

Making Good

Make a good article, keep on making it good, tell people how good it is and people will buy it and keep on buying it.

Crosby's Hard Pan Shoes.....

For Men and Boys

is a case in point—from the day the first pair was made, the idea has been to make them so good, so comfortable, so serviceable and so satisfactory in every way, that once a customer bought a pair they would continue to buy them, and they are making good. We sell more pairs of Hard Pans every month.

Built for the man who wants comfort and service. For boys' wear the maker puts the stuff into them that stands the knocks.

Look for the trade mark; it's on the strap and sole of every pair.

WITHOUT QUESTION THE BEST DEPOT

On the P., O. & N. Being Erected at Cass City.

Walls Are Being Constructed of Cement Blocks. Many Conveniences.

The work of laying the cement blocks for the new depot is well under way and the plans of the new building show that Cass City will have the best depot on the P., O. & N. R. R. when it is completed.

The new building is practically the same size as the old depot which it replaces. It stands ten feet farther south from Garfield Ave., and measures in actual size 31 feet by 110 feet 2 inches. The walls will be constructed of cement blocks 16 feet in height and the roof will be gabled and of slate. The cement blocks are being treated to a paint preparation before they are laid which is said to make them water proof and thus removes the objection many have to cement constructed buildings.

The interior arrangement of the depot will be changed somewhat. The passenger waiting room will be larger than before—30x30 in size, the smoking room will be eliminated and the office will run across the building. Next to the office will be situated the baggage room occupying about the same space as in the old building. This room is fitted with a cement floor and a well and pump have been placed in the southeast corner. The rear of the building will be utilized for a freight shed. Between the baggage and freight rooms a fire wall will be erected of cement blocks extending from the floor to the roof.

On the north and west side of the depot a wide cement platform has been laid. On the west, this platform extends to the tracks, making it very convenient for passengers to board or step from the cars.

Contractor Henry thinks he will complete the outside walls within three or four weeks. As soon as the building is enclosed, the headquarters of Station Agent Dempsey will be established in the building and the plastering and inside finish will be completed as soon as possible thereafter.

Officials of the P., O. & N. R. R. are aware of the large amount of business which the road receives from Cass City and its contiguous territory, and to show their appreciation, they are causing the erection of a substantial depot, which is conceded by everyone along the line to be the best on the road.

MEETING OF CONGREGATION.

There will be a meeting of the congregation of the Presbyterian church on Monday, Oct. 11, at 7:30 p. m., in the church auditorium. The purpose of the meeting is to devise ways and means of conducting an aggressive and enthusiastic church work for the year 1909-1910. There is to be a program of special music which will afford you a good opportunity to hear Mr. Sutton sing. After the meeting, the ladies will serve light refreshments in the church parlors.

It is urgent that every member and adherent of the congregation be present. Furthermore, all of our friends are most cordially invited to spend the evening with us. Everything is free. Come everybody.

ARE PLANNING TO RE-MODEL CHURCH

Evangelical Society wants to Commence Work in Spring.

Church Building Will Be Moved and Raised and Additions Will Be Built.

The officials of the Evangelical church are planning to re-model and enlarge their church edifice at Cass City. They intend to commence the work next spring.

According to the present plans, the church building will be moved 15 feet farther east and a few feet north to bring it in line with Pine street. An addition, 18 by 34 feet in size, will be added to the west, and the tower will be placed in the corner where the main edifice and the addition join. At the east side an addition 10 feet wide and 32 feet long will be added for the choir loft, pulpit and dressing room, the latter being 10 by 12 feet in size. The pulpit will thus be placed at the east instead of the south side and the pews will extend the length of the church instead of across the building as at present. Circular pews will replace the present ones and windows of art glass will be placed in the auditorium and the additions.

The church building will also be raised and the basement will contain a prayer meeting room, furnace room, coal room and a large room which may be made serviceable for Sunday School purposes in future days. The entire building may be veneered with brick, though that has not fully been determined.

The plans were drawn by Rev. J. A. Schweitzer, the pastor, and when the church is re-modeled and enlarged, the Evangelical society will have a neat, commodious and up-to-date house of worship.

Mr. Adams was born in Ohio on March 31, 1870. He was a married man and is survived by his wife and one child. The remains were taken to the family home in Saginaw Saturday afternoon and the funeral was held in that city Monday.

BAD WEATHER BUT BIG CROWDS

Space on the Midway Was at a Premium.

Best Races on Thursday and Friday that Cass City has Seen in Several Years.

The Cass City Fair had a tussle with the elements at its 20th annual fair last week, and though a more disagreeable week could not have been chosen this fall for the event, large crowds were in attendance.

Tuesday, the entry day, was cold and threatening. Many entries were made on that day and the week before, but many failed to bring the exhibits which were entered because of the rain which fell all Wednesday morning. As a result the exhibits in the horse, cattle, sheep and swine departments were not as large as usual. Those which were exhibited were excellent as were those in the floral and agricultural halls and the poultry department.

Towards noon on Wednesday the weather man cut off the water supply to some extent and the crowd came. Thursday, the big day in point of attendance, opened cold and dreary, but it did not discourage the crowd. The people came from all directions and the fair officials were agreeably surprised to find so many on the grounds in spite of the bad weather.

Floral Hall presented a very attractive appearance. There was a fine display of fancy work, tastefully arranged, and a splendid display of flowers and foliage. A number of business houses had attractive booths filled with merchandise. Among these were G. W. Goff, harnesses and robes; Mrs. G. W. Goff, millinery; E. W. Jones, crockery; B. H. Bingham, photographs; Cass City Chronicle. The large display of the Cass City School was very nicely arranged and claimed much attention. The Cass City Milling Co. had a booth just outside the floral hall and served hot coffee and biscuits to the public, thereby demonstrating the excellent qualities of their flours—the White Foam and White Lily brands. Judging from the large number that availed themselves of the opportunity and the complimentary remarks made regarding the products, the efforts of Manager Heller and his corps of assistants were heartily appreciated.

