Mass Meeting.

Committees Appointed to Canvas Village and Townships for Aid for Fire Sufferers.

The mass meeting held at the town hall Monday evening had for its purpose the appointment of committees to superintend the raising of funds for the relief of the fire sufferers of northern Michigan. While the gathering was a small one, there being but a few more than a hundred present. including the boys and girls, the response from the citizens present was most generous and encouraging and when it was announced that the free

C. W. McPhail, who was formerly a resident of Cass City, and who has here this week, was present at the $10 to 22.50 meeting and started things going right by announcing that he would be one of five to give $10 each. The other four gentlemen announced their more followed Mr. McPhail's example, making $60 in all. Eleven other gentlemen subscribed $5 each and the remainder of the total amount subscribed came in sums of $3 to $1.

J. E. Winter, superintendent of schools, related a touching incident which came to his notice. As one of the teachers in the school announced the mass meeting and told the pupils to tell their parents of the gathering and ask them to be present, a little fellow gave her a ten cent piece, say ing that his father was out of town they were not able to give a large amount, he wanted to do all he could for the unfortunate people of the fire stricken region. The ten cents which the lad had given to the cause was the second sum to reach the hands of the committee Monday evening. The first payment was made by J. F. Hendrick.

Dr. J. H. Hays presided as chairman of the meeting and H. L. McDermott was the secretary. Remarks were Friday. made by Messrs. McKenzie, MacArthur, Corkins and Murphy, after which A. A. McKenzie was elected chairman of the relief committee and A. D. Gillies secretary. It was agreed E. Winter, Jas. MacArthur, and Rev. J. A. Schweitzer. E. H. Pinney was elected treasurer of the relief fund.

Later in the week, the committees in three townships were chosen. Frank Auslander, supervisor of Evergreen, named the following persons for his township: District No. 1, Arthur Meredith; No. 2, Edward M. Francis; No. 3, Mrs. Frank Auslander; No. 4, George W. BAD AXE WON GAME FRIDAY

Visiting Team Had Many Old Timers in Line-up.

With a team of old experienced players, the Bad Axe foot ball eleven carried off the honors at a game played here Friday afternoon. The score vas 10 to 0.

Cass City won the first kick and at the beginning of the game had things their own way, bringing the ball within 15 yards of the Bad Axe goal. Bad Axe punted outside of lines and with a few line bucks brought the ball within 20 yards of the Cass City goal. Three minutes before the close within a short time. In fact, five of the first half, Bad Axe scored by a quarter back run of Fremont. They failed to kick goal.

In the second half, the ball was kept in the middle of the field during the first half of that period of the game. Then the Axes braced for a few line bucks and were successful in getting within punting distance of Hemerick, McCarthy, Hopcioft, Arm-Cass City's goal. A full back rush strong, Gage, Beninger, Freeman, close to the line scored a touch down for the second time. The local team held their opponents in the field for a time until within five minutes of the close of the game when Bad Axe and not able to be present, and though punting came near the Cass City goal line. The locals rushed back with "half" runs when time was called.

Twenty minute halves were played with a ten minute intermission. While the local team failed to win, their supporters think they did very well. The visitors were much heavier and nearly all were on the team last year, while the local team had many new and inexperienced players who were in a real game for the first time acted. This sentiment prevails in all the political parties of the county, extending over and above all political lines, being considered of more importance than strict party affiliation. I am frank to say that I am in hearty sympathy with this movement and accepted the nomination more from a sense of public duty than from personal choice. If elected sheriff, I will discharge the duties of that office without fear or favor.

Shall the liquor laws, as well as all other laws now in force and hereafter enacted, be enforced in this county?

Those willing to stand with me as favoring this proposition have a duty to perform on election day, irrespective of past party affiliation.

If considered worthy of this trust, I shall consider myself the servant of all the people and faithfully discharge my duties as such. Any favors shown will be appreciated. Respectfully, A. C. GRAHAM.

