Better Shoes for Less Money

Shoes are the most important necessity that you buy. You want them to possess three qualities:

Style—Any maker can furnish it. There is no monopoly. Comfort—A matter of proper fitting-good store service.

Value—Greatest wear and service for the price paid. Value is the most important and most difficult quality to get in shoes. The best value can only be produced by the greatest reduction in profits and manufacturing costs.

ENDICOTT-JOHNSON CO. is the first and only shoe house in the World to make shoes from the raw material and place them in our store less all middlemen's profits and expenses. An inspection of these shoes will convince you that your next pair should be ENDICOTT-JOHNSON CO.

For many years exhibitors in the poultry de- 10. partment have been hampered to some extent in showing their birds. The exhibits have been placed in a tent, and while the display was arranged as well as could be under the circumstances, Superintendent McLarty will be able to make a much better showing in the new quarters.

In the floral hall the improvements which will be made will greatly increase the convenience and cleanliness of this popular resort. The building will be raised and a cement floor laid. Iron rails will be placed around the platforms used for displaying the exhibits and around the flower stand and roller doors placed on the inside of the hall will take the place of the swing

In addition to these changes the roofs on the horse sheds will undergo repairs and the race track will be placed in the proper shape for racing.

This work has been placed under the supervision of H. S. Wickware and P. A. Koepfgen, and as both gentlemen are very thorough in anything they undertake and are of the opinion that the best is none too good for the Cass City fair, the work must necessarily be made first class under their

Like the fair association, the Drivng Park association is out of debt and has a snug sum laid aside for a rainy day and the improvements planned for this year will not necessitate the loaning of any money to complete them.

The erection of the new poultry house and the other improvements mentioned will be completed in time for the annual fair, the dates of which Edna Bell Bruce Became the Bride of are Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, 2 and 3.

H. D. Malcolm.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bruce of Deford, Tuesday, August 10, when their only daughter, Edna Bell, became the bride of Howard Malcolm, also of Deford. At 2:30 p.m., while Miss Blanche Bruce, cousin of the bride, played Lohengrin's bridal march, the bridal party entered the 50c. spacious parlor, taking their places under an arch of cedar boughs adorned with lilies and china asters.

The bride was gowned in white, wearing a beautiful dress of silk foulard, while she carried in her hand a was assisted by Miss Bessie Malcolm, a sister of the groom, who was also dressed in white and carried a similar bouquet. The groom wore the conventional black and was attended by Roland Bruce, a brother of the bride.

Rev. A. Beedon, pastor of the M. E. church, conducted the services, using the full ritualistic form of service.

After the customary greetings following the ceremony, the party with ature will not go into effect until the about 35 invited guests sat down to a bountiful repast. The happy couple left amid a shower of rice on the four o'clock train for a short honeymoon in Detroit and other cities when they will return to Deford to make their future home.

SPLENDID PROGRAM FOR HARVEST FESTIVAL AUG. 18

A Glad Welcome Awaits Everyone. Two Ball Games, Three Horse Races, Merry-go-round, Caledonian Games, Electric Show and Dances--All Are Free.

To our farmer friends and the public at large:

It is a source of great pleasure to me to welcome you in behalf af the business men of Cass City to be with us on the 18th inst. at our Harvest Carnival. It is the aim and purpose of all to make the day pleasant and one long to be remembered.

To you we extend our cordial invitation to be with us upon this occasion; you are our guests and we shall receive you with gladness. To you, the latch string hangs upon the outside and the door already stands ajar. In this regard we trust that we may realize our expectation in meeting together at this time on the broad pathway of good fellowship and our relations, not only commercially but socially, may be more sincere and cordial as a result of this day of festivity.

J. C. CORKINS, Pres. of Business Men's Asso.

Every indication is that the harvest festival at Cass City will be the best celebration ever held here and the purse of $20 has been appropiated. biggest crowd that ever visited the town is expected next Wednesday. Every one is enthusiastic over the event and practically every business to make it a successful celebration. So well have the finances been cared for that the entertainment committee Vancouver harbor is quite narrow but is able to offer every attraction and of sufficient depth and the harbor is amusement advertised free of charge. This is an unusual proceeding to be sure, but Cass City is glad to be able to break through the usual custom and the officers of the day offer caledonian games, base ball games, horse races, rides on the merry-go-round, platform specialties, bowery dances and performances at the electric theatre without admission charge or fees and free to all visitors.

