TUSCOLA STAYS IN "DRY" LIST

THREE DRY COUNTIES BACK IN TO THE WET COLUMN.

Tuscola county citizens voted to retain local option for two more years, but by a much smaller majority than when it was adopted two years ago. The vote on the proposition by townships is given below:

Table with columns for township, vote in 1911 (Yes/No), and 1909 (Yes/No). Townships include Almer, Arbela, Akron, Columbia, Dayton, Denmark, Ellington, Elmwood, Elkland, Fairgrove, Fremont, Gifford, Indianfields, Juniata, Koylton, Kingston, Millington, Novesta, Tuscola, Vassar, Wisner, Watertown, Wells, and Total.

Huron County.

Huron is reported to have voted to remain wet by 553 majority. The proposition to bond the county to build a new court house was lost.

Sanilac County.

Sanilac county's dry majority was reduced from 1,500 in 1909 to between 400 and 500 Monday. W. H. Hoodles, wet candidate, was elected mayor of Crosswell with a majority of four over F. P. Southworth, dry. Brown City also elected a wet mayor, Geo. McKay. Marlette gave the dry a majority of 155.

One county is subtracted from Michigan's dry column as the result of Monday's election in 18 counties. Thirty-nine counties are now dry and 44 wet.

But two small new counties, Montcalm and Isoco, are added to the dry list, while the wets gain three of the largest counties which have been in the dry column for two years—Genesee, Jackson and Calhoun.

In Calhoun and possibly a few other counties where the majorities were small, a recount may be demanded.

Local Option Results.

Table with columns for township, Was (Wet/Dry), and Voted (Wet/Dry). Townships include Alpena, Allegan, Benzie, Calhoun, Cheboygan, Clare, Emmet, Genesee, Huron, Ionia, Isoco, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Montcalm, Montmorency, Newaygo, Sanilac, and Tuscola.

Thumb Notes

In an effort to start a hard coal fire, which had partly gone out, with kerosene, Godfrey, Ort. of Sebowaing, aged 65, was terribly burned when the gas thus created exploded. His wife threw a coat over his head to smother the flames and in doing so the skin came from his face in large blotches. He was also terribly burned about the body. His chances for recovery are very slight.

Mrs. John Wilson, living two and one-half miles east of Deckerville, was the victim of accidental poisoning last Saturday evening when she swallowed 15 grains of corrosive sublimate by mistake. Mrs. Wilson has been under the care of a physician for some time and took the poisonous dose just as she was retiring for the night. The mistake was made owing to a similarity of the poison to the medicine prescribed by the physician. Dr. Butler was called at once and remained with the patient during the night and the latest reports are favorable for her recovery.

Henry C. Patterson of Lapeer, reported to be worth a half million dollars, died at his home, 117 North Main street, early Sunday morning, aged 78 years. Mr. Patenson was born near Belleville, Ont., and came to Lapeer by stage from Pontiac 43 years ago. He was a victim of adverse circumstances in early life, on six different occasions losing heavily by fire, as he never carried insurance until after the last one, which partially destroyed his beautiful residence 13 years ago. Many large family legacies not only gave him a comfortable living but much to share with others. Many beneficiaries of his never-failing generosity mourn his loss. He gave much to charities. Among other bequests was $10,000 to the Presbyterian Ministers' Relief fund, $6,000 to the new Presbyterian church of Lapeer, dedicated a week ago Sunday, and a seat endowment fund to the same church for $2,000. He endowed a room at Port Wayne hospital in Indiana, where his only son, Reuben, lived. He leaves besides a widow, one grandson, Henry C., Jr., of Ft. Wayne, Ind., to whom the bulk of his property will go. The funeral was held Tuesday and the remains taken to Westfield, N. Y., and placed in the family vault.

REPUBLICANS WIN BY 100,000

INTEREST IN ELECTION OF STATE OFFICERS WAS ENTIRELY LACKING.

The only question about the election of state officers Monday was the size of the majority the Republican ticket would receive. On a light vote generally it reached about 100,000.

Aside from the counties where local option was an issue, the only places where there was any interest in the day's elections were a few counties where there were contests on circuit judge. Most of the present judges were renominated on March 1 without opposition, and were re-elected yesterday in the same fashion.

ENTHUSIASM RAN HIGH AT CONTEST

SEVA WITHEY, LESTER CHILDS, WM. DEMING AND JAS. HURLEY WIN HONORS.

