OVER 2,264 BU. BEANS IN A DAY

SOLD BY FARMERS TO CASS CITY GRAIN CO.

Farmers Have to Wait Until Nine O'clock in Evening to Unload.

Photographer Bingham took a run down to the bean elevator of the Cass City Grain Co. Monday afternoon, and though it was raining, he secured a creditable picture of the crowd that was waiting to empty the big loads of beans into the hopper. The Chronicle expected to print a half-tone picture of the group this week, but because the paper goes to press early on account of Thanksgiving, the engravers did not have the necessary time to complete the cut for this issue and the picture must wait until later. There were 21 farmers' teams and wagons in line. Had the photographer waited until Tuesday, the crowd would have been still larger, 30 or more loads in waiting at that time.

On Monday the number of bushels of beans purchased by the Grain Co. exceeded 1,436 and on Tuesday the amount received at the elevator was 2,264 bushels. This amount does not include several loads which were stored in the shed Tuesday. The bean elevator is running night and day to take care of the product. It was nine o'clock Tuesday evening before the last farmer unloaded his wagon, and there were 55 different farmers at the elevator with beans during the day.

The capacity of the bean elevator of The Farm Produce Co. has been severely taxed this week. In fact it has been necessary to turn some away because the company was unable to handle all that came. From 800 to 1,000 bushels have been purchased a day and night work has been necessary on the part of the force to care for the product. During the month of November the bean sales of the Farm Produce Co. to the city markets will amount to 18 cars, or 12,375 bushels.

The past few weeks has found several farmers bringing their products to town who are far removed from the regular trading zone of Cass City. This fact together with the fancy prices paid have naturally increased the business of our local merchants. One business man remarked to the Chronicle that the past week had been the best since he had been in business. Another business man said that Saturday came within five of having the greatest number of customers in his store in one day, holiday crowds included, in his business career.

Dear Friend Herb:—I notice by the label on wrapper that it is about time to pay up, and save further costs, so I am enclosing you check for $1.00, and trust that I won't miss a copy, as it is necessary to have it on time in order to be happy. It arrives, usually, on Monday afternoon and is read by all Tuscola county folks before supper time.

We are having the finest kind of weather, and the Reservation Indians, predict an open winter with no snow and I hope they are right. I have to drive seven miles to my farmstead and am going out tonight. I can bake a batch of "soakers" now that would kill an Indian at 40 rods. With best wishes, I am, Yours very truly, M. C. SOCIAL EVENING.

Mesdames Wixon, Auten and Wilsey Entertain Nearly 200 People.

One of the most pleasant social functions of the season occurred Friday evening when Mesdames Wixon, Auten and Wilsey entertained towards 200 ladies and gentlemen in Doerr's hall. They had procured the rare talent of Helen Wyrick Shaffer, reader and entertainer, of Detroit for the occasion. She presented a dramatic recital of the play, "The Lion and the Mouse," in four scenes. Her impersonations were excellent and in the opinion of many her efforts in that line were the best ever enjoyed in Cass City. Being encored several times at the close of the play, she gave comic selections which produced much laughter. Between acts Miss Ethel McGregory gave one of her beautiful piano solos and Mesdames Wickware, Schenck and Pinney delighted the guests with a pretty vocal trio, "Slumber Song." The program was followed by an informal reception during which light refreshments were served. Much credit is due the ladies for their excellent ideas of entertaining and their generosity in providing such an enjoyable evening for so large a number of persons.

STATE SENATOR FOX FALLS TO HIS DEATH

VETERAN TUSCOLA COUNTY LEGISLATOR BREAKS HIS NECK.

Re-elected This Month For Fifth Time to Represent the 21st District.

State Senator-elect Edwin G. Fox of Mayville, age over 60, fell on the steps of his home Monday and broke his neck, meeting instant death. He is thought to have been troubled with heart failure also. The widow and one son survive.

Senator Fox was born in the province of Ontario. He was brought to Michigan by his parents 55 years ago. For a few years the family lived in Lapeer county, then for a short time at Flint, and then moved to Tuscola, where the senator lived ever since, except for a few years when he was clerk in a store in a store in Iowa.

In 1875 he engaged in the mercantile business at Mayville and the business still continues under the name of Edwin G. Fox & Son. He was for six years town clerk, for four years register of deeds of Tuscola county, for two years village president, and for 18 years a member of the Mayville school board. In 1887 he was elected to the state senate to represent the district comprising Tuscola and Lapeer counties, re-elected in 1889 and elected a third time in 1893. In 1908 he was elected for a fourth term and at the late election was chosen for the fifth time. In the last session he devoted a large part of his time to revising all of the highway laws which had been enacted since Michigan became a state, and having them re-enacted in one general statute.

COMPLETION OF FINE COUNTRY HOME

ON THE FARM OF J. J. SPENCE, WEST OF TOWN.

Residence Is of Sand Brick and Woodwork and Floors Are in Antique Oak.

