HEALTH OFFICER ADVISES VACCINATION

WISE TO TAKE EVERY PRECAUTION.

Virulent Epidemics of Smallpox Elsewhere Ample Cause for Preventative Treatment Here.

While there are as yet no smallpox cases in or near Cass City, Health Officer Dr. D. P. Deming recommends that in view of the virulent epidemics of the plague in different sections of the state and the consequent possibility of general spread of the dread contagion, it is wise to take every precaution against such an emergency. Vaccination is universally accepted by the most reputable physicians as the best and most dependable safeguard and the local health officer, wholly in accord with similar recommendations on the part of health boards in several of our neighboring towns, advises that the treatment be generally resorted to in this village and vicinity. It is also recommended that all public buildings be thoroughly fumigated.

Owing to the lack of complete reports it is difficult to ascertain just what is the smallpox situation in the state. So far as reports have been received by the state board of health, there are approximately 250 cases of smallpox in the state in 26 different communities. There have been 150 cases in Saginaw and 38 deaths; 23 cases in Lapeer and six deaths. From Frederick township, Crawford county, there has been 23 cases reported with no deaths. Several cases of a mild type are also reported from Lincoln township, Huron county. The vital statistics records in the secretary of state's department show 19 deaths from smallpox during October.

PASTORS OF CITY MAKE APPEAL

PERSONAL OFFERINGS SOLICITED FOR AID OF FAMILY.

Collection Will Be Held at the Union Thanksgiving Service.

We have enjoyed an unusual prosperous year and have not been visited by any special calamity, sweeping cyclone or ravaging epidemic and health and happiness have been our mutual blessing with the exception of one home which has been sore tried and sickness and death has made its inroads. The calamity has been of such a nature that we have been barred and deprived, in a large measure at least, of manifesting our good will and sympathy and exercising a charitable spirit in a greater degree. Thanksgiving Day is near at hand which affords us the privilege to give vent to the inner feeling of gratitude to God for His singular favors. He taught us that whatever we did unto the least of these we did it unto Him. So let us in a real liberal and tangible manner express our gratefulness by contributing in a financial way to a fund to aid the family of Edward Fitch which fund is to be created at the Chronicle office by your personal offering, and the collection to be taken at the Thanksgiving Day services to be held on said morning. Come to the service and bring your offering. If you cannot be present, leave your offering at the Chronicle office.

PLANT OF THE FARM PRODUCE COMPANY AT CASS CITY.

DEFORD CITIZENS ARE RAISING BONUS

WANT CREAMERY AND CHEESE FACTORY RE-BUILT.

Plant Was Destroyed by Fire Early Sunday Morning. Loss is $4,000.

The creamery and cheese factory of W. M. Neepor & Son at Deford was burned to the ground early Sunday morning. Besides the building and machinery, 800 pounds of butter and 280 heads of cheese were destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Neepor is confident that the flames were not started from the boiler room as the fire there was out Saturday afternoon. Some believe that the fire was caused by an incendiary.

The loss is estimated at $4,000. Insurance was carried on the building only.

Deford citizens are anxious to have the plant rebuilt and are engaged in raising a bonus. $400 was subscribed up to Thursday morning. Mr. Neepor expects to start re-building as soon as the insurance loss is adjusted. The creamery plant will be installed this fall, but it is said the cheese making machinery will not be added until next spring.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

L. E. Wright Has Purchased Central Meat Market.

A business change, contemplated for some time, has been consummated, in which L. E. Wright becomes the owner of the Central Meat Market building and business. Mr. Wright expects to take possession next Monday morning and later in the week will move his grocery stock to the new location. He is now conducting a sale of his dry goods stock, having decided to discontinue carrying that line.

John Schwaderer, the retiring proprietor of the Central Market, has been in business many years and will take a rest for some time. When asked whether he expected to leave town he replied that he might take a pleasure trip soon, but Cass City is his home and the town has always looked good to him.

CASES ADJOURNED.

Witnesses Failed to Appear at Caro Monday.

The trials of Eldridge Delong, Reese; M. Sheridan, Cass City; W. E. Snelling, Kingston; M. Shay, Mayville; Wm. Wood, Vassar; and Lewis Concenia, Gagetown, charged with violations of the local option law, were adjourned from the first of this week until Dec. 7 and 14.

Irving E. Rader, a Detroit detective, who swore out the warrants, and another detective by the name of Reich failed to put in an appearance as witnesses Monday, the day set for the first trials. Rader was subpoenaed to appear at Caro this week, but Reich could not be found. He is in Iowa, but his employers would not tell the town where he was located.

COMMENCE GRAIN BUYING THIS WEEK

THE FARM PRODUCE CO.'S ELEVATOR COMPLETED.

Building Has Capacity of 8,000 to 9,000 Bushels of Grain.

This week will witness the completion of the new grain elevator of The Farm Produce Co. which has been under construction for the past two months. The building itself has been completed for several days, but the finishing touches could not be made until the arrival of the big scale which will weigh the grain as it comes into the hopper. The delay in receiving the scale has retarded operations somewhat. When it arrived Monday, Contractor Hall and his force of men hustled it into position and the company expects to begin buying grain the latter part of this week.

The new elevator building joins the original plant purchased from E. A. McGeorge. It is 24 by 30 feet in size and stands 30 feet from the ground to the eaves. The structure is covered with galvanized iron, making it fireproof. The longest elevator shaft in the building is 57 feet high, running from basement to peak. On the first floor are placed the grain cleaning machine and two scales, one large and one small one, and in the basement is situated the motive power, a 20 h. p. gasoline engine. The normal capacity of the grain elevator is 7000 bushels, but in rushing times it can be increased to 8,000 or 9,000 bushels if necessary. The bean elevator will hold 4,500 bushels. This portion of the company's equipment may be inadequate to handle their business as the capacity of this elevator has already been taxed to its utmost during the short period of the company's career.

The Farm Produce Co., a co-operative concern, was organized last summer and has on its list of stockholders 220 farmers residing within ten or twelve miles of Cass City. The officers of the company are: President, I. K. Reid; vice president, Geo. Hall; secretary, John A. Benkelman; treasurer, N. A. Perry.

CORN SHREDDER VICTIM.

Frank Perry Lost Left Hand Wednesday Afternoon.

