Vol. 7, No. 24

Town Topics

The Oddfellow hall is undergoing a series of changes; the various rooms are being papered and repainted.

A. Johnson, who assisted Robt. Keeler, the Salvation Army Evangelist in his meetings here several weeks ago, has rented the shop east of B. F. Benkelman's store and will open up a paint and repair shop.

The Cass City Grain Co. has purchased an elevator at Swartz Creek. Herbert Frutchev will be the manager and he and his family will move to that place. Joseph Frutchev was at Swartz Creek the first of the week and assisted in taking inventory.

The children of the primary department of the Presbyterian church entertained their mothers last Tuesday afternoon at a "Mothers' Day." A short program was rendered and a luncheon served. Mrs. A. J. Knapp, who assisted in planning the meeting acted as chairman and at the business meeting the children voted to have a Mothers' Day quite frequently.

Photographer Maier is called upon occasionally to make photographs of four generation groups, but one made recently is the more interesting because it contains eight persons, two of each generation, who all live in the same township and within two miles of one another. The first generation is represented by Mr. and Mrs. Levi Muntz, the second by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blades, the third by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Blades and the last by the two sons of the last named couple, J. C. and Howard Blades. The picture was taken in front of the home of Grandpa and Grandma Muntz in Elkland township.

The week before the Cass City fair, a Mr. Parks of Caro had some horse blankets and a rain coat stolen from his rig in Agar's Feed Barn. Not until last week was an attempt made to recover the property and then Deputy Sheriff Striffler was put on the case. He made a raid at a place several miles from town and secured a portion of the property and later the remainder was brought to him by another party. The articles were stolen from the barn by two young men who were "pretty well shot" when they appropriated them. No arrests were made as the interested parties thought that the boys would heed the warning given them and hereafter refrain from such evil practices.

Chas. Clark, division freight agent, and Mr. McPeck, travelling freight agent of the Grand Trunk, came to Cass City on the 3:17 train Wednesday afternoon and almost immediately went to the Agar Livery where they procured a rig and drove out to inspect the work of building the roadway for the new line from Cass City to Bad Axe. Mr. Clark said the Grand Trunk people had expected to have the road completed by the first of the year, but the work has been delayed by unfavorable weather and lack of help. He still manifested his interest in the sugar beet factory project at this point on which he gave a talk at the Improvement Association banquet last April. Mr. Clark has watched the development of this portion of Michigan for the past 20 years and he is enthusiastic in his expressions of the possibilities and resources of the territory which are yet to be realized.

CHANGE IN TIME TABLE

Three Passenger Trains on P., O. & N. Arrive Earlier.

On Monday a new time schedule on the P., O. & N. division of the Grand Trunk Railway took effect.

The "morning train," going south, leaves Cass City at 7:11 a. m., 34 minutes earlier than by the former schedule. The "noon train," going north, leaves at 11:20 a. m., 15 minutes earlier. The "afternoon train," going south, leaves at 3:17 p. m., 12 minutes earlier. The "night train," going north, leaves at the same time as formerly, at 7:58 p. m.

The new schedule enables passengers to reach Detroit at 11:30 a. m., instead of 12:20 as formerly.

A. J. Spiess, local agent of the P., O. & N., was not informed of the change of the time schedule until Friday evening, and as a result of the late notice, but few people knew of the contemplated change until it had taken effect.

TICKETS FOR LECTURE COURSE NOW ON SALE

First Entertainment Given Monday, Oct. 28. Tickets Sell at Old Prices.

Cass City is to have a better entertainment course the coming season than was ever offered in a town of similar size. The committee has exercised great care in selecting the numbers and can assure the people of this vicinity that nothing better in the way of entertainment can be bought for the amount of funds at their disposal.

There will be an evening with Mr. and Mrs. Gale in "Songs and Stories of the Red Man," and a musical evening with the Chicago Ladies Orchestra, one of the best musical organizations of America. The members are all professional musicians of great ability and besides full orchestra selections, they present violin, flute and vocal solos, string ensembles and readings, and a horn quartette. Early in the new year two lecturers, Mac Innes Neilson and H. V. Adams, will appear and they are, beyond doubt, of the best interpreters on the American platform today. In February, Noah Beilharz, who makes a "hit" with the people wherever he goes, will give an entertainment of readings, impersonations and instrumental and vocal music.