The program of sports and games commence at 10:30 a. m. and will be held on Main Street. The following are the events and the prizes offered: Tug of war-Gagetown vs. Cass City.

program of illustrated songs, moving pictures and vaudeville acts and the show will be of the same length and quality as those in which admittance is charged. Mr. Barnes has reserved the evening performances for his profit and the usual prices prevail after six o'clock in the afternoon.

One of the splendid features of the day which is of special interest to the children is the steam merry-go-round which has been engaged by the entertainment committee to give free rides to all next Wednesday. The merry-goround is said to be one of the best and and comes from Bay Port where it has been on the picnic ground. It was secured for this particular day at a great expense.

At twelve o'clock the residents of Cass City invite the farmers and their families to bring their baskets and spend the noon hour on their lawns. Visitors are invited to pick out one of the pretty lawns for which this town is famous, take possession of the same and be assured that they are welcomed to the hospitality of the city and its residents.

Two base ball games are scheduled for the afternoon. Elkton and Kingston, two well matched teams, will be in the first contest and Cass City will play the winner of the first game. A

Three horse races add more sport to the program. Three prizes are offered in a Free-for-all Trot or Pace. Two prizes are offered in a farmers' man and firm has tendered their aid running race of ½ mile. And a novelty race promises much amusement. The horses in this event are harnessed and hitched in front of the grand stand, walk 1, trot 1 and go as they please 1

THE FIVE MONTHS' STRUGGLE ENDS, TARIFF BILL PASSED, TAFT SIGNS IT.

IRONED OUT SMOOTHLY.

Sixteen Majority in the Senate, Eight Republican Senators Voted Nay, One Favoring Democrat. Paired.

The tariff has been revised and the extraordinary session of congress has been brought to a close. Both houses adjourned sine die officially at o'clock p. m. Thursday.

That is the time entered upon the journals, but as a matter of fact the adjournment was taken in the house at 5:38 p. m. and in the senate at 5:58 p. m.

The closing hours of the session were attended by scenes of a most uninteresting character. The revision had been according to the desires of some and with the hearty disapproval of others, and the last two days had been consumed by members of the senate in expressing their satisfaction or dissatisfaction, as the case might

The conference report on the bill was agreed to by the senate by a vote of 47 to 31 when the vote was taken at 2 p. m., and soon afterwards the concurrent resolution making certain changes in the leather schedule was adopted by both houses.

The Republicans voting nay were: Bacon, Bailey, Bankhead, Beveridge, Bristow, Chamberlain, Clapp, Clay, Culberson, Cummins, Daniel, Dolliver, Fletcher, Foster, Frazier, Gore, Hughes, Lafollette, McLaurin, Martin, Nelson, Newlands, Overman, Paynter, Raynor, Shively, Simmons, Smith of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, Stone, Taliaferro-31.

Senator McEnery (La.) Dem., who was absent, was paired for the bill. He was the only Democrat favoring the measure.

Bending over the president as he affixed his signature were Secretary Knox, Secretary MacVeagh, Attorney General Wickersham, Postmaster General Hitchcock, Secretary Nagel, and Secretary Wilson. Standing about the table were Senator Aldrich, Representative Payne and many other members of the senate and house. Mr. Payne stood with hand extended waiting to receive the pen with which the bill was signed. He took it with a picture of boyish glee overspreading his face. Another pen was handed to the president, and he wrote the word "Approved," and handed the pen to Representative Langley, of Ken-

Under the Guillotine.

The crowds were unable to get within two blocks of the guillotine, which was erected beneath the trees beside the prison wall. The condemned man was driven in closed carriage from the prison yard 200 yards up the boulevard to the place of execution. Before the onlookers had time to express their wonderment at this strange and disconcerting garb which gave one the impression that the victim was a woman and not a man, the flowing veiling fell from the head, the cape from the shoulders and the victim was seized and thrown under the knife. In a flash all was over and the crowds dispersed without disorder.

