WILLIAM F. SEED DIED WEDNESDAY

AFTERNOON.

Born on Seed Homestead in Elkland Township Fifty-two Years Ago.

Wm. F. Seed died at the home of his brother, J. E. Seed, early Wednesday morning, at the age of 52 years. Though Mr. Seed has not been in the best of health for the past three years, his illness was not considered serious until about three weeks ago. Since that time he was taken to Ann Arbor where medical treatment was sought, and he returned from that city a week before his death. Cancer trouble was the

his wife, Mr. Seed went to Hancock where he was employed as a car inspector for four years. Since that time he has made his home with his father, Hugh Seed, sr., managing the latter's farm. Mr. Seed was of a quiet, retiring disposition, and a Boyd H. Bingham and Miss Laura highly respected citizen.

Trains Running Slowly Prevents Loss of Life. Injured All Able to Be Taken Home.

The P. O. & N. railway suffered a wreck at 4:05 Monday afternoon when a freight and passenger train met headon, a half mile south of Kingston. Only the fact that the trains were running slowly, prevented a loss of life. Both train crews saved themselves by jumping and although nine persons were injured, only one was seriously hurt.

The injured are: Mrs. E. Carolan, Cass City, hand bruised; Mrs. Z. Bartholomew, Kingston, nose cut; Mrs. B. J. Flumerfelt, 175 Lysander street, Detroit, injured about the PROPERTY OWNERS eyes; Mrs. George English, Kingston, jaw bruised; Charles H. Halsey, baggageman, Pontiac, legs and hands sprained; D. E. Glass, Pontiac, brakeman of passenger train, leg injured; E. C. Shearer, Pontiac, mail clerk, back injured. Engineer Marshall of the freight train had his face cut by flying glass.

The trains met on a curve a half mile south of Kingston. The engines telescoped and piled five freight cars in the ditch, the passenger coaches remaining on the track. Charles H. Halsey, baggagemanon the passenge train, was thrown to the floor of the coach by the jar and his ankles and wrists were both sprained, but he is not otherwise injured.

As soon as news of the wreck reached Pontiac wrecking train was sent out and Grand Trunk Surgeon Chapman went at once to the scene, other physicinas being summoned from Kingston and Clifford. M. P. C., boarded the steamer at Port Huron and the start through Lake Huron was made. As the boat approached Harbor Beach, however, a storm had arisen, which blew up great whitecaps all over the lake and a few of the more timid souls were quie well pleased to have the ship sheltered behind the great breakwater at this town for an hour or so until the great volume of freight was shifted into the warehouses on the dock. This done the boat pointed her nose out into the lake again and the passage across Thunder Bay was begun. Here the storm was at its height and great waves beat against the sides of the ship. The Astor House and the Lakeview Hotel are both run by Messrs Cable & Son and are very comfortable. There is no suspicion of summer resort graft games in these home-like houses. The Astor House, where the Eastern Michigan Press Club was entertained, is an enormous frame building painted a dazzling white, which is kept spotlessly clean inside and out and which has great cool of the Island. Here is the list of the porches stretching across the entire front. The guest is made to feel at home at once by Mr. Cable and such friendly relations are maintained throughout the stay that it does not seem like a merely commercial affair, but rather a pleasant visit at a W. and Mrs. A. M. Lewis, also of Oxford. Sunday morning was spent in the various churches of the Island and in other drives. Sunday at dinner Secretary Cramton passed to the ladies pound boxes of fine candies with he compliments of the Eastern Michigan Press Club. The candies were from the stores of Gray & Worcester, of Detroit, the Rexall store of the meropolis, which has branches in most of the cities in Michigan and by eason of its enormous output is enabled to furnish high quality candies and other commodities from its own factories at very low prices. In the afternoon a trip was taken to Les Cheneaux Islands, better known as the "Snows." Here more beautiful scenery was found.

