LARGE ATTENDANCE IS ANTICIPATED

BETWEEN 400 AND 500 ODD FELLOWS HERE WEDNESDAY.

Two Special Trains Will Bring Many Visitors From Tuscola and Sanilac Counties.

The twenty-first anniversary meeting of the Thumb Association I. O. O. F. at Cass City next Wednesday promises to be largely attended if the weather conditions are in any way satisfactory. Lodges from Vassar and Caro have made arrangements for a special train on the M. C. R. R. which will bring the Odd Fellows from those towns to Owendale in time to make connections with the morning train on the P., O. & N. R. R. It was necessary to guarantee 100 passengers before the request for a special was granted. Present indications are however, that there will be a larger attendance from those points. It is estimated that about 80 members will board the train at Vassar, aside from the 40 or 50 who have expressed their intention of representing the Vassar lodge, some 30 or 40 are expected from Millington and Tuscola. Caro expects to send 60 or more.

Reports from Marlette and Brown City give local officers reasons to believe that the special train from that direction will bring 175 or more from those two lodges. Members of the Kingston, Clifford, Mayville and Silverwood lodges are also expected on this special which will arrive here about nine o'clock.

It is expected that there will be between 400 and 500 Oddfellows here at this celebration.

Rebekah lodges at Marlette, Caro, Brown City and other points will be present also and participate in the day's program.

EARLY CLOSING MOVEMENT

Three Nights a Week Off Favored by Many.

Rev. A. O. Knapp is deeply interested in an early closing movement for Cass City business men and their employes in which they may close their business places during the evening hours for half the week during the summer months. He has interviewed a majority of those interested and found them in sympathy with such a movement.

The business man and his clerks do not remain in the stores during the evening hours through choice, but because of the conditions which make such long hours seem necessary. A great deal of the trading which is done in the evening might just as well be done during the day time. And if it is necessary to visit the stores during the evening hours, there would still remain three evenings of the week in which to do so.

H. S. Wickware reported on his return from a trip to Saskatchewan a few years ago that business men in that territory closed their stores every evening at six o'clock except on Saturday.

Deckerville has instituted an early closing movement for Thursday nights and the Recorder carries a notice that the business places close on that night at 6:30 p. m.

Bad Axe is considering a movement of this nature also. The Tribune said in its last issue:

"There is quite a well defined movement afoot in Bad Axe for early closing for at least half of the week during the summer months. The idea of course has always been popular with the clerks who see no fun in being on duty and on their feet from 14 to 17 hours per day, but lately a great many of the proprietors and managers appear to be taking a similar view. They claim that apart from the long hours of work and separation from their families, the business which comes after 6 o'clock could just as well come before that hour, and that at best there is scarcely enough trade evenings to pay for lights and expenses.

"It is also evident that the farmers look upon early closing with much more favor than they did a few years ago. This fact was demonstrated last winter at the farmers' institute when a resolution was passed favoring early closing for three nights of the week. It is very likely that Bad Axe business men will soon take action in the matter and no doubt in favor of the movement."

TUBERCULOSIS SUNDAY, APRIL 30

TO BE OBSERVED IN 200,000 CHURCHES.

Subject of Tuberculosis and Its Prevention to be Discussed on That Day.

April 30th has been set aside this year as "Tuberculosis Day," and will be observed in 200,000 churches in the country in a manner similar to that of "Tuberculosis Sunday" in 1910, when over 40,000 sermons were preached on the prevention of consumption.

In one respect Tuberculosis Day will differ from Tuberculosis Sunday of 1910. Instead of requesting the churches to give the Tuberculosis cause a special service, the National Association is going to ask this year that meetings, at which the subject of tuberculosis and its prevention can be discussed, be held Sunday, April 30th, or any other Sunday near that date, either in the week preceding or the week following. "What we want," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, Executive Secretary of the National Association, "is to have this whole subject of tuberculosis discussed in all of the 200,000 churches the United States at as nearly the same time as possible. This does not mean that a stated service must be given to this work, though that might be desirable, but that any minister, or other authority whom he may invite, can present the problem to his congregation before or after his regular service, or any day within the week preceding or following April 30."

CASS CITY WITHDRAWS

Leaves the Tuscola County Athletic Association.

