MRS. MARY PAUL PASSED BEYOND

SUFFERED INTENSELY FOR A YEAR FROM GANGRENE.

Came to Novesta Township in 1890.
Funeral Held Thursday Afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Paul departed from this life at her home in Novesta township, two miles south of Cass City, early Tuesday morning, after a year of intense suffering from gangrene.

Mary Worm was born in Germany 77 years ago on Sept. 10. In early womanhood she came to New York and in that city, 53 years ago, she was united in marriage to V. Paul.

After a short residence in New York they moved to Bruce County, Ontario, and later made their home in Elgin County of the same province. In 1880 Mr. and Mrs. Paul came to Michigan and settled in Novesta township, where they experienced the hardships of pioneer life and spent the remainder of their days. Mr. Paul died in 1895.

Until about a year ago, Mrs. Paul enjoyed the best of health. At that time she became a victim of that dreaded disease, gangrene, and has since suffered untold agony. Through it all, she bore her sufferings patiently and uncomplainingly until Saturday when she was the victim of a paralytic stroke and her pains were released. She passed away quietly Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Paul was an earnest Christian mother, and until her sickness kept her indoors, she was always a faithful attendant at the Evangelical church of which society she was a member.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. M. Race, Miss Lizzie Paul and Mrs. Chas. Hall, all of Novesta township, and Mrs. C. Armstrong of Saginaw; three sons, Henry, John and Wm. Paul of Novesta township; 14 grandchildren and one great grandchild. Mrs. O. C. Swazy, a daughter, died in 1901.

Funeral arrangements were made for Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the residence and at three o'clock at the Presbyterian church, Rev. J. A. Schweitzer, pastor of the Evangelical society, officiating. Interment in Elkland cemetery.

HOTEL COLUMBIA CLOSED.

Hostelry Has Not Paid Since Local Option Went into Effect.

Considerably to the surprise of the guests and a number of boarders, landlord John H. Schultz made the announcement last Saturday evening that the Hotel Columbia would close and that no more meals would be served. When the lights were turned off, therefore, Saturday night, patrons were obliged to seek other places for Sunday accommodations.

The Columbia is one of the best hotels in Vassar, and while it appeared to have the largest patronage of any of the four hotels in town, Mr. Schultz says it did not pay, especially with the increased cost of food, and the increased cost of help, together with the loss of revenue since local option went into effect a year ago. His family will remain in the hotel. Mr. Schultz has engaged as traveling salesman for a wholesale liquor house, a business he followed before engaging in the hotel business here.

It is hardly probable however that the Columbia will remain closed for any great length of time. Its desirable location, excellent furnishings, and complete equipment, are too valuable an asset to stay idle, and no doubt some one with experience and energy will secure possession of the property and the hostelry be again opened to the public.—Vassar Pioneer.

F. E. Gifford, Optical Specialist, is at Hotel Caro every six weeks.
His next visit to Caro will be Tuesday and Wednesday, July 26 and 27.
Mr. Gifford has examined the eyes and made glasses for many people in Cass City and for 14 years has made regular visits to Hotel Caro, Caro, Mich. Mr. Gifford is a specialist in examining the eyes and grinds lenses especially for the eyes.

TOWNSEND AT CASS CITY.

Congressman Chas. E. Townsend of Jackson will make an automobile tour of Tuscola County on Thursday, Aug. 4, speaking at a dozen points and closing the day with an evening meeting at the county seat. He will speak in Cass City in the forenoon of Aug. 4. The exact time will be stated in a schedule of the trip which will be printed later.

Mr. Townsend is making a strong canvass in his efforts to become the United States senator to succeed Senator Burrows.

WHAT WOMAN'S CLUB MIGHT DO

PLAN WHICH PROMISES TO AD-VANCE CITY'S INTEREST.

One Organization of Women Makes War on Mail Order Houses to Help Its Town.

Here is an opportunity for the Woman's Club, that is, if it cares to follow a most worthy example set by the federated woman's clubs of Grand Rapids.

Through the federation of woman's clubs of that city the Grand Rapids ladies have entered on a plan which promises to advance the interest of that city. Briefly outlined it is to buy in their home city, of their home merchants, instead of sending their money outside the city. In a resolution adopted by the federation this sentiment appears:

"Resolved, That in order to show our earnest desire to participate actively in the promulgation of the local trade reciprocity doctrine the president of this organization be and is hereby instructed to appoint a special committee of three to meet with the local trade reciprocity committee of the Grand Rapids board of trade and agree upon some plan for carrying on the enterprise. We believe that a movement so full of prospects for good deserves our most active assistance. We realize that the mothers and housewives do the larger proportion of buying and we wish to go on record as deploring the tendency (which we firmly believe is largely the result of thoughtlessness) of many perhaps of our own number, to send away money to large mercantile houses in other cities; we are convinced that money so separated from our city never comes back, and the whole community is bound to be the loser. Let us do it for Grand Rapids."

How large a proportion of the money received by each family is expended by the feminine members is difficult to say, but it is necessarily large. It includes all the household expenses, that for furnishings, food, etc., and a considerable amount for clothes. All the money spent for these purposes should be distributed in Cass City, and by dealing with Cass City firms the women of this city can individually do the same work that is being done for Grand Rapids by Grand Rapids women.

ANOTHER MILK SCANDAL BREWING

PURE FOOD INSPECTORS AT UBLY AGAIN.

Examine Hundreds of Cans of Milk and Take Samples from 57 Suspicious Cans.

Last week Messrs. Howe and Millis, pure food inspectors, came into Ubyly quietly, went to the milk condensory and inspected hundreds of cans of milk and took away with them for analysis 57 samples of suspicious milk. Of these it is said 13 are from cans of people who were fined last January, and that many others are from the milk of farmers whom no one would ever suspect of dishonesty, and the scandal bids fair to outclass the former one.

The town is wild with rumors, says the Courier, Ubyly's weekly paper, one of which is that several persons have already visited Justice Gibson to explain "how it happened" if their milk is found to have been doctored.

DAN AHR A NAVY MUSICIAN

PLAYS CLARINET IN BAND ON RECEIVING SHIP.

T. H. Ahr Writes Chronicle an Interesting Letter From Ferrell, Idaho.

Dan Ahr, at one time the youngest member of the Cass City Band, was successful in passing the examination of a navy musician and is now playing clarinet in the band on the receiving ship, "Philadelphia." T. H. Ahr, his father, writes the Chronicle from Ferrell, Idaho, regarding some of Dan's experiences and also his own as follows:

I must tell you about Dan. He left us in March, determined to see some of this western country. The first letter we received from him he was working in southern Idaho. The next he was over at Pendleton, Oregon. Then we heard from him in Portland. Then he was washing dishes in a large Railroad Construction Camp near Tacoma and finally he was on the steel steamer, Kenneday, working in the kitchen. This it is claimed is the fastest steamer on the coast. He couldn't see very much of the country for all he could see was out through a port hole near the water's edge, so he decided that he was not cut out for a kitchen man anyway.

He then made an application to join the navy as a musician and was successful in his examinations, but was obliged to write to Washington, D. C., to get his age waived.
He was successful in everything and is now a navy man good and tight for four years.

He writes in part: "While I'm not making much just now, I'm having a great time and making the easiest money I ever made. Am not going to Norfolk, Va., to school but will stay and study here. Am playing with the navy band now. About 16 pieces besides the band master.
There are four clarinetists besides me. The band is composed of old timers and men about to be paid off, so you can imagine what kind of a band it is. They play all concert and this high classical music. I am playing 2nd and every once in a while I stop, Savy? Of course it is all sight music as it is locked up when we are not playing. I have a rubber clarinet, Benzel & Muller make, 6 rings and 17 keys. The band master told me the other day that I could read music alright and as soon as I practiced up a bit he would rate me. Am doing some sneaking nowadays. I played left field on navy band base ball team.
We played the band off the steamer Washington day before yesterday and they beat 14 to 15. It was something like married and singles in Cass City. I found out every time except once when I went to base on balls but if my bat had been long enough I'd have reached them.

THOMPSON M'PHAIL KILLED AT SEATTLE

ARGYLE.

No Particulars Regarding the Death of the Young Man Have Been Received.

Word was received here Tuesday that Thompson McPhail, 30 years of age and formerly a resident of Argyle, had been killed at Seattle, Washington, on Monday afternoon at five o'clock. No particulars regarding the accident have been received by his friends here at this time.

Mr. McPhail has been in the west for several years, part of the time being employed as car inspector.
Recently he has been engaged in office work for a railroad company.
He is the son of Archie McPhail of Argyle.

It is expected that the remains of the young man will be sent to Ubyly and then brought to Cass City for interment in Elkland cemetery, where his mother is buried.

HOW HER FORTUNE CAME.Also Her Husband, Who Proved an Important Element.

By ANNA BENTLEY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

May 10.

We have all received a dreadful shock. When uncle's valet went to his master's room this morning he found uncle on the floor dead. Poor, dear old man, to die all alone, without any wife or child to soothe his going! If he had only let me live with him I might at least have been within call at the moment when he was stricken. But, no; though I offered repeatedly to be a daughter to him, he steadily refused, persisting in living alone with no one but servants in the house. But uncle was very eccentric.

