

CASS CITY WINS FROM KINGSTON

MANY ATTENDED CELEBRATION HERE THURSDAY.

Stone's Band Contributed Big Program of Musical Selections During Day.

Without question, a day of sunshine goes a long way towards the success of nearly every celebration, but yesterday it proved otherwise. Rainy weather has proved a menace to quite a number of bean growers and the few days of nice weather this week have been taken advantage of by the farmers whose crops were not yet under shelter. Had the weather been less favorable Thursday, it is altogether probable that many more would have been present at the Columbus Day Celebration. The sponsors of the event are glad, however, that the sunshine placed the advantage on the bean grower's side and hope to entertain those whose crops kept them at home at a future date.

The crowd Thursday morning looked like a funeral without any mourners, but in the afternoon many came in, quite a number from long distances, and the number soon swelled to a large sized crowd.

Stone's Famous Band of Detroit started the day's program by playing several selections on the street from ten to twelve o'clock. Directly after the dinner hour the band occupied a temporary stand which had been placed at the intersection of Main and Seeger streets and gave a concert. The Stones play excellent music, and are not sparing in the quantity, nor lacking in the quality. The harmony and expression was a delight to lovers of good music. During the day, they played among the overtures the American Patrol, the American Abroad, Wm. Tell and Remick's Hits No. 8. Two trombone solos, Trombone Sneeze and Raisin' 'Em, were among the numbers, and Mr. Johnson contributed a pleasing cornet solo, Premier Polka, in which he introduced some difficult triple tonguing.

At three o'clock the first of the caledonian games were pulled off and about six o'clock the tug of war and relay race were held. The prize winners in the events were as follows:

100 yard dash—1st, Morton Orr; 2nd, W. A. Seeger.
Fat men's race—1st, John Dickhout; 2nd, W. F. Kelley.
Potato race—1st, Audley Kinnaird; 2nd, Morton Orr.
Sack race—1st, Ed Fitch; 2nd, W. A. Seeger.
Three legged race—1st, Fitch and Gordon; 2nd, Seeger and Brown.
Women's ball throwing—1st, Ethel Howey; 2nd, Alma Mark; 3rd, May Benkelman.
Four man relay race—1st, M. Orr's team; 2nd, W. A. Seeger's team.
Tug of war—1st, team captained by John Dickhout; 2nd, Andrew Smith's team.

The Kingston base ball team was late in arriving and so the game was limited to seven innings. It resulted in Cass City's favor. The game was a little one-sided, but nevertheless had interesting situations and was watched closely by the fans. Newschafer and Graham did the battery work for the home team and Lee and Stout performed like services for the visitors. The score:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	R
Kingston	0	1	0	0	0	0	1
Cass City	2	0	1	2	0	2	7

Hits—Kingston 2, Cass City, 9. Errors—Kingston 8, Cass City 2.

CLEVER WINDOW TRIMMING.

The window decorations in A. A. Hitchcock's store on Columbus Day were clever conceptions in the window trimming art and attracted the attention of many visitors. The east window contained a canoe covered with white handkerchiefs and the background was embellished with gay ribbons. The west window was devoted to furs and warm goods. The salesladies of the store are responsible for the attraction.

CEMENT BLOCK LEASED.

M. Kellman of Detroit was in town Wednesday and informed the Chronicle that he had leased the Cement Block on the corner of Main and Oak streets for a period of three years. He says he will place a line of dry goods, ladies' and gents' furnishings, clothing and 5 and 10 cent goods in the store and open up the same in about two weeks.

OPENING NUMBER OF THE LECTURE COURSE

The opening number of the Woman's Study Club Lecture Course will be given at the opera house Thursday evening, October 26.

Albert Edward Wiggam, a popular lecturer, has been secured to give the first evening's program. He is said to be among the most practical and sensible orators on the lecture course platform. Press notices of his addresses are very flattering. The entire course for the season comprises five numbers which have been carefully chosen by the committee and offer a varied and worthy list of high class entertainment.

The tickets which are now on sale, may be secured from any member of the Woman's Study club. The price for adults for the season, $1.50; all school pupils, $1.00. The reserved seat sale will be opened a few days prior to the date of Mr. Wiggam's lecture. A. J. Knapp's store will be the place and 40c is the price for the entire season, or 10c for a single evening. Further announcement next week.

QUIETLY WEDDED

Miss Anna Henry of Lexington and Eldon H. Smith of Cass City Married.