The following statement regarding the action of the Cass City high school in withdrawing from the Tuscola County Athletic Association has been given to the Chronicle by an interested party:

"At a meeting of the superintendents and student delegates representing the County Athletic Association, affairs took a serious turn. After two or three necessary amendments to the constitution had been adopted, the question of the place for holding the annual field meet was discussed. Caro had the meet the first three years of the association while Vassar had it last year. We hoped to have the meet last year in Cass City, but were outvoted in the matter. This year we felt that Cass City was entitled to the honor and this belief was shared by a majority of the Board of Control. The Board of Control, according to the constitution, have the power to decide the matter, but when it was voted upon by the delegates, Cass City was defeated. We felt that the meet should rightly go to Cass City, and rather than yield to the vote, we withdrew from the association."

MAY 2 NAMED FOR ARBOR DAY

GOVERNOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION FIXING DATE.

Calls Attention to Desirability of Protecting Birds; Warning to Campers.

Governor Osborn has issued his Arbor Day proclamation in which he designates May 2nd as the day to be observed and says:

"The importance of the proper observance of an Arbor day is becoming more apparent every year. The problem of conservation of our natural resources is one of national proportions, and faithful remembrance of the day is furnishing the people of our commonwealth with a clearer understanding of the economic value of forest and bird preservation. "While the purpose of the day is to stimulate the pride and interest of the people, the state should also be concerned in the adoption of a far-sighted policy of conservation and reforestation, thereby creating value as well as adding comfort and beauty for the benefit of present and future generations.

"For the first time in the history of Michigan, the governor is requested by senate resolution (No. 55, introduced by Senator L. Whitney Watkins) to call attention to the importance of protecting and encouraging song and insectivorous birds, not only for their economic, but for their aesthetic value. This is a commendable action. It is desirable to teach an intelligent appreciation of the pleasures and benefits to be derived from birds. Most birds do more good than harm. The balance of value is clearly in favor of even all the hawks, except two. It is much better to let a harmful bird escape than to run the risk of killing a bird of value. Great care should be exercised that birds are not killed or molested in the nesting places. A person who will put up bird boxes and otherwise take an interest in our feathered friends will be well repaid. Every farmer should be a bird guardian. To be interested in and kind to birds is a sign of gentleness and makes one better.

"Tree planting on private grounds is recommended and it is requested that all public schools and places of learning throughout the state will hold appropriate exercises to call attention to the importance of saving our birds and trees. Especial attention is called to the forest fire laws. Campers should exercise care in selecting a place for a fire and should extinguish it before leaving. Nor should trees and shrubs be marred by hacking with an ax or otherwise injured."

FAIR MEN MEET.

Organized Northern Michigan Association of Fairs.

A meeting of officers of several fairs in Michigan met at the Bancroft Hotel at Saginaw Tuesday and formed an organization known as the Northern Michigan Association of Fairs. J. D. Pilmore of Bay City was elected president, J. C. Corkins of Cass City secretary, and W. E. Davis of Everett treasurer.

The object of the association is to arrange for the holding of the fairs in the territory covered by the organization so that there will be as little conflict of dates as possible and to establish a circuit for race horses and special attractions.

The second Tuesday in January, 1912, was named as the date for the next meeting of the association. Officers of the fairs at Gaylord, Cass City, Imlay City, Caro, Bay City, Everett, Standish, Elkton, Deckerville, Bad Axe and Midland were present.

Representatives of several companies handling special attractions interviewed the fair men at this meeting. S. Champion of this city was among the representatives. He is making contracts for the Darling Animal Circus.

OWENDALE BOY INJURED PLAYING WITH DYNAMITE.

Unionville Citizens Send Petition to Congressman Fordney; Other Thumb Notes.

Thos. Mapley reports that he sold two colts 9 months old, to Arthur VanBlaricon near Deford for $180. This last sale brings Mr. Mapley's receipts up to $748 from his brood mare for 5 years.—Kingston News.

At a regular meeting of the common council of Crosswell, the council instructed the street committee to secure and have erected in the proper places signs bearing the names of the different streets. These signs will be placed on street corners and will be put up as soon as possible.

At the regular council meeting held Thursday evening Mayor Southworth of Crosswell filed a petition asking for a recount on the vote of mayor in the different wards of the city. This action of Mr. Southworth's was somewhat of a surprise as few were aware that there was any question about the result as announced on election night. The recounting took place Monday evening and as a result the majority of William Hoodless was reduced by one.—Jeffersonian.

