CECIL McKIM AND EARL M. ALLAN OF LAKE CITY.

Only Immediate Relatives and Friends Present at Ceremony on Wednesday.

A pretty home wedding, with only the immediate relatives and friends present, was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elias McKim, one mile west of town, at high noon on Wednesday, July 6. The ceremony which united their eldest daughter, Cecil Victoria, and Earl Marchmond Allan in marriage, was performed by Rev. W. B. Weaver under an arch of ferns.

The bride was unattended and was becomingly attired in a white silk mull gown, trimmed with Valenciennes lace and finished at the waist with a white satin girdle.

Following the ceremony, a three course luncheon was served as follows:

Creamed chicken
Potato salad, Lettuce Sandwiches
Olives Pickles
Punch
Fruit salad Cottage tea
Wafers

Cakes Wedding cake
Ice cream Strawberries
The residence was prettily decorated with ferns and roses and a large centerpiece of roses and ferns graced the table.

The bride is a member of the class of 1904 of the local high school. She has also attended the state normal college at Ypsilanti and during the past few years has been engaged as instructor in different schools, last year holding a position in the public schools at Cadillac. She is a young lady who has won the respect and esteem of all her acquaintances. The groom is a talented young man from Lake City and is a representative of the Coit Lyceum Bureau of Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan will leave for Lake City within a few days where they have a home all furnished. The Chronicle extends best wishes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.

Pleasant Day Spent by Town Line Sunday School.

The Town Line Sunday School picnic held in Howard Retherford's grove last Thursday was a decided success. All came with well filled baskets and prepared to have a good time. After dinner a program was given which consisted of songs, recitations and dialogues. The primary class taught by Mrs. Martin rendered their parts very nicely. The class consisted of seven and each wore a badge of pink and white. The junior and intermediate classes also played their part well and much of the credit is due to Mrs. B. Sharpe and Miss Goldie Martin. Rev. Beedon addressed the children with a few well chosen remarks.

Other Sunday schools which were present were: Leek, Deford and Novesta. The Deford was the only one who took part in the program and it was very much appreciated. The rest of the afternoon was spent in visiting and a ball game between Deford and Town Line in which the Town Line came out ahead.

BALLOONIST KILLED AT CARO JULY 4

ANOTHER BALLOONIST HAS ACCIDENT AT VASSAR.

Two Boys Injured at Caro, One by Horse and Another by Premature Explosion.

In attempting to make a balloon ascension at Caro Monday afternoon at six o'clock, James White, aged 35 years, of Portland, Mich., met with an accident that proved fatal. After reaching a height of perhaps a hundred feet the balloon burst and fell rapidly to the earth. While making the descent White attempted to cut away with his parachute but was unable to do so, and fell through a network of wires striking his chin on an electric transformer fastened to a post in the rear of Zimke Bros. new store building.

White struck the transformer with such terrific force that he turned completely over before striking the ground. He was at once taken to Dr. Ryan's office where artificial respiration was resorted to but died a short time later. His neck, lower jaw and both lower limbs were broken. Examination of the gas bag used proved that the material was so decayed that one could easily break the fabric between the fingers.

While attempting to cross a street in the business section of Caro on Monday the seven-year-old son of Lot Wilder living at Watrousville was knocked down and stepped upon by a horse and was quite badly injured.

The 12-year-old son of John M. Early was badly burned about the face and hands by the premature explosion of fireworks.

Paul Wenchel, a young man about 30 years of age, was seriously injured as the result of a balloon ascension accident at the Fourth of July celebration at Vassar the same day. His home is in Grand Rapids.

The ascent at 6 o'clock was made successfully and the aerialist was 400 feet above the crowd when his balloon started to come down suddenly. In an effort to save himself he attempted to cut away with the parachute but it refused to work and Wenchel landed in a flower garden in the rear of Harry Miller's home. He was carried into the Miller home, where physicians attended him. It was thought at first that Wenchel could not survive, but later reports indicate that he will recover.

FUNERAL OF GEO. SHARKER
Was Held at Home of Geo. Bartle on Monday.

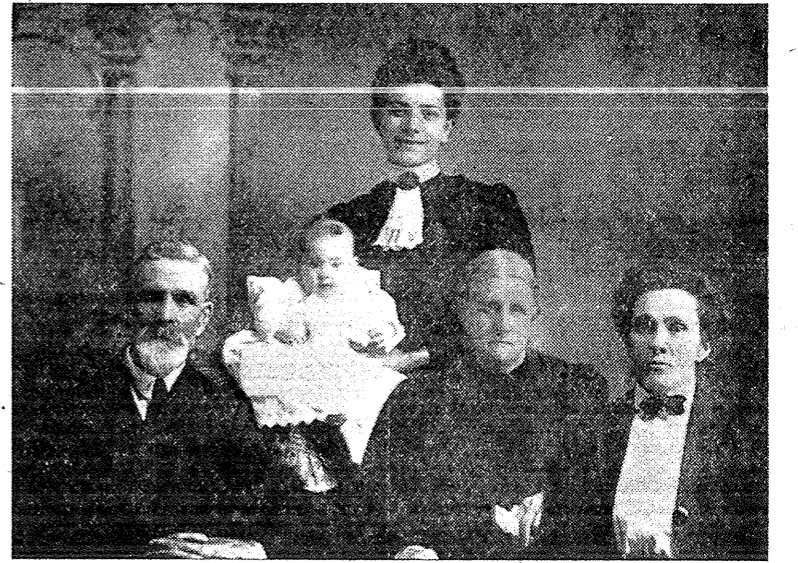

The remains of George Sharker of Kalamazoo were brought to Cass City and the funeral services held at the residence of George Bartle on Main St. west on Monday. Rev. A. O. Knapp had charge of the services. Those who were present from out of town were: Fred Sharker of St. Clair, Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Von Trelech and Miss M. Boeckman of Port Huron, W. H. Procter of Ypsilanti and James Bartle of Brown City.

George Sharker was the manager of the Cable-Nelson Piano Co.'s branch at Kalamazoo and was instantly killed at the outset of an automobile endurance run from that city to South Haven on June 30. With three other gentlemen, he was going up Main St. in Kalamazoo when the car slewed into the street car track and skidded on the wet pavement. It crashed into a tele-

FIVE GENERATIONS.

The above half tone represents five generations. The gentleman in the picture is Henry Ball of this city, aged 69 years. Next to him is his mother, Mrs. Caroline Ball, nearly 91 years of age. The lady on the right is Mrs. Wm. Starr of Argyle, aged 41 years. The lady standing is Mrs. Joseph Clement of Crosswell, aged 21 years, and the baby is her daughter, Avarel Jenita, 5 months old.

The photograph of the four youngest persons was taken here a few weeks ago and the photograph of the great great grandmother was inserted in a position left vacant on the group picture. This photograph was then copied by Photographer Maier and the eye of the amateur couldn't detect the difference from a regular group picture.

Since the half tone was made, the death of Mrs. Caroline Ball occurred at the home of a son in Coldwater. The funeral was held Wednesday. Mrs. Ball formerly lived at Cass City, but moved away about 11 years ago.

YOUNG MAN HELD IN HIGH ESTEEM

DEATH OF NEIL DECKER CAME AS A SEVERE SHOCK.

Funeral Was Held Saturday Morning in the R. C. Church at Sheridan.

Neil Decker, whose death was mentioned in the Chronicle last week, was born in Greenleaf township, eight miles northeast of Cass City, where he died on June 30, aged 29 years.

In the death of Mr. Decker his friends fully and keenly realize their loss. Death is always sad, but in this instance it is particularly so. Neil was a young man held in high esteem and his death came as a severe shock to all. Truly we are living in a world where solemn shadows are continually falling upon our path—shadows that teach us the insecurity of all temporal blessings and warn us that here "there is no abiding stay." His life was so pure and his christian faith so undoubted that we all may feel the blessed assurance that he has gone to the home prepared for those who love and faithfully serve the Lord Jesus. In this the grief-stricken ones may seek comfort by looking to that future where the sundered ties of earth are reunited.