The oratorical and declamatory contest last Tuesday night was one long to be remembered by the students of the high school. The church was tastefully decorated with pennants and wreaths by the various classes and enthusiasm ran high. There were nine contestants—four in declamation and five in oratory.

Intense interest and enthusiasm was aroused when a member of the senior class placed a beautiful bouquet of flowers over the head of their representative in the contest. The juniors tried to outdo the seniors by presenting their two representatives with beautiful bouquets at the close of their orations.

The decision of the judges was as follows:

Declamation—First honor, Seva Withey; second honor, Lester Childs. Oratory—First honor, Wm. Deming; second honor, James Hurley.

26 YEARS IN BUSINESS.

With the passing of the first week in April marks the close of 26 years of continuous business in Cass City for P. S. McGregory of The Model Clothing & Shoe Co. Very few merchants can show such a record as many after a few years' active work drift to other vocations or fail to hold the confidence of the public.

A year ago Mr. McGregory sold a half interest in the business to John C. Farrell, a thoroughly experienced man. The new firm has inaugurated many changes. The whole interior of the store has been changed to give a handier way of showing the goods and the exceptionally good trade of the past year has encouraged the firm to constantly replace their stock with the newest and most up-to-date goods to be found in the greater markets of the country. The interior of the store has recently been painted which with the new spring goods on display makes The Model an attractive place for the person having any use for anything in the lines they carry.

THE MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT

THE IDEALS OF A BOY

By BYRON WILLIAMS

EVERY boy by nature is a born hero worshiper. Carlyle calls the attention to the fact that hero worship exists, has existed and will forever exist universally among mankind. It springs early in the human mind. Who, then, is your boy's ideal? Look into this; it makes a difference. Do not expect because the boy has been taught from books of the greatness of Washington and Lincoln and McKinley that one of these will be his model. This is too abstract for the adolescent mind. What the boy demands and gets is an everyday right at home ideal, some one he knows and can imitate.

Is he imitating the life and character of the upright judge on the bench or the questionable horse jockey down at the livery stable?

That you may the better understand this hero worshiping phase of a boy's life I will take you back to my own boyhood, telling you frankly of my childish aspirations as awakened by men whom I worshiped.

First there was Mart Royal. Mart lived across the road from my home. He was the delivery man for the local grocers and drove a pair of rat colored bronchos. Mart used to greet me with, "Hello, kid; come in" when I peeped through the crack in the barn door at him. And one day he lifted me up on the high seat of the delivery wagon and let me ride two blocks. When he put me down he told me to hurry home as fast as my fat legs would carry me, and I did so, decidedly out of breath, but from that day until my mother interfered a worshiper of Mart Royal.

The prancing of the horses, the gay trappings of the harness, the rattle of the "democrat" wagon, all combined to exhilarate and charm me. And the day that Mart let me drive up the lane to the barn—ah, that was indeed an interim of triumph!

Then mother took me in hand and told me that she and father had other plans for me. I didn't exactly understand at first, but she managed somehow, just as you will when the time comes, to win me away from this, my first hero.

My next god was Bill White, fisherman and local no account. While his wife took in washing and scrubbed and sewed, Bill jay about in idleness, doggedly watching his line down at the mill-pond or up by the race. He was not courted warmly by the citizens; hence his willingness to talk to me when of an evening I caught sight of him returning with a great string of fish from the river.

I not only admired and worshiped Bill for his piscatorial prowess, but for the celerity with which he squirted tobacco juice. And he smoked a pipe that smelled as ripe as an apple.

By and by I began to get large enough to discriminate a bit in my hero worshiping and with mother's assistance selected a real hero in the embodiment of a lawyer of the village. He was a clean representative of the law—one of those attorneys who do credit to the profession—and I took him as my ideal. I clung to this man for years. I don't think he ever knew it, but I watched him closer

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers.

Hawshaw, the detective, would have had been under suspicion. I listened to all that was said about him and all that I could hear him say as he stood in the courtroom or in the village grocery store, and when he was elected judge I believe I was as pleased as were members of his own family.

Happily the judge was a clean man. He didn't disappoint me, as did the local sheriff who deserted his family and ran away with another man's wife about the time I was getting ready to worship him.

Just as a boy imitates the man who smokes and the man who chews just so he imitates other characteristics of the hero he has chosen to worship. When the mother realizes this she will keep posted on who the boy is emulating and have something to say regarding the selection of his hero.

