Writes Interesting Sketch About Trip for the Chronicle.

Article Will Be Continued Next Week.

To Editor Cass City Chronicle: Dear Sir:-As requested I will endeavor to give a brief digest of my western trip.

I left home and Cass City friends July 28th and accompanied by John Barnes I boarded the train for Bay City. From here we took a train to West Branch reaching that place at 7 p. m., in plenty of time for supper. Securing quarters at the hotel, we began to skirmish the town, and to our surprise we found a few whom we knew. Among them was Jake Seeley, who is prospering finely, conducting a lunch counter in connection with a pool and billiard room. Jake looked well and was glad to see us.

The next morning we secured a livery and drove to Rose City. From here we left to briefly estimate a tract of timbered land which we had learned of heretofore. After a hard day's tramp we returned to West Branch at about midnight. The next day being Saturday John Barnes lit out for home leaving me at said place till Saturday noon when I boarded a train for Frederic.

At Frederic I took a lumber-jack train for Alba, and from here to East Jordan. On this trip I was surprised WANT TO ARRANGE to see so much timber untouched. The price on this timber is very high, too high for me and my limited knowledge of timber on the stump. I arrived at East Jordan after the train had made about three hundred stops and shook us up every way.

After supper I strolled out to see the town and was very favorably impressed. It is a very picturesque little town of about 2,500 population; ranks a little ahead of our own little town. The next day was Sunday and as I had by appointment to meet a brother in Chicago Tuesday, there was no rest for me. I secured a livery and was driven to Bellaire. From here I had the most unique trip of my life. A gasoline yacht took me down the rivers and across the little lakes clear to Elk Raplds, arriving there Sunday night. From there I took the train to Traverse City Monday and was accompanied to that place by K. and his little wife.

Wellington's Self Control. One of the best stories of self contro is told of the Duke of Wellington, who in-the peninsular campaign was sit ting at breakfast with Picton and other officers just before the engagement. Orderlies were riding up to the tent every few minutes with news of the steady approach of the enemy. The duke did and said nothing, but by the knitting of his brows was supposed to be deep in thought. Presently he turned to his companions and said: "Was your egg well cooked, Picton? Mine was abominable." The "Iron Duke" was not careless of the issue of the battle about to be fought, but had made his arrangements long before and knew exactly how the enemy would advance and how to counteract it.

Lucky Thirteen.

The number 13, so universally deereed as unlucky, is considered a lucky number by the pupils of the French military school of Saint-Cyr. At the final examination the man who ranks as the thirteenth is believed to have a brilliant career before him. Marshal MacMahon, who entered Saint-Cyr in 1825, as well as Bourbakki, who attended the school nine years later. were graduated thirteenth in their classes. General Laveaucoupet, who distinguished himself in the defense of Metz during the Franco-German war, also ranked thirteenth.

POSTAL & MOREY, Proprietors

Jarred the Judge.

In Illinois there is an old law on the statute books to the effect that in criminal cases the jury is "judge of the law as well as of the facts." Though not often quoted, once in awhile a lawyer with a desperate case makes use of it. In one case the judge instructed the jury that it was to judge of the law as well as the facts, but added that it was not to judge of the law unless it was fully satisfied that it knew more law than the judge. An outrageous verdict was brought in, contrary to all Instructions of the court, who felt called upon to rebuke the jury. At last one old farmer arose. "Jedge," said he, "weren't we to jedge the law as well as the facts?" "Certainly," was the response. "But I told you not to judge the law unless you were clearly satisfied that you knew the law better than I did." "Well, jedge," answered the farmer as he shifted his quid, "we considered that p'int."

The Presentation.

John Smith had worked for the corporation for forty-two years and decided to quit. The company in consideration of his long and faithful service arranged to give him a monetary recognition. The superintendent of the works, a German and an extra good mechanic, was asked to present it. He was advised to use a little sentiment in making the presentation speech, and this is the way he did it: "John, you haf work for the company over forty years?" "Yes."

"You are going to quit?" "Yes."

"Vell, they are so tam glad of it that they asked me to hand you this hundred dollars."

Cockney Talk.

An Englishman who had grown tire of his tight little isle came to this country to teach school. One day while rehearing a class of boys in spelling the word "saloon" was given out. The first boy missed it, likewise the second and the third. The fourth boy, spelling it correctly, was asked to go to the blackboard and write it, so that all could see how it was spelled. Pointing to the word, the teacher said: This is the way you spell it. Easy, isn't it? Just a hess, a hay, a hell, two hoes and a hen" In writing the word the boy had placed the letters conspicuously far apart. This peculiarity did not escans the observing eye of the master, and be asked: "Why did you write it that way?

Why didn't you place the nay nearer the hell?"

"Coz I's afraid it would burn up!" blurted out the irrepressible youngster as he dug his hands into his pockets.