DON'T FORGET TO VOTE NEXT TUESDAY, NOV. 3

The election campaign in the county has been so quiet this fall that the average citizen needs a reminder or two that the election is only four days away. Keep the fact in your mind, Mr. Voter, and don't forget to cast your ballot next Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Your work on the farm, in the store, or at the mill or elsewhere, next Tuesday, will not be worth as much to you as if the day was given to an effort in behalf of good business management in our country and state. The affairs of our state were never better managed than they are at this time. Our state's income is five times as great as it was ten years ago, while the state tax rate is lower than it was ten years ago. It is worth something to you as a taxpayer to have such conditions continued. Give next Tuesday, or part of the day, to earnest effort in that direction.

The attention of the voters of Tuscola county is called to the candidates placed in the field by the Republicans for the county offices. There is not a single one in the list that is not qualified for the position which he seeks. The list:

Judge of Probate-D. Healy Clark. Sheriff-George Fox. Clerk-Robt. P. Reavey. Treasurer-William F. Stoddard. Register of Deeds-Hiram R. Howell.

Prosecuting Attorney—Timothy C. Quinn. Circuit Court Commissioners-Harry J. P. George, Abraham J. Randall.

CURRENT COMMENT

BY F. KLUMP

Reply to F. Klump.

Mr. F. Klump has kindly consented to allow the following to appear in these columns. Summary of "Friendly Letter" referred to in Current Comment, Chronicle, Sept. 25, '08, viz: "School system" compelling every child of suitable age, etc., to attend school, then allowing the school book trust to rob him of about 60 cents on every dollar's worth of books he is obliged to Capitalism (individualism) is the cause of these unfortunate women being in the "red light" districts and elsewhere. They are the effect of the profit system and everyone who by their votes supports capitalism is responsible for driving about 100,000 innocent girls to a life of shame in the United States every year. 1. What did Jesus say that could be used in support of the present profit system called Capitalism or Individualism?

2. What did Jesus say that could be used to condemn International So-

3. What part of the principles of International Socialism conflicts with Christ's teaching?

Reader, you will understand Rev. F. Klump's reply to above "printed questions, school book problem and other kindred subjects of a socialistic order" by reading "Current Comment" in Chronicle of Sept. 25, '08. The following will assist you in making your decision whether Jesus would sanction capitalism (individualism) and condemn socialism, as Mr. Klump tries to lead you to think in "Current Comment," Chronicle, Oct. 9, '08.

WHAT IS SOCIALISM?

A theory of policy that aims to secure the reconstruction of society, increase of wealth, and a more equal distribution of the products of labor through the public collective ownership of labor and capital (as distinguished from property) and the public collective management of all industries. Its motto is "Every one according to his deeds."-Standard Dictionary.

Socialism is christianity, christianity is socialism, and if anyone denies either of these statements it is because he does not see clearly what socialism means; or it is because he does not see clearly what christianity is .- Rev. Fagnani, Prof. Union Theological Seminary, New York. Socialism is simply applied christianity; the Golden Rule applied to every day life.-Prof. Ely. The answer of socialism to the capitalist is, that society can do without him, just as society now does without the slave owner and the feudal lord; both were formerly regarded as necessary to the well-being and even the very existence of society.-Prof. W. Clark.

WHAT IS INDIVIDUALISM?

An excessive or exclusive regard for one's personal interest; self interest; selfishness.—Webster's Dictionary.

Anarchy, or the rule of one's self is the logical outcome of that form of political theory, which for the last half century or more has been known under the name of individualism.—Thomas Huxley.

Mr. Klump should put into practice what the apostle said, "Prove all things, and hold fast that which is good." By reading a socialist book by such writers as Marx, Liebnecht, Engels, Vail, Simons, Warren, Wayland, Debs, Hunter, Berger, Blatchford, Kutter, Mills, Brenholtz, Ghent, Heath, Thompson, Work; and hundreds of other socialist authors, then he will realize that he said nothing against socialism, but against something he thought was socialism.