The funeral was held Saturday at 10:30 p. m. in the R. C. church at Sheridan, Rev. Fr. Van Dyke officiating. Interment was made in the adjoining cemetery, the following friends of the deceased, acted as pall bearers: John McCormick, Jas. Walker, Charlie Hempton, Will Vogel, Fred Duffield and Roy Powell.

Besides his mother, Mrs. Mary Decker, deceased is survived by two sisters and five brothers: Misses Millie and Margaret Decker, Frank and Arthur, who are at home, Steven from near Wickware, Martin of Bad Axe and Peter of Port Austin. Not any of the relatives from a distance were able to attend as the funeral was held so quickly.

FUNERAL OF GEO. SHARKER

Was Held at Home of Geo. Bartle on Monday.

The remains of George Sharker of Kalamazoo were brought to Cass City and the funeral services held at the residence of George Bartle on Main St. west on Monday. Rev. A. O. Knapp had charge of the services. Those who were present from out of town were: Fred Sharker of St. Clair, Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Von Trelech and Miss M. Boeckman of Port Huron, W. H. Procter of Ypsilanti and James Bartle of Brown City.

George Sharker was the manager of the Cable-Nelson Piano Co.'s branch at Kalamazoo and was instantly killed at the outset of an automobile endurance run from that city to South Haven on June 30. With three other gentlemen, he was going up Main St. in Kalamazoo when the car slewed into the street car track and skidded on the wet pavement. It crashed into a telephone pole breaking the pole in two. Mr. Sharker, who was in the rear seat, was thrown out, struck the pole and was instantly killed. He was 45 years of age.

Mrs. Sharker, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bartle, sr., of Wickware, is an invalid and was quite ill at the time of the accident.

GREAT RECEPTION AT CARO FOR OSBORN

DELIVERS ELOQUENT ADDRESS AT CELEBRATION MONDAY.

Captured Large Audience That Listened With Marked Attention to Address.

A large number of people from all parts of the county attended the celebration of the national holiday at Caro Monday. It was an attractively arranged and thoroughly interesting event.

The orator of the day was Hon. Chase S. Osborn of Sault Ste. Marie and his address was a masterly effort. He knows how to hit right out from the shoulder in regular Rooseveltian style, and that he had his audience with him from the first was evidenced by the hearty applause.

He was entertained at dinner by local Republicans at the Hotel Montague and in the afternoon an informal reception and hand shaking event was held in the court room of the county building.

Mr. Osborn completely captured the large audience that listened with marked attention to his address which was replete with good things. After his address a reception for him was held at the court house and old friends and hundreds new gathered about him to give him a cordial welcome. Mr. Osborn's sincerity of purpose, keenness of perception, good business judgment and candid fairness commend him to all with whom he comes in contact, and his coming to Caro has only marked the beginning of a united Republican party in this county.

JIM JEFFRIES KNOCKED OUT

BATTERED HELPLESS IN THE FIFTEENTH ROUND BY JOHNSON HE FALLS THROUGH THE ROPES.

NEGRO SMILING AND TALKING ALL THE TIME HAS JEFFRIES IN DISTRESS ALL THROUGH THE BATTLE.

Once Great Master of the Ring is a Child in Johnson's Hands; Boilermaker Helpless in Trying to Solve Grinning Black Man's Defense.

Jack Johnson, the Negro, is still the world's heavyweight champion. He knocked out Jim Jeffries in the fifteenth round at Reno, Nev. The fight was one-sided from the start.

Jeffries was not counted out. As the timekeeper's hand moved up and down, the towel was brought into the ring from Jeffries' corner.

Jeffries was counted out as he hung over the ropes, going down three times. His seconds began crowding into the ring before the timekeeper could count ten.

When the count of seven had been reached and it was evident that the white champion had been finished, at least a hundred people broke through the ropes and Timekeeper Harding was screened from the ring by the crowd.

Finally after more or less of a struggle that looked for a time as though it would grow into a riot, the ring was partially cleared.

The once great Jeffries—the master of the ring, the heretofore never defeated champion of all champions, as his admirers had called him, was still half outside the ropes struggling to rise.

Johnson Wants to "Shake." When Jeff was led back to his corner by Corbett, Berger and Jack Jeffries he was still dazed.

Hart said to the champion: "Go over and shake hands with the poor old fellow, Jack."

Later he went to Jeffries' corner, but Jim Corbett and Jack O'Brien waded him away.

When he returned to his own corner the crowding was so dense the police had to beat them back.

Jeff was attended by his physician as he sat in his corner. He sat shaking his head sadly for a few minutes and then was led to his dressing-room.

Soon afterwards he was taken to his camp at Moana Springs.

As soon as the men left the ring the crowd began the destruction of the ring. The ropes were cut into bits, the canvas ripped up and snipped into small pieces, and even the staples that hold the canvas were unscrewed and taken as souvenirs.

The Fight By Rounds.

ROUND ONE. Jeff walked in and feinted, both smiled and Johnson gave ground. Johnson led a straight left and landed lightly on Jeff's face. They were cautioned when clinched. Johnson shoved Jeff away. Jeff hooked a left to the neck and in the clinch sent a right to the body. Johnson responded with a light one and they stood breast to breast trying for blows.

got a left in the face. He missed Jack's body with a left and took two lefts on the face. "Hello, Jimmy," said Jack to Corbett as he landed on Jeff. "The only thing you can do is to get into a left to the face and again they maul each other without damage at one range or come on, break," said Jeff as Jack held his gloves. Rickard did not touch the men, but allowed them to take their time. Jeff missed twice with his left and took a left on the face. Jack tried several times to put his right through, but failed to connect.

ROUND NINE. Jeff stood up and walked into a left to the chest. "Make 'em fight," yelled Corbett. "Never mind; just wait," responded Johnson. Johnson walked in and tried a left to the body. Jeff got inside of it and put his head against Jack's chest and shoved the black fellow back to the ropes. Jeff took it all in his stride and returned to the center of the ring. Johnson stepped in quickly and shot a left hard for the body, but Jeff's glove was there first. Jeff swung in two lefts to Jack's ring that did no damage. He swung his left arm around Jack's neck. His wrist landed hard.

ROUND ELEVEN. They walked up carefully, Johnson trying his left once to find it blocked. He took one in the face three times, but smiled back at Jack. They broke away and Jeff tried a right to the face and a right to the body. He kept Johnson bobbing his head to escape the right uppercut whenever they got together without a blow. Jeff sent three uppercuts to the face in quick succession. Jeff appeared tired. They broke about, Jeff with his head on Jack's shoulder and when they finally broke Jack hooked his left hand to the nose. The blood flowed from Jeff's nose and lips. He appeared slow compared with Jack. "Snap," said Jeff just before the call of time Jeff rushed in and sent left and right to the body, but Jack was a way and was not hurt.

ROUND TWELVE. Jim walked over, waiting for a chance to get inside the negro's defense. Jack simply waited and then drew back or hooked a left to the face. "Hurry up; we're going some wild," said Johnson. Jeff said nothing. Jeff sailed in till his head rested on the black man's shoulder and when they were in body blows. They were blocked almost before they were started and the negro's left hand came from the crowd. Jeff forced his way to close quarters, but got a left on the sore nose for his reward. His nose bled freely and he turned almost closed. He sat at the gong he spat out a mass of blood. Jeff was not worried, apparently, and looked fresh. Johnson seemed to gain confidence as the fight progressed.

ROUND THIRTEEN. Putting his right glove before his face Jeff waded into a clinch without a blow. When they broke Johnson sent a left to the body and a right uppercut touched the chin. "Stick there," shouted Corbett. Jeff stuck and he was forced away. Then he took two lefts and a right uppercut to the face. Johnson sent in three lefts to face in quick succession and then uppercut to the face. Jeff seemed tired and could not stand back and stung left to the face, then calmly clinched. This round was all Johnson's. Jeff's eyes almost closed. "Cover up," said Corbett. "You will get him."