(From the Lexington News.)

Miss Anna E. Henry of Lexington and Eldon H. Smith of Cass City were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother in this village, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, by Rev. B. J. Baxter. Immediately after the ceremony, which was performed in the presence of only a few of the near relatives of the bride and groom, the happy couple were driven to Crosswell in an automobile, where they left on the morning train for an extended wedding tour. Upon their return they will take up their residence in Cass City, and will be at home to their friends after Nov. 20.

Neither the bride nor groom need any introduction to the people of Lexington and vicinity. Mrs. Smith has occupied a prominent position in the social circles of the village for many years, and for the past seven years she has been faithfully performing the duties of librarian at the Moore Public Library. She is a great favorite with young and old and can count her friends by the score.

Mr. Smith is a former Lexington boy and for the past four or five years he made his home at Cass City where he is employed by the Anketell Lumber Co. His strict attention to business and the efficient performance of his duties soon won the respect and confidence of the company who were not slow in recognizing his ability and showed their appreciation of his efforts by advancing him to a position of trust and responsibility.

BUILD FROM BAD AXE TO P., O. & N.

MEANS ANOTHER OUTLET FOR PRODUCTS OF THUMB.

Surveyors Will Start Next Week to Determine the Exact Route.

This morning's Detroit Free Press says: "A proposition has been received from A. B. Atwater, assistant to President Hays, of the Grand Trunk railroad for a branch of the Grand Trunk from Bad Axe to some point on the P., O. & N. road, either Owendale, Cass City or Wilmot, the junction to be determined later.

"The Grand Trunk officials have made a written agreement with F. W. Hubbard, A. E. Sleeper and John Ryan of Bad Axe to build the line provided they secure the right of way and depot grounds. The surveyors will be put to work next week to determine the exact route.

"Bad Axe and Huron county people are enthusiastic over the prospects of getting a connection with the Grand Trunk and of relief from the present almost intolerable congestion of freight traffic in the Thumb. The board of trade of this city has appointed Messrs. Hubbard, Sleeper and Ryan a committee to push the project to completion."

ADVERTISING AUCTIONS.

Use of Newspapers Produces Best Results.

Auction sale time is at hand and the tendency all over the country is to handle the advertising by publishing the same and list of articles in a newspaper. The matter of handling the advertising has been thoroughly tried out and adopted in nearly every section.

It saves the proprietor of the auction from the ever difficult task of posting his bills, and an arduous drive through the country when he has plenty of other business to look after. And too, the bills do not in many cases remain up to accomplish the desired aim, in which case the labor and drive is largely in vain.

The newspaper advertisement brings the list of personal property before the right people at the right time. When a man picks up a newspaper it is usually at a time when he is at leisure and he is sure to read every article named in the list. The probabilities are he will find one or more articles which would be of use to him and he is attracted to the sale. A large crowd means good prices and advertising is what brings the crowds.

The Chronicle is recognized as a valuable medium in this section for this class of advertising and as a result its columns are liberally patronized by farmers and others holding sales during the auction season.

DETROITERS INVADED CASS CITY THURSDAY

Over 100 representatives of the Detroit wholesalers and manufacturers invaded Cass City Thursday afternoon, stopping here about one half hour on their tour through the Thumb. Cass City was ready for them and extended the glad hand and the Detroiters expressed themselves much pleased over the hearty reception.

Hayracks, preceded by Stone's Band, took the delegation from the Grand Trunk depot up town. Here a few brief speeches were made after which the visitors made brief calls at the several business places.

COUNTRY MERCHANTS MUST OBEY LAW

IN REGARD TO FEMALE EMPLOYEES.

State Labor Department Issues Declaration to That Effect.

Labor Commissioner Powers has been notifying merchants in small towns who are affected by the law limiting the number of hours which women may be employed that they must comply with the statute, and in this connection he calls attention to the change which the law is bringing about in the social life of these communities. By reason of the fact that the act puts an end to the old customs in villages and small cities of keeping the stores open until nearly midnight, merchants and their clerks find that they now have evenings to themselves, and the winter promises to be one of entertainment and amusement, unknown before, in consequence, indirectly, of this act.

