Supt. of Schools, J. E. Kennedy, is putting in his spare moments in attempting to trace 50 books which were taken from the school library previous to last year and never returned. He has succeeded thus far in recovering 15 volumes. Six of these were found in one home. An entire set of Johnson's Encyclopedias are among the missing books.

Petitions to the board of supervisors for resubmission of the local option question in Tuscola county have been circulated, signed and posted, and unless there is some hitch in the proceedings it looks probable that the people will have a third opportunity to vote on the wet and dry proposition. The petition secured in Elkland township contains the signatures of 173 voters.

R. H. GOODALL WRITES FROM GOZY NOOK, SASK.

That Country and Sometimes Hard to Get.

R. H. Goodall, a former Novesta farmer, now located at Cosy Nook, Sask., wrote the Chronicle a letter in June, but it was mislaid and came to light but a short time ago. A portion of the letter is printed in the following paragraphs.

"Before I left Cass City I promised my friends that I would write and let them know how I liked this western country, so will as a reader of your paper ask you to kindly publish this letter. The west is all right. The trouble with so many people who come out here is, they expect they are just going to pick the money from the bushes. Now I think if a person is going to make money they have to work for it whether they are in Michigan or the west.

"The country is a little more rolling than I expected it would be. The soil is a good black loam with clay sub-soil. There are quite a few stones here.

"Everything is pretty high here. Good rolled oats, 20 lbs. for 70c; 2 lbs. seeded raisons, 25c; 2 lbs. currants, 25c; 2 cans salmon, 35c; 3 lbs. good tea, $1.00; 3 lbs. good cof- been visiting in Detroit, has gone to flour, per hundred $3.60. Pigs they cost from $16 up, according to width: disc harrow $35 up.

"As far as the fencing goes it is something I have not seen very much of, as people generally do not fence only for pasture for their horses and a cow or two. Their young cattle are herded out for the season for $2.00 per head.

"The water is one drawback in this country, some dig only 12 feet and get all kinds of good water. Some go as deep as 40 feet and get lots of water, but not good. Others dig 75 and 80 feet and get no water

CONSIDER OTHERS.

A little thought will show you how vastly your own happiness depends on the way other people bear themselves toward you. Turn the idea around and remember that just so much are you adding to the pleasure or the misery of other people's days by your attitude toward them.

Eskimo Women's Work. In a zone where the diet is largely meat and the meat is eaten raw cook ing forms no great part of woman's work. But, though she gets out of the cooking by this simple expedient, the Eskimo woman has work to do. When her husband comes back from the hunt it is her business to scrape and prepare the skins of the animals he has killed and out of these skins make the family supply of boots. The flesh she cuts up for drying. True to the Indian conception of the eternal fitness of things, the boys play and gambol about until they are old enough to go to the hunt with their fathers, but the girls, while still very young, go to work, helping their mothers.

Garrick and the Bishop. In the "Realities of Irish Life," by

W. S. French, is this anecdote: "I have heard a story that upon one occasion the bishop of London asked the celebrated actor, Garrick, if he could explain how it was that he and his clergy failed to arrest the attention of their audiences, although they preached every Sunday of the realities of the world to come, while he (Garrick) filled crowded houses with the most rapt attention, although they knew perfectly well that all he was saying was fiction. 'The reason is very plain, my lord,' replied Garrick. 'You deal with facts as if they were fiction. I deal with fic-

Physicians' Fee Bill

The physicians of Tuscola County have adopted the following fee bill to go into effect Sept. 15, 1912.

In calling the attention of the public to the slightly increased rates it should remember that the former fees were established by physicians practicing here 20 or 30 years ago. Living expenses now are 50 per cent more than then. The cost of drugs and medicines have advanced 20 per cent to 50 per cent. The modern physician's equipment is greater and much more expensive than ever before. Every other man, from the common laborer on up, receives at least 50 per cent more for his services than he did ten years ago. Then too, the cleaning up of the country, the drainage of the swamps and improved sanitation with more rigid enforcement of health measures has greatly curtailed sickness. The physician has always been the foremost citizen in promoting means to reduce the amount of sickness and we believe he is justly entitled to greater reward for his

The This was the explanation: When the player sits before the instrument on undergraduates were about to set him the floor in the ordinary posture, and when she touches the strings she often sings a soft accompaniment. The "samisen" is a kind of banjo and is often played during theatrical performances and recitations. It gives forth dull and montonous tones.

HOT FLASHES.