Agricultural Hall was filled with fruits, vegetables and grains. There was a large display of apples of all varieties and the vegetable samples were fine. Just outside the hall Striffler & McDermott had a machinery display of an Alamo gasoline engine and DeLaval cream separators, Ehlers & Nique of Shabbona a display of Olds gasoline engines, and Henry Wetlaufer demonstrated a cement machine.

The program of special free attractions were pleasing in every respect. Palaro Bros. did some difficult tricks in their "Fun at the Mill" and provoked many a laugh. Rounds' Ladies Orchestra furnished excellent music. In the ball game Wednesday afternoon, the Owendale team was strengthened by Graham, Ehlers and Duncanson, all local men, and that team had the best of the deal all the way. They won from Kingston at a score of 7 to 2.

Prof. Levi Jeremay made a nice ascension with his balloon Friday afternoon. He was unfortunate in having one of his balloons damaged Wednesday while getting ready for the ascension. While engaged in filling it, the top caught fire, having been weighted down by the showers which fell at intervals during the afternoon. On Thursday the wind was too strong to make the ascension.

"Midway" was certainly an animated and interested thoroughfare. There were more than the usual number of side shows, and refreshment booths, besides a dancing pavilion, a merry-go-round and a Ferris wheel.

For the amount of money hung up, Cass City never had such good races and they were the best that have been held here in several years. The rain Wednesday morning made the track unfit for speed events that afternoon, but on Thursday there were three good ones. The following is the summary of the races held that afternoon:

Weak Heart Action

There are certain nerves that control the action of the heart. When they become weak, the heart action is impaired. Short breath, pain around heart, choking sensation, palpitation, fluttering, feeble or rapid pulse, and other distressing symptoms follow. Dr. Miles Heart Cure is a medicine especially adapted to the needs of these nerves and the muscular structure of the heart itself. It is a strengthening tonic that brings speedy relief. Try it.

"For years I suffered with what I thought was stomach trouble, when the doctors told me I had heart trouble. I had tried many remedies, when the Dr. Miles' Almanac came into my hands, and I concluded to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I have taken three bottles, and now I am not suffering at all. I am cured and this medicine did it. I write this in the hope that it will attract the attention of others who suffer as I did."

CAN'T BE TRAINED TO THINK.

Experiment Proved That Monkey Can Imitate, But He Is Incapable of Thought.

This difference between the animal and the human idea of what constitutes "knowing" comes out nicely in a piece of work done at Clark university, A. J. Kinnman's study of rhesus monkeys, the Bandar-log of the "Jungle Book." The monkey, following the usual procedure, learned to get his food from a box, the lid of which fastened with a key. The key, however, could not be withdrawn from the lock. After the monkey had become familiar with the device, and could operate it as readily as a man could do, the experimenter took the key out of the lock and laid it on the floor in front of the box. The monkey picked up the key, played with it, but made no attempt to use it. Then the experimenter took up the key, and, 50 times in succession, with the monkey two feet away, watching every motion, he unlocked the box. The monkey would have starved before he imitated that simple act. He had learned to open the box by making certain movements; he had no idea of the key as an instrument in the process. We—sometimes—think instruments and means and causes; the animal thinks largely motions.—E. T. Brewster, in McClure's.

If people with the symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble could realize their danger they would without loss of time commence taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. This great remedy stops the pain and the irregularities, strengthens and builds up these organs and there is no danger of Bright's disease or other serious disorder. Do not disregard the early symptoms. L. I. Wood & Co.

Disappointments That Soothe. "Sometimes our disappointments come to be recognized as blessings," said the ready-made philosopher. "That's a fact," answered the flippant person. "It's always a sweet relief to me to discover in the morning that I forgot to wind the alarm clock."

Hoarseness in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has peaked, it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

A Suggestion. A certain retired merchant of Pittsburg is, in the good old phrase, as tight as wax, but has a passion to be considered a "spender" and good liver, never neglecting an opportunity to refer to his "wine cellar," etc. A short while ago he snared a well known clubman and had him at his house for dinner. A bottle of sherry was produced with considerable ostentation and the glasses were filled. The host held his to the light, then drank and smacked his lips. "What do you think of that, hey?" he suggested.

"Why—er—very good," the guest commented, setting his glass upon the table. "But, I say, old man," he added in a confidential tone, "I know a place where you can get wine even cheaper than this!"—Brooklyn Life.

Both Boys Saved. Louis Boon, a leading merchant of Norway, Mich., writes: "Three bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar absolutely cured my boy of a severe cough and a neighbor's boy, who was so ill with a cold that the doctors gave him up, was cured by taking Foley's Honey and Tar." Nothing else is as safe and certain in results. L. I. Wood & Co.

The Woman Beautiful. "Men sometimes abuse women," says an observing man, "for thinking so much about their clothes, when, instead, they should rise up and call them blessed. A lovely woman in garments that are tasteful and appropriate, whether they are of simple homespun or costly silk, is a living poem in a prosaic world. The woman who always keeps herself looking beautiful does not do so without a lot of labor, and the fact that she takes the trouble is an evidence of unselfishness and amiability and not of frivolity."

Foley's Honey and Tar clears the air passages, stops the irritation in the throat, soothes the inflamed membranes, and the most obstinate cough disappears. Sore and inflamed lungs are healed and strengthened, and the cold is expelled from the system. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. L. I. Wood & Co.

Russia's Financial Situation. A pamphlet published in England "for distribution among people who may be asked to give financial aid to Russia by purchasing the state bonds of that country," says: "The financial condition of the empire is abnormal, according to the statement of Tcherewansky of the imperial finance commission. Exports are continually falling off and imports increasing. Never since the famine year—1892—has the breadstuff report been so poor. The hope of the empire lies in taxation, and it is a grave question whether this will be adequate to meet the nation's obligations."

It is in time of sudden mishap or accident that Chamberlain's Liniment can be relied upon to take the place of the family doctor, who cannot always be found at the moment. Then it is that Chamberlain's Liniment is never found wanting. In cases of sprains, cuts, wounds and bruises Chamberlain's Liniment takes out the soreness and drives away the pain. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

NEW IDEA FOR LAUNDRY BAG

Chief Recommendation Is That It Does Away with Annoying Drawing String.