The attitude of merchants towards the law varies greatly. Over 10,000 circulars have been sent out in an effort to bring about a compliance with the law, and some merchants have replied that they are willing to close, while announcing that they do not believe their competitors will comply. In some instances letters from their competitors have given the same excuse as the reason they were not obeying the law. In Yale the merchants' association has taken hold of the matter and is sending out circulars to patrons advising them of the act and asking their co-operation in bringing about a general compliance with the law by suggesting to the merchants with whom they trade their willingness for the stores to be closed evenings of business days.

Thumb Notes

Bryan O'Hara and Victor Clore, the two Palms men who were arrested for the alleged hold-up of a train at Ogden, Utah, several months ago, and acquitted, have employed an attorney to start suit against the Southern Pacific railway for false imprisonment.

Tuesday of this week, Senator Charles G. Putney of Sandusky, purchased the interest of Robert Morrison in the Sanilac Jeffersonian and will take active control and management of the same at once. By this deal Senator Putney becomes a permanent resident of Crosswell as he will move here shortly and expects to make the town his permanent home.—Jeffersonian.

Mrs. Geo. Stevenson was seriously injured at her home in Decker-ville Saturday morning by falling down stairs, sustaining a broken arm and other severe bruises. Mrs. Stevenson had just lighted a lamp when it began to flicker. Thinking it was going to explode she called to her husband who threw the lamp out of the window. In trying to find her way to her room she walked into the stairway.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Gorta and child, immigrants from Russia, were the victims of a "flimflam" game at Detroit last week which cost them $16 of good money. Gorta said he met a man of his native country and purchased a confederate $50 bill for $16 of American money. When the strangers tried to pass the bill in Saginaw they discovered the mistake and informed the police of that city of the matter, and an attempt is being made to locate the culprit. Gorta and his family were headed for Owendale and as they had no money, transportation was provided for them to that point.—Sebewaing Blade.

The animal became entangled in this and other machinery and broke a leg and hip and had to be killed. The horse was Kentucky bred and has trotted a mile in 2:19. It had been offered for sale at Mr. Drace's auction Tuesday afternoon, but as the highest bid was only $100, it had been bidden in.

PICKED BERRIES OCT. 9.

The Chronicle received a box Tuesday morning containing a branch from a red raspberry bush which held several berries—some of them ripe and others not yet matured. They were grown in the garden of Mrs. Theron Spencer at Deford and were picked on Monday, Oct. 9.

CHAPTER III.
THAT FACE AGAIN.

SEVERAL hours later Howland crawled from his bed and bathed his head in cold water. After that he felt better, dressed himself and went below.

It was rather with a sense of disappointment than pleasure that he learned the work train was to leave for Le Pas late that night instead of the next day. After a quiet hour's rest in his room, however, his old enthusiasm returned to him. He found himself feverishly anxious to reach Le Pas and the big camp on the Wekusko. Croisset's warning for him to turn back into the south instead of deterring him urged him on. He was born a fighter. It was by fighting that he had forced his way round by round up the ladder of success. And now the fact that his life was in danger, that some mysterious peril awaited him in the depths of the wilderness, but added a new and thrilling fascination to the tremendous task which was ahead of him. He wondered if this same peril had beset Gregson and Thorne and if it was the cause of their failure, of their anxiety to return to civilization. He assured himself that he would know when he met them at Le Pas. He would discover more when he became a part of the camp on the Wekusko—that is, if the half breed's warning held any significance at all, and he believed that it did. Anyway, he would prepare for developments. So he went to a gunshop, bought a long barreled six shooter and a holster and added to it a hunting knife like that he had seen carried by Croisset.

It was near midnight when he boarded the work train, and dawn was just beginning to break over the wilderness when it stopped at Etomami, from which point he was to travel by hand-car over the sixty miles of new road that had been constructed as far north as Le Pas. For three days the car had been waiting for the new chief of the road, but neither Gregson nor Thorne was with it.

"Mr. Gregson is waiting for you at Le Pas," said one of the men who had come with it. "Thorne is at Wekusko." For the first time in his life Howland now plunged into the heart of the wilderness. Everywhere lay white winter. The rocks, the trees and the great ridges, which in this north country are called mountains, were covered with four feet of snow, and on it the sun shone with dazzling brilliancy. The short northern day was nearing an end when once more they saw the broad Saskatchewan twisting through a plain below them, and on its southern shore the few log buildings of Le Pas hemmed in on three sides by the black forests of balsam and spruce. Lights were burning in the cabins and the Hudson Bay post's store when the car was brought to a halt half a hundred paces from a squat, log built structure, which was more brilliantly illuminated than any of the others.

