

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING CAUSES LOSS OF ARM

HAWK HUNTING ENDS WITH SERIOUS RESULTS.

Chas. Klinkman Has Been Peculiarly Unfortunate With Accidents.

Chas. Klinkman, aged 16 years, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Klinkman of Elkland township, has been a patient at Pleasant Home Hospital since Sunday when he was accidentally shot. The injury was so severe that it was found necessary to amputate his right arm just below the elbow.

Charles, in company with Nat Darling, a neighbor's boy, was engaged in hunting hawks near his home, three miles east and one mile south of town. While climbing a steep incline, Darling, who was ahead, stumbled, thus causing the gun which he carried over his shoulder to be discharged. The shot lodged in the arm and side of Klinkman. The boys had to go a half mile for help and then the injured lad was hurried to the hospital.

Klinkman has been peculiarly unfortunate with accidents. Several years ago, he had powder shot into an eye while celebrating the Fourth and the sight of that optic was impaired. About a year later, while attempting to ride a cow home from pasture, he fell from the animal and broke an arm.

Case Tried in Justice Court Appealed to the Circuit Court.

(From Sandusky Farmer.)

The suit of the Wolverine Automobile Company against W. F. Ehlers of Shabbona has been appealed to circuit court. The case was tried before Justice T. E. Dawson last week and the justice rendered his decision Thursday, which was to the effect that defendants pay to Ehlers the sum of $208 damages and the costs which amounted to $10.

The suit was brought by Ehlers to recover the first payment of the purchase price of an automobile sold to him by the defendant company, Mr. Ehlers claiming that the auto was not up to the claims made for it when it was sold to him.

ELKTON FAIR AND RACES.

The dates of the Elkton fair, races and base ball tournament, Sept. 6, 7 and 8, are rapidly approaching, and everyone will do well to arrange their affairs so as to go.

One of the features this year will be a fine exhibit of diminutive Shetland ponies, several owners of these pretty and attractive little animals having signified their intention of showing their pets at the fair: There will be a running race for ponies Thursday morning at 9:30, which will be a pleasing event. There will also be a driving race for ladies Friday morning, which should prove a novel feature. Forenoon races are a new

Dad Doesn't Favor the "No Breakfast Club"

Dad took the bit in his teeth, got one leg over the thill and won't budge an inch. Ma should have known better. Just so long as she kept dad fed up well, he'd stand for a lot of things and simply smile, but when she attempted to organize the "No Breakfast Club" and insisted that he should be one of the charter members, she had her hands as full as the farmer did who tried to drive his colt past a circus parade. Ma attended a course of lectures given by a fat, oily fellow who said that the human family was simply glutinous; that folks shouldn't eat any breakfast at all, simply suck an orange for lunch, and just before going to bed eat a couple of dry crackers and slowly sip a tumbler full of diluted water. He said people could not have lots of thoughts and all pure ones on stomachs full of food. Ma was simply crazy over the idea. She showed dad how we could save $60 a month on grocery and meat bills; said we wouldn't have to keep help, 'cause there wouldn't be any work to do except beddin' down the canary and stirrin' up the clothes a little on the springs for us. "And besides this," says ma, "see how it will improve our thinkin'." "Mary," says departure for the association.

The base ball tournament bids fair to be one of the most popular features of the fair. Four of the best teams in the county—Sebewaing, Pt. Austin, Owendale and Caseville—will battle for prizes, aggregating $200. They will be good games and base ball fans will be well entertained.

The association is offering $1,000 for horse races, and the liberal purses should attract large fields of fast horses.

THUMB WEDDINGS.

On Thursday evening, Aug. 17, occurred the marriage of Harry Corbushley of Sandusky and Miss Kate Passage of Plymouth at the home of the bride's parents. The groom is a prominent young business man in Sandusky. Miss Nora E. Pattison became the bride of Lawrence A. Hooper Monday, Aug. 14. Both are prominent young people of Caro.

TWO BAD AXE BOYS DROWNED AT PORT AUSTIN

Irwin Morgan and Wm. Belden Met Death Off Broken Rock Near Port Austin.

Irwin Morgan and Wm. Belden, both young men whose homes are in Bad Axe, were drowned off Broken Rock near Port Austin, where they were camping, Saturday morning. The body of Morgan was found Sunday under a rock in the water, his feet protruding just far enough out for the searchers to locate him.

Both young men are members of prominent and well known families in Bad Axe. Wm. Belden is a nephew of Mrs. Lizzie Blackmore of Cass City. She expects to go to Bad Axe to attend the funeral.

THUMB NOTES.

Announcement was made Sunday at St. Agatha's church of the approaching marriage of two popular young people of the parish, in the persons of Miss Alice Rocheleau, daughter of Mrs. William Rocheleau and Herbert Lafave, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Lafave.—Gagetown Times.

The body of Andrew Hauer, who was reported drowned off a fish tug at anchor near Charity island, was found floating in the bay near Pinconning Sunday afternoon and in such condition as to give rise to a suspicion of foul play. There was a deep gash over one temple and the clothing appeared to be bloodstained. The authorities of Arenac county are investigating.

The large barn on the farm of James McKenzie, near Millington, was struck by lightning during the storm last Monday night, and burned to the ground, together with a large part of the season's crops. The barn was one of the largest and finest in that section, and besides hay and other crops burned, were 1000 bushels of oats. A valuable bull and a colt that the owner had refused a big price for, only the Saturday before, were also burned. There was an insurance of $800 on the building, but none on contents, so that the loss is heavy.

NEWS FROM OTHER TOWNS IN THE THUMB

ANNUAL REUNION OF SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

Enrollment at County Normal Stimulated; Big Realty Deal; Thumb Notes.

L. E. Warner of Marlette has announced himself as a candidate for the office of register of deeds of Sanilac county.

Mrs. Dora Leggett, formerly of Sandusky, has deeded her two houses in Lexington to Sanilac county, for and in consideration of $10 per month during life.

The thirty-fourth annual reunion of the Soldiers and Sailors association Macomb, St. Clair and Sanilac counties will be held at Marine City on September 13 and 14, 1911.

One of the biggest dirt deals ever pulled off in Sanilac county was made when Wesley Lane sold his 280-acre farm, five miles east of Sandusky, known as the Dr. Smith stock farm, to John Kearns of Marine City for $25,000.

Enrollment in the county normal school is likely to be stimulated to a point far beyond previous years when it becomes known that two graduates have married during the present week. Preparation for teaching school seems to be in no way a bar to matrimony; on the contrary, trained teachers appear to be in demand both within and without professional lines.—Advertiser.

Matthew Frockings of Buel township was struck by lightning Tuesday afternoon and killed instantly. Mr. Frockings had just put his team in the stable when the bolt struck the building. Neighbors arrived in time to drag the body from the building which was entirely consumed by fire, together with the team of horses. The unfortunate man was 45 years of age. His farm is two miles south and two miles west of Applegate.—Croswell Jeffersonian.

The large barn owned by Oliver Rapson was destroyed by a fire of unknown origin. Mr. Rapson and the members of his family were eating supper and, during the meal, Mr. Rapson happened to look out of the window toward the barn. He saw that it was all ablaze. The barn was filled to the roof with hay and all of the contents, including the crops, went up in smoke. The damage is estimated at $4,000, with $1,100 insurance.—Harbor Beach News.

Julia Gregory, the ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Gregory, living just south of Owendale, fell from a horse and broke an arm. Mr. Gregory had just finished outfitting and as the children clamored for a ride, had placed the three little ones on the horse's back. The animal started up suddenly, and two children rolled off, resulting in the accident to Julia. The third clung to the collar until the horse stopped. It was a few minutes of anguish for the father, for had the last child fallen, the cultivator no doubt would have gone over the little one.—Owendale Herald.

MRS. JANE GRAVES.

Mrs. Watson Graves, an aged resident of Wilmot, passed away at the home of her son, Thomas, Aug. 13, at the age of 77 years, after a brief illness with cerebral hemorrhage.

Jane Cook was born in Canada, September 24, 1844, united in marriage to Watson Graves at the age of 22 years. To this union were seven children, all of whom survive her. Funeral services were held at the Wilmot Methodist church.

BOOSTING CARO FAIR.

Caro business men took occasion Friday to invade Saginaw for the purpose of boosting the fall fair to be held in their city, August 28 to September 1. The party went in automobiles, eleven in number, and took the route through Reese, arriving in Saginaw late in the afternoon. There were over fifty men in the party, and upon arrival they divided forces calling upon different establishments for the purpose of boosting the Caro fair, a large quantity of printed matter being used in the work.