For a long time the familiar variety of laundry bag, done in two colors, embroidered and held together at the neck by a string, has been an item among the holiday gifts. But in spite of its prettiness the annoying draw string rendered it impractical.

Here is a laundry bag that solves the difficulty. It has not only the capacity for holding many articles of clothing, but the easiest possible way of receiving them. Simply lift one ring from the hook by which it is suspended and the bag is opened wide. It is equally ready to take in or dump out its contents.

The necessary materials are one and one-fourth yards of art ticking or cretonne, two crocheted rings, one inch in diameter or larger, one and one-half yards of featherbone and one roll of white bias binding one and one-half inch wide. Cut a four-inch strip from the entire length of the material. Now cut two pieces 23 inches long and 25 inches wide. Round the corners on the lower edges. Divide the featherbone in halves and stitch it on the under side of each piece ten inches from the top, as represented by dotted lines in the illustration. From the ends of the featherbone shape to a point in the middle of the top. Care must be taken to match the pattern when the large pocket it stitched on the outside. Join the two pieces together by stitching each to the four-inch strip of cloth, with the seams on the outside. Bind first the seams and last the upper edges, sew the rings to the points at the top.

A bag expressly for tablecloths and napkins may be made in the same way from white linen or any other suitable material, and a large embroidered or outlined initial or monogram takes the place of the pocket.

WIDER RIBBONS BEING WORN

This Means Increased Expense, and Their Care Has Become a Matter of Moment.

Laundryable or lingerie ribbons are markedly wider than were those formerly in general use. The majority of the threadings for the tops of corset covers, chemises and combination garments are an inch wide, while those used on petticoat flounces, night robes and negligees measure fully two inches across. This fashion so materially increases the expense of keeping up the lingerie that the care of the reserve supply of delicately tinted ribbons is of importance. As it is more economical to purchase these ribbons by the bolt, they should be kept rolled up in their original paper ribbons, which should be extended as nearly as possible to the outer end of the roll. Long eyed bodkins are specially provided for running these wide ribbons through lingerie headings, but for the traveler who is prone to mislay her toilet utensils these are tag-ended ribbons which come in two yard lengths.

While all the staple pink, blue, green and yellow tints are still popular, ultra fashionable girls are using old rose, vine, grape, dahlia, fuchsia, emerald, aeroplane and the various orchid shades in lingerie ribbons.

Linings Are Peculiar.

Linings are peculiar this season. A peep inside some frocks shows a half lining or a piece thereof. No longer does one find a dress "with all appurtenances thereto affixed," as the lawyer would say. The lining may now consist of a little sheer piece of goods on which the long waist is built. It firmly holds the satin, foulard or silk over the hips to support the heavy flounce. In a sheer dress with panel front, fitted to the form, and a loose back the lining is attached to the side seams of the front panel and hooks in the back. Diaphanous yokes are lined, and so are many sleeves. The peek-a-boo waist is not seen this year. What was the peek-a-boo waist is now backed with net.

A Necessary Yoke.

There never has been a time when the fitted and shaped, ready-to-wear petticoat yoke has been more necessary than it now is. It is absolutely impossible to wear shirtings with the present princess frock, and the alternative is the immediate reconstruction of the petticoat top. This should be done by the maker, whose "ready-to-wear" is a misnomer every time it has to be ripped and re-made.

These delightfully usable yokes are made of a somewhat elastic webbing. They are doubled and, while finished above and at the buttoning point, they are left open for the insertion of the petticoat top. Almost every notion counter supplies them in black, gray and white.

For Evening. Exquisite silk voiles printed in Louis XVI. designs are among the new importations for evening frocks.

THE MATTER OF SPENDING.

Much Truth in the Assertion That Any One Can Afford Anything If He Thinks He Can.

We are all of us inclined to feel that a certain sum spent for a certain thing is extravagance while the same sum expended for something else is not undue extravagance on the part of an almost pauper.

Well, here is Mecaenas, junior, spends $7 for a dinner with wine and gets so befuddled at it that next day he is not sure whether he died at all, but he has a dim recollection that some lobster disagreed with him...

How wildly extravagant to spend so large a sum and get so little for it! No man but a millionaire would ever do such a thing.

Still, I'm not sure that we won't find that Jack M. Pekunios, who is glad to make a thousand dollars a year by the sale of his landscapes, has spent just the same amount and got as little for it.

He had a year's lease of his house, for which he paid $25 a month, and on the first of June he left it and went down to Provincetown to paint for three months.

Old Alexander Q. Croesus has the notion that he hasn't much time for pleasure, so he and his wife—who is deaf—go to the opera just once in a season, and it costs them $10.

Little Eleanor Shaminiart—whose name belies her, for she is genuine clear through—has lots of time in the evenings, but she hasn't much money.

Any one can afford anything if he thinks he can.

MAN'S EVER-RESTLESS SPIRIT.

Iron Hand of "Things" Is Evidenced in the Constant Change That Seems Part of Life.

"It seems to me very strange," said Mark Twain one day, "that people ever move. The happiest day in the life of old John Bunyan was the day they threw him into prison.

Here the humorist voiced, as he often does, a profound truth. It reached to the core of one of the most trying evils of life, especially of modern life.

Huckleberry Finn. D. A. McDaniel of Chicago, arrived in the city recently. He asked the first thing about his old playmate, Dr. R. A. Gardner...

Raymond Remington, 28, of Battle Creek, is dead of suffocation, caused by smoking cigarettes.

Since Frank T. Ley, estate factory inspector, visited Big Rapids, there is much ado among the pretty milliners as to how they can conform to the new 54-hour law for female employes...

"Here is an editorial in the paper entitled 'The Rebellious Wife,'" remarked Mrs. Ponsobny.

"Well," observed Mr. Ponsobny, "I'd much rather write an editorial about her than try to make her surrender."

THE ONLOOKER WILBUR D. NESBIT.

THE IMPORTANT POINT.

"I heard a woman make a speech," He said; "She spoke with might; She had a lesson she would teach, To lead men to the right."