"That's the hotel," said one of the men. "Gregson's there."

A tall, fur clad figure hurried forth to meet Howland as he walked briskly across the open. It was Gregson. As the two men gripped hands the young engineer stared at the other in astonishment. This was not the Gregson he had known in the Chicago office—round faced, full of life, as active as a cricket.

"Never so glad to see any one in my life, Howland!" he cried, shaking the other's hand again and again. "Another month and I'd be dead. Isn't this a h— of a country?"

"I'm falling more in love with it at every breath, Gregson. What's the matter? Have you been sick?"

"Sick? Yes, sick of the job! If the old man hadn't sent us relief Thorne and I would have thrown up the whole thing in another four weeks. I'll warrant you'll get your everlasting fill of log shanties and half breeds and moose meat and this infernal snow and ice before spring comes. But I don't want to discourage you."

"Can't discourage me," laughed Howland cheerfully. "You know I never cared much for theaters and girls," he added slyly, giving Gregson a good natured nudge. "How about 'em up here?"

"Nothing—not a cursed thing." Suddenly his eyes lighted up. "By George, Howland, but I did see the prettiest girl I ever laid my eyes on today! I'd give a box of pure Havanas—and we haven't had one for a month—if I could know who she is!"

"A tall girl, with a fur hat and muff?" queried Howland eagerly.

"Nothing of the sort. She was a typical northerner if there ever was one—straight as a birch, dressed in fur cap and coat, short caribou skin skirt and moccasins, and with a braid hanging down her back as long as my arm. Lord, but she was pretty!"

"Isn't there a girl somewhere up around our camp named Meleese?" asked Howland casually.

"Never heard of her," said Gregson. "Or a man named Croisset?"

"Never heard of him."

"The deuce, but you're interesting," laughed the young engineer, sniffing at the odors of cooking supper. "I'm as hungry as a bear!"

From outside there came the sharp cracking of a sledge driver's whip and Gregson went to one of the small windows looking out upon the clearing. In another instant he sprang toward the door, crying out to Howland.

"By the god of love, there she is, old man! Quick, if you want to get a glimpse of her!"

He fung the door open, and Howland hurried to his side. There came another crack of the whip, a loud shout, and a sledge drawn by six dogs sped past them into the gathering gloom of the early night.

From Howland's lips, too, there fell a sudden cry, for one of the two faces that were turned toward him for an instant was that of Croisset, and the other—white and staring as he had seen it that first night in Prince Albert—was the face of the beautiful girl who had lured him into the ambush on the Great North trail!

For a moment after the swift passing of the sledge it was on Howland's lips to shout Croisset's name. As he thrust Gregson aside and leaped out into the night he was impelled with a desire to give chase. It was Gregson who recalled him to his senses.

"I thought you didn't care for theaters—and girls, Howland!" he exclaimed banteringly. "A pretty face affects you a little differently up here, eh?"

Howland interrupted him sharply. "Did you ever see either of them before, Gregson?"

"Never until today. But there's hope, old man. Surely we can find some one in the place who knows them. Would not it be jolly good fun if Jack Howland, Esq., who has never been interested in theaters and girls, should come up into these God forsaken regions and develop a case of love at first sight? If I had only seen her sooner!"

"Shut up!" growled Howland. "Let's go in to supper."

"Good. And I move that we investigate these people while we are smoking our after supper cigars. It will pass our time away at least."

"Your taste is good, Gregson," said Howland, recovering his good humor as they seated themselves at one of the rough board tables in the dining room. Inwardly he was convinced it would be best to keep to himself the incidents of the past two days and nights. "It was a beautiful face."

"And the eyes!" added Gregson, his own gleaming with enthusiasm. "She looked at me so squarely this afternoon when she and that dark fellow passed and I swear they're the most beautiful eyes I ever saw. And her hair!"

"Do you think that she knew you?" asked Howland quietly.

Gregson hunched his shoulders.

"How the deuce could she know me?"

"Then why did she look at you so 'squarely'? Trying to flirt, do you suppose?"

Surprise shot into Gregson's face.

"By thunder, no, she wasn't flirting!" he exclaimed. "I'd stake my life on that. A man never got a clearer, more sinless look than she gave me, and yet— Why, deuce take it, she stared at me! I didn't see her again after that, but the dark fellow was here half of the afternoon, and now that I come to think of it he did show some interest in me. Why do you ask?"

"Just curiosity," replied Howland. "I don't like flirts."