The farm is no longer the isolated lonely place that it used to be or that some people seem to think it is yet. Farming under present conditions is a business and in most cases is coming to be run in a business way. The first step in the modernizing of the farm came with the introduction of rural free delivery, followed by the telephone. Today the farmer is as up-to-date as his village brother, and in several instances the latter is second in the race for the good things in life.

Today the modern farm home is fully as well supplied with conveniences as the house in the town or city. Several fine country residences have been erected in the vicinity of Cass City in late years. Among these is the home of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Spence, 2 miles west and ½ mile north, recently completed.

The residence is of the two-story cottage shape and is admirably located on the Spence farm of 160 acres. The main portion of the building is 28 by 32 feet in size with side walls standing 18 feet high. On the south and east a massive veranda is situated, 9 by 24 feet in size, and an addition to the house on the southwest is 9 by 13 feet. The walls of the residence are built of sand brick.

The main entrance is from the south into a hall which leads to the reception room, dining room and a coat closet, and contains an open stairway. Besides the rooms mentioned, there are a parlor, kitchen, pantry and bath room on the first floor.

Reception room and parlor are described on fifth page.

SAGINAW MAN SUES VASSAR

SEEKS $5,000 BECAUSE HE WAS FORCED OUT OF VILLAGE.

Vassar Council Will Stand Behind Its Marshal and Intends to Carry Suit Up If Necessary.

Fred J. Martin Thursday commenced suit against the village of Vassar for $5,000 damages for alleged illegal imprisonment. Mr. Martin claims that on Monday, November 14, after entering the town he was placed under arrest by Henry Perry, who was acting in the capacity of city marshal, and when a train pulled out from Vassar he was forced to leave the city.

The suit is brought by the plaintive on the opinion of Dr. Shumway, who gave out a statement to the Saginaw health board that no community in the state could legally declare a quarantine against the citizens of Saginaw or any of its products unless it was placed by the state board of health. Papers were served upon Marshal Henry E. Perry in connection with the $5,000 damage suit brought by Martin.

Major W. J. Spears of Vassar, one of the leading attorneys in the Thumb, stated that he felt confident that the village could not be forced to pay any sum of money under the circumstances. Vassar has as yet appointed no attorney to defend its side of the case.

The papers are a summons upon Perry personally to appear at Caro, the county seat, within 15 days, where he will receive a bill of particulars stating the cause of the suit etc. At a meeting of the Vassar council, it was decided to stand back of Perry, and support him in the fight against the suit. If necessary, eminent lawyers will be engaged and the suit carried to the Supreme Court. It was also decided to continue the quarantine for another week or as much longer as deemed necessary.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING.

Merchants Will Outdo Themselves in Displays of Holiday Goods.

With only four weeks until Christmas, the merchants of Cass City are already beginning to talk about their prospects for a successful holiday season, and our readers will soon see displayed on the pages of the Chronicle the timely ads of Cass City's enterprising business men. From conversations with some of them, we are led to believe that, unless something happens to prevent, the merchants are going to outdo themselves in the matter of offering holiday goods this year. The fact is, that the Christmas trade has increased each year, and to meet this increase the several merchants have, through experience planned on presenting to the public larger and more assorted stocks than ever before. A record breaking holiday trade is looked forward to, and remember when thinking of making your purchases that your home merchants stand ready to serve you in every way.

A VERY FOOLISH CUSTOM OF LADIES

20TH CENTURY HAT HIDES PREACHER FROM VIEW.

Head-gear Should Be Removed at Beginning of Service Says F. A. Bigelow.

Dear Editor: You will do the writer a favor and benefit a large class of citizens of this community if you will kindly publish this letter in the columns of the Chronicle.

The very proper and universal custom of gentlemen saluting ladies by lifting the hat, had its beginning several centuries ago when the head-dress worn by men was a helmet of iron to protect the cranium of the wearer from the spear-thrusts and sword-strokes of his enemies. Therefore, to remove the helmet in the presence of ladies or friends was a token of confidence that they would not inflict any harm upon the uncovered head of the gallant helmet wearer.

Now will some one inform me of Continued on eighth page.

Names For the Four.

Just after the battle of Perryville, in October, 1862, Dr. Savage, a strong Union man, was at one of his appointments in a southern city to baptize some children. There was a large crowd, and a sturdy southern matron brought her four children to the altar.

"Name this child," said the Union preacher, laying his hand on the boy's head. "Simon Bolivar Buckner," was the reply, which caused a smile to come over the congregation, but the brave preacher went on with his duty.

"Name this child," taking the next in order. "Pierre Gustave Toutant Beauregard." And the smile grew into a snicker, while Dr. Savage became red in the face. He baptized the young namesake of the soldier and went on with the ceremony.

"Name this one," he gasped, reaching for the third. "Albert Sidney Johnston," came the answer. The smile became audible and the preacher apologetic.

Heaving a sigh of relief, he took the fourth child, a little girl, whose gender he fondly supposed would preclude a continuation of heroic reproduction and said, "Name this child."