There are now five prohibition measures before the extra session of the Alabama legislature. The Car-michael (or basis) bill of the prohibition scheme was signed Monday. The constitutional prohibition bill passed in the house should reach the senate at once. The prohibition of locker clubs bill, and the 12,000-word Fuller bill providing for raiding, confiscation, and destruction of contraband liquors will be taken up in the house this week. The fifth bill is one to control soft drink stands, which has not yet been reported out of committee.

Evidencing the belief that the Carmichael bill will be effective at once, saloon men Saturday kept up a caravan of moving liquors. The officers of the law let it be known that offenders will have no leniency.

so Mrs. Rosa Sutton maintains that the ghost of her dead son, Lieut. J. N. Sutton, U. S. Marines, whose death is now the subject of a naval court inquiry, appeared to her at the time his death was announced and pointed out his murderer.

This, she alleges the spirit declared o her, was Lieut. Adams, one of the defendants in the case, who was with Lieut. Sutton on the fatal night, had a fistic encounter with the dead officer and who has already testified that Lieut. Sutton committed suicide.

"Jimmie Sutton has guided my hand in every effort I have made,' says Mrs. Sutton. "His beseeching eyes are never turned away from me: sleeping or waking I see them, and I know that I shall be haunted by their appeal until I have finished my fight.

My hands are as free from crime as they were when I was five years old.' "Then he told me the names of the men in the fight, and said:

"'They beat my head and shoved my face down into the dirt; they jumped on me with their feet; they kicked and beat me worse than a dog in the street, mother; but I did not know I was shot until my soul passed into eternity."

Want the Whipping Post.

In passing judgment on a man charged with having blackened his wife's eyes, Police Magistrate House, of New York, declared in court:

"What this state needs is a whipping post for wife-beaters and I am willing to head a movement to establish it. We also need something for the wives who are beaten. From 10 to 50 badly whipped wives come here daily for warrants for their husbands and then, when the brutes are arraigned, the women plead forgiveness for them, refuse to prosecute and all I can do is to turn them loose. If we had a whipping post with a cat-onine-tails attachment, I think we could discourage the wife-beating habit.

A bill for the re-establishment of the whipping post in Peoria, Ill., has been introduced in the Illinois state

THE "DRY" CAMPAIGN IN BATTLE CREEK IS VIGOROUSLY PUSHED.

NOSE, JAW, SKULL BROKEN

Incidents and Happenings in Various Parts of the State of Major and Minor Interest.

That certain of the persons caught in the dragnet of detectives author ized to look for violations of the local option laws are in for jail sentences is the prevalent opinion in Battle Creek. The work has to all appearances been carried on in a thorough manner. In addition to the arrests made Friday, eight more warrants were served Saturday on three different people, two of whom were placed under arrest the day before. Four more charges were preferred against Philip Hook, a former salconkeeper, to all of which he pleaded not guilty and asked for an examination when arraigned before Justice Battdorff. The warrants allege that Hook sold beer and whisky at different times to one Frank D. Arnold.

Julius Martin, secretary and treas-urer of the Battle Creek Brewing Co., was arrested on two warrants charging the sale of bottled beer by the case. Mrs. Nora Bock, clerk in the employ of the brewing company, is held under two similar charges. She asked for an examination and furnished bonds in the sum of $200. Hook and Martin are each held on five charges thus far. There are more warrants to follow.

A Boy's Terrible Injuries.

Nose broken, upper jaw broken in wo places, lower jaw fractured and skull crushed—these are the injuries sustained by Stancil, the 13-year-old son of Felix Miller, a well-to-do farnear Williamsburg, when an eight-pound pulley fell from the barn roof last evening. The boy was helping the father unload rye when the rope became fouled and he tried to release it. The pulley was holding a weight of a half a ton and fell with terrific force, striking the boy on the left side of the head. He will be blind even if he recovers. His parents are prostrated.