ROUND FOURTEEN. Jeff walked straight into a left and Jeff tapped the big fellow in the face with the left twice, and blocking Jeff's attempt at close fighting, shambled forward. Jeff took three lefts to the face and got in a left to the face light. Jeff's lefts were simply picked out of the air by the clever negro before they could get within six inches of his face. "How do you feel, Jim?" said Jack as they stood clinched. "How do you like me?" Jeff was so blind that he made no response. He walked into three lefts in quick succession. "They don't hurt," he said.

It was a clinch to start with, following Jeff's lefts. Johnson stepped in on the body. Johnson knocked Jeff down with a right to the face. Jeff got up but was sent down again for the count of ten. The crowd yelled for Jeff. "Let him knock him out," as Jeff got up the second time he staggered for Johnson. The latter sprang at him like a tiger and with a successful jab sent him through the lower rope on the east side of the ring. The referee counted out.

ROUND FIFTEEN. Jeff walked straight into a left and Jeff tapped the big fellow in the face with the left twice, and blocking Jeff's attempt at close fighting, shambled forward. Jeff took three lefts to the face and got in a left to the face light. Jeff's lefts were simply picked out of the air by the clever negro before they could get within six inches of his face. "How do you feel, Jim?" said Jack as they stood clinched. "How do you like me?" Jeff was so blind that he made no response. He walked into three lefts in quick succession. "They don't hurt," he said.

As the night progressed the rioting grew more serious. In New ork disgruntled whites fired a negro tenement; at Mounds, Ill., a negro constable was killed and another man was mortally wounded; street rioting broke out in Kansas City and Norfolk, and two negroes were shot at New Orleans.

A white man was shot in Arkansas and a negro was fatally wounded at Roanoke, Va. Negroes took possession of Keystone, W. Va., and at Clarkburg, in the same state, white men drove all the negroes off the streets.

Washington, Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Atlanta, St. Louis, Little Rock, Houston and Pueblo early reported serious racial conflicts, and reports of riots continued to arrive during the early morning hours.

JUSTICE FULLER DIES. Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller, of the United States supreme court, died at his summer home at the little town of Sorrento, near Bar Harbor, Me., Monday morning. Death was due to heart failure, superinduced by Bright's disease, from which the veteran jurist had long been a sufferer.

Justice Fuller had recently come here from Washington with the intention of spending the summer, as was his custom.

The death of the chief justice was entirely unexpected, as he had been in apparently good health lately, and there had been no premonitory symptoms of any kind of trouble. Yesterday he attended church as usual, and when he retired last night he was to all appearances in his customary health.

Decay of the Body in Old age is Unnatural.

Permanent wastes of the system can be avoided by taking SAN-JAK, making each day a birthday for the person who has a bottle of this great medicine on hand. Read and learn how to cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Lamé Back and Stomach Diseases.

When the products of exhaustion reach the brain and deaden the nerve centers, as in the case with all old people, limiting their ability to think and act unless they have the power to excrete the acids that accumulate during sleep and eliminate them, they had better get a bottle of Dr. Burnham's SAN-JAK. I am 30 years old and have kept a bottle of this medicine in my house during the past year and take a dose quite often so I know it helps to give strength and activity. D. O. Kelley, 311 Wash-tenaw St., Lansing.

Mrs. I. M. Brown, mistress of the Butler House, Lansing, Mich., says: "One year ago I was in very poor health, sick and weak from that much dreaded disease, kidney trouble, called 'Bright's disease' by physicians. I have taken about one dozen bottles of San-Jak and have no symptoms of old trouble to annoy me. I have this letter for the benefit it may be to others.

Owosso, Mich., May 23, '08.
Dr. Burnham: Your inquiry as to my health, in reply I have taken 8 bottles of your San-Jak and can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine I ever found and the only one that cured me of Diabetes. I am doing harder work than I ever did, and I am perfectly well.
Yours respectfully,
F. B. HOLMAN.

J. F. Roe, 41 E. Main St. Battle Creek, says: I wish to state that your San-Jak cured me of Bright's Disease after the local doctors said I could not live.

E. S. Hough, ex-judge of probate of Lapeer county, says: "I bought a bottle of San-Jak from P. P. Snowman, the druggist of Lapeer. I felt I was 100 years old, with great distress of the stomach and a drowsy, sleepy feeling, which the medicine has corrected. I cheerfully permit the use of this letter for the benefit of others."
EDGAR S. HOUGH.

Lapeer, Mich., March 10, 1908.
Mrs. T. H. Curtis, R. F. D. No. 2, Lapeer, says: "I wish to tell you how much good your San-Jak has done for me. I have had the rheumatism and liver trouble 17 years. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen so I could not wear my shoes. I have taken one and one-half bottles of your remedy. The blood has all gone down. The pain gradually left and the stiff joints are getting more limber. I think 9 or 10 bottles of your San-Jak will cure me completely. Mere thanks in words is a feeble way of telling how grateful I feel for the benefits bestowed upon me by your medicine."

St. Johns, Mich., March 12, '08.
Mrs. John Fritz says: "I have been in very poor health for the past seven years and have since childhood been afflicted with sick head ache. I have taken 4 bottles of San-Jak and it has done me a wonderful good. I am now able to do light work and gaining in strength. I wish every lady in Michigan could have a bottle of this weak and ailing for I believe it is the greatest medicine in the world from the fact that my case was hopeless and my physicians said I could not be helped by medicine."

It restores the aged to health and youth. No remedy equal to San-Jak as a blood tonic. The tired feeling leaves you like magic

We will give $100 to any church or charitable institution if these testimonials are not genuine.

How the Roman Empire Grew.

Rome was founded 750 B. C., the kings were expelled 509 B. C., and it was not until 200 B. C., 490 years after the founding of the city, that the Romans conquered their immediate neighbors, the Samnites, Latins, etc. It was not until 266 B. C., following the defeat of Pyrrhus, that Rome was supreme in Italy, from the southern boundary of Cisalpine Gaul to the Sicilian strait. For 350 years, from the foundation of the city, the Romans could stand on the hills of their city and almost look across their entire territory, as it stretched away only some twenty miles on either hand. After the consolidation of their power in Italy, however, it took them but 150 years to conquer the world.

The superintendent of St. Louis' public schools tells many anecdotes of odd answers which have been made by children to the questions of teachers.

One teacher explained to the class in a lower room that an island was "a body entirely surrounded by water." Then she asked one of the little fellows in the class, "Now, Willie, what is an island?" "It's a person in a bathtub, teacher," said the confident Willie.

Another teacher in the physiology class asked the class in general which was the most curious bone in the human body. "Please, ma'am," was the quick reply from a little girl, "it's the wishbone."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Origin of Name Minnesota.

Noted antiquarians of St. Paul disagree as to the origin of the name Minnesota. It is claimed by some to be a Dakota word meaning bluish or clouded water. A skillful Chippewa scholar advances the theory that it may be from that tongue. The Chippewa, he says, always name natural objects from some peculiarity connected with them. Thus As-o-te in that language means the aspen tree. Min-a-zota is applied by them indiscriminately to the Balm of Gilead and the cottonwood tree. The forests of cottonwood abounding in the Minnesota bottoms may have caused them to give the river that name.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The River Jordan.

Sassy food.

An anecdote which we think ought to be made public and to enter into history is hereby presented. A certain man had been doing a great deal of work. He was contemplating undertaking still more, and a friend observed that if he worked too hard he would break down.

"Me!" he said. "Me break down! I don't drink them cocktails, I don't smoke, and I don't eat none of that sassy food." In our opinion he came very near analyzing correctly the sources of his strength.—Collier's Weekly.

Work 24 Hours a Day.