He sets up a "straw man," made out of communism, anarchism, utopia, calling it socialism, and then proceeds to demolish it, which makes about 119 times the same thing has been done before. In this case Mr. Klump used over 1,600 words to accomplish his purpose of putting socialism out of business. Nov. 3, (when votes for Debs are counted) many such as he will open their eyes and wonder how socialism could live after being killed so many

Many people who never lead a book on socialism (by a socialist author) their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. honestly believe they understand socialism, having heard or read in a capitalistic paper that it meant "dividing up property," "destroying the home," "taking from the industrious and giving to the lazy," "killing incentive to progress,"-and other rot. If these good people would spend one-tenth as the church to the residence of Mrs. C. Harvey, who returned home to Glenmuch time to study socialism as they do defending individualism (selfishness) they could agree with the preacher who said that "Socialism is a natural evolution, and all hell cannot prevent its coming." The socialist platform, 1908, gives a good idea what socialists are advocating.

Mr. Klump says, "Everyone holds his title as gift of God." Reader, just imagine God giving Rockefeller, Carnegie, Harriman, Armour, Jay Gould, Depew, Platt, Marshal Field, etc., their wealth as a gift. These men would practically be unknown today if they had obeyed the command, "Thou shalt not steal." "The Doom of Capitalism," by Rev. E. C. Carr (Methodist) should follow, but space is limited; however, it may appear later.

It would be a pleasure for the writer to meet Mr. Klump in Cass City, privately or publicly, wording the 1st and 2nd questions above, viz: "Jesus said nothing," the third to read, "No part," or any statement made in this article he cares to talk against. With many thanks to the editor and Mr. Klump.

FRANKLIN LENZNER. Yours for socialism,

In Answer to the Above.

We admire Mr. Lenzner's zeal for that which he'believes to be a panacea for all social ills. We have no criticism to offer in that respect. He has a right to his views so long as he seeks truth. However, Mr. Lenzner makes one great mistake when he insists that everybody must see things as he sees them. That's individualism, pure and simple, the very thing he condemns. He opposes individualism in its relation to material interests but exhibits a self centered spirit in reference to what he considers to be truth in its relation to so-called socialism. The fact is Mr. Lenzner has permitted himself, no doubt unconsciously, to be carried away with one idea at the exclusion of everything else, regardless of present and future consequences. He reminds us of the boy who fell out of bed. The incident was discussed at the family table. His pa gave it as his opinion that he must have slept too close to the edge of the bed. But the lad insisted that his pa was wrong, and said hat he fell out because he slept too close to the place where he got in.

Mr. Lenzner's reply does not disapprove anything we said in our articles of Sept. 25 and Oct. 9 and hence needs no answer. We simply desire to cor- five weeks, is not much better. rect a misstatement which has crept into Mr. Lenzner's article, no Those who have had experience with this doubt unwittingly. He would make society good by making the individual good. * * Jesus never taught that form of socialism that would equalize the sharing of products. * * Farthest possible was Jesus from the curse of most socialistic programs—the assumption that the ideal social order is based upon an increase in creature comforts.

Why Mr. Lenzner should make the above accusation is really beyond our comprehension. Not in a single word or sentence did we try to lead the reader to think that Jesus "sanctioned capitalism" and "condemned socialism." He ought to read the article again. Again, Mr. Lenzner would have us read every "socialist book" known by a suffering reading public. He here last Tuesday more or less conwould have us "prove all things and hold fast that which is good;" and es-vinced that Michigan is all right. pecially that which he considers good. Now, we confess that our research Mrs. W. didn't like the climate southhas been somewhat limited and yet we know something about Plato's Republic, have come in touch with the philosophy of Comte and have read Proudhon's maxim, "Property is robbery." We have read Bellamy who paints in the air a beautiful mirage of the new socialistic order which Conrad Wilbrandt with a few essential facts destroys. His laugh was a sneer.