"Mary Stonewall Jackson Lee," came the response that set the congregation in a roar, while the Union parson thought he had held in his arms the whole southern confederacy.

Does Dairying Pay?

We give you the problem and let you solve it and see for yourself. We have a patron who has a herd of 8 grade cows and from the 8 cows in twelve months he has received in cash $494.64, or $61.83 per cow. Now we allow $40 and the calf, skim milk and fertilizer for care and feed of each cow which is $320, plus calf, skim milk and fertilizer. $494.64 less $320 leaves $174.64 PROFIT. Now this herd is just a common herd so we will value them at $50 per head, or $500 for the herd. $174.64 profit on a $500 investment means 34.92 per cent. on your investment.

Does it pay? We leave the verdict with you. We are always in the market for cream at top prices.

THOU SHALT NOT.

Text. "Whoso breaketh a hedge a serpent shall bite him."—Ecc. X. 8.
"THOU SHALT NOT." WHO SAID SO? God. But why shan't I? There's a reason. You need not know it—possibly couldn't understand. When you tell your little three-year-old that coffee isn't good for children you don't bother explaining about caffeine, the active and dangerous alkaloid of coffee. You might as well read Kant's "Critique." Butler's "Analogy" or Browning's poems. Her nervous system will become just as strong by obeying your "thou shalt not" as if you had tried to explain. It ought not to embarrass you to learn that you must believe first and be taught afterward. You knew your multiplication table long before you could prove it. Most of your knowledge came that way. The "thou shalt not" is a hedge. The purpose of a hedge is not to annoy, but to protect. Uncle Sam maintains 3,000 beacon lights, 6,000 buoys and signals along his coast. Each one says, "Thou shalt not!" No mariner is quite such a fool as to think Uncle Sam a bullying policeman with a big stick.

"Don't Go Out the Gate!"

Feudal days had moats with draw-bridges. Then came walled cities, then houses with brick and stone walls. Our colonists built stockades; after the Indians had gone, board fences, then the picket and almost invisible wire or a bed of geraniums—now none! "Johnny, don't go out the gate," mother used to say. Now Johnny plays on the street. Whether he did better among the lilacs and the old fashioned sweet williams protected by the hedge or out in the street dodging automobiles and flipping cigarette pictures is a question. It's an age of transition. Following the trend of things, we are tearing down many fences. They're so old fogyish! There was a time when folks got married and they said, "For better, for worse, till death us do part." That was the understanding, and they meant it. If they had a tiff they made it up long before communion Sunday at the old church. But the marriage fence seems tottering. Only one in eight stands! Reno has a permanent settlement, and our wives get circulars mailed from there at the breakfast table. They are busy tearing down the old Sabbath fence our forefathers thought was so necessary for the safety of the republic. Even the theological professors are feverishly removing the barriers about the Bible. Stars! We can remember when mother used to read those wonderful Bible stories to us. We thought they were true, but it seems not. Of course fences are antiquated and outlandish. That verse about "Remove not the ancient landmarks which thy fathers set" must be all folderol.

Hedges Are Law.

Sin says, "Don't bother about the hedges." When you read tomorrow morning's paper you will scan the story of the suicides, murders, home wreckings, sensational trials. The whole surface of the social sea seems strewn with this human flotsam. Who are they? They are the hedge breakers, and the serpent has bitten them. They have broken some law. Law makes the earth revolve. Light follows darkness. Spring, summer, autumn and winter follow in endless procession with their flowers, harvests, fruits and snows. It is law that lets birds fly, fish swim, cattle to roam in the field. If a fish leaps on the shore it has broken a hedge; if a beast remains under water it has broken a hedge; if a plant should refuse water it will have broken a hedge. The serpent of penalty will bite them. The penalty and broken law go together like fire and heat. We are hedged in with law—natural law, civil law, social law, commercial law, common law, moral law, ecclesiastical law, international law. Law is the throne on which the Almighty sits. You can't break one of these laws with impunity. That story back in Eden doesn't have to be true. There are hundreds of cases before the public eye today where men and women have closed the gates of paradise on themselves. God help us! The brambles of the hedge have scratched us more than once.

The Sting of the Serpent.

Better keep hands off the hedge. Before sundown of your little day you will feel a festering wound. It means restraint—in the family, parental authority; in the social circle, conventionality and Mrs. Grundy; in the church, still more stringent limitations. How you envy the bohemians! Will it never cease? Never, from cradle to grave. Children hardly move without "don'ts." You will outgrow those "don'ts" only to encounter others. Seems tyrannical? You can reach through and get the coveted thing—others have—but you get it only as the mouse gets the bait in the trap. Fame comes slow. You can become notorious in an hour. Want money without earning it? You can, but theft and embezzlement are on the other side of the hedge. Want to gratify passion? First visit the municipal hospital. Want your social glass? Better not. Red light ahead! Hedges are really rails put along the sides of life's foot-bridge. They limit your liberty, true, but they limit your danger. The night may be dark, the sky starless—those rails are your safety. They shut you out, but they also shut you in. Would you let your child walk the footbridge without them? Neither would God.