"I heard a woman sing a hymn," He said; "Her voice was sweet, The church was hushed, the light was dim— And even on the street The ever rushing, bustling crowd Paused for a moment's space."

"I saw a woman quell A wretch who beat a child. Her bonnet—O, 'twas very swell With flowers on it piled. Her dress was made of blue gros grain With jacket bolero, The skirt was cut in demi train— Her veil tied in a bow."

Check! The fond young wife, dressed in her most becoming gown, with her hair arranged to set off her beautiful face perfectly, meets her husband at the door when he returns from his daily toil.

She is solicitous as to his welfare; she just knows he is tired to death; she insists that he must put on his slippers and be comfortable.

The dinner is composed of things he likes most, and his wife chats merrily to him during the meal. It is the realization of his ideal of what a home and home-coming should be.

After dinner she leads the way to the cozy library, where his favorite chair is drawn up where he will get the best light; his favorite magazine is ready for him and some of his favorite cigars wait on the library table.

Wife perches herself on the arm of his chair, lights his cigar for him, and is just about to say something when he looks up at her knowingly, takes a magazine from his pocket, opens it to an article explaining how best to broach the subject of a new hat to a husband, and says:

"I certainly enjoyed that dinner—but I read the program on the way home in the car."

Another View. If it took my sisters beau as long to say howdydo as it takes him to say good night he wouldn't get into the house until ten o'clock.

To Restore a Silk Hat. If the hat has been thrown into the alley with the contents of the waste basket, take it up quickly, rap the brim several times against the fence to free it from the dust. Then take the hat around to the front door, push the bell, and when the maid comes, ask to see Mr. Jones, or whatever is the name of the man. The maid will usher you into the parlor. When Mr. Jones appears, hold the hat toward him, thrust it into his hands and say: "Mr. Jones, here is your old silk hat."

Another Crusade Wanted. "I tell you," says the caller, "the reformers may be laughed at, but their work in the insurance field, and the foodstuffs affair, and in other lines has been splendid."

"Yes," sighs the host, "and next thing they ought to take up is the brutality of the manufacturer of popular songs."

Even as he speaks the young lady, next door begins to warble the latest hit, "Although Your Hand Is Moist, I Love to Squeeze It."

Just So. It is all very well to observe that every cloud has a silver lining, but it is not always necessary to draw attention to the cloud while looking for the lining.

To the Pumpkin Pie. O golden pumpkin pie! Thou art A soothing song the Autumn sings— Unles with crafty, wicked art Thou'rt made of turnips, radishes, squash, yellow ochre, fuller's earth, cornmeal and a lot of other things!

Much Safer. "Here is an editorial in the paper entitled 'The Rebellious Wife,'" remarked Mrs. Ponsobny.

"Well," observed Mr. Ponsobny, "I'd much rather write an editorial about her than try to make her surrender."

JAMES MCKENZIE, THE AUCTIONEER of Cass City, who has 18 auction sales at this early writing says he does not attribute his success to his popularity, but rather to the fact that he is able to deliver the goods that bring the money. Are you about to make a sale? Then don't trust your hard earned horses, cattle, etc., in the hands of a dinky auctioneer. Because a man may have been successful at taking orders for Teddy bears or selling corn salve at a county fair is no sign that he is a fit man to sell your goods. An Awful Affair.

All who know about art are acquainted with that celebrated statue of ancient times which represents a young boy in the act of removing a thorn from his foot. But the effect which the masterpiece produces is not usually like the one it made on Mrs. Jedediah Weeds when she first visited Europe. Pressed for her opinion on art as seen over there, she exclaimed: "As a rule, mind you, the statues wear skurceley any clothes and don't seem to mind in the least. Why, swan to heck, Jedediah and I saw one young bronze boy who had nothing on at all but a thorn in his foot, and he was doin' his level best to take that off!"

Every day he has his corner, where his wide-armed chair is placed, and he sits sometimes, and muses with his fingers interlaced—Muses, doubtless, of the drifting of the years that come and go. (And his eyes have caught their sunshine and his hair has held their snow.)

So he nods there in his corner, and it seems a place apart. Seems a spot afar from stresses of the street and of the mart, Seems a place that asks no portion of the rushing world without—Just his corner, with his armchair, and his books spread roundabout.

Here he dreams betimes, and dozes, here he hums the olden songs, Here his heart is always happy—he has long forgot his wrongs— And when lamps are lit at twilight, here within his inglenook He will spend an hour of comfort with an olden friend—a book.

But the best of all—the children! How they love those songs of his! How their feet have worn a pathway straight to where his corner is! And he drops his books and papers, and each little lass and chap Hears the wondrous fairy stories from the throne on grandpa's lap.

Or the children laugh and scamper in some game about his chair— And the light creates a halo of his quaintly silvered hair— And the children understand him; they are playmates all, in truth, For they sense the bond that links happy age to joyous youth.

And I sometimes think that Heaven is a place serene and fair With a plenty tempting corners, each with one big wide-armed chair And a grandfire throned upon it with the children at his knee, Piling all the joys of Heaven with the music of their glee.

Advice for "Amazette." Amazette B. asks us for a new salad, that she may serve at a little luncheon to be given next Tuesday to a small company in honor of her dear friend, Miss Suthers of Kentucky, who is coming for a short visit, and who is one of the famous beautiful Suthers girls who are so often pictured in the magazines, and whom she met down east last summer, and she is simply going to have a light luncheon, with dainty trimmed sandwiches, consomme in cups, the salad and an ice, because Miss Suthers, whose brother you remember almost married the daughter of a Russian nobleman while he—Mr. Suthers, not the nobleman—was yachting a year or so ago, the time, you remember, that the yacht upset and the nobleman rescued the party, and so of course she wants to have a really pretty luncheon for Miss Suthers and would be ever so truly obligated for a recipe.

Take a handful of mace, rub the dish with garlic, add cayenne pepper, salt, oil, horse radish, candied ginger and vinegar; toss in a head of lettuce, a bunch of mint, four pieces of licorice root, eight green persimmons. Bring to a boil, and simmer all morning. Serve hot with whipped cream. Let us know how this tastes. If it is good, we will try it.

