SUFFERED LONG WITH CONSUMPTION

MRS. W. L. WARD PASSED AWAY TUESDAY.

Her Life Hung in the Balance For Several Weeks and She Suffered Greatly.

After many months of suffering from that dread disease, consumption, six months of which she was confined to her bed, Mrs. W. L. Ward passed peacefully away at her home on east Third Street, early Tuesday morning. Her life has been despaired of for several weeks, during which time she suffered greatly, and the end came as a sweet release to her.

Mrs. Ward, whose maiden name was Martha Rosella Lang, was born in El Paso, Illinois, 49 years ago. She was married to W. L. Ward in Kansas, where they made their home several years. Nine children came to their home, six of whom are living. They are: Chas. F., Mrs. Nancy Loveley, Mrs. Goldie E. Tyo, William and Elwin, of Cass City, and Jas. H. Ward of Flint, all of whom were here when the mother died.

The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the family residence.

Mrs. Ward was a very quiet woman, known best in the home which she graced, where she was always a kind, thoughtful wife and mother, and the family feel keenly their loss.

LOCAL PASTOR HEADS HURON BAPTIST ASSO.

Annual Meeting Held at Deckerville One of the Best in Association's History.

The annual meeting of the Huron Baptist Association held at Deckerville last week is said to have been one of the most successful in the history of the association. Every session was well attended by a large number of enthusiastic church workers.

The first session was held on Monday evening and the annual sermon was delivered at that time by Rev. McFarlane of Brown City. At the close of this service the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Moderator, Rev. L. A. Townsend, Cass City; clerk, W. J. Winterstein, Crosswell; treasurer, J. Moran, Harbor Beach; associational Sunday School superintendent, A. C. Graham, Sandusky.

The Tuesday morning session was largely taken up with the reading of the letters from the twenty-four churches of the association which reported a gain of 108 members by baptism. The convention continued until Wednesday evening, several excellent addresses being given.

AUCTION SALE OF HORSES.

On page six, G. R. Hawkins announces an auction sale of horses at Wilmot on Tuesday, July 11. Thirty-five animals will be offered.

To Canadian Northwest.

I expect to leave about the 20th of July, accompanied by a number of prospective land buyers and harvest hands, on an extended trip to the Canadian Northwest. Anyone wishing to go to this most productive country to buy or homestead land, or work in the harvest fields, for which extra good wages are paid, should communicate with me at once.

Every common railway carrier will be required after July 1, 1911, to report to the interstate commerce commission by telegraph "any collision, derailment, or other accident" resulting in the death of one or more persons.

By the terms of an order issued recently by the commission the report must be sent "immediately after the occurrence of the accident" by a responsible officer of the carrier. Details of railway accidents have not in the past been reported promptly to the commission.

EVERGREEN SCHOOL TEACHER BECOMES BRIDE

Mary P. Hurlburt and Wm. A. Wilson Married at Bride's Home Southeast of Shabbona.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hurlburt of Lamotte township on Wednesday afternoon, June 28, at five o'clock, when their only daughter, Mary P., was united in marriage to William Albert Wilson.

As the wedding march was played by Miss Ruth Hall, the bride and groom attended by Miss Katie Towle and Chas. F. Mudge took their places beneath a beautiful arch of green and white. The ring service was used, the ring being carried in a basket of roses by little Katherine Hall. Rev. W. L. Moore of Shabbona was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was attired in pale blue satin and carried white carnations. The bridesmaid was also attired in a pale blue gown and carried white roses. The house decorations were pink and white roses. A bounteous wedding supper was served.

Both of the parties are highly respected young people of Lamotte and the bride is well known in Evergreen, having taught in the Chambers school during the past year.

In the evening a large company of friends gathered at the bride's home and tendered the young people a reception.

They will shortly move to the groom's farm, located near the Leek school house.

MANY FRIENDS GATHERED

Pay Their Last Respects to Memory of Wm. Seed.

The funeral services of William Seed who died last Wednesday, were held Friday afternoon at the residence of his brother, J. E. Seed, on North Seeger St., where a large concourse of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects to a life-long friend and neighbor. The impressive ceremony was conducted by Revs. A. O. Knapp of the Presbyterian church and W. B. Weaver of the M. E. church. A male quartette composed of L. I. Wood, L. W. Usher, G. W. Landon and F. A. Bigelow, sang two selections. The casket was covered with beautiful flowers, gifts from friends.

The pallbearers were five brothers, Andrew, Hugh, Elmer, George and Chas. Seed, and a cousin, Jno. Walmesley. The remains were interred in the family lot in Elkland cemetery. The relatives from out of town who were present at the funeral were: James Filmore of Weston, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Millard Filmore and daughter, Nita, of Hope; Mrs. Wm. Filmore of Midland, and her daughter, Miss Ethel Filmore, of Saginaw; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Orr and Mrs. Mary Orr of Bay Port; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Seed of Bay City; Andrew Seed of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Seed and son, Earl, of Rochester.

USE TOWN HALL FOR PUBLIC REST ROOM

GREAT CONVENIENCE TO FARMERS WHILE SHOPPING.

H. L. Pinney, in Letter to Chronicle, Suggests Ideas for Improvements and Happiness.

July 5, 1911.

Editor, The Chronicle:

Often have I read with interest in your columns letters written by former residents telling of their far away experiences and descriptions of distant climes. Because of your custom in thus opening your columns, I am taking the liberty of sending to you this communication.

Eight years ago today, after a continuous residence in Cass City of 21 years I left the old town and with my good wife took up our residence in Seattle, Wash., where we have since resided. Great changes have taken place in those few years. The two very enjoyable weeks which I have just spent in Cass City are nevertheless tinged with sadness, for so many old familiar faces have passed away, heads which were then gray are now white and many of my old companions whose hair was then as in their youth are now marked by the hand of time, which all forcibly reminds me that I too am aboard the caravan of the years.

The change in Cass City that first impressed me was the stately shade trees that adorn your streets. How beautiful they are! The very ripple of their leaves denotes contentment and happiness and breathes a welcome to all to enjoy their prodigal shade. Surely the foresight of our fathers in planting those trees is returning to them a great reward.

The splendid State Aid roads joining your wide streets have added much to the improvements noticed. In nearly every direction from town that I have ridden I see new acreage under cultivation. Many splendid new barns adorn farms in every direction. New drains have reclaimed former dismal swamps. New fences and other improvements have been added to many farms. Certainly with all these evidences of material prosperity among the farmers no one can accuse them of not being progressive hereabouts.

To behold the splendid crop of babies that have come in the past eight years would delight the heart of even Teddy Roosevelt. They are great, surely the Scriptural injunction found in Genesis 1:28 has found literal lodgment in the hearts of many of your young married people. From this it naturally follows that many who were but boys' eight years ago are now fathers and have taken their places in and are creditably fulfilling the duties of citizenship.

The establishment and growth of the local telephone system is a forward step and connecting, as it does, so many people in the community naturally tends to a broader feeling of civic pride.

With the elimination of advertisements from the first page the appearance of The Chronicle has greatly improved and the change in the equipment of the plant has been even more marked. I congratulate you, Mr. Lenzner, most heartily on your evident thrift. Why don't you advertise these facts to the world, my boy? Never a word in the Chronicle have I ever seen about the installation of that splendid type-setting machine. What?

All these things speak for themselves and taken together make a profound impression upon one who for twenty years went in and out among you. Progress, however, is the spirit of the age, and in the face of these evidences of enterprise no one can expect Cass City to halt now in her onward march.

The tendency in many up-to-date communities is the establishment of improvements that will add to the general happiness of its people. In this regard we can with profit draw from the common custom in some nations whom we may, in some respects, consider not to have attained America's high degree of civilization.

From Old Mexico and Japan I got the idea, many years ago, what a grand thing it would be to establish at public expense or subscription a swimming or bathing pond in Cass City for the free use of your people. It could be constructed of concrete, with dressing rooms convenient and during the winter be converted into a fine skating pond. Cass City owning her own water system, the cost of maintenance would be very little. Rental of bathing suits and towels would go far to cover this, and it is hard to conceive a more sanitary, healthful and enjoyable recreation than a large bathing pool of this kind would afford during the hot summer months. If such a tank were constructed of a graduating depth it would be equally safe to the child and to the adult. In nearly all towns in Old Mexico of the size of Cass City such pools in size about 100 ft. x 150 ft. are considered great public necessities. Right now I question if 10 per cent of your homes are provided with good bathing conveniences, and should any of you want to take a swim where can you go?

I notice that the old Town Hall stands idle most of the time. Would it not be profitable to make use of this hall for a public rest room, so that farmers and their wives, when they come to town shopping, could drop in and rest? A few comfortable chairs; perhaps conveniences for a proper lavatory and wash room and other kindred adjuncts would greatly add to the happiness and comfort of patrons from the country. Merchants, you could afford to boost this thing because with the shopping trip a pleasure the farmer's wife will come oftener to buy your wares.

