Good Shoes

Everybody says "Fine Shoes," "Neat Shoes;" we don't—just good shoes. We buy our shoes with this idea—they must be "good enough for you to buy"—not merely "good enough to sell to you."

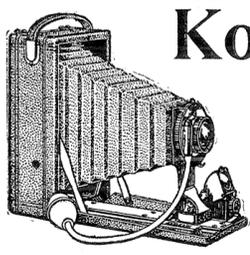

No matter what you want in price or style, in leather or shape—light or heavy—fancy or plain, you'll find it here or you'll find it isn't worth looking for.

"All kinds of good shoes." That's our motto.
"At prices good for you to pay." That's our principle.

There never was a better time to buy a Kodak; Brownie Camera or Premo Camera than right NOW, and never a time when you could get so much for your money.

Our Watches "Make Good"

No matter what price you pay us—whether $1 or $25.00 the watch we hand you for your money will do as we say it will for the length of time we say.

Of course, the more you pay, the longer service you'll get—that's natural.

But the point of this adv. is this—you can't waste a cent of money by spending it here on a Watch.

Now, if you are reasonable, that's all the promise we need.

The wise watch plan is to pay a fair price for something good.

We are anxious to show you just what we can do.

FOUR BUSINESS PLACES ENTERED

EDMUND COOLEY PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGE.

Was Captured Tuesday Afternoon by Village Marshal Striffler and Taken to County Jail.

The business places of N. Bigelow & Sons, hardware, E. W. Jones, grocer, C. L. Robinson, laundryman, and The Model Clothing and Shoe Co. were entered by a burglar Monday night. Edmund Cooley was captured Tuesday afternoon by Village Marshal Striffler, and when he appeared before Justice Landon shortly after, Cooley pleaded guilty to the charge of entering The Model and stealing a small amount of money, a hat and some silk handkerchiefs. Cooley is also suspected of the other depredations. He was taken to the county jail Tuesday evening by Sheriff Fox, and he will be tried at the next session of the circuit court.

At the store of N. Bigelow & Sons, entrance was gained through a window in the back room. There the thief found a well point and with this crude instrument he attempted to break open the cash register. Evidently he knew little about a register for he tried to get at the cash by breaking the mechanism at the top instead of prying open the cash drawers or opening them in the ordinary manner. The top of the register was badly wrecked, but the drawers were found intact Tuesday morning and nothing was missing. No attempt was made to open the firm's safe.

E. W. Jones' store was entered

EXHIBITION WILL BE WORTH WHILE

RACES WILL BE A PROMINENT FEATURE OF THE FAIR.

Officers Now Engaged in Adding to the Line of Attractions Secured.

Believing that it takes money and a liberal policy to secure the best results in operating a fair, the officers of the Cass City District Fair have resolved to spend it and spend it judiciously, to achieve the results which are thought to be expected by the people of the three counties in which the fair numbers its patrons. By liberal dealing and backed by several years of experience in fair management, the officials feel certain their efforts will be rewarded by the ultimate success of the fair and the liberal support of the people of Cass City and adjoining territory.

In horse races, the Cass City Fair has presented many speedy events in past years and this fall the sport promises to be every whit as interesting and of the very best. J. D. Brooker is superintendent of the speed department and his reputation as a horseman and his acquaintance with owners of fast steeds assures horse-lovers that there will be plenty of excitement for every day.

Officers are now engaged in adding to the line of attractions, announcements of the same being reserved for a later date.

The dates of the fair are Sept. 27, 28, 29 and 30.

Notice.

To my neighbors and friends in the Township of Evergreen and vicinity:

I desire to notify all my neighbors and friends that the statement I formerly made concerning Mr. James A. Hilliker to the effect that he had taken pork from me is not true. After a careful investigation of the facts I now find that I was mistaken when I accused him of the theft. Mr. Hilliker was not guilty and I publish this notice for the purpose of retracting such a statement and as a partial amend for the great injury I did him and that he may be put right in the eyes of the neighborhood.

Dated at the Township of Evergreen, this 17th day of August, A. D. 1910.
ELWOOD BIDDLE.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank the friends and neighbors and relatives who so kindly aided during the illness and death of my dear husband.

TO THE ENROLLED REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF TUSCOLA COUNTY.

While in my candidacy for the nomination to the office of sheriff my circumstances will not permit of my giving any band concerts, or extending any joy rides by automobile to my friends; yet to the public I agree to furnish a good administration if nominated and elected to the office,—not by way of entertainment but business.

OLD BOYS AND GIRLS HAVE A FINE TIME

WERE ROYALLY TREATED BY MAYVILLE LAST WEEK.

Mrs. Emma Dykeman Writes Article on the Five County Veterans' Reunion.

By D. M. Houghton.

The Five County G. A. R. reunion held at Mayville last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was one of the best in the history of the association. The attendance was smaller than on former occasions, owing to North Branch and Marlette giving their final answer in regard to entertaining the society, nevertheless, the meeting in the small town of 800 was as much of a success as though four weeks' notice had been given them instead of ten days which goes without question to show that Mayville is not small in any other way. True, some few "took to woods" on learning of the soldiers' coming, though there was not a particle of danger, not one carried fire-arms. But amid so many loyal entertainers the few were not missed.

Financially, socially and otherwise, the town belonged to "The Boys in Blue." Every latch string hung outside and the best was none too good those glorious three days.

We, boys, as a body, wish through these lines to tender our most hearty applause and approval to the ladies, who by their constant attention to the wants of the inner man, their kind courteous words on all occasions, brought to many a veteran memories of those days when the death bed of a brother soldier was made easier by the sweet womanly words of our brother sex. Especial mention is due Brother Bryant and his family, who so hospitably opened their spacious home and lawns for the benefit of all.

DEDICATORY SERVICE SUNDAY

THREE SERVICES PLANNED FOR THE DAY.

Evangelical Society Will Occupy Their Recently Remodelled Church Building.

Members of the Evangelical church announce the dedicatory services of their recently remodelled church for next Sunday, August 28. The first service will be conducted in the German language and will commence at 10:00 a. m. The afternoon service will be a mass meeting to which members of the different churches and the public in general are invited. This service will begin at 2:30 p. m.

Rev. J. A. Schweitzer, the pastor, has extended an invitation to the pastors of the several churches in the city to join in a union service in the evening. Rev. Geo. Johnson of Cleveland, Ohio, will deliver the sermons at all the services that day.

On Saturday preceding, the quarterly meeting service of the society will begin, Rev. F. Klump officiating. Services will be held both Saturday afternoon and evening.

SCHOOL WILL BEGIN SEPTEMBER 5

RATED WITH THE BEST IN THE STATE.

High School Tuition for Non-Resident Pupils Changed From $15 to $20 a Year.

Adequate provision for education is a price requisite from the point of view of the home. And a town which claims to offer unique advantages to home-lovers must possess not average but superlative school facilities. Cass City claims these. Our schools offer unusual opportunities for proper culture of the mind at a very moderate expense and non-resident students will find it to their profit to investigate its advantages. Not only are our schools rated with the best in the state, but our town has a high moral tone and is devoid of objectionable features.

The board of education announces two changes in the school arrangements for the next school year which begins on Monday, Sept. 5. One is the change in tuition fees for non-resident high school pupils from $15 to $20 a year and the other is that the Kindergarten has been abolished, but the Sub-Primary has been retained. No child under five years will be permitted to enter. There will be only two periods at which children will be received into the Sub-Primary. First, in September; and second, those who become five years old between September and February will be permitted to enter in February. No children will be received after the opening of the second semester in February.

TIRE TROUBLES DELAY CANDIDATE

CRAMPTON DRAWS GOOD SIZED AUDIENCES.

Visited Shabbona Monday Evening and Voters Find His Address Very Interesting.