Can a justice of the peace hold the office of town clerk? That is the question which is bothering the good people of Lexington. Henry E. Chase, deputy attorney general, takes the ground that he cannot on account of the offices being incompatible, and the intent of all laws are that no man has a right to two votes. In this particular case one of the justices whose term expires next July was elected clerk at the last election. Ordinarily both offices entitle him to act as a member of the township board.

Henry Arndt, whose parents have contracted to work beets about seven miles from Owendale this summer, met with a serious accident Monday, while playing with a dynamite cap. The boy with several companions found a cap and to see what it would do, hit it with a hammer, and the result was, the young Arndt's right hand was nearly torn to pieces. The boy was rushed to this town and taken to Dr. Mueller's office where it was treated. At present he is doing as well as can be expected, and will pull through, providing no other complications will arise.—Herald.

"A petition has been sent me from Unionville, Tuscola county," said Congressman Fordney of the eighth district in discussing Canadian reciprocity in Washington a few days ago, "and the accompanying letter explained that the petition had been presented to every person voting at the spring election. Every voter with one lone exception petitioned against reciprocity. The grange near Corunna secured the services of a former mail carrier to circulate an anti-reciprocity petition among the farmers. He secured every signature on his former mail route, upwards of 150 in number. Among the signers were 33 Democrats."

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Murray of near Cumber, father and mother of Peter Murray, the young lad who was killed in a runaway accident March 15, were in Uby Monday to look up evidence to contradict a shameful story told by an Anti-Saloon speaker at a meeting in Cass City during the local option campaign. They state that the assertion was made by the speaker that the young man was drunk when killed and held his death up as an awful example of the death-dealing power of the saloon. The almost heart-broken parents are almost crazed over the report and the grief of the mother would melt a heart of stone. They were furnished with the sworn testimony of the witnesses before the coroner's jury which was conclusive that the boy had gotten no whiskey in Uby and that drink was in no way responsible for his death.—Courier.

"Our Fred" Sprints 50 Yards to Do Heroic Act.

Under the caption, "Sidelights on the Day's Doings in Michigan," the following paragraph appeared in the Detroit News a few days ago:

"Alma—While waiting the passing of a passenger train, a live spark fell upon the unprotected head of Miss Helena Gilray, a co-ed from the Soo. The last coach had just passed when Miss Gilray discovered that her hair was afire. Losing all presence of mind, she ran screaming up Superior street. Two college men, Fred Striffler, of Cass City, and Robert King, of Hudson, attracted by her screams, started after her, and after a 50-yard sprint succeeded in overtaking the young woman. One grabbed her while the other smothered the fire in her hair with his coat. She was not seriously burned."

Tuscola Co. Farmer

The Tuscola County Farmer is experiencing a sort of "up in the air" feeling this week. My intentions last week were, as you all know, to get some of those California cattle with safety valve equipment, but just now I have a letter from the Wright brothers, who want me to be their guest on an airship trip across the sea in July, 1954, and this proposition sort of puts my mind off everything else that's happened between now and afterwhile. They want me to report the trip for the Chronicle and the Paris newspapers and my pay will be so big that if the dollars were piled one on top of the other there wouldn't be enough brains beneath the moon to calculate the height.

All this looks pretty good to me, but I have one big fault that might throw all my prospects in the soup and that is that I was born 50 years too soon. The big question that I have to battle with is, how am I going to live another 45 years when I am 55 already. And if I drink Florida cows' milk now and trot along another 45 autumns is that any proof that the Wright brothers will behave themselves and not break their necks before that time?

When a man gets into such a stew as this he always consults the womenfolk for a calm answer and so at the breakfast table I put the question before Lena, lengthwise, crosswise, endwise, and was just going to turn it sideways, when she put in a word edgewise and that settled everything—except the coffee. Well, I guess there will be no airship excursion for me—unless I drink enough Florida cows' milk to be the last one in the family. But you can't fool the cook, for she is fiddling around Florida cows' milk too. And that isn't all by a far shot. We are getting so careful around this diggin that an accident insurance agent would have to live on wind to accidentally make his living here.

We are beginning to appreciate life so much that death couldn't touch us with a ninety-foot fence rail. I am trying to outlive Lena and she is trying to outlive me. If I live the longest I will get an airship ride across the sea, a pile of money, and might see the inside of a whale's stomach, thus ending my career in head-cheese fashion. If Lena lives the longest she will collect $247.73 life insurance, wear conventional black, and carry out her agreement not to make coo coo eyes at another living soul except our pet cat. The race is off!