The next word missed was "Venice." It was spelled with two n's.

"What would you say if I told you there were but one hen in Venice?" asked the pedagogue as he surveyed the class critically above the rim of his glasses.

"I should say the price of eggs would be pretty high," came the answer from the boy who stood at the foot of the class.-Housekeeper.

A Puzzled Englishman.

An Englishman returning after a visit to Kentucky sought out an American friend in London to explain some of the queer things he'd heard in America.

"For instance," said the Englishman, "I said to a chap one morning in Kentucky, 'Think it's going to rain?' and he said, 'Little dogs 'twill and little dogs 'twon't.' Now, what did he mean by that?"

The American was puzzled and inquired if those were the exact words used. The Englishman replied:

"Why, yes-er-no. His exact words were, 'P'ups 'twill and p'ups 'twon't!' "

Creation and Art.

To me it seems as if when God conceived the world that was poetry; he formed it, and that was sculpture; he varied and colored it, and that was painting, and then, crowning all, he peopled it with living beings, and that was the grand, divine, eternal drama. -Charlotte Cushman.

He Got the Order. A London firm lately received from another London firm this letter:

Dear Sir-Today we have given your Mr. X. an order, thanks to his colossal impudence. Where did you find him? Mr. X. had only just started selling, and this was an order from a firm that all his predecessors had canvassed in vain. The head of Mr. X.'s firm called him in and questioned him about the tharge of "colossal impudence."

"Well," the young traveler explained, "you told me to adapt myself to all manner of circumstances and behave to possible customers in their own way. In this case the head didn't look up for three minutes after I went in. and then he said, 'Well, what bloodsucking firm do you represent?" I gave him your card and said. These rotten vampires,' and it seemed to tickle him."

MORNING CHORES.

The Early Job That Farmer Judediah Had on Hand.

Although he was pretty glad to take in summer boarders and thus make capital of his small garden produce and his wife's excellent cooking, Jedediah Hubbard always made a great point of never letting his guests-get in ahead of him in any way.

"City, folks that have been around a mite think they know it all f'um A to Izzard," he used to say, "They need somebody to take 'em down a peg or two once in awhile." One morning while he was chewing a long spear of grass near the wood yard he was surprised to see a newly arrived boarder, fully dressed, coming toward him. This propensity of "city fellers" to rise at sunup was quite irregular.

"Good morning!" exclaimed the new comer in a lusty tone.

"Morning!" responded the old man, as if uncertain just what to expect.

"Well, I suppose you have to get up early to see that the haycocks crow properly, don't you?" said the city man, with an airy, jocular familiarity which Jedediah was not slow to re-

"Well, no." he drawled, "not exactly that. I was just out untying some of the knots in the cord wood."

Too Fast For Him.

At the University of Missouri is the first working school of journalism in the world. As practical laboratory work a daily paper with telegraph reports is issued. Walter Williams. its dean, tells of the vicissitudes he encounters in turning laymen into journalists. A student was sent in haste to cover a railroad wreck at a town a few miles away. It was almost time for the daily to go to press, and still no word had been received from the young man on the assignment. In desperation Dean Williams telegraphed, asking why the story was not forthcoming. The reply was:

"Too much excitement. Wait till things quiet down."-Lippincott's.

Success. Success is only for those who are willing to stand by their standards, who are ready to endure the siege of misjudgment, who are prepared to face the fire of criticism and to accept defeat until they become vaccinated against it. Most men who gave up would have arrived if they had kept up.-Kaufman.

Just His Luck. A London bookmaker who was down on his luck was walking along the street feeling very disconsolate. He had a solitary shilling in his pocket. A notice in the window of a restaurant caught his eye: "Special-Roast Beef 12 to 1." "Not bad odds," he thought.

"DASH IT, I'VE LOST!"

Entering the shop, he said: "That roast beef, is it-is it on today?"

The girl behind the counter replied: "Yes. sir."

"Well, I'll put a bob on it and look in again.' He put down the shilling and disappeared. Later on he came back. As he walked in he heard one of the waiters shout: "Mutton one, roast beef two!"

"Dash it, I've lost!" muttered the disappointed booky as he turned away. "Just my luck. I should have backed it for a place!"

Sidney Smith's Answer.

A male Malaprop is said to have asked Sidney Smith this question at a dinner table:

"Aw, Mr. Smith, do you know in which of his journeys around the world Captain Cook was killed-his first or his last?"

Sidney Smith looked up quickly. "I believe it was on his first voyage," said he, "but he doesn't seem to have minded it much, for he immediately set out on his second."

Behind the Screen.

A negro preacher in a Georgia town was edified on one occasion by the recital of a dream had by a member of his church.

"I was a-dreamin' all dis time," said the narrator, "dat I was in ole Satan's dominions. I tell you, pahson, dat was shore a bad dream."