The Return. Right on the dot of 8:00 a. m. Monday the tourists reluctantly said goodbye from the decks of the beautiful steamer City of Mackinac to the receding shores of the Island. The trip on the City of Mackinac was even more pleasant than on the City of Alpena because it was taken in daytime and with the accompaniment of alternating fog and sunshine, with the soft tones of fog bells on the various lightships and lighthouses, mingled with the deep bass fog whistle of the steamer. Davis was especially courteous in arranging for the welfare of the party. In the evening a mock trial was held in the after cabin, Editor Homer Harwood, of the Warren Watchman, being the persecuted defendant; G. W. Welsh, of the Fruit Belt, Grand Rapids, the prosecutor: A. W. Wilkinson. of the Chelsea Standard, attorney for the defense; L. C. Cramton, clerk; Fred B. Carr, of the Dundee Reporter, sheriff; C. J. Kirby, of the Monroe Record-Commercial, deputy sheriff; and the writer as judge. In the midst of the trial, which was very funny, the judge ordered the arrest of President Browne and Secretary Cramton and after finding them guilty of contempt of court, sentenced them to carry handsome silk umbrellas, furnished by the club. The Housewife May Use As Much "Gumption" in Spending the Family Income as The Husband Does in Earning It!

"Gumption" is not a slang word, by any means. It is Americanese for "Practical Sense."

If the housewife doesn't use it, generously, in making purchases for the home, she will find the family income ALWAYS insufficient==growingly insufficient!

Imprudence==which is a form of non= gumption==will discount and make furtile even an increase in the family income. For the easiest thing in the world is to drift along, paying a dollar too much for this thing, and a dime too much for that! And this is the invariable practice of those buyers of family supplies who think it "too much trouble to read the ads."

For, you see, the ads are as important to the "buyer" of home supplies as are the market reports to a broker.

Pride of Thomas Jefferson, at University of Virginia.

THE GREATEST MEMORIAL TO THOMAS JEFFERSON THE PATRIOT 自自自自自

THIS season particupatriots whom the nation delights to honor stands high the name of Thomas Jefferson. Enduring forever as his memorial will stand the Declaration of Independence, but his services to his country were so many and so magnificent that a grateful people has enshrined him in its memory second only, perhaps, to his immortal fellow-patriot and statesman, George

That Jefferson is richly deserving of more numerous memorials must be conceded if one but recalls, for a moment the variety of his services to the nation. His services as president of the United States and founder of one of our great political parties commend him to our gratitude as do his diplomatic triumphs and his activity as one of the prime movers in the whole revolutionary movement, but, after all, perhaps his strongest claim upon the admiration of the American people in all generations, past and to come, is as the author of that keystone of our national existence,-the Declaration of Independence.

It is probable that the next decade will witness the provision of an acknowledgment in marble and bronze of the republic's debt to Jefferson that will in some degree make up by its splendor for the tardiness of its creation. However, Jefferson's fame has not waited upon such reminder. As has been said, there are several statues of him in public places; there is an imposing though simple monument which it is worth talking about, had over his grave in the hills of Virginia, its origin in Greece immediately following the defeat of Darius and is as noble a heritage as any man service he devoted his life.

University Jefferson's Memorial

This last-mentioned memorial is the University of Virginia which Jefferson virtually founded and the upthe black cloud of northern barbari- building of which was the project above all others nearest his heart. Ineverything else, became extinct, but deed, it was his desire and avowed induring the middle ages acting was in tention to make this ideal seat of a measure resumed in the form of the learning his monument before pos-"Moralities," or Moral Plays of the terity, and he watched it develop on a Ecclesiastics, and it was from such site he chose almost under the shadow plays that the modern drama was of his beloved home at Little Mountain with all the solicitude which a father might extend to a favorite child. And yet the University of Virginia, despite its noble traditions and

Virginia, which was, by the way, the chemistry, medicine, law, etc. Yet the state legislature of Virginia in the year 1803 but no headway was made with the project until March, 1814, when Thomas Jefferson, the real head and founder of the institution, was elected to the board of trustees and threw himself heart and soul into this labor of love which appealed to him as few enterprises had done in his whole eventful career. Through the wish of Jefferson, Charlottesville, his "home town" in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains, was chosen as the site for the new university and in 1817 the cornerstone of the first building, Central college, was laid, there being present on this occasion not only Thomas Jefferson, but also James Madison and James Munroe, who stand in history with Jefferson as presidents of the United States.

larly, among the great Original Building Still Standing.

The original site of the university was a farm of some two hundred acres, picturesquely located in the "highlands of Albemarle," but this tract was, of course, added to as the requirements of the university demanded. The original building thus auspiciously started is still standing. but having outlived its usefulness for its original function is now utilized as a residence by one of the instructors at the university. This building was designed by Jefferson, who formulated the whole architectural scheme which is in itself sufficient to render the University of Virginia notable.

