Wm. McKenzie was born in Canada on Sept. 22, 1848. In his early manhood, he spent several seasons in sailing. Later he engaged in carpenter work and contracting and during his residence in Cass City has been engaged in that accupation. He was married in St. Thomas in 1875 to Miss Eliza Jennings and for a few years they made their home in West Lorne, Ont. Later they moved to Detroit where they resided one year and came to Cass City in 1880 where they have

Mr. McKenzie was a member of the Baptist church at Cass City for several years. He was also a member of the Maccabee Lodge and for several years an Odd Fellow. Besides his wife, three children, Miss Bertha, of Cass City, Stanley, of Detroit, and Roy, of Buffalo, survive. Two children preceded the father to the "better land." Mr. McKenzie also has two brothers and one sister living, Kenneth and Hugh McKenzie, of Detroit, and Mrs. Crawford, of Park City, Utah. Up to the time the Chronicle went to press on Thursday afternoon, the funeral arrangements had not been completed.

The Need of Farm Education.

While passing through one of the best counties in the state recently, the riter could not help but notice a general neglect of farm management.

A lack of cultivation, of drainage, proper arranged fields, and of keeping up fences and buildings was apparent on either side of a poorly kept highway on which we had to travel:

These same conditions exist in many parts of our country.

In spite of the apparently prosperous condition of the American farmer, it must be admitted by anyone who is a close observer of agriculture that business system and method have not progressed as rapidly as one might ex-

There is a lack of study and system on the average farm.

Drainage is little thought of or the low lands, crops are rotated only as chance determines, and probably not one farmer in a hundred can tell what enterprise on his farm and under his conditions is the most profitable.

We have too many shiftless farmers; men who have no pride in their work, whose only aim is to keep soul and body together from one year to another.

This statement is frank rather than cordial, and a realization of the same must be had as a working basis if conditions are to be remedied.

In many communities there is a need of special education. The study of farm management,-i. e., the study of nature's laws in their relation to farm life are sadly neglected, mainly because the study of such a problem is so complicated as to offer nothing of value except to the man who has caught the greater vision of nobility which our creator has placed within the reach of the tiller of soil. Surely, it is a worthy problem. It leads to usefulness and happiness. It brings man in touch with Him of Whom it is

"He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of men, that he may bring forth food out of the earth."

Physician and Surgeon. Office Days: Wed- The Need of a Higher Standard in Athletics.

During the past week or two all eyes in the athletic world were fixed on the Olympic games which took place near London, England. Again it is demonstrated that athletics are only wholesome when the standard of manhood is raised, so as to bring benefit to the nation, rather than develop a selected few who use their strength and skill chiefly as a means of earning

In America, we love our players rather than our games. The result is that only one man in a thousand acquires the strength and proficiency which make him an acceptable player. Our athletics develop the few, and benefit us but little, as a people. Of course, we turn ont athletes unequaled anywhere else in the world. But what good does that do the average citizen who is shut out from participations in the games because he has not the strength or skill? We watch the present day base ball or foot ball or track meet with mingled feelings of awe and admiration, much as the Romans of old who sat about the amphitheater and marveled at the exploits of the gladiators.

The Roman sports, undoubtedly developed men of unsurpassed courage, skill and strength; but did they benefit Rome? We are proud to say, that our athletes lead the world. But how has this superiority been achieved? By making athletics a business or a profession for a few husky young men instead of a sport, a pastime, and a recreation for all. Athletics as we know them may be sport for us as spectators, but our games are no recreation for those who participate in them. The desire to excel, to win at any cost, is the root of the evil.

We do not play for the sake of playing, or for the betterment of our physical condition—we play to win, to come out first, to lead the fellows from the other town.

What we need to learn is to be cheerful losers. That athletics should make stronger and better men. Until we do learn that there is something in the game besides the winning of it, we cannot hope that our sports will be of general benefit to the nation.

The Cement Industry.

In a recent address, Walter C. Boynton, editor of "Concrete," an acknowledged authority on the new structural material said: "There is no question that the field for Portland cement is as yet scarcely opened." Most people are beginning to understand that cement may be put to many uses in present day construction. Formerly it was considered to be "pretty fair stuff" out of which to make sidewalks, basement floors, cisterns and nothing more.

But conditions have changed in the building line. As lumber is becoming scarce, cement is taking its place, and as the demand increases new mills must be ereeted to keep up the supply.