She Had Not Forgotten. With a crash the automobile ran into the fence at the side of the road, jumped ten feet in the air, whirled end for end and threw the young man and young woman halfway across the field.

Picking himself up, the man rushes to the side of the girl and asks if she is hurt. "No," she whispers. "But—but weren't you about to steal a kiss when the accident happened?"

In Bad Shape. "Doctor," moaned the man with the haggard face, "I am in awful shape."

"Sit down," soothingly said the physician. "Calm yourself. What seems to be troubling you?" "I've got water on the brain, a sinking sensation in my stomach, my head swims and I've got a floating kidney."

With his best professional air, the physician sailed in and soaked him.

Cured. "My hair is falling"—thus with gloom She was her friends advising. They put her in a haunted room, And soon her hair was rising.

How Girls Are Judged. Some men can take in all a girl wears; the average man sees if she be the kind he likes—or the other kind. If he cannot go into details, he can, however, see whether. Her shoes are run down at the heels or any of the buttons are gone. Her gloves have holes in the tips and would be better for soap suds or gasoline. She looks "band-boxy" or as if she had never heard of pressing. She is spotty or slouchy or neat and trim. Men may be impressionists as to colors and materials; they are etchers when it comes to noticing little things that bespeak slovenliness. Do not forget, girls, that it is by such little things that you are judged, rather than by what you pay for your clothes or how well you carry them.—Exchange.

Love Must Be Reciprocal. If love is to be genuinely, permanently satisfying, it necessarily must be reciprocal. To hark back to first principles, love, as created, merely is the essential and absorbing need which one man feels for one particular woman, one woman for one man, and for him only, so long as they both shall live, which needs make the two content, nay, joyful, to forsake all others and cleave each to each.

No Eggs for Horses. It has been claimed that it is a good thing to feed eggs to stallions during the breeding season, but a noted New England veterinarian says a well-nourished horse would not be greatly benefited by being fed eggs. It is a fact that eggs are highly nutritious and might be used to advantage if an animal lacked vitality. However, the digestive system of the horse is not capable of digesting animal proteins, and consequently he would not be able to secure the full benefit of such foods.

A REGENERATED COTTON FARM.

During the past four or five years the department of agriculture at Washington has issued bulletins giving account of some of the best managed farms of different types to be found in the country with the idea that such practical object lessons would be beneficial to other farmers not meeting with so large a measure of success. The plan has seemed to be a decided success, and much interest has been manifested in the published bulletins. The latest to be put out by the department is farmers' bulletin No. 364, which gives an account of a profitable cotton farm in South Carolina. Seven years ago, when the present owner took possession of this piece of land, it was a played out, rundown proposition, a type of scores to be found in the cotton belt, producing but five to eight bushels of corn or 300 pounds of seed cotton per acre. The methods adopted for its regeneration were a deep and thorough cultivation of the soil, the use of barnyard manure and some commercial fertilizers, the rotation of crops and the exercise of industry and good judgment on the part of the owner. The farm contains 132 acres, only half of which is devoted to crops. The first year the new methods were tried one and one-half bales of cotton and thirty-seven bushels of corn were produced per acre. At present the owner gets a yield of two and one-quarter bales of cotton, eighty-five bushels of corn and eighty bushels of oats per acre. He keeps twenty-four head of native cattle, mainly for the manure, though they give him a small profit besides. From a discouraging and bankrupt proposition this farm has been brought to the point where it yields a large income and a handsome profit. The bulletin, which may be had by writing one's representative or senator or to the department at Washington, should be in the hands of every cotton state farmer who is not making the most of his agricultural opportunities. It will give him light.

TIME TO WAKE UP.

It is becoming more apparent every day to those who have a thought for the future welfare of our varied and extensive horticultural interests that congress should take up at an early date serious consideration of laws which will secure a stringent and thorough inspection of fruits and all kinds of nursery stock brought into the country or shipped from state to state. Measures of this kind have been before congress at previous sessions, but somehow the nurseryman has seemed to have a bigger pull than the enormous fruit growing interests of the country. It's time this thing was turned about and the large class who suffer from the shipment of diseased nursery stock were given a hearing. These people have representatives at Washington; but, as in a good many other instances, it is the "other fellow," the special interest chap, whose claims are first considered. To show the need of the enactment of a law of the character referred to, there may be cited from many instances the importation last year on pear and apple seedlings from France of numerous nests of the brown tailed moth, the worst insect pest known, and the scattering of it all over the country. Much the same thing took place in the case of the European scale, resembling the San Jose scale, which was likewise scattered broadcast. These are cases in which an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure and costs but an infinitesimal part as much. A number of states have stringent inspection regulations, but these only effect a partial relief. Such laws should be made nation wide.

OPENINGS FOR HUSTLERS.

Opportunities for securing cheap land that has real value are about gone. Henceforth the energies of those who do not go to Canada or elsewhere will have to be devoted to a better handling of lands already under cultivation or the restoration of those which have been reduced to bankruptcy through long continued soil robbery. While there would be discouragements at the start, it would seem that along this line there are many good openings in eastern and southern states for any man who has the grit and intelligence necessary to succeed in a pioneer proposition. The regeneration mentioned can be effected through a more thorough cultivation of the soil, the use of natural and commercial fertilizers, the adoption of a crop rotation which should include one of the legumes—clover, alfalfa, field peas or beans—and a change from the selling of the raw products of the farm to marketing the finished products in the shape of beef, mutton, pork, poultry, dairy products, etc. Many a farm in the sections mentioned is being made over by the adoption of these methods, and hundreds of others may be if the right man gets hold of them.

Two or three small pieces of blue vitriol will kill the bacterial life that is responsible for the bad smells in the soft water cistern.

The presence of some forms of vegetable life in the soil seems to be a poison to others. For instance, cockle-burs in a piece of soil have been found to be very detrimental to a growth of red clover.

It is better for a fellow's satisfaction and peace of mind if he doesn't inquire too closely just how much his prairie chickens or partridges cost him in time and money the first day of the open season.