Fooled the Doctor.

It is not only with big drinkers that doctors have difficulty in determining the treatment of patients. Big smokers need special consideration. The late Sir Edward Burne-Jones when in failing health was asked by his doctor how many cigars he smoked a day. "Six," was the answer. "Well, you had better smoke no more than three," the doctor advised, and the artist was wont merrily to relate that the prescribed number happened to be exactly the quantity he had been in the habit of smoking.

Those Pies of Boyhood.

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. What's changed? The pies? No. It's you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach, the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Treat them. They'll restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c at L. I. Wood & Co's.

Mr. and Mrs. John Higgins and family, Mrs. B. F. McConkey, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McConkey, Mrs. J. F. Hendrick and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Higgins and family had a basket picnic on the lawn at the home of Albert Wickware in honor of Miss Myrtle Wickware Monday evening.

The annual school meeting will be held Monday evening. The question of meeting a portion of the bonded indebtedness of the district will probably be presented and two trustees will be elected, the terms of J. H. Hays and Chas. Wilsey, members of the board, expiring at this time.

Mrs. Mary Fox of Sandusky had a sinking spell in front of Ryan's Drug Store Saturday evening. A physician was summoned and she was able to return to the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Mudge. She had driven from her home Saturday and was overcome by the extreme heat. She returned to her home near Sandusky Wednesday.

On Saturday O. A. Withey purchased of A. A. Hitchcock lots 5 and 6 of Block B, Hitchcock's addition to the village. Mr. Withey also owns two lots in an adjoining block. In the spring he intends to make extensive improvements on this property and says the first building that will be erected will be a commodious barn, 22 by 32 feet in size. Underneath the barn will be a basement over eight feet in height which will be converted into a driveway, stables and poultry house.

Silk Culture In Italy.
About 500 A. D. Persian monks first brought silkworm eggs concealed in the head of a hollow staff to Constantinople. Thence silk culture spread into Greece. A little later conquest carried it to Sicily. From there to Italy it was but a step. Soil, climate, people, suited it. The industry took root, grew, thrived and continues to this day. The thrifty peasant manages to get silk and off and wine from the same small holding. First he plants his mulberry trees, sixteen feet each way. Next he prunes the heads into a hollow cup and trains his vines all over them, and finally around the edge he sets a shelter of olive trees. So all seasons bring him labor and the reward of it.

The following account of the marriage of Miss Gilchriese, who formerly resided at Cass City with her parents, is taken from the Yale Expositor: The marriage of Mary Louise Gilchriese and Matthew P. Walsh was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Gilchriese, in Yale on Tuesday, June 28, 1910, at five o'clock in the afternoon. The official board of the M. E. church and others to the number of forty were the guests who witnessed the ceremony performed by Rev. Balmer of Port Huron, assisted by Rev. Gilchriese. The bride was becomingly gowned in white chiffon over white silk and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The ring was carried in a white rose by little Dick Newman, who was dressed all in white. After the ceremony a delicious five course luncheon was served on the lawn and later the bridal couple took the evening train for a trip north expecting to spend a vacation at a club house on Madeline Island in Lake St. Clair. Mrs. Walsh is the daughter of Rev. S. M. Gilchriese, pastor of the M. E. church in Yale. She has been a teacher on the high school staff of the Bessemer schools for the past three years. Mr. Walsh is the superintendent of the Bessemer schools. Congratulations from Yale friends are hearty and sincere for their future happiness.

NEW FURNITURE.

Two Ingenious and Useful Inventions For the Home.

A USEFUL DRESSING TABLE.

The Chafing Dish Cabinet is the Soul of Hospitality—A Boon to People Living in Small Apartments and in Boarding Houses.

A folding dressing table and a chafing dish cabinet are the latest ingenious pieces of furniture made for the dwellers of small houses and apartments where every inch of room counts and where every clever space saving device that is attractive to look upon and yet adds to the comfort of living is welcomed with open purses. The last word in compactness of arrangement and simplicity of design is spoken in these last examples of the artisan's genius.

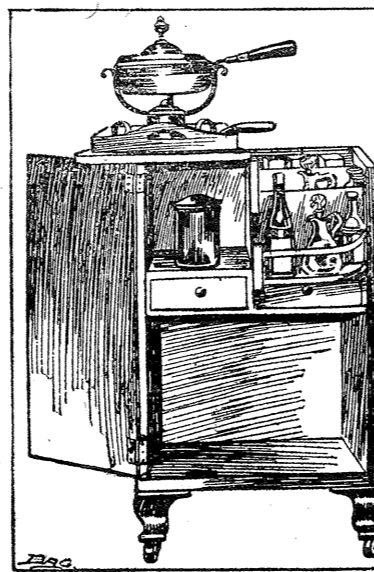

The dressing table is a reproduction from an antique adapted to present day needs with present day mechanism concealed in its polished mahogany top, by means of which it is converted automatically from a plain little table that could stand unquestioned in the parlor or living room—or any place in the flat for that matter—into the most convenient and spacious dressing table. The top is divided into two parts. By lifting the leaves on their invisible hinges a center part rises from below like an elevator, bringing into view a well selected toilet outfit mounted in silver, each piece fitting perfectly in its own little compartment—comb, brush, hand mirror, powder and salve boxes and manicure implements. In the middle, lying flat on its face, is a good sized mirror fitted with hinges and uprights that is easily lifted in place after the table is open and folded flat when it is to be closed. Nothing could be more ingeniously deceiving and serve two purposes so skillfully.

The chafing dish cabinet, so unobtrusive in its outside appearance, is the soul of hospitality. Within its smooth wooden doors are four compartments and two drawers. One, the lowest, is set aside for the chafing dish resting on a portable tray of white opaque glass bound with wood, in which are handles at either end. The glass is quickly cleansed and does not become too hot to touch. In another compartment is a fixed rack for glasses and another, which swings out so as to be in easy reach, for a set of cruet and condiments and a place for pepper, salt and all the things necessary for a chafing dish supper. There is a place for a cracker jar, too, and in the drawers are napkins, knives and forks. Besides, there is room for plates, if they must be kept there, and any number of packages, from which the supper is culled. The top is flat and just the right height for the cook to stand comfortably to stir. It is a boon to the hospitable hearts of people who live in apartment hotels and boarding houses, where nothing tastes as good as something made by one's own hand and where nothing is more fun than to gather around a steaming chafing dish for a rarebit or an à la Newburg in the wee sma' hours. Who among the vast army of boarders has not longed for just such conveniences when restaurants are closed or the trouble of dressing to go out seems the greatest woe in the world?

Scorched Linen.

When linen has been badly scorched try the following method:

Boil to a good consistency in half a pint of vinegar two ounces of fuller's earth and the juice of two onions. Spread this mixture over the damaged part and let it dry. If the threads are not actually burnt through the scorched place will appear after washing as white and perfect as the rest of the linen.

BOXES FOR BRIDE'S CAKE.

The Heart Shape Design a Popular Selection.

The statement that it is not what is done, but how it is done, that counts verges on the trite, but it is particularly applicable in the little things that contribute toward a pleasant time for wedding guests.

A wedding cake is no longer kept for weeks and weeks. It is cut into little pieces and sent or presented to the guests and friends of the happy pair. Just how to give this in an attractive form is sometimes a question that clamors for its answer in the rush of the last few days.

Boxes can now be purchased at stationery departments of any large store, and the accessories are within the reach of the majority of brides.

There is a charming little circular box that looks like a miniature wedding cake. When tied with white ribbon or with silken cords that reflect the color scheme of the decorations it is well worth having. The ends of the bow are gathered into the tops of tiny silver bells.

Perhaps the heart shaped box of white is more appropriate. This should hold a heart shaped piece of cake, and the top of the box should be tied down with broad ribbon, fastened under a rosette.