The annual output of Portland cement from American plants alone is close to 50,000,000 barrels, representing a value of $100,000,000. These figures give an idea of what the cement industry will be in ten years from now. Michigan is particularly rich in material from which cement is manufactured. According to the last reports of the Unired States Geological Survey, practically every county in the state is underlaid with the raw material required in the manufacture of Portland cement of the highest quality. This reminds us that many marl beds and shale clay in abundance, are known to exist within a radius of a few miles from Cass City. Several years ago the Chronicle made a thorough investigation as to the quality of these deposits and submitted samples of the material to the state chemist who reported same to be of the very best quality. It might be to the advantage of our citizens to take up this matter anew and push it to a successful issue.

Frogging.

Some men who go fishing miss half the fun-they don't catch their own frogs. Fishing frogs pur-more sport there is in it. Add to your luggage one landing-net, and when you arrive at the summer resort, secure the services of a cross-eyed, left-handed neighbor's boy to go "frogging" with

Into the dark grass you go, whacking the tufts with your landing-net. Suddenly, with a bark like a bull pup tugging at a root, a big, mottled skalawag of a frog leaps from beneath your feet and startles your equilibrium.

Before you have recovered he is seven leaps to the good in a crotchety line that suggests too much dew-drops with a stick in them.

"Lookee! Lookee!" screams the boy; "there he goes! there he goes!" and you go, too, like a black-bass snapping at a fly, but you merely succeed in stepping on the tail of a grass snake and getting another nerve

Bye and bye you startle a second dappled frog from the succulent grassheaps and fall all over yourself trying to grab the batrachian's hind leg as he flies like a tangent through the ozone.

When you come to, you recall the landing-net! To be sure, that net was brought onto the field of battle for a purpose. You proceed to utilize the frog-catcher by stalking. Glory! You have Mr. Frog right under that net. In his excitement the boy trips on the pail he is carrying and almost kills the frog by a too fervent pressure of the pantaloon-seat, accidentally ad-

Instead, you get carefully and tenderly down on your knees and peep under the edge of the net just in time to catch that composite colored jumper in your eye as he leaps for liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Then you fall into a bog and while the boy is rescuing you, the lid of the pail comes loose and the pressed frog springs to life and takes to the tall

Ever try to sleep while a pailful of frogs are playing the "Irish Washerwoman" on the top of a bait can lid? Great! Only that doesn't express it!

But, strange to say, your wife does not appreciate it and just as you are dreaming of a big strike and have out about 300 feet of line on a "whale." she puts her cold feet in your back and makes you get up and take those frogs from under the bed.

"Thump!" "Rub-a-dub!" "Crack!" "Bang!" go the speckled beauties against the pail-top.

SPELLMAN'S PERFORMING BEARS.

One of the greatest attractions for the coming state fair, which will command no little attention, is the Spellman bears, numbering seven, all trained and in charge of Mrs. Frank P. Spellman. It is the most talked of and interesting animal act in the world. Mrs. Spellman thoroughly understands her bevy of bears and has them under perfect control at all times. They do all kinds of tricks and stunts willingly. The New York Hippedrome is the biggest theater in the world. Mrs. Spellman's bears were on the program in this great Hippedrome several months. This act is absolute ly free and will take place in front of the grand stand every afternoon and evening. They have been taught to ride in an automobile, and every morning they will be taken down town from the state fair grounds in a big machine and will ride about the streets of Detroit. They seem to enjoy auto riding, as they lean back in the car, paying little or no attention to anyone they pass, unless some mischlevous boy attempts to bother them, when they will reach out their paws to protect themselves. This is a wonderful act, free to everybody, and should be seen to be appreciated.

THIS YEAR IT WILL BE THE MIDWAY.

The world's fair at Chicago in 1893 named the amusement feature of the big show the Midway. Since that time new names have been coined. The Glade, the Pike, the Wanderlust etc. have gone their way. Each year when the new name has been coined it has been necessary to educate the people as to its meaning. The word Midway is known to everyone as the amusement row-the place to go for a good time, where something is constantly doing-and that is the name which will be used this year at the state fair.

The location of the Midway this year will be one street south of that of a year ago, being in direct line with the street railway depot, commencing just east of the Administration building. This space was originally intended for the Midway, but, not being easy accessible to the center of the electrical equipment, the shows were located further north.