Alas! here is the rub again: Lena being seven years younger is seven years ahead of me, so I will have to live a mighty fast life to catch up and pass during that time. With that impression I scanned the sky this morning and all looked serene to me. The fog that rose from White creek mingled with the zephyrs that blew o'er the turnip patch, and off they scampered, like children in June. My thoughts were resting, sweet sunbeams stole over my eyebrows, kissed the bridge of my nose and laughed in my face. In that beautiful frame of mind I whistled "Gander in the Hay," hitched up old Dick and drove to Deford to see a doctor. "Doc," said I, "how can I live a fast life?" Doc looked at me a while and the sky turned gray. And that isn't all; for what Doc told me put tears in my whiskers and cramps in my heart. He told me that the man who lives a fast life will meet an early grave.

Now, what in the world am I going to do? I can't beat Lena by being slow and I can't beat Lena by being fast. When other people are in such a pickle they commit suicide, but I'll lose out even at that, for the minute I hang myself to the wash line Lena wins. The Tuscola County Farmer is a crackerjack at answering questions, but he's stuck at last. The first reader of the Chronicle who will help him out of this muddle will secretly get Lena's recipe for making hand-cheese without using the hands.

In the meantime I will keep the airship proposition away from the St. Louis papers and wait for your message. The hand-cheese recipe is waiting, too. Let's trade. I will be in town Saturday.

Wash the Blood

Aching and enfeebled muscles should remind you of slowness of tissue repair. Eruptions of the skin and catarrh of the mucous membranes show diminished nerve power in the tissues.

In health or disease there is need of an internal bath. This is best obtained by drinking a glass of pure spring water with one or two teaspoonfuls of San-Jak 30 to 60 minutes before breakfast, washing the blood. This passes quickly from the stomach and stimulates the bowels to increased peristalsis, overcoming constipation and its attendant ills. It is quickly absorbed and entering the blood stream bathes the cells of the liver and heart, then passes to the brain and washes out the cobwebs and awakens to new life every cell in the body.

MAN

Does not wear out like a piece of machinery by constant disintegration for he is self renewing. When he loses his ability in self renewal or failed in the process of making young blood, the nerve tissue is not sufficiently nourished and his strength and health falls.

The Sea Otter's Cabbage.
Off the Alaskan coast and among the Aleutian islands grows a great brown seaweed called the sea otter's cabbage. On the surface of the water floats a barrel shaped air vessel six or seven feet long, from which grows a mass of foliage consisting of forty or fifty great fronds, each one of which may be from thirty to fifty feet in length. Upon the air vessel the sea otter lurks while it pursues its vocation of fishing for a living. The whole floating mass is anchored by a slender cordlike stalk that is attached to the rocks far below. This anchor line often exceeds 300 feet in length and is so strong and slender that sections of it are cured and used by the Aleutian islanders as fishing lines.

The Collector's Wife

She Was a Very Quiet Body, but Had a Head on Her Shoulders.

By ELINOR STEWART CATON
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

News came that cholera had overstepped the boundary between Asia and Europe and had gained a foothold in Italy. Orders were issued to the medical officers along the American coast to quarantine every ship arriving from Mediterranean ports and to permit no sick person to enter the country without submitting the patient to a thorough test for the dreaded disease.

One autumn day, when a storm was sweeping the coast of New Hampshire, Jeremiah Whipple, newly appointed collector of a little port of New Hampshire, opened the window of his bedroom to more clearly examine a vessel that had just cast anchor in the harbor. She was a small steamer, and at her peak was the United States flag, upside down, which Whipple knew to be a signal of distress. Taking up a spyglass, he brought it to bear on the vessel and saw a group of persons standing amidships uncovered.

Then suddenly the group scattered, several of them going to a boat that hung on its davits, lowering it and manning it. The next move was the lowering of an oblong box into the boat, where it was reverently received by the crew. Lastly, a man, evidently an officer, took his place in the stern of the boat, grasped the tiller ropes, and the boat moved away from the ship.

"Patience," said the collector to his wife, "I guess they's got the cholera on board that vessel. They's put up a distress signal, and there, too, goes up a yellow sick flag."

"You're not going to let any of 'em land, be you?" asked the wife, blanching.

"Not till a medical officer comes. They were to send one today."