"Poor-poor little Jane!" murmured the harassed woman, clasping her hands over her eyes. Then suddenly He leaned forward in his chair and she cried out, "What a devil you are to barter with your son's happiness!"

He stood motionless, gazing upon the occupants of the room.

"I'll not mince matters," to said harshly. "You and I must understand each other. To be perfectly frank, everything rests with you. Call me a beast if you like. As a beast I can destroy you, and I will."

"I think," she said shrewdly, guessing his weakness even as he saw it, "that we can talk sensibly of the situation from now on. I am not afraid of

He looked at her steadily for a moment, reading her thoughts, seeing her trembling heart. Then he said dryly: "I'll do nothing for a week, and then you'll send for me." The door in the vestibule opened suddenly and some one-aye, more than one-came in from the outside. Mrs. Cable started to her feet and turned toward the library door. Bansemer was standing close by her side. He turned to move away as David Cable stepped to the door to look in. Cable's coat collar was about his ears, and he was removing his gloves. For a moment he stood motionless, gazing upon the occupants of the room,

Then for the first time there flashed before him the sharp point of steel which was to pierce his brain later on with deadly suspicion and doubt. There was no mistaking the confusion of Mrs. Cable and her visitor. It was manifest that they had not expected him to appear so unexpectedly. He remembered now that on two other occasions he had found Bansemer at his house and alone with Mrs. Cable, but he had not regarded it as extraordinary. But there was a startled look in her eyes tonight, an indecision in his brows and lift his hand unconsciously to his temple before speaking. He heard Bansemer say that he was just going, but that he would stay for a short chat about the banquet. Mrs. Cable turned to stir the fire with the poker, an unusual act on her part he was not slow to observe. The seed was sown that her hand shook as she put the poker back into its place. As he walked into the hall to throw aside his coat Frances Cable turned to Bansemer with a significant look, shaking her head in mute appeal for silence.

Bobby Rigby came into the room, followed by a tall stranger, whom he presented to Mrs. Cable. Bansemer, standing near the library table, caught a glimpse of the stranger's face as he took Mrs. Cable's hand. He started violently, unable at first to believe his eyes. A chill ran through his frame, and his expression changed from wonder to consternation.

"Mr. Bansemer, my friend, Mr. Har bert."

"I have met Mr. Bansemer," said Harbert, with a cold stare straight opposite sides of the table. "In New York." said Bansemer firmly, his eyes unflinching in their return. He noticed that Harbert's look was uncompromisingly antagonistic, but that was to be expected. It troubled him, however, to see something like unfriendliness in Rigby's greeting.

Harbert was the man who had fought him to rout in New York. This keen, aggressive young barrister had driven him into a corner from which was. It had not been his fault that the man crawled through a small avenue of technicalities and avoided the punishment that had seemed so certain. He had waged war bitterly against the blackmailer, and he missed complete victory by a hair's breadth.

Feeling the strain of the situation, Rigby talked with earnest volubility. He led the conversation into many lines-the war in the Philippines, the banquet, the play which Jane and Graydon were seeing. The thought of the play brought a shade of despair to his brow-pretty Miss Clegg was in the party with that "mucker," Medford. James Bansemer had been cold with speculation every instant of the time; had telt that Harbert's condemning gaze had never left him. Apparently listening to the others, he found himself wondering what Harbert's trip to Chicago signified. Gradually it dawned upon him that his old time foe was not through with his fighting. The look in Rigby's eyes meant something, after all, and Rigby was Graydon's best friend! Harbert was in Chicago to act-and to act first! This thought shot into the man's brain like burning metal. It set every nerve afire. His Nemesis had already begun his work. Before he left the Cable home that night he would be asking his host and hostess what they knew of one James Bansemer's past.

As Bansemer arose to say good night to the others Harbert's eyes met his with deadly directness.

"Where are your offices, Mr. Banse mer?" asked the New Yorker. There was something significant in the ques-

"Mr. Rigby and I have offices in the same building," he replied. "Will you come in and see me?" "I shall try," said the other.