It should be of interest and satisfaction to the exhibitors of livestock, and to the public as well, to know that during the state fair of 1908 most careful attention will be given to sanitary conditions. Every precaution will be used to see that the grounds are kept in the best of condition, and all places will be most thoroughly disinfected. It has been decided to use the celebrated disinfectant "Kreso" for this purpose. In th livestock department all stables, pens, barns, ect., for the exhibition of animals will be thoroughly disinfected before they are occupied, and a constant supervision in this respect will be carefully given throughout the entire meeting. This will prevent any contagious disease among the stock. It will also destroy all foul odors. making it both healthful and pleasant for the visitors in every respect. This forms a safeguard to the visiting public and to the exhibitors of livestock as well.

STATE BANDS AT THE FAIR.

Arrangements are being made for the engaging of bands to furnish the music at the coming state fair. For some time past the bands from large cities have been engaged, and this year it is very apparent that the money spent for music will go to the bands located in the smaller cities out in the state.

An effort will be made to eliminate everything of a gambling nature from the state fair grounds this year, and if any gambling devices are found operating on the grounds they will be very promptly removed. It is the intention of the management to have the coming state fair free from fakes, gambling and all impositions of every description and nature.

A great effort is being made this year to cut down one-half the number of the passes which have been issued on previous years. The pass list last year ran very high and naturally robbed the society of many doilars to which they are entitled. This year only those who are absolutely entitled to the same will be taken care

EDITORS' DAY IN SEPTEMBER.

Tuesday, Sept. 8, is to be Editors' day at the Michigan State Fair. That was agreed upon at a conference between George T. Campbell of the Owosso Argus; G. H. Mitchell of the Birmingham Eccentric and President Fred Postal and Business Manager James Slocum of the Agricultural society. The committee in charge on the part of the editors consists of Mr. Campbell, Mr. Mitchell, Daniel Dyer able to be present.

President Postal and Mr. Slocum will do their part of the entertaining, be shown everything there is in the big fair grounds, from the prize stock to the Midway, from the big cheese to the airship.

In the afternoon a section of the grand stand will be reserved for them, and they will be witnesses of what promises, with the new stake events, to be splendid racing. The society will be hosts at dinner after the races, then in the evening the guests will have seats at the big fireworks spectacle, "Sheridan's Ride."

Fruit Frappes.

A nice dish for dessert (if unexpect ed company comes in), is a frappe of some sort of fruit. Of course, this presupposes that one is near an ice cream stand. In small frappe cups place some fruit-fresh or canned-add the ice cream, and on top put another light layer of the fruit. Sprinkle sugar over all. This is nice for an emergency, and if one cannot get the ice cream, make a souffle by mashing the fruit berries, bananas or chopped pineapple, very fine. To the well-beaten whites of two eggs, add sugar, and lastly the crushed fruit. Potato Flour.

This is something our grandmoth ers thought essential to good house keeping. It makes breads, cakes and puddings more light and tender. It is prepared by allowing grated potatoes to settle and soak in waterchanging the water often, and rubbing through a sieve. The farina must be then pulverized, bottled and tightly corked. A little of this is a wonderful addition to ordinary flour. Simple Fried Cakes.

One quart unsifted flour, one tea spoon soda, two of cream of tartar, one of salt, one egg, and a little "shortening." Last, put in a cup of sugar and milk to make a soft batter. Fry in hot lard.

Ted's Favorite. This is a pleasant change in the manner of serving the ever popular strawberry: Place alternate layers of strawberries and pulverized sugar in a glass bowl. Pour over them orange juice in the proportion of three oranges to a quart of berries. Let stand for an hour, and serve well sprinkled with pounded ice. Some use claret instead of the orange juice.

Mind the labor. HOMELY GOSSIP.

To the woman who gets discouraged because she is "only a housekeeper," and spends her time in the despised "domestic ways," these words of John Ruskin will prove a comfort:

"What does cookery mean? It means the knowledge of all fruits and spices, of all that is healing and sweet in fields and groves, and savory in meats. It means carefulness and inventiveness and watchfulness and willingness. It means the economy of your great-grandmother and the science of modern chemists. It means much tasting and no wasting; it means English thoroughness, and French art, and Arabian hospitality; and it means, in fine, that you are to be perfectly and always-ladies."

When bread is like a honey-comb all through is the time to make it up into loaves. When the loaves do not retain the dent of the finger, they are ready for the oven.

In preserving pineapples, take care to boil them gently, not more than 15 minutes. They require only four ounces of sugar to the pound of fruit.