Frank Perry, aged 24, whose parental home is in Novesta township, had his left hand so badly injured Wednesday afternoon that it had to be amputated an inch above the wrist. The young man is employed on the farm of Chas. Severance, but on Wednesday was assisting on the Paul Auslander farm where a corn shredder was in operation. Perry was taking the corn away from the machine, and when he reached after a stalk which was entangled in the machine, his hand was caught by the belt and crushed.

NEITHER SIDE ABLE TO SCORE HERE FRIDAY.

Bad Axe Was the Strongest Team the Locals Played This Season.

Despite the fact that Cass City outplayed Bad Axe, two to one, neither side was able to score here Friday.

In the first quarter, Cass City received the kick and carried the ball to Bad Axe's fifteen yard line where they lost it on an attempted place kick. For the remainder of the quarter neither side could gain ground and the quarter ended with the ball in Bad Axe's territory. In the second quarter, Cass City was unable to gain much ground, both sides punted frequently and the

A Great Range of Volcanoes In the Heart of Africa.

It is not very generally known that right in the heart of Africa at the southern end of Lake Albert Edward is a great range of volcanoes. They are eight in number, and though it is true that, unlike Rukenzor, they carry no permanent snow, the highest peak is over 14,000 feet in height.

Not very many thousands of years ago the volcanoes, generally called Mfumbiro, burst up through the middle of this trench and made a dam across it, with the result that some of the water which formerly flowed into Lake Albert Edward and so into the Nile was cut off and a lake was formed behind the dam.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

SATURDAY NIGHT SERMONS BY REV. SAMUEL W. PURVIS, D.D.

THE GRAPES YOU CANNOT REACH. Text, "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick."—Prov. xiii, 12.

Wonder why nature does it. The bunches are larger, fuller, riper, up there, just beyond your reach. At least they look so. And one must believe his own senses. Some say they're sour. Remember the fox in the fable? Munching luscious grapes, he happens to look up, sees larger, finer bunches; leaps, snaps, snarls; can't reach them; finally gives up. "Sour grapes," quoths he and walks off, forgetting the rich purple clusters on the lower vine.

The Mirage of Life. 'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view And clothes yon mountain in its azure hue, says Campbell. If you climb the mountain the hue isn't there; it's on another peak five miles away.

First of all, are you sure you want that upper branch fruit? Are you willing to pay the price? Leadership, for instance? Can you stand the fierce light that beats about a throne or that might beat on the unhappy occupant of a White House or some other Capitol hill?

BEAULEY.

Mrs. J. B. Hartsell of Kingston and Mrs. Shrigley of West Branch visited friends in this place over Sunday.

Mrs. N. Greenleaf is under the care of a physician and a trained nurse at her home here. Albert Reader returned to Ann Arbor this week after a few days spent at home here.

Ladies' Aid will meet this week at Mrs. J. E. Hartsell's. Still the work of preparation for the great Thanksgiving supper goes steadily on.

Herb Dulmage and a friend of his from Pontiac are calling on relatives here this week. A stove has been placed in the basement of the church and prayer meeting will be held there every Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Wm. J. Moore is spending this week here. Miss Hattie Harvy of Glencoe, Ont., arrived Monday evening to spend Thanksgiving with relatives here.

Caulfield & Brown Threshing Co. are doing work here this week. The early snow hushes the farmers with drawing their corn.

Mrs. M. Crawford and Mrs. F. Reader will go next week to Scugog, Ont., for an extended visit.

Mrs. Endersbee made a business trip to Cass City on Monday.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

CUMBER.

Look out for Indian summer. Miss Ethel Tanner of Almont is the guest of her cousin, Miss Eva Master.

Mrs. D. McKichen is very ill at the present time. Bennie, the little son of Robert Chapman, is seriously ill. Later reports are that he is improving.

D. A. Preston is in the poultry buying business now. Art Mardin bought a span of bronchos at the sale at Uby recently.

Mary Kittendorf is working for Mrs. John Cleland. Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Matthews spent a few days with friends at Pinnebog.

Wm. Bookie of Pontiac visited with old friends here the latter part of the week. Jas. McMahon, east of here, has sold his farm to Mrs. Jno. Bollo of Tyre.

A. C. Graham was elected sheriff over J. A. McDonald by a majority of 1050 votes. Albert Schiestal is at present baling hay for John Franzel.

Tough looking weather for the automobile, hey, Jimmie? Elmer Hanksworth intends to raise a new barn soon.

Patrons please bear in mind that on Feb. 10, 1910, the P. O. Department passed an order that all mail must be stamped. Under no circumstances will the carrier be compelled to pick pennies.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation.

NOVESTA CORNERS.

Miss Margaret Decker of Greenleaf visited with the Misses Sarah and Iris Bartlett Saturday and Sunday.

The Young People's Aid which met at the home of Wm. Collins on Nov. 8 was well attended. Those who attended the F. W. B. quarterly meeting at Clifford Friday, Saturday and Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Allen, Miss Elva Collins and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Collins.

Elmer Collins is working for Nelson Hicks on his hay press. Mr. and Mrs. Lue O'Rourke visited at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Collins, on Saturday and Sunday.

Ira Howey of Detroit has been visiting relatives here the past few days. Jim Parish is putting a wall under his barn.

Ben Hicks has gone deer hunting. We wish him good luck. Not Sorry for Blunder.

BOY SCOUTS.

Editor Chronicle: Kindly allow me space to thank Mr. Cassius Wood for advising me in last week's Chronicle, to read up on Boy Scouts. I will admit that I had and also have used the brains that God gave me and did my own thinking on the subject which appears not to be the case with Mr. Wood. When I want to know what is in the Bible, I will read it and not Thomas Paine. So in regard to Boy Scouts I did not wait until Mr. Wood or the Y. M. C. A. made use of the stereotyped article printed in the Capitalist Press to guide me in thinking.

I will at this time only take up number 2 on page 23 of "The Boy Scout Scheme" sent out by the Boy Scouts of America, headquarters 124 E. 28th St., New York City, which reads as follows: "A scout is loyal to his . . . employers. He must stick to them through thick and thin against anyone who is their enemy or who even talks badly of them."