I supposed there was no doubt that uncle died of some heart trouble or apoplexy, or something like that, but they say now that the doctors declare there are no evidences whatever of disease—that he was in perfect health. It is suspected that he was murdered. But how could that be since no wound has been found on his body? Oh, dear! I am so frightened! I am uncle's nearest relative—indeed, his only relative so far as is known—and unless he has left his wealth to charities I shall inherit it. I do hope nothing will come of this theory that he has been made away with. Suspicion will fall upon me, for it is quite likely that I shall fall heir to all of his estate, which, they say, will turn out to be worth millions.

IT WAS A TREATISE ON POISON.

May 11.

I can't wait to see the morning paper, and yet I dread to look at it for fear it will contain some terrible development.

Great heavens! "Arnold Maxwell came to his death through an insidious poison!"

Who could have had an interest in murdering him? No one but me. I shall be charged with the crime. In any event, I shall be suspected. Oh, how many horrors accompany wealth!

May 12.

Every one is talking about uncle's taking off. The papers are full of it. The police, they say, have been very active, but do not claim as yet to have got any clew. One account says that both servants—there are but two—have been under close surveillance ever since that dreadful night, though they have both proved that they were at a servants' ball from 10 o'clock till 3 in the morning, while the doctors say uncle died between 11 and 1. I wonder how they know that. Oh, how I wish they would find the poisoner!

May 14.

This morning I saw the first newspaper mention of myself in connection with uncle's death: "No will has yet been found, but it is understood that Miss Clementine Deane, a daughter of the deceased's late wife, has long been the heir expectant. But Miss Deane, not being a blood relative of the murdered man, cannot inherit under the common law."

What a relief! I cannot inherit unless by a will. And yet what a singular position in which to be placed! If a will is found making me an heir I shall doubtless have to answer to a charge of murdering the man who loved me well enough to leave me his property. God grant that no will may be found, or, if one is found, may some one other than I be the beneficiary! I would rather work and starve than go through the ordeal of being mistaken for a murderer. Think of the long wait in jail for a trial, my portrait everywhere staring me in the face, gaped at in a crowded courtroom. My God, I shall go mad!

May 20.

For a week I have been dreading an arrest. I fancy every one with whom I come in contact is a detective watching me. I am getting thin and have lost all my color. I must divert my mind and look less worried or it will be assumed that my crime is preying upon me. I will try to read. Perhaps a sensational novel would draw my thoughts from this frightful sensation of my own.

I have been to the library and brought home a book. How kind that librarian was to me! I wonder if he knew that I was dreading a terrible misfortune. When he was telling me about the singular things he finds between the leaves of books returned to the library I forgot my trouble. He says he finds everything from a love letter to a hairpin. How careless we women are! Men seldom leave things between the pages of books, but men don't read as many books as women.

May 21.

The will has been found. I am heir to a great fortune. I have been congratulated. I hinted to one of my congratulators that I shall be suspected of having poisoned uncle. He replied that I would at least have "millions for defense." But that would not remove the charge, the trial and the stain to follow. The same person bade me not worry. He says that detectives have been watching my every act since the crime was committed and they have admitted to not getting a single item of evidence against me. I knew it. That woman who insisted on coming in to make a dress for me for a song was one of them. That man I saw at so many places, in the shops, on the street, everywhere, was another. I am not reassured by the person who has comforted me, but I have finished my book and will go for another. I long to talk to my friend the librarian about what is in my mind. He has become my only confidant.

I am electrified by a spark of hope. This morning I received a letter addressed in a strange hand. I studied the superscription a long while, but I could not make out from whom it could be. It was postmarked as sent from this town. Finally it occurred to me to open it. I suppose I would have done so before had my mind not been so tortured by the frightful specter that has been hanging over me. What was my surprise to see at the bottom of the letter, "Your friend The Librarian."

This is what he says:

After talking with you yesterday I went home and, taking up a newspaper, read a detailed report of the doctors who were deputed to analyze the poison found in the case of your late uncle. Suddenly my fingers released their grip on the paper, and it fell to the floor. An idea had flashed upon me. Was a singular fact not have been called before I should not have remembered it except for its rarity. I went to the shelf, where I found it covered with dust, took it down and gave it to the stranger.

It was a treatise on poisons. A group of events recorded in my brain had led me to this remembrance. My chats with you as to your uncle's death, all I have heard about it and lastly this report of the doctors—might not that book contain mention of the poison reported by them as having been used to kill your uncle. I referred to the book and lo! there it was, and how marvelously it is awakened! I remembered a wet, dismal night a month ago when I was sitting at my desk in the library. A young man, a stranger to me, came in and asked for a rare work of a foreign author. Since I had never heard of him before I should not have remembered it except for its rarity. I went to the shelf, where I found it covered with dust, took it down and gave it to the stranger.

The volume, the bit of paper—evidently slipped in between the pages for a place mark and forgotten—and the record concerning its withdrawal are now all in the hands of the police. I write this to you before going to bed that with the morning light you may have a hope of being relieved of that unspoken suspicion that you cannot but feel overshadow you.

Isn't it delightful? If it really turns out that this man who seems to have been so interested in this especial poison killed uncle I shall be vindicated and rich.

But it may turn out that he wished the poison for another purpose. They may never find him. If not, at any rate this bit of evidence proves his existence and diverts suspicion from me.

June 20.

The young man who took the book on poisons from the library has been arrested. The police have been a long while about it and would not have succeeded in finding him had it not been for the handwriting on his slip used for a bookmark. The way it came about was this: Uncle has a nephew, a real nephew, his own sister's son. I have never before heard of him. He is a physician. He put in a claim as next of kin for uncle's estate. As soon as the police heard of this they secured a specimen of his handwriting. It turned out to be the same queer hand as that found in the book.

Sept. 18.

The second part of the horror attending uncle's death is ended, thank heaven. Yesterday the murderer received his punishment. I did not know it till it was all over. It is all so dreadful! I don't wish another fortune to come to me in such an awful way.

It is my wedding day. And whom am I to marry? Why, the man who removed the cloud that hung over me at the time of uncle's death. Isn't it natural that I should appreciate such an act even if it came unintended? But he sympathized with me from the first. And when he made the discovery that vindicated me he could scarcely contain himself for joy.

And so ends the episode of the coming of my fortune. We are to go abroad, my husband having received a commission to examine libraries there and purchase a new lot of books for the library here. There has been a gift for this purpose. Who knows who is the giver? I do.

A SQUARE DEAL.

Osborn's Record, Life and Acts Bear the Light.

The Daily Herald-Leader, of Menominee, makes the following interesting comment on the gubernatorial situation:

Depending upon ignorance and prejudice, an effort is being made upon the part of those newspapers which are supporting Lieutenant Governor Kelley to injure the gubernatorial candidacy of Chase S. Osborn because of his residence, north of the Straits of Mackinac. The success of this move depends upon two things, first, popular ignorance of upper peninsula geography, and second, lack of acquaintance with Mr. Osborn and his record. Both these occasions for opposition to Osborn will have disappeared before this campaign is over.

Chippewa county, Chase Osborn's home, is an agricultural county. It has a larger acreage of arable soil than any county in the state save one. It is removed from the nearest mine by over two hundred miles. It is as reasonable to say that the people of Berrien county in southwestern Michigan would be governed by influences which directly affected the city of Detroit as to say that a resident of Chippewa county was governed by what affected conditions on the iron or copper ranges. Chippewa county is not only wholly an agricultural county, but its population is largely rural. There are two men engaged in agricultural pursuits to one engaged in any other line of business. There are more granges in Chippewa county than in many counties below the straits. So much for argument that mining influence controls in Chase Osborn's home.

As to Mr. Osborn personally, he owns not a dollar's interest in a mine in the state of Michigan and while if elected governor, he will insist upon square treatment for mining interests, he will insist upon this with no greater vigor than he will upon square treatment for the farmer in Clinton county, or the manufacturer in Detroit or Grand Rapids.

Now as to Mr. Osborn's record. The greatest and most significant fight ever made in Michigan for equal taxation was that led by the late Governor Hazen S. Pingree. It was because of Pingree's efforts that the system of specific taxation, so prolific of abuse, was given its quietus in Michigan and the ad valorem system put into general use. Where was Chase Osborn in that fight?

At that time Chase Osborn owned and published a newspaper, the Soo News. The News was the first paper in the state to come out for Hazen S. Pingree for governor. It announced his candidacy. Chase Osborn led the fight for Pingree in the upper peninsula. Chippewa county sent a representative to the legislature pledged to the Pingree taxation ideas. It was the bill introduced by Chippewa county's representative, William Chandler, that finally became a law, putting the fight for Pingree in the upper peninsula. Chippewa county sent a representative to the legislature pledged to the Pingree taxation ideas. It was the bill introduced by Chippewa county's representative, William Chandler, that finally became a law, putting the fight for Pingree in the upper peninsula. Chippewa county sent a representative to the legislature pledged to the Pingree taxation ideas. It was the bill introduced by Chippewa county's representative, William Chandler, that finally became a law, putting the fight for Pingree in the upper peninsula.