Four tire blow-outs delayed L. C. Crampton, candidate for the republican nomination for Congress from the 7th district, so did not reach Argyle for his open air address Friday evening until after nine o'clock. Nevertheless 80 citizens waited until he arrived to listen to his remarks. He was also scheduled to appear in Shabbona the same evening, but owing to the auto troubles, he was obliged to cancel the engagement.

On Monday evening, Mr. Crampton reached Shabbona about eight o'clock, and though there was little opportunity or time to announce his coming on this date, he found a good-sized audience waiting for him and all listened intently to his remarks. He is a good speaker and a pleasant gentleman to meet and is making hundreds of friends all over the district.

There are many reasons why Mr. Crampton is meeting such a hearty reception at the hands of the seventh district citizens, but two of them stand out prominently. One is his past record as a public official while a member of the state railroad commission and a member of the state legislature. The other is that Mr. Crampton is not backward in announcing to the voters his platform regarding the questions which are before the public today and which are to be solved in the near future. Mr. Crampton discusses them freely and leaves no doubt in the minds of his hearers what his stand will be should he be elected congressman. He is thoroughly prepared to occupy the position to which he aspires and it certainly looks as though the primary day's results will show Sanilac strong for the Lapeer man.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT.

Mrs. Caroline Penn-Bigelow will continue her residence in Cass City indefinitely and also her work in Music Study, Piano and Voice, (after a vacation during the latter part of September and first week in October), beginning the new year the second week in October.

Mrs. Bigelow has prosecuted a course of nearly three years at Albion College in both Voice and Piano at the same time making a study of Harmony, Musical History, Public School Music, and making a specialty of Chorus Conducting, later taking work in the Thomas Training School,

Detroit, and subsequently studying a year in Leavenworth, Kansas, under the tutelage of one of New York City's most successful present day instructors. Mrs. Bigelow adds to this ten years of teaching experience in private lessons besides having occupied the position of teacher of Public School Music, Williamston, Mich., and Instructor in Voice at the Orion Assembly Summer School.

For further information regarding these facts or particulars concerning the methods, courses of study, etc., in use by Mrs. Bigelow, call or write. Phone 30. Announcements later.

CAR OF BEER DITCHED ON M. C.

EMERGENCY BRAKES SAVE PASSENGER COACHES.

W. H. Anderson of Patterson, Mich., and N. G. Strohauser, Baggage-man, injured.

Pigeon citizens were threatened with a real "dry spell" all because of the wreck of a Michigan Central passenger train running between Vasar and Owendale on a curve at Atwood's crossing three miles north of Caro Saturday. A car of beer, which was intended for Pigeon, tipped over into the ditch. A broken beam under the beer car struck a cattle guard, it is thought.

Many passengers on the two coaches in the train were badly shaken up, but not seriously injured. Conductor Fred L. Marker jammed on the emergency brakes before the two coaches reached an embankment six feet further.

W. H. Andrews, 65, a farmer of Patterson, Mich., was seriously injured and N. G. Strohauser, baggage-man, Caro, Mich., was thrown to the floor of the baggage car with such force that internal injuries are feared.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

MRS. GRUNDY.

Half the world is ever asking, "What will Mrs. Grundy say?"

The pestiferous sprite dominates human affairs from the cradle to the grave.

The baby, for instance, must be dressed for show purposes in a long gown that sweeps to the floor, frilled, tucked and flounced in approved style—like the baby next door. Else what will Mrs. Grundy say?

And sister's wedding trousseau? Why, let mother wear the threadbare old silk and father do his best by dry cleaning to take the shine off his shabby suit—sister's wedding must be as classy as that of May Jones' around the corner.

Mrs. Grundy! Honest, now, my good woman, you do not care to be seen on the street with that old cloak or at church with your last season's bonnet. Why?

And as for a patch on Johnny's trousers or Susie's jacket when you send them to school—Mrs. Grundy! Whereat some man will say: "That is the woman of it. Who cares what the neighbors say?"

So? You are a business man. Did you sign that petition because it was right, or subscribe to that charity because you wanted to give your money away? If not, why not?

You are a farmer. Did you buy that newfangled disk riding plow because you needed it or to be an up to date farmer like Bill Smith up the road?

See here— You think your party is wrong and that one of the nominees got his nomination unfairly. Did you come out and bolt your party or go on record against the nominee?

Oh, that Mrs. Grundy! She dictates what you and your family shall wear on their backs and head and feet; she wants everybody to think like everybody else and do like everybody else. She wants to herd people in crowds and dominate them. And she succeeds.

Do you want to do your own thinking? Then don't think out loud lest Mrs. Grundy hear you and call you queer or a crank. Do you want to cut out some of the things your neighbors do in order to save a little money for bills or old age? Don't! Mrs. Grundy will hold up her hands in horror.

Hang Mrs. Grundy? Well, it is a thousand pities we cannot follow our Salem ancestors of the eighteenth century, who did hang the witches!

Balanced.

"Why is the delivery boy always in such a rush?" asked the idler in the grocery.

"So that if in his haste he delivers anything wrong he will have time to right the matter," the grocer explained. —Buffalo Express.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE LIFE PRACTICAL.

TO skies sublime Though we may climb On fancy's arduous And from the heights Observe the sights In placid contemplation, We hear the call And downward fall The ground below to clutter— The call supreme For pie and cream Or common bread and butter.

Enwrapped in art, We play a part Alone, serene and chilly And contemplate The higher state And act sublime or silly. But when it comes To humble crumbs Equipped with stings And were not made for bending. We'd like to rest Among the best, Our time to culture giving, But now and here It may seem queer We have to get a living.

What Was That?

Full of faith, hope and ambition, a young woman applied for a position behind the footlights, where she thought the leading part would be about right.

"Ever divorced?" asked the brusque manager.

"No, sir," she replied modestly. "Had any diamonds stolen?"

"No, and for a good reason."

"What, then, are your qualifications?"

"I can act."

The janitor had to climb a ladder and pick chunks of laughter from the rafters before they could use the stage next day.

The Difference.

"There isn't much difference between a bachelor and a married man."

"Oh, isn't there?"

"No."

"You bet your life there is."

"What is it?"

"A bachelor tries to please nobody, and a married man has to please his wife."

Frank About It.

"See here, madam, when are you going to pay up?"

"Pay up?"

"Yes; pay up."

"As soon as my husband concludes to settle down and bring around his pay envelope."

Nothing Overlooked.

"Whom were you talking with?"

"The iceman."

"What did he charge you for it?"

"Nothing."

"It will be in the bill, all right."

Preferred Dress Parade.

"He wants to be a soldier."

"But there is no war in sight."

"That's why."

Got Wisdom.

He dallied round the Stock Exchange, And many a chance he took, The pilgrim now is out of change, But he could write a book.

Contrary.

"He is on the road to perdition."

"Is that so?"

"Yes."

"Then I reckon he is perfectly happy."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Everybody is loyal—to No. 1.

We no sooner get our clutches upon a dollar than we begin to worry how we would best let it go.

Heaven seems a faraway place when the liver isn't working right.

Being honest is hard work under most circumstances. Added to that is the indubitable fact that it is poor pay.

The people who are easily fooled aren't really worth the trouble.

Don't worry about the goodness of other people. It is quite sufficient to see that your own is up to test.

Most men are pessimists before breakfast.

The fellow who hasn't the courage of his convictions never gets into the game worth a cent.

The man who is always on the level seldom finds himself up in the air.

We are poor not because we have never made very much, but because the other fellow was more clever.

The best way to explain to some people is to knock them down first and tell them why before they get up.

COMMUNICATION.

The writer resides three miles from Deford and can attend church close at home, hence we visit the town only when business leads us that way.

But complaint comes that at times men fall by the way side. Some think they may be smitten by a lingering streak of gas from the tail of Halley's comet, while others aver 'tis the effects of the invisible spirit of strong drink and if the latter is true, whoever furnishes the injurious drug, is treading on dangerous ground for in a "dry" county the law is as severe with one who gives the poison as with one that sells it and one found under its influence can be taken into court and forced to tell where he got the goods. We are told that the "thoughtless rush where wise men fear to tread" and should any think of "putting the bottle to their neighbor's lips," they must quit and quit it now.