NCE in September I was camped on the shores of Kootenai Lake, having with me as companions. John Willis and an impassive - looking Indian named Ammal. Coming across through the dense coniferous forests of northern Idaho we had struck the Kootenai River. Then we went down with the current as it wound in half circles through a long alluvial valley of mixed marsh and woodland, hemmed in by lofty mountains. The lake itself, when we reached it, stretched straight away like a great flord, a hundred miles long and about three in breadth. The frowning and rugged Selkirks came down sheer to the water's edge. So straight were the rock walls that it was difficult for us to land with our batteau, save at the places where the rapid mountain torrents entered the lake. We had come down from a week's fruitless hunting in the mountains; a week of excessive toil, in a country where we saw no game-for in our ignorance we had wasted time, not going straight back to the high ranges, from which the game had not yet descended. After three or four days of rest, and of feasting on trout-a welcome relief to the monotony of frying pan bread and coarsey salt pork-we were ready for another trial; and early one morning we made the start. Having to pack everything for a fortnight's use on our backs, through an excessively rough country we of course traveled as light as possible, leaving almost all we had with the tent and

We walked in single file, as is necessary in thick woods. The white hunter led, and I followed, each with rifle on shoulder and pack on back. Ammal, the Indian, pigeon toed along behind, carrying his pack, not as we did ours, but by help of a forehead growth. band, which he sometimes shifted his breast. The traveling through the tangled, brush choked forest, and along the bowlder strewn and precipitous mountain sides, was inconceivably rough and difficult.

An hour or two before sunset we were traveling, as usual, in Indian file, beside the stream, through an open wood of great hemlock trees. There was no breeze, and we made no sound as we marched, for our feet sunk noiselessly into the deep moss.

Suddenly the hunter, who was leading, dropped down in his tracks, pointing upward; and some fifty feet beyond I saw the head and shoulders of a bear as he rose to make a sweep at some berries. He was in a hollow where a tall, rank, prickly plant, with broad leaves, grew luxuriantly; and he was gathering its red berries, rising on his hind legs and sweeping them down into his mouth with his paw, and was much too intent on his work to notice us, for his head was pointed the other way. The moment he rose again I fired, meaning to shoot through the shoulders, but instead, in the hurry, taking him in the neck. Down he went, but whether hurt or not we could not see, for the second he was on all fours he was no longer visible. Rather to my surprise he uttered no sound-for bear when hit or when charging often make a great noise-so I raced toward the edge of the hollow, the hunter close behind me, while Ammal danced about in the rear, very much excited, as Indians always are in the presence of big game. The instant we reached the hollow and looked down into it from the low bank on which we stood we saw by the swaying of the tall plants that the bear was coming our way. The hunter was standing some ten feet distant, a hemlock trunk being between us; and the next moment the bear sprang clean up the bank the other side of the hemlock, and almost within arm's length of my companion. I do not think he had intended to charge; he was probably confused by the bullet through his neck, and had by chance blundered out of the hollow in our direction; but when he saw the hunter so close he turned for him, his hair bristling and his teeth showing. The man had no cartridge in his weapon, and with his pack on could not have used it anyhow; and for a moment it looked as if he stood a fair chance of being hurt. As the beast sprang out of the hollow he poised for a second on the edge of the bank to recover his balance, giving me a beautiful shot, as he stood sideways to me; the bullet struck between the eye and ear, and he fell as if hit with a pole axe.

Our prize was a large black bear with two curious brown streaks down his back, one on each side the spine. We skinned him and camped by the carcass, as it was growing late. To take the chill off the evening air we built a huge fire, the logs roaring and crackling. To one side of it we made our beds - of balsam and hemlock boughs; we did not build a brush leanto, because the night seemed likely to be clear. Then we supped on sugarless tea, frying-pan bread, and quantities of bear meat, fried or roastedand how very good it tasted only those know who have gone through much hardship and some little hunger, and have worked violently for several days without flesh food.

The morning after killing Bruin, we again took up our march, heading up stream, that we might go to its sources amidst the mountains, where the snow delds fed its springs. It was two full days' journey thither, but we took much longer to make it, as we kept halting to hunt the adjoining mountains. On such occasions Ammal was left as camp guard, while the white hunter and I would start by daybreak and return at dark utterly worn out by the excessive fatigue. We knew nothing of caribou, nor where to hunt for them; and we had been told that thus early in the season they were above tree limit on the mountain sides.