Indeed, the circumstance that Thomas Jefferson was the architect of the beautiful home of the University of Virginia, as well as the founder of this seat of learning, renders it particularly fitting that it should, in accordance with his wish, be regarded as his enduring monument. Although the fact may not be so well known the versatile Thomas Jefferson was as much a genius in architectural work as he was in literary expression, as evidenced by the Declaration of Independence. He designed his home, the mansion Monticello, which remains to this day a masterpiece of Colonial architecture, and his influence had much to do with the formulation of the plan for the white house at Washington,a building which embodies some of the features found also at Monticello.

Always the Leading Spirit.

Like other great men, Jefferson did not always have his own way, even with his neighbors and fellow-Virginians. He had a hard struggle to have his university, which was known at first simply as Central college, formally accepted as the state university, but he continued his missionary work in behalf of this cause for years, and finally in 1819 the legislature passed a formal act making the new institution a state university in name and in fact. Even after this the undertaking proceded slowly, and it was not until the spring of 1825 that the institution was open to students. At the first meeting of the board of the university Mr. Jefferson was elected rector and until the time of his death in 1826 he directed and dominated the university, not only evolving the entire system of education introduced but actually devising to the minutest details every feature of construction and organization.

In formulating the plan and policy of this seat of learning Jefferson discolleges of the country and it is safe | played that same rare judgment which we see reflected in the Declaration of ficance as the chosen monument of lized, the University of Virginia conthe author of the foundation stone of sisted of eight independent schools,ancient languages, modern languages, The forerunner of the University of mathematics, natural philosophy, speculation, and frequently subject of inquiry, as to the origin of the American flag-whence came the idea of the stars and stripes.

By examining the illustrious pedigree of the Washington family, it will be perceived at once that George Washington's coat-of-arms furnishes the idea and ground work for the present flag of dependent of the flag of St. George. The pedigree of General Washington carries back descent to William Hertburn, lord of the manor of Washington, in the county of Durham, Eng-our country, which his generalship entitled her to wear, and rendered in

From him descended John Washington of Whitfield, in the time of Richard III., and ninth in descent from said John was George, the first president of the United States. The mother of John Washington, who emigrated to Virginia in 1657, and who was great grandmother to the general, was Eleanor Hastings, granddaughter to Francis, second earl of Huntington.

She was the descendant, through Lady Huntington, of George, duke of Clarence, brother of King Edward IV. and King Richard III. by Isabel Neville, daughter and heiress of Richard, earl of Warwick.

Washington, therefore, as well as the descendants of that marriage, are entitled to quarter the arms of Hastings; Tone, earl of Salisbury; Plantagenet; Mortimer, earl of March; Neville, Montague, Beauchamp and

The pedigree, which is full and accurate in regard to dates, gives as it were an epitome of the family. In the old original it is surrounded by a border, ornamented by the shield of arms impaled and implanted by the different ancestors in right of their wives, as well as some of the quarterings borne by their descendants. The coat of-arms of the first John Washington was composed of three stars and stripes. As to colors, they are the mien or impaling of the Plantagenets with the house of Lancaster.

The royal liveries of the former name, derived from the Latin planta genista, or broom-branch, and which symbol was first borne by Foulk, earl of Anjou, were white and red: and those of the latter were white and blue. These three stars and stripes, with their respective colors thus derived, form a part of all the heraldic bearings of the family ever since.

George Washington was entitled, by virtue of traditionary custom—not law in this country—to use his cognizance upon a flag in the army which he commanded; and thus the first national flag ever made and used in America was composed of three stars and three stripes, which those who were versed in heraldry would at once recognize as the proper colors of the general-in-chief of the revolutionary army—the flag of Washington. In due course of time ten others were added and the flag of Washington hecame the flag of the thirteen united colonies.

Since then an increase of the original number has somewhat obscured its parentage, and many are not aware that this originated, from the legitimate armorial bearings of the father of his country, the flag which has cost so many lives to maintain.