"Was dere any white men dere?"

asked the dusky divine. "Shore dere was-plenty of 'em," the other hastened to assure his minister.

"What was dev a-doin'?" "Ebery one of 'em." was the answer, 'was a-holdin' a cullud pusson between him an' de fire."-Harper's

Christmas Presents

The searcher after Christmas novelties will find nothing more charming than the doll workbags and dainty little gifts made from silks and old world brocades. These novelties unmistakably proclaim their Parisian origin, and, like most importations from the French capital, they are expensive. But from a description of some of these charming trifles their home manufacture is not difficult. Most attractive is a doll workbag. The head of a pretty wax doll, the size of which depends, of course, upon the size of the workbag you wish to make, is purchased. A quaint coal scuttle bonnet of flowered silk is fashioned for the doll's head, which ties in a full bow under the chin. Pieces of buckram standing out to form shoulders is next arranged about the doll's neck, and over this is fitted an old fashioned fichu of silk edged with puffings of the same. This dressed up head forms the top of the bag, the bag itself being a scanty skirt of silk trimmed with flounces in 1830 style. At the top of the skirt is the usual drawstring, which is run through the top of the doll's head and forms a sliding scale in which the bag is opened or closed.

A New Laundry Bag. Here is a laundry bag that cannot elusively conceal in its depths any small article. This new bag is very simple in construction. It is a square of a yard or more of any material that is strong enough for the purpose. Bright cretonne is very good. This square is hemmed and each corner turned back half an inch. On each of the blunted corners thus made is sewed a loop of tape four inches long. Small-

An inner circle is cut out the size of slightly smaller and the edges slit at smoothly to a frame if one be used.

For the crown cut a smaller circle, the size to smoothly cover frame if one is used or big enough to give an easy, shapely top when parts are joined. This circle is cut with eight straps an inch wide and from two to two and a half inches long, according to height desired for crown. Between each strap the edge of circle is cut into a pointed scallop.

The outer edge of circle and straps is then buttonholed in a narrow edge about a quarter of an inch deep. In the end of each strap is put a lengthwise buttonhole and corresponding buttons are put on the brim. Should the crown be used over a gauze frame the brim is first basted to it and the buttons put on frame, or both top and brim can be buttoned to it.

The only trimming for this hat is a broad, soft ribbon drawn under the straps which hold the crown in place. For a little child this is pretty, fastened at each side with fluffy rosettes; for an older person the ribbon can be tied either at back or front in a big Alsatian bow.

When a frame is not used a certain stiffness can be given to crown by running strip of buckram or canvas under the straps before the ribbon is slipped through. If preferred, the pointed scallops between straps can be made longer than the usual scallop, so that they fall loosely over ribbon when the hat is joined.

HATS THAT CAN BE WASHED

Desirable for Children and Also Their Elders-Description of Pretty Model.

A hat that can go into the washtub each week is essential for a child and desirable for grown-ups. A rather new model, that can be easily copied, has two parts that are detchable and held together by buttons and straps. For the brim make a circle of heavy linen as large as you desire your hat to be. The proper size is easily gauged by measuring with a flat, round straw hat that is becoming. Work the edge of circle with an irregular scallop, heavily padded and buttonholed in white or a color.

The brim can be worked with as simple or as elaborate a design as is liked. A number of graduated satin stitch dots or eyelets are effective, or there can be a number of detached leaf sprays radiating from the crown of the hat and spreading toward the outer edge. These can be outlined and filled in with a darning stitch if time presses.

An Explanation.

In our last issue we answered the queries of Amos Tunkerson of East Wind, O., and Mary Ann Jones of Feather Dell, Va. Miss Jones asked us for a recipe for pineapple fudge, and Mr. Tunkerson wanted to know what was good for chigre bites. We have received a letter from Miss Jones asking us what in the world we mean by telling her to try a mixture of hot mutton tallow and camphorated spirits, and if that is not satisfactory to prepare a mixture of oxide of zinc, alcohol, listerine, bichloride of merscratching and thereafter not to walk

"No. And she doesn't smear powder and paint on her face, or daub her eyebrows with black stuff, or pour dye on her hair. Not a bit of it.' "She is a sensible woman, then?"

"You bet. But she isn't the kind of sensible woman you are thinking about-dumpy, big-footed, with her hair pulled back so tight she can't wink her eyes. My wife, sir, has a perfect complexion, and marvelous hair, and a beautiful figure and a foot that calls for a size 1 shoe on the slimmest last. That's why she can be sensible and pretty both at once."

WATCHMAN COONEY TELLS OF THE CAPTAIN'S BRAVE FIGHT.

SIX OF THE CREW PERISH

The Survivors on Arrival in Detroit Are Attacked on the Dock by Rufflans Shouting "Scab."