This and That

It is a poor excuse of an old hen, if permitted to run loose in town that cannot make at least one enemy out of a good neighbor.

The man who owes a debt and persists in spending money for luxuries is spending money that does not belong to him. And yet how often it is done.

The cow that gives two quarts of milk and refrains from putting her foot in it, is far more valuable than the one that gives ten quarts and then kicks it over.

A dog becomes a cur when he wags his tail to indicate his friendliness, and then having misled you as to his intentions, snaps at your heels when your back is turned.

Don't teach your children that it is a shame to wear worn and patched clothes if you are not able to afford better, but that it is no honor in wearing new ones that are not paid for. A poet said, "Remember, that rags may cover a boy, who will some day be the great world's joy."

A man in a neighboring town, who took a city paper in preference to a country paper because he got more paper for the money, was attracted by the advertisement of a fire escape which would be sent on receipt of $2. He sent the cash and in a few days received a copy of the New Testament.

Every man talks in an important way about his mail. He has to go down town Sundays to get his mail; hates to leave town because he misses his mail, and all there is in it is a bill or two and circulars advertising a mining scheme. If he chances to be at home when he opens it, "hush," the mother will tell the children; "don't disturb your father while he is reading his mail."

Many a woman goes out shopping dressed in silk and enveloped in perfume whose hard-working husband hasn't had a new suit of clothes or a decent meal in five years. Yes, and many a loafer stands on the street with a stinking pipe in his face, his tank full of "booze" and his mouth full of profanity, whose hard-working wife hasn't had a new dress or a kind word since she was married.

Every line in a newspaper costs the proprietor something. If it is for the benefit of the individual it should be paid for. If the grocer were asked to contribute groceries to one abundantly able to pay for them, he would refuse. The proprietor of a newspaper must pay for the free advertising if the beneficiary does not, and yet it is one of the hardest things to be learned by many that a newspaper has space in its columns to rent, and must rent to live. To give away rent for anything less than living rates is as fatal to a newspaper as for a landlord to furnish rent free.

Here is a booster pledge that has some class to it and one we should emulate in Cass City and its vicinity. Come, fellows, hold up your right hand: "Upon my word and honor, I hereby now declare that as long as I am a resident of this community it will be my constant aim to boost at all times and every time. I will do what I can for the public, work that has the good of the community as an object. I will submit to and abide by majority rule, and will not knock and howl my head off if things are not done my way. I will take no radical or extreme position on any question before the people and will have due respect for the opinion of my friends and neighbors when their opinions are opposed to mine. I will always try to say something good about my town and my people, and I'll keep my bazoo shut and 'cut it out' like a man. I realize that if this community is good enough to live in and make my money in, it is the proper place to spend my money in."

What makes a town anyway? Is it the wealth evidenced by fine homes and splendid store buildings? These may attest the stability and thrift of certain people, but they offer no great inducements to commercial and moral progress. Is it the spirit of good order and law observance? That is a factor only. The sleepest old hamlets that dot the map have this spirit in rank abundance. Is it the schools and churches? May their number ever increase, but they don't make a town—they only culture it. Is it the geographical location, the character of the country surrounding, the shipping facilities, the natural advantages? None of these is an essential. Well, what is it that makes a town anyway? Just one thing—the unity of the people, the existence of a common bond which causes business and social enemies to put aside all differences when it comes to boosting the town. No town ever made real progress on the way to substantial success without the get together spirit unanimously adopted. It has rejuvenated old hulks of towns that were yawning their way into endless sleep. It has infused new lifeblood into the heart of commercial life and made thriving cities out of paralytic villages. Natural advantages count for much, and prosperity cannot be built on shifting sand, but any town with half a chance can be made to grow and expand and thrive when its citizens join with one accord in the boosting program.

EDWARD HUNT

Industrious Farmer, One of the Pioneers of Austin Twp.

Edward Hunt, aged 62 years, died at his home one-half mile north of Freburg Sunday, August 13, 1911, at 4 o'clock p. m., after an illness of some duration.

Mr. Hunt was one of the pioneers of Austin township, and had lived on the farm on which he died all his life. He was well known to nearly all in north Sanilac and south Huron counties, and was highly esteemed as an honest, industrious farmer, a kind and accommodating neighbor, and he will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends and neighbors. He leaves a family of four grown children, three daughters, Minnie, Dora and Cora, and one son, Maxwell. Their mother died several years ago.

The funeral was held at the residence Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Weaver of the M. E. church of Cass City conducting the services. The burial was in the Austin cemetery. The funeral was largely attended, showing the esteem in which he was held by all who knew him.—Ubyl Courier.

His Huge Sense of Humor.
Uncle Joe Cannon's capacity for tempering his wrath with humor, even when he is wrathful, prompted one congressman to remark:

"In every walk of life a sense of humor is a help and a blessing. At the same time even this may exist in excess. I, for my part, shouldn't care to have so great a sense of humor as a British soldier I once heard about. This soldier was ordered to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The lash was laid on all the harder, but the rain of blows only seemed to increase his delight.

"What are you laughing at?" the sergeant finally asked.
"Why," the soldier chuckled, "I'm the wrong man."

A Hard Case.
"Percy French told me on one occasion," says Mr. Ramsay Colles in his book, "In Castle and Courthouse," "that he was staying in the country at a house where the landlady professed to give bed and board for 25 shillings a week. 'I assure you,' said French gravely, 'I was there a week before I discovered which was the bed and which was the board.'"

A Concurrent Opinion.
Hon. John C. Bell, attorney general of Pennsylvania, tells the following story:

In many of the interior counties of Pennsylvania there are lay judges who assist the law judges in disposing of miscellaneous cases. Several years ago there was introduced into the legislature a bill to abolish the office of lay judge. Judge Blank, himself a lay judge, appeared before the senate judiciary committee at Harrisburg, which was considering the matter.

His argument was this: "There is before your august body a bill to abolish the office of lay judge. I am in favor of its passage. For ten years I have been a lay judge myself, sitting day by day with a judge learned in the law. But he does all the work, and I have no show. In all these years I have only once been asked for a concurrent opinion, and that was last week, when, after listening to two lawyers argue an equity case for three days, my colleague turned to me and said, 'Judge, don't these go durned long winded lawyers give you a pain?'"—Metropolitan Magazine.

Improving on Horsepower.
In Venezuela many years ago a wealthy agriculturist was appointed minister of marine. Being a hard worker, he asked at once for particulars of the fleet. The secretary brought him particulars about the only warship. The details gave length, tonnage and horsepower. At this last the minister stopped the secretary and bade him write down quickly an order to the chief of customs, "Take out these 120 horses at once, and I will send you good mules in their places," explaining that mules were much more economical both as regards food and ability to withstand fatigue.

Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. L. I. Wood & Co."

IS SHE CLOSE TO ROYALTY?

Stories From London That Emille Grigsby is a Chum of Princess Mary. The latest social sensation stirring New York and London has a touch of mystery. It concerns Miss Emille Grigsby, who was the protegee of the late Charles T. Yerkes, and to whom that gentleman of transportation tubes and high finance left $1,000,000 and a beautiful mansion in Park avenue, New York.

The stories have it that Miss Grigsby now frequents Buckingham palace, that she is a chum of Princess Mary and a friend of Queen Mary, that she had a box at the coronation and that she has had lords and ladies on her string in London, having, in short, scored distinct social successes.

On the other hand, it is said that her name has not been mentioned in a single London newspaper, that she is not recognized by any of the elite in the British capital and that if she had any entrance into Buckingham palace it was a back stair entrance. The gossip is that she is the friend of a Frenchwoman who talks that language with Princess Mary and acts as French secretary to the queen and that through this friendship she has gained the ear of royalty. Much space has been devoted to the case in the New York newspapers, and the cables have sung with the tale.

For years Miss Grigsby has been unmercifully snubbed in both New York and London, despite the fact that she is beautiful, accomplished and rich. Now, if these reports are to be credited, she has reached the social heights at a bound, to the unspeakable disgust of the would be climbers who have been at such pains to "cut" her in the past.

tends to attempt a flight from the Pacific to the Atlantic before the summer is over.

"I intend to attempt a flight from coast to coast," he said, "but it shall be from west to east. To start from New York would be to buck a westerly head wind all the way across. When I start it will be by the southern route. I hope to be able to start in about three weeks, after I have finished my work at Washington, where I have to test out a government machine.