Women in middle age often complain of hot flasnes. They are at that stage of life when their delicate organism needs a tonic and helping-hand which only Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can give them. Many women suffer needlessly from girlhood to womanhood and from motherhood to old age-with backache, dizziness or headache. A woman often becomes sleepless, nervous, "brokerdown," irritable and feels tired from morning to night. When pains and aches rack the womanly system at frequent intervals, ask your neighbor about

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Mrs. J. Imhof, of 321 S. Bentalon Street, Baltimore, Md., says: "I wrote you about nine months ago, telling you of my condition. I have a fine baby girl—she weighed nine pounds when born. She is my third child and the strongest of them all. My suffering was only for two hours. I took several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of Dr. Pierce's Smart-Weed. I never had a well day before I took your medicines. I was surprised how well I felt—could eat—was always hungry, and never had a sick stomach. The nurse who was with me said the medicine was wonderful because I got along so nicely after having had so much trouble before. She intends to recommend it to all her suffering patients. Everybody is astonished at me because I only weighed 102 pounds before and now I weigh 135. I have had several ladies come to me and ask about Dr. Pierce's medicine. I am willing to recommend it to all who suffer and want help, If any want information I will be glad to give it."

FARMERS' WIVES WANT BALLOT

See Opportunities to Accomplish Much For the General Good of Society by Taking Interest In Affairs Outside the Home-Equality In the Grange Proves Fitness of Women For Equality In Citizenship.

By IDA L. CHITTENDEN, Lansing, Manager of the Michigan State Grange Equal Suffrage Campaign Committee.

Mrs. Clara B. Arthur, for ten years past the president or vice president of the Michigan Equal Suffrage association, lives in Detroit and is the mother of one son and two da ghters. The son is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and the daughters are freshmen in colleges. Nearly fifty years have elapsed since the Order of Patrons of Husbandry was first organized. The original idea of this nation wide organization came from Oliver H. Kelly, who will ever be known as the patron saint of the grange. Associated closely with him were William Ireland. John Trimble and Anson Bartlett, also Mr. Kelly's niece. Miss Caroline A. Hall, to whom belongs the credit of women being received into membership in this order with the same rights as men. So from the first within the ranks of the Patrons of Husbandry men and women have had equal rights and privileges. Always they have indorsed equal suffrage, but it remained for the ...ichigan state grange to be the first of the state granges to make an aggressive campaign in behalf of this movement. Endorsing a measure is one thing: to finance it and work for its success

This was referred to the executive committee with power to act. At a meeting of this commit as heads of large enterprises are an amendment granting equal suffrage fail. to the legislative committee, supple mented by a committee of grange women. Feb. 28 this committee meat the Michigan Agricultural college and organized for work. It was decid sing March 13, and there were present representatives of various women's or ganizations. All were enthusiastic and a definite plan of campaign was decided upon.

The extra sessions of the legislature however, made it seem wise to delay entering upon this work until it was known what would be done by the leg islature, as it was understood that Gov ernor Osborn would recommend the passage of such a resolution at this time. March 20 the resolution to sub mit this question to the people in No vember passed the senate, and March 28 passed the house amid great rejoic ing and applause. This was the di rect result of the united efforts of the friends of this movement, and it is generally recognized that the grange did its full share toward this satisfac tory culmination. May 8 at an executive committee meeting the grange decided to begin operations at once for the adoption of this amendment in November. The early efforts of the campaign have been an attempt to get the 900 granges in the state organized for work, the establishment of headquarters and the sending out of literature and speakers, but the greatest undertaking has been the compiling of tax statistics of the state showing the number of women paying taxes, the amount of their assessments and the amount of taxes they pay. This should be one of the strongest arguments in favor of giving women the ballot in a nation whose basic principle is "taxation without

Constipation, if Neglected, Causes Serious Illness

Constipation, if neglected, leads to almost innumerable complica-tions affecting the general health.

Many cases of typhoid fever, appendicitis and other severe diseases are traceable to prolonged clogging of the bowels. Regardthe effects of constination, C. constipation, E. Ayers, 6 Sabin St., Montpelier, Vt., says:
"I was afflicted with constipation and biliousness for years, and at times became so bad I would become unconscious. I have been found in that condition many times, Physicians did not seem to be able to do me any good. I would become weak and for days at a time could do no work. Not long ago I got a box of Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, and after using them found I had never tried anything that acted in such a mild and effective manner. I believe I have at last found the remedy that suits my case."

Thousands of people are sufferers from habitual constipation and while possibly realizing something of the danger of this condition, yet neglect too long to employ proper curative measures until serious illness often results. ## A Note To You.

Sept. 27, 1912 This space is hardly in keeping with the size of our Drug Store or the volume of our trade, but we would not encroach on the space of others who wish to communicate with you, nor curtail interesting news, which we know you always peruse after reading our notes.