The course is the best and most expensive ever given in Cass City but to give all an opportunity to attend the ladies offer the tickets at the old prices, $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students. Tickets are now for sale and may be purchased at the Chronicle office or from any member of the Woman's Study Club. Announcement of reservation of seats will be made later.

NEW NEWSPAPER LAW

All Publications, With Few Exceptions, Must File Statements.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has issued instructions for carrying into effect the new newspaper and periodical law, first returns under which must be made by Oct. 1.

The law requires publishers to file on April 1 and Oct. 1 of each year with the postmaster general and with the local postmaster, under penalty of denial of the use of the mails, a sworn statement of the names and addresses of the owner, publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager of their newspapers and periodical. Religious, fraternal, temperance, and scientific publications are excepted.

For a corporation the names of the holders of more than one per cent of the stocks, bonds, or other securities must be given, and, in the case of daily newspapers, a statement of the average paid circulation for the preceding six months is required.

All editorial or other reading matter appearing in a newspaper or magazine for the publication of which pay is accepted or promised must be marked "Advertisement," under penalty of a fine of not less than $50 or more than $500.

Farm For Sale.

Forty acres, 5 1/2 miles east of Cass City. Ne 1/4 of sec 34, Sec. 32, Greenleaf. Well fenced, good orchard, never failing well, buildings in good condition. Sidney W. Davis, Cass City. 10-4-4p

School supplies at Wood's.

CASES HEARD IN THE CIRCUIT COURT AT CARO

Daniel Croop Gets Sentence for Violation of the Local Option Law.

Daniel Croop of Deford pleaded guilty to a violation of the local option law and was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail and fined $50 and costs amounting to $25.

In the case of the people against Jesse Stock, charged with statutory rape, the jury gave a verdict of acquittal.

Frank O'Rourke of Deford charged with forging the name of another to a note at the Cass City bank was released on bail and the case adjourned to the December term of court.

The case of the people against William Schmidt was continued on testimony of physicians that he was too ill to attend court.

Ferdinand W. Drager charged with a technical violation of the local option law, ran away and his whereabouts are at present unknown.

SILVER MEDAL CONTESTS.

There will be a Silver Medal contest in the Evangelical church Friday evening, Oct. 18. Everybody is invited. There will be a collection taken to defray expenses and to help in the work of temperance. Program will appear next week.

A Silver Medal contest will be given in the Church of Christ, three miles south of town in the near future. Date next week.

BETTER CAVE MAN'S METHOD

Small Investments Bring Most Satisfactory Results.

When the cave man wanted help or a wife he strode forth, tapped one on the head and dragged him or her to his tribal habitat. Civilization has placed certain restrictions and limitations about us which prevent this beautifully simple method but it has given us the Chronicle liner, which costs but a few cents, and no physical effort, and give more satisfactory results.

Often the Chronicle is told of the good work of these little fellows, and those who benefit from their work appear well satisfied with their investment. Some times a liner does its work with great rapidity. A few instances of this kind have come to our notice within the past week.

Last Friday's paper contained a liner advertising for a lost watch fob. The paper was printed Thursday afternoon and the city list was mailed before supper. The ink was scarcely dry when Mrs. F. E. Kelsey was met on the street that same day by a young lady who told her that she had found Mr. Kelsey's fob. The same paper contained a liner advertising a coal stove for sale by Mrs. Lucy Brown. Wednesday, her daughter came to the Chronicle office and ordered the liner discontinued.

"We received many inquiries," she said, "which started almost before the breakfast hour Friday morning." Thos. Colwell, another advertiser, recovered a lost jack screw after the liner had appeared once, and Duncan Crawford sold his Houghton St. residence to a Greenleaf township farmer after two insertions of one of these necessary lieutenants of the modern, busy man.

And so the work continues in bringing the buyer and seller together via the Chronicle liner.

Bigelow's $6.50 electric iron will save its cost. Let them show you why.

VASSAR TO FORM NEW TELEPHONE COMPANY

Other News of the People in Nearby Towns of the Three Counties.