Does Mr. Wood believe that the mothers of the Boy Scouts would consider it manly, character-building, self-reliance, if the employer should turn out to be anyone of the following, viz: bigamist, seducer, bank-wrecker, briber, burglar, horse-thief, immoral conspirator, counterfeiter, green goods man, drunkard, embezzler, extortioner, forger, fraud, gambler, moonshiner, kidnapper, perjurer, quack, shoplifter, slanderer, smuggler, swindler, train-robber, home-wrecker, white slaver, pimp, anarchist and their boys were compelled to "stick to him through thick and thin?" Or if the employer should turn out to be a socialist, would Mr. Wood approve of the scout boys sticking to him through thick and thin?

If this is not enough to open the eyes of Mr. Wood, I will consider it a pleasure if he will make a reply which will enable me to take up number 7 and incidentally refer to those who are to be the employers of the Boy Scouts after, if not before, they come under the Dick Military Law—18 to 45 years of age. Thanking you for space, I am, Yours for absolute truth, F. Lenzner.

CHAPTER IV.

THE 21st of June was a day of memorable triumph to me, a day of memorable events for Radville.

Only the evening previous Will Bigelow and I had indulged in acrimonious argument in the office of the Bigelow House, the subject of contention being the importance of the work to which I am devoting my declining years—to wit, the recording of the history of Radville township, Western county, in Pennsylvania, Will maintaining with that obstinacy for which he is famous that nothing ever had happened, does happen, can or will happen in our community, I insisting gently, but firmly, that it knows no day unmarked by important occurrence (for it would ill become me, as the only literary man in Radville, to yield a point in dispute with the proprietor of the town tavern). Besides, he was wrong, even as I was indisputably right, only he had not the grace to admit it. We ended vulgarly with a bet, Will wagering me the best five cent clear Havana in the Bigelow House sample room that nothing worth mentioning would take place in Radville before sundown of the following day.

I left him, returning to my room at Miss Carpenter's (Will and I are old friends, but I refuse to eat the food he serves his guests), warmed by the prospect of certain triumph if a little appalled by the prospect of winning the stake and sympathizing a little with Will, who, for all his egregious stubbornness, has some excuse for upholding his unreasonable and ridiculous views.

At 5:45 the evening train lurched in, bearing the mysterious stranger.

Tracey Tanner saw him first, having driven down to the station with his father's surrey on the off chance of picking up a quarter or so from some drummer wishing to be conveyed to the Bigelow House. Only outlanders pay money for backs in Radville. Everybody else walks, of course. Naturally Tracey took the mysterious stranger for a drummer. He had three trunks and a heavy packing box, so Tracey's misapprehension was pardonable. Instinctively he drove him to the Bigelow House. Will now and again makes Tracey a present of a bottle of sarsaparilla or lemon pop, with the result that Tracey calls Tannehill, who runs the opposition hotel, a skindint and never takes strangers there except on their express desire. The mysterious stranger merely asked to be driven to the best hotel. This is not like most commercial travelers, who, as a rule, know where they want to go, even in a strange town, having made inquiry in advance from their brothers of the road.

Will Bigelow was dozing behind the desk, lulled by the sound of Hi Nutt's voice in the barroom as he explained to all and sundry just how he had inadvertently permitted Watty the tailor to best him at checkers that morning; otherwise the office was deserted. Tracey awakened Will by stamping heavily across the floor, and Will mechanically pushed down his spectacles and dipped a pen in ink, slewing the register round for the guest's signature. He says he knew at a glance that the mysterious stranger was no traveling man. But this is a moot point, Tracey's memory being minutely accurate and at variance with Will's assertion.

The mysterious stranger was a young man, rather severely clothed in a dark suit which excited no interest in Bigelow's understanding, although I, when I saw him later, had no difficulty in realizing that it had never been made by a tailor whose place of business was more than five doors removed from Fifth avenue. He was tallish, but not really tall, and carried himself with a slight stoop which took away from his real height. Tracey says he had a way of looking at you as if he was smiling inside at some joke he'd heard a long time ago, and I don't know but that's a fairly apt description of his ordinary expression. He had a way, too, of nodding jerkily at you—just once—to show he recognized you or understood what you were driving at; at other times he carried his head a trifle to one side and slightly forward. He was a man you wouldn't forget, somehow, though what there was about him that was remarkable nobody seemed to know.

He nodded that jerky way in answer to Will Bigelow's "G'devenin'," and without saying anything took the pen and started to register. He had to stop, however, for Tracey was pressing him so close upon the right that he couldn't get any play for his elbow, and after a minute or two he asked Tracey politely would he mind stepping round to the left, where he could see just as well. So Tracey did. Then he wrote his name in a good round hand, "Nathaniel Duncan, N. Y."

"I'd like a room with a bath," he told Will, "something simple and chaste, within the means of a man in moderate circumstances."

Will thought he was joking at first, but he didn't smile, so Will explained that there was a bathroom on the third floor at the end of the hall, though there wasn't much call for it. "I could give you a room next to that," he said, "but you wouldn't want it, I guess."

"Why not?" asked the mysterious stranger.

"Because," said Will, "'taint near the sample room."

"That doesn't make any difference. I'm on the wagon."

The only sense Will could get out of that was that the young man was traveling for a buggy house and hadn't brought any samples with him. "I thought," he allowed, "as how you'd be wantin' a place to display your samples, but of course if you're in the wagon business"—

"Oh," said Mr. Duncan, "I thought you meant the 'sample room' over there." He nodded toward the bar. "That's what you call the dispensaries of intoxicating liquors in this part of the country, is it not?"

Will made a noise resembling an affirmative and as soon as he got his breath explained that traveling men generally wanted a sort of a show room next to theirs and that that was called a sample room too.

"But I'm not a traveling man," said the mysterious stranger. "So I shall have as little use for the one as the other."

"Then the room on the third floor'll do for you," said Will. "How long do you calculate on stayin'?"

"That will depend," said Mr. Duncan, "a day or so, perhaps longer, until I can find comfortable and more permanent quarters."

In his amazement Will jabbed the pen so hard into the potato beside the ink well that he never could get the nib out and had to buy a new one. "You don't mean to say you're thinkin' of coming here to live?" he gasped.