If you are inclined to look at the matter lightly, we refer you to the perusal of the local option laws enacted by our state in session 1909 and doubt not that you will govern your acts accordingly.

A COURSE OF DINNERS.

It includes Roasted Peas as a Substitute For Coffee.

In a little book called "The Economical Housekeeper," published about the year 1840, there is given on one page "A Course of Dinners For a Week." At the time of its publication the little book was most popular, as is proved by the author's preface to the second revised edition. She says:

"Encouraged by the very favorable reception that our humble labors have met in the rapid sale of the first edition of 1,500 copies in about fifteen weeks, and the demand still continuing, we have improved the time by endeavoring to make the present edition more worthy of patronage, if possible, than the first."

Therefore it is probable that the "course of dinners" which follows was considered admirable at that time:

"Monday—Tea, coffee or cocoa, with mincemeat, bread and butter in winter, bread and milk in summer.

"Tuesday—Boiled dish, with apple dumplings.

"Wednesday—Roasted or baked meat, with bread pudding.

"Thursday—Broiled steak or fresh fish, with baked rice pudding.

"Friday—Baked beans, with baked Indian pudding.

"Saturday—Salt codfish boiled, with apple pie.

Value of the Kangaroo's Tail.

So important is the kangaroo's tail in his rapid progress that experienced hunters with guns are accustomed to fire at the point where this appendage joins the body, when, the tail being disabled for its office of balancing, the animal is as effectually stopped as if hamstrung. Hit elsewhere, except with a rifle bullet or at point blank range, the kangaroo is pretty likely to get off. One peculiarity of the kangaroo is that, after being started up, he very rarely swerves from his course, through which peculiarity he is easily "potted" by hunters, who conceal themselves while a man on horseback drives the herd toward them.

Ready Made Grief.

"If I could only experience some great grief," sighed the poet, "I think I might be able to write a deathless lay."

He Was Selfish.

An Arabic anecdote illustrative of the subtleness of selfishness, which enables it to glide into the heart of a saint, is told of the holy Mohammedan Sakati.

He said that for twenty years he had never ceased imploring divine pardon for having once exclaimed, "Praise be to God!" On being asked the reason for such persistent praying he answered:

"A fire broke out in Bagdad, and a person came to me and told me that my shop had escaped, on which I uttered those words, and even to this moment I repent of having said so, because it showed that I wished better to myself than to others."

The Horseman

Likes a fine animal. You get the horse and Harvell's Condition Powders will do the rest. It is the best condition powder on the market. Absolutely no waste and every ingredient is medicinal. Used by all the leading eastern racing stables. You should try them and see for yourself. Price 25c per package. J. A. Carr & Son, Lansing, Mich., writes:

"We have used Harvell's Condition Powders on our livery horses for about three years and have always found them superior to all others. We have found that livery horses are subject to great abuse and Harvell's Condition Powders always bring back the appetite and puts them on their pins." Sold at Wood's Drug Store.

Opening of Public School Sept. 5th

The Public Schools of Cass City will open on Monday, Sept. 5th. We hope to see all the former pupils present and many new ones.

The superintendent is ready to consult or correspond with all who may desire information regarding the school. Come and spend an enjoyable and profitable year with us. The opportunities for an educated man and woman were never greater than they are today. Come equipped with the best of health and a vigorous determination to work.

A number of prospective students have already inquired into boarding places and some have applied for work to do during the school year. All those who have rooms to rent, with or without board, also those who can give students employment for board, will kindly inform the Superintendent that he may put them in touch with the proper parties.

The tuition fee for non-resident HIGH SCHOOL students has been changed from $15 to $20 a year.

The Kindergarten has been abolished, but the Sub-Primary has been retained. No child under five years will be permitted to enter. There will be only two periods at which children will be received into the Sub-Primary. First, in Sept. at the opening of school; and second, those who become five years old between Sept. and Feb'y will be permitted to enter in February. No children will be received after the opening of the second semester in Feb'y.

THE ARCTIC CROP.

Frigid Yield From Greenland's Icy Mountains.

THE MAKING OF AN ICEBERG.

Huge Sheets of Ice a Mile Thick in Places Slide Down to the Sea, and as the Ends Become Too Heavy They Break Off and Form Bergs.

At any time of the year ice may be encountered in the Atlantic north of the fortieth parallel of latitude, approximately that of New York, and between 42 and 55 degrees west longitude, but it is in spring, when the increasing warmth of the sun loosens the arctic floes and causes the bergs to melt and float from the places where they have been stranded, that there is the greatest danger to the mariner.

The bergs have their origin almost exclusively in western Greenland, although a few may come around Cape Farewell from the Spitzbergen sea and some from Hudson bay.

A huge sheet of ice a mile thick in places covers the whole of Greenland. This gradually slides down the valley toward the sea, into which it is thrust in great sheets fifty miles wide. As these ends become too heavy they break off and become bergs. The process is known as "calving." The pieces set adrift thus may be a thousand feet out of the water and a mile square, but as they drift about they become broken and continue to diminish in size until they finally disappear completely. The process sometimes takes several years.

Once set adrift icebergs find their way into the Labrador current and begin their journey. But of all bergs so set adrift only a very small proportion ever find their way into the path of the transatlantic steamships.

Nor do all bergs take the same course. Some go south; others lodge against the shore or against islands. Two years may separate the time that two bergs reach a low latitude, though they were "calved" at the same moment.

Field ice also offers an obstruction to the icebergs, though by their great size and bulk they often act as plows and aid materially in breaking up the ice fields which obstruct the arctic basin.

Ice fields are more affected by the wind than are icebergs. Bergs generally drift with the current, so that one sometimes is seen moving into the wind.

Advantage is taken of this by the sealing and fishing boats when caught in an ice field. They often moor to an iceberg and are towed miles through the ice, through which otherwise they could make no headway. This is accomplished by sinking an anchor into the berg and using a strong towline. As the berg advances open water, with small floating ice, is left astern.

But this is indeed a dangerous thing to do. All ice is brittle, but especially icebergs. A blow of an ax has been known to split one, while the report of a gun at times will accomplish the same end. In July and August, when the bergs are breaking up along the coast of Labrador, the noise at times is deafening, and the noise of one often causes another to break up.

From their very nature icebergs assume an endless variety of shapes. Some resemble geometrical figures, while others carry fantastic domes, spires and minarets. Sometimes they appear to be veritable ice bridges, with two separate supports. In many there are great caves and indentations. As they drift south and begin melting cascades of water pour down their sides or run from the tips of the hundreds of icicles which depend from every ledge.

Frequently there are outlying spurs in the water, as dangerous to ships as submerged reefs. For this reason vessels should always give them a wide berth, half a mile being considered the nearest that one may be approached with safety.

Several years ago the British steamship Nessmore ran into an iceberg and stove in her bows. When she was docked a scratch was found next the keel the full length of the ship, the plates being almost cut through. The ship evidently struck a submerged spur. The government report says:

"It is generally best for ships to go to windward of them, because disintegrated fragments have a tendency to drift to leeward, while open water will be found to windward."

So nicely are icebergs balanced in the water that the slightest melting sometimes will cause the center of gravity to shift, and the entire berg will capsize or founder. Thus many ships have been wrecked.

Field ice is formed throughout the waters within the arctic circle south as far as Newfoundland, and each year vast floes leave the shores and drift south into the paths of commerce. The arctic ice often has lived through several seasons in the far north and occasionally is ten to fifteen and sometimes twenty feet thick. Because of its continual motion, due to currents, wind, etc., gradually it becomes broken up. Swells from storms in the open seas cause it to raft or pile one pan on another—in the arctic every piece of field ice is a pan—until it is covered with hummocks.