Inasmuch as Chase Osborn will invade every county in the state before this campaign is done and inasmuch as his record is daily becoming more widely known, this campaign against him will fall of its purpose completely. For the people will see and hear Osborn will instinctively recognize him for what he is, a man without sectional prejudice, a man who loves and practices square dealing and in whose hands the interests of the whole state and all the people will be safe and secure.

Sincerity Impresses.

One of the first stops made by Mr. Osborn on his campaign tour through the lower peninsula was at Presque Isle. H. H. Whiteley, editor of the News makes the following comment on Mr. Osborn's visit:

Hon. Chase S. Osborn, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, stepped unostentatiously from the train last Friday afternoon and in his short stay of two hours had won the united friendship and support of our community.

While his coming had been known only a day ahead and suitable arrangements for his reception were impossible on such short notice, nevertheless a considerable number greeted him and listened to a fine address on good citizenship. Mr. Osborn has that magnetic personality which enables him to gain the favor of his audience and carry them with him to the end.

He impresses everyone with his square toed sincerity. He does not mince matters. He defines his position on every question in such a way as leaves no doubt as to just where he stands. He does not endeavor to give an answer that will please both sides.

His brilliant intellectual talents and his literary and oratorical ability mark him at once as a gentleman who would give to the governor's chair an atmosphere of culture which would be most fitting. The office would be an honor to the man and the man would be an honor to the office.

Poise.

When you lose your temper, when you procrastinate, when you get nervous, excited; when you are blue and disappointed, when you worry, you lose much of your energy, your efficiency; you cannot bring the whole, complete, positive man to your task. A discordant, troubled, unbalanced mind is in no condition to create, produce. It is negative, and a negative mind cannot produce.

Never mind what others do; run your own machine, think your own thought, live your own life. Let others fret and worry. If they will; keep your poise, your serenity. Do not imitate, follow, pretend or pose. Be fearless, self-reliant, independent. Be yourself.—Success Magazine.

my feet and limbs were swollen so I could not wear my shoes. I have taken one and one-half bottles of your remedy. The blot has all gone down. The pain gradually left and the stiff joints are getting more limber. I think 3 or 4 bottles of your San-Jak will cure me completely. Mere thanks in words is a feeble way of telling how grateful I feel for the benefits bestow-

BLANK CARTRIDGE.

A Southern Revolutionist Who Fell Into His Own Trap.

By OSCAR COX.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

A friend of mine who had been United States consul in Central America told me this story one evening while we were smoking on the deck of a steamer on our way from the isthmus to New Orleans:

You've heard of the Mancha family,
I suppose, who did a bigger business at revolutionizing than any lot of men who ever put out the sign "Revolutions" in Central America. Well, Juan Mancha, the oldest brother, was head of the firm and was the keenest, the foxiest rascal of the lot. His eye was always on the loot, but he had the faculty of playing patriot with more emotional accompaniments than any revolu-tionizer in Central America. I was consul at Costa Rica when Juan Mancha engineered the revolution of 18—and knew all about the story of Diaz Valdez, the secretary of state, who finally went over to him with a satchel containing half a million dollars.

Mancha had got most of the people on his side and had stolen enough money to send to New Orleans for a cargo of arms and ammunition. He would have appropriated this find to himself, but it wasn't enough. He was not a small dealer in revolutions, but a big one, usually aiming for something like a million or two. But he was in need of more funds when Valdez, thinking that he was sure to win, concluded to go over to him.

Senora Valdez was a mighty pretty and a mighty bright woman. She had been a great coquette before Valdez married her and hadn't outgrown the habit, though you'll see from what I'm going to tell you that she was true to her husband. Well, Valdez told his wife one day that Mancha was sure to win in the end and that they'd better arrange to go over. He suggested that she go to Mancha and tell him that her husband was ready to join him with

"TAKE HIM OUT AND SHOOT HIM." $500,000. But Valdez didn't wish to be considered a deserter from the existing government. To avoid this obloquy he would be on a certain day at a certain village midway between the government and the insurgent forces, and Mancha could send out a dozen or so mounted men and capture him. Senora Valdez was to secure Mancha's promise to permit the secretary and herself to take passage for the United States with $300,000 of the $500,000, the remaining $200,000 to go to the "cause of the revolution."

This was a very nice and looked like a very safe scheme to the secretary, but his wife, who was brighter than he, couldn't see why Mancha should be content with $200,000 when he could as well have the whole sum. However, she volunteered to go and make the deal. So, giving out that she was ill and shut up in her home, she went under cover of the night to Mancha's lines and in the morning, raising a white handkerchief on a stick in sight of the revolutionary vedettes, was taken in and conducted to Mancha.

Now, Senora Valdez did not propose to have her husband give himself up until she had swept those handsome but keen eyes of hers about her and learned something of the situation.
The revolutionary army at that particular point consisted of between 100 and 200 men, and with a view to insuring her husband's safety she made up her mind to capture it. I don't mean that she, a woman, would take so many men prisoners, but she would win them to do her bidding in case of need. She didn't work openly before Mancha's very eyes, but secretly and principally among the officers, especially the commander in chief, a half breed Spaniard and Aztec not twenty-five years old, whom she proceeded to tie up in a bowknot.

When she had made due preparation she sent a messenger, or rather, Mancha did, telling Valdez to be at the appointed place the next night. At the time agreed upon Valdez was there, quietly sleeping, so it was supposed, at an inn, when a troop of revolutionary soldiers swooped down on the place and carried him off. He reached the headquarters of the insurgents the next day and was conducted between two soldiers to Mancha.

"Take him out and shoot him," said the revolutionary chief.

"Before I die," said Valdez, "may I have a word with you?"

Mancha took him into a private room, where he unbent, grasped his hand and embraced him.

"Senora Valdez has assured me," said Mancha, "that you are especially anxious not to be known as deserting the government cause. Now, it has occurred to me that in order to preserve your good name it would be well to have you shot."

"What do you mean?" asked Valdez, blanching.

"I mean that if I place you before a firing squad whose guns are loaded with blank cartridges, they fire at you, you drop and are carried away, the news will go to the capital that you died a noble death. Meanwhile you and your senora can step on a steamer and remain dead in New York, Paris—wherever you find the climate most to your taste."

"Very well. I presume I shall have to remain under guard till I am executed. When will that occur?"

"At once."

"I suppose I may bid goodbye to my wife?"

"Certainly."

Senora Valdez was called in and the matter explained to her. She thought a moment and said:

"Your plan is admirable, but you are making one mistake. The execution must not take place till just before a steamer leaves."

"Very well," said Mancha. "A steamer leaves tomorrow evening for New York. I shall appoint your execution to take place at 7 p. m. You will sail at 8."

Senora Valdez went at once to Gonzales, the commander of the army, and told him that her husband was to be stood up to be shot at, but no order would be issued to leave out the bullets. Gonzales looked knowing, and the senora secured his promise to inform her if she were correct in her surmises. She further plotted with him for his support in case Mancha should not give an order to use blank cartridges. If Gonzales would obey her order to get rid of Mancha and lead his men, with the secretary of state, to the capital to join the government forces the half million that Mancha had with him would be divided between him and his army, he having a hundred thousand for his share. To this, after some hesitation, he also agreed.

The next afternoon the secretary was marched out for execution. His weeping wife was there to see. Gonzales was there, too, and whispered to her that his men's guns were loaded by order of Mancha. She then openly requested him to send for the commander. Mancha appeared, wondering if there could be a hitch in his plan.

"I believe, general," said Senora Valdez, "that there is treachery. My husband will be fired at with bullets instead of blank cartridges."

Mancha did not know what to do or to say.

"Colonel Gonzales," continued the lady, "I have General Mancha's promise that my husband shall be fired at with blank cartridges. You are an honorable man. Make a test of your guns by firing them at General Mancha. If he has fulfilled his promise he will not be injured."

Gonzales, who was prepared for this, took a gun from one of his men, aimed it at Mancha, fired and shot him dead.

The act was the signal for a counter revolution, if it could be called such, where there were but some hundred and forty rascals led by a greater rascal than any of them. Of course Gonzales feigned astonishment that the piece he had fired at his chief had been loaded. Senora Valdez rushed to her husband and embraced him. Then, turning, she addressed the garrison, nearly all of whom had turned out to witness the execution.

"Soldiers," she said, "my husband and myself came here to make an offer by which you should all profit.
That man," pointing to Mancha's body, "promised for the sake of appearances to pretend to execute my husband.
You see that the traitor has been killed by one of the bullets intended for the man he would slay."

Then Gonzales told them that there was a treasure to be divided among them; that they were to march to the capital and have preferment among the government forces, which now that the treacherous Mancha was dead would surely be triumphant.

The first thing done was to bring out the treasure and turn it over to this valiant army, whose conscience was altogether too tender to see a man stood up to be shot down by bullets when he had been promised blank cartridges. There was a fine spree that night, and the next morning the army, with Senor and Senora Valdez riding in its front, marched to the capital. They received an ovation, for it was certain that the killing of Mancha and the defection of this small though relatively important portion of his army would end the revolution.