We had intended touching on the object of these notes this week, but the store is filling up with customers and we must postpone it.

Yours truly,

REAL HAPPINESS. Straightforward, honest work, a determined endeavor to do one's best, an earnest desire to scatter flowers instead of thorns, to make other people a little better off, a little happier because of our existence—these are the only recipes for real happiness.

Great Luck. "Been hunting, eh? Any luck?" "Yes. I got back safe and sound."- UNCLAIMED LETTERS.

up and carefully inspected before leaving the factory.

In building, the greatest care is taken to guard against the use of defective material.

Then, to make assurance doubly sure, before any Studebaker spring vehicle is crated for shipping it is set up ready to run and (under a strong light) undergoes a final and rigid inspection by an expert.

Every Studebaker buggy we offer for sale has passed this rigid inspection.

You can depend upon any vehicle that has been O. K.'d by Studebaker.

DR. ALFRED SCOTT WARTHIN. Dr. Alfred S. Warthin of the University of Michigan is an eminent pathologist and biologist whose scientific achievements are widely known in Europe and throughout the world. Dr. Warthin has long been an advocate of woman's suffrage and only recently gave utterance to the following: "I believe absolutely in woman's suffrage and believe that the two sexes represent a biological division of labor. and the race can never be adequately represented in matters pertaining to government without woman's aid in all that pertains to national housekee which is all that government and politics should be. I believe fully in the partnership of the sexes and that the partnership should be an active one with equal rights for each partner and the opportunity for equal expression of views in all that concerns life. I do not believe that the social evil will ever be controlled until woman has an active participation in municipal and federal lawmaking. I believe that when women have the right to vote the protection of women and children as far as labor conditions are concerned will be brought about, but never as long as men alone make the law."

Wool Drying.

Wool drying is one of the principal and serious operations in the woolen industry. The more gently and uniformly the wool is dried the better is the result attained, for should the wool be slightly damp in some of its parts the dye does not take well, and the result is an unevenly dyed yarn, which shows in the texture of the woven goods. Overdrying is also bad.

Profits in Poultry

People who make money out of ducks and other fowls to wear a heavy veil. speak highly of the conditioning and fattening qualities of Harvell's Condition Powder. It makes young chickens thrive, keeps away disease and increases the yield of eggs. The successful poultry raisers nearly all use it. Price 25 cts. per package. Sold by Wood's Drug Store.

For Club Entertainment. I belong to a ladies' club. The ages of the members are from twenty-five to fifty. Will you please suggest some way of entertaining them? I would like something in which all might take part.--Violet.

A number of ladies spent a most enjoyable afternoon in this manner: Each one was asked to dress her hair to represent some famous woman. It was surprising what a change was wrought in the appearance, and it was a jolly crowd, I assure you. Some of the personages were Martha Washing ton, Mary Queen of Scots, Queen Victoria, Queen Alexandra, Frances E. Willard, Priscilla, etc. Old pictures furnished the ideas. Programs and pencils were passed and a prize was given to the lady who guessed the most and one to the person who remained the longest unguessed. I should think this would furnish entertainment for your club.

Regarding Mourning. Would it be proper for me to receive a gentleman caller while I am still wearing black and my mourning veil? I have worn it a year. I would not go driving Sunday because I didn't know whether it was proper. How long does one usually wear the mourning veil? Would it do for me to wear it with all white dress? In taking off mourning is it necessary to wear black and white a while before you go

There is no harm in receiving calls while you are in mourning. About the driving, you must be guided by your own feelings. All white is considered mourning and black and white half mourning. A year is long enough out in white?—M. B.

Duties of Bridal Attendant. Will you please tell me what the duties of the bridesmaid and groomsman are, also at a home wedding who should receive the guests at the door -Mabel.

At a home wedding the mother and father of the bride receive the guests: in other words, those who issue the invitations are the host and hostess of the occasion. A bridesmaid, if there is no maid of honor, immediately precedes the bride, stands beside her and holds her bouquet. The groomsman supports the groom, enters with him, produces the ring at the critical moment and relieves him in all possible ways of the details of the preparation.

Compensation for Organist, Is it the custom to pay the organist at a wedding for her services, if you are well acquainted with her: if so, what compensation would you give her?-Blanche, If you are well acquainted with the young woman and hesitate to offer her money, give her something to equal what she would receive in money from a stranger, for an organist is always paid for a wedding. I cannot set the amount, not knowing her terms.

For a Scotch Entertainment, Will you please give me some suggestions as to representing some Scottish character or books for an entertainment.—Lassie.