Hold Money in Trust.

The Soldiers' home board has finally settled the excess pension matter to the satisfaction of all concerned. The board used to take all in excess of $12 a month and turn it into a post fund, using it for new buildings and luxuries. The old settlers contended that the state acquired no good title to this money and did an act of injustice. Huntley Russell carried on wife, and Frank Sweetland, a brotherin-law. The trustee attacks the transfer to these persons of about $71,000 worth of life insurance policies held by Frank P. Glazier in the Prudential, Home Life, New - York Life, Mutual of New York and Massachu-setts companies. The policies were assigned by Glazier to the relatives named, but the trustee declares that the assignments were really made at dates much later than those indorsed in the transfers, and when Glazier's affairs had reached a stage which made such assignments unfair and improper. In the case of one policy assigned to the mother, says the trustee, the date given is September, 1904, but experts who have examined the transfer indorsement declare that it was written in about three years

The trustee asks that all the transfers be declared void and the policies left in the hands of the trustee with other assets to apply on the Glazier liabilities.

The Second Michigan cavalry veterans will hold their annual reunion in Albion Sept. 8 A bean which lodged in her windpipe while at play caused the death of Leola, 3-year-old daughter of Chas. Martin, of St. Johns, in the Ann Arbor hospital. Richard Wieberwax, of Lansing, was arrested here Tuesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff King, of Homer, charged with giving three friends a drink from a bottle of whisky on a Lake Shore train en route from Allegan to Homer. William Reed, of Battle Creek, has started suit in the circuit court against William Duchess for $10,000. They were both employes in Nichols Strong, a fellow & Shepard's factory at Battle Creek and Reed holds Duchess responsible for the loss of one ear and other injuries when a heavily loaded shop car ran over him. George F. Sherman, 60, relatives unknown, pinned a paper on which was printed "Skidoo 23" to the clothing on his breast and took a large dose of morphine. He died a few hours later at St. Mary's hospital, Grand Rapids. The man was an inmate of the Home for the Aged.

Byron Beard, a widower, aged 74, living near Morrice, has exploded the Osler theory within the past two weeks, he having harvested 40 tons of hay alone, besides attending to the house and other work about the farm. Because he attacked an 11-year-old girl in 1898, William Bowman, of Fort Smith, Ark., was Friday sentenced to death. He was convicted once before, but on technical grounds got a new trial. The girl, now 22 years old, appeared in the case both times as prosecuting witness. After living amicably as husband and wife for nearly 50 years, Henry Kiel and Minnie Kiel, prominent residents of Montague, were separated by a court decree. They fell out over a question of religion, each trying to force the other to give up one church for another. Mrs. Kiel, who is 68, sued for divorce. The husband is 79 years old.

Judge Wisner, of Flint, has announced that he will hear the petition of Mrs. Timothy E. Tarsney, widow of the well known Detroit attorney, that she be substituted for her late husband in the litigation against the Flint & Saginaw electric line. Tarsney and Attorney Sullivan, also of Detroit, were seeking to establish their ownership of certain stocks of the company.

George Barkley, of Marshall, a lineman, risked his life when he kicked a wire from the hand of Frank worker, through whose body 2,200 volts of electricity was passing. The men were at the top of a 40-foot pole when the wire Strong was handling became crossed with the power line. Strong is none the worse for his experience.

HOTEL MEN PROSPERING

Sanilac County Hotelkeepers Fare Better Since Dry Spell.

The Sandusky Leader is responsible for the following paragraph:

"From all outward appearances, the hotelkeepers of Sanilac county seem to fare better since the 'dry' spell came than ever before. Recently, M. P. Peplow of Deckerville handed over $3,000 for an automobile, which he never could have purchased had he re mained in the liquor business; Jack McDonald is driving more fancy horses than ever, besides this, he flashes a diamond ring. Newt Holmes of Peck sits back and takes life easy. He don't have to worry about that $500 tax that made them all hump J. FRUTCHEY, CASHIER. about May 1st of each year. Morton | G. A. The Franklin House, Croswell, now adds a few extra side dishes with the meals served on the train and the proprietor has time to sit down and chat with Wilfred Macklem about the coming contest for prosecuting attorneyship. The hotelman at Palms is making a comfortable living grinding sausage and selling ice cream; Billy Morash, Carsonville, makes more trips to Niles' pank with deposits. His trade in soft drinks and Quaker beer has increased wonderfully since he cut off the water supply leading to Colin McGregor's hardware. If business keeps up this way throughout the county, there isn't a question but that the hotel fellows

Such is the result of the work of a good mechanic.

