taking no risk, for our guarantee is behind every share of our stock. The Silver and Gold Investment and Surety company is back of our securities and the Searchlight Investigation and Expert Engineering Association has made a detailed examination and analysis of our properties and stands sponsor to the world for them. In the first three months of operation of our properties, we have been able to pay our stockholders a dividend of 12 per cent., and the splendid ore bodies now in sight warrant us in assuring our stockholders that this dividend will be substantially increased in the next three months, owing to the increased facilities of production made possible by great additions to our working equipment."

These are only a few of the most glaring statements contained in the "confidential" circulars and letters, displayed in advertisements, and made by solicitors, to draw money from the pockets of the wage earners. There are scores of other and more subtle and clever baits in every mode of expression, but they all spell one word, and that is B-U-N-C-O.

How do I know it? How do I dare make so broad a statement? Because we have had times of unprecedented prosperity for so long that millions of dollars belonging to capitalists are lying idle or drawing only small interest. As a result, the sound securities and the solid investments are snapped up by men who understand values. These men command large sums, and in order to secure all the money required for a solid and honest enterprise, it is only necessary for men having real investment "opportunities" to go to them and convince them of the merit of their propositions. They will not permit to slip past them any chance to make 33 1-3 per cent., or even 10 per cent., provided the risk involved is not too great. Which is only another way of saying that when a concern must go forth with blare of trumpets to secure money from the wage workers, the proposition it has to offer is not only not worth consideration, but it should be left severely alone. If it were sound to the core, idle capital would be put into it before the "confidential" letters to prospective wage earner investors could be printed.

And this feature of the matter stands out in its true light when somean "appeal to the common people" is understood. Not long ago a Chicago concern which had gone to the "people" for its support went into the hands of a receiver. Wage earners and people working for small salaries had put $100,000 into the enterprise. When the receiver began his examination of the affairs of the company in order to determine how much those at the head of it had diverted into their say aught about your looks again." own pockets, he was amazed to discover that the entire $100,000 had been spent in "getting the great publicity campaign started!" They had committed the error of making some particularly flagrant misrepresentations and this put a period to their plans by sending them to the penitentiary before they were quite ready to do the actual looting.

There is just one thing for the sensible workman suffering from an attack of the investment fever to do. and that is to go to a solid man of financial experience, a trustworthy Lippincott's. man, and ask him to ascertain for him who are the men behind this wonderful "opportunity" offered to him find out what their records have been in the past, and what they are putting his money into, as well as what there is and who there is behind their "guarantees" and "guarantors." When you have done this you will find, in all probability, that your fever to get rich quick has cooled to the freezing point.

Vanquishing a Mob.

During a railroad strike a mob, led by two excited young fellows, raged unhindered for two hours, and much damage was done. Suddenly there ap peared an angry and muscular woman with a club.

They hesitated, but went, their moth er after them with a club. The mob hooted, threw a few stones and broke up. A woman had vanquished it.

A southern lady left the cook ar ranging the dinner table and went to the kitchen for something. A great, hulking darky was sitting in the kitchen rocker. Indignant, the lady hurried back to the dining room.

Mark Twain once received a letter from his brother, who complained that he was afflicted with a boil and the jumping toothache at the same time and inquired if he had ever heard of a worse combination.

"Mr. Norman," he said, "I have been delegated by my fellow club members to say to you that we have thoroughly enjoyed your visit. We consider you a fine type of the English newspaper man. Before you go and as a testimonial of our friendship and esteem we have decided to present you a slight remembrance, and on behalf of the club I am instructed to give you this ring.'

As Decker said "ring" he tapped the bell smartly and placed it on the table. Norman was surprised. He hemmed and hawed a bit, but then pulled himrelf together and said: "Mr. Decker and the members of the National Press club, I can hardly find words to thank you. I have enjoyed my visit here greatly. I shall always cherish pleasant memories of Washington. I am overwhelmed at this evidence of your comradeship.

Norman went on like that for five minutes. He made a very clever little speech. Then he said: "I am pleased to receive your gift; but, as is only natural, I suppose, Mr. Decker, in the embarrassment of the moment, for we newspaper men are notoriously poor speakers, has given me a bell instead of a ring.'

The last he saw of his wife she was craning out of the car window, shouting something reproachful at him which he couldn't hear. An express came along a few minutes later. The old farmer boarded the express and beat his wife to St. Paul by nearly an hour. He was waiting for her at the station when she arrived. He ran up to her and seized her valise.

"'Well, Jane,' he said, 'I'm glad to ee ye again. I thought we was separated for good.'

Gentlemen:

If anyone should desire to know of you the healing power of Wonderful Dream Salve for the cure of eezema just refer them to me. I have been troubled with eczema for fourteen years. Have had a spot on my leg between the knee and instep. All that time, during those fourteen years, I have tried hundreds of salves, lotions, washes, mineral baths, X-ray treatments, everything in fact, except the faith cure. It remained for your Wonderful Dream Salve to accomplish the only permanent cure. I had just expended $30.00 with a skin specialist in trying to effect a cure, without success, when I was told to try your ointment. I laughed at the idea, because every other ointment had failed. A little persuasion from my friend, however, succeeded in my giving it a trial. I have followed directions faithfully, and in less than four weeks the spot had entirely disappeared, using as I did less than one half of the 25c box. I certainly consider this a remarkable cure, inasmuch as I have spent hundreds of dollars in the fourteen years of annoyance with this troublesome itching, skin ailment. I have since the cure of my case, heard of other cures, some of them even more remarkable than mine, which go toward demonstrating the value of Wonderful Dream Salve as a great skin healer.