Ice also becomes rafted by the grinding of a free field against another frozen to the shore or by the grinding of two fields against each other when one is given a turning motion by contrary wind and tide. This rotary motion, it is said, is particularly dangerous to ships that get caught between fields.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

WEDDED THE DEAD.

Queer Marriage Ceremony That Was Performed in Japan.

The tragic ending of a Japanese love story is reported by the Japan Chronicle from Tsuzuki, a little seaside village in the province of Shizuoka.

Ono Matsusaka, twenty years old, fell in love with Ono O-bun, a girl seventeen years old. The young couple sought the consent of their parents, and the father and mother of the girl refused to sanction the union. The two lovers decided to commit suicide rather than be separated. By appointment they met at a trysting place that had been the scene of their love-making and embarked in a fishing boat. At a point some distance from shore they bound themselves together with some cloth brought along to serve that purpose and threw themselves into the sea.

Committing "shinjū," as lovers' suicides are called in Japan, is such an ordinary occurrence that little attention is attracted by it, but this tragedy was followed by something exceptional in Japan.

When the two bodies, still bound together, were washed ashore the officials who examined them turned them over to their respective parents. The villagers were so deeply affected that they called upon the two bereaved families to "do justice" to the boy and girl by uniting them in marriage after death. The mayor of the village was especially insistent that the rites be performed, "so that the deceased might be safely united in the next world." The parents agreed, the ceremony was carried out in due form, and presents were exchanged between the two families. The ceremony was legally registered just as if it had taken place before the deaths of the bride and bridegroom.

Lafcadio Hearn in his "Glimpses of Unfamiliar Japan" and "Gleanings in Buddha-fields" never brought the attention of the occident to any Japanese custom or occurrence stranger than this real happening that finds its way into the columns of a Japanese newspaper as a feature of the day's news.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MADDENING MONOTONY.

The Graveyard Sort of Life That Obtains in Sierra Leone.

It is difficult to explain how complete in normal times is the dullness of the small villages in the protectorate of Sierra Leone, on the coast of western Africa, says a writer in the Nineteenth Century and After. An hour before sunrise shadowy figures move noiselessly through the narrow alleys which separate the mud walled houses and in single file pass out of sight toward the farm lands. A little later children and a few women leave the houses to obtain water for cooking. They also go in single file and in a short while will return in the same manner carrying water in calabashes, except, perchance, one or two may be affluent enough to possess a tin in which kerosene oil has been imported. During the great heat of the day people return and sit, silent and motionless, in the thatched roof verandas. Toward evening there is more movement. Food time generally brightens people even when it only means rice and peppers. Soon after sunset all sign of life ceases. There is no light in the houses, because oil is expensive, and a dying fire is enough when there is nothing to see except those you have seen all day; there are no sounds, save a baby's cry at intervals, or perhaps the weird call of some night bird, because people cannot talk much when no one has anything fresh to say. Next day will be the same, and so will be every day in the year except at festival times, such as when the girls or boys return, dancing and gayly decked, from the Porroh Bush. There is no church, no postman, no passing horse or carriage and no newspapers.

Warming Gold Dishes.

Castle Kilkenny is one of the oldest inhabited dwellings in the world, some of the rooms being 800 years old. Among its ancient treasures is a service of gold plate. Besides the ordinary plate service, Castle Kilkenny has the whole series of gold cups used at coronation banquets down to the time of George IV. The gold of the service plates is almost without alloy, consequently very soft and easily marred; hence the plates are warmed and presumably also washed after use by being dipped into hot water, held by a pair of tongs whose tips have been muffled in chamouis leather.—London Mail.

A Freak of Nature.

Colonel Dennison had become the happy father of twins, and his unbounded pride in this twofold blessedness found expression on every occasion.

He stood with a friend on the bank steps one day as a young woman passed wheeling a baby carriage containing a pretty girl baby.

"Doesn't a woman look queer," said the colonel loftily, "with only one child?"—Success Magazine.

Got the Whole Story.

"What made you so late?" "I met Jinx." "Well, that's no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling and the fool insisted on telling me."—Houston Post.

Long Courtship.

CUSTER'S LAST FIGHT.

The Famous Battle of the Little Bighorn River.

General George A. Custer was one of the most notable cavalry officers developed during the war of the rebellion. It was his fortune to be in the thick of the conflict within a few days after leaving the training school at West Point, and from that time until the day of his death his life was filled with strenuous work and stirring adventure, in which he was frequently exposed to deadly peril.

The closing chapter of his life, which came with what is known in history as "Custer's last fight," which occurred on June 26, 1876, was a tragedy, but he died like a soldier.

For a number of years after the civil war Custer had been engaged in Indian fighting on the frontier of the United States. Many of these engagements were among the most thrilling in the history of Indian warfare in this country.

The famous expedition which led up to the famous battle of the Little Bighorn river was started on May 17, 1876, when General Terry, his officers, of whom General Custer was one, and his troops left Fort Lincoln, Dakota. Every one realized that the campaign was likely to be a decisive one. It was planned to strike the Indians a serious blow—one from which they could not recover.

The advance was begun under favorable conditions, and the Little Bighorn mountains were reached on June 25 and the Indian village located. A slight accident gave the red men warning. Nobody knows exactly how the battle of Little Bighorn was fought. The statements made afterward by the Indians were contradictory, but they all agreed that Custer's appearance was a great surprise. The best evidence shows that the Indians closed in on both right and left and placed Custer at once on the defensive. Closer and closer the coil tightened around that plucky band. One after the other of the troopers fell, the horses were stampeded, the ammunition ran low, no messenger had been able to break through the lines, and the mortality among the officers was heavy.

Then Custer had his troops fire two volleys in succession, the usual cry for help. It was heard in Reno's camp. Its significance was understood, but no help came. Soon came the final act of the tragedy. The Indians closed in from all sides, led by the cruel chiefs, Crow King, Gall, Crazy Horse and Rain-in-the-Face. It was a hand to hand fight. It was 150 against 1,000. Grouped about Custer were twenty or thirty desperate men. They fought with their leader, they fought for their leader, until the last man lay dead.

Not an American officer or soldier lived to tell the tale of "Custer's last fight." Never in the history of the world was the bravery, devotion to duty and perfect discipline of troops better illustrated. Almost without exception the bodies of the men were found just where they had fought. Each company was in the place assigned, troopers in line and their officers in position. They fought a losing battle, but they fought without flinching. They were killed, but not disgraced.—Detroit Free Press.

Old Mosque Legends.

The great Begova mosque in Serajevo is the largest mosque in Europe after those of Constantinople and Selim's mosque in Adrianople. In its courtyard stands an old stone, across the top of which there is a groove precisely the length of a Turkish eil. Tradition says that a pasha placed it there to checkmate the local merchants' habitual use of false measures in defiance of the express commandment of the Koran.

But another of Serajevo's hundred mosques has a much better legend. Before this may be seen the tombs of the seven holy dervishes who were beheaded 200 years ago for a great theft. After the decapitation each body tucked its head under its arm and walked into the mosque. So those dervishes are worshiped as saints to this day.

A Large Volume.

The biggest book in Washington is not in the Congressional library. It is in the reference room of the geological survey on F street, where its huge bulk reposes on a stand made especially for it. It is a dictionary and consists of half a dozen volumes bound under one generous cover that must have taken several calfskins to provide the leather binding. It contains 7,085 pages and weighs as much as a high school girl. By contrast the fat Webster's Unabridged that lies alongside this great Jumbo of a book looks like a pocket edition of the "Rubaiyat."

Didn't Like Comparisons.

"What made that prima donna demand your discharge?"

"I wrote an article," replied the press agent, "saying that she sings like an angel. She said she saw no reason for complimentary reference to anybody's singing except her own."—Washington Star.

Suits Some—Death to Others.

"Iron may be good for the blood of some," remarked the worm as the angler threaded the hook through him gently, "but I fear it will be the death of me!"

And yet the fish that swallowed the iron a little later was quite carried away with it.

Fatal.