Patriot's Letters Made Public. Two letters by John Adams, signer of the Declaration of Independence, one dated "Auteuil, near Paris, April 28, 1785," and addressed to Elbridge Gerry; the other, dated Philadelphia, March 18, 1797, were disposed of recently. They sold, respectively, for $32.50 and $26. In the earlier letter Adams gives his views of the slave trade, and demands that restitution be made for negroes taken from southern states. He also tells why he should be appointed minister to London or Versailles. He mentions the Marquis de Lafavette, and calls Mr. Smith, who had been appointed secretary of the legation to London, "Aidde-camp Knight of Cincinnatus.' The other Adams letter is addressed to Dr. Tufts. After speaking of the yellow fever epidemic in Philadelphia, Adams says:

"Another paroxysm at Paris and the renewal of war! Have a care! What are we to expect from our negotiation? Europe seems to be one burning mountain, whose bowels are full of materials for combination-though they lie inactive for a time you can never know when you are safe, for the next hour or momentmay produce an explosion.'

A FREE Prescription ADVICE

From a physician of 52 years' experience in colleges, sanatoriums and general practice. Weak, nervous men, regain your strength and vigor.

So great was my sympathy for weak men in the early years of my experience that I have made it a special study, and formulated two prescriptions, one for men under 50 and one for men over 50 years of age. In my declining years, I want every man to have the benefit of my long experience. I am now 73 years old and as strong and vigorous as at 40 and the rest of my life will be spent in aiding suffering manhood. I realize that my time is short, but will do all in my power to aid men and women who are helpless and seeking relief. I know there has been a great many disappointed when they thought relief in their grasp, but let me send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of study since I began lecturing to student classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are now pleased to recommend me.

YOU NEED AID. Let me help you to regain your former standing among men. In short, let me assist you to be yourself once more.

If you are suffering from failing memory,

If you are suffering from failing memory, lame back or weakened manhood or nervous difficulties, LET ME SEND YOU A RECIPE in a plain sealed envelope that you can use in your own home. Sir Henry Irving once had an amusing experience in Glasgow. For the part of the young prince in "Charles I" a little Scotch girl had been engaged. She had been carefully coached. and all went well until she appeared in the poignant scene where Mr. Irving as Charles has an agonizing leave taking with his wife and children and goes out to execution. "Promise me,"

Charles says to the little prince, "that and in sorrow at having to leave his you will take care of your mother. And task unfinished he prayed that at the swear that you will never let them least it might be granted to him to make you king while your brother write something which would live to Charles is alive," to which the child is the glory of God when he was dead. supposed to reply, "I'll be torn to Then on the last evening he ever spent pieces first."

Irving only got as far as "promise me sun was setting over the ships that that you will take care of your mother" | lay in the harbor "Abide With Me" when out piped shrilly the annihilating reply, "I'll be tor-r-ren to pieces canton showed the king's colors, but the thirteen red and white stripes symbolized the colonies, whose people were fighting for the rights which as Englishmen they were entitled to. They had not yet declared themselves independent of the mother country, and it was not until after this declaration of independence came that a national flag could be adopted.

From the Cambridge flag the national flag was derived in a natural fashion. The thirteen stripes, one for each colony, alternately red and white, which were a part of the colonial flag. were retained, but the union, instead of showing the king's colors, displayed a new constellation, thirteen stars in a white field. Some have supposed that the stars which formed a part of the coat of arms of General Washington may have suggested the use of stars in the national flag. To Mrs. Betsy Ross, a Philadelphia woman, popular tradition attributes the honor of making the first flag bearing the

Mrs. W. S. Hall, Whittemore, Michigan, had piles for 20 years. She was cured five years ago and has been well ever since.

Mrs. A. B. Swan, Breedsville, Michigan, consulted me over 20 years ago, was given us and the statement of the years ago, was given us as been well ever since. She has given me her sworn statement, indorsed by Mrs. Betsey Brown, Reidsville, Michigan.

Mrs. Wallace Wagner, Colon, Michigan, was given up by the home physicians to sie of bronchial consumption. I treated her for two years some 15 years ago. She can cell you what I did for her.

Lyman C. Howe, of Fredonia, New York, suffered for years with bronchitis, dyspersia and nervous diseases; six years ago he came to my sanitarium and took the lymph. For three months, it has given him a ten years lease of life.

Mrs. Henry Brandt, Royston, Michigan, had chronic diarrhoea for four years and was given up by all the physicians in Hillman and Alpena. I have treated her one year and she is entirely well and wishes others to know what I did for her.

If anyone wishes I will give the names of those I have cured of Epilepsy, Paralysis, Blood Poison, and eye and ear diseases,—and Piles.