QUIET WEDDING AT WRIGHT HOME IN WEST GRANT

Henry A. Winger of Elkton Wins the Hand of Miss Ethel Herrington of West Grant.

At high noon on Wednesday, June 28, Miss Ethel Herrington of West Grant became the bride of Henry A. Winger of Elkton at the home of F. D. Wright of West Grant.

The young couple were attended by Miss Sebia Wright and Joseph Crawford, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. L. Moore of Shabbona, in the presence of only a few relatives and friends.

The happy couple left on the afternoon train from Cass City to visit several central Michigan points and upon their return will reside on Mr. Winger's farm near Elkton.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Winger are highly respected young people and begin married life amid the well wishes of a host of friends.

MRS. KLUMP PRES. STATE ORGANIZATION

OFFICER OF STATE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

W. C. T. U. Have Interesting Meeting Sunday Evening. Six New Members.

Mrs. F. Klump gave an interesting report of the state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the M. E. church Sunday evening. The address was given in a clear voice, easily heard in every part of the house and was made the more spicy by the introduction of several witty remarks. The speaker held the close attention of the audience.

Mrs. Klump's reputation as a public speaker and a lady of sound judgment has won for her distinction abroad as well, and recently she was elected president of the state organization of the Woman's Missionary society of the Evangelical church. GOOD FOUNDATION FOR MUSICAL EDUCATION.

Parents are realizing more and more the importance of securing a competent instructor when their children start their musical education, but it is really the advanced pupil and the instructor who realize most forcibly that a good foundation is the means of making a success in a musical career.

Miss Hazelle Eno, a daughter of James H. Eno, formerly of Cass City, but now of Crosses, Arkansas, commenced the study of piano while she resided here. When the family moved to Pontiac, she continued her studies in that city, later entering the university in Arkansas and the Bollinger Conservatory in Ft. Smith for musical instruction. Miss Eno's work has been very successful thus far as press notices from Ft. Smith indicate. She believes much of this is because of the patience and thorough instruction she received from her first instructor, F. Lenzner, of this city. In a letter to him recently she said in part:

"I appreciate the interest you took in me and the careful planning it took to lay a firm foundation for future use. I feel that you should get a great part of the credit for the success I have made so far for I realize the importance of thorough instruction for beginners."

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But it's hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood, give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Try them. 50c at L. I. BLUE BEST KITCHEN HUE

Artistic Effects in the Culinary Department Are by No Means to Be Disparaged.

It may sound foolish to talk of a "color scheme" for the kitchen, but if pots and pans and utensils of all kinds match and the walls are in the same shade with linoleum of the same on the floor, you will be astonished to find how clean and dainty it all looks and how much easier it is to concoct dainties for the home menu in the pleasant room.

Blue is always a good color for the kitchen especially, as it is easy to secure the blue enameled cooking utensils, which are not only easy to keep clean, but eliminate to a great extent all likelihood of burning.

Blue and white china or the quaint solid brown and white ware are pretty in a blue and white kitchen, while blue and white dish towels may be bought just as easily as red and white ones and will look far daintier in the kitchen.

Usefulness, however, must come before an artistic effect and care must be exercised in the selection of the pots and pans. If you have a small family don't buy big stowpans and enormous skillets.

If you have a big family get big utensils and don't buy a lot of modern inventions that you never use, and which clutter up drawers and closets unnecessarily.

Have hooks screwed into the wall near the table and the range to hang spoons, pans and covers on, that they may be within reach and save many steps.

MACHINE HAS MANY USES

Ingenuous Device Intended for Washing Clothes, Renovating Feathers, Canning, Etc.

Two Texas men have invented a machine which can be put to a variety of uses, among which are washing clothes, renovating feathers, canning fruit and vegetables, etc. A cylinder, made of longitudinal slats, revolves on a stationary lower section, which is raised from the floor by legs. Beneath the cylinder is a metal half-cylinder, adapted to hold water. Beneath this, in turn, is a fire box, with a pipe rising from it at one end of the machine. This firebox is the distinguishing feature of the apparatus, as it can be filled with coal or wood and the water in the metal receptacle kept hot while the cylinder is being revolved through it and the clothes or feathers, or whatever may be in the cylinder, thoroughly cleaned. For canning, of course, the cylinder remains stationary after the jars have been placed in it, and the lid of the machine can be closed, if desired.

Watermelon Cake.

White Part.—Two cups white sugar, two-thirds cup sweet milk, whites of five eggs, two-thirds cup butter, three cups flour, two and a half teaspoons baking powder.

Red Part.—Yolks of five eggs, one-third cup butter, one cup bright red sugar, one-third cup sweet milk, two cups flour, two and a half teaspoons baking powder, one and a half pounds seeded raisins well dredged in flour.

Put the red batter in the center of the pan and pour the white around the outside of the red part. A cup of blanched almonds may be cut in half and stirred into the red part with good effect.

To Blanch Sweetbreads.

Soak in cold water one hour, change water once or twice, serve with cold water, add one teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar, two or three cloves, two peppercorns sprig parsley and one-half bay leaf, simmer gently 20 minutes; drain, cover with cold water; drain again, remove fibers and pipes.

Economical Sponge Cake.

Take two eggs and beat light; add a cup of white sugar, then a half cup of boiling water, pinch of salt and one and a half cups white flour, two teaspoons baking powder and flavoring to taste. Bake in quick oven. Bake in layers and put together with whipped cream.

Old Trays.

When light oak trays have been badly marked, well wash and rub with warm beer until the stains have disappeared. Polish in the usual way.

Color Hint.

When making cup cakes, if using strawberry flavor, stir into the batter a tablespoonful of beet juice. The cake will be a delicate pink.

The Scrap Book

He Didn't Get Over.

Arthur Balfour, the British ex-premier, once was in a great hurry to get to England from his post in Ireland, and, there being no regular steamer for some days, he proposed to cross over in a cattle boat. But in the man from whom he sought information he found a home ruler of most ardent views.

"Can I cross in tonight's boat?" asked Mr. Balfour.

"No, ye can't, thin," said the Irishman.

"And why not?"

"Because 'tis a cattle boat."

"Never mind that. I'm not particular."

The home ruler gave a little laugh.

"No, Mr. Balfour," he retorted; "I dare say ye're not, but the cattle are."

Don't Feel Blue.

Oh, I like to hear a feller who will whistle at his work.

I like to hear a worker who will hum a little tune.

Er a feller's got some music, why, he ain't so apt to shirk.

He kin change a bleak December into mild and merry June.

There's enough uv gloom an' sorer uv the kind that hez to be.

Lots uv it's imaginary; you kin whistle it away.

When you see o' trouble skulkin' in the lots behind a tree

Let him see you're merry hearted; put your record on an' play.

What's the use o' feelin' blue? Nature's happylike an' true.

Help the world to be more cheerful an' 'twill do the same fur you.

A Premature Question.

When President Eliot of Harvard was in active service as head of the university he was noted among the students for his abrupt and brusque manner. Reports had come to him that one of his young charges was in the habit of absorbing more liquor than was good for him, and President Eliot determined to do his duty and look into the matter.

Meeting the young man under suspicion in the yard shortly after breakfast one day, the president marched up to him and demanded, "Young man, do you drink?"

"Why—why—why," stammered the young man, "why, President Eliot, not so early in the morning, thank you."—Boston Transcript.

Badly Twisted.

An Irishman and his wife were asleep in bed when the wife thought she heard a noise downstairs, which she imagined was made by burglars, and, awakening her husband, she said, "Wake up, Pat; there are burglars downstairs." So Pat arose and hastily dressed himself, but in his haste he put his trousers on backward. Quickly grabbing a lamp, he started down the stairs; but, owing to the trousers being tight, he stumbled on the first step and fell down the whole flight. His wife heard the racket and went to the top of the stairs. "Are you hurt?" she asked. Pat arose and, feeling himself to ascertain if he was hurt, found the way he wore his trousers. "No, darlin', I'm not hurt in the least. But I'm all turned around entirely. I gave me body the devil's own twist."

Quite Informal.

Arthur Brisbane, editorial writer for Mr. Hearst, has been a great friend of John L. Sullivan, the former heavyweight champion, for many years. When Brisbane was a newspaper writer in London, John L. was given an audience by the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales.

"By George," exclaimed Sullivan to some of his friends, "Brisbane is the leading young journalist of America, and if I meet the Prince of Wales Brisbane does too."

When the little party arrived at the palace for the audience the court attendants nearly had heart failure as John L. introduced Brisbane in these words:

"This is my pal. He's Arthur Brisbane, the leading young journalist of America."

They pointed out that a newspaper man, especially an American of that profession, could not be present at the reception.

"No Brisbane no me!" said Sullivan flatly.

Finally they were admitted, and then it was Brisbane's turn to get heart failure. Sullivan strode up to the Prince of Wales, grasped him by the hand and said in his deep voice:

"Hello, prince! Let me present Arthur Brisbane, the leading young journalist of America."—Popular Magazine.

Two Scotch Stories.