The Lady—Get out! You're the man I gave a piece of my cake to only an hour ago. The Hobo—No, mum, I'm that poor feller's ghost!—Cleveland Leader.

Deaths of the Week

George Hoagland, aged 82, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jos. Martus, Wednesday morning, Aug. 24. Mr. Hoagland has been rather feeble for several months, but has been able to be around town, and his final sickness lasted but six hours. The funeral service will be held today (Friday) at 2:00 p. m. at the home of Joseph Martus.
George Hoagland was born in Steuben county, New York. At the age of 28 years, he went to Livingston County, Minn., where he lived 29 years. Later he moved to Nebraska where he resided eight years and then to Cass City, buying a farm west of town. Mrs. Hoagland died 17 years ago. He is survived by three sons, Frank and Fred Hoagland of Cass City and John Hoagland of Oregon state, and one daughter, Mrs. Jos. Martus of this city.

The remains of Henry Sheffer, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward Huntley, at Joliet, Ill., were brought to Cass City Tuesday noon and interred in Elkland cemetery. Rev. L. A. Townsend officiated at the grave service.
Mr. Sheffer was born in Pennsylvania 68 years ago and came to Novesta in 1868, taking up a homestead in that township. He later moved to Cass City and lived here with his family for several years. Twelve years ago he left the village and has since made his home in Kings Mills and Joliet.

Those who attended the funeral from out of town were: Mrs. Henry Sheffer and Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Sheffer of Joliet, Ill., J. F. Sheffer, Mrs. Jas. Sheffer and Edson Meredith of Saginaw, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Sherwood of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wait of Oxford, Jas. Huntley of Lum, and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Best and Mr. and Mrs. A. Allen of Kings Mills.

Wm. Fray died at the home of his wife's sister, Mrs. Heberton, south of Wickware, Sunday afternoon, the cause of death being a rupture of a blood vessel. He was born in Cayuga, Canada, 53 years ago. He lived in Chicago 30 years where he followed the profession of window trimming. Eight years ago he was united in marriage with Miss Rose Bingleman of Shabbona.
Mr. Fray was a man highly esteemed by his acquaintances and was always kind and considerate. Besides his companion, he is survived by one brother and three sisters. The funeral was held in the M. E. church Wednesday, Rev. Willerton officiating, and interment made in the Evergreen cemetery.

J. B. McFall, aged 79, died at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Wm. Hoover, at Vassar Monday night. He was a miller in Vassar for 20 years and had worked at his trade at Millington, Clio and Cass City and had a wide acquaintance throughout the county. He is survived by a son, George, and a brother, Chas., of Detroit.

The camp fire was brotherly, the program amusing and the points made by the several able and noted speakers were instructive and entertaining. May the good work go on each year until the reapers shall have gathered in all the golden grain.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected:

President, D. M. Houghton, Cass City.

Vice President, Aaron Meldon, Caro.

Secretary, A. G. Houghton, Cass City.

By Mrs. Emma Dykeman.

August 17 about a dozen of us Cass Cityites, veterans and Ladies of the Grand Army, took the morning train for Mayville. Arriving there we were met by the receiving committee. The ladies were taken to the headquarters in the free omnibus. The veterans marched to headquarters. We found a large gathering of veterans and Ladies of the Grand Army and citizens. A committee was registering names, company and regiment of all veterans and names of the ladies.

Ten days before the town had been canvassed to learn who could give lodging and breakfasts free to as many as they could comfortably care for, two or three at a home. The names of these worthy citizens were written on cards with the number they were able to entertain. Then the committee assigned and escorted them to their places. After this we returned to headquarters received a ribbon badge for which we paid 25c and were issued two cards daily for free meals at hotels or boarding houses where the best of the land was spread before us. We were served most royally. To defray the expenses of those meals, donations by the citizens nearly paid all. By selling a few extra badges all the expense was covered, including about $20.00 for band music.

Mayville has a population of about 800. She certainly has done a noble and praiseworthy act. Long will she be remembered for her generosity, patriotism and heroism in undertaking the responsibility of so large a gathering. Words but feebly express our thanks. The three days spent together were very happy, free-of-care days. There was no unpleasantness from start to finish. As I did not expect to recall the doings on paper, I took no notes but I will give the program as near as I can.

The first day after registering and finding our lodging place, we again returned to headquarters, received our meal tickets, ate our dinner, formed in line—band first, then Ladies of the Grand Army, then the veterans and citizens. We marched to a beautiful grove where a large tent was pitched, filled with seats, a good rostrum, a pulpit and an organ. The tent was well decorated with flags and electric lights. The grounds were also lighted. Several gentlemen gave addresses but little politics were introduced. The whole was more of a beautiful eulogy to the brave boys who wore the blue and the noble women who kept the home. Music by the band was enjoyed between speeches. After this was over, many attended the ball game. The veterans and ladies then marched to the opera house where the association held their business meeting.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in August, 1911. The place of meeting was not fully decided. It lies between Cass City and Vassar. From the opera house we returned to headquarters and there had a sociable time visiting. Time passed all too quickly.

There was a moving picture show across the street that was quite an attraction as the views were mostly war scenes. As the hours grew late, we went to our appointed places, a tired and happy people. So ended the first day.

The second day, after breaking our fast, we assembled at headquarters. We had some athletic events in front of headquarters. After dinner, there were horse races, a ball game, and a march to the grove again. We listened to several addresses, band music, singing instrumental music, story telling and reminiscences of the war. Some of the latter were very sad and others very laughable. We returned to headquarters where a grave decoration exercise was performed. Supper and camp fire finished the second day.

The third and last day was very much the same as the first two with the exception of a prize gun drill which was very interesting. It was wonderful how the "old boys" could handle the gun in spite of rheumatism and aches and pains. During the day all gathered in front of headquarters and our pictures were taken. As soon as they are finished any one who cares to see this picture is cordially invited to call at my home. In the evening of the third day there was a camp fire at the grove.

Altogether the three days were a real relaxation from care and all seemed to let the years fall off from them and enjoy the songs, stories and laughter. May there be more such happy returns to the boys who wore the blue is the wish of your humble hand maiden.

FILLED WITH CURIOSITY.

That Was Why He Was Anxiously Waiting Outside the House.

The man was standing behind a tree in front of an apartment house in a cross street when the cop on that beat came pounding along on the sidewalk. It was close to midnight, and naturally the cop stopped and looked at the man standing behind the tree.

"Howdy," says the cop, by way of opening conversation.

"You're another," replied the man good naturedly.

"Whut'chuh doin'—waitin' for somebody?" inquired the brave policeman.

"Nope."

"Just standin' there, hey?"

"You've hit it."

"Live near here, do you?"

"Right in there," says the citizen, jerking his thumb in the direction of the apartment house he was standing in front of.

The cop looked at him thoughtfully for a minute.

"Mebby it's none of my business," he says, "and then again mebbly it is. I don't like to go round buttin' into anybody's private affairs, but tell me, neighbor, what's your graft, anyhow?"

"Well," loosened up the citizen, "it's a case of me a-tellin' you or you croakin' from curiosity right in front of my eyes, I'll tell you how it is—provided it don't go any further. My wife says to me when I started downtown this evenin', 'If you're not home by midnight I'm goin' to pack up and go right back to mother's. So there?'"

"Well," says the cop.

"Well," repeated the citizen, "it's just about midnight now, and I'm like you—I've got curiosity. I'm waitin' here to see if she's goin' to keep her word."

The cop's curiosity ceased at that point, and he walked on down the street whistling, without waiting to thing out.—Cleveland Plain

Paper Money.

Marco Polo (1254-1324) of Venice was the first person to announce to Europe the existence of paper money in China under the moguls. The fact has induced the belief that the moguls were the originators of it. But in the history of Ghengis Khan and of the mogul dynasty in China published in the year 1739 the author speaks of the suppression of the paper money which was in use under the dynasty of the Sung, who reigned in China previous to the moguls, and he also mentions a new species of notes which were substituted for the old in 1264.