"I have been making a study of the air currents, especially in the mountains. To negotiate the Rockies will be the most difficult part of the flight. It will also be a problem to pack gasoline and food across some of the stages. It probably will be necessary to put an additional gasoline tank on the machine. With the present tank I can fly from 125 to 150 miles."

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt-rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. CHAPTER XII.

Mrs. Blazes opened her window silently, and lowered to the ground a rope that was fearfully and wonderfully made. She had used everything and anything, from pillow slips to the cords of the portieres. She had enough rope to let her out of a six-story building, instead of from a window a scant twelve feet from the ground. The end of the rope she tied to a table near the window. Then she looked down anxiously.

"It is dangerous," she sighed. The Count wandered into view. He was growing weary of waiting for the hat. At sight of the rope he brightened up.

"Jump out," he suggested. "Silly!" she said; "I've got to climb down. Steady the rope."

He took hold of the lower end and straightened the rope against the building.

"But how in the world am I to climb down?" she demanded.

"Lead yourself out slow, und den slide for life," he told her.

Their argument grew more intense. She was afraid to trust herself to the frail means of reaching the earth, and he was insistent that she should come down at once. In the midst of their talk the front door opened. Mrs. Blazes heard the sound and darted back from the window, taking the rope in with her so swiftly that she left the Count standing with his hands in the air.

Amos Medders came slowly down the steps, looking intently at the Count, whom he could not recognize in the dark. The Count had not heard him coming and could not understand why Mrs. Blazes had pulled the rope in so suddenly.

Count von Fitz was dumbfounded when he was seized in a grip of iron and the cold tones of Medders came:

It Beats the World to cure Rheumatism

Aching and enfeebled muscles should remind you of slowness of tissue repair. Eruptions of the skin and catarrh of the mucous membranes show diminished nerve power in the tissues.

In health or disease there is need of an internal bath. This is best obtained by drinking a glass of pure water with one or two teaspoonfuls of San-Jak 30 to 60 minutes before breakfast, washing the blood. This passes quickly from the stomach and stimulates the bowels to increased peristalsis, overcoming constipation and its attendant ills. It is quickly absorbed and entering the blood stream bathes the cells of the liver and heart, then passes to the brain and washes out the cobwebs and awakens to new life every cell in the body.

San-Jak dilutes theropy secretions and dissolves all abnormal crystalline substances that may be in the blood and urine. SAN-JAK greatly promotes elimination, creates downward peristalsis, stimulates a flow of digestive juices. It dissolves the sticky mucous in the mouth and throat, allowing the membranes to be bathed in their natural secretions. San-Jak is the great medicine of change in the body, by enabling the kidneys to absorb and eliminate alkaline sulphates which are the products of intestinal decomposition and in renal weakness or the real cause of Bright's disease.

Man does not wear out like a piece of machinery by constant disintegration for he is self renewing. When he loses his ability to self-renewal or fails in process of making young blood, the nerve tissue is not sufficiently nourished and his strength and health fail.

SAN-JAK is the only medicine which will enable you to keep a perfect balance between elimination and renewal of the body. Decay of the body at any time of life is unnatural. Permanent waste of the system can be avoided by the use of SAN-JAK.

Rheumatism, catarrh and bladder trouble, the source of trouble to humanity, is due to a too high or low specific gravity which may be regulated to normal by taking SAN-JAK.

Swelling under the eyes, grayish white or waxy color of the skin denotes granular disease of the kidneys. The cure is SAN-JAK.

"What are these doing, scoundrel?" General Blazes came up the walk at that instant. He had his hat in his hand and was still laboring under excitement. When he saw Medders struggling with the Count he leaped into the fray and separated them.

"What's happening?" he asked. "Well, I am surprised," Medders said. "I thought this foolish little man here was a burglar."

"What foolish little man?" Blazes asked.

"This one they call a Count—this tutor. I thought he was trying to break into the house."

"Wouldn't be surprised if he was," Blazes asserted, vehemently. "Isn't your daughter in there? Isn't Harry's sister in there? These Counts will do anything to capture a girl with money."

"It is not so!" Count von Fitz sputtered, rubbing his neck. "Verily, there has a suspicious look," Medders said to him.

"It's a gam good thing I happened along," Blazes observed.

"A what, friend?" Medders inquired curiously.

"A gam good thing—doesn't count, you know when you cuss backwards."

"Verily," Medders said, "there be times when a man could cuss sideways."

"Well," Blazes said, turning again to Count von Fitz. "It's a lucky thing for you there was nothing in the report that you were with my wife today. I'm a jealous man. I'm desperate when I'm roused."

"Don't rouse!" the Count begged.

"Once," the General said, "I caught a man flirting with her. What did I do?"

"Vat did you do?" the Count asked, weakly.

"They buried his hat," the General said. "Just his hat! Just—his—hat!"

"Chust his hat!" the Count echoed. Mentally he wondered if it had been a yellow hat with red poppies.

"Thou art a man of wrath, General," Medders said. "Once I grew angry at a man—in my youthful days."

"And what did you do to him, man of peace?" asked the General, laughing, while the Count listened nervously.

"In those days," Medders said, "I was vain of my strength and given to yielding to my angry passions. I went unto this man, and I seized him thus—"

Before the Count could dodge, Medders held him as though in a vise.

"And I said unto him: 'Thou condemned wretch, dost thou not know it is unwise so to conduct thyself in our midst?' And I smote him thus, and I shook him thus"—illustrating upon the helpless Count—and then I said unto him that if he offended me again I should smite him full sore."

"Please," begged the Count, "please don't remember anything else!"

"I beg thy pardon," Medders said, contritely. "I did forget myself."

"Come in out of the night air, gentlemen," suggested Harry, who came to the door just then. The trio, smiling over the unconscious way in which Medders had shaken the Count, started in, when a messenger boy arrived.

He carried a large hat box. The Count tried to intercept him, but Harry was as anxious as the Count to get that hat.

She turned it out quick enough," Harry murmured to himself, paying the boy the seventy-five dollars that was called for on delivery. When the boy had left, Harry chanced to look at the address and read:

"Count Herman von Fitz. Why, this hat isn't for me, after all."

"No," the Count said. "I ordered it, but it isn't for me."

Medders turned and said: "Is there some mistake, Harry?"

Harry looked at the Count, but that gentleman was pretty well satisfied with the situation and made no move to correct matters.

"No, there isn't any mistake," Harry said.

"Did I understand aright," Medders asked, "that these are paying seventy-five dollars for that hat?"

"I did—without taking chloroform, too," Harry ruefully acknowledged.

"Some hats are worth that much," the Count remarked.

"Sure!" boomed the General. "My wife often spends more than that for a hat."

"Is it for thy sister, Harry?" Medders asked, casually.

"I don't know if it will fit her," Harry answered, non-committally.

"Wouldst thee let us see it?" Medders asked. "Truly, a hat worth that much must be a wonderful thing."

Here the Count nervously interposed, afraid that the General would become aroused if he saw the hat.

"No, no. Der night air might spoil it!"

"I confess I am curious to see it," Medders said. "Ah, what forms the vanity of women and the foolishness of man do take!"

From the house came the lank form of Socrates Primmer. In his hand he carried the hatbox which all day he had been endeavoring to open in the presence of Lucy.

"What is the trouble?" he asked.

"No trouble at all—until you came," Harry replied, drily.

"Harry has simply been doing what I have often done," General Blazes explained. "He has bought a hat."

Primmer glanced at the hat box Harry held, and then looked at his own.

"This then, is for his wife?" he inquired, sady.

"What?" the General said, misunderstanding Primmer. "Another man buy a hat for my wife? How dare you!"

Primmer shrank away from him.

"Nay," Medders soothed. "The hat Harry has is for his sister, Carolyn."

"No," Harry corrected him, fearing some further complication. "The fact is, I was going to give the hat to Lucy—with your permission, Mr. Medders. But I didn't like to ask your permission before all the others here."

"Bully for you, Harry!" the General beamed. "You couldn't do a finer thing."

Primmer lapsed into a fit of dejection.

"Alas!" he sobbed. "Homer was right when he said:

"Alas, faint hope I leaned upon! Alas, thou too art dead and gone!"

"Cheer him up!" General Blazes suggested. "Let him see your present for Lucy."

"I, too, have a present for Lucy," Primmer said.