Rossini's Equal. Rossini after finishing his great work indulged himself in a long period of leisure and did not write a line of music. A friend once called on him and found him writing his autograph, with a sentiment, at the bottom of some photographs of himself. One of these read, "To M. Pillet Will, my friend and my equal in music."

"What!" cried the visitor. "You are not serious! M. Pillet Will is not your equal in music."

'Certainly he is since I am doing nothing," explained Rossini.

THE UNCANNY STRANGER

By SHIELD ESTHER DUNN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

In the good old colony times when travelers, instead of spinning along smoothly in a parlor car, were bumped over dirt roads in a stagecoach on the post road between New York and Boston, in the state of Connecticut, there stood a tayern. Before it swung a sign on which, under a portrait of King George III., were the words "The Royal Arms." In the room which in those days was called "the bar" sat a number of persons, some drinking from pewter mugs.

"The up coach will be late tonight." said the landlord, going to the door and looking out. "The road is bad enough at any time, but on such a night as this it is well nigh impass-

As he spoke a gust of wind shook the building, and those in the room fortified themselves with a pull at the mugs before them.

"A bad night to be on the road," said a man in a brown coat and buff

"And a merry one for ghosts," put in a red headed, blear eyed person whose wig, being awry, gave evidence that he had drank too much. Those about him looked at him pro-

testingly and with something of awe. "If there's any of 'em about," spoke up a fresh importation from the Emerald Isle. "you're the first of us that they'll be visitin'."

A creaking and a splashing were heard without, and the coach drew up to the door of the tavern. A man of somber appearance descended, from the vehicle and stalked into the bar 'His eyes were set deep in his head and surrounded by dark circles, his cheek bones high, complexion a whitish

"Luggage! I need no baggage. wish lodgings for the night only, and on the morrow I shall proceed on my iourney.' The stranger attracted the attention of every one present.

"There's something queer about him," whispered the man in the brown coat to the Irishman, who was crossing himself with his finger under his coat. The landlord, who was looking over the keys to his rooms with a view to selecting one for the stranger, turned and said:

"No chamber vacant tonight, sir.

"I sleep tonight," replied the guest.

His back was turned to all save the Dollar or upwards. Add to it- landlord, so that no one could see his turn pale and take down the key to his pocket and, sitting down at a ta-

> In a corner sat a young man with a hook nose, a little newspaper and a mug of grog before him, who did not seem to share the superstitious dread of the others for the mysterious stranger. Instead of shivering this young man looked at him almost insultingly. The somber man returned his gaze with his great melancholy eyes, but failed to strike terror into him. "What d'ye mean," whispered the Irishman, "by angerin' the man? Mebhe he's a ghost.'

"Ghost!" replied the other contemptuously. "I'll pull his nose for a shilling. There are no such things as

The somber man turned. "You would pull my nose for a shilling?" he cried, his deep set eyes lighting up with a flare. "I'll give you a chance to pull your grandfather's nose for £20." "My grandfather has been dead these thirty years and is not likely to come back to earth for the purpose of getting his nose pulled."

"For £20, I say, I'll have him here. If I fail, £20 is yours."

"I have but 5s. 6d. Will that serve?" "No. Now cease your talk." "Come, neighbors," said the man with the hook nose, "can't you help me to show up this pretender?" The cupidity of those present overbalanced their superstition, and they began to feel in their pockets for coins. Twenty pounds was made up among them, each man to receive as much in addition at the winning of the bet as he put in, and handed to the man with the hook nose. The stranger produced as much. "Who shall hold the stakes?" asked the hook nosed man. "Hold them yourself."

"All right." And the hook nosed man pocketed the money. "Now," said the stranger, handing him his key, "go to No. 12 and stay there till the bet is won or lost." The hook nosed man did as he was bid, and the stranger, sitting down in the corner left vacant, apparently sank into a slumber. Presently a terrible shrick was heard on the floor above. It was repeated again and again. When those in the bar had mastered their door of No. 12. It was locked and to test my disposition any further, and Mrs. J. B. Cootes and Mr. and Mrs. bolted. The shrieks had ceased. Then the landlord brought an ax and bat-

Neil Walker had been courting me for some time, but no proposal came. One day he told me where the hitch

"Amiability," he said, "is indispensable in a wife. How can I know be fore marriage that you are amiable?" "You show a great deal of good sense," I replied. "There is a great deal in what you say. Come and take up your quarters with us for a month. There you will see me every day and often when I am off my guard. I shall be compelled to show my natural disposition.".