The bodies of three of the crew of the ill-fated steamer George Stone, which was wrecked off Grubb's reef, in Lake Erie, Wednesday morning are being tossed about by the waves of Lake Erie; three more rest side by side in the lonely dwelling of Capt. Grubb, on the nearest land to the scene of the wreck of the steamer, their faces covered with handkerchiefs.

Two more members of the crew pace the floor of a room in Capt. Grubb's dwelling, which has a window facing on the lake. Through the window their glances ever turn to the few remaining timbers of the ship George Stone, which carried six of their shipmates to a watery grave and caused gray hairs to appear in the heads of ten others.

Ten members of the crew who stuck to the steamer were brought to Detroit about 6 o'clock Wednesday night on the steamer F. M. Osborne. Assaulted on the dock as they landed, by striking union seamen or their sympathizers, they were taken to the office of Capt. J. W. Westcott under police escort.

James Cooney, aged 20, a watchman, one of the survivors, said: "It was about 11 o'clock when the cap-tain piped all hands on deck," said Cooney. "I was to go on watch at 12 o'clock and was in my bunk when the captain yelled. The old boy was pitching around like a drunken sailor. I jumped into my clothes and ran up on deck with the other fellows. It was blowing like hell and dark. The boat was wallowing badly with seven feet of water in her forward and six feet aft. We fought the water, but it kept piling in through her seams. until about daybreak it flooded the engine room. The boat was unmanageable then and the wind and sea drove us along. The boat was pitching and tumbling like the deuce.

'About 6:30 o'clock the forward end began to break away under the terrific pounding of the waves. The captain then ordered us all aft. Then fire broke out forward, but the waves put it out. By this time it was brightening up and we were looking for When the forward end broke away entirely the captain ordered us to lower the forward boat. All the hatches were gone by this time, and it looked as if the old girl was going to give way at any time.
"We crawled up to the lifeboat only to find that she had a hole stove in her bottom. Then we followed the captain back aft again and shifted the big lifeboat over to the port side to

"When the after end began to split up, Capt. Howell ordered us all in the We all piled in, only to find that she wouldn't ride with 18 of us in her, so we all climbed out again. By this time the boys were pretty well all in. We had a white flag at our masthead. The City of Cleveland saw us, but she could not help us. "Then Capt. Howell decided to Woodward avenue one night recently some women were talking over the Maybelle Millman crime and the finding of the dismembered body in gunnysacks in the creek at Ecorse. They seemed to know something and investigation followed. This led to the arrest of one J. W. Leach, who drove an auto for a man named Austin. Leach was locked up and broke down, making a confession which led to the arrest of Dr. George A. Fritch again.

A CONGO HORROR.

Belgian Officer to Expose the Atroclties Inflicted on Natives.

Coincident with Mark Twain's refusal to re-enter the fight against the Congo atrocities because of his weakened condition, Lieut. Dorpelthaus resigned his commission in the Belgian army as a protest against cruelties he had witnessed. According to dispatches from Brus sels, Lieut. Dorpelthaus has been for two years in the employ of the Societe Anonyme Belge in the Congo. He managed to endure the sight of a native man flayed alive because he had failed to bring in the assigned tribute of rubber to the Belgian officials. But when the lieutenant beheld a woman bound hand and foot upon a hill of red ants and devoured by the insects, he gave up his commission and returned to this country. The company, alleging breach of contract, refused to pay his back salary or to reimburse him his expenses. The lieutenant admits breaking his contract, but sets up the defense that the company breaks the law and by that act invalidates the contract. He is now suing the company and there is to be a court hearing at which the atrocities of the Congo will be laid bare. In his presentation of facts the lieutenant is prepared to give the official record of what he saw, and it is declared that his revelations will stagger humanity.

Taft and Diaz Meet.

The long-expected meeting between President Taft, of the United States, and President Diaz, of the Republic of Mexico, occurred at El Paso, Texas, Saturday: Outwardly it was attended with a display of ceremony suggestive of supreme authority, but in the actual handclasp of the two executives and in the exchange of courteous words, there was simple but cordial informality. The scene of the day's ceremonies shifted from time to time from El Paso across the Rio Grande to the typical Mexican settlement of Ciudad Juarez. In the customs house of Juarez Diaz received the return call from Taft and late this evening entertained the American president and a large dinner party at a state banquet which in all its surroundings. of lavish decorations and wealth of silver plate probably was the most notable feast ever served on the American continent.

The American Spirit.

Countess Szechenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, has startled the Hungarian aristocracy by becoming the owner of a large sawmill and an extensive manufactory at Remete Vasgyar, where all kinds of cabinet work is turned out.