"Thee hast?" Medders asked. "What is it, Socrates?"

"A hat," Primmer announced.

Harry leaped to a conclusion. Instantly he coupled Primmer with the mysterious man who had bought the duplicate hat at Mlle. Daphne's.

"Let's see it," he said.

He opened Primmer's hat box, and one glance was enough to confirm his suspicion. He dropped the lid quickly, took the box from Primmer's unresisting hand, and said:

"I'll take your hat to Lucy. She'll be—"

"No. I shall present it to her myself," Primmer declared, taking the box from Harry.

"All right," Harry said. "Don't let any one profane that hat by seeing it until it gets to the one for whom it is intended. And neither will I with mine. You won't let any one see it?"

"Surely not," Primmer agreed.

"All right. That's a sacred compact. Let's all go in now."

And as he ushered them into the house Harry said things to himself because of his foolishness in paying seventy-five dollars for a hat when the duplicate was in the house all the time.

"And," he growled, "I've still got one coming from Daphne!"

"What did thee say?" Medders asked, as they went into the reception room.

"I was saying that I hoped no one was coming this evening to break up our quiet little party."

CHAPTER XIII.

A short while later Harry left his guests gathered about the piano, singing, and quietly slipped outside. The Count made an excuse and left the room also. Harry went immediately to the front of the house and threw a pebble against Mrs. Blazes' window.

"Sst!" he cautioned, as she appeared.

"Oh, dear! I'm distracted!" she said, almost hysterically.

"How do you think I feel?" he asked.

"Listen. I've got the hat. I put it in my sister's room, until I get a chance to give it to you."

"Why can't I have it right away?" she asked.

"Some one would see me getting it to you. We can't take a chance. General Blazes is in there with the rest—don't you hear him singing?"

"Oh, yes. It is such a blessing that the dear old fellow can forget his troubles."

"He'll remember them soon enough."

Around the corner of the house came Count von Fitz, laboriously carrying a long ladder that he had found.

"By gracious!" Harry said. "You're not such a fool after all. Here! I'll help you."

"Now you see," said the Count. "Ve ged her out."

With infinite pains, and as much silence as they could command, they raised the ladder and adjusted it against the window sill. Mrs. Blazes watched the proceeding eagerly.

"Am I to come down on that?" she inquired.

"No," Harry answered, with the sarcasm the occasion required. "We are going to train a morning glory vine on this."

"Smarty!" she sniffed at him.

"That's just like a man!"

"Be careful, and be quiet. Get out on the ladder and creep down," Harry told her.

Mrs. Blazes stepped on a chair and planted herself on the window sill. She was just swinging a neatly-shod foot over to the ladder when Harry hissed:

"Get back! For the love of Mike, get back!"

She fairly fell back into the room, and as she did so Harry and the Count dropped their ladder to the ground among the shrubbery and dashed around the corner.

The irrepressible Carolyn had come to the front steps, adorned in a splendid hat of yellow straw, wreathed with gorgeous red poppies. Behind her came Pigeon Williams, his eyes drinking in the beauties of the girl and the hat.

"Say," he remarked, "that's a peach of a hat. Where'd you get it?"

"I found it in my room," she said. "Harry must have meant it as a surprise for me. Now I'm going to surprise him when he finds out I've found it. Let's stroll in the garden."

Nothing loath, the enamored Pigeon accepted the invitation. Harry and the Count peeped around the corner of the house, with grimaces of wrath and despair.

"Never mind," Harry whispered. "We've still got a hat up our sleeves."

General Blazes came from the door, bidding the others good night.

"Tell Harry I'm sorry I had to hurry off," he said. "My wife will surely be at home by this time, worrying herself sick over my absence."

As he descended the steps Daphne Daffington, breathless, came up the walk. In her hand she carried a hat box containing the hat she had rushed to completion as a favor to Harry.

"That worthy and Count von Fitz nudged each other as they saw the general and the little milliner meet."

"General!" said Daphne, dropping the box and clasping her hands.

"Daphne!" exclaimed the General. The window above opened slowly and Mrs. Blazes peeped out upon the tableau.

"So!" the General said, bitterly. "Flirting, were you! And with that scrub of a Dutch count!"

"Loofer vat he iss!" mumbled the Count, and Harry clapped his hand over the Count's mouth in fear of being discovered.

"Any woman," said the General sternly to Daphne, "ought to be ashamed of being seen with him."

Daphne looked about her for some way of escape. But the General went on:

"And this ring you gave me! His ring! His ring that he—Didn't he give you this very ring?"

"No," Daphne answered, nervously. "He didn't give it to me, General. He—he wished it on."

"Well! I'll bet you the scoundrel doesn't wish it on any other woman!"

The General tore the offending ring from his finger and threw it away. It rolled directly to the Count, who grasped it fervently and whispered to Harry:

"For diss I forgif him all der rest!" Harry kicked him, as a gentle signal for silence.

"I suppose," the General accused her, "you are back here looking for him, eh?"

Lucy opened the door and looked out, evidently wondering where Harry might have gone. She thought he would be waiting for her on the lawn bench. Seeing the General and Daphne she drew back, but she heard his question about the hat, and Daphne's answer.

"No," Daphne said, "I brought this hat for Harry Swifton."

Lucy silently came down the steps and stood in the shadows.

"What?" the General asked. "Is he getting up a hat trust? He must think a lot of that little fiancée of his."

"Oh," Daphne explained carelessly, "it isn't for her. He told me it was for another woman."

Daphne passed the General, first picking up the hat box, and tripped up the steps and through the open doorway. The General walked away, shaking with laughter and chuckling:

"Harry is up to his old tricks."

Harry, from his place of concealment, was about to rush forth and speak to Lucy, but this time the Count restrained him. Lucy stood and sighed:

"Oh, Harry!"

Primmer appeared, still lugging his hat box. He almost fell down the steps, as seeing Lucy alone at last.

"My time has arrived!" he said, ecstatically. "My poor, poor Lucy! I have tried so hard to see you alone. Here! Let me present you this slight token of my affection—this hat! Wear it for my sake!"

He was surprised by the eagerness with which Lucy seized the box from his hands.

"A hat! Yes!" she exclaimed. "Give it to me. Yes, I will wear it!"

Primmer was about to burst forth into rapturous words, when she said:

"Nay! Do not speak to me! Leave me, I beg!" and rushed into the house.

Primmer followed her in, bewildered holding him dumb for once.

Daphne came out of the door, saying:

"Well! They're all going crazy here. I can't find any one who will listen to me at all."

Harry came from his hiding place and said:

"Did you want to see me?"

"Yes. Here's your hat. Now, let's have our supper, Harry."

"It's no use, Daphne," he told her. "I can't accept your kind invitation. You're a couple of years late with it. I'll pay you any price for the hat, but—"

Daphne came down to him and looked at him with amazement.

"You don't mean that, Harry, do you?" she said. "Why, don't talk about the cost of the hat. It's the dinner I want."

Lucy again came to the door. She wanted to find Carolyn and tell her that she was going home. Now she saw Harry and the milliner. Daphne refused to be convinced by Harry's shaking of his head, and said:

"To think of you treating me like that! After all I've done for you."

"Yes, Miss Daphnington, I know," Harry replied, soberly.

"Oh, Harry! How can you be so cold and cruel?" Daphne asked.

"No," Harry said, decisively. "That's all of the slate now. I'm engaged to be married to the dearest little girl in the world, and all this stuffing business is out for good."

"Is that so?" Daphne whipped out, angrily. "Suppose she knew about that other woman who is hiding in your room?"

Lucy gasped, and clutched her hands together.

"For heaven's sake, don't talk so loud!" Harry begged.

"Of course General Blazes is a good friend of yours," Daphne sneered, "but he might not relish it to hear that his wife—"

"Stop right there!" Harry ordered. "Don't pretend that you don't know I am perfectly innocent in this whole thing. You know how I accidentally ran over her hat this morning. You know that you, yourself, sent to this house a duplicate of that hat, and that I never met the woman before in my life. And you came here to see her and that was how you happened to be in that room with her. And you know that everything I have done, and all the lies I have told, and all the suspicions I have endured, have been because of my honest effort to protect her good name."

"Still, appearances are against you," Daphne argued.

Lucy smiled with joy, however.

Amos Medders strolled out and saw Lucy.

"Daughter," he said, "art thou not afraid of catching cold?"

Harry and Daphne turned, almost guiltily.