The largest apple of which there is authentic record was a specimen of the Wolf river variety exhibited at the national apple show at Spokane last December, which measured seventeen and one-half inches in circumference. It need not be added that it was just as poor in quality as it was large.

The safest as well as most effective method for the disposal of the carcasses of animals that have died of disease is to burn them completely. This may take a bit more time, but it will keep dogs or other scavengers from uncovering and scattering the remains about as a fruitful source of contagion.

According to a London paper, the grouse moors of Scotland yield a revenue in rentals of from $1,000 to $2,500 annually. The practice of letting the moors seems to have started in 1805, when $25 was received for one near Pitlochry, but for twenty or more years after this the revenues amounted to little or nothing.

Recent inspection of a great many fields of tilled crops—corn, potatoes, etc.—seems to indicate without exception that the poorest crops are to be found on the fields which have been given least cultivation and bear the largest and rankest crop of weeds. There's a vital connection here that a good many tillers of the soil ought to be wakening up to.

A farsighted landlord we once knew used to hurry up the fall plowing by offering his tenant a premium of so much per acre for all of the plow land that was turned under before the 1st of September. Under this plan the tenant was forehanded, while a whole lot of weeds were kept from seeding and fouling the land for the following year. The plan is one that many another owner might follow with profit.

While an overfeeding of immature corn may not be the direct cause of hog cholera or swine plague, as it is commonly known, it undoubtedly does cause a disordered condition of the system, which makes it easy for disease of any kind to get a hold. Corn is likely to be cheaper and hence more generously fed than last year, and naturally the danger from the source mentioned will be correspondingly increased.

The annual meeting of the National Horticultural society will be held at Council Bluffs, Ia., Nov. 15 to 20. Forty-two states, Canada and Mexico will exhibit their varied horticultural products. Prizes aggregating $35,000 will be awarded in a great many different classes. It is the aim of the directors of the association to make the congress instructive and entertaining to the greatest degree possible. Any desiring to enter vegetables, nuts, fruits or flowers should address the superintendent, F. L. Reed, Council Bluffs, Ia.

Some private and co-operative creameries in Illinois and other dairy states are following a plan which does much to encourage patrons to increase the size of their dairy herds. The plan consists in helping the patron to select good cows and in lending him money with which to buy other cows. One-half of the amount of his subsequent milk checks is withheld until the cows bought are paid for. This plan not only gives the farmer a small means a lift, but is a direct benefit to the creamery whose volume of business is thereby increased. Within reasonable limits this plan would seem to be most excellent.

Fifty-one millions of dollars is given as the extent of the damage to chestnut trees in portions of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, near New York city, from a bark disease which has been found to be of fungous origin. In Forest park, Brooklyn, alone 16,000 trees have succumbed to the pest. The department of agriculture has made a study of the disease and suggests as means of prevention that all nursery stock shipped be inspected and that all affected trees be cut down and completely burned in the shape of fuel and brush. It is thought that this disease came from Japan in shipments of nursery stock, though the fact has not been fully established.

Radical measures sometimes have to be adopted to stamp out diseases among farm animals. During the recent outbreak of the foot and mouth disease in some of the eastern states the plague was discovered in a herd of 126 cattle near Lasalle, N. Y. As soon as the government inspectors were notified they had a trench dug 10 feet wide, 8 feet deep and 175 feet long. The herd was driven close to the edge of this pit and shot, the bodies toppling over into it or being pushed in and later covered with several feet of earth. Measures of this kind imposed a heavy loss on the owner of infected herds, but only in such way can a spread of plagues be prevented.

The chief drawback with the best hired men that one can get is that they are likely to possess brains and energy enough so that just as soon as possible they like to go into business on their own hook.

While it is not an infallible sign, it is usually the case that the fewest weeds are found on the farms which are best and most profitably managed, as the strength of soil consumed in producing them cannot be utilized by growing crops.

If the young pigs are weak boned and break down on the way to market or before, it is pretty good evidence that the ration given them has not had enough bone forming material in it. This is just as necessary as the fat and flesh forming elements and may be provided by feeding the pigs wood or cob charcoal and ashes during the growing period.

The temper and disposition of the cow are largely determined by the care she receives as a heifer. This is brought to mind by a fine little Jersey heifer we know of that was bothered by some thoughtless little girls. She has sharp horns and now makes for any girl of the same size who happens to come near her. A bad habit has been formed, and the horns will have to come off.

Argentina exports more beef to the United Kingdom than does the United States, and no small part of her ability to do this lies in the 9,000,000 acres of alfalfa which at present furnish much of the forage for her beef cattle. It takes from one to two acres of the legume to carry a mature steer through the year. The best steers raised are sold for export and fetch the grower about $50 per head.

For two or three years past sheepmen of the southwest have sustained some loss from what is styled by the Mexicans "pingue," an ailment resulting from the eating of the rubber plant or weed. While little systematic study has been given the disease, a ranger on the Carson national forest reserve in New Mexico has tried drenches of hot water and salt with very good success, the drenches being given every hour until the animals showed improvement. Speedy relief followed the application of the remedy, which, to say the least, is cheap and harmless.

It is frequently stated by those opposed to the tuberculin test as a means of ridding dairy herds of tuberculosis that if the tuberculin is injected into the system of an animal not affected it will contract the disease as a consequence. This misconception seems to overlook the fact that the culture which is used in making the test is thoroughly and completely sterilized before it is used, making a contraction of the disease in this manner by a healthy animal an impossibility. Moreover, the extensive use of the tuberculin in testing hundreds of dairy herds gives practical proof that healthy animals do not contract the disease in the manner suggested.

The farmers' wives in a section of the small grain belt this year are on a strike in the matter of furnishing sumptuous spreads for from fifteen to twenty thrashing hands and declare that hereafter thrashing crews that come to their places will have to bring along their own mess tent and cook. It's a wonder this strike hasn't come sooner, as in good conscience the average farmer's wife has enough to do in the line of routine duties without being swamped with cooking for thrashers. A feature that has made a bad matter worse in the past is the fact that there has been a bit of rivalry between the housewives of some localities to bear the reputation of preparing the most elaborate fare.