WONDERFUL SCENT.

Deckervillites Develop Keen Scent for Peppermint.

When H. V. Adams appeared in Deckerville on the village lecture course he prefaced his lecture with the statement that, as most people had some hobby of their own, he was no exception to the rule, and that his particular hobby was a peppermint test of the circulation of air in the room.

"But now the mischief is done, and we must set about remedying it. First," and she suited the action to the word, "take down your shade, carefully remove the tacks with a tack drawer and lay it flat and unrolled on the kitchen table. Now get a basin of plain gasoline and a sponge and sponge the shade well, rubbing it hard and vigorously. Pay particular attention to the dirt spots, but sponge the shade all over.

"When the shade is thoroughly saturated wring it out by rolling tightly and then unrolling and remove any further surplus moisture with a dry soft cloth. Then let the gasoline evaporate. It will not take very long, and you can occupy the time in washing off the wooden shade roll with soap and water and letting that dry also.

"As soon as the shade is quite dry take another cloth that has not been near the gasoline and give the shade a dry rub with long, smooth strokes. And, behold, it is rejuvenated!

CHAPTER V.

THE next morning I went out for a walk. I lingered a moment outside Sam Graham's old and much neglected drug store, thinking of the change that had come over it since the death of Margaret Graham, Betty's mother, for, despite its out of the way location, the shop

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with hypophosphites can do just this.

It strengthens the nerves, feeds famished tissues, and makes rich blood.

had not always been unprofitable. While Margaret lived (my heart still ached with the memory of her name) Sam's business had prospered. She had been one of those women who can rise to any emergency in the interest of her loved ones. The first to realize Sam's inexperience and lack of executive ability, she had taken hold of the business with a firm hand and made it pay—while she lived.

During Margaret's regime, as I say, the shop had thrived. Sam had few ill-wishers in Radville. The trade came his way. Then Betty was born, and Margaret died.

Most of this I have on hearsay. I left Radville shortly after their marriage and did not return until some months after Margaret's burial. By that time the shop had begun to show signs of neglect. Its stock was decimated, its trade likewise. Sam was struggling with his inventions more fiercely than ever—seeking forgetfulness, I always thought. The business was allowed to take care of itself. He had always a serene faith in his tomorrow.

Now, the little shop had been far distanced by the competition of Sothern & Lee. It was twenty years behind the times, as the saying is. Small, darksome, dreary and dingy, it served chiefly as a living room for Sam, his daughter and his cronies as well as for his workshop. He had a bench and a ramshackle lathe in one corner, where you might be sure to find him futtily pottering at almost any hour. He owned the little building—or that portion of it which it were a farce to term the equity above the mortgage—and Betty kept house for him in three rooms above the store.

I pushed the door open and entered. He looked up with his never failing smile of welcome and a wave of his hand.

"Howdy, Homer! Come in. Well, well, I'm glad to see you. Sit down. I think that chair there by the stove will hold together under you."

"What are you doing, Sam?" I asked.

"Fixin' up the sody fountain. Meant to get it workin' last month, Homer, but somehow I kind of forgot."

He rubbed away briskly at the single faucet which protruded above the counter, lathering it briskly with a metal polish that smelled to heaven.

"Do much sody trade, Sam?"

He paused, passing his worn old fingers reflectively across a chin snowy with a stubble of neglected beard. "No," he allowed thoughtfully, "not so much as we used to now that Sothern & Lee 've got this newfangled notion of puttin' ice cream in a nickel glass of sody. Most of the young folks go there now, but still I get a call now and then, and every little bit helps." He rubbed on tediously for a moment. "Course I'd do more, likely, if I carried a bigger line of flavors."

SAM GRAHAM.

"How many do you carry?"

"One," he admitted—with a sigh, "vanilly."

While I filled my pipe he continued to rub very industriously.

"Why don't you get more?" He flashed me one of his pale, genial smiles. "I'm thinkin' of it, Homer, soon's I get some money in—next week, mebber. There's a man in 'Y

'LL SHOW YOU, HOMER.

York that mebber can be interested in one of my inventions, Roland Barnette says. Mebber he'd be willin' to put a little money in it, Roland says, and of course if he does I'll be able to stock up considerable."

I sighed covertly for him. He rubbed, humming a tuneless rhythm to himself.

"Roland's goin' to write to him about it."

"What invention?" I asked, incredulously.

Sam put down his bottle of polish and came round the counter, beaming. Nothing pleases him better than an opportunity to exhibit some one of his innumerable models. "I'll show you, Homer," he volunteered cheerfully, shuffling over to his workbench. He rasped a match over its surface and applied the flame to a small gas bracket fixed to the wall. A strong rush of gas extinguished the match, and he turned the flow half off before trying again. This time the vapor caught and settled to a steady brilliant flame as white as and much softer than acetylene.