"Why, bless my soul!" Harry said. "I didn't see you folks come out."

"I just come," Lucy told him. "And what art thee getting, Harry?"

"He's buying a hat," Daphne said. "What? Another hat?" Medders asked.

"Oh—er—yes, certainly," Harry replied.

"And for Lucy?"

"If you will let me give it to her, sir."

"What? Two? Why, Harry, my boy, thee art extravagant."

"Two?" Lucy asked.

"I wanted you to have your choice, Lucy," Harry said.

Daphne maliciously opened the box and placed the hat on Lucy's head. From her window Mrs. Blazes watched the proceeding in abject despair.

"Thank you, Miss Daphnington," Harry said, taking control of the situation. "I'll let you hear from me tomorrow."

"Good evening all," Daphne said, sweetly, and left.

Mr. Medders, Harry and Lucy went in, but Lucy kept Harry back far enough to squeeze his arm and tell him he was a dear.

The editor of the St. Johns News gives Michigan the following boost: "Granted that a man has brains, energy and perseverance he can achieve in this great fruit growing state as much or more than he can east, west, north or south. The land responds to intelligent cultivation, the climate is equable, and, added to that, he has transportation facilities that mean much when it comes to shipping his products to market. Then, his children have the advantages of an excellent public school system, and his family, brought up in a community where social intercourse is possible, has opportunities for entertainment and recreation which might be very rare in a new and comparatively unsettled country. In fact, every argument is on the side of the man who stays at home, if home is in Michigan."

The Cass City Public Schools Will Open September 4

The public schools of Cass City will open on Monday, Sept. 4. We hope to see all the former pupils present and many new ones.

Come and spend an enjoyable and profitable year with us. The opportunities for an educated man and woman were never greater than they are today. Come equipped with the best of health and a determination to work.

The Cass City Public Schools rank among the very best schools in the state. It is expected that the work of the coming school year will be superior to that of former years. A special effort has been made to improve the equipment and increase the efficiency of the teaching force. The best teachers have been secured for all departments.

The Cass City High School is on the U. of M. credited list. Its graduates are qualified, as a consequence, to enter, without examination, any college in Michigan.

All young people expecting to attend school, and desiring information regarding the course of study or arrangements for entrance are invited to write, telephone or call upon

THE QUEEN'S GARB

Mary Wore Some Very Stunning Gowns Coronation Week.

SYMBOLICAL EMBROIDERIES.

This Serious Minded Lady Chose Her Clothes With a Conscientious Purpose and a Royal Disregard For the Dictates of Fashion.

Dear Elsa—Many are straggling home from the coronation. A great event it undoubtedly was, but Americans, I believe, found it a little disappointing, although the queen, of whose anti-American feelings we have heard so much, was a good deal more civil to our people than could have been expected.

I hear that Mrs. John Hays Hammond made a delightful impression everywhere. You know she is a very charming and brainy woman. Although her husband is so wealthy, money does not seem to be the greatest thing in the world to her. Her Princess Cecille were two of the most popular foreign visitors. There is no doubt that this royal couple are a charming and agreeable pair, putting on no airs with their inferiors, as some of the lesser royalties were inclined to do. Yet this did not altogether account for the reception given them. It only strengthened the belief that a match between the young Prince of Wales and Princess Victoria Louise, the kaiser's daughter, is not altogether unconsidered in exalted circles.

In a couple of years no doubt he will be married, for his mother at least believes in youthful matches. An alliance with Germany would be useful from a diplomatic point of view, and the members of the English royal family are German in their origin and tastes. The present king and queen are the first English royal couple for a long time to use English perfectly and adopt it in their private conversations. Queen Victoria and her husband always spoke German in private, and the late King Edward spoke English with a strong German accent.

The coronets to accompany the robes of peers and peeresses are not of real gold, as many people think. They are, in fact, merely silver gilt for the most part, the cap being of red velvet, with a white silk lining, and trimmed with ermine. In order to keep the crown of a peeress in its place on her head it is fastened to her hair by blunt gilt pins. The average cost of such a coronet is about $50 to $75, this varying as to whether it be electro gilt or water gilt.

One of the most interesting visitors for the coronation was the begum of Bhopal. The begum of Bhopal's presence was directly due to the encouragement of King George, who was greatly interested in her during his Indian tour as Prince of Wales.

When the begum was presented to his majesty at the Indore durbar he conferred on her the insignia of the grand commander of the Indian empire. She was the first woman in India to receive that honor. On that occasion the begum appeared before King George with her face entirely hidden behind a burka of a light blue material, while her head was crowned in gold and her small figure draped in a deeper shade of blue—a costume worn at the coronation.

Bhopal is the only state in the world where the ruler must always be a woman. In former days the husbands of the begums occupied a curiously unimportant position in the state and were freely changed, as the fancy of the ruler or the supposed necessities of her politics happened to require.

The present begum is the only living woman ruler who has been in action with her own troops. During a pilgrimage to Mecca she and her bodyguard were attacked by Arabs, whom she repulsed after a fierce encounter.

QUEEN MARY'S CORONATION GOWN.

Gowns are said to have been marvels of beauty. The one which she wore to the coronation was embroidered with pearls. That which she donned for the state banquet, which was the most intimate affair given for the representatives of foreign nations, was a pale blue embroidered gown in moonlight effect. Ethel's cousin has just arrived from London and has told me all about the coronation.

It is of the queen's own gown that you would like to hear. Whatever else may be said of the royal lady, there is no doubt that she is immensely charitable and patriotic. Her express stipulation was that every thread of her coronation finery should be of English material, made by English hands. The embroidery on the coronation gown was done at the royal embroidery school at Baintree.

The king's aunts, the Duchess of Argyll and Princess Henry of Battenberg, who are patronesses of the school, are very artistic in their tastes and took great interest in the execution of the work. After the fabric was embroidered it was turned over to London dressmakers, who made it up into the severely plain princess gown seen in the photograph. The material is of deep ivory duchess satin. The rose, shamrock and thistle grow upon the tree that spreads over the front of the dress. Around the bottom of the skirt are lilies and lotus blossoms on a representation of waves. Of course you know the rose is for England, the shamrock for Ireland and the thistle for Scotland. The lotus represents India and the sails represent the sea of the empire. It is quite emblematic, you see. In the front of the gown the star of India is enveloped by a rose, shamrock and thistle design.

Her majesty's train, which was six yards long and one and a half wide. Was of royal purple velvet lined with ermine, with deep edges of the ermine turned back to form a border. On the inner edge of the train was embroidered a chain of oak leaves and acorns with medallions of roses, shamrocks and thistles. The train was made separately and was fastened to the shoulders with gold cord. It required all of the strength of the six fair girls who were train bearers to carry it. The queen is said to have taken a great deal of interest in the preparation of her coronation outfit, although she really cares nothing at all about dress and absolutely refuses to follow the fashions, preferring clothes that are sensible and comfortable. Mary abhors such eccentricities as the harem skirt and has forbidden the appearance of the tight skirt at court.

The crown prince of Germany and

THE QUEEN'S CANARY.

This Matchless Bird Was Bred In a Poor Shoemaker's Cottage.

Most women are fond of canaries, and Queen Mary of England, it is said, particularly likes birds. Learning this fact, the city of Norwich, which is famous for its trained canaries, decided to present one to her majesty. The organization which is especially interested in cage birds and is known as the Norwich Alliance of All England Cage Birds searched the town for a suitable songster. Every one was anxious to provide the songster, but finally it was found in the shop of a poor shoemaker, who was delighted to give his pet to the queen. Now, instead of singing to humble folks in a cheap wooden cage, birdie will entertain royalty with his melodies. A magnificent cage of gold and enamel was provided for the songster, but it is to be doubted if he will be any happier in a palace than in the shoemaker's cottage, for dumb creatures pay little heed to the artificial distinctions of rank, and love and care are more appreciated than food served on costly dishes.

Every one knows the story of the enchanted nightingale whose wonderful harmonies cured the emperor of China of an illness. When out of gratitude the emperor confined the bird to a golden perch in his palace its songs were stilled and, according to the legend, were only resumed when the bird was given its freedom.

Cleaning Blankets.

If the blankets need washing dissolve a quarter pound of rock fuller's earth in boiling water and add sufficient cold water to cover the blankets and let them steep in this overnight. The next morning squeeze out and wash in the usual way. By adopting this method all oil in the wool will be removed and less soap required. The result will be beautifully white, soft and fleecy blankets.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

A Brief History of the Disease.