Senor Valdez gave out that the plot had been carried out exactly as it had been conceived. Of course there was a shortage of half a million in the accounts, but the people didn't mind a little thing like that since it had accomplished such a brilliant result. The outstanding revolutionary armies soon laid down their arms, and peace once more reigned in the state.

Senora Valdez came in for the credit of executing the scheme, though her husband was supposed to have conceived it. At any rate, she was the most popular woman at the capital, and when the president's term expired Valdez was elected in his place.

SUMMER COMFORT

A Sewing Chair That's That and Lots More.

GIFTS FOR THE TRAVELER.

Amusements For Children on an Ocean Voyage—Summer Window Shades That Make For Coolness—A Delicious Lemonade That Is Little Known.

Dear Mabel—New York became so intolerably hot that we just rushed down to Belle Harbor one Saturday afternoon not long ago and luckily found a charming cottage which had not been rented, so we took it, and at the present moment I'm sitting on the porch with a glorious view of the ocean in front of me, for you must know that Belle Harbor is only an hour's ride from town and right on the ocean. Well, the chair that I'm occupying is one of the joys of my life, and I stumbled across it quite unexpectedly in a department shop last week. It is called a sewing chair, but it has many other uses. At first glance you would take it for an ordinary rocking chair, with the peculiarity of having solid sides, but when these sides, which are hinged at the seat,

A PORCH SEWING CHAIR.

are let down its other uses are well understood. These sides become transformed into broad arms on which you may lay your sewing or use your writing pad as I'm doing now. Except for unusual work these arms are as good as a table. But I'm not half through with the attractions of the chair, for you can take the rockers off when you want it to be stationary and fold them up, and the chair will rest firmly on its four legs. What do you think of that for a "stunt" piece of furniture?

Gift For the Traveler.

Dorothy D. went abroad last week, and I made her such a pretty little steamer present, one that I found so useful the last time I crossed. It's a simple portfolio made of gray canvas, with a single large pansy "for thoughts" worked on the cover. To make the portfolio all that is necessary are two pieces of cardboard the desired size. These are covered with the canvas and lined with violet silk.
The two materials I overcast together all round the edges. With a hinge of ribbon the portfolio is complete. Oh, yes, I forgot to say that on the reverse side of the cover I embroidered Dorothy's monogram and that two ribbons passed around the portfolio are tied to keep the contents secure. I used my case for preserving prints and drawings while traveling.

And, talking of gifts, when children travel a few well chosen presents will keep them happy. It really takes very little to amuse children. A box of gifts to last through the days of ocean voyage can be arranged that may make all the difference between a pleasant and a disagreeable trip to both mother and child. Such a box was recently got up for some children by a friend of mine. The outside box, of generous proportions, was tied about with a silk flag, for the youthful traveler, particularly if he is a boy, wants to flaunt the stars and stripes on all patriotic occasions. Each small box put into the large one was numbered, with directions as to when it was to be opened and how its contents were to be used. For instance, "Box No. 1" contained peppermints to be opened after the first meal on board. "Box No. 2" had an exciting deck game to be opened the next afternoon. A morning gift was a tablet and a set of colored crayons. Another gift was a set of bean bags made of blue linen marked with the owner's initials. A game of cards with the pictures of the masterpieces in art was a helpful gift.

An outfit for making paper flowers was a very suitable gift for the girl of the party, and to one of the boys just learning to tell the time a dollar watch was given.

Older little people frequently get restless on long trips. For them was a box of candy made doubly sweet by writing some little personal messages and humorous sayings on bits of paper and wrapping them around the bonbons. And what child would not love to receive a pretty box containing a fountain pen, a book of stamps, a few special delivery stamps, postal cards and paper wrappers? Little red leather record books would not come amiss either, as the young traveler would feel most important when making notes of the trip. And what fun it would be to read such notes written by a child of an imaginative mind!

The Double Shade.

I think it so queer that more housekeepers do not know about double shades that are to be had for windows. In summer they are particularly desirable. They are not wonderfully new; but, as I have just hinted, very few women know of their existence. Most women who want to keep out the glare of the summer sun, yet have attractive window effects from the inside, use two sets of shades, the dark green ones hanging next the window to keep out the sun and the white ones next the room over which hang curtains of cool looking net or muslin. This is bunglesome and unnecessary, as it is possible to buy shades that are green on the outside and white or cream on the inside, or if you want the dark side next the window they can be made in this way.

Mother has just brought me a glass of "frog lemonade." You never heard of it? Probably not. It's a southern drink that is perfectly delicious, and I know you'll bless me one of these hot days if I give you the recipe. Take a large punch bowl, put in a pound of sugar, three quarts of water, the juice of two dozen lemons and one of pineapple and add two bottles of seltzer water. Mix all well. Add a dozen or so ripe strawberries or cherries and thin slices of pineapple and lemon. If not sweet enough add more sugar.
When thoroughly mixed add a large square of ice and let the mixture get very cold before serving. Fill the glasses one quarter full of crushed ice and fill up with the lemonade, adding with it some of the fruit. This is a very generous quantity, but the portions could be easily reduced.
Yours devotedly,
Belle Harbor, N. Y.

When Going on a Picnic.

Do not attempt too much is the best all around rule for the picnic giver, says Marion Harris Nell. Do not go too far. Hungry people are never at their best. Do not overelaborate the food. A large choice is not necessary.
A plentiful allowance of a few well selected and appetizing dishes is much wiser. Do not arrange too long a day.
An early start is difficult for the hostess, who has much to oversee in packing and arranging, and unpopular with most people.

If the picnic party happens to have among its numbers some young people we must cater for big appetites and provide substantial sandwiches.

Though substantial, they need not be dry, coarse or plain. Pack carefully.
For this purpose always save tin candy boxes and pasteboard boxes of a convenient size. Have on hand plenty of oiled paper. It is indispensable.

Paper cloths and napkins are now so dainty that many hostesses use them at picnics in preference to taking their own table linen. In arranging for a picnic have as few things to take home as possible. Nobody wants to take home the surplus edibles which should never have been taken. The most fickle appetite surprises itself under the mellowing influence of invigorating air and the novelty of it all, but it has a limit too.

Cucumber sandwiches are an old standby for the veranda tea and the summer picnic, but one woman has a way of giving these old timers a little different tang from those usually served. The secret may be in the few drops of onion juice which she sprinkles over the slices of the vegetable and in the paprika with which she seasons the mayonnaise that moistens the filling.

Household Hints.

Do you know that coffee stains, even when there is cream in the coffee, can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabrics by brushing the spots with pure glycerin? Rinse in lukewarm water and press on the wrong side until quite dry. The glycerin absorbs both the coloring matter and the grease.

Do you know if a cloth is wetted in vinegar and wrung out as dry as possible with the hands and wrapped around cheese and then the whole put in a large paper bag and kept in a cool place the cheese will retain the moisture and freshness of a newly cut cheese and will not mold.

Do you know that in peeling apples the brown satin that generally appears on peeled slices can be avoided by setting each slice as it is peeled in a basin of cold water? Thus no contact with the air is possible, and the stain is avoidable.

The water draws out the acids, and there is a sacrifice of flavor to color if this plan is used and the apples are soaked too long. Any discolored slices will turn white again if rubbed with a piece of lemon.

Do you know that sometimes the most careful washing will not remove the flavor and odor of food from the utensil in which it was cooked?

This is frequently the case with fish, onion, cabbage, etc., but there is a remedy which may be a little trouble and yet is well worth trying. After any of these articles have been cooked wash the utensil well with soap and water. Then nearly fill it with cold water and for each quart of water add one tablespoonful of dissolved washing soda.

Place on the fire and let the water get boiling hot. Now pour the water into the sink. Rinse the utensil with clean water, and on wiping it dry it will be found perfectly sweet.

A Change In Furniture Covers.

There is a change in the materials selected for loose summer coverings for furniture. The pale tans and grays that have concealed or protected, as the case may be, chairs and sofas for a number of years may have the quality of coolness to recommend them, but they were certainly depressing.

Now it is the fashion to make the slip covers of pretty cretonnes, not necessarily light, but in cool looking greens and browns, soft blues and dull pinks. These are much prettier than the linen and will last an entire summer without a visit to the laundry.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Contributed by Local Union.

If it would be folly to expect a tree to grow which is set, contrary to God's plan, with the roots up in the air and the top in the ground, is it not equal folly to expect a town to prosper when we try to run it contrary to God's plan? He says, "Woe to him that buildeth a city with blood and establisheth a city by iniquity."

A business man of Fremont, Ohio, has increased his gifts to temperance because he can afford to do so, as from a money standpoint alone he is receiving big returns on the aid he has furnished the temperance cause.
"My retail business," said he, "has even increased so much since the town is without saloons and my collections are so easy I am convinced the voting out of our saloons was the best business move ever made by our citizens. Fremont should contribute liberally to the cause because it has done so much for the town in a business as well as a moral way."