Square forms are always good. The addition of a card with the best wishes of the bride and bridegroom is a little personal touch that is well worth while. Through the knot of ribbon a spray of asparagus fern can be slipped. It lasts for weeks and gives the freshness that is desirable, especially for boxes that are to be sent away through the mail.

To the friends who are present there can easily be given a spray of leaves with a blossom from the decoration of the table or rooms. Tied with a gold or silver cord, a long, narrow box will hold a fresh sprig of flowers. People like to carry with them some part of the festivities. The mania for souvenirs still prevails.

Of course the custom of having the cake cut by the bride herself can easily be observed, for during the reception following the small pieces can be boxed and tied by a special committee of friends and distributed to the guests before their departure.

As to the dreams that may come when the fair recipients sleep with the bride's cake beneath their pillows, who can tell whether they can vie with the pleasure of receiving it in so charming a form?

Not a Characteristic.

"That was your wife with you at the railway station, wasn't it?"

"What makes you think she was my wife?"

"Well, she gave you such a short answer."

"That wasn't my wife."

Honest Praise.

An honest compliment was that paid to M. de Vendome who, while commanding the French army in Italy, dispatched a young nobleman to announce to his master the victory which he had gained at Suzzara. The latter while attempting to describe the battle became several times much confused in his narrative, when, although the king preserved his gravity, the Duchess of Burgundy, who was present, laughed so heartily that at last the young gentleman said, "Sire, it is easier for M. de Vendome to win a battle than for me to describe it."

Tasty Summer Dishes.
 It is difficult to find a more tasty entree for a summer dinner than baked tomatoes served on the plate with the meat or in individual ramekins. A little cold boiled tongue or ham mixed with the breadcrumbs filling the tomatoes is a tasty addition. Plenty of butter should be used in seasoning cooked tomatoes of any kind, the butter neutralizing the acid of the vegetable. For the benefit of persons who have never stuffed and baked tomatoes it might be said that a slice is taken from the top of round, apple shaped tomatoes and the pulp is removed and mixed with breadcrumbs, rice or macaroni with or without a little minced meat and with or without onion juice and minced parsley. Melted butter should be used to moisten the crumbs, rice or macaroni. The tomatoes should be put into a baking dish and be baked in a hot oven about fifteen minutes or until they are tender and thoroughly heated through.

The dried pieces of the cheese box may be grated and mixed with rich cream seasoned with salt and paprika and left to stand and ripen for a day. The result is an excellent cream cheese which may be served with the salad course or for a supper. Sour cream may be employed.

For a timely luncheon dish cover the bottom of a baking dish with cooked short lengths, turn over it some rich white sauce and then break on the top an egg for each person to be served. Bake until the whites of the eggs are set.

Electricity For Stains.
 There seems to be no limit to the uses to which electricity can be put in the household. The scientists are learning to harness it up into a first rate maid of all work and making it do everything, from washing the clothes to rocking the cradle, or they would if they had cradles in these up to date households. But one of the newest uses to which electricity has been put is that of a speedy spot remover.

A technical magazine says that a new electrolytic bleaching apparatus has been invented which enables a woman to remove within two or three minutes any accidental stains from articles such as tablecloths, lace, embroidery work, etc. Tea, coffee, wine, fruit, ink of any color, may all be effectively and inexpensively removed within a few minutes, and above all, the electrolytic method does not destroy the fabric of the article treated.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The next regular meeting of the Cass City W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Hays on Friday, July 22.

A meeting was held on Tuesday afternoon in the M. E. church at which a local union of the W. C. T. U. was organized with the following ladies as officers: President, Mrs. Jennie O'Dell; vice-presidents, Mrs. Ella Hanley, Mrs. Nettie Morgan, Mrs. Emma Rosseter and Mrs. Hannah Mackenzie; cor. sec., Miss Margaret Strudwick; rec. sec., Miss Mary Morgan; treas., Mrs. Margaret Cumings. Notice will be given later of dates of regular meetings, departments of work adopted, etc.—Bad Axe Democrat.

It is no news to be told that Chicago is "wet." Seven thousand saloons and a number of breweries are likely to keep it so for some time at least. A few months ago when the citizens were signing petitions for a local option election, they were told that it would be impossible to run Chicago without the saloon license. Now, they are told that there is a $4,000,000 deficit. Had the city voted dry this deficit would have been charged to prohibition. It is now in order for the "wets" to state how many saloons it would be necessary to have to put Chicago on a good financial basis.

No man in America is better able to give a fair opinion of the effect of prohibition, especially on the negro problem in the South, than Dr. Booker T. Washington. In a recent interview Dr. Washington said: "May I say a word about prohibition in the South?" he continued. "I want the people in the North to know how it is working out. It is a grand success and has proved one of the greatest helps thus far experienced by the Southern negro. Crime among the colored population has been decreasing ever since state-wide prohibition was inaugurated. The negro is saving more money and paying more attention to educational matters since Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee and part of South Carolina went dry. Negro homes, owned by negroes, have been built by the thousands in those states. The physical display of liquor was one of the greatest curses to the colored race."

THE UNUSUAL TOUR OF AN ODDLY NAMED AUTOMOBILE

MAYOR OF DETROIT WELCOMES THE RETURN OF REGAL "PLUGGER."

On the 11th of April, last, there started from Detroit, on a 5,000-mile tour, an automobile which had already made a name for itself. This car bears the extraordinary name of the "Plugger." It was built by the Regal Motor Car company of the City of the Straits, and it will be recalled that last year an automobile, for the first time in the history of the new "king of the road," traveled from New York to San Francisco in the remarkably short time of thirty days. The "Plugger" was the car that accomplished this feat. This transcontinental tour, in 1909, was undertaken largely in the interests of good roads, and much good was accomplished.

Again, in the interests of better highways, this car was sent out this year on the 5,000-mile tour. For the sake of a name, the trip was called the "Around the Circle" tour. The route, as laid out, was from Detroit to New York by way of Boston, thence west as far as Oklahoma City. The route there angled north to Lincoln and Omaha, Neb., thence in a north-easterly direction to Minneapolis, across to Milwaukee, down the western shore of Lake Michigan to Chicago, and thence back to Detroit, arriving home on Saturday, June 25.

Considering the season of the year when this trip was undertaken, and the cold weather and heavy rainfall throughout the country of the month of April, one can readily realize that the roads were in a very poor condition. The car was in charge of two enthusiastic Detroit young men, R. W. Dean and Lee Cuson. The route was laid out to fit a schedule of time. It was determined that in order to give the "Plugger" its fullest tests, and demonstrate to the public that even present-day roads in bad conditions could be negotiated, it must reach the cities of its itinerary on specified dates. The car was entirely successful in carrying out this undertaking. As would naturally be expected, were many. Oftimes the car became stalled in the mud and on several occasions tipped over into the ditch, and many varied were the experiences that came to the intrepid travelers, Dean and Cuson, who drove the car.

The departure of the "Plugger" from Detroit was an exceedingly auspicious one. Many people were on hand to see it leave, including several prominent citizens and the mayor. The latter was the last to shake hands with the two young men and wish them GodsPEED and a successful journey.

The reception accorded the "Plugger" and these young men all along the route has been quite as auspicious as their departure. Automobile enthusiasts in the large cities with their autos usually assembled and went forth to welcome the "Plugger." This invariably resulted in a parade on their return to town. Banquets and speechmaking occasions, too, were numerous—all in the interests of good roads and better traveling facilities for the automobile, whose popularity is ever-increasing.

The return of the car to Detroit was attended by a reception that by far surpassed any accorded it along the route. A great turnout of 150 automobiles laden with enthusiasts went forth to the city limits, accompanied by bands and city dignitaries. Mayor Breitmeyer, being the last to bid the young travelers goodbye, was the first to receive them on their return. A parade and reception was the completion of this extraordinary trip.

Mr. Dean tells of many an interesting experience that fell to the lot of himself and Mr. Cuson during the journey.