Giving Due Credit.

"Willie, I hope your teacher appreciates how much I teach you at home." "That's what I keep tellin' her, ma. She said yesterday, 'I wonder where you learn your bad manners, Willie, and I said right away, 'Ma teaches 'em to me.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It's a Crime

To neglect your health and there is a severe penalty attached when you allow constipation, biliousness or any liver or bowel trouble to run on. It may lead to a serious disease. Take Dr. Herick's Sugar-Coated Pills and get absolutely well. The sure cure for any and all troubles of the stomach, liver and bowels. Price 25c per box. Ask for a free sample. Wood's Drug Store.

Saw His Finish.

"Oh, oh," exclaimed impatient Mrs. Naggs, "I've bitten off the end of my tongue!" "Well, I certainly feel sorry for myself," rejoined the heartless Naggs. "Hereafter there will be no end to your tongue."

Be sure and take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with you when starting on your trip this summer. It cannot be obtained on board the trains or steamers. Changes of water and climate often cause sudden attacks of diarrhoea, and it is best to be prepared. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

DELFT EMBROIDERY.

Smart Effects For Use In Summer Cottages.

Delft embroidery is new and is most attractive in its cool dullness of tone for the summer room. It is nearly all worked in dull blue of several shades upon a sort of coarse butcher's linen so nearly white that it can scarcely be called cream.

All of these bags are faced with the lighter of the three shades of blue and drawn up with corresponding ribbons. It must be remembered that the choice of color is as important a factor in this work as is the design if the finished product is to resemble delft ware.

Varying but slightly in idea and general effect, the two bags show each a different little Dutch figure, one of them knitting, the other merely a face and both of them done in a combination of stitches, including outline, solid, skeleton, cat stitch and laid work.

They are used to their best advantage in the carrying out of each part of the design, as are also the several shades of blue.

Dutch figures similar to these are carried out in a whole line of art needlework, including larger bags for the family mending, laundry bags, bed-room hangings and couch cushions.

A prominent feature throughout the whole lot of this delft blue fancy work is the standing or seated figure of a woman knitting. She is characteristic of her country—a thrifty house-mother providing for her family by primitive means.

All of these figures are treated by that method known to the decorative artist, a method that outlines its most

A KNITTING BAG.

Impressive parts with a single darker line. In this case it is accomplished by outlining.

One of the bags is intended for darning, one for knitting, and like designs may be applied to all sizes of work-bags or to many pieces of linen for use in the bedrooms of summer cottages.

The Guest Towel.

One of the prettiest designs in bedroom towels seen for a long time is called the guest room towel. It is of soft damask, woven in a dainty scattered design of sweet peas, a deep border of the flowers appearing at the ends, which are hemstitched.

The size is 20 by 38 inches and the price 35 cents each.

A novelty in bath towels is a bleached Turkish towel, with a red jacquard border that will not run in the washing, but will come from its tubbing looking like new. It costs only 25 cents and measures 20 by 44 inches, a reasonable price.

The crossbar dimities and the self checked lawns are responsible for some of the daintiest looking pillowshams designed especially for summer use.

A rather large checked lawn, decorated with water lilies above a scalloped border, is thirty-two inches square and costs 85 cents. The scarf, 18 by 34, is the same price.

A second design is a grouping of daisies and bowknots set on above a pretty scroll pattern edge buttonholed, the material crossbar dimity. This is thirty-two inches square and costs 50 cents. The scarf is the same price.

Another pretty idea is a pillowsham of fine dotted swiss hemstitched to a wide border of sheer crossbar. Price 85 cents.

For the Tea Drinker.

Those women who are fastidious in regard to their tea will be interested in a new teapot that seems to have reached perfection. It is simple too. Inside the pot there is a tea ball, its chain passing through the knob on the cover of the pot. This ball is filled with tea and is drawn up into a hollow in the cover.

Freshly boiled water is poured into the pot, and the steam arising from it moistens the tea. After a few minutes the ball is lowered into the water, then raised when sufficient strength has been extracted—all this without lifting the lid of the pot.

Deaf and Dumb!

By Harriet Lummis Smith

(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

The two young men seated at the round table in the little open-air restaurant had kept up a desultory flow of talk, such as was compatible with doing justice to the delicious soft-shelled crabs for which the Sea Gull is noted. But it was a soundless conversation, inarticulate, for the fingers talked rather than the lips. George Laveton was a deaf mute and his cousin, Allan Merrifield, though less proficient in the sign language, had mastered enough of its intricacies to enable him to sustain a part in the conversation.

"Deaf and dumb, poor things! Isn't it dreadful?"

It was a girl's voice, coming from the table at the right.

"Yes, dreadful! And especially for the handsome one," replied her companion.

"Now, which of us does she mean?" wondered Allan. His uncertainty was a credit to his modesty, for George's lean, brown face, in spite of an expression of alert intelligence, lacked every element of beauty. Fortunately the speaker settled the question by adding, "What dark, beautiful eyes he has! I never care for blue eyes in a man."

Allan heaved a sigh of relief. George's eyes were gray. He improved the first opportunity to glance at the other table. The girl in blue was beautiful. Her oval face was tinted like a seashell and the big violet eyes with their long lashes were bewitching in their frank pity.

George nudged his friend and his nimble fingers spelled out warning, "Don't stare so. It's rude."

"The worst of it is," remarked the girl who had spoken first, "that such an affliction shuts them out of everything. The situation was trying. Suddenly it flashed upon him that his possession of the normal faculties was an offense to her. He tried to think of an answer to make to her and she backed away from him, the waves of color flooding her face.

"And you can hear, too," she accused him. "You can't deny it."

"I—I'm afraid I can't," said Allan, with real emotion.

"And you're not deaf and dumb at all? I was trying to save your life. I thought that you couldn't hear the horn and that you would be killed."

"I did hear it and I thought I had time to get across. But it was just as plucky of you," Allan cried. "I shall never forget it. Never!"

She had her hands up over her face. He could see only the tips of her ears. His admiring tribute had not comforted her. She was thinking of something else.

"You heard me?" she cried in a smothered voice—"that day in the restaurant? You couldn't have helped hearing every word. Oh!" her voice rose in a wail. "Oh! What must you think of me?"

He came close to her. The street was full of people. Some passers-by stared at the pair, the girl with her face covered, as if she were crying, and the tall young man bending over her and plainly trying to comfort her. But, for all Allan knew, they two were alone in some enchanted garden.

"I'd like to tell you what I do think of you," he said, unsteadily. "Some time when we're better acquainted I shall do it. But without waiting I can tell what I think about myself, and it's that I'm the luckiest fellow on earth to find you again. Now I'm going to walk along with you and find out what your name is—besides Winifred."

The client came promptly at eleven. And he waited as long as if Allan had been an acknowledged ornament to the bar, rather than a beginner with a name to make.

The memory of the girl whose name was Winifred came back to Allan often in his hours of relaxation, or when he heard sweet music. Sometimes he dreamed of seeing her and the joy of recognition invariably awoke him. And so things went until one crisp fall morning, when Fate again took a hand in the game.

Allan came out of his office in a rush. He had some important matters to attend to before meeting a client. He had not yet reached the point in his profession when he could safely keep clients waiting. Accordingly he started to cross the street, despite the fact that a touring car was bearing down upon him, heralding its advance by the aggressive toots by which the modern motorist asserts his pre-eminence claim to the public highway. Allan believed that he had time enough to get across before the car should strike him and that, anyway, it was the chauffeur's business to look out.

At the critical moment his calculations were upset by a hand that clutched him arm. He stopped and pulled violently back, from under the very wheels of the swerving car.

Allan got back to the sidewalk without knowing just what had happened except that the hand that had first clutched him still held fast to his arm. Then, looking down, he saw that it was a little hand in a blue glove.