The boat pointed straight for the shore, at one moment its bow shooting up toward the sky, the next diving down toward the bottom of the bay. When it came within half a mile of the shore, Whipple, armed with his badge of authority, went down to the dock to warn them to keep off. He had never before been in a position of trust, and he felt that the keeping out of an epidemic which might sweep away thousands of his countrymen rested upon his shoulders. As soon as the party came within hearing he shouted:

"You can't land here!"
A tall, thin man rose in the bow of the boat, took out a bandanna handkerchief, wiped his eyes and said:

"We do not desire to remain ashore longer than to bury the body contained in this box. My wife was taken down with cholera six days out of Naples. Fearing that she would die, she exacted from me a promise that I would not permit her to be buried at sea. Both the officers and crew of the ship have respected her wish, and I now beg that you will permit me to inter the remains here-on the shore."

Even if the collector had been more familiar with the duties of his office it is questionable if he would have felt any certainty with regard to the disposition of this case. He felt a dread of cholera and was anxious to get rid of the party as soon as possible. There could be no violation, so far as he could see, in either the revenue or quarantine laws. The party need not be searched since none of them asked to be permitted to remain ashore. It was possible that if allowed to land they might make a break for the interior, but this in the case of a burial party was not to be considered.

"I guess you can bury it up on that little knoll there," said Jeremiah, "if you'll be quick about it."

The thin man wept tears of thankfulness at the permission, the party brought the box ashore and, bearing it to the designated spot, dug a grave. Then, all standing uncovered, it was lowered to its last resting place, after which the party filed back to the dock, where the mourner again tearfully thanked the collector for his kindness and, waving a last farewell to the grave on the knoll, was pulled away to the ship.

During the scene Patience Whipple was looking out of the window watching the landing, the burial and the departure of the party. When Jeremiah returned to the house he sat down before the fire, feeling a sad comfort in having permitted a fellow being to carry out a promise to his dying wife. Patience was doing her morning duties and made no comment on what had passed. Then Jeremiah went to his little custom house on the dock, where he sat reading a newspaper, for since few, if any, goods ever came into the port he had no great weight on his shoulders. When he returned to his home for the noon meal his wife said to him:

"Jerry, if these men had been smugglers and had run away from the coast with diamonds in their pockets and the government found it out, what would they do with you?"

"Give me the grand bounce,"
"And what would they do with you if you'd let in the cholera?"
"It would 'a' been the same grand bounce."

"You took a risk out o' the kindness of your heart, didn't you?"
"Yes."

"With nothin' to gain and all to lose."

"Yes."

"But suppose you'd 'a' caught 'em with something valuable on 'em."

"The goods would have been confiscated by the government."

"And you wouldn't get any of it?"

"No."

"That's a kind of a heads I lose, tells you win business, isn't it?"

"Mebbe so."

That night Patience Whipple said that little Billy seemed croupy and she would sleep with him in a room by themselves, while the father slept in the room with the little girl. Jeremiah awoke in the morning, evidently feeling very comfortable.

"Wife," he said, "how good it makes a man feel to do a kind act. I went to sleep last night thinkin' o' that poor feller that I let bury his wife, and I was thankful that I'd taken the risk and given him the satisfaction o' keepin' in his promise."

"You surely took a big risk, Jerry," replied the wife with a yawn.

"Didn't you sleep well last night?" he asked.

"Not very. Billy was breathin' hard and coughin' all night."

"Sorry," remarked the husband sympathetically.

After breakfast, when Jerry went down to his office, he noticed some loose earth on the knoll where the burial had taken place the day before. He went up there and discovered that the grave was open to its very bottom and the box had been removed. Turning to the harbor, he discovered that the ship which had been anchored there the evening before had also departed. He went in to his wife and said excitedly:

"By gum, Patience, those fellows were smugglers!"

"What makes you think so?" asked the wife.

"The grave has been robbed. It was a trick. Like enough the box had no corpse in it, but was full of dutiable goods. Some confederate has taken it out."

"Well," said Patience, wiping a dish, "mebbe after you've been a collector for a spell you won't get taken in so easy."

"Nobody but you and me knows anything about it," rejoined Jerry thoughtfully. "I must go right out and fill up the grave. I wouldn't have the secret get out for a thousand dollars."

Taking a shovel, he went out to the knoll, glanced about to see if any one was looking and, feeling satisfied that he was not observed, filled up the hole.

"By gum," he said to himself as he walked back to his house, "that was the slickest trick I ever heard of. I wonder Patience didn't get on to it. She is generally pretty wide awake, but this time they caught her nappin' as well as me."