Until within a couple of days of turning our faces back towards the lake we did not come across any caribou, and saw but a few old signs; and we began to be fearful lest we should have to return without getting any, for our shoes had been cut to ribbons by the sharp rocks, we were almost out of flour, and therefore had but little to eat. However, our perseverance was destined to be rewarded.

The first day after reaching our final camp, we hunted across a set of spurs and hollows, but saw nothing living. The next day we started early, determined to take a long walk and follow the main stream up to its head, or at least above timber line. The hunter struck so brisk a pace, plunging through thickets and leaping from log to log in the slashes of fallen timber, and from boulder to boulder in crossing the rock-slides, that I could hardly keep up to him, struggle as I would, and we each of us got several ugly tumbles, saving our rifles at the expense of scraped hands and bruised bodies. We went up one side of the stream, intending to come down the other; for the forest belt was narrow enough to hunt thoroughly. For two or three hours we toiled through dense

Then we came to a spur of open hemlock forest; and no sooner had we entered it than the hunter stopped and pointed exultingly to a well-marked game trail, in which it was easy at a glance to discern the great round footprints of our quarry. We hunted carefully over the spur and found several trails, generally leading down along the ridge; we also found a number of beds, some old and some recent, usually placed where the animal could keep a lookout for any foe coming up from the valley. They were merely slight hollows or identations in the pineneedles; and, like the game trails, were placed in localities similar to those that would be chosen by blacktail deer. The caribou droppings were also very plentiful; and there were signs of where they had browsed on the blueberry bushes, cropping off the berries, and also apparently of where they had here and there plucked a mouthful of a peculiar kind of moss, or cropped off some little mushrooms. But the beasts themselves had evidently left the ridge, and we went on.

After a little while the valley became so high that the large timber ceased, and there were only occasional groves of spindling evergreens. Beyond the edge of the big timber was a large boggy tract, studded with little pools; and here again we found plenty of caribou tracks. A caribou has an enormous foot, bigger than a cow's, and admirably adapted for traveling over snow or bogs; hence they can pass through places where the long slender hoofs of moose or deer, or the round hoofs of elk, would let their owners sink at once; and they are very difficult to kill by following on snow shoes—a method much in vogue among the brutal game butchers for slaughtering the more helpless animals. Spreading out his great hoofs, and bending his legs till he walks almost on the joints, a caribon will travel swiftly over a crust through which a moose breaks at every stride, or through deep snow in which a deer cannot flounder fifty yards. Usually he trots; but when pressed he will spring awkwardly along, leaving tracks in the snow almost exactly like magnified imprints of those of a great rabbit, the long marks of the two hind legs forming an angle with each other, while the forefeet make a large point almost beween.

The caribou had wandered all over the bogs and through the shallow pools, but evidently only at night or in the dusk, when feeding or in coming to drink; and we again went on. Soon the timber disappeared almost entirely, and thick brushwood took its place; we were in a high, bare alpine valley, the snow lying in drifts along the sides. In places there had been enormous rock-slides, entirely filling up the bottom, so that for a quarter of mile at a stretch the stream ran unlerground. In the rock masses of this alpine valley we, as usual, saw many conies and hoary woodchucks.

The caribou trails had ceased, and t was evident that the beasts were not ahead of us in the barren, treeless recesses between the mountains of rock and snow; and we turned back down the valley, crossing over to the opposite or south side of the stream. We had already eaten our scanty lunch, for it was afternoon. For several miles of hard walking, through thicket, marsh, and rock-slide, we saw no traces of the game. Then we reached the forest, which soon widened out, and crept up the mountain sides; and we came to where another stream entered the one we were following. A high, steep shoulder between the two vallyes was covered with an open growth of great hemlock timber. and in this we again found the trails and beds plentiful. There was no breeze, and after beating through the forest nearly to its upper edge, we began to go down the ridge, or point of the shoulder. The comparative freedom from brushwood made it easy to walk without noise, and we descended the steep incline with the utmost care. scanning every object, and using every caution not to slip on the hemlock needles, nor to strike a stone or break a stick with our feet. The sign was very fresh, and when still half a mile or so from the bottom we at last came on three bull caribou.