"There is one honor which came to us," said Mr. Dean, "the memory of which I highly cherish. In the little town of Bethlehem, Pa., there is an inn called the Sun Inn that was built in the year 1723. It is on the main pike between two of the larger cities, and in the early days was the route over which stage coaches traveled. Often men of distinction were passengers, hence guests of the little inn at times were such notables as Washington, Lafayette, Thomas Jefferson and other distinguished officials. The inn is filled with curious and antique furniture made in early days. One of the most highly prized pieces of furniture is a bed of ancient type, which on several occasions was occupied by Washington and by Lafayette.

"Mr. Cuson and myself, being guests of honor, were permitted, the night of our stop at this inn, to occupy this bed. As for comfort, I cannot say that it counts for much, but we were deuced tired after a long day's run over some very rocky roads, hence we slept without much thought concerning our forefathers.

"On our arrival at Louisville, Ky., the "Plugger" was driven to the Churchill Downs race track, where races were in progress. A big crowd was in attendance, and the presence of the "Plugger" immediately aroused the curiosity of the gathering, and the management insisted that the "Plugger" be driven twice around the track. Whether it was the appearance of the car, it is hard to say, but one ambitious steed, on seeing the "Plugger," broke from his rider and dashed clear around the track before he could be captured, much to the enjoyment of the spectators.

The "Plugger" bears every evidence of its long journeys. Travel-stained and worn bare of paint, it arouses curiosity wherever seen. But aside from this, it bears an appearance of uniqueness, owing to the fact that wherever it has gone he who cared to has been permitted to have his name card or "sign" thereon. As a result it is bedecked from radiator to tail light with tags, stickers, signs and writings, much resembling the decorations of a Saratoga trunk that has seen service in foreign lands.

The Abduction.
An Englishman from the rural districts who was on a visit to London drew up in a four wheeler opposite the British museum and, having alighted, timidly approached the cabman and tendered him 1 shilling and 6 pennies as his fare.

Cabby, desiring a half sovereign among the coppers, whipped up his horse and drove frantically away. Hearing cries from the countryman, who ran after the cab, he had an attack of deafness until, nearing Holborn viaduct, he was stopped by a policeman.

"I AIN'T GOT NOTHIN' OF HIS."

The countryman, much out of breath, soon came up with the cab, and cabby mentally bade goodby to the half sovereign.

"I ain't got nothin' of his," said the driver, turning appealingly to the policeman.

"Yes, he hev!" yelled the flustered countryman. "Ye ran away w' me grandmother!"

Sure enough, there was the old lady still in the cab and staring, pale with fright, at the crowd and policeman.

What is Most Necessary to Happiness?

Many of us will thoughtlessly answer, money, but health is far more necessary. Money will not cure rheumatism, sprains, cuts, wounds, bruises, burns, scalds, sores and such troubles, but Renne's Pain-Killing Oil will. Never known to fail. Try it. Price 25c. 50c and $1.00. Wood's Drug Store.

The man who buys 5 cents' worth of peanuts perhaps doesn't realize that his purchase is helping to build up one of the largest farm products in this country, now worth some $15,000,000 annually. The thin covering is very like wheat bran and is excellent food for live stock when mixed with other things. The shells are burned in the factories as fuel, and the ash is used for fertilizer. The vines make fine forage. Those peanuts that are not sold on the market are ground up into butter and into meal, which is used in the manufacture of confections of various kinds. But oil is the most highly prized byproduct of the peanut, of which a bushel will yield about a gallon.—Harper's Weekly.

Scriptural Misquotations.

"He who runs may read" sounds very Scriptural, but it is in reality a mangled version of the verse in the prophet Habakkuk. "Write the vision and make it plain upon the table that he may run that readeth it." Another Biblical misquotation is "By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou earn thy bread," the real text in Genesis being "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." And when we pour "oil on the troubled waters" thousands search the Scriptures in vain for the metaphor.—London Chronicle.

The Scrap Book

His Strong Point.

A senator who has grown very dignified in recent years was making a speech, says the Saturday Evening Post. After he had finished there was a reception at one of the hotels. A little man pushed eagerly forward.

"Hello, senator!" he shouted.

"How do you do, sir?"

"Say, senator, you remember me? I'm Jones-Jones of Springfield, you know. I met you down there. Remember how full we got together?"

"I do not," replied the senator icily.

They pushed Jones away, but soon he was back.

"Hello, senator!" he shouted. "Don't you remember that time down in St. Louis we went out and made a night of it? Jones of Springfield, you know."

They shoved Jones away again, and somebody standing near the senator asked, "Who's your friend?"

"I don't know who he is, but he seems to be hell on reminiscences."

With the Years.

Something remains for us to do or dare. Even the oldest tree some fruit may bear. For age is opportunity no less. Than youth itself, though in another dress. And as the evening twilight fades away. The sky is filled with stars invisible by day.

—Longfellow.

The Brake on Tight.

Out of the Grand Central station, in New York, the other day came a couple evidently from up state regions. The old man grasped his carpetbag and bulging green umbrella firmly and looked up and down the street, his mouth agape.

"There's a heap o' sights in New York, I guess, Maria," he said. "I misdoubt if we see them all."

The old lady's mouth set grimly.

"Waal, Silas," she replied, and her manner was more than significant, "bein's as I'm with you, there's some, I expect, that you ain't goin' to see!"

Insulted.

Two brothers had the habit of calling on the same girl. One of the brothers, George, was to take part in some private theatricals, and the girl had promised to fix up a shirt and a pair of shoes for his costume. The articles were to be delivered to her on a certain evening.

Frank, the second brother, took it into his head to call on the girl that same evening. Frank knew nothing of the arrangements George had made with her to help him with his costume. He rang the bell, asked the maid to tell the girl that Mr. Allen had called and sat down in the parlor.

The maid went upstairs and presently returned, trying hard not to smile.

"Miss Jones says she is busy just now and that you are to send up your shirt and shoes," was the message she handed Frank.

"What?" he yelled.

"I'm to take up your shirt and shoes."

"Thanks, but I may need them myself to go home with. I hope Miss Jones will be better in the morning. Never mind; I will close the door myself."

Maxwell stood with folded arms watching his house burn to the ground. In the grove of chestnuts, negro servants ran excitedly to and fro, dragging the precious heirlooms away from the blistering heat of the fire.

Mahogany and glass and china and silver, pictures and carpets, formed a miscellaneous pile representing all the home that was left to the last of the Maxwells.

The long drought and its consequent lack of water, told the story to the neighbors gathered about the young master who looked with brooding eyes on the scene of devastation. The nearest neighbor had galloped five miles when the first glare of light at midnight had declared the alarm of fire.

He stood at Maxwell's elbow, panting with the exertion of his long ride, a strange look of triumph on his fat face.

"I'm sorry for you, old man," he said with an air of heartiness. "You've certainly had the devil's own luck! First, the failure of your cotton—then Blue Jeans dropping dead on the track when he was marked for a winner and lastly—"

Maxwell maved an impatient hand. "Spare me a recitation of my afflictions, Seymour," he said, dryly. "There isn't one item I have overlooked. I assure you! Not even the fact that the insurance will exactly pay off the mortgage!"

Seymour's face settled into heavy lines of ill-concealed satisfaction. "Oh, I say, I wasn't thinking of that, you know, Maxwell, although I must say I can find a use for the $5,000 I loaned your uncle. It's been tied up in that mortgage for 15 years and I don't see any more show of its being paid off now than before he died—though you've tried hard to do it, I'll admit! Everything's against you, Maxwell. Better clear out and start anew."

John Maxwell did not reply. He was staring straight into the heart of the fire with troubled dark eyes. The outer framework of the house had crumbled in with the walls and lay a palpitating center of white heat. Above it arose the six dark towering stone chimneys—unharmd by the flames.

In the heart of the fire, John saw a fair face crowned with golden hair, and the blue eyes that looked so sadly into his pronounced him a failure. He groaned as he turned again to his companion.