"Yes, I do," said the young man apologetically. "I don't think you'll find me in the way. I shall be very quiet and unobtrusive. I'm a student looking for a quiet place in which to pursue my studies."

"Well," said Will, "you've found it, all right. There ain't no quieter place in Pennsylvania than Radville, Mr. Duncan. I hope you'll like it," he said, sarcastic.

"I shall endeavor to," said the young man. "And now may I go to my room, please? I should like to renovate my travel stained person to some extent before dinner."

"You'll have time," said Will. "Dinner's at noon tomorrow. I guess you're thinkin' about supper. That's ready now. Here, Tracey, you carry this gentleman's things up to No. 43."

I have never been able to understand how we failed to hear of it at Miss Carpenter's before 7 o'clock. That was the hour when, having finished supper and my first evening pipe, I started down town to the Citizen's office, intending to stop in at the Bigelow House on the way and confound Will with the list of the day's happenings. Main street was pretty well crowded for that hour, I remembered noticing, and most of the townsfolk were grouped together on the corners, underneath the lamps, discussing something rather excitedly. I paid no particular attention, realizing that between Caesar, Pete Willing, Roland Burnette's suit and the checker game they had enough to talk about. So it wasn't until I walked into the Bigelow House office that I either heard or saw anything of the mysterious stranger. Will Bigelow was in his usual place behind the desk and looked, I thought, rather disgruntled. His reply to my "Howdy, Will?" sounded somewhat snappish. But he got out of his chair and moved round the end of the desk just as the young man came out of the dining room door. Then Will pulled up, and I realized that he was calling my attention to the stranger.

Will grabbed my arm without saying anything and pulled me into the bar.

"Hello!" I said as he went round behind and opened the cigar case. "What's up?"

He took out two boxes of the finest five-centers in town and placed them before me. "Them's up," he said. "You win. Have one."

It staggered me to have him give in that way. I had been looking forward to a long and diverting dispute. "I guess you've heard everything worth hearing about today's history," I said, disappointed, as I selected the least unpleasant looking of the cigars.

"No, I haven't," he said. "I didn't have to hear anything. What earned you that smoke took place right here in this office. Here," he said, striking a match for me.

I had been trying to put the cigar away so that I might dispose of it without hurting Will's feelings, but he had me, so I recklessly poked the thing into the automatic clipper and then into my mouth. "What do you mean?" I asked, puffing.

"Come 'long outside," said Will, and we went out on the porch just in time to see Mr. Duncan going wearily upstairs to his room. "I mean," said Will, "him." And then he told me all about it.

"But things like that don't happen every day," he wound up defensively. "I'll go you another cigar on tomorrow."

"No, you won't," I said indignantly and furtively dropped the infamous thing over the railing.

A Change.

"We must economize," he said peremptorily.

"I'm so glad," his wife exclaimed. "You take the announcement more good naturedly than usual."

"Yes; it's pleasant to hear you use the plural pronoun. Ordinarily when there is any economizing needed you expect me to do it all."

Disappointing.

Bill—Did you say his first song was disappointing? Jill—Yes. He sang "I Am Going Far Away, Far Away to Leave You Now," and he didn't go.—Yonkers Statesman.

KATRINA'S FORTUNE

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Katrina was a young girl, and she was one of the 50 employees in a necktie factory. She was the only girl in the place whose wages did have to go toward the support of the family. She was, therefore not only better dressed than the others, but she had a superior education. There were some girls who called her Miss Highly and said she was setting her cap for big game, but would get left, and there were others that said if she would only have her fortune told she would be sure of a happy future. All the other girls in the factory had their fortunes told—some of them four times over—and all except one was to marry a hero. The one exception was a girl named Ida. She had doubted the old woman's ability to read the future, and in return had been told that she would marry a less man who would turn on the gas some night and both would be found dead in the morning. It was that one particular thing that vexed the rest of the girls—Katrina would not go to the old woman who told fortunes for 15 cents. If a girl had only ten she could pay the balance on the installment plan, but she must pay or expect bad luck. "No one can tell your future," protested Katrina. "It is all silly nonsense. What is to come will come." "But maybe you are going to marry a hero."

"It is So Written in Your Palm."

fortune telling. If you keep her something bad must happen. "But maybe I do not believe in it myself," he replied. "Then it is so bad that you will be ruined. Any night you may expect a fire." "Is Katrina the girl?" "She is the one." "I do not want any trouble with you, and so I shall speak to her." The next day he called the girl to him after she had eaten her lunch and said to her: "You are never late and never sick, and you do your work to please me, but you do not believe in fortune telling. Because of that the old woman is going to see that my shop burns up. Do you wish me ill?" "Oh, no, no, but how can I believe in such nonsense?" "You must go to her or I shall have to let you go. I cannot have my business destroyed." "Then I will go, but I will believe in nothing she says." That afternoon it became known all through the shop that Katrina was to have her fortune told, and at night a score of girls accompanied her to the old woman's. The cards were shuffled, the lines of her palm examined, and then she was told: "In a few days you will meet a young man. He will fall in love with you. He will prove to be a hero, and in time you will marry him. It is so written in your palm, and the stars will have it so. It is better to marry a hero than a rich man. A hero can not lose his money and bring his wife to poverty. That is all. Destiny has spoken." Katrina went home believing not a word of it, though she took care not to say so to the girls. Her mother, too, said it was all nonsense, and her father gave her a cuff on the ear. "Katrina," the boss said to her, the next day, "I thank you, and increase your wages 50 cents a week. You have saved me from ruin, and as long as there is work you shall have some to do. Even after you marry your hero you can work here." On the way home one night a few days later, Katrina was accosted by a young man who was searching the streets for a lost dog. He did not remove his cap, and he said "youse" for you, and she knew that he could not be the hero the old woman meant. She told her mother, and her mother said he was probably some "tough guy and hadn't lost no dog." As far as she knew, heroes didn't go around looking for lost dogs. They went around with scaling ladders on their backs to rescue women and children from fourth-story windows. The next evening, at the same spot, the young man accosted Katrina again. He wanted to know if "youse" had seen a white bulldog wandering around, and when the girl refused to answer him he walked by her side and said: "It's a case of love at first sight wid me. It's the first time I ever knowed what palpitation of the heart was." "You go on or I'll call a cop," threatened the girl. "If one comes I'll bust his head for him. It took four of 'em the last time to make me lay down." Katrina stopped to look at him. If he had fought four policemen then he was a hero—the hero the old woman had told her about. Even her own father, in fighting one cop, had got the worst of it. He looked tough, but didn't all heroes look that way? She had never seen one and couldn't say. "And I sassed one of the Toombs judges," said the young man as they continued on their way. "Think of the daring of it! Her father had simply cried when arraigned. "And I had a pull that kept me out o' Sing Sing." Katrina told her mother about it, and her mother looked doubtful and replied: "Maybe the old woman was right. If you have to marry a hero and go away I don't know what I shall do." On the third evening the young man introduced himself as Billy. On the fourth he invited Katrina to go to a moving picture show. On the fifth she went. On the sixth it was to a dance. In walking home from the dance at 2 o'clock in the morning Billy said: "I've got 50 plunks laid away to furnish a flat." "When?" asked Katrina. "When youse will marry me. We've been courtin' a whole week now. Let's cut it out." "But I had my fortune told, and the old woman said I was to marry a hero." "And it's a hero that's askin' for your hand." "Mother says you may be a guy." "Didn't I fight four cops at once?" "I didn't see it." "Didn't I sass the judge?" "I didn't hear you." "Now, youse see here," said Billy, as he halted. "I'm a hero and I'm goin' to prove it right now. There stands a cop on the corner. If I do him up I'm a hero, ain't I?" "For sure."