A Scotch schoolmaster in Banffshire years ago had strong views on the subject of dress. In the day when crinoline was the rage a girl came to school with a very extensive one, which much exceeded the space between the desk and the form on which she had to sit. The teacher, seeing this, said to her, "Gang awa' home and tak' off the side the girls (hoops) and come back to the school as God made ye."

Another rough and ready dominie was examining his boys in a catechism and asked if God had a beginning. "No," said the boy. "Will he have an end?" "Yes," he replied. This was followed instantly by a buffet on the side of the head. "Will he have an end now?" "No," said the boy, and the master was satisfied.

The Housewife May Use As Much "Gumption" in Spending the Family Income as The Husband Does in Earning It!

"Gumption" is not a slang word, by any means. It is Americanese for "Practical Sense."

If the housewife doesn't use it, generously, in making purchases for the home, she will find the family income ALWAYS insufficient--growingly insufficient!

Imprudence--which is a form of non-gumption--will discount and make futile even an increase in the family income.

For the easiest thing in the world is to drift along, paying a dollar too much for this thing, and a dime too much for that! And this is the invariable practice of those buyers of family supplies who think it "too much trouble to read the ads."

For, you see, the ads are as important to the "buyer" of home supplies as are the market reports to a broker.

EVERY MOTHER HER DAUGHTER'S MATCHMAKER.

LET YOUR CHILDREN DO THEIR OWN COURTING, SAY MOST PARENTS, WITH RESERVATIONS— WHEN FATHERS AND MOTHERS FEEL THEY OUGHT TO INTERFERE.

CHICAGO.—Certainly not, say the city mothers, still they all agree that their first thought when the little daughter was laid in their arms was, "I wonder what little boy in this great world will become her husband." Yes, every one of them owns she has hoped from the first moment of her child's existence that somewhere a sweet tempered little fellow of good parentage and some means was being reared to be a fit companion for the little daughter just born to her.

Mrs. Charles H. Conover says nice girls will marry only nice men. "The girls who are brought up in the right way need no interference in regard to their matrimonial ventures," says Mrs. Conover. "There is no necessity for parents interesting themselves in the character or financial standing of young men who simply call upon their daughters. Such a proceeding as investigating on the part of parents would be entirely too premature."

"A father need not assume that every young man is interested to the point of matrimony, and unless he sees that matters are reaching a crisis, he should let the young people alone. When, however, he finds matrimony impending, he should satisfy himself that all is well and if character is found to be moral, personal objections should not stand in the way of his daughter's happiness. The children should be the choosers, not the parents. I heartily disapprove of matchmaking."

Parents Should Watch Associates.
Mrs. Alice Bradford Wiles thinks parents should guide the associations of their children. "Parents need not be matchmakers to order the pathway of their sons and daughters," she says. "The first duty of a parent is to exercise all possible care with regard to the associates of their children from infancy. They should put desirable companions within reach and should encourage eligible young people. In this way their children will make no undesirable acquaintances. If they have always had the best they will always demand the best."

"Their children's happiness and well being should be the principal thought of parents, and as marriage is the natural sequence to agreeable and intimate acquaintances, it will come of itself without any urging from the parents. Never give a child the idea that marriage enters into your calculations. It would be most unwise and would scarcely have the desired effect. Let the sons seek their wives and the daughters their husbands."

ble, if he has an unkindly nature. The great trouble with our American marriage question today is that nine-tenths of the girls marry for wealth and position. Their parents urge them to seek riches rather than love and it usually fails."

Let Children Do Own Courting.
Mrs. Henry Clay Carpenter, whose daughter, Miss Beatrice Carpenter, was one of the season's debutantes, has decided ideas on courtship and marriage. "Don't do your children's courting," says Mrs. Carpenter. "Remember you did you own, and my, but didn't you enjoy it? Then let your children do the same. When you argue that children should profit by the parents' example, you cast a reflection on your child's father which always is a bad policy whether he is deserving of it or not."

"Never let your children feel that you are anxious to have them marry. This attitude on the part of parents often causes a daughter needlessly to hasten her matrimonial plans. She can be made to feel that father has been putting up for such a long time, that he has paid out such sums for her education, and has fitted her for marriage at a suitable age. Then when she arrives at that age, and does not leave the home roof or show any inclination to do so, parents should be exceedingly careful not to give the impression that they wish her marriage."

"The moment a girl feels that her parents desire her marriage, she becomes reckless and may foolishly accept the first opportunity that presents itself, notwithstanding she has refused numerous and better offers prior to the discovery that father and mother think 'it is time daughter had a home of her own.' Marriage of sons and daughters is something in which parents have no rights or privileges. However, should daughter give her heart to a young man of whom the family knows little, it becomes the duty of the father to make a thorough investigation. Then if he finds him to be of immoral character, he should confide his discovery to his daughter."

Arranging Marriage Never a Duty.
"The girl who has been reared in an atmosphere of love, obedience and respect for her parents will prove herself the dutiful daughter and will give up the undesirable young man. She will listen to her parents in regard to her marriage as she has listened to them during all her life in regard to her minor affairs. While it is the duty of parents to prevent the marriage of their children in such extreme cases, it is never their duty or privilege to arrange marriages for them. The mother who has her daughter's confidence will never need to find a husband for her. That kind of a girl is sought for by the right kind of man and need not look for a husband."

Mrs. Frank R. McMullin of Highland Park expressed the opinion that where the question of money enters in, all the sanctity of matrimony is lost. "Parents who desire moneyed matches for their children should force themselves to do nothing more than hope," she said. "They should never barter their sons and daughters. This idea of selling your child into a family of wealth in order to gain for her position in society and riches to keep up a splendid establishment with no thought or care for her affections is all wrong. If parents find their daughters ready to sell themselves to the titled foreigner simply for the position they will acquire, it is the duty of the parents to stop the affair at once. On no account should a girl marry for anything but love. "Parents cannot live their children's lives. A mother would be willing to offer herself a sacrifice for either son or daughter, but this is impossible. Each must live for himself alone, and children should be taught early in life that character counts for more than wealth or position. If wealthy parents find their son in love with a working girl there should be no objection raised because of social inequality. Today we are living in an age when every one works in one way or another. No one who really amounts to anything is idle. If we do not take up manual labor we are working with our brains or using our talents to the best possible advantage along some other line.

"It is perfectly proper for parents to offer suggestions along matrimonial lines, but they should go no further. A suggestion should be sufficient for the properly reared son or daughter who realizes that the one desire of the parents' hearts is to see their child happy, so if the moral character of the young person chosen as the life partner is unimpeachable, all interference on the part of parents is wrong."

Wrong Ideas of Present Generation.
Mrs. Thomas B. Hoops said: "There is one great trouble with matrimony today. The young people want to begin where their parents leave off. When we were young we were willing to live on a small income at first and gradually rise to a more exalted estate, but it is not so with the girls of today. They must have the best of everything in the beginning. Parents are too extravagant with their girls—they allow them too much spending money and they are permitted to dress too luxuriantly. A man naturally thinks he cannot ask the girl he loves to become his wife unless he has enough wealth to give her every luxury to which she has been accustomed."

"Fortunately, American girls are sensible and are more independent than the girls of any other race, so when they find themselves in love with an obscure young man of small means they rarely hesitate to accept him when he does get up the courage to propose. If it were not for American money, there would be no foreign marriages and we could keep our American girls in America, where they belong. We are all agreed, I think, that the foreigner cares only for the wealth of our girls who sell themselves for the title and become expatriated."

"The money is made here in America and yet parents allow their daughters to marry these titled foreigners and carry away their riches to the foreign shores. There is no love or courtship in this sort of thing. It does not enter into the question at all. It simply is a bargain, and in such cases parents should most certainly interfere and not allow their daughters to be bought and sold as they are. The wealthy marriage is not always the happy one, and parents should be absolutely sure, before giving their consent to a daughter's marriage, that she truly is in love with her suitor, and equally sure that it is the girl and not the dollars he is after."

American Men Best Husbands.
"The American man makes the best husband in the world. Nowhere in the universe are there as true men as our American boys, reared by good American mothers and sensible American fathers. Then we should see to it that American girls marry American men if we value their happiness."

Regarding foreign marriage and courtship, Mrs. Frederick K. Bowes, one of Chicago's well-known club women, declares the American girl is self-sacrificing, and whenever she marries a foreigner she goes to reside in the lands across the sea in the capacity of a missionary. "It is nothing more or less than missionary work these girls of ours undertake when they leave their own country and sail away to live in England, Russia,

A faithful wife, not a wife who is interested in the point of matrimony.

France or Italy. They take our broad American ideas, our sensible views of life, over there and gradually chance conditions for the better. The American girl establishes herself in her foreign home the object of respect and admiration.

"I believe there is enough Puritan blood left in our girls who go abroad with their titled husbands eventually to govern Europe. With one exception, that of Mary Letter and Lord Curzon, I believe all international marriages are mistakes and should be prevented by parents. Our girls must work out their own salvation, we cannot do it for them, and the same may be said of our boys. Marriage is a question they must settle for themselves. Parents should remember one thing—to interfere neither before nor after marriage. It is bad form."