To have saved his life Bansemer could not meet David Cable's questioning eyes as he shook hands with him. Cable's hands were like ice.

Outside the house, in the whirling gale, the tall lawyer breathed easier, but not securely. His brain was clogged with doubts, fears, prophecies-all whirling like mad around the ominous figure of Denis Harbert.

Suddenly he stopped stockstill, the bitter scowl deepening in his eyes. With an oath he turned abruptly and hurried in the opposite direction. The time had come to make ready for bating the note which created so much Droom.

AUNT ADRA'S APOLOGY.

By LILLIAN LEE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press. "Jimmie, Aunt Adra's come."

Little Mrs. Boxley's voice was dull and lifeless.

"I don't think that she likes me," vas the additional remark, which explained the depression.

"My dear child, she must! She is the only member of my family with money, and I was her favorite nephew. If she does not approve of my marriage it's all off. But she's got to like you, Dolly," he added fondly. "How could any one help liking you?"

"But she has done nothing except sit and glare at me," wailed the little woman. "I phoned Bess for an extra ticket for the concert tomorrow, and when I told Aunt Adra that we were going she just said 'Uh-hu!' like that." "She'll say you're the best little woman in the world before you get

"IT IS MY TREAT AND MY APOLOGY." through," declared Jimmie as he put his arm about her shoulders and went in to welcome Aunt Adra.

Jimmie was genuinely fond of his maiden aunt, even if she did call him James. Sometimes he wished that he did not have "expectations" from her so that he might insist upon her calling him Jimmie. It was the first time since his marriage that he had seen her. He married Dolly because he could not help it. From the moment that he had set eves on her as she stepped on the stage at a studio recital Jimmie had told himself that she was the one woman in the world whom he wanted for a wife. After that he was in the hands of fate.

Two months later they were married, and it was not until they had sat themselves down to address the wedding invitations that Jimmie even thought of asking Aunt Adra's permission.

A long letter of explanation had gone with the invitation, and the response had been a plated berry spoon and a promise from the old lady to pay them a visit.

Now, she was none the less welcome because she had come unannounced, and there was real sincerity in Jimmie's greeting. Aunt Adra unbent a little as he came in, but as they went out to dinner Jimmie was conscious of a certain air of disapproval which bore down on his spirits.

For Jimmie was proud of the little woman he had married and wanted all the world to approve his choice. Indeed he could not understand how one could do otherwise.

All through the evening this feeling wet blanketed their pleasure. For the first time the little parlor seemed distasteful to him. For the first time Discontent was a guest.

It was not that Jimmie was discontented with his wife. It was the first time that he was discontented with his home. The tiny parlor was no longer the center of paradise, and as Jimmie kissed Mrs. Jimmie good night he whispered that the visit would not last "In order to succeed in life," said the long, since Aunt Adra was clearly as unhappy as themselves.

But the visit did endure far beyond the first week. It was well toward the was startled by the appearance of Aunt Adra at the office. "Is there anything the matter with Dolly?" he gasped. Aunt Adra shook her head. "She is well, so far as I know," she answered coldly. "I want you to come out and have lunch with me. That is the purpose of my visit here." It was the work of a minute to arrange with the managing clerk for a little additional time at lunch, and Jimmie led the way to the quiet cafe where he had often entertained his nunt before.

Then they had been jolly little occasions: now she sat grim faced and silent, while her nephew devoted himself to his lunch. Not until the table had been cleared and only the coffee cups were left did she speak.

"I have kept silent as long as I could, James," she began. "But this morning something occurred that I felt you should be informed of.

"I have tried to like your wife because she is your wife. I have withheld criticism and have sought to indorse your choice even while the first glimpse told me that you have been roped in by a designing woman. Don't say anything," she commanded hurriedly as Jimmie sought to make objection. "I know what I am talking about. There never was a man who was a match for a woman.