And he advanced in a careless way, shot out a fist at the officer's chin, and as the guardian went down his club was twisted from his hand, his helmet captured, and Billy and the girl seized hands and ran. Two days later the boss of the shop said to Katrina: "All married and settled, eh? You are a good girl. You saved my shop. Keep here at work as long as your hero-husband will let you. Your wages are now $1 a week more."

ALL WANT THE CHIMES RUNG

New York Newspaper Writer Says the General Public Always Likes to Hear the Bells.

"Every event of local importance gives the general public a chance to let the chime ringers know what they think he and his bells are here for, anyhow," said one expert ringer to a New York newspaper writer. "He is bombarded with invitations, requests, commands, entreaties to promote the general gaudy by playing his chimes. "I have no doubt that every chime ringer in New York was petitioned by a goodly number of his fellow-citizens to turn himself loose the day Colonel Roosevelt came home. I know I was, and a large percentage of the petitioners got hopping mad because I didn't comply. I was unpatriotic, I was partisan, I was narrow-minded. "Their objurgations were exceedingly bitter because I did play the day the colonel went away. I can't remember how I happened to play then, but I did. "Every Decoration day, every Fourth of July, every celebration that calls for any kind of a parade or speech-making or fireworks is supposed by the populace to be a fitting occasion for the chime ringer to get on the job. If the occasion is big enough he responds. The chimes of Trinity are particularly active in celebrating big events and anniversaries, but the most accommodating bell ringer has to draw the line somewhere."

For Over Sixty Years.

This country has been blessed with great prosperity, varied at intervals by panics, after which each time business was better. During all this time we have had on the market the finest stock food in the world; Harvell's Condition Powders. The best horse, cattle, sheep, hog and poultry condition powder ever offered for sale. Every particle has a medicinal value. Sold everywhere at 25c per package. J. F. Shear, Beech, Mich., writes: "I have used your Harvell's Condition Powders for over ten years and have always found them to be just what my horses and cattle needed when out of sorts. They always bring back their appetite. My stock show the results. Since feeding Harvell's Condition Powders to our poultry they have not been troubled with rouse or cholera and we get lots of eggs. Continued from first page. quarter ended with the ball near the center of the field. Cass City kicked off to Bad Axe in the third quarter, who punted after several rushes. The ball exchanged hands frequently during the remainder of the game and Cass City was within fifteen yards of a touchdown when time was called. Despite the fact that they were outweighed, Cass City played a great game. Every member of the team played well. Had Cass City played this kind of a game a week before, they could easily have defeated Marlette as Bad Axe was by far the strongest team they have met so far. The line up of Cass City was as follows: Striffler, L. End; Brown, L. Tackle; Klump, L. Guard; Schwaderer, Center; McPhail, R. Guard; Orr, R. Tackle; Bien, R. End; Benkelman, Quarter Back; Cleland, L. H. B.; Keating, R. H. B.; Miller, F. B.

DEFORD.

Our cheese factory burned to the ground at an early hour Sunday morning. The loss will be felt keenly by the community as every one was well satisfied with returns and Mr. Neeper has gained many warm friends for the short time he has been among us. Loss on building and contents is estimated at about $4,000. There were about 800 pounds of butter and 280 cheese ready for shipment. Mrs. W. Randall is still in poor health. Mrs. Howard Malcolm is able to be around again after another siege of sickness. Orville Wilson labors for Marvin Eastman. Ben Gage expects to be in his new shop soon and will be pleased to meet his old customers. James Nesbitt and wife are visiting the former's parents. Winnifred Spencer spent Thursday night and Friday with Grace Palmerton in Cass City. A meeting of the farmers was called Monday evening to see what could be done about rebuilding the cheese factory.

Several of the ladies around Wickware gathered at the home of Mrs. Wm. Canada of Cumber one day last week to spend the day. The occasion was a surprise to Mrs. Canada and the ladies enjoyed the day very much. A table laden with a bountiful spread satisfied the "inner man." The afternoon was spent in quilting.

Too Useful to Throw Away.

Almost everything has its uses, even frayed silk petticoats and stockings that are past wearing. The latter make good floor polishers. For this purpose three or four of them should be rolled into a compact bolster and sewed securely. Old silk handkerchiefs and squares from discarded silk petticoats make the best kind of dusters. Tray cloths and doilies which have become too shabby for the table should be kept for polishing glass. The unworn portions of old tablecloths, cut into squares and hemmed, can be used for wrapping up bread and cake. For wash cloths nothing is better than the good parts of worn-out knitted underwear cut in symmetrical pieces and hemmed. And in sickness pieces of old sheets and of flannel garments are invaluable.

HINTS TO THE WISE

Colored Nottingham Curtains Are New This Season.

THE KNACK OF LOOKING NEAT

Eiffel Tower Turbans Hobnob With Demure Shepherdess Shapes In Smart Millinery—Brimms Faced With Brilliant Coloring a Becoming Conceit.