Woman's Independence.
"Women must be independent."

A FREE Prescription ADVICE

From a physician of 52 years' experience in colleges, sanatoriums and general practice. Weak, nervous men, regain your strength and vigor.
So great was my sympathy for weak men in the early years of my experience that I have made it a special study, and formulated two prescriptions, one for men under 50 and one for men over 50 years of age. In my declining years, I want every man to have the benefit of my long years of careful study, research and long experience. I am now 72 years old and as strong and vigorous as at 40 and the rest of my life will be spent in aiding suffering mankind. I realize that my time is short, but will do all in my power to aid men and women who are helpless and seeking relief. I know there has been a great many disappointed when they thought relief in their grasp, but let me send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of study since I began lecturing in private classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are now pleased to recommend me.
YOU NEED AID. Let me help you to regain your former standing among men. In short, let me assist you to be yourself once more.
If you are suffering from falling memory, lame back or weakened method of nervous difficulties, LET ME SEND YOU A RECIPE in a plain sealed envelope that you can use in your own home. I am confident that you will thank me every day in your life after you have tested it for yourself.

Letter, Salt Rheum and Eczema
Are cured by Chamberlain's Salve. One application relieves the itching and burning sensation.

It Beats the World to cure Rheumatism

Aching and enfeebled muscles should remind you of slowness of tissue repair. Eruptions of the skin and catarrh of the mucous membranes show diminished nerve power in the tissues.

In health or disease there is need of an internal bath. This is best obtained by drinking a glass of pure water with one or two teaspoonfuls of San-Jak 30 to 60 minutes before breakfast, washing the blood. This passes quickly from the stomach and stimulates the bowels to increased peristalsis, overcoming constipation and its attendant ills. It is quickly absorbed and entering the blood stream bathes the cells of the liver and heart, then passes to the brain and washes out the cobwebs and awakens to new life every cell in the body.

San-Jak dilutes theropy secretions and dissolves all abnormal crystalline substances that may be in the blood and urine. SAN-JAK greatly promotes elimination, creates downward peristalsis, stimulates a flow of digestive juices. It dissolves the sticky mucous in the mouth and throat, allowing the membranes to be bathed in their natural secretions. San-Jak is the great medium of exchange in the body, by enabling the kidneys to absorb and eliminate alkaline sulphates which are the products of intestinal decomposition and in renal weakness or the real cause of Bright's disease.

Man does not wear out like a piece of machinery by constant disintegration for he is self renewing. When he loses his ability to self-renewal or fails in process of making young blood, the nerve tissue is not sufficiently nourished and his strength and health fail.

SAN-JAK is the only medicine which will enable you to keep a perfect balance between elimination and renewal of the body. Decay of the body at any time of life is unnatural. Permanent waste of the system can be avoided by the use of SAN-JAK.

Rheumatism, catarrh and bladder trouble, the source of trouble to humanity, is due to a too high or low specific gravity which may be regulated to normal by taking SAN-JAK. Swelling under the eyes, grayish white or waxy color of the skin denotes granular disease of the kidneys. The cure is SAN-JAK.

Scored on the Minister.
Old time Scottish ministers would severely name anybody who fell asleep in kirk. At Cumberland, where the minister and his principal heritor, Lord Elphinstone, were on bad terms, the minister one Sunday called upon the beadle to "wauken his Lord Elphinstone." "I'm no sleeping, minister," said the peer. "Indeed you were, my lord." His lordship still denying it, the minister to test him asked, "What had I been saying last, then?" "Oh, just wauken Lord Elphinstone." "Aye, but what did I say before that?" "Indeed, I'll give ye a guinea if ye'll tell that yerself, minister"—a smashing error.—London Chronicle.

How you may profit by it. Take Foley's Kidney Pills. J. S. Spencer, 1623 Beach St., Flint, Mich., writes: "I have suffered from kidney trouble with dizziness every morning on arising. My kidney action was too frequent and when Foley Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I took them according to directions and in a very short time I was cured. My dizziness ceased, my kidney action became normal and regular. Foley Kidney Pills cured me, and I shall be glad to recommend them to others." For sale by L. I. Wood & Co.

Styles in Birds' Nests.
"Birds' nests have changed in style since I was a boy," C. J. Maynard said before the Boston Scientific society in his paper on "Methods of Bird Study." "In those days the oriole's nest hung from the pendulous elm branches, itself a long, swaying nest. Today the birds have taken to the ornamental trees with stiff branches, and they make a shorter nest that does not swing so much. I do not know whether it is because there are fewer elms or more birds, but the fact of the change in the shape of the nests is valid."—Boston Transcript.

without your aid. You may be assured you have done your full duty when you have brought proper companions into your home and encouraged your children to know only the morally and physically perfect."

Mrs. Walter Ferrer declares a child should be influenced by its parents to marry only capable helpmeets. "A man need not be wealthy to be the proper one for daughter's life companion," she said. "Wealth is one of the really unnecessary attributes in a husband. Rather let him be a man capable of making his way in the world. A man of good judgment and moral standing, but he must be of good disposition as well, for a man's nature more than his ability is worth considering. No one desires to see the loved daughter of the household given to a man, be he ever so capa-

Big Words Don't Make Big Values and Big Type Doesn't Either

WE'VE generally found that the man who promises too much delivers too little. We sell "Clothes of Quality." We ask as little for them as we can afford to take, but enough to give us a living profit. We have no qualities under $10.00. Whenever we ask more it's because there's additional dollars worth of quality for every dollar added to the price.

Our's is a store for the many--not for the few. It's the easiest place in town to buy--if you're not expecting gold dollars for sixty cents. We have a large variety of patterns and models in all the new things for summer, with a written guarantee over the makers' signature.

It was early the next morning when they arrived home.
Running a newspaper is like run-ning a hotel, only different. When a man goes into a hotel and finds something on the table which does not suit him, he does not raise Cain with the landlord and tell him to stop his old hotel. Well, hardly. He sets that dish to one side and wades into the many dishes that suit him. It is different with some newspaper readers. They find an article occa-sionally that does not suit them ex-actly and without stopping to think it may please hundreds of other read-ers, make a grandstand play and tell the editor how a paper should be run and what should be put into it. But such people are becoming fewer ev-ery year.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS
Stamping Out the Plague.
By JOSEPH H. CHOATE.
I do not think there is any greater or better cause now set before the people of New York, the people of this great state, than to save themselves from this terrible plague, and they can do it if they will. The cities have already accomplished much. New York and Boston and Lon-don have reduced by one-half the death rate from this particu-lar evil. It exists where it has been unchecked and unstudied and uncared for in the rural dis-tricts of the state and in the smaller cities of the state.

FOR THE BREAKFAST

MENUS ESPECIALLY ACCEPT-ABLE AT THIS SEASON.

Fruit Should Play an Important Part, and There Are Many Ways of Serving It—Crisp Toast the Best.

Now when one's vitality is at its lowest and appetites seem to need coaxing more than at any other season, fruit should play an important part in breakfast menus, and yet, alas! at no time in the whole year is the housewife so limited in the mat-ter of fruit as at the present. It is too early to buy summer fruits. Even if one can afford to pay for hothouse products the flavor is not at its best. Roughly speaking, there are only ap-ples, bananas, grape fruit, oranges and rhubarb to select from for the break-fast first course—with dried figs and prunes always at command.
Don't serve apples raw at this time of year. Or, if you do, don't expect they will tempt the appetite of any except the most inveterate apple eat-er. The flavor even in the most ex-pensive apples has lost its edge. But there are many dainty ways of cook-ing apples that are satisfying and healthful.

Apples baked with figs are sure to be liked. Select the plumpest and juiciest dried figs you can get and wash them, carefully pinching them into their natural shape. Then select good, firm apples, and wash them. Scoop out the cores and into each of these holes pack two or three whole figs. Place them in a baking pan and bake in a hot oven. While they are baking, baste them with sirup made from the juice of half a lemon, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and half a cup of water. The secret of making good baked apples is to have them thor-oughly baked, but not baked to pieces. If when they look done they are not soft to the core, place a cover over your baking dish and let them steam for a few minutes. Then remove the cover and brown the fruit slightly. These apples may be served either alone or with farina, hominy or other breakfast food.

Take special pains in preparing grape fruit for the breakfast table at this time of the year. To begin with, take care in selecting the fruit, which, to be good, should be heavy, firm and thin skinned. Dark spots on the sur-face are said to denote a superior fruit. To make it especially tempt-ing serve with clean, finely chopped ice. Partly fill with the ice one of the long stemmed grape fruit glasses, or if you do not possess these glasses, any dainty glass bowl will do. Then place on this bed of ice a glass cup filled with grape fruit pulp. If you choose to serve the grape fruit sweet-ened, prepare it several hours before serving to give the sugar and fruit time to assimilate.