The Tuscola County Farmer was in Cass City again Saturday to shake hands with all those who read about him in last week's paper. While in town I met a lot of my farmer friends north of the postoffice and told them about the new breed of cattle I expect to get from Florida. If I get them I will drive the herd through Tuscola county and at Cass City I will parade the cattle up and down Main St., starting at Dave Tyo's barber shop, going east to Striffler & McDermott's and then turning back west to Lee's store. I will give every reader of this paper a sample of the milk.

Now, don't take me too seriously, but anyway, these cows are wonders according to the directions that go with them. Each cow has a pedigree as long as a bed quilt and as wide as a kitchen apron, but I don't figure on the pedigree giving much milk so it's the cow I'm after. I'll give my friends in Tuscola county a little description of them and perhaps we can order a car load together. In the first place these cows are what you call slanting milkers; they are built just the reverse of other cows. You know that the hind legs of our cows are longer than the front legs, making them a little higher at the tail end than at the beginning. Well, it's different with those I'm going to get. This breed has the hind legs in front and the front legs behind, and has a head where other cows have a tail and a tail where other cows have a head; so you see the whole thing is turned around. This makes a cow a little higher at the front end than at the back end and allows the milk to flow down hill to the reservoir without any effort on the part of the cow. This will make milking easy as rolling off a sofa.

You know that cows generally close their eyes and snooze when you milk them and forget all about their business of pushing the milk along, thus making you pull so much harder to make up for the cow's neglect to push. Well, with these new cows that are built on the slope the milk runs down hill, by the natural force of gravity brought about by this re-arrangement of the running gear, and any child can do the milking no matter whether the cow is awake or whether she is dreaming of Xmas or the Fourth of July.

The feature of having the head on the tail end and the tail on the head end is this: In summer when the flies are as thick as the wool on Rastus' head they will always light on the tail end where the cow can't get at them with any advantage, but if the head of the cow is where the tail used to be the cow can snap the flies' heads off before they realize the change, and thus the fly population will be cut down considerably. And another thing: These cows have a tail with a lop in it like the average hog. When you go to milk all you have to do is to hook this loop over a fence picket, etc., and milk in peace.

But the banner feature about these cows is the quality of milk they give; one bucketful of this milk will go as far as a wash-tub of ordinary milk, and, frankly speaking, it isn't milk at all, but soft butter that they give. After you get done milking, stand the dope in a cool place or put it in an ice box and you have hard butter that needs only salt to complete it. When you want milk you have to put this butter in a butter churn and pound just the other way from what you now do and you will get cream, I mean instead of pounding up and down you pound down and up. After you have churned the butter into cream, stand the cream in a crock and next morning skim off the milk. I like this feature alright, but I believe in Tuscola county we would experience some trouble in winter when it's cold. Before we could begin to drain this new milk or soft butter we would have to build a fire under each cow and warm her up. This fire business under the cows would not meet with the approval of the insurance companies and I don't think it would meet with the approval of the cows. Cows are a little touchy on the south side, and the fireman would be in danger of getting his head kicked off. If I get the cows I will get Lena to make a good warm mustard plaster for them and save the fire for biscuits. Watch the Chronicle for further particulars.

You Can Have Better Coffee

And it needn't cost you a bit more than the poorer kind. LOOK HERE! Wouldn't you rather pay, say, 25c for a good, strong coffee than 20c for a poor, weak one? Wouldn't it be better economy? Royal Valley Coffees are fully one-third stronger than any coffee at 5c less per lb. They're stronger—but smoother—than any other coffee at the same price per pound, because they have so much more "body" and so much more of that natural coffee-oil. Coffee without that burnt taste—without that bitter flavor—without that muddy color; richer, stronger, purer coffee will be yours if you use Royal Valley Nero at 25c, or Marigold at 30c, or Tzar at 35c per lb. And you will be money ahead, besides. Ask anybody who has tried one of these delicious blends. Try one of them yourself—TODAY.

The Wedding Cake Pagoda.

At Mingun on the right bank of the Irrawaddy river, about five miles from Mandalay, in Burma, there stands a peculiar pagoda, known as "the wedding cake pagoda" because it looks like a marvelously magnified bridal cake. It was built in the early part of the nineteenth century and is in thoroughly good preservation, only a few of the images inside having been broken. The extreme height to the top of the minaret is eighty feet and the circumference about 600 feet. The pagoda stands back from the river some 300 feet and is hidden from it by a grove of teak trees. Close to it is the famous Mingun bell.—Wide World Magazine.