Instantly the hunter crouched down, while I ran noiselessly forward behind the shelter of a big hemlock trunk until within fifty yards of the grazing and unconscious quarry. They were feeding with their heads up-hill, but so greedily that they had not seen us; and they were rather difficult to see themselves, for their bodies harmonized well in color with the brown tree-trunks and lichen-covered boul-

The largest, a big bull with a good but by no means extraordinary head, was nearest. As he stood fronting me with his head down I fired into his neck, breaking the bone, and he turned a tremendous back somersault. The other two halted a second in stunned terror; then one, a yearling, rushed past us up the valley down which we had come, while the other, a large bull with small antlers, crossed right in front of me, at a canter, his neck thrust out, and his head-so coarselooking compared to the delicate outlines of an elk's-turned towards me. His movements seemed clumsy and awkward, utterly unlike those of a deer; but he handled his great hoofs cleverly enough, and broke into a headlong, rattling gallop as he went down the hillside, crashing through the saplings and leaping over the fallen logs. There was a spur a little beyond, and up this he went at a swinging trot, halting when he reached the top, and turning to look at me once more. He was only a hundred yards away; and though I had not intended to shoot him (for his head was not good), the temptation was sore; and I was glad when, in another second, the stupid beast turned again and went off up the valley at a slashing by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. HE thrashers were singing to the moon. Out of the gaping coulee came their chorus, loud, rich and artfully melodized. It mingled, as it were, with the scent that the wind fanned from the sumac blossoms, yellowish green. Moon, music, perfume-and lovers were to meet.

The trysting place lay in billows of frosty white, like the satin dress of a bride. Lounsbury measured it impatiently, with anxious eyes turned to the shack. At the last trumpet strain from the fort Dallas approached it on swift foot, her shadow flitting before. When he saw her-a slender figurehe leaped forward, éager, grateful. She saw him and halted, raising defensive hands. "Dallas, Dallas!" He stretched out his arms to her.

"No, no-no, no." As well try to stem the Missouri. He caught her close and held her. He pressed his cheek tenderly to hers. She yielded, murmuring to him. Thus for a space that was matchlessly sweet. Then, without releasing her, he lifted his head and lifted hers by a smoothing caress of her hair. Then he searched her face long and hungrily.

"Oh, Dallas, you do care!" he said finally, and his voice was deep with She did not deny-only, "Just makes things worse," she whispered misera-Gently he let her go. "But I love you," he answered. Her eyes were grave. They seemed to blame him. "I love you," he repeated.

She was too just to forget her own lack of strength. Her eyes clouded with sadness and brimmed. "I hate myself for coming," she said fiercely. "We love each other. That isn't a crime," he declared.

"For you it isn't, but it is for me. because-it'll hurt Marylyn. Oh, you don't understand! I can't take her happiness! I can't! I can't!" "It's not your fault that I love you,

Dallas.' "What happens next is."

He shook his head, smiling, She raised her chin as if striving to

She stepped back determinedly. you tomorrow with the hay?" "Let me tell you," she begged. "Please. I knew I'd come, so I made up my mind I'd do what was white-ask you to visit Marylyn and talk to her. If you would, if you only would, why, at last, you couldn't help liking her!"

Again he smiled at her, shaking his head. "I love you, not Marylyn."

"You're a good man," she said. "You wouldn't like to see me do anything that wasn't right square. You wouldn't think much of me if I did. I'll do wrong if-if I take you from her." "I wouldn't have you do anything wrong," he declared stoutly. "You never could. But, dear, Marylyn is a child yet. She's too young to know her own mind, and we're taking her more seriously than she takes herself."

"You don't know how sick and down in the mouth she's been. Just before father-went she got a little better. After that for awhile she was bad again. But I could see it wasn't all about father. There's something else. She's changed so-never talks much; just sits and looks and looks"- She turned away.

"I'm-I'm all she's got," she went on. "All her life I've tended her just as if I was her mother. I fed her and dressed her. When she hurt herself ourselves that much? Why keep apart? I've lost the last dear one I had. You've lost your father. You're alone with your little sister. Come to me." "You'd take me away?" she asked. "You'd have me give up the claim, to forget what happened?' "God help me, no! I ask you to share your life with me, your work, your revenge, everything."

"Not yet"-"I can't bear to see you and Marylyn staying here alone. And I can't stay near enough to protect you as I ought. Matthews is sly. If I meet him I'll kill him as I would a wolf. Then he'll be out of the way. But-suppose he gets ahead of me-does you harm? Your staying here seems all the more terrible to me since I've been east. The idea of your having just Charley to guard, of your plowing and planting and cutting hay"-She laughed. "Outside work is fine," she said. "Better than cooking over a hot stove or breaking your back over a tub. Men have the best half of things-the air and the sky and the horses. I don't complain. I like my work. Let it make me like a man." "It couldn't. I don't mean that. You're the womanliest woman I've ever known."