"Patience," he said, "I wish we'd 'a' got on to those fellers. I might 'a' got some promotion."

"I guess that's all you'd 'a' got. You wouldn't 'a' got any of the goods."

Whipple looked more disturbed over the matter than his wife. His salary as collector was infinitely small, and there was not much comfort for him in life, his wife having a hard time to clothe and educate the children and make ends meet. Besides, the government might be informed of what had been done and he would lose his position. On the whole, he was as much depressed over the result as he had been elated at having done a good action.

One day Patience told her husband that she must go to a neighboring city to visit a dentist. He groaned, not knowing where the necessary funds were to come from. But Patience kissed him goodbye cheerily and took her departure, leaving him to take care of the children for a whole day.

The next morning Whipple received a document with the United States treasury department's official stamp, dismissing him from his office.

"I knew it!" he moaned. "Somebody saw the whole thing and reported it."

His wife sat down on his lap and put her arms around his neck.

"I reported it, Jerry."

"You?"

"Yes."

"I saw through that snivelin' mourner at once. He overdid his cryin'. As soon as you were in bed that night I went out with a spade and dug up the box. It was so light that I knew it didn't contain a body. I carried it to the old boathouse and hid it up in one of the rottin' boats. The next day I went and opened it and found it full of laces and jewels. I wrote a letter to the government under an assumed name, tellin' them that I knew where smuggled goods were hidden and would tell them if they would give me half. They agreed, and I met them yesterday and took them to the goods. They valued them at over $80,000 and offered me $30,000 down to settle. I took it, and here's the check."

She held a United States treasury check before his astonished eyes. When he had recovered something of his equanimity, Patience continued:

"Two things would show that the goods had been smuggled in past you—the place where they were hidden and my real name, which must be disclosed. But before I gave either I secured a promise that nothin' more than dismissal should be visited on you. I, not bein' the collector, could sell the secret to whom I pleased or keep the goods, as I liked. They acknowledged that they had no case against me and didn't know who I was until all was settled."

"By gum, Patience, you're a brick!"

Mr. Whipple, having capital, went to the city, became a politician and is now collector of a large port. He has eliminated all trickery among smugglers in his department. But it is understood that credit for this happy state of affairs is due to his wife.

SHORT OF MEN.

Two Irishmen died. One went to heaven and the other went to the other place. Mike called down from heaven and asked Pat how he was getting along. "I'm shoveling coal," said Pat. "Do you have to work very hard?" "Not very," he said, "we have shifts. I only work about three hours a day." Pat then inquired of Mike how he was making it. "I'm sweeping down the golden stairs." "Do you have to work very hard?" "Yes," said Mike, "I have to work 18 hours a day; we are short of men up here."

J. C. Corkins, S. Champion and Joseph Frutchev attended the meeting of the Northern Michigan Association of Fairs at Saginaw Tuesday. On Wednesday Mr. Frutchev, accompanied by Ted Snelling of Kingston, left for Lansing to attend a meeting of the wool buyers of the state.

Alex Miller and John McCrea left Saturday for Milwaukee, from which point they will be employed in sailing. The boat on which they will sail is the "Kennedy," the largest boat on the Great Lakes. On Friday evening several young men, friends of Mr. Miller, met at his home and spent several pleasant hours as his guest.

G. E. Perkins received a telegram Wednesday from his son, Lieut. Ernest A. Perkins, stationed at the navy yards at Norfolk, Va., that he had been ordered to California and that he would spend two hours in Chicago Friday while enroute. Mr. Perkins expected to leave for Chicago yesterday afternoon to spend the two hours with his son. He thinks Ernest will be sent to the international boundary line and may view some of the Mexican troubles. Ernest wrote his father several weeks ago that he wired the war department that he wished to be numbered with the next regiment mustered out. Evidently he has been given the opportunity now, but it is probable that he is not alone for the telegram he sent Wednesday read, "We are ordered, etc."

Caro.

Superintendent Schall of the Caro schools, gave a fire drill Monday afternoon for the benefit of several members of the board of education who called at his office. In one minute and twenty seconds from the time of the alarm was given, every pupil in both buildings was out side, in orderly line and ready to return. At the first sound of the gong two boys dashed down the stairs opened and hooked the outside doors so they could not swing shut and cause a jam; ten of the larger high school boys made their way to the office, who, in case of fire, would each take a room previously assigned and see that every person had left that room. When that was done it would be their duty to throw as many wraps from the window as possible and help save books and other equipment. Altogether it was an inspiring sight and one calculated to relieve the fears of any mother anxious for the safety of her children.