The men's class in one of the Sunday schools of Mount Vernon, Ohio, has grown from about forty members when the town had saloons to 520 members since the saloons went out. Many of these members used to be drinking men and some of them are ex-saloonkeepers and ex-bartenders. Along with this gratifying change in moral conditions has come a general increase in business and a corresponding decrease in drunkenness and crime.—The American Issue.

In a recent magazine a writer described his visit to a Long Island estate, where a company of young men were working about the trunks and up in the branches of the trees.
They were under the direction of a "tree doctor," who had been engaged to treat the trees for diseases, precisely as a physician treats human patients. "The young fellows were working with augers, saws, rope and tackle, chains, paint pots, hammers, and even curry combs," the visitor wrote. He was much disturbed when he saw one of the boys hanging by one knee and braced by the other near the top of a high elm.
He was chiseling out a hole in a comparatively small branch. "Don't the boys meet with severe accidents?" he asked the "tree doctor," when he was able to take his eyes from the climber. The answer is worth remembering. "No, not often. They occasionally get a tumble on the soft earth but rarely break any bones. None of these boys, several of whom are graduates from agricultural colleges, use intoxicants in any form. They live on a simple diet of the most wholesome foods, keep good hours and have exemplary habits. I select them with close attention to these qualities. Their muscles are tough and elastic, their nerves are strong and they climb and hang like monkeys." Surely it is unnecessary to add a single word of comment. The tree doctor preached a temperance sermon not easily forgotten.

The Universal Bean Harvester. Description

FRAME—
The frame is composed of two wood cross pieces bolted to end supports, to which are attached the ratchets, main levers and the standards which carry the knives, guards and shoes.

MAIN WHEELS—
The main wheels are an all-steel made with wide rim.

AXLES—
The axles are cone shaped and protected from the dust by a cap.

BOXES OR HUB JACKETS—
The hubs of the main wheels are fitted with removable iron boxes or jackets, which can be replaced when worn at a slight expense.

POLE—
The pole is made from one piece split and spread, running back and bolted to a casting which pivots to and swings on the rear of frame and holds the seat support. It is also held at front of frame by an ingenious contrivance which, by the use of two levers in front, allows it to be shifted sideways so that the machine does not slide when used for side hill work and also tilted, giving the knives more or less pitch.

SIDE LEVERS—
The side levers are iron of extra length, inclining towards the operator, making them easy to operate from the seat. With these levers the knives can be made to run deep or shallow as the soil and work require; and the guards and blades can be raised to pass obstructions, in turning at end of row, and when machine is not in use.

GUARDS—
The guards in front ride on a wheel, and play up and down automatically, being hinged to standard by a strong steel bar.

SHOES—
The shoes which bolt to the guards on the outside are made of malleable iron, hence very strong. They are wide and high and remove all obstructions, making a clear track for the main wheels, so that the machine always runs level and the blades cut an even depth instead of riding over and crushing the beans.

CLEANERS—
The cleaners are steel rods attached to the guards.

BLADES—
The blades are of the best extra-heavy tempered steel, beveled and sharpened at cutting edges, and highly polished. The front ends are about 44 inches apart and can be spread to 51 inches. The rear ends are 6 inches apart and can be spread to 12 inches. The extreme length of the blade is 31 inches.

FINISH—
The machine is nicely painted in red and black, stenciled and varnished, being very neat in appearance.

It is the best constructed, simplest and strongest machine made.

A long evener and neckyoke are furnished with each machine.

We guarantee the Harvester in every respect. Be sure and get our prices before you buy.

Those Pies of Boyhood.

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. What's changed? The pies? No. It's you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach, the vigorous bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They'll restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c at L. I. Wood & Co's.

Miss Lillian Yakes left Saturday to accept a position in the Bell telephone office at Flint.

Mrs. P. P. Webber and Mrs. Emma Jasmer were in Caseville Thursday and Friday last.

E. A. McGeorge and family, Miss Anna Kelley and Alfred Rouchleau spent Sunday in Caseville.

Mrs. W. R. Frasier of Davison was the guest of her sister, Mrs. E. W. Jones, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. John Tewkesbury and Miss Lena of Shabbona were the guests of Mrs. Andrew Cross Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Knowles returned Saturday from a week's visit with relatives in Bay City and Port Huron.

John Breckenridge and two daughters of Saginaw were the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. A. Doerr, Sunday.

Miss Rose Straube, who has been visiting her brother, W. N. Straube, returned this week to her home in Lafayette, Ind.

Misses Jessie and Elsie Boyd left Sunday for Dutton, Canada. They were accompanied to Detroit by their father, Thomas Boyd.

Miss Ruby Taggett of Caro returned to her home Tuesday after spending a few days at the home of Miss Madeline Auten.

Dugald McLachlan of Greenleaf and Miss Luella Bissett of Elkland were married by Rev. A. O. Knapp at the latter's home on Thursday, July 14.

A. T. Overman has the state road job east of town well under way. The grading is about done and is ready for the gravel. The culverts have already been placed.

W. S. Eddy, capitalist of Saginaw accompanied by a party of three gentlemen, was in town Monday looking over the country with a view of putting an electric line through this place.

Miss Marie Brooker, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Ella Turner, in Flint and her friend, Miss Joyce Fairweather, in Inlay City for several weeks, returned home Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. David Tyo were visitors at the home of their son in Detroit a few days last week. Mr. Tyo returned home Friday evening and Mrs. Tyo remained in the city until Sunday.

The company who played Uncle Tom's Cabin here last Thursday had a band which was rather small as to number of players but which produced some excellent music. Frank Lenzner, an authority on band music, says it was the best band that ever visited Cass City.

While Fred Smithson and his sister-in-law, Miss Dunham, were driving from Eaton Rapids to Hastings, they were held up by two highway men. Mr. Smithson told the fellows, who were evidently members of a band of gypsies that they had better be "on their way" before it was too late. The bluff worked for the men departed hastily thinking Mr. S. was armed, which he was not. Fred formerly was the owner of a dray and bus line in Cass City.

Miss Madeline Auten entertained about twenty friends Monday afternoon at a thimble party in honor of Miss Ruth Akers of Cleveland. The afternoon was pleasantly spent with sewing and picture puzzles. A composite poem was composed by the young ladies. The refreshments consisted of salted almonds, fudge and penutchie, punch, walnut ice cream and chocolate cake. The vocal solos by the Misses Akers, Ruby Taggett of Caro and Lucile Schenck and the duet by the Misses Akers and Taggett were enjoyed by all.

Misses Anna Adair, Lena Fairweather, Lucile Schenck, Lola Fritz and Ethel McGregory were entertained at supper Monday evening at the home of Miss Ora McKim. A delicious supper was served on the lawn. After supper there was just "one cow apiece" to be driven from the pasture, for all but one young lady who was afraid of cows and climbed the fence. In the evening various tests of nimbleness and strength were indulged in and all sorts of stunts were performed. The last feature of a most enjoyable evening was the walk home in the moonlight.

Overdose of Chloroform—

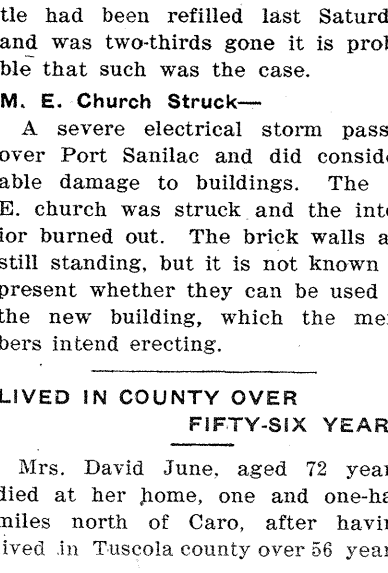

The postmortem held on Albert Lawton, who was found dead in bed at Vassar Thursday morning by his daughter, revealed the fact that death was caused by rupture of the heart. As this signified some violent exertion or strain quite a little anxiety was felt as to the cause. A bottle of medicine was found in Lawton's room, which on examination was found to contain chloroform and the doctors agreed that an overdose of this might have caused a rupture of the heart and as the bottle had been refilled last Saturday and was two-thirds gone it is probable that such was the case.

M. E. Church Struck—

$100,000 BLAZE AT KALAMAZOO

BIG LUMBER YARDS AND SEVERAL RESIDENCES TOTALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE.

DETROIT HAS A POPULATION OF OVER 468,000 ACCORDING TO WATER BOARD.

Official Census Figures Will Not Be Published for Several Weeks to Come.

Fires at Kalamazoo.

While the fire department was fighting flames in the North & Coon lumber yards, another alarm was turned in from the south side of the city, where a fire had been discovered in the J. E. Gall lumber yards. Damage to the extent of several thousand dollars was done in the North & Coon yards, but because of the low water pressure and a high wind the firemen lost control of the fire in the Gall yards, and within an hour half a block of lumber was in flames. The fire quickly spread to a number of residences near by, which were burned to the ground.

By attaching the city mains to the asylum water tower, a new water supply was secured. Six houses were entirely destroyed and three others damaged.