Yours truly,

Forty per cent of the coal burned in an ordinary stove is wasted. As soon as it gets hot, coal gives out gas. - If this gas is mixed with fresh air, it bursts into flame Athe same hot, beautiful flame you see in the middle of any stove fire. But if it is not mixed with fresh air, it goes up the chimney and is lost.

The Air-Tight Hot Blast Burns this Gas.

The ordinary stove takes in fresh air only at the bottom. This air rushes up through the center of the fire pot, but it never reaches the coal at the sides of the stove at all. Or, if it does, there is too little of it, or it is too used up, to turn the escaping gas into flame.

MERE MENTION.

We like to work and we like to see others work, but we just arise to remark that when we get to be worth as much money as some we know, work with us will cease. We could never discover why men sixty or seventy years of age and worth from forty to one hundred thousand dollars should continue to toil from early until late and in all kinds of weather. We like to see a man provide something for his family after he is gone, but the average boy is better off if not left too much property. You who have labored your three score years should stop and enjoy life the few short years you have left to remain with us .-

The purpose of store advertising is not merely to sell goods, but to sell more goods-to make friends, build up a patronage that will not only stick but grow. Newspapers reach the greatest number of people in the immediate vicinity in the most natural way, at the least expense, and they are therefore the best of all mediums for stores. In a newspaper you follow the lines of least resistance-you follow with the stream-you talk to an audience already assembled, to the people who want to read-their mental cosmos is right-they are on your wire and they won't ring off if you hold their interest. Attraction is the basis of all advertising-the store is the sun, the customers the planets that revolve around it.

Meetings of Union on third Friday of every month at residences of members.

They say saloons help a town. Did you ever see a real estate man put in his circular something like this: "This town has two smelters, two brick factories, gas and electric plants, a Carnegie library, Y. M. C. A., fourteen churches and ten saloons?" If saloons help draw people to a town, why do not towns advertise the saloons more? -Canon City (Colorado) Record.

Wise Sweden! It closes saloons on Saturday-pay day-and keeps the savings banks open till midnight.

In a recent temperance election in an Ohio town, eighty-nine voted dry, while only seven cast ballots for the saloon. Do you catch the drift? No such vote was possible ten or fifteen years ago. Twelvefold and more is a very comfortable majority.

It is interesting and instructive, as well as amusing, to note that while one page of a liquor paper is devoted to proving that "more liquor is sold in prohibition territory," etc., the next page is pretty sure to exhort all liquor men to get together for the fight against prohibition. "It is good for his kidneys," the old nurse said of the gin. Then she said that it was the custom to give a "soothing syrup," to all babies; "it helps to soften up the gums." It did. And it also helped to soften up the delicate tissues of the brain," says the doctor.

Nine counties and one city have gone dry in Missouri within a month. Ashville, N. C., a city of 20,000, recently voted dry, lacking only two votes of a three to one majority. It is expected the next legislature will pass a prohibition law for the whole state.

Over a thousand men of Atlanta, Ga., have banded themselves together and publicly announced their determination to secure the enforcement of prohibition in that city if the legislature passes the bill now before them or to secure a local prohibition election and drive the traffic from Fulton county if the state measure fails to "Prohibition in Kansas has put the liquor business into the catalogue of crimes, where it belongs. It has put the people into a position of positive antagonism to the saloon." Gover-Hoch says, "A quarter of a million people have been born in the state who have never seen a saloon or a joint and have grown up to believe as a part of their creed that it is an unmixed evil." Of the 105 counties in the state only 21 have any paupers. Only 25 have poor houses. Thirty-five have their jails absolutely empty. Thirty-seven have no criminal cases on their dockets. Kansas has the smallest number of paupers of any state in proportion to its population. It spends more money for education in proportion to its population than iny other state. "The first and most seductive danger and the destroyer of most young men is the drinking of liquor. I am no temperance lecturer in disguise, but a man who knows and tells you what observation has proved to him; and I say to you that you are more likely to fail in your career from acquiring the habit of drinking liquor than from any or all the other temptations likely to assail you. You may yield to almost any other temptation and reform-may brace up, and-if not recover lost ground-at least remain in the race, and secure and maintain a respectable position. But from the insane thirst for liquor es-1 40 cape is calmost impossible. I have 1 50 known but few exceptions to the 190 rule."—Mr. Carnegie, in the Empire

Watch Your Watch

Look inside your watch a moment. The balance wheel is making 18,000 vibrations an hour if its in good condition. If the movement is sluggish, there is something wrong. It will move 3,558 miles in a year and it requires less than one-tenth of a drop of oil to make it run. But it needs that little badly. The least increase of friction on the bearings alters the motion. Don't take chances. Let me clean and oil and put your watch in order for a year. It will pay you and make you like your watch better.