To some people hot buttered toast is indigestible, and indeed the dietit-ians assure us that the soggy, inner portion of soft toast is quite unfit for the human system. Once you have tried crisp toast you will never care to give it up for the softer sort. First dry thin slices of firm bread in the oven. When thoroughly dry, but not browned, put in the toaster and toast, taking great care not to burn. Serve piping hot, un-buttered. This should be served with a daintily turned pat of fresh, sweet butter.

Vegetable Roast.
Take cooked beans or peas, pass through a colander to remove the skins and mix with an equal quantity of finely chopped nut meats. Season to taste. Put one-half the mixture into a buttered baking dish, spread over it a dressing made as follows: Pour boiling water on four slices of zwieback, cover, let stand for a few minutes, then break them up with a fork and pour over one-half cup of sweet cream; season with salt and sage. Cover the dressing with the remainder of the nut mixture, pour over all one-half cup of cream and bake for one and one-half hours. Serve in slices with cranberry sauce.

Hashed Brown.
Four medium sized potatoes cooked and chopped very fine, four table-spoons of cream, three-quarter tea-spoon salt, half teaspoon pepper, a lit-tle onion chopped fine; put two heap-ing tablespoonfuls of butter in a spider and turn gas low, so not to scorch; put potatoes in and cook moderately slow. Turn when brown. Serve with parsley.

Shelf Paper Hint.
Instead of continually buying lace shelf paper, you will find it much cheaper to buy coarse torchon lace the desired width, sew on a piece of tape, and tack on the shelf with very small tacks. Whenever dirty, take off, wash and iron. This will last for years and your pantry will always be fresh and clean.

Ebony Brushes.
Before washing ebony brushes smear a little good vaseline over the backs. This prevents the ammonia or soda water in which they are wash-ed from injuring the ebony. The vas-e-line should afterward be carefully rubbed off and the backs polished with dry cloths.

Mayonnaise Jelly Dressing.
One tablespoon arrowroot dissolved in one-quarter cup of water, or one teaspoon gelatin dissolved in the con-somme; put away to harden.

THE DUAL MR. STERLING
Story of the Uncovering of Two Clever Rogues
By Howard Fielding
Copyright by American Press Asso-ciation, 1911.

I was eating a bit of luncheon in the garden of the college inn when I was accosted by a man named Samuel Hayward, a carpenter who lived in the upper half of a two family house which stood at the rear of the grounds of the inn and fronted on the other street.
"As a doctor and a college profes-sor"—he began.
"Instructor, not professor," said I.
"Would you be interested in a queer case?"
"Naturally I asked him what it was, and he told me that his nephew, who had recently come to live with him, was an example of what is known as a dual personality.
"Sort of Jekyll and Hyde?" said I.
"Yes," said he. "I've read that book. It's like that, only in this case one of 'em is no worse than the other—sort of foolish and queer, but not bad, so far as I can see, and it doesn't change his looks very much, not so that you wouldn't know him easy enough; but, by jingo, it gives him different eyes. That's what I can't understand. When he's himself his eyes are blue; when he's the other fellow they're brown. What do you make of that?"
"I'd like to see him," said I, and he asked me to come with him to his shop, where the young man was at work.

"When he's himself he's a good car-penter," added Hayward; "when he's not himself he can't do anything but play the banjo and sing."
I had no acquaintance with Hay-ward, but had once asked who he was, having remarked his intelligent ap-pearance and grave dignity of depart-ment, but Landford Eich of the inn had replied to my question that Hay-ward was a very ordinary fellow.
As soon as I had finished my lunch-oon I went over with Hayward to his shop. The nephew was at work there and in his proper character, but when I drew him into conversation I per-ceived that his nerves were not in a normal condition. He would start and hitch up his shoulders without appar-ent cause, and a fleeting pallor would blanch his cheeks and even his lips. In appearance he was a very ordinary fellow, of medium size and weight, with rather dull blue eyes.
Turning from him for a moment, I saw a look of anxiety on the counte-nance of Hayward, who presently beckoned me outside the shop and told me that the nervousness which was observable in his nephew was an indi-cation of the approaching change in him.
"I wish you would stay," he said. "I hate to be alone with him when this thing happens. I'd like a doctor here mighty well."
I told him that I had a lecture at the college at 2 o'clock and another at

STERLING VANISHED THROUGH THE WINDOW.

3, but that I would come to the shop shortly after 4. This I did, but found the shop closed. A folded piece of paper fastened to the door with a tack bore my name and proved to be a note requesting me to go to Hayward's home.
The carpenter, as I have said, lived in a house of double tenancy, his part of it being reached by an exterior stairway. For years he had lived there alone, cooking his own food except when he ate at the inn.
As I began to ascend the stairs some one twanged a banjo in Hayward's sitting room, and presently a rather thin tenor voice struck into a song, one of the foolish popular songs, all so tiresomely similar, that distress the ear in these degenerate days. Eich would not have had such "music" in his house, where the piano was cov-ered with the tuncful and heartfelt compositions of his inspired country-men.
Hayward, his grave face much dis-turbed, let me in and conducted me to the sitting room, where his nephew sat by the window with the banjo, which he laid aside at my entrance. He looked toward me without a sign of remembrance and seemed about to rise from courtesy, but he was clearly in a condition of weakened will, and his impulse could not express itself in action.

"This is my nephew, Albert Ster-ling," said Hayward, "Dr. Eldred."
They were precisely the same words that he had used two hours before at the shop, but Sterling certainly had no recollection of the previous introduc-tion. I took his hand and was careful to get well around in front of him so that the light from the window would give me a good view of his face. It was not much changed, except that it seemed a little shrunken and, I might say, older. The pallor was now con-stant, the nervous symptoms some-what less marked. The change, in brief, was nothing to be amazed at, except as to the eyes. One of them was now almost entirely brown, with faint bluish spots; the other was most-ly blue, with a brown mottling.

The longer I examined him the more deeply I was impressed by the differ-ence between his present state and that in which I had seen him at the shop, but especially by the change in his personality.
I thought that the alteration in his looks was progressing, but after about an hour's observation I agreed with Hayward that it had stopped.
"It's nothing to what it was the last time," said Hayward. "His eyes are only half changed. I guess this won't last long. He'll change back again during the evening probably. I wish you could be here."

I assured Hayward that I would not desert him and that the interest of the case would sufficiently reward me. We spoke without reserve in Sterling's presence, for he gave no heed to us unless some special effort was made to attract his attention. He sat by the window, playing softly on his banjo and sometimes singing in his high, whining tone until about 6 o'clock, when we all went into the kitchen, where Hayward began to prepare food. But as there was no sign of an approaching change in Ster-ling's state I decided to go home for my supper. I was living with Profes-sor Conrad, and it was agreed that I should bring him back with me.
I knew John Conrad well enough to be sure that he would break any en-gagement for the sake of seeing so queer a case as Sterling's, and indeed I had but just begun to tell him about it when he dragged me away, half fed. By way of atonement he stopped at the College inn and purchased a liberal provision to sustain us in our vigil.

We went through the inn garden to Hayward's house and were welcomed with nervous eagerness. Sterling was as I had last seen him and seemed to feel only a faint interest in our com-ing, but he became somewhat ill tem-pered under Conrad's examination.
During the latter part of the evening he sat by the window, occasionally playing on the banjo and singing, and our praise of his performance seemed to gratify a childish vanity in him. Toward midnight he began to show signs of excitement, and Hayward told us that this was the prelude of the change.
"He wouldn't hurt us," said the car-penter. "It's himself."
"Suicidal?" asked Conrad, and Hay-ward answered that in the paroxysms of the change the young man seemed to wish to end his life.
The words were hardly uttered when Sterling vanished through the open window. It was done so suddenly that I knew not the way of it. He seemed to slide out head first. I sprang forward and looked out. The man was on his feet and apparently uninjured. I climbed out hastily and dropped to the ground. Hayward and Professor Conrad went out by the door.

Sterling had run around the corner of the house, and I followed, but he was out of sight, probably in the inn garden. As I stood bewildered Hay-ward rushed by me, and I heard him say, "The river!"
I would have run after him, but Conrad detained me.
"Hold on," said he. "That fellow won't go far. He'll fall in a fit. We'll find him hereabouts."
Accordingly we searched through the shrubbery of the garden and with-in five minutes found Sterling lying on his back in the grass. We raised him up, and he walked between us to the house without resistance and with-out speech.

When we reached the sitting room we put Sterling into a chair facing the light. I looked at him and uttered a cry. The change had taken place—both of his eyes were blue. He was as I had seen him in the shop.
He recognized me and muttered a greeting, using my name.
"I have these spells," he said. "Let me lie down. I'll be all right in an hour or two."
We assisted him to a sofa and watched beside him for perhaps an hour while he seemed to sleep. At last he raised himself suddenly and asked, "Where's Mr. Hayward?"
We told him the truth, and he ex-hibited considerable feeling.
"Somebody ought to let him know that I'm all right," he said.
It was a very popular suggestion, and I accordingly went out to look for Hayward. He was not by the river, and after a half hour's search I re-traced my steps. In front of the inn I came upon Professor Conrad stand-ing with his hat in his hand and hav-ing a rather wild aspect, as I saw by the light of the moon, which had now broken through the clouds.
"That fellow has got away again," said he. "I went out into the kitchen to get him a drink of water, and when I came back he was gone. It would be rather unpleasant if anything should happen to him."