The police declare a gang of robbers and thieves following a wild west show that visited Kalamazoo set fire to both the yards, and when the flames were well under way started robbing several houses about the city. As soon as the flames were well under way numerous reports were received from all sections of the city of attempted burglaries. The home of Mrs. Jennie Gilmore, one of the wealthiest residents of the city, was entered and robbed. The loss by the fire will probably amount to $100,000.

Detroit's Population.

The census bureau is being flooded with requests for information as to the population of various cities, but nothing will be given out until the official figures are published, which will not be for several weeks.

There is intense rivalry between several cities and a good deal of curiosity as to whether Detroit will reach the 500,000 mark. It can be said that it will not, and while the exact figures are secret the census will show the population to be slightly in excess of 468,000.

This is very close to the water board estimate of 462,678, given out. The water board's figures are based on the number of users of water, computed according to an established scale.

Propose to Clean Up Barber Shops.

The crusade against unsanitary barber shops in the state which has been started by Secretary C. L. Blake, of the state board of examiners, has resulted in the closing of three shops at Alpena and one each at Traverse City and Coldwater. Mr. Blake states that one shop in Detroit and one in Lansing also are under observation and unless the proprietors clean up at once orders will be issued for the closing of these shops.

There are 4,200 barbers registered under the state laws and Mr. Blake says that by the end of the year the number will be increased to 4,500.

Student Killed Crossing Track.

"Dead Man's Crossing," on the Michigan Central, just west of Ann Arbor, claimed another University of Michigan student victim Monday. This time it was a Detroit boy, Francis Lyster Moran, son of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Moran, of 584 Jefferson avenue.

This crossing is at the end of a sharp curve and is hidden from the view of those on the road by high embankments. Each year one or two students lose their lives there.

Another Big Mine.

The Newport Mining Co., in mining circles better known as the Schlesinger syndicate of Milwaukee, has taken a lease from Houghton county of the two forties north of the Palms mine. Under the lease $250,000 must be expended on the land within the next five years in improvements and exploration, which means that another big mine will soon be added to the other active producers of Bessemer.

Palmer Gruette, the half-breed who assaulted a 16-year-old girl in the woods near Marquette, was captured by a member of the posse which has been searching the woods for him. He says he was drunk and knew nothing of his actions when he committed the assault.

Prosecuting Attorney Warner's semi-annual report shows that there were 89 criminal cases instituted in all the courts of Van Buren county, in all of which there was not a single acquittal. There were three cases dismissed and three settled. This covers the first six months under the working of the amended liquor laws. The report for the last full half year under the provisions of the old law shows that there were 221 cases commenced during that time, a decrease in favor of the present statute of 132 cases.

Mrs. Samuel Libarger, a boarding-house keeper of Battle Creek, prevented the suicide of David Mullin, one of her boarders, when he attempted to shoot himself while intoxicated. Mrs. Libarger wrested the weapon away from him and he was placed under arrest.

Jumping from his train off the bridge it was passing and into the Iron river, at Marquette, Brakeman Carl Anderson rescued a small boy from drowning in the stream at the risk of his own life. Those who saw him jump said they thought he would break his neck, as the river is shallow at this point.

Strong Even In Death.

A few tree almost destitute of branches or bark grows abundantly in the Caucasus to a height of from fifty to sixty feet and a diameter of a little over two feet. It grows slowly, but its timber is almost indestructible except by fire. It is considered superior in durability, appearance and toughness to mahogany, which it otherwise somewhat resembles. In some large forests of this tree it is very difficult to distinguish the live trees from the dead ones, the latter being very numerous and said to stand for 100 years after death without exhibiting decay.

The Horseman

Likes a fine animal. You get the horse and Harvell's Condition Powders will do the rest. It is the best condition powder on the market. Absolutely no waste and every ingredient is medicinal. Used by all the leading eastern racing stables. You should try them and see for yourself. Price 25c per package. J. A. Carr & Son, Lansing, Mich., writes: "We have used Harvell's Condition Powders on our livery horses for about three years and have always found them superior to all others. We have found that livery horses are subject to great abuse and Harvell's Condition Powders always bring back the appetite and puts them on their pins." Sold at Wood's Drug Store.

play. The officers look you over and tap you under the chin and give you a stick of candy if your clothes are a little dirty or whiskers start to grow. Every Wednesday the captain or lieutenant comes around and inspects us. We play then and sometimes we go up to the marine barracks and play and march with marines. Sometimes we give concerts at barracks or hospital in afternoon or at grand stand at 6:30 p. m. Can go any time anywhere as long as I don't miss playing."

Dan is now on the receiving ship, Philadelphia, at Brenneron, Washington, near Seattle.

We received the Chronicle to-day with the news of A. A. McKenzie's death. It seems whenever an old citizen of Cass City dies we feel a loss. Alex was a fine man and always had a good and cheerful word for every one he met. Was also sorry to hear of the death of Cal Lauderbach and Mr. Wamsley.

This is a very dry season here now. Everything is suffering for the want of rain. We have about an acre of potatoes and are eating new potatoes and peas. Mable sent you a small box of strawberries a short time ago just so you could taste some from our ranch in Idaho. We have quite a large patch, most of them were set out this spring. We are milking three cows now. Butter brings us 40 cents and eggs now 35 cents but will bring 40c soon. We have about 50 hens now besides 80 young chicks and 20 ducks. Of course our ranch is not self-supporting yet so I have to work out some of the time. I am working on the new planing mill now being built by the Milwaukee Land Co. at their large saw mills about 1½ miles across and up the river from here. I row across the river and come home every night. I am getting 40c per hour for 10 hours and also have my team working in the saw mill yards. I get $1.25 per day and their feed for them.

I wish you would ask John Ball whether Mr. Pitcher came out here to file on the Reservation or not. I have not heard from them since I answered his letter. I could not tell him much about the Reservation then but understand now that his number is considered a very good one and he made a serious mistake if he did not accept the opportunity to get a home cheap.

I wouldn't so heartily advise any one to come out here to work at day labor or even at a trade because while wages are quite high, living is proportionately high. But if one wants to buy a ranch or homestead or go into business I think this is the place. A good improved hay ranch on the river bottom costs about $100 per acre but these old hay ranchers are all getting rich. They mow from 3 to 4 tons to the acre, get it baled and sell it for from $16 to $20 per ton and they have an easy time all the year except haying time when they hustle.

Parthenon and Pantheon.
The Parthenon and Pantheon are far from being in the same class. The first is the nearest building in the world, unapproached and probably unapproachable in its simple yet superlative excellence. The second is, apart from its dome, by no means wonderful. Everybody going to Rome sees the Pantheon, of course, but thousands go to Athens from the ends of the earth for the sole purpose of seeing the Parthenon, the "finest building on the finest site in the world." Even in its ruins it appeals to the mind of man as no other creation of art does, and the world would doubtless consider it a sacrilege to have any other rival near the throne.—New York American.

Told Him the Secret.
Herman, the dramatist, who in early life had a high reputation as a chemist, was once called to give evidence regarding a certain brand of wine. As he testified that it was totally innocent of grape juice the merchant was severely fined. On coming out of court the defendant asked Herman, "How is it that you were able to swear so positively that there is no grape juice in that stuff of mine?"
"Because if there had been any in combination with the other elements you used it would have formed tartaric acid on the barrel."

"Thank you ever so much," replied the enlightened adulterator. "You'll find some on the barrel next time."

IDEAS.
After all has been said that can be said about the widening influence of ideas it remains true that they would hardly be such strong agents unless they were taken in a solvent of feeling. The great world struggle of developing thought is continually foreshadowed in the struggle of the affections, seeking a justification for love and hope.—George Eliot.

HUMOROUS QUIPS

The Pursuit.
[They are chasing horse thieves with motorcars in Kansas now.—News item.]
Come, crank your swift auto and jump to the wheel.
We need all the strength of its quivering steel.
For forty-five horses are gone in the night.
And we must give chase to the robbers in flight.
If forty-five horses are stolen and gone
A motor of sixty should catch them by dawn.
And we'll run down the thieves as they gallop away
And string them up high, as they do in a play.
Across the "pray-rare-ree" we buoyantly bound With wheels that seem scarcely to stay on the ground.
The sparkler is working with perfect eclat.
The piston is doing much better than that.
The—Hist! There's a cloud in the distance, and—see!—
The robbers are scattering tacks as they flee!
Swing off from the path! Take a chance at the fence!
The way that she cleared it is something immense!
And now we are close on the trail—let 'er go!
They're riding their best, but their best is too slow.
You tend to your driving. I'll shoot when I must.
Bang! There is one robber who's bitten the dust.
Surrounded by autos they give up at last;
The horses are saved and the robbers bound fast.
And the manager says he is sure it will go
As the finest of films at a vaudeville show.
—Berton Braley in Puck.

A Pedagogical Tragedy.
Dorothy is in the fourth grade, and she gets good marks in everything except arithmetic. When her father asked her why she made such low marks in arithmetic she replied thus: "Well, it is like this: The teacher says, 'Four plus 8 minus 3 multiplied by 2 divided by 6,' and asks me what the answer is. She talks so fast I can't keep up with her, and I have to guess the answer, and I always guess wrong."—Harper's Weekly.