The Johnston-Slocum company, in addition to their steel horse collar and other harness devices, are putting on the market a fireless range, said to be the only one made of steel. It has removable compartments for picnic and automobile trips and is equipped with aluminum utensils. It is a large range, about the size of an ordinary stove, and saves 80 per cent of fuel and time.

Word has been received from Contractor J. Collins, of Flint, that he will probably be here about April 15 to resume work on the city sewer with his trench machine, which has stood in a field near the sugar factory since last fall. It is expected the ground will be sufficiently free of frost for work to be resumed next week on Butler street near the M. C. depot.

Dan McLellan has rented "The Mint" on the corner of Washington and Sixth streets, Bay City. His bonds have been approved and he will open up for business the first of May. The Hotel Caro will continue as at present.

Bad Axe.

A number of the high up officials of the P. M. railroad were in Bad Axe a short time Wednesday morning on their trip to determine how much of that eight million loan is to be spent on this division. The party included Geo. W. Perkins, of New York, representing the Morgan interests, Pres. Cotter, Gen. Mgr. Trump, and Div. Supt., Merrick of the P. M. each in his private palace car. None of the officials left their cars at the station and the train stopped only long enough to take water, going on to Saginaw.

A report is current that Louie Bisenah, a former proprietor of the Irwin House, may return to Bad Axe and re-enter the hotel business here. It is said that he has been seeking options on a site for a large and up-to-date hotel.

The fire loss sustained by the Farmers' Co-operative Elevator Co. has been adjusted and preliminary work of re-building the elevator has commenced.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

M. C. Graves, Huron Ave., Vassar, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family for many years and they have always brought satisfactory results. In my case they proved to be the remedy that was needed when my kidneys were disordered, as the result of an attack of the grippe. Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of endorsement."

MRS. LOUISE M. BALLARD

Well Known North Branch Lady Passed Away at Detroit.

Mrs. Louise M. Ballard of North Branch, wife of the late Charles W. Ballard, passed away Sunday afternoon, April 9, in Detroit, where she occupied apartments at 35 Washington Avenue, and had been taking treatment under the care of Dr. M. K. Guenan for the past two months.

Besides the unremitting services of skilled nurses, she had almost the constant presence and loving attention of those who were near and dear to her. Her son and daughter, F. C. Ballard and Mrs. M. R. Deo, were at her bedside when the end came.

While the end, no doubt, was hastened by an attack of pneumonia which she suffered quite recently, the primary cause of death was carcinoma, a type of the same dread malady which proved fatal to her husband, and the first symptoms of which made their first appearance in her case about five years ago, some months subsequent to his demise.

Mrs. Ballard was universally beloved by all who knew her as a kind neighbor and considerate friend. She was a woman of superior intellectuality, ever devoted to her home and family, and unostentatiously from her ample means sought out and contributed generously to deserving charities.—Gazette.

A Mutual Surprise.

A Springfield woman grew suspicious of her husband and believed him to be in the habit of kissing a pretty servant girl in her employ.

so she decided to watch him and catch him in the act. She heard him enter the kitchen quietly one evening when the pretty servant girl was out. She immediately placed a shawl over her head, slipped down the back stoop and, with matches in hand, entered the dark kitchen by the back door and was almost immediately seized and kissed in the most ardent manner.

Bent on administering a terrible rebuke, the enraged wife tore loose from his embrace and struck a match. There, with his knees knocking together, stood the servant girl's beau.—Boston Herald.

Hope.

Yes, death is at the bottom of the cup, And every one that lives must drink it up, And yet between the sparkle at the top And the black lees where lurks that bitter drop There swims enough good liquor, heaven knows, To ease our hearts of all our other woes. The bubbles rise in sunshine at the brim, That drop below is very far and dim, The quick fumes spread and shape us such bright dreams, That in the glad delirium it seems As though by some deft slight, if so we willed, That drop untraced might be somehow spilled. —W. D. Howells.

The Villain Still Pursued Her.

Channing Pollock cites a certain melodrama produced a few years ago on Fourteenth street, New York, as containing the busiest and most inconsistent villain ever created.