"I made up my mind to overlook the extravagant taste in dress that leads her to wear silks and satins. I overlooked the fact that you have a piano that is of a far more expensive make than I could afford to purchase. She even had the audacity to tell me that the piano was loaned her by the maker. "Then she made you put in a telephone, and her extravagance about concert tickets is something shocking. James, there are hundreds of concert programmes in her room and even tickets that she purchased and did not use. They cost $1 and $2 a piece. "All that I could stand-though such an extravagant woman never will get a chance to waste my money as she has yours-but today I insisted on going downstairs after my mail, in spite of her protest, and there in the box was a letter addressed to some one else. Your wife blushed when I handed it to her, but later I saw her reading it, and later still I heard her at the telephone telling a Signor Marascreck that she had his letter and would come right down.

"James, that shameless woman is meeting strange men, and you know what those foreigners are, and she is getting letters addressed to an alias. It is Dorothy Chappelle. If you want to get a divorce, I will pay all expenses, but not a penny of my money shall you have otherwise.'

Miss Boxley settled back in her seat with a determined nod that made the plumes on her hat dance vigorously. Jimmie lay back in his seat and choked with laughter. Miss Boxley, supposing it to be hysterics, regarded him pity-

"It is all Dolly's fault," explained Jimmie at last. "She was afraid that you might be prejudiced against her profession, and she wanted to win your affection before we told you. Auntie, do you know that Dolly would love to own some gingham dresses, but that she can't afford them?"

"She might sell the plano," suggested Miss Boxley, with a sniff. "But that is only loaned," explained Jimmie. "Here's the way it goes. Dolly is a concert singer and teacher. She has no pupils through the summer, so she closed her studio and had the piano moved over to the flat. It is loaned by the makers, and she pays for it by recommending it to her pupils. Her work also explains the concert tickets. The singers send her tickets free and are only too glad to have people like us come and lead the applause.' "And the dresses? They are also loans?"

"Not much! They were given to her by rich women who love to patronize struggling artists, but they give her only evening gowns. Dolly has one good street dress, but in the house she feels she ought to wear out this half worn finery. She can't afford to give the dresses away, and they would not bring a dollar apiece secondhand. You see we are paying for a little home in the country, and every penny goes into that fund.

"That is why we live so cheaply and that is why Dolly is trying to get a steady appointment at the conservatory. The fact that Marascheck sent for her argues that she has landed it. It is good news, Aunt Adra, not bad, that you bring me. But to think that you have accused poor Dolly of wearing frivolous clothes when she loathes her 'glad rags' as she does."

Jimmie went off into another gale of laughter, then sobered down to tell the sacrifices they had made to earn a home that should be their very own. When he had finished, the old lady's eyes were suspiciously moist, and as they rose to go she looked at him pleadingly.

"You will forgive a meddling old fool, won't you, Jimmie?" she pleaded, and Jimmie kissed her twice-once in token of forgiveness and once for the title "Jimmie."

That night as he let himself into the tiny flat he found the two women poring over samples and fashion sheets. Aunt Adra was sitting in the Morris chair, and Dolly was perched on its arm, the brown head against the gray. Miss Boxley looked up, with a smile, as Dolly flew to greet her husband.

"After this," she said dryly, "Miss Dorothy Chappelle is still going to wear silks and satins, but Dolly Boxley is selecting what she wants for her home use. It is my treat and my apol-

The Faster Nag. A writer, relating some of the incidents of General Grant's last days. tells in the Century Magazine this anecdote of the ex-president. He was as every one knows, very fond of horses and while spending a summer at Long Branch was accustomed to take a daily drive behind a noted trotter. By courtesy, although often against his wish, he was always given a free and open course. One day while jogging along he noticed in a casual way a farmer and his wife, who, with a single horse and errand wagon, were just ahead, evidently returning from market. On attempting to "draw alongside" and pass the couple there was a race on in a moment. The farmer chirped in a peculiar way, and his horse squatted into a long gaited and easy trot. Altogether it was a veritable surprise to the other driver, with his "professional trotter" and light road wagon. But the farmer kept the lead in spite of General Grant's efforts to overtake him. Occasionally through the dust he could see the farmer's wife look back to note their relative positions. Finally, after a mile heat, the farmer slowed up a little to allow the general to come within hearing distance. "Did you know who it was?" General Grant was asked.