Sleep

Sleep is nature's rebuilding period, when the energy used by the brain, muscles and organs is renewed. If you lose sleep, your system is robbed of the strength sleep should give. Continued loss of sleep multiplies this loss until you become a physical wreck. Dr. Miles' Nervine quiets the irritated nerves and brings refreshing, invigorating sleep. Nervine contains no opiates, and therefor leaves no bad after-effects. "For over two years I suffered untold agonies; my friends thought I was going crazy. I could not sleep nor rest at all. I tried different doctors, but failed to find relief. My head would ache all the time; I was like one drunk; could not concentrate my mind, and was so restless and worried that sleep was out of the question. After taking one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine I felt wonderfully changed. I am now on my third bottle and am gaining all the time. I can lie down and sleep like a child, and am able to do my work." #### CHAPTER XIII. Flight.

In the alcove the girl waited, torn in the throes of incipient hysteria; at first too weak from reaction and revulsion of feeling to do anything other than lean heavily against the wall and fight with all her strength and will against this crawling, shuddering, creeping horror of nerves, that threatened alike her self-control, her consciousness, and her reason.

But insensibly the tremor wore it self away, leaving her weary and worn but mistress of her thoughts and actions. And she dropped with gratitude into a chair, bending an ear attentive to the war of words being waged in the room beyond the portieres.

At first, however, she failed to grasp the import of the altercation. And when in time she understood its trend, it was with incredulity, resentment, and a dawning dread lest a worse thing might yet befall her, worse by far than aught that had gone before. But to be deprived of his protection. to feel herself forcibly restrained from the shelter of his generous care-!

A moment gone she had been so sure that all would now be well with her, once Maitland succeeded in ridding himself of the police. He would shut the door and—and then she would come forth and tell him, tell him everything, and, withholding naught that damned her in her own esteen, throw herself upon his mercy, bruised with penitence but serene in the assurance that he would prove kind. She had such faith in his tender and gentle kindness now. . . . She had divined so clearly the motive that had permitted Anisty's escape in order that she might be saved, not alone from Anisty, not alone from the shame of imprisonment, but from herself as -from herself as Maitland knew her. The burglar out of the way, by ruse, evasion, or subterfuge she would be secreted from the prying of the police, smuggled out of the house and taken to a place of safety, given a new chance to redeem herself, to clean her hands of the mire of theft, to become worthy of the womanhood that

But now-she thrust finger-nails cruelly into her soft palms, striving to contain herself and keep her tongue from crying aloud to those three brutal, blind men the truth; that she was guilty of the robbery, she with Anisty; that Maitland was-Maitland; a word synonymous with "man of

In the beginning, indeed, all that restrained her from doing so was her knowledge that Maitland would be more pained by her sacrifice than gladdened or relieved. He was so sure of clearing himself. . It was inconceivable to her that there could be men so stupid and crassly unobservant as to be able to confuse the identity of the two men for a single instant. What though they did resemble each other in form and feature? The likeness went no deeper; below the surface, and rising through it with every word and look and gesture, lay a world-wide gulf of difference in every shade of thought, feeling, and

She herself could never again be deceived—no, never! Not for a second could she mistake the one for the . . . What were they saying?

The turmoil of her indignation subsided as she listened, breathlessly, to Maitland's story of his adventures; and the joy that leaped in her for his frank mendacity in suppressing every incident that involved her, was all but overpowering. She could have wept for sheer happiness; and at a later time she would; but not now, when everything depended on her maintaining the very silence of death. . .