The newspapers all publish the fact that the countess has purchased this plant, and add that while most Hungarian ladies admire the enterprise of the American heiress, they feel that mission in the campaign now under such a departure by a member of one way against artificially colored meat of Hungary's noblest families is not the correct thing.

FELLOW TOWNSWEN ARE STARTLED

BANKER AND TREASURER ONCE, AN ALLEGED FUGITIVE

NOW. FORGERY CHARGE MADE.

Mr. Hagle, Willage Treasurer of Oxford, Is Missing, and Accounts Are Being Investigated.

Mark L. Hagle, village treasurer of Oxford and part owner of three private banks in Leonard, Hadley and Lum, is missing, and simultaneously with his disappearance comes the announcement that he is short in his accounts with two of the banks and with the village to an amount totalling between $24,000 and $30,000.

The village authorities are auditing the willage books, and it is estimated that the shortage will reach between $5,000 and $6,000. President A. Stoll is personally in charge of the audit. All the largest taxes of the village were not collected until last week allowed by the village council, which expired Oct. 9, and during that week hearly $6,000 was collected, none of which has yet been accounted for.

Hagle is also said to be short in his accounts at the Leonard and Hadley banks, both private institutions, the Leonard bank owned entirely Hagle and the institution at Hadley in partnership with Mrs. Ethel Varan of Metamora. The cashier of the vank at Leonard states that the shortage there is between $10,000 and $15,000, and reports from Hadley give the shortage in that bank as about $9,000.

It was at first reported that the bank at Lum, in Lapeer county, was also a sufferer from Hagle's alleged defalcations, but later investigation discloses that the Lum institution is an incorporated state bank, and therefore not a loser to any amount, if at all.

Hagle's reputation both as a banker and as a public official has always been excellent, and much surprise and consternation was awakened in the village by the news of his disappear ance and shortage.

The first suspicion of the alleged shortage came Friday, when it was learned that the Hadley bank had closed its doors. Hagle came to Oxford Thursday night from Hadley and left Friday morning for Detroit, since when he has not been seen here. His books could not be investigated until Sunday morning, when an all-day's investigation took place, and the shortage was announced.

The closing of the bank at Hadley is alleged to have been a direct result of the discovery that Hagle had forged notes for $2,000 in an effort to cover up his defalcations. A party of eight citizens of Hadley planned to form a stock company to purchase the bank when Hagle made known his intention of selling, and at the instigation of Bank Examiner J. R. Johnson, of Lapeer, the notes representing money due the bank were investigated.

With the exception of two notes for $1,000 each, all the securities were found to be safe, it is said, Thursday morning Frank T. Hadley, one of the men who was interested in the proposed stock company, took them to the men whose names appeared as indorsers. The men were men, it is alleged, pronounced the gan Central Railroad Co. signatures forgeries.

Hadley went to Hagle it declared them forgeries. It is charged fessed, after which he closed up the bank and left Hadley in his automobile.

BUG-PROOF

Massachusetts Man Produces Tubers of Great Superiority.

William Osner, of Fennville, was Spends Years in Experimenting with Various Vegetables and Makes Many Wonderful Discoveries-His Cantaloupes Are Fine.

> Montague, Mass.-Bug-proof potato vines that show by analysis twice the ratio of food products in them over the average tuber,, cantaloupes that run sixteen to forty-eight pounds. peas that will be ready for picking in half the time that green peas usually require, corn in half a dozen colors and of attractive taste—these things are some of the achievements of Rev. Amos N. Somers, pastor of the little Unitarian parish here, who has spent years delving into the chemistry of nature and has accomplished what he believes is a valuable thing for mankind, especially in potato culture, for this is a necessity of necessities.

Mr. Somers tells his story by saying that the potato rarely matures a seed and notes that the great potato raising companies in Maine offer large sums for small measure of seed.

"Of course, everybody knows," he continued, "that potatoes grow from planting the eye of the vegetable in the ground in the spring. Hybridization by mixing the pollen is not a new thing, but with the potato you can't do it, for there's no pollen to mix. So, after many years of trying, I have evolved what I call graft hybridization. The problem was harder, as the potato grows below the ground, while fruits and many vegetables grow above and the stalks or stems can be grafted in the familiar way.

"So one day it occurred to me to graft the sprouts together just at the surface of the ground. I took two cuttings, sliced them off and then fastened them together with the bodies of the tubers touching and the two parts of the sprouts also lying close against each other. Fastening these together, I planted them with the top of the graft just above the ground. At the juncture of the two a new cellular tissue body grew, and from this a new variety of potato grew. I got this new variey, which I call the Standard. from a graft hybrid of the Green mountain and the Lady Somers, named after my wife.