Not all real estate agents are liars, but enough are so given to exaggerating that it is a pretty good idea for the land seeker before trying up his hard earned money in a proposition to inspect very thoroughly the piece he contemplates buying. This should include digging down several feet with a spade to ascertain exactly what the subsoil is, whether soil at all or only gravel and stone, and whether the water comes too near to the surface. This procedure may be deemed "fussy" by some, but it is likely to save a good deal of fruitless "fussing" later on. If the land in question were a gift such minute examination of what lies beneath the surface would doubtless be in poor taste, but not so if it is received in exchange for good hard money.

The Wisconsin and Minnesota experiment stations, in co-operation with the department of agriculture, are this season conducting a series of experiments in the northern parts of the states with a view to finding out what are the cheapest as well as the most effective methods of removing the stumpage from cut over lands, many of which at present, owing to the difficulty of getting rid of the stumps, are not being readily taken up by settlers for agricultural purposes. Statistics will also be collected from farms at present engaged in clearing land, and the gist of the findings and the results of new experiments will be later embodied in a bulletin. This clearing of the land after it has been lumbered is an expensive as well as a mighty prosy job, and if methods can be discovered by which it can be done any easier the efforts of these investigators will be well worth while.

The Scrap Book

An Abbreviation.
A colonel of a British regiment in South Africa who was repairing a railroad after one of General De Wet's many breakages discovered a fine empty house, which he proceeded to occupy as headquarters.
When the news of the colonel's comfortable quarters reached Bloemfontein he received a telegram which read:
"G. T. M. wants house."
The colonel was unable to make out what "G. T. M." meant and inquired of officers, who translated it "general traffic manager."
"All right," said the colonel. "If he can use hieroglyphics so can I."
So he wired back:
"G. T. M. can G. T. H."
Two days later he received a dispatch from Bloemfontein ordering him to attend a board of inquiry. On appearing in due course he was asked what he meant by sending such an insulting message to a superior officer.
"Insulting?" repeated the colonel innocently. "It was nothing of the kind."
"But what do you mean," demanded his superior, "by telling me I can 'G. T. H.'?"
"It was simply an abbreviation," replied the colonel—"G. T. M. (general traffic manager) can G. T. H. (get the house)."

The Inspiration.
Whenever a noble deed is wrought,
Whenever is spoken a noble thought,
Our hearts in glad surprise
To higher levels rise.
The tidal wave of deeper souls
Into our midst being rolls
And lifts us unawares
Out of all meaner cares.
Honor to those whose words or deeds
Thus help us in our daily needs
And by their overflow
Raise us from what is low.
—Longfellow.

The Epicure.
A French waiter in a fashionable restaurant had just served an epicurean guest with a culinary masterpiece and was in a talkative mood.
"My brother, Gustav of Dax," he said, "is a renowned gourmet. They talk all over Dax of Gustav's way of grilling a lamb cutlet. It is a good way, but expensive. My brother always grills his own chops. He won't trust the work to any one else. He does it like this: He lays three chops, one on top of the other, on the grill. Seated before the fire, he turns the chops over and over till the two outer ones are done to a very dry brown. The middle one only is the one he eats. Ah, but it must be delicious! It has received, you see, all the rich, delicate juices of the other two."

The guest sneered. "And does he throw the other two away?" he asked.
"Oh, no," the waiter answered. "He gives them to his wife."

Well Equipped.
A bishop was a guest at the home of a friend who had two charming daughters. One morning the bishop, accompanied by the two young ladies, went out in the hope of catching some trout. An old fisherman, out for the same purpose, wishing to appear friendly, called out:
"Ketchin' many, pard?"
The bishop, drawing himself to his full height, replied, "Brother, I am a fisher of men."

A Real Chucklehead.
"The late Congressman Cushman," said a Tacoma man, "was justly called the 'wit of the house.' He never lacked an anecdote wherewith to point and season his remarks."
"Once in a Tacoma speech he told us not to be chuckleheaded, shallow people, doing the wrong thing, deceiving none but ourselves."
"Don't," he cried, "be like the beefy English officer."

"Then he explained that this officer, being seated next to an elderly stranger at a dinner, leaned over and said:
"Who's that fat old hippopotamus of a woman opposite?"
"That's my wife," was the reply.
"Thanks," said the officer hastily. "Thanks. That's all I wanted to know."
"And he turned to his neighbor on the other side and whispered, with a chuckle:
"Got devilish well out of that, I think, eh?"

Don't Wait Too Long.
It is a sad weakness in us, after all, that the thought of a man's death hallows him anew to us, as if life were not sacred, too—as if it were comparatively a light thing to fall in love and reverence to the brother who has to climb the whole toilsome steep with us and all our tears and tenderness were due to the one who is spared that hard journey.—George Eliot.

Best Used Every Day.
"Piety," said Uncle Eben, "is sumpin' like yoh Sunday clothes. You gets de mos' benefit fum dem when you wears 'em every day in de week, even if dey doesn't attract so much attention."

Nested in a Bee Hive.
An unusual sight was witnessed at West Ashby, near Horncastle, England, where a wagtail built its nest in a bee hive and sat on ten eggs, despite the bees being busy at work below. The bird entered by the roof of the hive through a small hole. It carried quite a heap of hay and other material bit by bit through this hole, and made a cosy nest. The bees were by no means disturbed by their lodger.

Miss Carrie Marcham

Mrs. Richard Gray.

Mr. F. G. Fritz, Oneonta, N. Y., writes: "My little girl was greatly benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative, and I think it is the best remedy for constipation and liver trouble." Foley's Orino Laxative is mild, pleasant and effective and cures habitual constipation. L. I. Wood & Co.

RUGS AND WALLS IN HARMONY

To Have the Floor the Darkest Tone Is Always a Safe Decorative Rule to Follow.