In the first act he tied the beautiful heroine to a railroad track just as the limited was due. In the second he lured her into an old house, then locked her in an upper room and set the place on fire. In the third he strapped her under a buzzsaw and set the machinery in motion. In the fourth he tore the planking out of the Brooklyn bridge, so that her automobile plunged through to the raging flood below.

In the fifth act he started to make love to her. She shrank from him. "Why do you fear me, Nellie?" he asked.—Success Magazine.

A Solemn Occasion.

When a certain well known comedian who prided himself on his fun making ability was "starring" in Edinburgh his landlord, who seldom attended any public place save the kirk, asked him if he would oblige him with a "pass for the playhouse." This favor was readily granted, and the "gude man" donned his best black suit and witnessed the comedian's two greatest humorous impersonations. Meeting his landlord the next morning, the comedian asked how he liked the performance.

"Well," said the Scotsman, "it pleased me in fac' gey weel, and I consider you played unco' natural-like; but, heigh man, I had a hard job to keep myself frae laughing."

Walking a Chalk Mark.

Frederick S. Isham, the author, avers that this incident happened at one of the tea houses in the Celestial Kingdom. The entrance to the public place was a zigzag walk, so built that the evil spirits may find it more difficult to get in. On the occasion in question two sailors (English) stood at the entrance dubiously.

"Oi say, Bill, just look at the walk!" said one jolly marine, lurching unsteadily.

"What's the matter with it, matey?" asked the second jolly tar. "Looks all right to me."

"You mean it looks straight?" "How should it look, matey? If it ain't it's all in your eye. You've 'ad a drop too much. Come along in. You just follow me."

The zigzag of the second man's gait fitted the angles. He chanced to get started correctly and ended beautifully.

"Right you are, matey!" he said to the other at the door. "It's straight, sure enough. It it 'adn't been Oi'd never got through without 'ittin' the soles."

A Rare Game of Golf.

"When Mark Twain came to Washington to try to get a copyright law passed a congressman took him out one afternoon to Chevy Chase," said a correspondent. "Mark Twain refused to play golf himself, but consented to walk over the course and watch the congressman's strokes. The congressman was rather a duffer. Teeing off, he sent clouds of earth flying in all directions. Then to hide his confusion he said to his guest:

"What do you think of our links here, Mr. Clemens?"

"Best I ever tasted," said Mark Twain as he wiped the dirt from his lips with his handkerchief.—Washington Star.

WHAT WOMEN WEAR.

Hints and Suggestions For Dressing Oneself in the Fashion.

The dull surfaced silks promise to be more fashionable this year than in many a season.

A noticeable style in the new tailored shirt waists is that the cuffs are narrower than those of last season.

The severely plain wide white linen collar and the cuffs to match, which turn back at the elbow on the elbow sleeves, are smart accessories for the simple dress, whether linen or wool.

The soft silks are among the newest and smartest materials for young girls. This dress is made of dotted silk foulard. The skirt consists of a

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Flowers and Butterflies For the Summer Hats—Transparent Sleeves.

No hat will be in style this spring unless it has a hothouse display of flowers and butterflies. Even the wedding hats and the accompanying bridesmaids' head coverings, which are exempt from the wide brim ban, must have the flowers and the butterflies. An outfit of this kind that is being prepared for a certain occasion is made with a trimming of ribbon roses over a drapery of lace. The bride's hat has an immense butterfly of silver cloth.

Sleeves on all evening dresses are very transparent, often being formed of tulle or lace.

Distinctly new and fetching among the fascinating fabrics for children's frocks are the hand embroidered cotton marquisettes that have an eyelet design. These have a white ground with the embroidery done in all the usual colors.

The blouse that is trimmed to give a bolero effect is the very newest. This one is made of two materials, but such treatment is by no means necessary, for the blouse can be made of one material throughout with perfect success. The sleeves and body portion are cut in one. JUDIC CHOLLET.

J. K. OSGERBY TO RETIRE

Will Engage in Other Business at Close of School Year.

At a meeting of the board of education last Monday evening, Superintendent J. K. Osgerby notified the members that he would not be a candidate for the superintendency of the Vassar schools for another year, as it was his intention to retire from school teaching and engage in other business after the close of the present school year. What occupation it is the intention of the superintendent to engage in, has not been made public. It has been understood for some time, however, that Mr. Osgerby was desirous of getting out of the school room on account of his health and taking up some avocation that would give him more out door work. He has been engaged in school work for nearly a quarter century.—Pioneer.