"Neither do I," said Gregson musingly.

It was not until they were about to leave the table that Howland's eyes accidentally fell on Gregson's right hand. He gave an exclamation of astonishment when he saw that the little finger was missing. Gregson jerked the hand to his side.

"A little accident," he explained. "You'll meet 'em up here, Howland."

Before he could move the young engineer had caught his arm and was looking closely at the hand.

"A curious wound," he remarked without looking up. "Funny I didn't notice it before. Your finger was cut off lengthwise, and here's the scar running halfway to your wrist. How did you do it?"

He dropped the hand in time to see a nervous flush in the other's face.

"Why—er—fact is, Howland, it was shot off several months ago—in an accident, of course." He hurried through the door.

As they passed from the dining room into that part of the inn which was half bar and half lounging room, already filled with smoke and a dozen or so picturesque citizens of Le Pas, the rough jowled proprietor of the place motioned to Howland and held out a letter.

"This came while you was at supper, Mr. Howland," he explained.

There was no name at the bottom of what he read. It was not necessary, for a glance had told him that the writing was that of the girl whose face he had seen again that night.

"Forgive me for what I have done," the note ran. "Believe me now. Your life is in danger, and you must go back to Etomami tomorrow. If you go to the Wekusko camp you will not live to come back."

"The devil!" he exclaimed.

"What's that?" asked Gregson, edging around him curiously.

Howland crushed the note in his hand and thrust it into one of his pockets.

"A little private affair," he laughed. "Come, Gregson, let's see what we can discover."

In the gloom outside one of his hands slipped under his coat and rested on the butt of his revolver. Until 10 o'clock they mixed casually among the populace of Le Pas. Half a hundred people had seen Croisset and his beautiful companion, but no one knew anything about them. They had come that forenoon on a sledge, had eaten their dinner and supper at the cabin of a Scotch tie cutter and had left on a sledge.

"A CURIOUS WOUND. HOW DID YOU DO IT?"

"She was the sweetest thing I ever saw," exclaimed the tie cutter's wife rapturously. "Only she couldn't talk. Two or three times she wrote things to me on a slip of paper."

"Couldn't talk!" repeated Gregson as the two men walked leisurely back to the boarding house. "What the deuce do you suppose that means, Jack?"

"I'm not supposing," replied Howland indifferently. "We've had enough of this pretty face, Gregson. I'm going to bed. What time do we start in the morning?"

"As soon as we've had breakfast, if you're anxious."

"I am. Good night."

Howland went to his room, but it was not to sleep. He was satisfied that a mysterious peril of some kind awaited him at the camp on the Wekusko, but he gave up trying to fathom the reason for this peril, accepting in his businesslike way the fact that it did exist and that in a short time it would probably explain itself. The one puzzling factor which he could not drive out of his thoughts was the girl. Her sweet face haunted him.

He went to bed, but it was a long time before he fell asleep. It seemed to him that he had scarcely closed his eyes when a pouncing on the door aroused him, and he awoke to find the early light of dawn creeping through the narrow window of his room. A few minutes later he joined Gregson, who was ready for breakfast.

"The sledge and dogs are waiting," he greeted. As they seated themselves at the table he added: "I've changed my mind since last night, Howland. I'm not going back with you. It's absolutely unnecessary, for Thorne can put you on to everything at the camp, and I'd rather lose six months' salary than take that sledge ride again. You won't mind, will you?"

"To be honest, Gregson, I don't believe you'd be particularly cheerful company. What sort of fellow is the driver?"

"We call him Jackpine, a Cree Indian, and he's the one faithful slave of Thorne and myself at Wekusko. Hunts for us, cooks for us and watches after things generally. You'll like him all right."

To be continued.

The
New Maxwell Messenger
requires a minimum of care

Any owner, no matter how inexperienced, can take care of his Maxwell Messenger in 15 minutes, or less, each day. It is simplicity itself, both in design and operation. The car is so easy to understand that anyone can take care of it.

And yet the simple design is not wholly responsible for this—the excellence of material and care in production makes it possible.

It is easy to drive—that's why it is so popular as a ladies' car.

He Was Waiting.

A pretty, rosy cheeked country girl entered a department store. It was a bargain day, and the crowd was greater than usual. She wandered about from floor to floor—using the stairways because she was afraid of the elevators—and finally she stopped, lost and confused, in the middle of the biggest store she had ever seen.