"The Standard is a very smooth skin potato, with eyes hardly sunken below the surface. This last fact makes it an economical potato, for there is less waste in peeling it and the analysis shows it has just twice the amount of foodstuff in it and twice as much starch as the average potato. The average one shows 15 to 18 per cent. foodstuff. In body weight 100 of my potatoes will greatly outweigh 100 potatoes of the ordinary sort of the same size, and on bushel measure the same difference occurs. The Lady Somers I got from the Early Rose and the old Delaware potatoes.

"It was my study of Darwin that started me on this. I have watched the work of Prof. George J. Romanes of England, the author of 'Darwinism After Darwin,' and have corresponded with him, and I have succeeded in this where he failed. Profs. Geddes and Thompson of Edinburgh are also in the same line, but I feel I have surpassed them in results. My results first definite tour years ago. after 35 years of trying.

"The vine of my potato has a peculiar odor and is offensive to the potato bug, for it never goes near them. I have taken bugs from plants of the usual type in the next row in my potato patch and put them on the new vines and in half an hour I can't find one, and I really feel I have got hold of a bug-proof potato. If so, that's a big thing in itself, for look at the expense saved the farmer in plaster and paris green and in labor. Then, again, the roots of my potatoes are very much longer than the average roots, which, of course, makes them all the better as plant feeders and as resisters of drought

"This is a summary of my discoveries and results of methods used by me in the preparation of new varieties of food plants, especially new species of potatoes by graft-hybridiza-

POLISHING UP THE JANITOR:

Purpose of Unique School in New York Which Will Give Degree of "M. J." to Graduates.

New York.—While New York's small boys to the number of some 750,000 have been attending school for over a month now, it is not until next week that the big boys-many of them gray-headed-will begin to attend the city's most remarkableschool

Incidentally the opening of this unique educational institution, which has for its purpose nothing less than the training of janitors, will also give to the scholastic world a new degree of M. J. This degree, which will be conferred on all graduates, is the abbreviation standing for master of

There will be no honorary degrees, and the graduate will be put through a course which will instruct him in all the details of the janitorial profession, from repairing a broken elevator to plugging a leak in a kitchen

One feature of the new school which will be a most grateful innovation to New Yorkers is that in which janitorial etiquette is to be taught to the destruction of the hoary janitor joke. The organizers of the new school, believing that one of the chief requisites of the preesnt-day janitor is the cultivation of a more courteous attitude on his part toward his tenants, have decided to include in the curriculum a course in good manners.

Some of the things to be taught in this connection will, it is thought, go a long way toward bringing about more friendly relations between janitor and tenant, especially on a frosty morning, when the inhabitants of the upper floors find that the steam heat has been turned off.

after having received his diploma the janitor of the future will have many more accomplishments of the kind that are sure to be apreciated by tenants in trouble. He will, in fact, be more or less of a jack of all trades. and, if all that is promised is carried out by the educators, he will be altogether a desirable man to have about the house.

CLD TONGUES ARE REVIVED

Chaldean, Arabic and Assyrian Languages Taught St. Louis Children -Study Ancient Customs, Too.

St. Louis.—In the downtown section of St. Louis languages and customs, ages old, that have lasted through centuries, to invade the intense modernism of a busy city, are being taught.

In the little school of the Syrian Maronite Catholic church of St. Anthony the Hermit, the Assyrian members of the church are having taught to their children the ancient languages of Arabia, Assyria and Chaldea.

The school, opened a short time ago, has become firmly established and is gradually widening its scope. The school originated in the desire of the parents to instill into their children pride and patriotism in the ancient lands of their forefathers. At the same time the spirit of Americanism is not being forgotten.

Under the direction of Alexander Mizrany, once a teacher in the Jesuit and Christian Brothers' colleges in Syria, the children of the district are learning the tongues spoken centuries ago in the ancient countries famed Bible history. making rapid progress, according to their instructor, and are, at the same time, being instructed in the history of Arabia, Assyria and Chaldea.

English also is being taught to those yet unfamiliar with that tongue, but the establishment of oriental pride in the children is the principal purpose of the school.

UNIQUE SKULL OF CAT HOUND

Remarkable Specimen Discovered In California Will Be Classified by Geologists-Larger Than Lion.

Berkeley, Cal.-A remarkable specimen of an animal, believed to belong to the cat family and not known to this continent, has been unearthed from the famous asphalt heds of the Rancho la Brea, near Los Angeles, and the unique skull has been sent to Prof A C Merriam, head of the department of paleontology and historic geology, for examination and classification. The find was made by Prof. William Bebb.

The species represented by the skull obtained by Dr. Bebb corresponds in character to the great cat described as felis atrox by Prof. Leidy in 1853 from a part of a lower jaw found near Natchez, Miss. This animal was one of the largest known species in the group over at least the southern half of North America.

The skull is considerably larger than that of the average existing Afri-

> > Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived .-Scientific American.