The hand released its hold on him, touched his shoulder, as if to attract his attention, and pointed in the direction of the now vanishing car. Allan understood that an effort had been made to save him from the consequences of his own recklessness and he tried to seem grateful.

"Yes, I see," he stammered. "I suppose it was rather close. Awfully good of you."

The brim of the big hat was tilted with startling suddenness, disclosing a face, winsome in spite of its pallor. "Yo—you can speak?" gasped the girl—the girl whose name was Winifred.

"Don't stare so. It's rude."

"The worst of it is," remarked the girl who had spoken first, "that such an affliction shuts them out of everything. The situation was trying. Suddenly it flashed upon him that his possession of the normal faculties was an offense to her. He tried to think of an answer to make to her and she backed away from him, the waves of color flooding her face.

"And you can hear, too," she accused him. "You can't deny it."

"I—I'm afraid I can't," said Allan, with real emotion.

"And you're not deaf and dumb at all? I was trying to save your life. I thought that you couldn't hear the horn and that you would be killed."

"I did hear it and I thought I had time to get across. But it was just as plucky of you," Allan cried. "I shall never forget it. Never!"

She had her hands up over her face. He could see only the tips of her ears. His admiring tribute had not comforted her. She was thinking of something else.

"You heard me?" she cried in a smothered voice—"that day in the restaurant? You couldn't have helped hearing every word. Oh!" her voice rose in a wail. "Oh! What must you think of me?"

Woman as a Social Success.

There is no quality more to be desired to make a woman a social success than that of tact. Its possessor knows the right thing to do and the right time for doing it and thus gains a reputation for cleverness and for many virtues which a tactless person would never win from her circle of acquaintances, no matter how excellent her qualities of both heart and head.

The tactful woman is not only a patient listener, but she is a thoroughly good one. She shows no weariness even when she has heard the same story more than once from the same person and she smiles in the right place and appears to enjoy hearing jokes as much as her companion enjoys telling them, says Woman's Life.

A tactful woman generally gets her own way with her husband and with other people and yet in such a manner that people always suppose that they are following their own and not her inclinations. The fact is that she knows when a man is approachable and likely to be amenable to her wishes and when it is best to leave him alone. Tact is a weapon guided with a multitude of precautions and feminine wiles by the wise woman and it is only the wise who possess it.

Check Impulsiveness.

There is a sort of impulsiveness which often gets people into serious trouble. We are fretted and vexed at the acts of somebody else and we do not wait to think, but say out our irritation and wound deeply some sensitive spirit. We are angry and we let passion rule us instead of calm reflection. The impulsive person who cannot control his temper is like one who carries fire near gunpowder.

Not His Darling.

"I do considerable business with a man by the name of Darling," said a lawyer, "and the other day I tried to get him on the phone. The operator told me he was busy and would call me. I hung up the receiver, and about five minutes later the bell rang. Thinking it was Darling, I said: 'Hello, Darling. Been trying to get you for some time.'"

"How dare you call me darling?" replied a girlish voice at the other end, and then I heard the click of the receiver. I wish I knew the woman. It like to explain.—Philadelphia Times.

Wyoming is a name corrupted from an almost unpronounceable Indian word meaning "land of large plains."

In buying a cough medicine, don't be afraid to get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it, and relief is sure to follow. Especially recommended for coughs, colds and whooping cough. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

Natural Pottery.

Excellent natural pottery is manufactured by nature in the case of a certain cactus. Woodpeckers are apt to excavate nests in the trunk and branches, and in order that it may protect itself against these incursions the plant exudes a sticky juice, which hardens, forming a woody lining to the hole made by the birds. Eventually the cactus dies and withers, but the wooden bowl remains.

Force of Habit.

A man in a mellow condition went into a barber shop and seated himself in one of the chairs.

"What's your pleasure, sir?" asked the polite barber.

"Oh—er—give me a hair cut and have one yourself."—Everybody's.

If your liver is sluggish and out of tone, and you feel dull, bilious, constipated, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets tonight before retiring and you will feel all right in the morning. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

A Compliment.

Mrs. Hersey was unhappy over the stern severity of her new photographs. "Norah," she said to her pretty waitress, "do you think this photograph looks like me?"

Norah's warm Irish heart came to the rescue. "Shure, Mrs. Hersey, dear," she replied quickly, "if you looked like that would I ever have two afternoons a week?"

Stagers Skeptics.

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, stagers skeptics. But great cures prove its wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons, eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at L. I. Wood & Co's.

Ice. An acre of twelve inch ice when cut up into blocks usually will provide a harvest of 1,000 tons.

Gambling.

Gambling is the child of avarice, the brother of iniquity and the father of mischief.—Washington.

Giving.

The manner of giving shows the character of the giver more than the gift itself.—Lavater.

Dysentery is a dangerous disease but can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been successfully used in nine epidemics of dysentery. It has never been known to fail. It is equally valuable for children and adults, and when reduced with water and sweetened, it is pleasant to take. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

DANGER IN DELAY.
Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Cass City People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes, and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in this locality.

William Singleton, 621 South State St., Caro, Mich., says: "I was afflicted with kidney trouble for two years and I suffered intensely from pains in the small of my back. On arising in the morning I was very lame and the least work tired me. Headaches and dizzy spells were other symptoms of my trouble and sometimes my sight became blurred. The kidney secretions contained sediment and passed too frequently, breaking my rest. In a week after I commenced the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, I improved and the contents of five boxes of this remedy effected a permanent cure. I consider Doan's Kidney Pills worthy of my endorsement."

A FREE Prescription ADVICE

From a physician of 52 years' experience in colleges, sanatoriums and general practice. Weak, nervous men, regain your strength and vigor.
So great was my sympathy for weak men in the early years of my experience that I have made it a special study, and formulated two prescriptions, one for men under 50 and one for men over 50 years of age. In my declining years, I want every man to have the benefit of my long years of careful study, research and long experience. I am now 73 years old and as strong and vigorous as at 40 and the rest of my life will be spent in aiding suffering manhood. I realize that my time is short, but will do all in my power to aid men and women who are helpless and seeking relief. I know there has been a great many disappointed when they thought relief in their grasp, but let me send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of study since I began lecturing to students at classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are a NEED AID. Let me help you to regain your former standing among men. In short, let me assist you to be yourself once more.
If you are suffering from falling memory, lame back or weakened manhood or nervous difficulties, LET ME SEND YOU A RECIPE in a plain sealed envelope that you can use in your own home. I am confident that you will thank me every day in your life after you have tested it for yourself.
Take advantage of this offer NOW before it is too late. Address me personally.

precinct forms a part.
COUNTY—One candidate for each of the following County offices, viz.: Sheriff, Clerk, Treasurer, Register of Deeds, Prosecuting Attorney, Surveyor, Drain Commissioner; also candidates for Circuit Court Commissioner and two candidates for Coroner. Also candidates for County Auditor.
There shall also be elected as many delegates to the county conventions of the several political parties as said precinct or township is entitled to under the call of the county committees of said political parties, which number will be indicated by the number of blank lines printed on the official primary ballots used at said election under the heading, "Delegates to County Conventions." The Board of Primary Election Inspectors will furnish delegates with credentials, entitling them to seats in the county conventions, except where there is more than one precinct in a township and the county committee require the election of delegates from the township as a whole, such delegates must be admitted without credentials.
Relative to Enrollment.
The enrollment for this election was held April 4, 1910, but any qualified elector in any election precinct in this State, who failed to have his name enrolled on enrollment day by reason of sickness or unavoidable absence from the election precinct, and who is a qualified elector in said precinct on primary election day, or any person who may have become twenty-one years of age or a qualified elector after enrollment day, may have his name enrolled by the board of primary election inspectors on any primary election day upon making oath as provided in the general election law relative to the registration of electors on election days; or any person who was duly enrolled in manner provided by law, but who has changed his residence to any election precinct, other than that in which he was enrolled, may be enrolled in the new election precinct and may vote therein: Provided, That he has resided in the election precinct in which he seeks to be enrolled for a period of twenty days and that he obtained from a member of the enrollment board of the election precinct in which he formerly resided, a certificate stating that he was duly enrolled in such precinct, and that he is entitled to enrollment in such certificate, if he can satisfy the said enrollment board of primary election inspectors upon making oath to such facts, according to the provisions of the general election law relative to registration of electors on election day, he shall be entitled to enrollment and permitted to vote following such enrollment.
No person can vote at any primary election whose name is not enrolled.
An enrolled voter who has changed his party affiliation can be re-enrolled on enrollment day only.
THE POLLS of said election will open at 7 o'clock in the forenoon and will remain open until 5 o'clock in the afternoon of said day of election, unless the Board of Primary Election Inspectors shall in their discretion adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock, noon, for one hour.
Dated this 22nd day of August, 1910.