"What do you make of this case, professor?" said I.
"Inexplicable phenomenon," said he, "marvelous, truly marvelous. I hope the fellow isn't dead. He'd be a con-siderable loss to science."
"He hasn't gone toward the river," said I. "Let's try the other way."
We walked, therefore, away from the college buildings, which stand by the bank of the stream, and toward the higher ground, upon which are the residences of the wealthy and the well to do. We had gone but a little way when we saw three men advancing toward us, an unusual spectacle at 2 o'clock in the morning in a town that goes to bed so early. At first they were only a bunch of blackness in the shadow of some trees; then they emerged into the moonlight, and I recognized Hayward and an instant later Sterling by his side. The burly figure of Eich brought up the rear.

"WHOA, THERE!" HE CRIED.

I saw that Hayward and Sterling carried their hands behind them, then that they were tied together with a rope, an end of which was held by Eich, who had a large revolver in his other hand.
"Ah, these bachelors," cried he—"they are no good. Respectable peo-ple are married and have families."
He spoke jovially, in excellent hum-or with himself.
"Whoa, there!" he cried to his team and brought them to a stand. Then he addressed us. "For some time yet," said he, "I have my eye on this Hayward. There have been many robberies about. When I see you two go to his house tonight I think to my-self, Why? I hear some months ago already when the banks are all in trouble that Professor Conrad draw out his money and buy himself a safe very quiet. So there is but one wo-man in his house this evening that sleeps in the attic, like a log, while the two men are at Hayward's. And the dog that used to drive away the children is dead."

"You caught these people in my house!" exclaimed Professor Conrad.
"Since 9 o'clock," replied Eich, "I have sat myself in your garden, but I see nothing till a little while ago. Then a man came and whistled soft under a window. I try to catch him, but he gets away. Then two men come out. They had been in I don't know how long. They find a revolver looking them right in the eyes. It is surrender or be shot. They put up their hands in a hurry, these two."
At this moment I made a discovery. The Sterling who was a prisoner was not the one whom I had left with Professor Conrad when I went out to look for Hayward. He was the brown eyed Sterling, the one who had jumped out of the window.
"Hayward," said I, "are there two Sterlings?"
"There are two men," he answered. "Neither of them is named Sterling."
"Brothers?"
He nodded.
"One has blue eyes, and the other has mottled brown and blue?"
He nodded again.
"They're a couple of crooks that I happened to fall in with," he said. "They look so much alike that you can hardly tell them apart. That's what suggested this job to me."
"Shut up," said Sterling.
"Oh, what's the use?" said Hay-ward. "We've got this old bird's mon-ey in our pockets."
And they had, no less than $40,000 of it.

When the case was finally cleared up we found that Hayward had brought the blue eyed Sterling to town openly and the other secretly, con-cealing him in his house. On the evening of the robbery blue eyes had got into Conrad's house early and had done some work on the safe, but find-ing it stronger than he supposed, had returned to Hayward and made a signal. Upon this brown eyes had jumped out of the window and after a brief word with his brother in the inn garden had gone to Conrad's, where he was speedily joined by Hay-ward, and the two had succeeded in looting the safe.
All this had escaped Eich's observa-tion, owing to the skill of the opera-tors and the darkness of the night, but when the moon came out Eich had detected blue eyes returning after his trick upon Conrad and had subse-quently captured brown eyes and Hayward as they came out of the house.
Eich would not accept a reward or even thanks from Conrad.

A NECESSITY FOR OUR CHILDREN

School Gardens to Better Educate Them.

WOULD GREATLY HELP TOWN.

Vacation Is Near, and Healthful Garden Work Would Do Much to Keep the Boys From Wasting Their Time on the Streets.

School gardens have come to stay—
that is, where they are in existence.
They have rooted firmly, spread rapidly, developed prodigiously and, feeding on hidden sources of nutriment in child nature, will not easily be eradicated, says H. W. Livermore.

One of the recent educational facts which are being driven home into the public consciousness is that the child who has to leave school at fourteen years and go to work is not fitted for life. His school days have not been made a sufficiently definite asset to him. Our grammar schools as run at present reach their highest efficiency only when the child continues on through the high school. In other words, our present educational system is a failure.

A LESSON IN PLANTING.

tem is planned for the few who go to college instead of the many who go to work.

In some towns school gardens have sprung up in response to the demand that education must fit the masses for life as well as the minority for college. Geography, history and arithmetic have in consequence been pruned back severely, and the educational sap is seeking an outlet in new directions.

The school garden is a great educational force which must be reckoned with in the near future. Why? Because it is a rare combination of essential educational qualities. It is a happy mingling of play and work, vacation and school, athletics and manual training, pleasure and business, beauty and utility, head and hand, freedom and responsibility, of corrective and preventive, constructive and creative influences, and all in the great school of out of doors. It is the corrective of the evils of the schoolroom. It is the preventive of the perils of misspent leisure. It is constructive of character building. It is creative of industrious, honest producers.

A SCHOOL GARDEN CLASS.

In fact, there is no child's nature to which it does not in some way make a powerful appeal.

Here, if ever, children are on an equality. For once the weakling or the lame child does not cover before the street bully. His garden may be better and even envied by the bully.

School gardens, therefore, are not only good to educate the children, but they also benefit the town. The children in this town have as much need of school garden education as the rest of young America. And why can't we give it to them? Our facilities are as good as any other town in this country. Our schools can be utilized in this healthful education as well as the vacant grounds with which almost every residence is provided.

Summer time is near, during which time our schools close, leaving some of the pupils with nothing to do but to loaf around and idle away their time. Why couldn't we begin right now to interest the children with this school garden plan, so that by the time the schools close the plan will have become interesting enough to keep them busy during the coming summer.

All that is needed is the co-operation of the community.

EASY TO MAKE CANDIED PEEL

Delicious Confection Prepared at Home Far Better Than Can Be Bought.

Orange skins (generally considered useless) can be used in two ways that will give much pleasure. Any girl who wants to have something a little out of the common for a luncheon party, or who wants to make a very small gift, but one that shows some real work of her own, can accomplish either object by making candied orange peel. Not by buying it at the confectioner's, where plenty of it is sold, but by doing it herself. The candied orange peel made at home and used while fresh is so far superior to that one can buy that it seems like quite another thing.

It can be made of the skin of an orange that has been peeled and used in any way, but rather a smooth skin should be chosen, and it must be used before it becomes at all hard and dry.
The first thing to do is to scrape off with a knife as much as possible of the white inner skin. Keep on scraping until the skin is quite thin and the back shows the yellow. Then cut the pieces of skin into strips one quarter of an inch wide and from one and a half to two inches long.

Now comes the cooking, which is done in the following manner: In a small saucepan full of water dissolve three tablespoons of sugar and put in your strips of peel. Boil them until the water boils away, leaving a thick syrup. During the latter part of this process it must be carefully watched and stirred to prevent burning. Next take the peel from the saucepan and roll it in powdered sugar; then put the pieces on plates to dry, not piled up, but in single layers.
The orange peel is best on the first or second day after it is made, and it must be used within a week or it will grow too hard. A dainty box filled with this orange peel makes a very attractive gift, or, if one is sending some really handsome box (a silver one or an enamel or carved one), an added pleasure will be given by filling it with candied orange peel made by the giver.

ELECTRICITY IN THE KITCHEN

Combination Oven and Warming Plate That Surely Is a Boon to the Housewife.

In using gas, it is usually difficult to obtain the heat other than in an upward direction, even though this may not always be the most desirable for the purpose at hand. Most of the Oven Door Used as Warming Plate.

gas stoves used in kitchens show this limitation and the makers of electric heating devices have been delighted at being unhampered by this objectionable feature. With electric ovens or stoves the heating element can be placed in any position or location that may seem best suited for the cooking to be done by it and it may even be movable. An interesting illustration of this is found in a new electric oven offered by a Scotch firm which has the heating element fastened to one side of the oven. When the oven is not needed, this whole side of the oven can be swung outward to form a heating plate for use with teakettle, coffee pots, or the like. Such a change would be manifestly impossible with any gas heated device, yet it is but one of the wide range of new combinations which electricity is bringing to our kitchens.—Popular Mechanics.

Good Peach-Canapes Recipe.

Peach-canapes may be a novelty.
Drain peaches from syrup, and if whole cut in halves, put in a shallow pan, and in each cavity put one teaspoonful of sugar, one half teaspoonful of butter, a few drops of lemon juice and a slight grating of nutmeg. Surround with some of the syrup and cook in a slow oven until thoroughly heated, basting twice. Serve on circular pieces of sponge cake sauted in butter. If the cake is not at hand use buttered toast.—Woman's Home Companion.

Delicious Soup.