"The Heart of Midlothian," "Annie Laurie," "Scottish Chiefs," "The Monastery," "A Highland Laddie," "Ivanhoe" (carry a small hoe). If you go to the library doubtless many others will be suggested.

For a Dinner Dessert. Is maple mousse suitable for a dinner dessert? How is it pronounced .-M. E.

Maple mousse is delicious for dessert and always acceptable to every one, as maple flavoring is a general favorite. Mousse is pronounced exactly like moose, a deer.

Making the First Call.
In making a first call, if the maid takes my card at the door, when and where do I leave my husband's cards?

Hand your husband's cards, with yours, to the maid, the courtesy is understood, as no one expects men to make daytime calls.

ack Silk Stove Polish

ON'T imagine for a moment that all brands of stove polish are the same. Don't get the idea that to keep a nice glossy shine on your stove you must black it every few days. It's not a question of oftrepeated application.

black it every few days. It's not a question of oft-repeated application.

It's a question of the stove polish to use.

Black Silk Stove Polish is so much better than other stove polishes that there is absolutely no comparison—it's in a class all by itself.

It makes a brilliant glossy shine that don't rub or dust off. It anneals to the fron—becomes a part of the stove. It makes old stoves look like new and lasts four times as long as any other shine.

Get a can and give it a trial. Try it on your parlor stove, your cook stove, or your gas range. If you do not find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Black Silk Stove Polish has been made by the same formula and sold under one name for 30 years.

Here is what some of the ladies write us: Here is what some of the ladies write us:

"I sent to you for a can of Black Silk Stove Polish and found it so much better than any I had ever used that I asked my hardware dealer to order a supply. He did so, and is now seiling nearly everyone in the place your polish. I had no idea there could be such a difference in stove polishes."

"I was visiting friends and they used Black Silk Stove Polish on their stoves. It made the best shine I ever saw, and after blacking, the polish did not rub or dust off. It is way ahead of any polish I have ever used."

Ask Your Dealer for Black Silk Stove Polish and refuse a counterfeit brand. Costs you no more than the ordinary kind, so why not have the best. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works, Sterling, Ill.

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel for grates, fenders, registers, stove pipes, etc. Prevents rusting. Not affected by heat or cold. Produces a permanent glossy black surface. Laws on Dress and Diet. Britain's parliament used at one time to say not only what a laborer should earn, but also what he should eat and drink. The statute of apparel, passed in 1363, regulated the diet of servants, artificers and tradesmen. They and their wives were further compelled to wear clothes of a certain low price with no gold, silver or embroidery. If they did not possess goods or chattels to the value of 40 shillings they were to wear only blanket or russet and girdles of linen. Other laws of a similar character were also passed. Most of them were repealed under James I., but the last was not expunged from the statute book till 1856.

Who Set Us Right?

A Bad Beginning With a Fair Ending

By EDWIN L. SHEPARD ************

I was sitting in my private office when the door opened and in walked a seedy individual without being an nounced. A clerk stood in the doorway and had evidently tried to stop him without success. "Never you mind, young man," said the intruder. "Frank Steadman and I are old friends, aren't we, Frank?"

I looked at him curiously, but could not place him. I was about to order him out of my office when a memorya painful memory - came up and checked me. Could this degraded looking creature be Stivers?

"Leave him with me," I said to the clerk, who retired and shut the door. Then I said to the man, "What can do for you?"

"You don't remember me?" "Are you Joe Stivers?" "Yes.

"A dozen years have changed you." "Not for the better, either." "Well, tell me the object of this

I sat thinking. Ten years before had been a young man with a young head on my shoulders and a young man's heart in my bosom. The first warm flush of love had come upon melove that stirs noble impulses and in me called out what was inad-Add to this inexperience, a complication, and the result is obvious Joe Stivers, Arthur Ditmar and I were clerks with the same concern. Clara Ditmar, Arthur's sister, and I had just become engaged. Stivers, who was bad from the crown of his head to the sole of his boot, corrupted Arthur Ditmar and involved him with himself in iniquity. Stivers appropriated funds of the firm, making a catspaw of Ditmar for the purpose, and I, learning of Ditmar's situation, tried to help him out. The result was what might have been expected. Stivers threw the blame on Ditmar, and I lifted it from Ditmar's shoulders and put it on my own. I have explained so far as possible what prompted me to do so. The shock that the revelation young Ditmar's trouble would cause his sister was the principal reason, but my efforts to help her brother had involved me, and, though perfectly innocent of any wrong, I would be smirched and seriously handicapped in my future career. I was just coming of age at the time and, receiving an inheritance sufficient to make up the deficiency. sunk it in the hole. When it was all done I saw no necessity or advantage in telling Clara about it. I did another foolish thing in deceiving her as to my inheritance, permitting her to suppose that it was lost in speculation.