Last Monday John Natop, an Indian, accompanied by his wife and several children, and his aged father, who all reside at Indiantown, a settlement near Saginaw, passed through Vassar, enroute for Murphy's Lake, on a fishing expedition. The father, Henry Natop, claims to be 115 years of age and the oldest Indian in the state. He certainly looks it. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Natop, is a daughter of "Indian Dave," recently deceased, but for many years one of the best known Indian characters ever in these parts.—Pioneer.

Blind Pig Captured at Brown City—
It now appears that for some time past men have been seen one at a time and sometimes several in line striking a trail leading to the house of one Wm. Alexander, on one of the side streets of the city. News came to sheriff Epplett that to all appearances a "blind pig" was being operated in the Alexander home. On Monday Sheriff Epplett with several others went to the Alexander home armed with authority under the search and seizure act and went through the house from cellar to garret. As the sheriff puts it "we found jars and bottles filled with liquors and jars and bottles empty in almost every room in the house." They found in all sixteen glass gallon jars, several of which were partly filled with whisky, ten or twelve quart whisky bottles, several of which were full of liquor and a barrel full of empty beer bottles. The whole thing was confiscated and taken to the sheriff's office and Mr. Alexander was placed under arrest. About five gallons of whiskey were taken. This has opened the eyes of the prosecuting attorney and sheriff and they purpose making searches in every part of the county where there is the least suspicion of a "blind pig" being operated.—Brown City Banner.

Chas. Beers Drowned—
Charles Luther Beers, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Beers, and for many years a resident of Millington, was drowned in the Flint river at Owano Park Sunday about two o'clock, while in bathing. A family party, consisting of Charles and his brother, Clarence, and wife and two sisters and their husbands, Charles Boman and George Frasier, had gone down to what is called Owano park, in Flint, taking their lunch baskets for a picnic and the four young men went in bathing. All had swum out into the river for some distance when Charles suddenly called for help and sank. Clarence started to his assistance but he also became exhausted and went down but made desperate efforts to come to the surface and was only saved by Frasier coming to his assistance and lending him a hand while with the other he hung onto a root projecting from the shore. The body of Charles was recovered in a short time but efforts to revive him were futile. The drowning was witnessed by the two sisters, Mary and Susie, and the sister-in-law, Helen Beers. The deceased was aged 27 years, 2 months and 9 days and was born in Birch Run coming with his parents to Millington about 12 years ago. He was a young man of exemplary life and habits and was held in high estimation by all who knew him. He was one of a family of eleven all of whom with the parents survive him.—Millington Gazette.

Wanted a Little Credit.
A highlander fell into a river and after desperate efforts managed to reach the bank in safety. His wife, who had been a distressed onlooker, exclaimed as soon as her anxiety was relieved, "Ah, Donald, ye should be verra thankful tae Providence for saving your life!"
Donald was somewhat aggrieved at what he deemed an unequal apportionment of the credit.
"Yess, yess!" he replied. "Providence was verry good, but I was verry clever, too, whatever."—London Mail.

Food and Efficiency.
Whenever the diet of soldiers, sailors or prisoners is reduced much below the average that men usually eat, though this is nearly double what Fletcher and Chittenden deem necessary, weakness and illness supervene. Men cannot do good work and eat less than what instinct has taught mankind to eat in the past.—Independent.

"SIS PERKINS."

The play, "Sis Perkins," which appears at the opera house Saturday evening has the prettiest story ever told and the plot is so easily understood. It's not one of those silly things that no one can understand and after it's out you find yourself asking what it was all about. Sis Perkins tells a story of honesty, virtue, love and friendship. There are moments when you want to cry and some do; then again there are funny scenes when you laugh until you ache. It's devoid of horse play and dime novel heroes. It's a good clean comedy, up to date for ladies, gentlemen and children.

through the office window, but the groceryman does not miss anything. Following a usual custom, Mr. Jones left his register open and the thief failed to find any cash.

C. L. Robinson hasn't missed anything from the laundry and every customer hopes that Charles will succeed in checking up all the clean shirts Saturday, so none of us will have to go without our Sunday one.

At The Model, the man made his largest haul and his biggest mistake. Here he found $1.09 in the cash register and selected a loud patterned hat and a few silk handkerchiefs, leaving his old hat on one of the clothing tables. When E. W. Jones saw the hat, he identified it as the one worn by a man who was in his store Monday evening buying some candy. Mr. Jones thought at the time that the stranger looked rather suspicious, and without difficulty, he described him to Marshal Striffler. The officer suspected Cooley and search was made for him. It was learned that he had been at Owendale Monday and had left on the afternoon train for the south. Tuesday afternoon, Cooley was found near the depot at Cass City by the marshal. He had been making his headquarters in a box car and evidently intended taking the afternoon train for Capac, his home. He was wearing the new hat he had appropriated from The Model's stock the night before.

N. Bigelow & Sons are the heaviest losers as their cash register, which is as costly as it is useful, was badly wrecked and will need extensive repairs before it will be in running order again. The register was returned to the factory Wednesday. N. Bigelow estimates that it will cost at least $125 to get the machine in running order again if it can be fixed at all.

DROWNED AT NORTH LAKE.

Mayville Young Man Loses Life While Swimming.

Arthur Foster of Mayville, aged 23, was drowned at North Lake, nine miles from Mayville, Monday afternoon. The body was recovered about five o'clock the same day. The young man has been a school teacher for a few years and of late has been studying civil engineering. He was camping at North Lake and lost his life while out swimming.

BEAN HARVESTERS

It is generally conceded fact that all bean harvesters are similar. This may be true in a general way as far as the purposes of the machines are concerned, and yet, they vary considerable as to the style, worth, workmanship and general make-up.

What one person likes would not please another, and for this reason we handle three different kinds and makes of the Harvesters.

THE NEW CALEDONIA.

This is a first-class machine and is guaranteed to give the best of satisfaction.

It is fitted with extra long levers and is evenly balanced on its axles, enabling the operator to raise and lower the shears with the greatest ease. The lever handles are made of steel, making them non-breakable. The shanks are double, very heavy and not liable to break. They are fitted with best quality steel shears. Tilt and side shifting levers are within easy reach of the operator.

THE UNIVERSAL.

To say that it does the work to perfection and has given "Universal" satisfaction wherever used only attests to its merits and that it was properly named. The frame is composed of two wood cross pieces to which are attached the ratchets, main levers and the standards. The side levers are iron of extra length, inclining towards the operator, making them easy to operate. With these levers the knives can be made to run deep or shallow as may be required. The blades are the best extra heavy tempered steel, beveled and sharpened at cutting edges and highly polished.

THE STERLING.

It has made an enviable reputation for itself. The only harvester that has adjustable knife and knife standard in two parts. With this knife standard you can set the knives any slant or pitch desired. Raising and lowering lever bars are steel, and all adjustments are easy to make.

With these THREE HARVESTERS we feel that we can supply the wants of any farmer in this line of machines. Each one has been fully tried and gives entire satisfaction.

We guarantee the machines in every respect.

Be sure to compare the machines and prices before you buy.

Let us show them to you.