"You're right, Seymour—I'll clear out and start over again somewhere else. There isn't much chance for a northerner in the south anyway." His eyes drifted back to the fire now dying down into smoldering embers.

A train of dark figures went ceaselessly to and fro between the grove and the cabins of the servants. Maxwell's furniture would soon find humbler quarters.

"Cisterns empty, I suppose?" ventured Seymour after awhile.

"Almost dry—couldn't draw a gallon in time to do any good. I don't know how it started—from the kitchen fire, probably. All I know is—this!" He swept his hand toward the ruins of his home and it was intercepted by the touch of a soft, cool palm.

"I'm so sorry, Mr. Maxwell," breathed Eleanor Lee at his side. Clad in riding habit and with her golden hair uncovered to the night wind she had stolen from her bed to be beside him in his trouble.

"Eleanor! Go home at once!" commanded Seymour angrily, "this is no place for you."

"I'll ride back with you, stepfather," said Eleanor, looking down from her saddle at his perturbed countenance plainly visible in the glare from the smoldering ruins. Again she turned to the young man beside her.

"You will build again, Mr. Maxwell," she said decisively.

Maxwell laughed shortly. "I cannot, Miss Lee. This fire beggars me. Mr. Seymour will take the land off my hands."

"And you?" There was forced indifference in her tone.

"Begin over again."

"Here?"

"No. I shall return to the north."

There ensued a long silence while the three looked at the glowing embers of what had once been the finest mansion in West Virginia.

"If there's nothing we can do to help you, Maxwell, we better go home. Won't you make the Hall your headquarters until—"

Seymour paused awkwardly.

"Until I clear out?" Maxwell's laugh was not pleasant to hear. "Thank you, no, Seymour—I'll find a shakedown somewhere on the plantation as long as I am here." His voice trailed huskily into silence.

Seymour mounted his horse and turned into the avenue. "Come, Eleanor—it is beginning to rain; this escape of yours will end disastrously if you take cold."

"I am afraid it will end disastrously for some one," she said carelessly.

For a brief instant Maxwell held her hand in the darkness. "I may not have the courage to see you again, Nell," he said brokenly; "if you could wait—some day I may come back for you—now, I—"

"I don't want to wait, John," she whispered, with a catch in her voice. "I will go with you and begin again with you. Do not leave me!"

"Darling!" he murmured, pressing her hand to his lips. "Dear heart—do you mean it?"

...our voice cut the darkness like a knife.

"Yes," came Eleanor's voice out of the night as she joined her stepfather.

The sound of hoofbeats grew fainter and finally died into silence; the soft patter of rain on the chestnuts and the low wail of mourning from the negro quarters formed the only requiem over the funeral pyre of the house of Maxwell.

John drew nearer the ruins and looked up at the frowning majesty of the six huge chimneys. "They must come down," he murmured, and made a mental note to go to town and get the dynamite necessary for the blasting.

Out of the grove of trees Uncle Jake's voice came cracked with emotion. "Marse John, Aunt Sally she done clar outer her cabin an' it's sweeter'n honey foh yo' comfort, sah; yo bed an' lot of things from the big house am there—oh, Marse John!"

Maxwell forgot his own troubles in allaying the grief of the old servants, but when the gray morning dawned and he still lay awake in his new quarters, all the comfort and hope that Eleanor's promise had awakened in him had departed.

He would be a cur indeed to snatch the delicately-nurtured girl from her home and let her slender shoulders bend beneath the burdens that the wife of a poor man—a beggar, he thought bitterly—must suffer! He would not bind her to a promise given perhaps in the first warmth of sympathy. He would go away—alone—and Seymour could have the coveted land.

Stern in this resolution, he rode over to Leesburg that afternoon and purchased a quantity of dynamite, and the following day, with the help of the servants, he prepared to raze the menacing chimneys to the ground. When that was accomplished and the old servants were placed in comfortable homes and all claims were adjusted—he would go away.

The women servants carried all the precious crystal and china to a place of safety, and then the work of removing the chimneys was begun.

One by one, they tottered and fell in clouds of choking dust, until there remained only the great central chimney—the hearthstone around which generations of Maxwells had gathered in joy and sorrow, in prosperity long ago, and now in bitter ruin. Better remove this landmark of a dead race of which he was doomed to be the last.

So mused Maxwell, as he stood absorbed in bitter thought while Uncle Jake, near-sighted and half blinded by tears, recklessly prepared the last blast. The fuse was laid and they withdrew into the shelter of the chestnut grove.

"I done leave ebery stick ob dynamite there, Marse John," muttered the old man with resentful triumph in his grumbling tones. "There won't no folks p'nt in here an' say—"

"My God, Jake, what—"

John's words were drowned in a deafening roar followed by the blackness and silence of death itself.

When he regained consciousness his eyes opened on the sunshine streaming through the window of Aunt Sally's cabin; all around him were familiar articles of furniture and above him bent Eleanor Lee.

"What happened—Uncle Jake?" he asked faintly.

Uncle Jake's snow-crowned head bobbed above the foot of the bed, his lips stretched in a toothless smile.

"Here I is, Marse John," he chuckled softly; "dem lazy niggers done left a fudder bald yander in de grove, an' when de 'sposen came this nigger fell on de bald an' ain't hurt a mite, sah. You was de only one—"

"I'm glad of that, Uncle Jake," smiled Maxwell, and then he raised his eyes to Eleanor's. "What did the doctor say?"

"That you will be as good as new in a few weeks," returned Miss Lee promptly, evading his tender eyes.

Maxwell groaned. "The devil's own luck," he muttered desperately. "Nell, darling, I can't hold you to your promise to go with me—I am penniless. I am not selfish enough to accept your sacrifice—"

A soft hand covered his mouth and Eleanor's bright hair touched the pillow beside his head. "I've set my heart on making a rich marriage, John, don't disappoint me, please! Listen—two weeks ago I heard my stepfather telling that man who bought the Leeson place next door, that he was positive that there was a vein of coal beneath your place that meant a fortune to the man who acquired the property.

"I thought the matter over and decided that he was the author of all your troubles. It is he who has balked all your enterprises. He had hoped to discourage you and send you away, that the place might become his." She whispered in his ear now. "I am afraid he set fire to the hall as a last resort, but for mother's sake—" her voice broke.

Maxwell found strength to encircle her waist with his right arm. "The matter is forgotten already," he said generously. "As for the coal mine, that is a chimera—"

"No—Uncle Jake's overcharge of dynamite has opened a huge hole in the ground and disclosed what Col. Pike calls the richest vein of coal in Lees county. I will be poor beside you."

Uncle Jake gave one glance at them and then tiptoed from the room.

"Great crap," he chuckled softly, "plant this heah dynamite in de chimney and git er harvest ob coal! De Lo'd's ways am wunnerful—wunnerful indeedy!"

THE COMING OF A GREAT SHOW

SUN BROS. AT CASS CITY ON JULY 20.

"Main Top" Program Includes Among Participants Many Distinguished Names.

There's a time for work and a time for play and a time to laugh—that's show day. So be it and that it may be so, the Sun Brothers' Greater Progressive Shows, have extensively billed this town and vicinity for the appearance, matinee and night, at Cass City on Wednesday, July 20. This always excellent, snappy and up-to-date tented show, comes with a brand new outfit from stem to stern. The name "Sun" is synonymous with good entertainment and all that is original in the tented field endeavor. The show this season has added enough new features, animals and acts to virtually make it a new show throughout.