Why the Kitties Cried.
Wallie, aged six, found four little kittens in the cellar. A visitor, being told of them, expressed a desire to have a peep at the new baby pussies.
Wallie went to fetch them, and soon pitiful mewling was heard below.
"Don't hurt the kitties, Wallie," called out his mamma.
"No, mamma," shouted the boy. "I'm bringing them up carefully. I'm carrying them by their stems."—Scraps.

Novelty.
"I thought you told me you had something original in this libretto," said the manager scornfully. "Here at the very outset you have a lot of merry villagers singing 'We are happy and gay.'"
"You don't catch the idea at all," replied the poet wearily. "The 'g' is soft. It should be pronounced 'happy and jay.'"—Washington Star.

Fate of the Unfamiliar.
"I understand that you have two brand new jokes in your dialogue."
"Yes," replied the musical comedian. "What are they?"
"You recognize them by the way the audience treats them as strangers and refuses to give them a smile."—Boston Transcript.

A Winner.
"Yes, Inkem got up a summer novel that immediately became a best seller."
"That so? Something new in the plot?"
"No. But when it came to the page where he described the looks of the heroine he had his publisher insert a mirror."—Life.

A Model Hired Man.
"Missus, do you need a hired man?"
"Well, yes, I'm looking for a man who can do the chores, sweep, clean the rooms, be polite and never be impudent."
"Say, missus, youse is lookin' for a husband."—Success Magazine.

She Had the Price.
In vain they told the heiress that the duke was an impostor and worse.
"Why," said a friend, "I have read there is a price upon his head." But the heiress, all serene, only answered, "I have the price!"—Young's Magazine.

An Impossibility.
"Dumier received a shock of 50,000 volts through his brain."
"Nonsense! How do you suppose that number of volts could ever have crowded their way through a brain like Dumier's?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

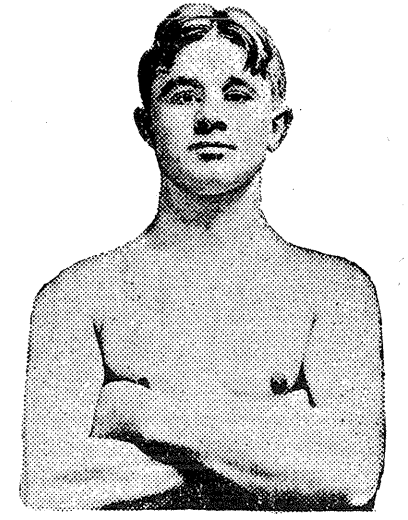

The Wise Fool.
"To what do you attribute your unvarying success?"
"To being picked early for the village fool. Nobody ever tried to get me to indorse a note or go into a scheme."—Brooklyn Citizen.

The Danger.
"It is always dangerous to try to get something for nothing," remarked the wise guy.
"Yes; you might get what you deserve," added the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

The Secret.
"Miss Bright," whispered Miss Gaus-sip, "can you keep a secret?"
"Yes," replied Miss Bright, also whispering. "I can keep one as well as you can."—Catholic Standard and Times.

In the Future.
"Whom are they after in this aviator trust?"
"Naturally after the man higher up."—Baltimore American.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Billy Papke, Whom Middleweights Are Sidestepping.

Since his disgraceful fiasco with old Joe Thomas, Billy Papke, "the Illinois Thunderbolt," has made frequent and emphatic denials of any crookedness about the bout that went over the fifteen rounds by "mistake." Billy has declared up and down that he will show the California public that he can fight, and fight on the square. He picked Jim (Fireman) Flynn as his next opponent, but the bout was called off. Then he made a date with Jimmy Howard, and Jimmy has just made it known that he will not enter the ring with the "Thunderbolt." It looks as though middleweights were a little leary of tackling the husky representative of the Papke family in his wrath.

Cost of Running Baseball Club.
Few people stop to consider the cost of keeping up a ball club. The expense goes on not only in the regular season, when the gates are working for the club, but it is a big proposition in the spring training camp. Manager Hughie Jennings of the Detroiters recently estimated that the Tigers' expense a week while in training is just about $1,000. He remarked that that was only a beginning.
"We have the hotel bill, the car to grounds, the baths and other like incidentals to consider, and this makes the figures mentioned by me rather conservative when you consider that we have twenty-four men in the camp."
"The Detroit club is liberal. It calculates on an outlay of from $10,000 to $15,000 during the training season. While the pay of the players does not start until April 15, the traveling expenses, hotel fare and other incidentals give a magnificent total and one that would appall were it not for the fact that a winning club is worth its weight in gold."
"This outlay is very nearly evened up in the first series of the league race, but at that time the expenses keep running also. However, it is not long before the spring debt is rubbed out."
"Our salary list? Well, we pay out about $100,000 a month for our players. Add that to the other large expenses and you have some idea of the cost of a pennant winning ball club. A club has to take in some pretty sizable crowds to get back the money spent. And yet baseball is paying in most towns."

Playing Managers Now Scarce.
There's nothing to it but that these are baseball's big, important days and that inside of a very few years there won't be a single player-manager left. Clarke and Chance admit that they've had enough—that the double work is too strenuous for them. Both hope to go to the bench next spring. It wasn't so many years ago that there were very few bench managers. Now the majority of them operate from the coop—to wit: McGraw, Lake, Dahlen, Griffith, Mack, McAleer, Donovan, Stallings, Duffy, McGuire, Jennings and O'Connor. By the bye, notice there isn't a single player-manager in the American league.

Manager Fred Clarke says that the slump his boys have taken is something that comes to all ball teams, and the team that cannot stand a little backwash now and then should never be classed as the real thing in baseball.

Pessimistic Brown Fan Musings.
What's the matter with the St. Louis Browns? One St. Louis man replies: "They can't hit. They have no pitching staff worth the name at present. They have a first class baseman who is overanxious to make good. They have a star outfielder who reported six weeks late. They are demoralized through failure to get together at the start and through the fact that not a pitcher on the staff can hold down the opposition. And if there's anything else you can think of you might include that too."

Pitcher Vickers Wants to Catch.
Baltimore may develop another Roger Bresnahan. Pitcher Rube Vickers' dreams may materialize if the catching staff should get crippled. He has signified his intentions along that line and is patiently waiting for the opportunity to don the wind pad and the wire screen. Like Roger, he may get his chance, and this chance may be the development of another pitcher.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Cass City Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.
If women only knew the cause—that

Backache pains come from sick kidneys, 'Twould save much needless woe.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys,

Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.

Mrs. V. Powell, Union St., Sebawing, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been very beneficial to me. About a year ago I had a severe attack of kidney trouble and my back became so lame that I could hardly get around to attend to my housework. The remedies I tried brought me no relief and it was left for Doan's Kidney Pills to drive away the trouble. Since they cured me I have had no cause for complaint. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills for similar difficulties and in every instance the results have been of the best. I take pleasure in recommending this excellent kidney medicine."

First English Book on Sport.

The first book on sport ever printed in the English language was a rhymed treatise called the "Boke of St. Albans," its author being a woman, Dame Juliana Berners. Its second edition was printed by Wynkyn de Worde in 1496. A descendant of her family, Lord Berners, was the translator of Froissart's "Chronicles." It is true that old manuscripts existed, such as the "Venerie de Twecy" of the time of Edward II., but it was Dame Juliana who was the real ancestress of sporting literature in England, for she also composed an essay on hawking and another on "Fishing With an Angle," the last being of such excellence that Izaak Walton himself did take a hint from its pages.

'Foley Kidney Pills Have Cured Me.'

The above is a quotation from a letter written by H. M. Winkler, Evansville, Ind. "I contracted a severe case of kidney trouble. My back back gave out and pained me. I seemed to have lost all strength and ambition; was bothered with dizzy spells, my head would swim and specks float before my eyes. I took Foley Kidney Pills regularly and am now perfectly well and feel like a new man. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me." L. I. Wood & Co.

On Safe Ground.

"Why do you call your new picture 'Dawn'?"
"Because," replied the bright young impressionist, "few people know what dawn looks like; hence they are likely to take my word for it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Eskimo Candy.

Tallow is the Eskimo's candy. It is put up in bright red packages made out of the feet of waterfowl. The women cut off the red feet of this bird, which is called the dovekie, draw out the bones and blow up the skin so as to make pouches, which they fill with reindeer tallow for their little folk. None of the food that the Eskimos eat seems very inviting to us, but they are extremely fond of it and are very apt to overeat. It is said by explorers who have gone into Greenland that it is no uncommon sight to see an Eskimo man who has eaten an enormous meal of the raw frozen flesh of the reindeer, seal or walrus lying on his back and eating blubber until he cannot move.—Fur News.