A Reliable Medicine—Not a Narcotic
Mrs. F. Marti, St. Joe, Mich., says: "Our little boy contracted a severe bronchial trouble. I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and it cured the cough as well as the choking and gagging spells, and he got well in a short time."

MODISTIC MATTERS.

Square Necks More Popular Than the Dutch, Style.

The square neck bids fair to have the day this summer if signs point aright. Many of the new shirt waists have these small squares instead of a round opening, the neck being trimmed with bands of lace or embroidery insertion mitered at the corners.

Having the hem of one's gown a different shade from that of the dress is a fashion this season. The latest models have a hem of a lighter rather than a darker shade. The girle is usually of the same material as the hem.

The elastic belt studded with steel, jet or colored beads, worked out in a more or less elaborate design, is a favorite.

Straw Jack tar hats are already in the shops for boys, intended probably for the little tourists going south. Sometimes the brims are different in color from the square crowns.

Bishop dresses, or those that are gathered at the neck edge, are exceedingly becoming to small children. The one shown on the figure can be made plain or gathered and stayed with a belt, making a more dainty frock, yet just as easily made.

STYLES OF THE DAY.

Head to Foot Fashions That Help to Make the Smart Women.

Standing turnover collars still hold their own, and a few at least should be included in every wardrobe.

The white slipper and shoe in kid, buckskin and canvas will be much worn during the coming season.

A plain tailored blouse of marquisette is relieved by a hand scalloping in color down the front opening.

Following the strong tendency of fashion for two toned effects, stockings are made in this manner this season.

A smart petticoat to be worn under one of the "slinky" gowns has a top of fine silk jersey with a ruffle of fine plaits edged with a long, deep fringe.

Fringes of all kinds are growing in favor. These are seen in beads, pearls, chenille and silk.

For children a decided preference for the peasant style seems to be the growing fancy.

The nightgown that gives an empire effect is very fashionable and also one that girls like especially well. This one is dainty and charming, yet very simple.

Auten as a place for the meetings of the society and his generosity met with such hearty appreciation by the ladies that they at once had them fitted up for use. WIT OF THE INDIAN

The Dignified Red Man Has a Keen Sense of Humor.

STORIES OF STANDING BEAR.

The Race the Old Chief Was Willing to Run Against a Government Attorney—A Gallant Brave and His Mirror—An Invisible Bridge.

The impression prevails widely that the Indian lacks the saving sense of humor—"that most characteristic of all American qualities." To the creating and the spreading of this impression many recognizable traits of Indian character have indisputably contributed—his ancestral pride, his exclusiveness, his gravity of face and dignity of manner in public.

Nevertheless an injustice is done him, for among no primitive peoples is the sense of humor keener or more spontaneous and kindly.

Years ago I was conversing with a group of children of the Omaha tribe. They were on their way to a reservation school, and directly in their path lay a swamp an eighth of a mile wide, and straight through this they were required to wade twice a day.

"It is too bad," I remarked. "Can you not go around the swamp? Your feet will be wet, and you will be uncomfortable and possibly ill."

"Oh," cried a girl of about twelve years, her dark eyes dancing with merriment, "we walk over the $1,200 bridge."

They all laughed at this. What could it mean? I saw no bridge; there was no bridge to be seen. It made them merry to see me mystified, and I heard them laughing and chatting as they went through the water and mud. Afterward I discovered the humor in the remark. Some years previous to that time the government had appropriated $1,200 to build a bridge over this swamp, but somehow the money had vanished into somebody's pocket and the work was not done.

One evening I saw a gallant young brave making his way swiftly over the prairies of the Omaha reserve. He was dressed in all his finery, and at his side dangled a small mirror. Manifestly he was an ardent lover. This I should have surmised from his dress and eager haste, even if I had not known him. As he was a friend of mine, I had inside information of his hopes and purposes; also I ventured to stop him for a moment, precocious as I knew him to be.

"That mirror at your side," I remarked, "is to give opportunity for Prairie Flower to discover how lovely she is, is it not?" He considered a moment, and then, with a twinkling eye, he replied:

"No. Maybe so she will talk too much to me, and then I will look into my mirror to see how tired I am."

This certainly was the humor of absurdity.

Examples of Standing Bear's humor I could give almost without number. During the trial of his case before Judge Dundy the contention of the government attorney was that an Indian is not a person within the meaning of the law. This puzzled the old chief greatly. It also amused him.