Clara and I were married, and instead of going into our own home or having our nest egg we began life in a boarding house. Nevertheless, being married to a woman who turned out to be a good manager, with my faculties concentrated on one object, I advanced rapidly. I was inclined to take risks. and they all turned out well. The con sequence was that a few years before reaching middle age I was in business for myself and worth some money.

"You mean," I said, referring to Sti vers' last word, "that you want money It seems to me that I am the last man you should come to for that." "You're the only man I have to rely

"How can you rely on me? I took your written assurance, though it didn't seem necessary since you were the criminal, that the matter was to remain forever a secret. You certainly can't blackmail me."

"Necessity knows no law. I've got into another scrape far worse than the one in which you were implicated and must have money. You were tender hearted with Arthur Ditmar. You may as well be kind to me." .

"And suppose I refuse?"

He didn't reply for some time. seemed to be thinking. It was evident that his necessity shut out from his mind every other consideration. At last he said:

"I may as well suffer for two breaks as one. I'm only one man to jail, and they can't put me in two jails. I'm told you're worth at least $50,000. Let me have $20,000 and I can pull out of this second trouble dead easy. They are waiting to jug me till I can find out whether or no I can raise the money. They'd rather have funds than jail a man who can't pay."

"I see. Suppose I refuse to help you out of this scrape?"

"In that case there's only one thing for me to do to save myself. I must let out the old trouble."

I saw at once that the case was serious and realized at the same time the inexpediency of my management of the affair. I had never revealed it to my wife. Arthur Ditmar was now in a position of trust, married and the father of several little children. Surely the best method of meeting a complication in the beginning is telling the truth and taking the consequences. I had allowed my heart to run away with my head, though there was reason on my own account why I preferred that the matter should be kept a secret. "How long have you," I asked after thought, "to raise this money?"

"A few days anyway, perhaps longer if there is a fair chance of getting it." "Well, you needn't come here again. Give me an address where you can be found and I'll let you know."

I took his address, and he left the office, I following him out and handing him a five dollar bill in presence of the employees, who looked at him and me wonderingly, not understanding my lenient treatment of him. He took the money, and I returned to my private room without making any explanation,

My position was harrowing. I could do nothing without my wife's knowledge, and to bring up a matter which I had kept from her for twelve years would not only be very painful to her on her brother's account, but might lead her to suspect that I, having hushed the matter up, had been a party to the misappropriation of funds. If I refused the needed aid I would be on one horn of the dilemma and if I gave it would be on the other. In the latter case I must expect to be bled indefinitely.

I did what I should have done years before-I made a clean breast of the matter to my wife. I began my story with misgivings as to the spirit in which she would receive the revelation, but as I proceeded saw that she not only held me blameless of any wrong, but was impressed with the sacrifice I had made for her and her brother. She threw her arms around me and, instead of admitting that my course had been at least not wise, called me her noble husband. While I was pleased at not being blamed by her, I was not at all affected by her encomium.

From this point I was not alone in my trouble or in hunting for the best way out of it. My wife went to her brother, told him that she knew of his past weakness, kindly excused him on account of his youth and inexperience at the time his fault was committed, and the result was a conference on the part of the three of us to consider what what was best to do.

I proposed to furnish Stivers with funds to permit him to escape to some foreign land where he would not be known and could not readily be followed. Arthur did not like this plan, but could suggest no other. Then Clara said:

"Send him to me for his answer. Possibly a woman may move him to do his share in the solution of the problem where a man would fail."

I asked her what she intended to propose, but she said she would rather not say, for she might be better able to carry out some other scheme. I wrote Stivers to come to my house and when he appeared told him that he would have to receive his answer from my wife. He winced at this,

"That means you refuse?" "It means nothing except what Mrs. Steadman tells you." "I won't have anything to do with a woman in the matter." "Then you will get no reply at all." Finding that I was firm, he assented, and I ushered him into a room where my wife was waiting for him.

The interview lasted more than an hour, when Stivers and Clara came out of the room together. Stivers said nothing. He seemed to be very much cast down. Clara told us the result.

"I have convinced him that it is better for him and all concerned to take his punishment for this offense, and when he has done so we will see if we can't help him to something better."

There was no doubt in my mind that this was the only way out of the matter, but I was surprised that Clara had been able to persuade him to adopt it.

Stivers told those he had swindled to proceed with the prosecution; but, finding there was nothing to be gained by them by doing so, they refrained. I started him on a new path, and he is now making an honest living.

To my wife all credit is due for the fortunate termination of an unfortu-