A floor should be the lowest or darkest tone in the room, then the walls and the ceiling the lightest or highest. This is the natural way and the safest to follow as a general rule. It gives a feeling of firmness and solidity to the floor, whereas, if the order is reversed and the floor is lighter than the ceiling, one feels that the ceiling is coming down on one's head and that dodging is the only way to escape a blow. The floor should support the walls in color as well as in fact, but care must be taken not to make the mistake of thinking that strength of color is obtrusiveness of color. Strength of color in the right place will make the scheme of decoration a successful and satisfying one, but obtrusiveness of color will make a hopeless failure of it, declares a writer in the Woman's Home Companion.

The chief color of the rug should be the chief color of the walls—not necessarily the same tone, but harmonizing tones of the same shade. If the walls are a soft yellow, a rug with different shades of brown, and to give the needed note of contrast, dull soft red and blues would look well in the room. This kind of rug would also go well with green or blue walls. The proportion of the different colors in a rug may make or mar it for one's special use. In choosing a rug it is best to have a feeling of one predominant color, with the other colors adding the snap that contrast gives and forming a harmonious and delightful whole.

Before finally deciding on a rug, ask to have it sent to the house to try in the spot for which it is intended, because what looks quite wonderful in the shop may prove quite unsatisfactory in the house. Be sure to try it with the light against the nap and then with it; one will be astonished to see what a difference in the appearance of the rug it makes.

FOULARD WAIST

Blouse of pale blue dotted fouldard ornamented with motifs of guipure. The yoke and sleeve caps are cut in one piece and are of the silk, shirred and trimmed with guipure. The undersleeves, also of the material, are finished with deep cuffs of the guipure. The sash is of plain silk.

Interchangeable Scarf.

The possibilities of the chiffon and the mousseline scarf have never been greater, for, as they appear with almost every costume, madame may obtain an indefinite number of effects by the exercise of merely ordinary ingenuity.

A single scarf may be made to do duty at once for veil and hat trimming while driving, walking or motoring, and the same scarf may appear again in the afternoon as a swathing sash, or even as one of the new Henry III. mantles. In the evening the scarf may again form part of the costume, either as a shoulder throw or as a mantilla.

Veil scarfs of soft silk chiffon may be procured in shades of taupe, natter, blue, rose ecru, khaki and green, besides all the usual pastel shades and black and white. Many, too, may be found with edges hand-painted or embroidered, while others are printed in soft and lovely Persian shades. The woman with the scarf may be far more entrancing and beautiful than even the woman with the fan.

When Making Baby's Bib.

It is a mistake to make a baby's bib of too sheer material. A fine soft linen of opaque grade makes a serviceable as well as a dainty bib. Keep the scallops shallow as heavy scallops ruin the daintiness of the embroidery. Even when the heavier linen is chosen it must be fine, not stiff, the sort of a bib that is a real protection.

Every bib should have a quilted lining underneath it. This is made of two thicknesses of linen either the same grade as outside or coarser. Cut it in the shape of the bib, but a little smaller.

Gloves with Circles.

The smart gloves that many fashionable women are wearing has the back heavily embroidered with circles in colored silk. This is in the color, if not tone, as the kid of the glove.

To Tell Right Side of Goods.

In making up dresses of wool serge it is a time saver to learn that the serge weave's twill always runs to the right on the right side of the goods.

THE DEBATING CLUB.

The fair co-ed for speaking had Decided bent. And she could always beat the lad At argument.

She argued at a wondrous rate, We must admit. He couldn't match her in debate A little bit.

She can outargue him to-day, The neighbors vow; And, often does, it seems, for they Are married now.

Modern Sherlock.

The modern Sherlock climbed through the window and entered the kitchen.

"His wife is away," ejaculated Sherlock, as he surveyed the room with the critical eye of Scotland Yard. "I shall find out how long she has been away."

And then Sherlock began to count the soiled dishes piled up on the shelf.

"She has been away exactly 14 days," he commented.

"And how did you find that out, chief?" asked his assistant.

"Why, it's dead easy. Married men never wash their dishes when their wives are away and there are just 42 soiled plates on the shelf. That means three plates a day for 14 days."

Unusual Luck.

"So you've rented that haunted house, which was on your hands so long?"

"Yes; rented it to an actor."

"Did he find out its reputation?"

"That's the very thing which decided him to take the house."

"Rather surprising!"

"He said it would be such a comfort for him to get inside of a house where the ghost walked every night."

His Finish.

Visitor (at insane asylum)—And who is the poor unfortunate in the padded cell?

Attendant—Oh, he's the chap who started at the beginning of the season to keep the scores and percentages of the various baseball associations.

AFTER THE ACCIDENT.

He had a sandy beard.

Like the Family Bible.

Now Elliot's five feet of books—I hate to say this, but I must—impress me that a few years hence They'll be merely five feet of dust.

Better Than Ever.

Mary Backstoop—Did he tell you life with him would be one grand, sweet song?

Maudie Sidestreet—No; he said it would be one grand, beveled, sweet-toned, silver-coated, indestructible phonograph record.—Puck.

At the Insane Asylum.

"What is that man muttering to himself for and tying all those strings to his fingers?"

"That is a very sad case. He is a man who moved out to the suburbs and went mad trying to remember all his daily commissions."

Putting Her Wise.

"Lamb is always young mutton, isn't it?" queried the sweet girl graduate.

"It is in the dictionary," replied the boarding-house bachelor, "but it often misses connection on the bill of fare."

A Conservative Reply.

Cholly—Is there any law against my standing here, officer?

Guardian of the Peace—Sure, there may be and there may be not. They're ather addin' new laws to the statoot books all the time.—Puck.

A Dangerous Craft.

"Mrs. Yellowbond's houseboat party has broken up."

"Indeed! What was the trouble?"

"All the girls eloped with all the young men."

A Theatrical Paradox.

"There is one contradictory thing actors seem to do."

"What is that?"

"The longer they are at one stand, the more they consider it a run."

New Version.

Tommy—Who was this Jack the Giant Killer, anyway?

Jimmy—Dunno, but I guess it was some pitcher named Jack, who shut the Giants out without a hit.

Possibly.

"Do you think Mrs. Gould ever bit any of her guests?"

"Probably not, but some of them may have felt as if they had been stung."

Natural Consequence.

"How was it he came to grief?"

"By being a joy rider."