Dear Elsa—Woe is me! All my lace window curtains have taken unto themselves in the last laundering the most prodigious rents and tears—those unmendable ones that no amount of skill can save from the passerby's observation. In the face of this affliction I recently mustered courage to see the new window draperies which a certain big shop here in New York makes a specialty of carrying. Now you are going to get the benefit of that morning's inspection. And that you will profit thereby is a foregone conclusion, as you have a decided penchant for a yearly change of window draperies.

The new thing in inexpensive lace curtains I found to be colored Nottingham. This drapery comes in one or two tones, such as golden tan on black and brown on pale tan. When one desires the effect of warmth without weight or to shut out light these colored Nottinghams are excellent. I immediately thought of your brown and tan dining room and how well such a drapery would look at the casement windows.

What say you, my dear? Bobbinet curtains will be used a great deal for dining rooms, libraries, bedrooms and parlors, different styles being chosen to suit the rooms. For bedrooms I saw very nice hangings of bobbinet trimmed with renaissance as low as $1.50 a pair. But cluny lace is never than the renaissance. A group of four different designs struck me as being wonderfully good value for the money. The first was of net hemmed and edged with narrow cluny lace and trimmed within the hem with a broad band of cluny insertion. The second was of Irish point adorned like the cluny design, and a pair of Marie Antoinettes, really very artistic, displayed a lovely pattern in applique.

The last was a renaissance lace curtain with a beautiful inset within the hem of the lace on net of an excellent quality. A narrow lace edging on the hem gave a very dainty finish. All these curtains were only $5 a pair.

Colored curtains such as the barred madras will not be much used. This fabric is always more in demand as a summer window drapery, and people prefer buying it by the yard rather than by the curtain.

But stenciled effects are awfully good curtain form. And the dearest pair for a cretonne or chintz furnished room were of the finest ivory scrim, reaching only to the sash. Down one side and across the bottom was a foot band of inset fillet net, on which was applied a cut-out design of pink roses in cretonne. Joining the fillet border to the curtain proper was an old world looking cream colored gimp, and outlining the entire curtain was an edging of the same pattern. The curtains were cheap at $12.75 a pair, but one could make them for a heap less if one didn't mind the trouble, which wouldn't be so very great, after all.

The Knack of Looking Neat.

"A woman can at least look neat and tidy." This remark is about as easy to carry out oftentimes as that of the charity visitor who insisted that her slum tenants could at least use plenty of soap and water. How can the poor creatures when perhaps there is running water on only one floor of a seven story flathouse and about a hundred persons to draw from the same supply? The model tenements? Yes, dear, but I am not speaking about them, for they are in too great a minority to serve as an example. Well, to get back to neatness, how can the average woman without a maid or a hookworm of a husband or relative make the back of her neck look tidy? In other words, how can she always be sure that the stock is making connections?

Some women, however, have the knack of always looking tidy about the neck. You have, Elsa, but I—well, I took a few lessons from Dorothy recently and have been enlightened that one of the most convenient ways of managing the detachable collar of lace or muslin is to sew a button at the back of the neckband which matches the button that fastens the collar and to make buttonholes at each lower corner of the collar. The collar by this means is held firmly without pinning. There, should be a stay at the collar back and those supporters that by tiny bent prongs are always ready and require no sewing. The prongs, being only the size of a fine pin, do not tear the material, and the collar irons much better if it has no bone casing or a stitched in device.

In connection with neck fixings, here is a good idea for a stunning collar and cuff set. They give the smart touch to a costume that a well groomed woman always has. I've sketched them for you, and they are of black silk set with detachable rufflings of finely plaited white lawn. Such a set is just the thing to freshen up a passe frock, and I hope the picture will give you some idea of the picturesque possibilities of these effective accessories.

The New Millinery.

Of course you want to know about the new hats I've bought—two perfect stunners, one for best and the other for knockabout. The creation that almost depleted my pocketbook is a shepherdess shaped affair with a broad, slightly drooping brim and a huge though moderate crown. The puffed crown is of black velvet—in fact, the whole outside of the shape is of black velvet—and the trimming consists of two full fued ostrich feathers, in shaded tones of burgundy arranged in tower style effect directly in front. Under the slanting brim is an underfacing of changeable taffeta silk in tones of wine red and champagne, and this rosy silk casts a very becoming glow on the face of yours truly. These facings are the smart note of the season's millinery and are put in either corded, plain or shirred.

My all round hat is a turban almost as high as the celebrated Eiffel tower or the Singer building here in New York, which is more than forty stories high, so you can be sure that the turban is a skyscraper. It is covered with snuff brown serge. Piece left over from your suit? No, madam; serge, cashmere and wool materials this winter go into the fashioning of hats. The deep brim faced with black velvet turns sharply back on the high crown. Straps of braid in tones of deep cream, ciel blue and black pass across the top of the crown and are caught down over the velvet brim with an ornament of braid.

Now, farewell, a long farewell, to you and the fashions. Devotedly yours, MABEL.

Sorry He Didn't.

"I knew that fellow when he didn't have a dollar," exclaimed the envious man.
"That may explain why he is not more genial toward you now. You evidently didn't lend him one."—Washington Star.

The "International Limited."

One of the most artistic folders issued by the Grand Trunk is a brochure just out giving information regarding the "International Limited," which is heralded as Canada's fastest train, as well as its finest. The booklet is prepared in most attractive style, well printed and illustrated, while the aesthetic relation of type and illustrations is maintained to a notable degree. The story of the "International Limited" is a familiar one to a Canadian, as well as American travellers, but, as shown in the latest publications of the company, it is still not merely interesting, but attractive. A full description of this train between Montreal and Chicago is given, together with all the information regarding time and accommodation, that any passenger could require, the whole tastefully put together and artistically illustrated. A copy may be had free on application to W. J. Dempsey, Agt.

Wash the Blood

Aching and enfeebled muscles should remind you of slowness of these repair. Eruptions of the skin and catarrh of the mucous membranes show diminished nerve power in the tissues.