One day at my table he was vigorously plying a knife and fork when suddenly he paused in his eating. Lifted up his hands, and, a humorous smile lighting up his noble, storm-scared face, he remarked: "The attorneys say I am not a person. But I can use a knife and fork. Does a bear do that? If he, the attorney, is a person I am one also. We both eat with knives and forks. Indeed, I think I can use them faster than he can. If he wants to race me eating I am ready." We all laughed at this. When we were quiet Standing Bear added, "That is, I will run an eating race with the attorney if he will pay for the beefsteak."

The first public address Standing Bear ever made was given in my church. In the course of it while he was pleading for assistance he addressed various classes of people present—the men, the women, the clergy, the business men, the children. When he was pleading with the women he said: "I appeal to you because you are brave and patient. Whenever you have anything hard to do you never rest until it is done. This was a gallant sentiment worthy of a chief. But Frank La Flesche, who was interpreting, rendered the sentence thus: 'You women are patient. When there is anything hard to be done we men let you do it.' This was so true to Indian custom that the audience laughed.

Standing Bear was puzzled. As he stood silent a moment wondering what mistake he had made Bright Eyes, the beautiful Omaha maiden, stepped forward and said, "My brother Frank has made a mistake in interpreting the chief's thought." Then she gave the proper rendering.

The Chicago papers took liberties with Standing Bear's name, one of them referring to him constantly as Upright Bruin. When this was explained to the chief he took the matter with great good nature.

"What does it matter?" he remarked, his face beaming. "I am all tied up with names. I am like a pony tangled in his lariet. Father Hamilton, the Presbyterian, calls me elder. The Episcopal clergyman calls me warden. For I am an officer in the little church in our village, where both these good men preach. And now the papers call me—what is it? Yes, Bruin. No matter. The judge in Omaha says I am a person, and that satisfies me."—Southern Workman.

NORTH MAGNETIC POLE.

It is Not a Stationary Point, but is Constantly Shifting.

Only the experts understand that the north pole and the north magnetic pole are two entirely different things. As a matter of fact, there are few localities on the earth's surface where the compass points due north. The reason is because the north magnetic pole or area lies in the vicinity of King William's Land, just off the arctic coast of North America, in Bothnia. When this magnetic pole is between us and the north pole the compass points due north. As we go either east or west from this line it is easy to see that the compass is off to a certain degree. If we were to travel north of the magnetic pole the needle would point south; west of it the needle would point east. Sir James Ross in 1831 located the north magnetic pole approximately at a point up in Bothnia. In 1903 Captain Roald Amundsen in the ship Gjoa set out on a three years' expedition, relocated the magnetic pole and made the "northwest passage" for which mariners have striven since the days of Henry Hudson. Terrestrial magnetic force is different in every part of the earth's surface and is not always the same at a given point. It is subject to regular daily and yearly changes. Amundsen posted himself near the seat of the magnetic power and for nineteen months, day and night, with his party, took readings of their instruments, both inclination and declination. He also made short excursions into the region of the magnetic pole and was able by the aid of the declination observations to prove that the magnetic north pole does not have a stationary situation, but is continually moving. But the general location is where Sir James Ross first had the honor to place it.—Chicago Tribune.

INDECISION.

There is no more miserable human being than one in whom nothing is habitual but indecision and for whom the drinking of every cup, the time of rising and going to bed every day and the beginning of every bit of work are subjects of volitional deliberation. Full half the time of such a man goes to the deciding or regretting of matters that ought to be so ingrained in him as practically not to exist for his consciousness at all.

A Bulgarian Superstition.

Among the superstitious natives of Bulgaria the prophet Elijah is believed to control the elements. During heavy thunderstorms the women fall on their faces and pray, "Dear Lord Elijah, do not drive so fast with your fiery horses."

Kepler's Three Laws.

The three laws of planetary motion discovered by Kepler, upon which modern astronomy is based, are:

First.—Each planet revolves in an ellipse, with the sun at one end of the foci.