"I don't want you to ever think different."

"Never will. And I don't ask you to chain yourself up in a house. There's a big future in the cow business. We'd take my share of the Clark herd—you'd ride with me-we'd be partners."

"Wait-wait." Temptation was dragging sorely at her heart. She glanced homeward. Behind her the tall grass was running with the wind. She longed to run with it. Yet-

"I'll wait and wait," he said, "long as you ask, if it's years."

She retreated a few steps. "I must go now. Don't think I don't know what you've done for us-the sutler and all that. I'll remember it, but I got to go. Goodby." "Good night, not goodby," he answer-

"No, no!" "Let me send a couple of men, then." "I'll do it alone. I'd rather. It's all

LITTLE CRIPPLE LOST IN WOODS.

Child of Parents Living In Forest Strangely Missing.

PARTIES SEARCH IN

Three Days Gone by Since He Disappeared-Parents Believe Wolves Have Either Devoured Him or He Has Been Kidnaped For Exhibition Purposes.

Au Gres, Mich., Aug. 11 .- Somewhere in the wilderness that borders the lake shore in Arenac county a little child is lost, a three-year-old boy, more helpless than even most children of his age, because an unkind fate brought him into the world a cripple.

Three days the little fellow has been missing now, and his well nigh grief distracted parents are sure that one of two fates have happened to him. Either he has been carried off and devoured by the wolves and bears which prowl about their forest home or he has been kidnaped by some persons who hope to make gain out of the child's misfortune by selling him to a circus.

James Oates, with his wife and three children, live in the midst of a dense forest, ten miles from here. The nearest neighbor of the Oates family ives a mile distant.

Saturday the three children were playing out doors, according to their usual custom. The little crippled three-year-old was left by himself for a short time. When the other children returned, he was nowhere in sight. Alarmed, they summoned their parents. They searched the woods all about their home, but no trace of the little cripple could be found. As night fell, the few scattered inhabitants in and, with flaming torches, they about. All day Sunday they searched, but their efforts were in vain. Sunday night they gave it up, and Sheriff Glasure, at Standish, was notified. He is making a thorough investigation. The mother is in a serious condition.

INTENDED KILLING SELF.

Police Believe Mabel Lennon Had Bottle of Poison In Stocking For That Purpose.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 11.-The finding of a two ounce bottle of carbolic acid secreted in the stocking of Miss Mabel Lennon, the young woman who has confessed that she is the mother of the babe found floating in the river, has led the police to believe that she intended killing herself should the case go against her. The poison was found by the matron with whom she was locked up in the jail here. Where she obtained the fluid is not known. No new developments have been brought to light. The father of the child is still unknown, and the young mother still stoutly refuses to disclose his identity. Public sentiment is with Miss Lennon in the affair, and it is freely talked about the city that if she clings to her story a jury will treat the case leniently.

The young woman is twenty-three years old and is a former telephone operator, and she has made her home with a widowed mother, at 873 North Fourth street. Joseph Duffy, the fireman also arrested in the case, is still in jail. He denies knowing the father of the babe and says he acted merely as a go-between in order to help the woman through her trouble.

Miss Lennon asserts that the drown ing was accidental. She declares that on the night she left the hospital she was crossing the bridge and, in order to rest her arm, laid the babe on the bridge rail, and it rolled off into the Conspire to Suppress Competition. The railroad commission of Texas las filed a formal complaint with the nterstate commerce commission, at Washington, alleging a conspiracy on the part of defendants, through the Southwestern Traffic association, for suppression of competition and restraint of trade in the recent action increasing freight rates to common points in Texas.

The commission will forward notice of this complaint to all the carriers involved and will give them fifteen days to reply, the usual period allowed for answering a complaint being twenty days. The commission will expedite this case as much as possible on account of its widespread importance.

The complaint is signed by Allison Mayfield, chairman of the Texas railroad commission, with R. V. Davidson, attorney general, and Claude Pollard, assistant attorney general of the state of Texas, countersigning the paper.

Fall Buyers Cautious. Bradstreet's weekly review of trade

Trade, crop and industrial developments of the week are mainly favorable. The first of the fall merchants' excursions are reported in leading cities, thereby enlarging sales by jobpers and wholesalers. Industrial reports are generally of increased time or enlarged output, and the leading crops have approached a week nearer harvest. There are, however, some features accompaning these developments deserving of note. These are statements from quite a few markets that early fall buying is hardly up to expectations and that caution and conservatism govern buyers' actions.