In health or disease there is need of an internal bath. This is best obtained by drinking a glass of pure spring water with one or two teaspoonsful of San Jak 30 to 60 minutes before breakfast, washing the blood. This passes quickly from the stomach and stimulates the bowels to increased peristalsis, overcoming constipation and its attendant ills. It is quickly absorbed and entering the blood stream bathes the cells of the liver and heart, then passes to the brain and washes out the cobwebs and awakens to new life every cell in the body.

MAN

Does not wear out like a piece of machinery by constant disintegration for he is self renewing. When he loses his ability in self renewal or failed in the process of making young blood, the nerve tissue is not sufficiently nourished and his strength and health fails.

San-Jak

is the only medicine which will enable you to keep a perfect balance between the elimination and renewal of the body. Decay of the body at any time of life is unnatural. Permanent waste of the system can be avoided by the use of

San-Jak

It is the only vegetable preparation in the world that sets free formaldehyde during the elimination by way of the kidneys.

Preventing and Curing Bright's Disease

By neutralizing poison in the tissue, disinfecting the urinal tract, strengthens the liquids of the bladder and prevents decomposition of the urine. It is therefore the most scientific formula for the treatment of male or female.

Rheumatism

the source of trouble to humanity is due to a too high or low specific gravity which may be regulated to normal by taking

San-Jak

No other medicine in the world raises the specific gravity if too low and prevents the dissolution of salts from the tissue and prevents swelling of the limbs and other parts of the body. You may have the ability to manufacture the normal quantity of uric acid and alkaloids, but if the specific gravity is too high, due to weakened conditions of the kidneys, the normal quantity is not eliminated. If normal quantity is not eliminated and carried back by the circulation of the blood, absorbed into the tissue causing soreness and lameness or rheumatism symptoms.

Does Dairying Pay?

We give you the problem and let you solve it and see for yourself. We have a patron who has a herd of 8 grade cows and from the 8 cows in twelve months he has received in cash $494.64, or $61.83 per cow. Now we allow $40 and the calf, skim milk and fertilizer for care and feed of each cow which is $320, plus calf, skim milk and fertilizer. $494.64 less $320 leaves $174.64 PROFIT. Now this herd is just a common herd so we will value them at $50 per head, or $500 for the herd. $174.64 profit on a $500 investment means 34.92 per cent. on your investment.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving and Some Cass City People Know How to Save It.

Many Cass City people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

M. C. Graves, Huron Ave., Vassar, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family for many years and they have always brought satisfactory results. In my case they proved to be the remedy that was needed when my kidneys were disordered, as the result of an attack of the grippe. Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of endorsement."

In the matter of the Estate of Jacob Striffler, Deceased. Samuel Striffler, son of said deceased, having filed in said court a petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to your petitioner, Samuel Striffler, or some other suitable person. It is ordered, That the twenty-eighth day of November A. D. 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition; It is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Cass City Chronicle, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

Too Much of a Good Thing. A bag of peppermints sat beside Uncle Ethan. "I always try," he said, "to be as broadminded as I possibly can be. But I can't help inclining to believe," he went on, "that no one ought to chew gum and eat candy at the same time."

DEFORD, R. 3.

Listen for the wedding bells. As we hear there are more of Ellington's young people who are going to try breaking into life's double harness.

Lucy May Gould, eldest daughter of D. Gould, our country merchant, and Roy R. Jackson of Elmwood drove to Caro last Wednesday accompanied by C. E. Rutledge and Miss Cecil Turner where they were quietly made one by Rev. Howard A. Field, but which is to be the one is yet to be learned. All join in wishing them every blessing through life and that life may be both long and happy is the desire of all. When the boys and girls of Ellington gathered for their treat Mr. Gould told Mr. Jackson to let them earn it first, which they did by treating the bride and groom to a good old fashioned horning-bee. Afterwards Mr. Jackson treated all to cigars and Mrs. Jackson treated the girls to oranges and bananas. The guests departed after an enjoyable time.

Wm. Schrader departed for Flint last Friday to join his family. They will reside there indefinitely.

I have heard that cattle around Cass City are scarce. If such is the case, they would do well to call on Miss Ida E. Clay as she has a very nice male calf for sale. She lives 3/4 mile south of Ellington cemetery.

Too late for last week. Miss Bell Banghart of East Dayton is assisting Mrs. Wm. Schrader in her packing.

Norman Hutchinson has rented his farm to his son, Stanley, and bought the little home of Mrs. Henrietta Smith where he expects to move.

Frank Elliott of Kalamazoo arrived here last Tuesday on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Elliott, and his brother, Sherman Elliott. He will also visit other relatives.

Jesse King has taken the Wm. Schrader place and will move on the farm this week. He goes to Caro this week to get his household goods. His sister, Miss Rilla King, will be his housekeeper.

Mrs. Henrietta Smith, an old resident of Ellington, and her daughter, Mrs. Ila Bailey, and children moved to Caro last Friday. They will be greatly missed by their friends and neighbors. Charles and Jesse King moved them.

Miss Esther Osterley is sick.

Mr. Otto Paul, Wilwaukee, Wis., says Foley's Honey and Tar is still more than the best. He writes us, "All those that bought it think it is the best for coughs and colds they ever had and I think it is still more than the best. Our baby had a bad cold and it cured him in one day. Please accept thanks." L. I. Wood

CANBORO.

Miss Sybilla Faist of East Grant spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of C. L. McDonald.

Mrs. A. Libkumann and daughter, Mrs. J. Leslie, and grandsons returned to Detroit Saturday after spending the week with relatives in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feekings from near Grassmere spent part of Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Mellendorf.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Lown attended the dedication of the Evangelical church at Owendale Sunday.

Mrs. Bert Libkumann is visiting in Detroit.

The neighbors and friends of J. E. Wettlaufer gathered at his home Friday evening for a farewell party. Quite a number were present and games were played after which the guests partook of a bountiful luncheon. They retired to their homes at a late hour, feeling the evening had been well spent. J. E. Wettlaufer has been a resident of Canboro for 23 years during which time he has won many friends. He will be greatly missed by all. We wish him success in his future home.