How dared they doubt him? The insolents! The crude brutish insolence of them! Her anger raged high again . . . and as swiftly was quenched, extinguished in a twinkling by a terror born of her excitement and a bare suggestion thrown out by Hickey.

explainin' how a crook like Anisty made three tries in one day to steal some jewels and didn't get 'em. Where were they, all this time?"

Maitland's cool retort was lost upon her. What matter? If they disbelieved him, persisted in calling him Anisty, in natural course they would undertake to search the flat. And if she were found. . . . Oh, she must spare him that! She had given him cause for suffering enough. She must get away, and that instantly, before . From a distance, to-morrow morning-to-night, even-by telegraph, she could communicate with him. . At this juncture O'Hagan entered with his parcel. The rustle of the paper as he brushed against the doorjamb was in itself a hint to a mind keyed to the highest pitch of excitement and seeking a way of escape from a position conceived to be peril-In a trice the girl had turned and sped, lightfooted, to the door opening on the private hall.

Here, halting for a brief reconnaissance, she determined that her plan was feasible, if hazardous. She ran the risk of encountering some one ascending the stairs from the ground floor; but if she were cautious and quick she could turn back in time. On the other, hand, the men whom she most feared were thoroughly occupied with their differences, dead to all save that which was happening within the room's four walls. A curtain hung perhaps a third of the way across the study door, tempering the light in the hall; and the broad shoulders of the cabby obstructed the remainder of the

It was a chance. She poised herself on tiptoe, half undecided, and-the rustling of paper as O'Hagan opened the parcel afforded her an opportunity to escape, by drowning the noise of her movements.

For two eternal seconds she was edging stealthly down toward the outer door; then, in no time at all. found herself on the landing andconfronted by a fresh complication. one unforeseen: how to leave the without being observed, stopped, and perhaps detained until too late? There would be men at the door, beyond doubt; possibly police, stationed there to arrest all persons attempting to leave. . . .

No time for weighing chances. The choice of two alternatives lay before her: either to return to the alcove or to seek safety in the darkness of the upper floors—untenanted, as she had been at pains to determine. The latter seemed by far the better, the less dangerous, course to pursue. And at once she took it.

There was no light on the firstfloor landing-it having presumably been extinguished by the janitor early in the evening. Only a feeble twilight obtained there, in part a reflected glow from the entrance hall, partly thin and diffused rays escaping from Maitland's study. So it was that the first few steps upward took the girl into darkness so close and unrelieved as to seem almost palpable.

At the turn of the staircase she paused, holding the rail and resting for an instant, the while she listened. ere ascending at a more sedate pace to a haven of safety more complete in that it would be more remote from the battle-ground below.

And, resting so, was suddenly chilled through and through with fear, sheer childish dread of the intangible and unknown terrors that lurked in the blackness above her. It was as if. rendered supersensitive by strain and excitement, the quivering filaments of her subconsciousness, like spiritual tentacles feeling ahead of her, had encountered and recoiled from a shape of evil, a specter of horror obscene and malign, crouching, ready to spring, there, in the shadow of night. .

And her breath was smothered in her throat and her heart smote so madly against the frail walls of its cage that they seemed like to burst, while she stood transfixed, frozen in inaction, limbs stiffening, roots of her hair stirring, fingers gripping the banister rail until they pained her; and with eyes that stared wide into the black heart of nothingness, until the night seemed pricked with evanescent periods of dim fire, peopled with monstrous and terrible shadows closing

Yet-it was absurd! She must not yield to such puerile superstitions. There was nothing there. . . .

There was something there something that like an incarnation of hatred was stalking her. . If only she dared scream! If only she dared turn and fly, back to the comfort of light and human com-

There arose a trampling of feet in the hallway; and she heard Maitland's voice like a far echo, as he bade the police good night. And distant and unreachable as he seemed, the sound of his words brought her strength and some reassurance, and she grew slightly more composed. Yet, the instant that he had turned away to talk to the cabman, her fright of that unspeakable and incorporeal menace flooded her consciousness like a great wave, sweeping her-metaphoricallyoff her feet. And indeed, for the time, she felt as if drowning, overwhelmed in vast waters, sinking, sinking into the black abyss of syncope. . . .