"There!" he said in triumph. "What d'ye think of that, Homer?"

"Why," I said, "I didn't know you had an acetylene plant."

"No more have I, Homer."

"But what is that, then?" I demanded.

"It's my invention," he returned proudly. "I've been workin' on it two years, Homer, and only got it goin' yesterday. It's goin' to be a great thing, I tell you."

"But what is it, Sam?"

"It's gas from crude petroleum, Homer. See!" he continued, indicating a tank beneath the bench which seemed to be connected with the bracket by a very simple system of piping, broken by a smaller, cylindrical tank. "Ye put the oil in there—just crude as it comes out of the wells, Homer. It don't need refinin', and it runs through this and down here to this, where it's vaporized—much the same's they vaporize gasoline for automobile engines, ye know—and then it just naturally flows up to the bracket, and there ye are."

"It's wonderful, Sam," said I, wondering if it really were.

"And the best part of it is the economy, Homer. A gallon will run one jet six weeks, day in and out. And simple to install. I tell ye—"

"Have you got it patented yet?"

"Yes, siree! Took out patents just as soon as it struck me how simple it 'ud be—more than two years ago. Only, of course, it took time to work it out just right, specially when I had to stop now and then 'cause I needed money for materials. But it's all right now, Homer; it's all right now."

"And you say Roland Barnette's writing to some one in New York about it?"

"Yes; he promised he would. I explained it to Roland, and he seemed real interested. He's kind, very kind."

I was inclined to doubt this and would probably have said something to that effect had not a shadow crossing the window brought me to my feet in consternation. But before I could do more than rise Colonel Bohun had flung open the door and stamped in. He stopped short at sight of me, misguided by his nearsighted eyes, and singled me out with a threatening wave of his heavy stick.

"Well, sir," he snarled, "I've come for my answer. Have you sense enough in your addled pate to understand that, man? I've come for my answer!"

"And may have it, whatever it may be, for all of me," I told him.

His face flushed a deeper red. "Oh, it's only you, is it, Littlejohn? I took you for that fool Graham in this dirty dark hole. Where is he?"

I looked to Graham, and he followed the direction of my gaze to the workbench, where Sam stood with his back to it, his worn hands folded quietly before him. He seemed a little whiter than usual, I thought, and perhaps it was only my fancy that made him appear to tremble ever so slightly, for he was quite calm and self-possessed—so much so that I realized for the first time there was another man in Radville besides myself who did not fear old Colonel Bohun.

"I'm here, colonel," he said quietly.

"What is it you wish?"

The colonel swung on him, shaking with passion. But he held his tongue until he had mastered himself somewhat, a feat of self-restraint on his part over which I marvel to this day.

"You know well, Graham," he said presently. "You got my letter—the letter I wrote you a week ago?"

"Yes," said Sam, with a start of comprehension. "Yes, I got it."

"Then why the devil, man, don't you answer it?"

Sam's apologetic smile sweetened his face. "Why," he said haltingly, "I'm sure I meant no offense; but, you see, I'm a very busy man. I forgot it."

"The devil you forgot it! D'ye expect me to believe that, man?"

"I'm afraid you'll have to."

Bohun was speechless for a moment, stricken dumb by a second seizure of fury. But again he calmed himself.

"Very well, I'll swallow that insolence for the present—"

"It wasn't meant as such, I assure—"

"Don't interrupt me! D'you hear? I've come for my answer. Yes, I've come down to that, Graham. If you can't accord me the common courtesy of a written reply I've come to hear it from your mouth."

Sam nodded thoughtfully. "Mebber," he said, "you forget you have failed to accord me the common courtesy of any sort of communication whatever for twenty years, Colonel Bohun. Even when my wife, your daughter, died you ignored my message asking you to her funeral."

"Be silent!" screamed the colonel. "Do you think I'm here to bandy words with you, fool? I demand my answer."

"And as for that," continued Sam as evenly as if he had not been interrupted, "your proposition was so preposterous that it could have come only from you and deserved no answer. But since you want it formally, sir, it's no."

For a moment I feared Bohun would have a stroke. The back of the chair I had just vacated and his stick alone supported him through that dumb, terrible transport. He shook so violently that I looked momentarily to see the chair break beneath him. There was insanity in his eyes. When finally he was able to articulate it was in broken gasps.

"I don't believe it," he stammered. "It's a lie! I don't believe it. It's madness. The girl wouldn't be so mad."

"What is it, father?"

I don't know which of us three was the most startled by that simple question in Betty Graham's voice. Sam, at all events, showed the least surprise. The old colonel wheeled toward the back of the store, his jaw dropping and his eyes protruding as though he were confronted with a ghost—as, in a way, he was. Eyes I had been struck by that strange, heartrending similarity to her mother's tone, and even I trembled a little to hear that voice, as it seemed, from beyond the grave.