The "Main Top" program is styled as a "triumph of Arenic marvels," and includes among the list of participants, such distinguished names as, The La Pasque Troupe, a company of novel Tremplin Triple Bar performers, who are said to be the very greatest of their class extant and are the very incarnation of grace, agility and skill, the others are, the Avallon troupe, a trio of high wire marvels; the Linsley trio, sensational aerialists and unique "casting" expositors; Francis Boyle and Company (4 people), in a spectacular novelty entitled, "Clubdom" and "Hoopland," in which they introduce a remarkable display of Ambi-dexterity and feats of juggling heretofore unknown; others include, Harvey and Adams, Jack Murray, Eddie Vehnelo, E. Kirke Adams and Company, the Atlas Troupe, Miss Clorine Wenzell, Miss Josephine, Miss Belle Young, the Kimball Sisters, Frederick Wright, Jack Young, Walter and Minnie Ashborn, Brothers Ortana, William O'Dale, Frank F. LaVelle and others.

The animal department is greatly augmented and serves to exhibit everything of interest and worth in the animal kingdom.

As in all past seasons, in fact since the inception of the show, there are no off-color issues, gamblers and ticket scalpers allowed to trail in the wake of the aggregation, nor is this despicable class permitted to get near the show or its exhibition grounds. A trio of special detectives constantly travel with the show to assist the local officers and authorities in preserving order and also to assist in looking after the wants of their patrons.

GEORGE HALL CHOSEN.

Elected Representative by Farmers to Consider Elevator Purchase.

The gentlemen, who visited the farmers' elevator at Sandusky last week, gave a report of their trip at the meeting of the subscribers of the local farmers' company now forming, which was held here Saturday afternoon. A communication from the Cass City Grain Co. was also read at the meeting in which the company offered its elevator for sale, the price to be determined by representatives chosen by the parties interested. It was also reported that E. A. McGeorge offers his elevator for sale on the same basis or for a lump sum of $6,500.

Frank Carson expressed himself at the meeting and said he thought the propositions were fair ones and should be given consideration. J. A. Benkelman also favored their consideration. On motion of Hugh Cooper, George Hall was elected the representative of the farmers to confer with Mr. McGeorge regarding the sale of his plant.

The financial committee reported that $7,490.00 had been subscribed by 145 farmers. J. D. Brooker, on the invitation of the farmers, explained the laws regarding the incorporation of companies in Michigan.

The members of the farmers' company will hold another meeting Saturday evening.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

Will Appear at Opera House Thursday Evening.

The managers of Mason Bros. Uncle Tom's Cabin company which will appear at Cass City July 14 have made a radical departure this season from the methods pursued by most companies playing this popular drama, inasmuch as they dispensed with the customary street parade and confine the outside advertising to simply a band concert at noon. Managers heretofore have practically given the best part of the performance on the street, introducing dogs, donkeys and ponies that play no part in the production. The dramatic strength of the company suffered in consequence.

Baby Beland, a little child 6 years old, is a leading member of Uncle Tom's Cabin company, for not only is she the brightest miss ever seen in the character of Eva but she is the youngest artist to speak intelligently the lines of her part. She is also a sweet singer and her specialties and character songs win the hearts nightly of the patrons of this great play. Few, if any companies can boast of a child fitted by nature to so vividly portray the lovable little personage, the sweetest child character ever introduced in a drama of the present or past era.

The Daily Journal of Flint says: "Mason Bros.' Uncle Tom's Cabin at White's Opera House last evening was well attended and the performance was pronounced excellent."

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

HIS DEATH SENTENCE.

He sat in a telephone booth. The man was weary and worn and heartsick, and he was calling up his wife to tell her some bad news.

A few months previously he had failed in his business and had accepted a place as bookkeeper. Now his little daughter was sick. Worry over her condition had prevented concentration on his books, and he had just been discharged.

It was about this last stroke of ill fortune he told his wife over the phone.

He told her of the loss of the job and how he was full of despair over the future. And in these brief words the wife made answer:

"Don't come home until you get a job."

The poor fellow left the booth in a daze. He had asked for sympathy and got a rebuke. He craved advice and got a harsh mandate. He was on the verge of desperation, and the stern message pushed him over the precipice. He did not go home; he shot himself.

A coward in the battle of life? But was he? Did he take the final plunge in his right mind? Poignant suffering had made a mental crisis. One word of hope and sympathy might have tided him over.

The story haunts the memory. And there is pity for the poor fellow who got his knockout blow from one he loved. But the wife is to be pitied most.

She never will be able to forget that she sent him to his death; that it was her voice that pronounced his fatal sentence; that it was her coldness and thoughtless impulse of anger that slew him.

She will always remember how she put all the blame on the shoulders of the poor husband; how she, his last and only haven of hope, refused him refuge, and, with no pity in her heart, how she denied his yearning plea for sympathy.

The recollection of that message will always be her sorrow's crown of sorrow.

Suppose she had said: "Come home, dear, and let us talk it over. Surely there is some way out. Whatever happens, we will face it together. Keep up your courage." If she only had!

Men and women: Souls about you are in extremis. Balanced between hope and despair, a word of cheer may save, a word of harshness may send them to the depths.

Humanity is a strange blend of strength and weakness. Under awful strain a strong man may be as weak as a little child and a single blow may send him dizzy to his end.

Oh, there is more than one way to kill a mortal!

TWO FUNERALS.

Did you read the long description of the funeral of Edward VII.?

The obsequies were perhaps the most imposing of modern times, and the cortege that left Westminster and followed the king's remains to rest in St. George's chapel at Windsor was the most gorgeous ever seen.

As I read I thought of how we buried the king of our village forty years ago. It was in the era before machine made goods had found their way to us to any great extent. The village tailor made the men's clothes, the shoemaker the boots, the wagon maker the wagons, the cabinetmaker the furniture, and so on.

Our king was a wagon maker. He came to us from Kentucky, was strikingly kingly in mien, tall, handsome and lion-like in strength. Once he put to flight the army of the aliens, literally throwing an entire gang of peace disturbers out of the church.

No man of the neighborhood dared face him in his righteous indignation. Yet he had a woman's heart.

By right of royal dignity and prerogative he became the peacemaker of the community.

England was no more deeply stricken by the death of her king than we by ours.

The funeral? It was to the village church that we first took his remains, the church where every Sunday he marshaled his big family that filled a pew. I remember the poignant sorrow of that people. The minister could scarce say his sermon because his throat would tighten, and he would look at us—every one in tears—through the telescope of his own tears.

The grave had been dug by neighbors, the pile of clay indicating its location. To the sobbing of sincere mourners, above which could be heard the broken voice of the minister—"Ashes to ashes, dust to dust"—the body of the man who was every inch a king was lowered to its resting place by ropes.

Nor did we desert the grave at this juncture, as is the custom of today. We remained while the neighbors took turn about filling the grave and gently patting the mound into shapelessness. And thus we buried our king forty years ago.

Saved!

A husband was waiting outside a jeweler's, growing with impatience. His wife emerged from the shop.

"They want a thousand guineas for it," she said.

"Thank heavens!" cried the husband. "Now come along."—Punch.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

"Oddfellowship! Working in manhood's prime and ardent youth In that sublimest, most ennobling strife, To show for man, best Friendship, Love and Truth."

In memory of A. A. McKenzie who died July 29, 1910.

"So let him sleep that dreamless sleep, Our sorrows clustering 'round his head;

Be comforted, ye loved who weep, He lives with God—he is not dead."

Once again Death hath summoned a Brother Odd Fellow, and the golden gateway to the Eternal City has opened to welcome him to his home.

He has completed his work in the ministering to the wants of the afflicted, in shedding light into darkened souls and in bringing joy into the places of misery, and as his reward has received the plaudits "well done," from the Supreme Master.

And Whereas, The all-wise and merciful Father has called our beloved and respected Brother home,

And Whereas, He having been a true and faithful brother-of our Mystic Order therefore be it

Resolved, That Cass City Lodge No. 203 I. O. O. F. of Michigan, in testimony of her loss, tenders to the family of the deceased brother our sincere condolence in this deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

Green be his memory, in the Order's heart

He loved so well, through all his true life's span; Bless'd be his rest, who acted well his part. Who honor'd God in doing good to man.