Then, as a drowning person-we're told-c'utches at straws, she grasped again at the vibrations of his voice. What was he saying?

"You will wait outside, please, until come out or send somebody, whom you will take wherever directed. . . . -Speaking to the cabman, thinking of her, providing for her escape! Considerate and foresighted as always! How she could have thanked him! The warmth of gratitude that enveloped her almost unnerved her; she was put to it to restrain her impulse to rush down the stairs and . . .

But no; she must not risk the chance of rebuff. How could she foretell what was in his mind and heart, how probe the depths of his feeling toward her? Perhaps he would receive her protestations in skeptic spirit. Heaven knew he had cause to! Dared she . . . To be repulsed! . . .

But no. He had provided this means for flight she would advantage herself of it and . . . and thank him by letter. Best so; for he must ever think he worst of her; she could never undeceive him-pride restraining and upholding her.

Better so; she would go, go quickly, before he discovered her absence from the flat. . . .

And incontinently she swung about and flew down the stairs, silently, treading as lightly on the heavilypadded steps as though she had been thistledown whirled adrift by the wind, altogether heedless of the creeping terror she had sensed on the upper flight, careless of all save her immediate need to reach that cab before Maitland should discover that she had escaped.

The door was just closing behind the cabby as she reached the bottom step; and she paused, considering that it were best to wait a moment, at the quickness with which his employer found work for him; paused and on some mysterious impulse half turned, glancing back up the stairs.

Not a thought too soon; another instant's hesitation and she had been caught, Some one-a man-was descending; and rapidly. Maitland? Even in her brief glance she saw the white shield of a shirt bosom gleam dull against the shadows. Maitland was in evening dress. Could it be possible . . ?

No time now for conjecture, time now only for action. She sprang for the door, had it open in a trice, and before the cabby was really enthroned upon his lofty box, the girl was on the step, fair troubled face upturned to him in wild entreaty.

"Hurry!" she cried, distracted. 'Drive off,' at once!

Perhaps the man had expected something of the sort, analyzing Maitland's words and manner. At all events he was quick to appreciate. This was what he had been engaged for and what he had been paid for royally, in advance. Seizing reins and whip, he jerked the startled animal between the shafts out of its abstraction and-"I say, cabby! One moment!"

The cabman turned; the figure on the stoop of the house was undoubtedly Maitland's-Maitland as he had just seen him, with the addition of a hat. As he looked the man, was at the wheel, clambering in.

"Changed my mind—I'm coming along, cabby," he said cheerfully. Drive us to the St. Luke building, please and—hurry! "Yessir!'

Bitter as poverty the cruel lash cut round the horse's flanks; and as the hansom shot out at breakneck speed toward Fifth avenue, the girl cowered back in her corner, shivering, staring wide-eyed at the man who had so coolly placed himself at her side.

This, then, was that nameless danger that had stalked her on the staircase, this the personality whose animosity toward her had grown so virulent that, even when consciously ignorant of its proximity, she had been repelled and frightened by its subtle emanations! And now-and now she was in his power!

While there we visited two Japanese gunboats which were visiting there. They were the two first gunboats that the Japs took from the Russians during the war.

We left Vancouver the 29th of June at 9 a. m., going over the C. P. R. to Winnepeg. From Vancouver we pass up the valley of the Fraser river for about 150 miles. Then up the Thompson river, a tributary of the Fraser. At 4 p. m. we came to Ashcroft where the authorities had a battle with the train robbers who held up a train a few nights before in which a deputy constable and one of the robbers were killed the night before. The dead robber was in the station when we passed.

The next morning we were in the heart of the Canadian Rockies the beauty of which would have to be seen to be appreciated. Along in the afternoon we passed into a more open country and that evening we were at Medicine Hat, and the next morning we were at Moose Jaw where a Jap kept a lunch counter. He could pour out more coffee and count money faster than any man I eyer saw. The country from there to Winnepeg, a distance of 400 miles, is comparatively level and is all prairie.