Rinse lightly one cup of rice; cook in two quarts of salted water until the kernels burst; stew can of tomatoes one-half hour; season when put on stove with one teaspoonful salt, a level teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon of sugar, one medium sized onion, sliced, three cloves, small bay leaf and a little nutmeg; rub tomatoes when done through sieve into the rice starch;
add one cup whipped cream and serve.

To Clarify Dripping.

When pouring hot fat into a basin,
add to it an equal quantity of boiling water. This causes any pieces of the btm, and gristle in the fat to sink to the bottom, and dripping treated in this way will always be found beautifully white and clean.

When Sweeping Carpets.

Always remember to sweep the way of the grain. To brush the wrong way it not only bad for the carpet, but it tends to brush the dust in instead of out.

TAYLOR FLAYED JONES.

And Then, to Get Square, the Revival-ist Told a Story.

Here is a well authenticated story of Sam P. Jones, revivalist and lecturer;
Jones and ex-Governor Bob Taylor, now a United States senator from Tennessee, seldom met professionally in public. They were two such amazingly good drawing cards that few Chautauquus managements ever felt able to afford both of them in one day.
However, one management made the plunge, and the two witty southerners found themselves on the same platform.

Taylor introduced Jones. He flayed
Jones unmercifully, leaving little cut-tle on him. The crowd laughed heartily and waited for Jones to take his revenge.

Jones arose. He was always cool as ice. This time was no exception. The audience held its collective breath. The scathing was about to begin.

Jones, however, said nothing to indicate that he had even heard what Taylor had said. The crowd felt that at last Jones was overmatched. He delivered his lecture and made the usual hit. Yet there was much surprise that he had not replied to Taylor.

Just as Jones finished his set talk he turned and looked at Taylor. Then he drew out, with a jerk of his thumb toward Taylor:

"Whenever I see that man anywhew I'm reminded of a little dawg I used to know down in Gawzy. That dawg lived close to the railroad track, and every evening when the fast express train went shooting through that little dawg ran out and tried to eat that train. Every night he would seem to say: 'Last night I didn't get it, but I've figured out since why it was. I'll get it this time, I'm just so hungry for an express train!' Everybody around there knew that dawg would be killed some time by that train. Bound to. Couldn't help it.

"One hot summeh evening that train came along fasteh than eveh. It was just one big, noisy cloud of dust. That little dawg ran out as usual and ran along by the tracks. He was sucked in by the draft from the train and disappeared under the trucks. Everybody said: 'Theh he went—fool dawg! We always knew he'd get it. Now he's killed, all right!'

"But when that train had gone theh came that little dawg trotting back up the track. The train hadn't killed him at all—only made a bottailer of him."
Presently the audience began to see the joke in sections, and before long it was in a scream of laughter.—Strickland W. Gillilan in Chicago News.

He Got Even.

Justus Miles Forman once in writing
a story for Harper's Magazine said:

the name of an artist friend for the character of a chap who fell in love with a peasant girl in the Milanese.
"It made all his friends roar with glee," said Mr. Forman. "But he got even with me by making a large twenty-four sheet poster for a musical comedy. There was a lady, the star, stepping out of a stage door and a long line of Johnnies waiting for her with silly smirks and bunches of violets.
And every Johnnie was a portrait of me."

A Witty Retort.

As is generally the case with people who have nothing to say worth hearing, a conceited drummer talked a great deal, to the evident disgust of a number of his commercial friends who were dining at a country hotel. When cheese was served it was of a decided "lively" brand, much to the delight of the irrepressible. He attacked it with great gusto, remarking, "I'm like Samson—slaying them by the thousand!"
"Yes," replied a quick witted diner at the end of the table, "and with the same weapon too!"

He Was Dangerous.

A story is told by a member of congress whenever his brother is present.
That brother, now a prosperous merchant, was incontinently discharged from a position as bookkeeper in a wholesale grocery store in St. Louis.
A curt note dismissing him, containing no reason for the discharge, was all that he received. Determined to have an explanation, he went to the private office of the merchant and asked:

"Why did you fire me?"
"Because you were dangerous," said the merchant quietly. "You were loaded all the time."

That cured the young man completely. He hasn't been "loaded" since that day.—Washington Star.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they en-not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube.
When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

RESIDENCE ON BUNGALOW LINES.

Design 840 A, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

This is a full two story house, but the treatment of roof and dormers gives it the appearance of a story and a half bungalow. The walls are sided, and the gables over dormers are panels of rough cast cement. The interior arrangement is a very desirable one, combining a large living room across the entire end, a central hall and a liberal dining room at the front of the house. In the second story are four splendid chambers, with ample closet space. Size of house 32½ by 28 feet over the main part. First story nine feet, second story eight feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $3,200.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 840 A for $25.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

The Business of Sitting Out.

By LOUIS HAMMAN, M. D.
You must address yourself to the task of sitting outdoors day after day most faithfully. You must make it your constant occupation and stick to it as though you were paid money for it. If you do not get the idea of continuous rest firmly set in your mind you will not succeed. By rest I mean lying down in a bed or chair in the fresh air. You are not to spend any time in a closed room except when bathing or dressing or eating. Rest all the time. Take no exercise or work until your doctor tells you—no walking, no standing, no rambling, no riding, no driving, no housework, no office work, no chores, no trips, no visits, no knocking about, no odd jobs, no exertion of any kind. Put yourself at rest in the open air after breakfast and stay there. Do not be forever jumping up and doing little things about the house or fetching and carrying. Every morning sit out; every afternoon sit out; every evening after supper sit out or lie in your outdoor bed.

DOUBLY PROVEN.

Cass City Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This grateful citizen testified long ago. Told of quick relief—of lasting benefit.

The facts are now confirmed. Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive. It forms convincing proof of merit. Mrs. C. F. Krisler, Goodrich St., Vassar, Mich., says: "I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a first-class kidney remedy. The chief symptom of my trouble was weakness of the kidneys, which was very annoying and inconvenienced me both day and night. I often had dizzy spells and believe they were caused by my kidneys. I had often heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of and I finally began their use. They acted just as I expected, restoring my kidneys to a normal condition." (Statement given November 18, 1906.)

A LASTING CURE.

Mrs. Krisler was interviewed on September 1, 1909 and she said: "The cure effected by Doan's Kidney Pills in my case has been permanent. My health was never better than it is at the present time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

HE UNDERSTOOD.

"Do you realize, my good man, that there is one who sees and hears all we do—before whom we are but crushed and trampled worms?"
"Give us your 'and, gov'nor. I know just 'ow you feel—I've got a mother-in-law myself."

Sand as a Fire Extinguisher.

Why are pails of sand kept hanging in some buildings? It is the usual thing to see hanging in large buildings—museums, factories, offices—rows of pails containing a liquid which can be used for extinguishing the flames in case of fire. It is quite common nowadays to see also a pail of sand hanging with the others or in a place by itself. This sand is for use in case of fire caused by an accident to the electric wires, bringing about what is known as "a short circuit." If water were used it would spread the electric current and probably increase the damage, but sand, properly used, very quickly extinguishes the flames.—Christian Science Monitor.

One Woman's Way.

A West Philadelphia woman is still smarting over the "compliment" that a guest paid her when she was hostess at an entertainment a week ago. The West Philadelphia woman, whose name is not Brown, prides herself especially on her coffee, and she made some of her best for this occasion. Among the guests was a woman who makes it a practice always to compliment persons with whom she comes in contact. She says it makes others feel pleasant and doesn't hurt her. During the refreshments this guest turned to the woman whose name is not Brown and said:

"Your tea is so delicious! May I have another cup?"—Philadelphia Times.

At the Chauffeurs' School.

"Now, sir," said the examiner, "suppose you were climbing a steep hill and your power should suddenly give out and the car begin to slide backward in the direction of a precipice. What would you do first?"

"I'd yell for an ambulance and telegraph my wife where to find my accident insurance policy," said the pupil.—Harper's Weekly.

Anybody Can See Through It.

A good many people who have bought lumber at different places and have noticed that we always give a little better quality for the same money have wondered how we do it.

It's all in the sorting. We make quality our hobby. So when we get a car of, say, No. 1 boards, we sort them over and every board that is not up to No. 1 grade, goes into the No. 2 grade. What little we lose by reducing the grades of a few boards, we more than make up for in the new customers this system brings us, and in the increased satisfaction given each customer.

We can save you money on one piece or a car load.

The Healthful Uphill Walk.

The best way to get oxygen into the blood is to walk a mile uphill two or three times a day, keeping the mouth closed and expanding the nostrils. This beats all other methods. During such a walk every drop of blood in the body will make the circuit of the lungs and stream, red and pure, back to its appointed work of cleansing and repairing worn-out tissues.

Albinos.

The human species offers frequent examples of individuals attacked by albinism. It is found oftenest among men of the black race. White albinos have skin of a peculiar paleness, blond hair, white or colorless beard, pink iris and red pupils. The negro albino has skin of variable aspect. In some cases it is white as milk, and in others it is like wax, or, rather, resembles the hue of a corpse.

Had Looked Out For No. 1.