"And as soon as the month is over we will enter upon that other month called the honeymoon," he cried enthusiastically, and, throwing his arms around my neck, he covered my face with kisses. Now, we women have a way of doing things by strategy. I didn't feel any more fear of betraying a disagreeable nature with Neil in the house than when he came to call on me. knew well enough that matrimony is different from courtship and that when two people settle down to work in double harness there is going to be a good deal of friction, for awhile, at any rate. I thought it a fine chance to let Neil see before marriage that these frictions are not all the wife's fault.

I was especially equipped to do this for my little brother Jack was at home, and I well knew that if Nei! could stand Jack's antics without losing his temper he would be quite able to stagger under my most glaring Neil came and settled himself for the trial-my trial. He hadn't said anything about being tried himself. and I didn't tell him that he was to be under observation. Neil went to business in the morning, returning about 5 in the afternoon. Jack took him in charge as soon as he arrived. Neil tried to get rid of him, but Jack stuck like a leech. Neil would be reading poetry to me in the garden. Jack would come up behind him and with a stick and a horse's hair and a tiny ball of paper would make him think that a bumblebee was lighting on his nose. Jack sneaked into Neil's room and filled his underclothing (on the inside) with burs. Neil got the clothing on. then had to take it off again and was half an hour picking out the burs. He was late to business that day and came home in a very bad humor.

By such innocent juvenile expressions of a child's nature did Jack ingratiate himself into Neil's disfavor. Neil remarked that the boy had been very badly brought up, whereupon I simply said that it was evident he didn't like children. To me these little pranks were delightful. Neil said that, the boy being my brother, I was doubtless used to him.

Jack during this preparation for a honeymoon found a boy he would rather play with than annoy Neil. So candy every day and the promise of a football at the end of the season to keep him at home during this test of my disposition. Besides, I was obliged Jack poured sand in his ear. Then Jack would steal up behind Neil and slip a small piece of ice down his back under his clothing. And one day when Neil and I were walking over the lawn together Jack, who was watering the grass with the hose, turned it on my companion and drenched him. This was the climax of a long term of annoyances, and Neil could not have kept his equanimity any longer unless he had been descended from the angels. He broke loose in a profusion of Bible quotations in which the word "damnation" occurred oftenest. Then he ran after Jack, vowing that he would knock every bit of spirit out of his villainous little body. "Mr. Walker," I exclaimed severely, last week. "how can you speak so of the dear child!" "Child!" he cried. "Hellion, rather!" "Mr. Walker," I continued in a dignified tone, "I am disappointed. I sup- er from Iowa at present. posed that your disposition was as gentle as a lamb's. Our engagement is at an end. Had I married a man with such a temper 1 should have looked forward to the rest of my life with horror."

These last words were the same as he had used to me, but he didn't remember them.

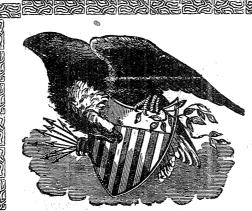

"And had I married you," he retorted, forgetting himself in a new burst of anger, "one in whose veins flows the blood of that little viper, I

THE MODEL CLOTHING & SHOE COMPANY. CASS CITY, MICH.

Solemnized by Rev. L. A. Townsend at His Former Home.

On the 14th of June at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents in Bethel, Mr. and Mrs. Williamson Nagle, Miss Savilla Nagle was married to Orson Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Smith, of Ovid. Rev. Luman Townsend, a former resident of Bethel, but now of Cass City, Mich., per formed the ceremony. Promptly at 2 o'clock while the wedding march was being played by Mrs. Ida Hoyt the bridal party, accompanied by Mr. Henry Nagle, brother of the bride, and Miss Ruby Smith, sister of the groom, took their places in the presence of the neighbors and friends who had been invited to witness the ceremony. In a few well chosen words, Rev. Townsend performed the rites that made the couple man and wife. In a spacious tent the happy couple received the congratulations of their many

After a short time thus spent the tables, which were placed on the lawn under canvas, were filled and ice cream and cake were served. About 130 were present and numerous useful and ornamental articles were given the young couple to remind them of this great event in their lives. May happiness attend them.-Coldwater Daily Reporter.