LETTERS FROM FORMER RESIDENTS

I left Escanaba at 11 a. m. Monday, and got as far as Channing where I had to stay all night. I resumed my on Tuesday morning at 8:20 reaching here at 12:15 p. m.

My route lay through a wild country, mostly old pineries grown up with underbrush, varied by ledges of rock and swamp. We would run for miles without seeing a trace of human habitation, then we would come on a little hamlet built around a saw mill, the whole enclosed by the dense forest. After leaving Channing we came into an iron mining district where the hamlets were larger-stacks of iron ore, high derricks and towering smoke stacks emitting dense volumes of smoke presented themselves in the ever changing panorama.

aspect as we left the iron mines behind and entered the portals of the copper country. The villages beto-temple, a position from which we had kened a higher state of civilization and progress and the scenery became grander and more impressive in it picturesque character. At Rockland is, in my opinion, to be seen the finest natural scenery in the state. No word picture can do justice to its majestic magnificence, for words are inadequate to express the ever varying 1893, just 40 years after it was combeauties of the landscape, as the summer green is just giving place to the many colored tints of autumn and my powers of delineation are too feeble to undertake the task. It must be seen to be appreciated.

Ontonagon, the name itself, carries you back to the time when the red man roamed through the woods, climbed its hills or paddled his light canoe up the densely forest skirted river, the Ontonagon. But no more his moccasined feet silently tread the labyrinths of the forest; he is gone and the smoke of his wigwam has been succeeded by the dark volume of smoke from the towering chimneys of the various copper mines, proclaiming the great, although seemingly selfish law, the survival of the fittest.

The county seat is the flourishing shore of mighty Superior, at the mouth of the Ontonagon river. It was once larger than it is now, being almost entirely wiped out by fire a few years ago, but phoenix-like, it is rising more glorious from its ashes. It is surrounded by a fertile soil which is fast being settled up. There are several fine farms in its vicinity and large orchards laden this year with the various fruits, strange as it may seem to the preconceived ideas of many in the lower part of Michigan that this is a land of rocks and icebergs. Mr. Nemier from Sanilac county has acres upon acres of strawberries, realizing as I am credibly informed, $15,000 from the sale of his crop this last season. I would say to those in your vicinity wishing to secure land for themselves, come up here and, see for yourselves. You Columbia, reads as follows: will find lots of work the year round. The farmers here are adjacent to the best market in Michigan for it is only forty miles to Houghton, Hancock, Calumet, and the famous lake copper district where all kinds of business is in a flourishing condition, and all kinds of labor commands the highest remuneration in this state. E. W. Murphy.

Inside of the south gate is a building of artistic design with the words, 'Bureau of Information,' inscribed over the door. Here strangers are cordially welcomed, and at brief intervals parties are formed and escorted through the buildings and grounds by ladies and gentlemen who give their time freely to the visiting public. An attendant informed us that as many as 39 states and seven foreign countries had been represented upon the registry books in one day.

The writer joined one of the parties. "We visited first the Assembly hall, a semi-gothic structure of gray granite which occupies the southwest corner of the grounds. We went out at the north door of the hall facing directly the world-famed tabernacle. As we passed from one building to the other, we were refreshed with the fragrance and beauty of the foliage and well kept flower beds. We entered the tabernacle at the west end and took our stand on a level with the pulpits and almost at the base of the renowned organ. At a distance of 200 feet, our guide dropped a pin on the wooden railing and also whispered, both of which we heard with incredible distinctness. He assured us that when all was quiet this whisper or pin drop can be heard from any position in the building, which is an immense auditorium and seats 8,000 people. Its self-supporting wooden roof is a remarkable work of engineer-

The building cost in all $4,000,000. No visitors have been admitted since its dedication. The above information was received from our guide.

"In the west end of the tabernacle is the great organ. I will here give the statement as it was represented to me. The front towers have an altitude of 48 feet and the dimensions are 30x33 feet. It has 110 stops and accessories and contains a total of over 5,000 pipes, ranging in length from 1-4 inch to 32 feet. It comprises five complete organs-solo, swell, great, choir and pedal. It is capable of thousands of tone varieties. It represents the instruments of an orchestra, military band and choir, as well as the deep and sonorous stops for which the organ is famed. BEE'S STING CURES WHO PAYS FOR MILK AT SEA

One of the Latest Departures in European Medical Science.

Insect Inject Formic Acid That Breaks Down the Poisons in the Blood That Cause the Painful Disease.

London.—Bee stings are the latest cure advanced for rheumatism. The working of the "bee vaccinator," as this invention is termed, was shown at the exhibition of the Surrey Beekeepers' association at the Crystal palace.

It is an ingenious appliance, secured to a small platform resembling the hole of a hive, and the bees readily enter if a trace of honey is applied as a bait outside a perforated zinc slide, which is part of the mechanism.