By DR. MONTGOMERY E. LEARY.

Consumption is called a disease of the masses because of its great prevalence among all classes of people. The first records of it date back to the fifth century before Christ, or about 2,500 years ago.

In 1865 Villimin, a French physician, demonstrated beyond doubt that tuberculosis could be transmitted from one individual to another. This was verified by other famous physicians, until the disease was generally branded as infectious. In 1882 the specific germ which causes consumption was discovered by the great German scientist Robert Koch.

Researches in recent years have demonstrated that consumption, also many other forms of tuberculosis, may not only be prevented, but can in many cases be arrested and lastingly cured. Governments have taken measures to suppress the scourge, but their efforts have not been wholly successful owing to the lassitude and carelessness of the people.

Out of His Element.

Bob Ingersoll was once ridiculing a sermon he had heard in Italy on the miracle of St. Anthony preaching to the fishes, which, the better to listen to the pious discourse, held their heads out of the water.

"I can credit the miracle," said Bishop Potter, "if you were at church."

"I certainly was there," replied the famous infidel.

"Then there was at least one fish out of water."

Windmill Signals in Holland.

In certain parts of Holland births, marriages and deaths are frequently announced by the windmills. When a miller gets married he stops the mill with the arms of the wheel in an oblique position and the sails unfurled. His friends and guests often do likewise with their mills in token of the ceremony. To indicate a birth the wheel is stopped with the arms in a slanting position, but at a more acute angle than for a marriage, and with the two upper sails unfurled. Should a miller die, the sails of his mill are all unfurled and the wheel is turned round until the arms assume an upright cross, in which position they are left until after the funeral has taken place.

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY SEARCHING FOR A HEAD

Difficulty In Selecting a Successor to Dr. Wilson

Finley, Hibben, Garfield or Hill May Be Chosen

PRINCETON university faces a crisis in the effort to select a president in succession to Dr. Woodrow Wilson, now governor of New Jersey. Nearly a year has elapsed since the presidency was vacated by the resignation of Dr. Wilson, and in that period there has been a most energetic search for an available man having the qualifications to fill the post. The country has been scoured, and the hunt has even been to at the university. Dr. Hibben is very popular in the university, both among the members of the faculty and the students. He is affable, sympathetic, charming in manners and a most entertaining conversationalist or speaker.

John A. Stewart of New York, senior member of the board of trustees, was selected several months ago to act as president pro tem. of the university. Actual administration of the details of the institution has rested in Professor Fine, as dean of the faculty.

Dr. Wheeler, Dr. Garfield, Dr. Finley and Mr. Hill are not graduates of Princeton, but Dr. Finley and Dr. Garfield have held professorships in the university. The fact that all of them are not alumni of the institution has operated against their eligibility, though very little in the cases of Dr. Garfield and Dr. Finley, who are familiar with the inner workings and the policies of the university.

Problems attending the administration of the university are so many and conducted abroad. Yet the tendency has been and still is to choose for the office a Princeton graduate who is in thorough sympathy with the policies of the university and who understands its life and aims.

The first three presidents, Dickinson, Burr and Edwards, were graduates of Yale before the college of New Jersey was founded.

The four presidents covering the period from 1795 to 1868, seventy-three years, were Princeton graduates of the following classes: Smith, 1769; Green, 1783; Carnahan, 1800; Maclean, 1816. Moreover, they had all been officially connected with the university teaching and administrative staffs before being elected to the supreme office.

President McCosh came direct to the presidency from Scotland, but President Patton graduated into it in 1888 from the department of ethics, over which he has presided continuously since 1884. Woodrow Wilson, Princeton '79, was professor of history, jurisprudence and politics from 1890 to 1910.

Among the trustees the closest secrecy has been kept regarding the deliberations of the special committee which has the task of recommending a president. Fully fifty names have been considered, and the process of eliminating candidates has been going on for months.

While many men have been mentioned in connection with the presidency, the most prominent have been Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California; Dr. H. A. Garfield, president of Williams college; Dr. David Jayne Hill, the retiring American ambassador to Germany; Professor Henry F. Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History; Dr. John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York; Professor Henry B. Fine, dean of the Princeton faculty; Dr. Andrew F. West, dean of the Princeton graduate school; Dr. Hibben and Dr. Henry van Dyke.

The situation apparently has narrowed to this: If a Princeton graduate is chosen instead of an outsider, by which is meant a scholar who was not graduated at Princeton, that person will probably be Dr. John Grier Hibben, who is the Stuart professor of log-so critical in some of their phases that the introduction of a "stranger" in the presidential chair would certainly cause a severe shock.

The selection of a president for Princeton is also awaited with the keenest interest by the educators of the country. Dr. Wilson, in a series of speeches extending over several years, has outlined in a general way the ideals of Princeton. Outside interests center mainly in whether these ideals, all or part, will be continued in the new administration. It is safe to say they will be in a large measure. The policies are so fixed that not even an "outsider" as president can dislodge or change them very radically. But the wrong man in the presidency could cause much trouble.

Dr. Lowell, president of Harvard, and other university heads have been observing Princeton's experiments with absorbing interest. Dr. Lowell has mentioned that Princeton's position in the field of education is such that she can be regarded as the institution which will be able to stand the strain of working out educational problems of great importance to American universities as a whole and particularly the eastern institutions.

Putting the situation in a nutshell, it may be said that Princeton is trying to evolve a scheme of education along highly liberal lines, which will have incorporated in it the best features of the English, French and German systems, with such modifications as will mean a distinct advance in American education. Dr. Wilson has said repeatedly that Princeton has the opportunity of seizing the leadership, and it is with that leadership in mind that the trustees of the university are proceeding with the utmost caution in the selection of a president.

THE WRAPPED TUNIC.

A Fashion Oddity That is Carried Out in Venise Lace.

Venise lace in a large motified pattern is used to form the odd tablier seen on this gown of marquisette and figured net. The lace forms a bib effect on the blouse and is then brought around the skirt in such a way as to give it the appearance of having been wrapped around the figure. Figured net is used for the sleeves and the upper part of the blouse, the neck being filled in with folds of chiffon.

The reign of venise lace has certainly begun. It has entirely taken the place of the once popular Irish crochet.

Bandings of this lace are used with velvet, silk, chiffon, marquisette and woolen fabrics. These wide bands are placed at the bottom of the tunic or skirt, across the bodice and sleeves and as panels at the front, back or sides of the skirt or blouse.

Another method, quite new, shows this lace winding in spiral or serpentine effect, beginning at the shoulder, at the front or the back, crossing the figure diagonally, encircling the hips obliquely and finally winding around the lower part of the skirt.

Medallions, motifs and all over venise are also seen. This last is for the short Greek tunic, the long one being of velvet, cloth or chiffon. This shows beneath as an underskirt.

NERVE CURE.

Expert Claims Piano Playing Has a Salutary Effect.

A medical authority declares that piano playing is one of the best cures for nervousness—in fact, a real preventive.

"David," he says, "did excellent work when he soothed Saul's murderous propensities with the aid of selections on the harp, but more good would have been accomplished if he could have prevailed upon Saul to take lessons from him and play the harp himself.

"A tuneful melody, a satisfying chord, will detract the nervous person's attention from the cause of his worry. A dreamy mood is induced in which the little tragedies of life no longer appear quite so gruesome or so overwhelming.

Yet this well meaning highbrow forgets to consider the effect of indiscriminate piano playing on the unhappy neighbors by nervous yet inexperienced performers who may wish to try the piano cure.

Eradicating Dandelions.

A method of ridding a lawn of dandelions is to go over the yard and put a drop of sulphuric acid from a medicine dropper into the heart of each dandelion plant, being careful not to touch the surrounding grass with it. One drop will be sufficient to cause the death of the roots of a small plant, but large plants of old growth may need a second application.

If a lawn is watched carefully for a season or two and the sulphuric acid applied to all new plants you may soon rejoice in a dandelionless lawn. Use caution in handling the sulphuric acid and do not let it touch your skin.

For the Housewife.

If a simple brown frame seems too dark for a photograph it may be greatly lightened by introducing a tiny molding of gold just inside the inner edge of the frame.

Mutton dripping will not set hard and suety, as it usually does, if directly the fat is poured from the baking tin the vessel containing it is put at the back of the stove and allowed to stay there until the stove itself cools.