Betty stood at the foot of the staircase. Alarmed by the noise of the colonel's raging, she had stolen down, unheard by any of us. And in that moment I realized as never before that the girl had more of her mother in her than lay in that marvelous reproduction of Margaret Graham's voice. As she waited there one detected in her pose something of her mother's quiet dignity, in her eyes more than a little of Margaret's tragedy. Of Margaret's beauty I saw scant trace, I own, but in those days my eyes were blinded by the signs of overwork and insufficient nourishment that marred her young features by the hopeless dowdiness of her garments.

Abruptly she moved swiftly to her father's side and slipped her hand into his. "What is it, father?" she repeated, eyeing Colonel Bohun coldly.

"Why, Betty," he said, tremulous—"why, Betty, your grandfather here 'as been kind enough to offer to take you and educate you and make a lady of you, and—and we were just talking it over, dear—just talking it over."

"Do you mean that?" she flung at Bohun.

He straightened up and held himself well in hand. "Is it the first you have heard of it?"

"Yes." She looked inquiringly at her father.

"Why didn't you tell her?" Bohun persisted harshly. "Were you afraid?"

"No," Sam shook his head slowly. "I wasn't afraid, but it was unnecessary. You see, Betty, Colonel Bohun is willing to do all this for you on several conditions. You must leave me and never see me again. You mustn't even recognize me should we meet upon the street. You must change your name to Bohun and never permit yourself to be known as Betty Graham. Then you must—"

"Never mind, daddy, dear," said the girl. "That is enough. I know now. I understand why you never told me. It's impossible. Colonel Bohun knew that when he made the offer, of course. He made it simply to harass you, daddy. It's his revenge."

"And that's your answer, miss?" snapped the colonel, livid with wrath.

"I would not," she told him slowly, "accept a favor from you, sir, if I were starving."

Bohun drew himself up. "Then starve," he told her and walked out of the shop.

PROPRIETOR.

A RUNAWAY HORSE.

Impossible For Him to Take the Bit Between His Teeth.

The runaway horse in story books, as in most of the venacious and detailed accounts given in the daily press, invariably "takes the bit between his teeth" as a preliminary measure. It would be interesting to know how he does this. He obviously cannot get it between his molar teeth (grinders) unless both his cheeks are slit up from the corners of his mouth, and if the cheek straps be the right length it is equally impossible for him to get it down to the level of his incisors (nippers), and there are no teeth in between! Thus perishes another hoary headed superstition!

What does happen is that through steady, unremitting tension on the reins the bars of his mouth become numbed and impervious to pain. This enables him to set his jaw firmly, put the whole weight of his head on the bit and successfully resist anything short of one horsepower at the other end of the reins. This is the reason why when run away with one should never try to recover control by steady pulling, but should always use short, sharp pulls with intervals of complete relaxation between them.

Although it is always advisable to drive a new horse, temporarily at least, with the bit to which he has been accustomed, provided that he goes satisfactorily in it, it is never safe to assume that it is the best possible one for him. This assumption, which is general, is responsible for much trouble that might be obviated. It is surprising to note how complete and radical a change of bit may be made, not only with impunity, but with advantage, if only the change be in the right direction.—Outing Magazine.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health. There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

Her Birthmark.

"I hear," said the count, "that you are going to marry an American girl who has a birthmark."

"Yes," replied the marquis, "the report is true."

"I hope she is not badly disfigured."

"Not a bit, my dear fellow. For your enlightenment I will make a drawing of her birthmark. It is like this—$."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by L. I. Wood & Co.

Politely Put.

"Jinks told Bangs he was a harp struck by lightning."

"Where's the point?"

"It took quite a using up of gray matter for Bangs to discover that Jinks had called him a blasted liar."

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Why Should a Church Member Belong to the W. C. T. U.?

"Do not the regular lines of church work sufficiently include work for temperance? Why should a busy church member belong to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union? We answer for we belong.

1. Because we believe that the saloon and its allies are the greatest obstacles which lie in the way of the triumph of Christ and his church in the world. The open saloon is blocking the highways along which must come the King in his beauty and His triumphant reign cannot be ushered in until the dram shop is cleared away and institutions for man's elevation are substituted. The altar's of our church are pitifully devoid of young men, and the pitfalls of vice in our large cities are crowded with them. Thus they are drawn farther and farther away from purity, the influence of a mother's prayers and the restraining and helpful ordinances of the church.

2. We belong because there is a stultifying lethargy on the part of the average church member regarding the evils of the saloon and a disposition to evade responsibility. The male members especially can apparently see no connection between prayers and politics, for with bowed head and bended knee they pray, "Thy Kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as 'tis in heaven," and then on election day vote to license Hell upon earth. I wonder how many of them really expect Christ to license the open saloon and grogshop in Heaven where His Will will be done. Consequently in view of this the aroused and consecrated worker for souls must organize, agitate and cry aloud in behalf of "the slain of the daughters of my people." It is not enough that we offer a prayer occasionally for the downfall of the drink traffic; not enough that we have quarterly temperance S. S. lessons, and once or twice a year a good temperance sermon; not enough that the church periodically pass strong resolutions against the sale of intoxicating liquors. All these are good, but radical evils must have radical remedies, and the rank and file of our churches are so conservative and slow to adopt any such measures.