"Oh, yes." he replied. "The man simply said, 'General, you've got a good one,' and then I allowed him to go on."

WE ALL GET 'EM.

One of the Review's esteemed subscribers missed his paper the other day, after having been notified that according to the postoffice department's ruling we could not send it after he owed a dollar, unless we were willing to spend 52c of the year's subscription price for postage. We have made it clear that we did not make this ruling, but it would be nothing to be ashamed of if we did. Most of our subscribers like it and comparacounty treasurer, a register of deeds, tively few let their subscription run until they owe a year, but this subscriber paid no attention to his notice and was to blame himself because the paper stopped coming. Now all guess what he did. No, he didn't do that mitted to the qualified electors the at all. He just sent down word that he would owe the dollar and that the Review could go to h- and that's where it would bring up if those who people this big earth were all like him. Fortunately for us they are not. A very small percentage allow their paper to be stopped, while the new names that go on the list every month are far in excess of those dropped.—Portland Review.

WERE BOUND TO THEIR BED.

Portland, Mich., Oct. 28.—Ionia county officers are hunting for two robbers who rifled the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Wainwright, an aged couple living at Frost's Corners, two miles from Portland, after binding both of them. The men obtained $15 in money and a gold watch and escaped, leaving no clue to their identity.

When Mr. Wainwright opened the door in response to a knock, a masked man pushed in seized the old man by the wrists and threw him upon a couch, warning him not to make an outcry. As he was doing this, the other entered and turned down the light. Then both Mr. and Mrs. Wain wright were taken into their bedroom and forced to lie down on the bed while they were bound.

The men then forced the aged man to give them the combination to his safe, which they finally succeeded in opening. Disappointed at the small amount they found there, they threatened to burn down the house, but Mr. Wainwright finally succeeded in convincing them that it was all the money in the house, and they departed after warning the couple not to try to give an alarm for several hours. So far the officers have been unable

The man, who is about thirty years old, and claims to have been engaged in peddling metal polish before his arrest, went to nearly every business place in town and asked the proprietors to give him a silver dollar for 100 pennies. There is no clue to who did the robbing.

Hillsdale, Mich., Oct. 28.—The postoffice safe was blown open early in the morning, and the thieves got between $50 and $60 in money and 400 to 600 stamps and registered packages. In the Stillness of Night. THE day had been warm. In fact, several days had been warm. The thermometer was feeling all "swelled up" because of its exalted condition and because of the fact that it had risen higher than any thermometer in seven years.

The house was thoroughly heated and folks had been sitting up most of the night rather than take sweat baths in the second stories. But Jones had gone to bed because he was almost all in. And Mrs. Jones had done likewise because there wasn't much else to do. As Jones lay there with the win-lows wide open and only the sheet over him, he heard the clock tick, tick, tick! Then it struck midnight After it had struck 1 o'clock, or the half after midnight—he couldn't tell which-he went to sleep. It was so hot that he woke just as the clock was tolling 2. He almost dozed off again when he heard Mrs. Jones ask: "John, are you awake?"

Not desiring to be awake, John did not answer.

Then Mrs. Jones shook him gently and asked again: "John, I thought you were awake.

tre you? No answer.

"John!"

Seeing that it was no use, Jones tirred uneasily and muttered: "What is it?"

"John, when the company comes next Saturday, do you think it will be too hot for soup-and had I better serve cantelope for the first course instead?"

And do you believe it, the wretch turned over in bed and made believe answering that woman, who had been puzzling her brain over this momentous question for three hours! 000