A floorwalker saw her and politely approached.

"Is anybody waiting on you?" he asked, with a pleasant smile.

"Yes, sir," answered the girl, blushing to the roots of her flaxen hair; "he is outside. I couldn't get him to come in, and now I don't know which door he's at."—New York Telegraph.

SATURDAY NIGHT SERMONS

BY
REV. SAMUEL W. PURVIS, D.D.

THE GOD OF THE LUCKY.

Text: "The Lord was with Joseph, and he was a lucky fellow" (Tyndale's translation).—Genesis xxxix, 2.

His name was Joseph. He rose from the slave pen to the throne. The Bible says he was "a lucky fellow." As the other slaves saw him rise they said, "What a lucky fellow!" Of course he toiled while other slaves slept. He looked after Potiphar's affairs, while the other slaves looked after themselves. He busied himself bettering the prison, while others busied themselves trying to break out. There are plus and minus people. Joseph was plus. Still God and man said Joseph was "a lucky fellow."

One ought to define "luck." "That which chances to a person for good or ill." But when you say "chance" you confess ignorance. The very flip of the coin is governed by nerve, muscle, thumb and brain that flip it. If you could calculate the mental and physical forces between the coin's leap and return you could buy the world. But you can't. And it's just that bit of ignorance we call "chance." If a boy hated to saw wood, and of the load of pine, hickory and beech most of the pine fell to his brother's side, and the hard, knotty wood fell to him, he would say he had bad luck. Nevertheless there would be a cause for the wood so falling. If, however, the boy's father had so stacked the wood that the pine fell to one and the hickory to another, because one was better fitted for his lot than the other, the word "chance" would have no place there. If one sawed wood while the other taught his dog to balance a chip of wood on his nose there might be still another reason.

The Luck of Having a Job.

Joseph's good luck was in having an opportunity of demonstrating his fitness for doing large things by faithfulness to small things. He had the luck of being a servant. That was his chance. Every fellow who has a job has a chance. Don't think for a moment that things went smooth and without opposition. There were court intrigues and high officials, who envied him and tried to knife him on the sly. Let's admit for the moment that there's "luck." Well, to Joseph it "broke wrong." He was sold a slave. Blessed is the man whom misfortune doesn't sour. If our ill luck makes us sour we're "goners." If we are brave and smile things start to "come our way." Some men are cradled on feathers, some on rocks. Bunyan in Bedford jail was better off than the king of England. John the Baptist in dungeon at Machaerus castle was in better "luck" than Herod on the throne, though the former was beheaded. Franklin munching his penny roll on the streets of Philadelphia looking for a job. George W. Childs wheeling his barrow when the other boys had gone home, the New York judge who rammed paving stones on the street to get money to make a start are instances of hard "luck." When some official pushed a stumbling block in Joseph's way he stepped up on it. A postal clerk in Washington got "bounced." had saved $100, worked his way to Japan, started there a postal system and got $11,000 a year.

A Bible Cinderella?

No; no magic or miracle about it. "He had a 'pull'?" Yes, in a sense. He took his ill luck--i. e., his brother's envy, father's foolishness, boyish vanity, love of money, a woman's lust, lying lips, an ungrateful butler's forgetfulness, a despot's caprice, bribed dreams and ignorant magicians, striving himself to the throne next to Pharaoh. "He was faithful," the book says. In this shoddy age shoddy clothes, shoddy ideas, shoddy morals, "faithful" needs emphasizing. He had a clear record. Remember John B. Gough's last words--"Young man, keep your record clear." No skeleton in his soul's closet; no Banquo's ghost; no Belshazzar's fear of shadows; no Macbeth crying "Out, damned spot." And in prosperity? Adversity develops character; prosperity demands it. Weight of prison may be lighter than weight of power. Flowers that bloom under snow wither under sun. From slave pen to throne was but a night; prison rags to palace robe, fetter of iron to chain of gold, bed of straw to couch of down--all in a day? No; it took a lifetime.

The Essence of Luck.

The great word in Joseph's vocabulary was not "luck," but "God." No accident to him that "The Lord was with Joseph." Joseph was with the Lord. God's hand was on the helm of his life. He acknowledged God, as did Captain Philip on the deck of the Texas after battle of Santiago, like Grant declining royal reception in Europe on Sunday, like Victoria telling Indian princes secret of her empire's power was the Bible. Joseph found God's will and went that way. He looked at his difficulties through God, not at God through his difficulties. "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him and he shall bring it to pass," was the first article in his creed, section one in his constitution. His disappointments were God's appointments. He saw God in slave pen, prison, temptation, before Pharaoh. "Them that honor me I will honor." Joseph was true to God, God to Joseph. The secret of his success was God. Get that, friend? "The Lord was with Joseph, and he was a lucky fellow." His was the God of the lucky.