A heavy broom should be chosen for thorough sweeping in preference to a light one, for the weight adds to the process. Test a new broom by pressing the bristle against the floor. If the straws bristle out and bend the broom is a poor one and should be rejected. The straws should remain in a firm, solid mass.

SCHOOL TEACHERS

For Them Vacation Generally Means a Change of Work.

NO GAYETIES IN SUMMER.

Instead Digging at Summer Schools or Conventions or Making Up New Duds For Next Season's Campaign in the Schoolroom.

The popular imagination pictures the average schoolma'am as nowadays comfortably ensconced in a hammock with a box of chocolates at one hand and the latest novel in the other. Now, this is a very pleasing view, but, unfortunately for the schoolma'am, it is one which circumstances make impossible. True she has two months' vacation (without pay), but she needs every minute of it to repair the ravages that a roomful of active and not particularly angelic children are likely to make upon the nerves of a moderately healthy and conscientious woman. If you happen to know the average schoolma'am you are well aware that, as a rule, she has some one with whom to share her slender resources. Sometimes it is an aged mother or father, now and then it is an invalid sister, and sometimes, alas, it is a no account brother. It would be a good thing if the people who think schoolteachers are well enough paid should investigate the uses to which her hard earned dollars are put. She hasn't much time or money for vacation jinks. Both her brain and wardrobe must be replenished, for the wheezy old gentlemen who dole out the public funds in such niggardly stipends are as much concerned that she should be "neatly and tastefully" clad as they are that she should not be overpaid.

However, light is coming in some communities. It is a hopeful sign of the times that the lady teachers are learning to take their own parts and are therefore being better paid, as in Chicago, where abides that fair champion of equal pay Miss Margaret Haley. Some enlightened towns now have relief and special teachers' pension funds, supported partly by the public and partly by the beneficiaries, to benefit the teachers who are disabled or who have taught a certain number of years. In Pittsburg the public school teachers are bravely struggling to establish such a fund. Some persons think it would do more good than the million dollar donations for special schools, libraries, museums, parks, conservatories, organs, etc., which popular philanthropists have established in select neighborhoods of the Smoky City. One of the contributors to the Pittsburg teachers' pension fund was Mr. Andrew Carnegie, whose early education was obtained in that city. Mr. Carnegie is said to have contributed the munificent sum of $10,000 to this fund.

MRS. ELLA FLAGG YOUNG.

At Los Angeles a convention is to be held of the National Education association. It considers the problems that confront the teacher and tries to adopt measures that will help and inspire her. Many prominent women educators are expected to be present among them, such women as the famous superintendent of the Chicago schools, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, together with many other women of note in the educational world.

Why doesn't somebody who wants to be really philanthropic establish a vacation fund for the benefit of women teachers who are breaking down for lack of rest and recreation—a fund that would be big enough to establish recreation centers on the order of Chautauqua, adapted to the teachers' special needs, and where everything should be at a minimum price, so that the independent schoolma'am might feel she paid her own way. Big universities are conducted on this plan. Why not recreation centers?

POLLY PRITCHARD.

Bleaching Waists.

White waists or dresses that have turned yellow should be placed in boiling water in which a tablespoonful of cream of tartar has been dissolved, rubbing or soaking them for a few minutes, then rinsing thoroughly. Another method of bleaching is to add a tablespoonful of coal oil to each pail of water in the boiler, put the articles in and let boil for twenty minutes, then remove from boiler into very hot water and rinse, hanging in the sun to dry.

Loss of Time Means Loss of Pay.

Kidney trouble and the ill it breeds means lost time and lost pay to many a working man. M. Balent, 1214 Little Penna St., Streator, Ill., was so bad from kidney and bladder trouble he could not work, but he says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills for only a short time and got entirely well and was soon able to go back to work, and am feeling well and healthier than before." L. I. Wood & Co.

Family Portraits.

The famous Lord Chesterfield had a relative, a Mr. Stanhope, who was exceedingly proud of his pedigree, which he pretended to trace to a ridiculous antiquity. Lord Chesterfield one day, walking through an obscure street in London, saw a miserable daub of Adam and Eve in Eden. He purchased this painting, and, having written on top of it, "Adam de Stanhope of Eden and Eve, his wife," he sent it to his relative as a valuable old family

MAKES RAPID HEADWAY.

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is offensive, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Thousands recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement below. John Ballentine, E. Sand Beach Ave., Bad Axe, Mich., says: "I suffered from a lame back and my kidneys did not perform their work properly. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and it did not take me long to learn of their merit. This remedy gave me relief from the pains and aches and also regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. Since I used Doan's Kidney Pills my back has not troubled me and my kidneys have been in a normal condition."

Mark Antony's Mistake.
At a performance of "Julius Caesar" at Hurst college, England, Mark Antony made a mistake when the dead body of Caesar was brought in. He apostrophized the fallen hero with impassioned eloquence, and the audience felt acutely for the poor citizens, who were all presumably horror struck and overcome with grief, when Antony gently, but firmly, grasped, as he thought, the face cloth and slowly, very slowly, began to draw it back. Just then an excited whisper came from the other end of the corpse. "This end, you fool!" But Antony was inexorably wrapped in grief. He persevered and disclosed to the intently gazing audience Julius Caesar's boots.

A FREE Prescription ADVICE

From a physician of 52 years' experience in college, sanatorium and general practice. Weak, nervous men, regain your strength and vigor.

So great was my sympathy for weak men in the early years of my experience that I have made it a special study, and formulated two prescriptions, one for men under 50 and one for men over 50 years of age. In my declining years, I want every man to have the benefit of my long years of careful study, research and long experience. I am now 72 years old and as strong and vigorous as at 40 and the rest of my life will be spent in aiding suffering mankind. I realize that my time is short, but will do all in my power to aid men and women who are helpless and seeking relief. I know there has been a great many disappointed when they thought relief in their grasp, but let me send you my free prescription and booklet of private lectures to men which is the result of study since I began lecturing to student classes, way back in '71. Since that time I have cured many cases that are now hopeless to recommend me.

YOU NEED AID. Let me help you to regain your former standing among men. In short, let me assist you to be yourself once more.

If you are suffering from falling memory, lame back, weakness, nervousness or nervous difficulties, LET ME SEND YOU A RECIPE in a plain sealed envelope that you can use in your own home. I am confident that you will thank me every day in four life after you have tested it for yourself.

Take advantage of this offer NOW before it is too late. Address me personally.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

THE habit of looking at the bright side of things is worth more than a thousand a year.

No men are so fussy about what they eat as those who think their brains the biggest part of them.

THE VALUE OF VEGETABLES.

Lettuce is a vegetable good for the nerves, cooling to the blood and induces sleep. As it contains a large proportion of water, it is a vegetable most desirable for the hot months.

Asparagus, spinach and dandelion have a marked effect on the kidneys. Celery is another vegetable good for the nerves, as it is soothing and sleep producing.

Tomatoes are good for the liver, cabbage is rich in phosphates, which are needed in the blood.

Cucumbers are said to improve the complexion, and carrots have a reputation for giving high color to the skin as well as improving the eyes and hair.

Onions are the best nerve vegetable, a remedy for coughs and colds, purify the blood and a remedy for insomnia.

Turnips, radishes and beets are vegetables valuable as foods.

A large part of the food value of vegetables consist in the sauces with which they are served. Beets with oil or butter are very fattening.

Celery cooked until tender and served in a white sauce is an appetizing method of serving that vegetable.

A nice combination for a salad is cooked asparagus tips arranged on head lettuce and slices of radish around the asparagus. Serve with a French dressing and season with onion juice and minced parsley. This may be served as a dinner salad or with the addition of a few slices of hard-cooked egg it will make a salad substantial enough for a luncheon.

Sweet green peppers and cabbage, with a few nuts and a simple boiled dressing, makes a most wholesome salad. With mayonnaise and served in heart lettuce it is really elegant.

Chopped beets served with mayonnaise colored a rose color and served on a nest of shredded cabbage or celery is another pretty salad.

Theft in Ancient Wales.

In some ways which might nowadays be called "sentimental" the laws of ancient Wales were in advance of those of today. Mr. J. E. Lloyd in his "History of Wales" mentions that in some of the codes (which were, as a rule, very severe on theft) a remarkable provision exempted from punishment "the starving man who, after begging for three days and receiving nothing, helped himself to the food which he needed in order to keep him alive. That every man had the right to live was a principle of the law, and the sentiment of the country demanded that every person of substance should keep open house not only for ordinary travelers, but also for the destitute and the friendless."