"Have you ever done anything to better the condition of any part of the human race?" said the very serious man.
"Of course I have," answered the person with the cold gray eye. "Am I not a part of the human race?"

Switzerland.

Four languages are in general use in Switzerland—German, French, Italian and Romansch.

RISE ABOVE TROUBLE.

Do not let trouble conquer you. No matter what cares, anxieties or sorrows may vex or sadden you, do not prove yourself a weakling by going down before them, but show yourself noble in rising above them and molding them to life's purpose. Rather bear an insult than give one; rather dry a tear than cause one to be shed. How many celebrities we would have if men were as anxious to make their own fame as they are to unmake the fame of others!

Windows.

Utility is the mother of nearly all decorative features. Windows were first designed to give light. The history of glass shows that the useful has taken decorative prominence. In old colonial houses glass in small panes was used probably because it was cheap. The sash was divided by small pieces of wood, called mullions. After many years glass came to be used in large sizes, and of recent years it has been the practice to have but a single sheet, often in a very large size, of plate glass. These are permissible only where the view warrants their use. The average house or cottage is better without them, as they suggest the show window of a shop rather than a home.—Argonaut.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. REFLECTION.
We are told, "Let not the sun go down on your wrath." This, of course, is best, but as it generally does I would add, Never act or write till it has done so. This rule has saved me from many an act of folly. It is wonderful what a different view we take of the same event a day after it has happened. —Sydney Smith.

A Trifling Incident.
An Irishman went into a barber shop, and the unsteady gait with which he approached the chair showed that he had been imbibing of the produce of the still. He wanted his hair cut, and while the barber was getting him ready went off into a sleep. His head kept bobbing from one side to the other, and at length the barber in making a slip cut off the lower part of his ear. The barber gasped, then jumped about and howled, and a crowd of neighbors rushed in. Finally the demonstration became so great that it began to attract the attention of the man in the chair, and he opened one eye and said, "Wh-wh-at's the matter wid yez?" "Good Lord!" said the barber, "I've cut off the whole lower part of your ear."

"Have ye? Ah, thln, go on wid yer business. It was too long anyhow!"

An Oversight.
"I trust you slept comfortably and had everything you needed," said Sandy Macpherson's hostess one cold morning last winter. "Ay, weel enough," replied her guest, a venerable Scot, "but I dinna see the guid of you bottle in the bed." "Why, wasn't the water hot?" the hostess asked in surprise. "Verra hot," responded Macpherson, "but ye forgot to put anything in it."

Expecting Too Much.
"A rather snicky old chap who was traveling off the beaten paths struck a somewhat shabby hotel, which was principally used by workmen from a nearby construction camp. He paid a dollar in advance for room and breakfast, the clerk remarking caustically that "a suit case isn't a guarantee that the bill will be paid, especially when a guy has a room on the second floor." And just before midnight the indignant Mr. Smith piled down into the hotel office, almost dressed. "What's the matter?" asked the sleepy clerk, shifting his pipe to the other corner. "Anything wrong?" "Wrong!" gasped Mr. Smith, trembling. "Wrong! Confound your old dump, anyhow! I saw a pair of rats as big as hedgehogs fighting in the middle of my room." "Huh," said the clerk, closing his eyes and preparing to return to sleep. "What do you want for a dollar—a bullfight?"—Herbert Corey in Cincinnati Times-Star.

Imlay City Man Weds.
Charlie Hyde, tiring of the loneliness of his humble widower's quarters and desiring the companionship of a Sweet one of the opposite sex, sought out Margaret Sweet of Owendale, who consented to Hyde her loneliness in Charlie's domicile, and the two were made one Wednesday evening at the Congregational parsonage by Rev. T. C. Williams. A goodly number of our young people soon learned of their mission to the parsonage and prepared a reception to the couple as soon as they were "at home." Equipped with musical (?) instruments of various kinds and shags they gave the blushing pair a serenade which they will long remember.—Record.

Clifford Saloonist To Pay Damages.
In the case of Emily Spencer vs. Isaac Markle and Nettie Markle which was tried in the Lapeer circuit last week, a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff. The Markle trouble dates back over a year ago when Markle got in bad in the conduct of his hotel at Clifford for which he was several times arrested for violations of the liquor law. Mrs. Emily Spencer sued Markle for damages for selling whiskey to her son, who was a minor. Mrs. Spencer secured a heavy judgment against Markle, who changed his residence to Canada, and deeded all of his property to his brother-in-law, Judge Smith set the deed aside and Mrs. Spencer will now take steps to collect her judgment. The case may go to the supreme court.—Monitor.

City Water for Caro Farmers.
Mains are being laid from the city water works at Caro to farms out of town to the distance of a mile and a half, and for the purpose of supplying the farmers with water for their stock, and for household purposes. There are very few wells on the farms near Caro. It is planned to establish a system of electric lights on the farms also, to be furnished from the city plant.

Farmers, you can afford to help, because you need a comfort station of this kind and when established you will be entitled to its benefits without trespass or obligation to anyone. Any number of Cass City people could be depended upon to supply the room with current literature. The expense of establishing such a room would be a bagatell compared with the resulting benefit. All it needs is for some one to plan and start the movement.

I hear some talk of the need of a sewer system in Cass City. There can be no doubt about the benefit of a good sewer, if it can be financed. If it is felt that the increase in the number of cesspools is becoming a menace to health, this can be overcome by the adoption of the Aseptic Tank system of disposing of the sewerage; which dissolves into water, becomes purified, and passes off into the ground.

I see that some of the bend has been taken out of the East river, but in my opinion it would benefit Cass City much more if Elkland and Greenleaf townships would unite their resources, adopt a common policy and together straighten the channel and dredge it for some distance into Greenleaf township and thus forever eliminate the disastrous floods of the past.

Was somewhat surprised to find that the stores of Cass City still retain the antiquated custom of keeping open evenings. Why?

Cass City, where I spent the happy years from childhood to man's estate shall always bear for me the hallowed name of Home. To grasp old friends by the hand, to look into their faces, to realize that although a span of nearly one-third the earth has separated us for years, so many still remember and address me with the old familiar "Harry," is a joy that time cannot efface.

Feeling thus, I trust you will appreciate that the ideas herein expressed and the suggestions made are prompted entirely by an humble spirit of civic pride in the old town and with a desire only to inject for discussion in the community some thoughts that perhaps, in the busy application to private affairs, may not have occurred to you before.

God speed Cass City—long may her citizens live and prosper. Pull together, select from your midst a live press agent. The Detroit dailies will gladly pay him for human interest stories of your achievements here and the advertising which the old town will thus receive will surprise your most sanguine prophet. Boost for Cass City, Mr. Editor, you have a good subject, then boost again. Yours truly, H. L. PINNEY.

The worst habit the boys can fall into is that of loafing around on the streets at night. It is then they cast their lot in slippery places, when at any moment they are likely to fall from grace. All good and noble lessons taught by their mothers are there counteracted and nullified. They learn nothing that is good—but everything that is bad. The boys who spend their evenings in the sacred precincts of home, with good books for their companions, are the future hope of this republic.—Rising Sun, O. Unique Weekly.

New Deere Hay Loaders

RAKE CLEANEST — HANDLE HAY GENTLEST

THE NEW DEERE HAY LOADER saves your hay because of its unlimited capacity and gentle loading. Saves your horses because it is light draft—all working parts are slow driven. Saves your time because of its greater capacity, clean raking and high delivery. All these things are important in the economical handling of your crop. An examination of this loader, and an explanation of the principles on which it operates, will convince you that the New Deere Loader is right, and it is the Loader you want. It is not built for merely one or two seasons work, and if you have had experience with other makes you will be surprised to find how long-lived the New Deere Loader is. It has the famous wheelbarrow mount which prevents sagging, even after long continued use. The gathering drum is floated and will neither dig into the ground nor gather trash. There are no changes required in going from swath to windrow work or back again. Come in and see our sample machine.

Port Huron's Entry List Includes Famous Animals From Oklahoma to Massachusetts—Stake Race, With $1,000 Purse Each Day

The Michigan Short Ship races which will be held in Port Huron July 18 to 21 bid fair to excel any previous race meet held in this city. Port Huron's race meet will be the fourth of the Short Ship race circuit's this year, and the first in which the American and Canadian horses will clash.

Many horses are particularly trained to win at Port Huron and the public has the opportunity of witnessing the best racing on any half mile track in Canada or the United States. The association has spared no expense or labor to give its patrons the very best racing possible and has already the entries of many famous horses from Oklahoma to Massachusetts.

A thousand dollar stake race is on the program for every day in addition to the regular card, with the finest and most select list of entries obtainable and many keen contests are down for decision at the meeting, both in the stake and class races.

Substantial improvements both to the track grounds and grand stand have been made in order to properly and comfortably take care of the patrons of the meeting. Owing to the extreme warm weather of the past few weeks the horses are in midsummer condition, and the records for the stakes and classes are confidently expected to be considerably lowered. All lovers of the sport should not fail to include the Port Huron meet in their list of season's amusements.