Accommodating.

Senator Martine of New Jersey, the "farmer senator," was once relating in Washington memories of his farm life. "What quaint minds," he said, "have those New Jersey colored folk who work New Jersey's farms! I remember an old uncle who once paused in a job of potato hoeing to sing in my ears the praise of chickens. 'Chickens,' he said, 'is so accommodating. Dey's so accommodating, suh! You can eat 'em befo' dey's bawn, an' yo' can eat 'em ahftah dey's dead.'"

SHABBONA.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Ehlers were in Cass City Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Mudge of Deford spent Sunday at Mrs. E. A. Phillips'.

Andrew Lorentzen has built a home for his automobile.

W. F. Ehlers accompanied by Ambrose Herdell and Joe McCarty of Argyle attended the Bad Axe fair Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tewksbury of Cass City were in town last Monday.

Fifty of the neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Frank Auslander Wednesday and assisted her in celebrating the 48th anniversary of her birth. The party was a surprise to Mrs. Auslander and she was presented with a rocking chair. At noon a big dinner was served such as we used to get at grandma's on Thanksgiving day. There was so much to eat and the place to store so small, that like in childhood days, some wished the occasion lasted for more than one day. Guests from a distance were Mrs. Isaac Agar and children of Cass City, Mrs. Walter Glendening and daughter of Virginia and Mrs. Claude Shaw of Decker.

HEED THE WARNING

Many Cass City People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are sick they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Sick kidneys expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brickdust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rheumatic twinges. Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. If you suffer from any of the above symptoms you can use no better remedy.

Cass City people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. Agnes Wickware, Main St., Cass City, Mich., says: "I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they have been used in my family with good results. A member of the household suffered from disordered kidneys and Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wood & Co.'s drug store disposed of the trouble. This preparation has also cured me of backache and difficulty with the kidney secretions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Dahlman started his career as a cowboy, and is at present Mayor of Omaha, and has the following record: Sheriff of Dawes Co., Neb., three terms; Mayor of Chadron, two terms; Democratic Nat'l Committeeman, eight years; Mayor of Omaha, six years, and in 1910 Candidate for Governor of Nebraska. Old Winter Is Coming

And there's many a man who has "meant to" get ready for the cold weather, but who has, for one reason or another, neglected to attend to it.

How is it about your place? Is everything in ship-shape down there at the barn and the other outbuildings? Have you plenty of storm windows and doors for your house, and tar paper to shut the cold out of the foundation walls.

Stop right now and make a list of the things you absolutely have to have to make your home comfortable for the winter. Then come in and see the quality of our goods and get our prices.

MAKE

as much as you may, when you get old you have nothing unless you save. Did you ever notice how debts grow if you let them alone? Savings grow the same way. If you had put away five cents a day for the past 21 years how much do you suppose you would have now? Over $500, counting the interest added every January and July. Your money begins to the first of the next month after you deposit it. A bank account is as good as an insurance policy. Better than some.

YOUR

MONEY

FOR

you can't always get your money on a policy when you need it. If the shop shuts down, if the folks get sick, if you want to buy a home, if you want to take a vacation, there's nothing like a good bank account.

NOW IS THE TIME. HERE IS THE PLACE, AND

YOU

ARE THE PERSON.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine or known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

"CENTRAL" SPEAKS.

Call me not with scornful numbers,
Like "two-seven-oring-three!"
Snapped out in disdainful accents—
Pray, be courteous to me!
Would you like to sit here with a Telephone strapped on your head,
All day long to answer summons?
Wouldn't you wish that you were dead?
When I say the line is busy,
Honestly, sometimes it is.
Why do you get so indignant
When you hear the buzzer's whiz?
And wrong numbers—naturally
Sometimes I am at a loss;
But, in fact, I give them mostly
To subscribers who are cross.
Be polite. It will not hurt you.
Even though I'm in a box,
I am human—although hidden—
And am sensitive to knocks.
Be polite. Do unto others
As you'd have them do to you.
It's a good rule to observe—and You'll get better service, too.