WE TREAT ALL CHRONIC DISEASES

Our whole professional life has been one continuous effort to cure afflicted persons from chronic diseases. We treat nothing else. In our long years of persistent study, diligent research and scientific investigation, we have discovered and developed various forms of treatment for Chronic Diseases which make their cure an unqualified and absolute certainty.

This claim is no idle boast. The truth is supported by hundreds of patients among them some of the best citizens of Detroit and vicinity, who have during the past years been restored to health, hope and contentment. Our counsel is free and our cure, if you decide to take it, is reasonable and not more than you are willing to pay.

WHAT WE CAN DO FOR OTHERS WE CAN DO FOR YOU.

CATARRH

Every person who suffers from Deafness, Ear Discharges, Headnoises, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Hawking and Spitting and all Catarrhal Affections of the Nose, Throat and Lungs; all Catarrh of Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys, should not fail to consult the Doctor. Examination such as LOSS OF MEMORY, NUMBNESS, DIZZY SPELLS, LOSS OF SLEEP, HEADACHE, SMOTHERING SPELLS, Twitching of the Musciques and many similar Symptoms indicate a severe NERVOUS DISEASE that requires prompt attention. Consultation and examination Free.

DISEASES OF WOMEN Our treatment for FEMALE WEAKNESS and associate diseases of WO-MEN gives quick relief, which is lasting and permanent.

In diseases peculiar to women, many resort to the knife. We seldom deem an operation necessary as we have successfully treated and CURED hundreds of suffering women without such harsh treatment. DISEASES OF MEN

Men, don't wait until your whole system is polluted with disease. Don't wait until your nervous system is tottering under the strain. Don't wait until you become a mental and physical wreck unfit for work, study or the obligations of life. Uncertain, improper or half way treatment can only do harm. The worst cases we have ever treated were those that had been improperly treated before coming to us. Satisfaction guaranteed to every young, middle-aged or old man who places himself in our care.

Oldest in Experience, Ripest in Knowledge

We use the best known system that cures forever. Diseases of the Heart, Lungs, Liver. Stomach, Kidney aud Bladder, Rheumatism, Neuralgia and all Chronic and Longstanding Diseases.

Are You Discouraged? Don't Become Despondent.

COME TO US.—WE HAVE CURED OTHERS AND WILL CURE YOU. If you or your friends are not enjoying good health consult the Doctor and he will examine you FREE. No incurable cases accepted for Treatment. If you are CURABLE he will state about the time required and the probable cost to completely restore you to PERFECT HEALTH.

SLEEPER'S BOOM GROWING FAST

Than Any Candidate in Field.

He Is Receiving Some Flattering Support from All Parts of the

(Sturgis Journal)

The boom started by the friends of A. E. Sleeper of Lexington, for state treasurer, is receiving some very flattering support from all parts of the state, both in the upper and lower peninsula, and it is freely predicted by those in charge that Mr. Sleeper will receive the nomination for the office. The republican party of Michigan could not seek a better man for the office than Mr. Sleeper or a man more eminently fitted for state treasureship duties would be hard to find in Michigan. No disgrace or sharp dealing has ever marked Mr. Sleeper's career. By his business integrity he has built for himself a modest fortune in commercial pursuits, in the gaining of which he has acquired all the business acumen that is necessary for him to fill the office with credit to his party, friends and himself. Some twelve years ago Mr. Sleeper's name was proposed for state senator, at which time he demonstrated to those who placed his name on the ticket that his was a good one to have there. His record in the legislature was up to the mark in every respect while his work on several important committees during the session was highly commented upon at the time by the leading state papers. As a man "Bert," as he is called by his intimate friends, is one of the finest, possessing a pleasing personality, broad enough to allow him to mingle coupled with a broad, liberal mind, with common people, act like com mon people and think like the trained financier that he is. There is none of the uppishness or "codfish aristocracy" as it is generally termed, about this man who has, by his own efforts, Committee reported favorably upon raised himself to a position of influbut over a large section of his native state. If Mr. Sleeper is nominated by Moved by Caldwell supported by his party for this office, the republican party will not have to be contented with having a man on the ticket who all through northern Michigan, on the Notice from W. J. Hayes & Son of contrary they will have a man who is ality, and the rank and file of the party in the "Thumb of Michigan" will stand by Mr. Sleeper, not because because they know him and know who is the man best qualified for the