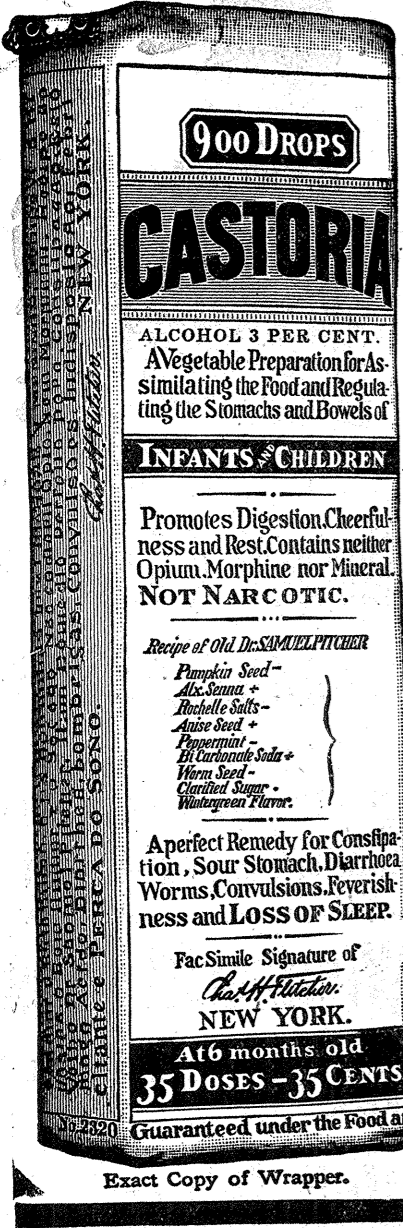

Second.—Each planet moves in such a way that the line drawn between the center of the sun and the center of the planet passes over equal areas in equal periods of time.

Third.—The square of the time of a planet's revolution around the sun is proportional to the cube of its mean distance from the sun.

A Jump In the Dark Being a Story of a Mysterious Disappearance By R. W. KEEMAN Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Amnesia, a sudden loss of memory, is a much more common disease than is supposed and one of the principal causes of those mysterious disappearances that from time to time puzzle the police. If a person dies the body is not self moving, but one whose memory has been obliterated can wander far from those who would recognize him.

of persons visited us to have a look at the newcomer with a view to discovering if she was this or that missing person, but she did not tally with any of them. Thinking all the while that she would be claimed, we did not change our status, but after a time we began to consider the propriety of her remaining with me. She could not do so without exciting comment except as my wife. If on this ground she left me where should she go? My children needed her and insisted on calling her "mamma."

None of those coming to investigate her found that she was the person they were looking for. Her stay, which was expected to end any moment, was prolonged from week to week, from month to month. Then one day some gossip about us was repeated to me, and I decided to submit to her the question of marriage.

Therein lay a puzzle. How did we know but that she had a husband, even children of her own? And suppose she married me one day and was restored to a former home the next? What a terrible complication!

It was necessary for at least one of us to determine to take the risk of marriage, and I arrived at this inevitable conclusion first. Indeed, I was a long while persuading her to my view. Had it not been that women are prone to heed providential interposition I doubt if I should ever have succeeded in my suit.

Lost His Bearings.

It was an English skipper of the olden time, who, having knowledge beyond the seeming needs, as he could read and use the charts, was dispatched to Rotterdam. The skipper had never been to Rotterdam before, so after getting over the bar and well away to the east he produced his charts and made a learned inspection, but the charts had been a long time in the locker and circumstances combined to alarm him extremely. He went up on deck and called to his mate. "Put her about; the rats have eaten Hoiland!"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. NOVELTY NOTES.

Lace Guimpes the Thing—A New Use For the Spiderlike Veiling.

Whole guimpes in lace are seen, probably to be a feature of spring dresses. Guimpes have been mostly of pretty white nets, point d'esprit or gold and black tissue all winter. Now it is possible that a change will take place. The light laces are seen in guimpes.

The mantle dress, as it is called, has been launched by the most fashionable of dressmakers. The salient feature of the costume is that it is neither tightly fitting nor loose. To speak in dress-makers' parlance, it just "misses the figure."

The spiderlike veiling which was used for face veils in the winter is being used over white chiffon, as well as colors for trimming hats.

Simple frocks that can easily be laundered are those that are most sought at this season of the year. The body portion of this one is cut in one, and the waist and skirt are joined by means of a belt. The pretty plaid and check gingham are most attractive made in this manner.

Waiting doesn't pay. If you neglect the aching back, Urinary troubles, diabetes, surely follow. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve back-ache. Cure every kidney ill.

Many people in this locality recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's one case:

Mrs. Sam'l Hamilton, 146 W. Gamble St., Caro, Mich., says: "I am constantly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends as I was cured through their use of a severe attack of kidney complaint. The money I spent for doctor's treatment and remedies might just as well have been thrown in the street, for I never received any benefit to speak of. My back troubled me greatly and at night the pain was almost unendurable. I tired easily, lost strength and energy and felt miserable in every way. I heard Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended for complaints similar to mine that I knew it would do me no harm to give them a trial. I am now glad that I did so."