Over 90 Per Cent of Appendicitis cases are caused by a congested condition of the bowels, commonly called constipation. Why not relieve yourself of this condition and the consequent danger of appendicitis by becoming a user of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Vegetable Pills? The best known and most widely sold liver pills in the world. This is not a new remedy, but one that has stood the test of time, being over 60 years on the market. Sales always increasing, showing the immense good that they are doing. Price everywhere 25c per box. Ask for a free sample. E. A. Ryan's Drug Store.

Cheap Lodging.

"One day," said a Parisian. "I arrived with my wife at an inn in the lower Pyrenees. It was during an electoral campaign. The place pleased me. Two days passed. At the moment of departure I asked for my account. The innkeeper responded: 'You owe me nothing. The Count de V., who is the candidate, has paid everything in this district for fifteen days.'"
"So I remained at that inn fifteen days without paying a sou."—Cri de Paris.

Hay Fever and Asthma

Bring discomfort and misery to many people but Foley's Honey and Tar gives ease and comfort to the suffering ones. It relieves the congestion in the head and throat and is soothing and healing. None genuine but Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. L. I. Wood & Co.

Solubility of Gold.

Gold is one of the group of metals soluble only in that mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acids known as aqua regia. It has been found, however, that the presence of certain organic compounds renders gold soluble in hydrochloric acid. Thus a mixture of this acid and chloroform is found to be a solvent. Ethyl, or ordinary alcohol, methyl alcohol and amyl alcohol are among the other substances which give to hydrochloric acid the power of dissolving gold. The solution takes place slowly in the cold acid and more quickly on heating.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

The Anvil Chorus

(Reprinted from the Backbone Monthly by the request of a subscriber.)

The immortal idiot who evolved from his think-mill the aphorism, "every knock is a boost," was both a liar and a fool—the latter first.

There are in every small town an aggregation of both sexes whose seemingly sole business in life is to act as star performers in the Anvil Chorus. It is of these I would sing.

It is the poor overworked doctor who comes in for the greater share of the criticism of the folk who are the subject of these lines. You, my dear fellow worker, know them as also does your most excellent lady. I rather guess that others whose gaze may rest upon these pages also have a dim adumbration of certain people who feel it their bounden duty to "knock" the doctor upon every and sundry occasion.

It may be for aught I am aware that you are yourself one of the detestable class. If you are, and you know it, quit now before it is everlastingly too late. God in His infinite wisdom has an eye on you and the Recording Angel is wearing out quills by the sheaf trying to keep tab on your sins.

How will you feel some day when you get up in front of St. Peter and he looks down at you and asks, "Who are you?"

Then you will reply, "I am Mrs. S—." I know there is nothing whatever on the Book against me. I have been a member of the Church for over forty years. I always paid my pew rent, went to services twice every Sunday, never missed a prayer meeting on Wednesday night; I sang louder and said 'Amen' with greater unction than any member of our congregation. I always made up a large collection of cotton shirts for the heathen, and spent much of my money for the support of foreign missions. Yes, dear Saint, I have always been a good woman, so let me go now and pick out my crown."

During this time the stern Judge has been busy running over the ledger. He pauses with his finger on a page until you are through, when he looks up with a frown and asks, "If you have been the Lord's servant all the years you have been on earth, how does it happen that you have repeatedly violated one of his most solemn commandments?"

"Me violate any one of the blessed Decalogue? Why, dear Saint, you are surely mistaken. Why, I had the Ten Commandments framed and hung on the wall of the dining room just across from the 'God Bless Our Home' motto, and there was never a day that I did not remind our folks of the necessity of keeping them."

"That may all be very true, but I find here that one day when you saw Dr. M— walking home from an all-night watch at the bedside of little Willie Smith who was critically ill with pneumonia and the good doctor did not walk exactly straight (though he was only worn with loss of sleep and fatigue) you lost no time in running over to Mrs. J—, your next door neighbor, with the succulent bit of gossip that you 'just saw that Godless Dr. M— going home so drunk that he couldn't keep on the sidewalk.' Mrs. S—, you knew that what you were saying was not true."

"But, St. Peter, Dr. M— was a Godless man. He never attended church, and when I saw him that morning he looked as though he had been drinking. How was I to know he had been all night trying to save Willie Smith's life. True, I found it out afterward, but I assure you I did not know it then."

"After you found it out did you go and endeavor to undo the wrong you had done him?"

"Oh, no. He was not a Christian and I did not feel under any obligation to do him a favor."

Peter has been, reading still further down the page. His eye lights upon another entry at which he frowns.

"How is this? I find it written here that you told in the Aid Society one afternoon that Dr. W— wilfully murdered that poor misguided girl who died from the effects of her own misdeeds, when you know that Dr. W— did all that human skill could do to save her life. You never lost an opportunity to blacken the doctor's character. Your efforts were successful, too, for he was forced to abandon his practice and seek a new field, all because of your slanderous tongue."

"But, —"

"There are no 'buts' for you, Mrs. S—. We have in great wisdom prepared for such as you, and it affords me great pleasure to consign you to that place now. I have been waiting for lo! these many years for this moment. Ho there, Turnkey! Escort this vile soul to the outer gate and hurl her into the nethermost pit of hell."

Are you Mrs. S—? Can you imagine the shrieks of delight with which the infernal host greet your arrival? Can you picture the Prince of Evil desiring to surrender to you his throne, place in your foul hands his scepture of authority as one more fitting to wield it than he?

I can.

Dear "knockers" of whatever gender, the poor doctor is intensely human, he possesses practically none of the angelic virtues and he may not attend religious services very often because at the time you are lifting up your voice in praise, and performing your acts of charity toward the heathen, the doctor is perhaps at some bedside battling with all his skill against the King of Terrors and performing an act of charity oftentimes that make yours pale into insignificance.

The Godless doctor, when he comes before the bar of the Almighty will be able to take his chances along with those who have spent their lives in detracting him.

Are you, my dear reader, one of the Hammer Club? Do you spend your time traveling from house to house with your mouth full of vile slander against some physician who happens to have come under the ban of your disapproval? If you are one of those, let me conjure you in the name of Him who taught us to view with charity the shortcomings of others, to "cut it out." The poorest, most uneducated, least moral physician in any community is upon a vastly higher moral plane than the miserable creature that goes about with the mouth full of slander.

Home Coming at Gagetown—

Gagetown citizens announce a home-coming and picnic on Wednesday, August 3. A brass band and orchestra will furnish music and the program includes a baby show with Gov. Warner as one of the judges.

Sebawing to Pave Streets—

The village council has decided to pave the main streets of Sebawing. The paving will be done with concrete with a heavy cement dressing and bids are now being asked for the work. The business portions of the two principal streets will be paved this year, involving an expenditure of over $5,000, and in coming years other streets will be taken care of as warranted.

Farmers' Elevator at Bad Axe—

The promoters of the proposed new farmers' elevator are still working for the fourth week in the community, with three solicitors out. One of these stated on Saturday that 30 farmers had agreed to take stock in the enterprise. About 150 are wanted. Mr. Quail, who is managing the affair, is reported as saying that they would continue to work awhile longer, but if enough farmers were not soon secured the project would be dropped. Farmers don't appear to be tumbling over each other to get in on the deal.—Tribune.

White Caps Busy—

For years it has been reported that an old crippled demented man of 90 was being used in an inhuman manner by his son. The neighbors warned him to give the old man better treatment. This he would not do and drove kind neighbors off who wanted to take the old man food and clothing. The other evening a crowd of about 50 married and single men invited the unnatural son to the door, got him in a rig and took him to a dismal swamp, where he was stripped and covered with a coat of tar and turkey feathers and warned him to change his ways or he would get another coat. It is reported that the "White Caps" also waited on a lady of the township and told her to change her mode of treatment of her husband and children.—Peck Times.

Fire at Gagetown—

A disastrous fire was narrowly averted last Thursday at the cold storage of C. Kastner. While the origin of the fire is unknown, only that a package of tobacco and several cigarette papers were found about the building where the fire broke out. It is thought that some of the younger boys about town had been indulging in a smoker and dropped the fire in the dry sawdust which soon caused a cloud of smoke to roll from the building which was noticed by nearby neighbors and the alarm was given. Mr. Kastner lost no time in drenching the ignited sawdust with water. Had it not been noticed without a doubt the entire block would have been destroyed as the pond is now dry and well water scarce. Parents should caution their youngsters frequently on this subject of fire and especially those who carry matches in their pockets.—Times.

AN OLD TEACHERS' CONTRACT.

The Caro Courier recently reproduced a teachers' contract executed January 6, 1863, between school district No. 7, of Indianfields township and Martha Wilcox. It is interesting to note the difference between this contract and the one of the present day. Then the teacher was required to work 26 days a month, less two Saturdays, but was allowed to teach a half day every Saturday, if she wished, as was the custom in those days. The salary was at the rate of $2 per week, and there is no doubt the teacher earned every dollar of it. The life of the contract was 13 weeks, and the usual exception in regard to holidays with the dates named in order in which they occur are set forth. Times have changed since this document was written, and for the better—better for the teacher and the pupil alike, and we do not believe any of our readers are pining for the "good old days" when $2 per week was considered wages for a teacher and 13 weeks "go in" to school was sufficient time for pupils to get a grip on an education.