Antiquity of Engraving.

Gems were engraved at a very early period of the world's history. The very oldest specimen of this art in existence is believed to be a square signet of yellow jasper engraved in the year 1450 B. C. and now in the British museum. The engraving upon it is a fair picture of the horse of Amenophis II. and the characters underneath have been deciphered as being the names and titles of that monarch.

Thirty Years Together.

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there is no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it's the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. GOOD POINTS OF SUFFOLK HORSES.

The Suffolk, commonly called Suffolk Punch horse, is the oldest recognized breed of draft horse in existence, and the English stud book, volume 1, begins with Crisp's Horse of Ufford, foaled in the year 1768, writes F. W. Okie in the Rural New Yorker. The Suffolk Horse Society of England describes the Suffolk horse as follows: Bright red or dark chestnut is the favorite color. A star, a little white on face, a few silver hairs, is no detriment. Head breezy, with broad forehead. Neck deep in collar, tapering gracefully toward the setting of head. Shoulders long and muscular, well thrown back at the withers. Carcass deep round ribbed from shoulders to flank, with graceful outline in back, loin and hind quarters, wide in front and behind, the tail well set up with good second thighs. Legs should be straight, with fair sloping pasterns, big knees and long, clean hocks on short cannon bones, free from coarse hair. Elbows turned in regarded as a serious defect. Feet, having plenty of size, with good circular form protecting the frog. Walk, smart and true. Trot, well balanced all around; good action.

The Suffolk horse is a chestnut in color, with a big body on short legs. While they do not stand as high from the ground as other draft breeds, yet when led upon the scales they compare with any breed in regard to weight. Stallions weigh from 1,400 to 2,000 pounds and mares from 1,200 to 2,000 pounds. In temper the Suffolk horse is docile in the extreme. They need very little breaking, taking naturally to work in harness. Vicious stallions are rarely seen. The stallion herewith illustrated is Luther, age two years and weight 1,800 pounds.

In Suffolk county, England, the home of the Suffolk horse, a custom prevails among the farmers of feeding their horses but twice a day and without any intermission at the noon hour, yet these Suffolks thrive while other breeds could not possibly, nor would any one expect them to stand it. Our own experience has been that they do as well as any other work horse on half the amount of feed. For agility in comparison with weight they excel all other breeds. They are the one breed of draft horses that is expected to trot with a loaded wagon.

As a long lived breed they are especially noted. The Suffolk stallion Julian's Boxer, foaled in 1803, traveled the roads of Suffolk county during the breeding season for twenty-five years, and the majority of the present day Suffolk horses can be traced back to this horse. The mare Diamond No. 591, foaled in the year 1853, well known as the dam of Loff's Cupbearer 842, was one of sixteen foals from the same dam in sixteen years.

HORSE COLIC REMEDY.

Symptoms and Treatment of This Common Ailment.

Colic makes attacks suddenly. The horse may show every symptom of distress and then get up, begin eating and seem relieved, only to be in agony again in fifteen, twenty or thirty minutes. This, with recklessness in lying down and absence of abdominal tenderness, distinguish the disease from inflammation of the bowels. The attacks may increase or decrease in severity.

To administer a laxative at once is the safest method, as this relieves spasms and carries out irritating matter. It is well to include an anodyne (belladonna, two ounces; opium, one and a half drams; aconite, thirty drops), or chloral hydrate, one-half ounce, to hold pain in abeyance until the system absorbs the laxative. A stimulant to quiet the nervous excitement may also be needed. For this give sweet spirits of niter one-half ounce or carbonate of ammonia two to four drams. Administer also copious injections of warm water with or without anodynes and antispasmodics and walk the patient about gently.

If the colic seems to be spasmodic wholly anodynes and antispasmodics may be given without the laxative once in half an hour, but if they fail give the physic (aloes, four drams), at once and then only enough of the other to moderate pain until the laxative begins to be absorbed. The horse should be entirely free from the effects of the colic in three to four hours.—Farmers' Veterinary Adviser.

Keep Horses In Good Flesh.

Horses can be kept the most economically in good flesh. A fat horse will eat less than a poor one. The horse with his bones covered with good hard flesh and muscle is stronger. It does not pay to keep thin, weak horses that cannot do a good day's work every day when it costs no more to keep good ones.

GIVE US A TRIAL

If there's a man around here who thinks he can do better by sending away to some so-called manufacturer for his lumber, we want that man to give us a trial. He will find that he can do a mighty sight better right here at home, where he can see what he is getting, before paying for it, than he can by sending his money away for material that he doesn't see until after it is paid for and it's too late to kick.

If you are going to build, don't place your order for your material until you get an estimate from us on the bill.

Queer Coronation Gifts.

One of the most extraordinary gifts made on the coronation day of Edward I. was that of 500 horses which had been used by the royal princes and other personages in the procession to Westminster abbey. These horses, all richly caparisoned and harnessed just as they were, were let loose into the very midst of the mob after the banquet in Westminster hall that always succeeded a coronation in those days. The people in the streets were permitted to catch the animals, and to him who caught a horse it and its appointments belonged.—London Chronicle.

PRUDENCE.

Men of sense often learn from their enemies. Prudence is the best safeguard. This principle cannot be learned from a friend, but an enemy extorts it immediately. It is from their foes, not their friends, that cities learn the lesson of building high walls and ships of war. And this lesson saves their children, their homes and their properties.—Aristophanes.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well. Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

GAGETOWN.

John J. Gore, accompanied by his wife, went Monday to the Bad Axe hospital to be operated on for appendicitis.

Elmwood has been improving the road west of town by a new supply of gravel.

The Gagetown band gave its first public performance Thursday at the picnic.

The Tug of War at the picnic on Thursday was won by Huron county, and the men on the rope who won were: David Coulter, Tony Weiler, J. F. McIntyre, Silas Parker, Dennis O'Rourke, James O'Rourke, John O'Rourke, L. Bartholomew, Con O'Conner. Those ten men weighed over 2,500 pounds.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, it has pleased our Supreme Grand Master to call our worthy brother, Edward Hunt, of Tyler Lodge, F. & A. M., from labor here to rest in the Celestial Lodge on high; therefore be it

Resolved, that in the death of Brother Hunt we lose a worthy member of our lodge, a just and upright Mason, and a good citizen.

Brother Hunt departed this life full of years—ripened with age and experience; he was worthy and well qualified and duly and truly prepared for admission into the Celestial Lodge above where our Supreme Grand Master presides; and he will be properly vouchered for by his Lord and Master, whom he loved and served on earth.

We sympathize with his children, and his friends and neighbors who mourn his departure; but we can only remind them that he is not dead, he is only asleep—resting after a long and well spent life here; he cannot and would not if he could, return to us; we can, if we will, go to him. Let us so live and perform our duties here as to insure a joyful reunion with those who have gone before, and a happy life in the great hereafter.

Accused of Stealing.

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25c at L. I. Wood & Co.'s.

BEAULEY.

D. E. Taylor of Argentine, Mich., and L. E. Schutt from Onondago, Mich., visited with Joseph Crawford and Colson Blair over Sunday. They were school friends last winter while in Ypsilanti.

Talk about corn not growing good in an orchard. The difficulty must be the soil. Malcolm Crawford planted corn in his orchard on July 1 which now measures 11 feet high and seems well developed, but it won't be at the fair this year. Excuse is, let the other fellow get the prize; he wants it.

Mrs. Wm. McKenzie and daughter, Miss Bertha, and Mrs. Mitchell and children of Detroit spent Friday and Saturday with friends here.

Rev. West of the M. E. church in Bad Axe was so highly spoken of at a recent reception given at his home that they urged and said that if he would come back to them again they would grant him three months absence at any season of the year with full pay. A purse of $50 in gold was given to him as a parting present and many regrets at his departure. We want to say that we over here in Beasley feel sorry too that Brother and Sister West are going. Even here we have felt their help and will miss them much. We appreciate Rev. West much. Every time we have asked his aid in our work he has freely given it both as a public speaker at our picnic and private help in our church.

Do You Know

That we are selling more and more ice cream, soft drinks and candies as the season advances? We make the best brand of ice cream, we keep it in proper condition, our syrups and fruits are the best quality, our soda water is always "just right," and the most important of all—we aim to keep everything connected with our fountain as sanitary as possible. Our only regret sometimes is that we cannot always take care of the crowd.