3. We belong, because, while the evil of the saloon is almost universally acknowledged by the churches, yet there are weapons which must be wielded against the saloon before it can be abolished which now cannot be freely advocated under the auspices of the church without dissension, which would be deplorable to many even of our own white ribboners. The church has not washed its hands from complicity with the saloon; for while declaring "that the liquor traffic cannot be legalized without sin," a majority of the voting membership sanction its perpetuation by their ballots, thereby insuring to the traffic the protection of the government. In John's second epistle we read, "He that biddeh him godspeed is partaker of his evil deeds." Does not government license bid godspeed to the saloon? It is clear to us that the liquor traffic must be outlawed by the vote of the church, but these subjects cannot be freely discussed under her auspices without a pitiful outcry of political preaching, restriction of man's personal liberty, etc.

4. We belong because the W. C. T. U. wipes out denominational lines in christian work against this common foe to all, and realizes the Saviour's prayer, that "they all may be one." The blending of women at the mercy seat has brought to them such a revelation of the Holy Spirit's power, such depths of love and peace and joy that they are conscious that his favor crowns their work and that "He will finally subdue all enemies under His feet."

5. We belong because the missionary work of all churches is handicapped in foreign countries by the rum sent out from this and other so called christian lands, to the natives whom our missionaries are making every sacrifice to reach and save. Contracts are made with citizens of this country to send thousands of gallons of rum per day to the Free States of the Congo that gain may come into the unsatisfied coffers of the rum trade. Mrs. Mary Leavitt, our first round the world missionary, found whole villages drunk with rum sent from christian England and United States, when she arrived with her message of gospel purity and peace. God have pity, for the blood of these natives is yet upon our garments.

6. We belong because the W. C. T. U. stands for the ecclesiastical emancipation of woman. "Go quickly and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead," said the angel to the woman. They are preaching the risen Christ as effectively as any on whom holy hands have been laid in ordination by the church. Who that ever heard our sainted Mary T. Lathrap can doubt that she was called of God to preach the gospel? And yet the church she loved and honored refused to recognize officially that call because she was a woman. I fully believe that thousands of souls, who are now untouched, would be reached and saved annually if our churches would but acknowledge and officially recognize God's call to women to preach the gospel.

In the limited space at my command I have only been able to hint at a few of the good reasons why christian women should belong to the W. C. T. U. Oh women, heed God's call to you. Join our ranks and in addition to your church work, work for him along the lines of prohibition and woman's emancipation. "This ought to do and not to leave the other undone."—Written by Jennie Leek-Hutchinson of Deford and read at the District Convention of the W. C. T. U. at Kingston Oct. 28.

A Re-enforced Stocking.

A stocking that fills a long felt want among small boys, scrubwomen and other persons who spend a great deal of time on their knees is that designed by a woman. This stocking is made with a transversely ribbed gore on the knee that will stand many times the amount of wear and tear that the knee of an ordinary stocking will.

THE RIBBED KNEE CAP.

Above the calf the stocking is ribbed longitudinally, while the gore section is ribbed crosswise and is made of heavier material, more closely knit. The small boy who will go through an ordinary stocking the first time he puts it on can crawl around and climb trees in this kind for many a day before the knee gives way. Even then a new piece can be set in which will look and feel much better than patches. For working women who have to go on their knees, as in scrubbing up floors and the like, stockings of this design will be found not only economical, but comfortable.

Will Promote Beauty.

Women desiring beauty get wonderful help from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It banishes pimples, skin eruptions, sores and boils. It makes the skin soft and velvety. It glorifies the face. Cures sore eyes, cold sores, cracked lips, chapped hands. Best for burns, scalds, fever sores, cuts, bruises and piles. 25c at L. I. Wood & Co.'s.

Candlepower of Sun and Stars.

Mr. Nordmann, who has recently estimated the light and heat of the sun and the stars by a new method, has presented to the Paris Academy of Sciences some interesting figures concerning the intrinsic luminosity of those bodies. He shows that the light of the sun is equal, for each square centimeter of its surface there are about two and a half centimeters in an inch, to the combined light of 319,000 standard candles. But there are other suns intrinsically much brighter than ours. Vega and Sirius possess for each square centimeter of their surfaces the luminosity of no less than 6,000,000 candles. On the other hand, the luminosity of the great reddish star Aldebaran is equivalent to only 22,000 candles a square centimeter, and that of the small star Rho Persei to no more than 4,000 candles.—Youth's Companion.

Both Speedy and Effective.

This indicates the action of Foley Kidney Pills as S. Parsons, Battle Creek, Mich., illustrates: "I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble for which I found no relief until I used Foley Kidney Pills. These cured me entirely of all my ailments. I was troubled with backaches and severe shooting pains with annoying urinary irregularities. The steady use of Foley Kidney Pills rid me entirely of all my former troubles. They have my highest recommendation." L. I. Wood & Co.