By closing the slides the bees are imprisoned, the requisite number thus being secured. The little "vaccinators" can then be removed from the hive, or inspection box, and may be sent by post or carried about ready for use.

The actual operation of vaccination is simplicity itself. The "bee vaccinator" is placed on the affected part of the patient and a knob is pressed down until the bees sting.

"It is one of the newest departures in medical science," a well-known medical man said, "and is still in the experimental stage.

"But for some time past it has been observed that, in a general way, beekeepers certainly enjoy immunity from rheumatism, or, if they have suffered from this complaint, it has disappeared after they have been stung a few times.

"The effect of a bee sting is that the formic acid which the insect injects breaks down, or, speaking informally, neutralizes the poisons in the blood which give rise to the symptoms of rheumatism.

"The operation of bee vaccination should not, of course, be undergone without medical advice. As for the number of bees required—that depends on the patient, and would be for a doctor to decide."

At St. Bartholomew's hospital it was ascertained that a "bee vaccinator" was actually in use in the treatment of patients suffering from rheumatism, but no official statement as to the result of the experiments was as yet forthcoming. Bees are regularly supplied to the hospital for the purpose.

"Personally, I have had the good fortune never to suffer from rheumatism, and I have kept bees ever since I can remember," says a man who is exhibiting at the Crystal palace. "It does not follow that beekeeping is a positive assurance of immunity from rheumatism, but beekeepers of my acquaintance who have suffered from rheumatism have told me how these pains have disappeared after they have been sung.

"Any beekeeper will tell you that the first few stings cause inflammation and swelling, but this gradually goes down and after a while he experiences little or no discomfort from a bee sting. A wasp sting is a different matter.

"I am surprised the medical profession has not taken up bee vaccination before.

"The difficulty, however, has been in manipulating the bees-that is to persons other than beekeepers.

"People operating have been in greater danger of being stung than the patient hitherto.

"This invention has solved the difbees to escape from the vaccinator," had been made a part of the nest.

Company Should Reimburse Him for Product Enjoyed by Crew.

Seattle, Wash.-A puzzling milk problem has been presented to steamship owners here. The cows gave milk while they were aboard the steamer; they were milked punctually each day and the milk was used by the crew. These facts are admitted, but now the question is, who is to pay the owners of the cows?

This is the knotty problem which has been put upt to Albert Schubach, president of the Schubach-Hamilton Steamship Company. Mr. Schubach says this claim is the most absurd of the thousands which big steamship companies receive annually.

John Kehoe of Tanana is the claimant, and he declares that unless the company pays for the milk used by the lid of a box. This is placed over the members of the steamer Mackinaw's crew he will seek legal redress. Mr. Schubach has replied, stating that the company is in no wise responsible for what disposition was made of the product from the gentle bovines.

When the steamer left Seattle in June Kehoe shipped four fine cows to St. Michael. The Mackinaw was 18 days en route, having spent several days ashore on the Yukon flats. The cows gave their milk each day, and it helped to elaborate the bill of fare. Now Kehoe wants pay for five gallons of milk a day for 80 days-total, 90 gallons.

In replying to Kehoe President Schubach tersely says:

"As to the milk you say was used for 18 days, I would like to know what you would have done with it. You would have had to leave it in the Ira C. Hutchinson, 24 cows, thrown it overboard or drunk it | Grace Hinkley, 19 yourself. You had a perfect right to refuse it to the crew, as the milk was yours. You gave it to them without understanding on our part. It is up to you and the cows."

Lively Old Civil War Veteran Wants It Removed from Too Previous Headstone.

Towanda, Pa.-George H. Richards, an old civil war veteran of this town, whose name by some mistake was placed, with his regiment, company and rank, on one of the tombstones erected over the soldier cead in the cemetery at Gettysburg, the other day began an effort to have his name re-

He is now anxious to have this done without further delay, as he is old, and does not expect to live a great many years longer.

FOUR THROWN INTO DITCH

When Rig Went Off a Bridge Near Bad Axe.

Attempting to turn out on a bridge to allow another rig to pass, Johnson Williams, farmer, his wife and two daughters, aged 11 and 12 years respectively, were thrown eight feet down into a big drainage ditch. The horse was killed and one of the girls suffered a severely sprained back. All the others of the party were badly shaken up, but not seriously injured.

Williams was driving into Bad Axe from out in Colfax township Sunday. At the drainage ditch one mile from town, he met a single rig. To Williams the best place to make the pass appeared to be the bridge, which is wide for such a structure, but is unprotected with guard rails. Two wheels of Williams' buggy went over the edge, the falling vehicle dragged down the horse, and all fell in a heap in the ditch. The horse's neck was doubled against the side of the excavation and broken. The people in the visited fourth grade Monday. buggy were spilled clear of the wreck, and the wayfarers in the other rig pulled them out of the ditch.