A FREE Prescription ADVICE

From a physician of 52 years' experience in colleges, sanatoriums and general practice. Weak, nervous men, regain your strength and vigor. So great was my sympathy for weak men in the early years of my experience that I have made it a special study, and formulated two prescriptions, one for men under 50 and one for men over 50 years of age. In my declining years, I want every man to have the benefit of my long years of careful study, research and long experience. I am now 72 years old and as strong and vigorous as at 40 and the rest of my life will be spent in aiding suffering manhood. I realize that my time is short, but will do all in my power to aid men and women who are helpless and seeking relief. I know there has been a great many disappointed when they thought relief in their grasp, but let me send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of study since I began lecturing to student classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are now pressed to recommend me. YOU NEED AID. Let me help you to regain your former standing among men. In short, let me assist you to be yourself once more.

If you are suffering from falling memory, lame back or weakened manhood or nervous difficulties, LET ME SEND YOU A RECIPE in a plain sealed envelope that you can use in your own home. I am confident that you will thank me every day in your life after you have tested it for yourself. Take advantage of this offer NOW before it is too late. Address me personally. DR. ANDREW B. SPINNEY, W. Adams Ave., Detroit, Mich.

The Scrap Book

Whistler and His Model. James MacNeill Whistler once owed a female model $5 for sittings. She was a Philistine of the Philistines, who knew nothing of her patron's fame and was in no way impressed with his work. One day she told another artist that she had been sitting to a little Frenchman called Whistler, who jumped about his studio and was always complaining that people were swindling him and that he was making very little money. The artist suggested that if she could get any piece of painting out of Whistler's studio he would give her $50 for it. Although skeptical, the model decided to tell her "little Frenchman" of this too generous offer and selected one of the biggest and finest works in the studio. "What did he say?" asked the artist who had made the offer when the model appeared in a state of great disorder and excitement and looking almost as if she had come second best out of a scrimmage. "He said: 'Fifty dollars! Good heavens! Fifty dollars!' And he got so mad—well, that's how I came in here like this."

Age Remembers. Youth longs, and manhood strives, but age remembers. Sits by the raked up ashes of the past, Spreads its thin hands above the whitening embers That warm its creeping lifeblood till the last. Dear to its heart is every loving token That comes unbidden ere its pulse grows cold. Ere the last lingering ties of life are broken, Its labors ended and its story told. —O. W. Holmes.

Didn't Want Ducks. A woman who had always lived in the city moved into the country, and as a sort of recreation she decided to start a poultry farm, which she did with a barnyard hen and thirteen eggs from the village store.

Not having even the most elementary knowledge of poultry, she inquired of a neighbor how long eggs generally took to hatch. She received the reply: "Three weeks for chickens and four for ducks."

The neighbor met her some time afterward, and on being asked how the poultry farming was going on, she replied, with a lowered countenance: "Oh, I've finished with it. At the end of three weeks there were no chickens, so I took the hen off, as I didn't want ducks."

Hobson's Choice. A well known southern judge receives a story about a white man who during reconstruction times was arraigned before a colored justice of the peace for killing a man and stealing his mule. It was in Arkansas, near the Texas border, and there was some rivalry between the states, but the colored justice tried always to preserve an impartial frame of mind.

"We've got two kinds of law in dis yer cot," he said. "Texas law an' Arkansas law. Which will you hab?" The prisoner thought a minute and then guessed that he would take the Arkansas law.

"Den I discharge you fo' stealin' de mule an' hang you fo' killin' de man."

"Hold on a minute, judge," said the prisoner. "Better make that Texas law."

"All right. Under de law of Texas I fin' you fo' killin' de man an' hang you fo' stealin' de mule."

Shut Him Off. One day Mark Twain was being shaved by a very talkative barber and was forced to listen to many of the barber's anecdotes. Stopping to strop his razor and prepared with brush in hand to commence again, the barber said, "Shall I go over it again?"

"No, thanks," drawled Mark. "It's hardly necessary. I think I can remember every word."

His First Train Ride. During the early hours of Sunday morning a long and lank native boarded Frisco train No. 104 for his first ride on the cars, his destination being Kansas City. He was decidedly nervous, but was determined not to show it and attempted to cultivate an air of familiarity with his surroundings.

He sought a position in the middle of the chair car, placed his grip on the floor and, standing stiffly, braced himself against the side of one of the plush chairs.

"Won't you have a seat, sir?" asked the porter.

"Nope," the young man answered. "Dad cuts m' hair, an' I shave m' self." —Saline County (Mo.) Citizen.

"Sot" in His Ways. Mayor Magee of Pittsburg was talking about an obstinate man.

"He is 'sot' in his ways," said the mayor. "He is as bad as the old planter of history."

"An old planter in the palmy days before the war was blown up in a steamboat accident on the Mississippi. They fished him out unconscious. At the end of an hour's manipulation he came to."

"Where am I?" he asked, lifting his head feebly.

"Safe on shore," the doctor told him. "Which side of the river?" he inquired.

"The Iowa side," the doctor replied. "The planter frowned. He looked at the turbid yellow stream. Then he said: "Just my luck to land in a prohibition state. Chuck me in again." —Philadelphia Record.

Does Not Stimulate Ayer's Sarsaparilla does not stimulate. It does not make you feel better one day, then as bad as ever the next. It is not a strong drink. No reaction after you stop using it. There is not a drop of alcohol in it. You have the steady, even gain that comes from a strong tonic and alterative. We wish you would ask your doctor about this. He knows. Trust him. Do as he says. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass. What are Ayer's Pills? Liver Pills. How long have they been sold? Nearly sixty years. Do doctors recommend them? Ask your own doctor and find out.

Advice to Fraternal Members.

The present epidemic has awakened members of insurance orders to the fact that assessments must be paid up to date, otherwise no benefits are received. Dr. Emma E. Bower, Great Record Keeper of the L. O. T. M. M., reports certificates and assessments received lately from many members who stand suspended. Other societies give similar statements. Keep up your assessments, is good advice.

Saves an Iowa Man's Life.

The very grave seemed to yawn before Robert Madsen of West Burlington, Iowa, when after 7 weeks in the hospital, four of the best physicians gave him up. Then was shown the marvelous curative power of Electric Bitters. For, after eight months of frightful suffering from liver trouble and yellow jaundice, getting no help from other remedies or doctors, five bottles of this matchless medicine completely cured him. It's positively guaranteed for stomach, liver or kidney troubles and never disappoints. Only 50c at L. I. Wood & Co.'s.