Date Muffins

A New Way of Using Dates
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

The value of dates as a food is hardly appreciated. They are wholesome, nutritious, and when used in K C Date Muffins, make a recipe that is appreciated by the entire family.

K C Date Muffins

One-third cup butter; 1/4 cup sugar; 1 egg; 3/4 cup milk; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; scant 1/2 pound dates.

Cream the butter, add the sugar and the egg, beaten light. Sift together three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; add these to the first mixture, alternately with the milk; beat thoroughly and add the dates, stoned and cut in pieces. To bake, have a slow oven until the muffins double in bulk, then increase heat to bake and brown quickly. Muffins baked this way will be light, appetizing and more easily digested.

This is only one of the many appetizing recipes found in the K C Cook's Book.

The wonderful K C Cook's Book is substantially bound and printed in nine colors, contains ninety tested and easily-made recipes by Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, of the world famous Boston Cooking School Magazine.

You can secure a copy FREE by sending the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder to the JACQUES MFG CO., Chicago.

CHICAGO STOCK SHOW.

The Hon. J. H. Skinner, dean of Agriculture, Purdue University, in speaking of the Chicago Stock Show, expressed himself as follows: "The International Live Stock Exposition, which will this year be held from Nov. 26th to Dec. 3rd, offers one of the greatest opportunities that come to farmers. It is one of the best educators in America. The standards set by the International Live Stock Show are the very best and no farmer who attends this show can go away without carrying home to his business a broader conception of his work than he had before attending this great show. Every young farmer should avail himself of the opportunity to study types and breeds of live stock in connection with the International.

The opportunity to study car lots of feeders and fat cattle and sheep is in itself worth far more than the cost of attending the show." Youth's Companion Calendar. The publishers of The Youth's Companion will, as always at this season, present to every subscriber whose subscription ($1.75) is paid for 1911 a beautiful Calendar for the new year. A VERY FOOLISH CUSTOM OF LADIES

Continued from first page. the origin of the very foolish custom of ladies retaining their head-covering in public meeting places, particularly in church? Of course Saint Paul did say something about this matter and if that is the origin of the practice, it ought now to be abandoned as Paul's recommendation was written before the day of the twentieth century hat. That other injunction for the women to "keep silence in the churches" has long since been disregarded as the attendance at any prayer meeting will demonstrate. On a recent Sunday, as I sat in church with my vision bounded by an array of the latest in millinery, of various capacities from four to fourteen quarts and shutting off my view of the preacher, choir and every supposedly visible part of the service, I resolved to make a protest through the columns of your paper against this absurd and useless custom. If in the churches of our village the ladies' hats were removed at the beginning of the sermon and replaced before the singing of the last hymn, the result would be a very marked improvement in the feelings of preachers and people. In one large church which I have attended, there were cards tacked in conspicuous places about the vestibule and auditorium, requesting the removal of ladies' hats. This reform, if accomplished, will require some agitation on the part of our pastors and those most interested in the work of our several churches and it is a movement worthy the attention and support of up-to-date women's organizations of whatever character. Thanking you for space, I am, Very respectfully yours, F. A. BIGELOW.

NOVESTA.

W. B. Hicks and Samuel Powell of Novesta have arrived home from their long hunt in Roscommon county. The morning of the ninth they found a trail running through a swamp. The morning of the tenth the two men placed themselves on the run away. In a few minutes they heard a loud crashing and smashing through the brush which came nearer to them every leap. It sounded to them like an ox or something larger. It quickly pushed its head through the brush, the two men drew their rifles to their faces and fired. The loud bellers and screeches and screams could be heard for a long distance away. The two men walked quickly towards it and found that one bullet lodged in its forehead, the other in its throat. They took the bear to their camp. It dressed 300 pounds. They sold the meat to a camp for 6 cents a pound and brought the fur home with them. This is worth from $10 to $25. They also shot one large deer. The men have decided that one bear is worth ten deer. Mr. Hicks has been ill for some time but is now enjoying good health.

It is said that the present trouble between the stockholders of the Farmers' Elevator and the organizer, Mr. Quail, have been adjusted, and the building will be pushed to completion, possibly the present month. The adjustment, it is claimed, was effected by Mr. Quail turning over the unsold stock to a committee consisting of John Hunt, Geo. Amos and Mat. McIntyre.

The supposed case of hydrophobia on the farm of Hugh Ross, two miles north of this city, is pronounced the real thing by the expert of the University at Ann Arbor, to whom one of the dog's heads was sent for brain analysis by Dr. Comboy last week. The examination disclosed a clear case of rabies, and Mr. Ross, fearing infection from his dogs left Tuesday for Ann Arbor to take the pasteur treatment for rabies. Ross claims that he heard his dogs fighting with some other animal late one night a few weeks ago and thinks some kind of a mad animal is loose in the neighborhood. It will be well now to keep an eye out for hydrophobia as well as smallpox.