W. N. Ferris, democratic candidate for governor, is campaigning in Huron county today (Oct. 4.)

Harbor Beach has installed paper towels and liquid soap in the public schools as sanitary precautions on behalf of the children.

Brown City falls in line with the early closing movement. Beginning Oct. 1, the stores will close at 6:30 local time, with the exception of Saturday, of course.

Supervisor Wm. T. Brown of Sanilac township has been appointed county agent of the state board of corrections and charities to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Moses Burns.

Elkton has let the contract for the new electric light plant and expects that the plant will be in operation about November 1st. A force of men are now at work wiring business places and private houses.

At a special meeting of the Vassar board of trade, it was voted that a committee be appointed by President Ellis, to take initial steps in forming an independent telephone company. The company will be known as the Vassar Telephone Co., and will be formed with a capital stock of $5,000, with authority to extend. This company will obtain options and will do the best in its power to have an independent telephone company for Vassar at the earliest date. The state railroad commission was seen some time ago by a committee and the legality of the procedure passed upon at that time by the commission so that the company will be in accordance with and working under the suggestions of that commission.

PARTY AT CUMBER.

Three carriages loaded with ladies journeyed to Cumber Saturday where they spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Greenleaf. Twelve sat down to the dinner table, loaded with goodies, after which the teapot was in great demand and every one had their past, present and future told.

The guests were then ushered to the parlor where they were entertained by songs, composed and sung by Mrs. Greenleaf, accompanied by her son, Alexander, who is a natural musician. Mrs. Greenleaf then read some of her original poems. It was regretted that the days were so short and the guests took their departure declaring that it was one of the best times they had ever had and promised to come again. They arrived at Cass City amid showers of rain at 7 o'clock. (Contributed.)

We need the change. So do you. Fall Union Suits from $1.00 to $3.00. Crosby & Son.

Read about Black Silk Polish on page 6, then ask Bigelow's.

When you can get a reliable electric iron—yes guaranteed, for only $3.50—why not? Bigelow's, of course.

STATE PROGRESSIVES

DEMAND REFORMS

State Platform Favors Recall, Simplification of Election Laws and Free Text Books.

It was 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon before the Progressive state convention at Lansing began in earnest the work for which it was called. The delay was caused by a long speech by Bainbridge Colby of New York. There were 1,046 delegates in the convention, according to the report of the committee on credentials, with no protests. The adoption of the platform took but a short time.

The most sensational event of the day was the nomination of Speaker Herbert F. Baker of the house of representatives for auditor-general. Mr. Baker was not present in the convention. He has not to date declared himself a member of the new party, but it was patent to the delegates assembled that the clean and efficiently progressive record of the speaker would prove a marked asset attached to the candidacy on the state ticket. Tuesday afternoon he threw responsibility for the nomination on the convention, with the result that he was selected for the place.

The Ticket.

*Governor—L. Whitney Watkins, Jackson.

*Lieutenant governor—William D. Gordon, Midland.

Justices of the supreme court (long term)—Edward H. Lyon, St. Johns; (short term)—Willard G. Turner, Muskegon.

Chairman of state central committee—Charles P. O'Neill, Detroit.

*Nominated at primaries.

DEMOCRATS ARE HOPEFUL

Delegates Cast Animosities Aside at State Convention.

Harmony prevailed at the democratic state convention at Grand Rapids Thursday, Sept. 26. Delegates believing Michigan will go democratic this year if it ever does, cast all animosities aside.

The keynote speech was delivered by Temporary Chairman Sweet and the following officers were nominated to complete the state district:

For Secretary of State—J. B. Balch, Kalamazoo.

Auditor-General—Peter Primeau, Marquette.

Attorney-General—Louis E. Howlett, Howell.

State Treasurer—John P. Robson, Ovid.

Justice of the Supreme Court (long term)—George L. Yapple, Mendon.

Justice of the Supreme Court (short term)—Rollin Person, Lansing.

State Land Commissioner—Orlando F. Barnes, Roscommon.

POLITICAL GOSSIP

County Democrat Ticket Not Barred from Ballot.

The political prophet is working overtime.

The socialists have a precedent in Michigan, it is believed, by naming two women for presidential electors. The women are Mrs. Ida Kummerfeld of Detroit and Alice McAfee of Lansing.

Miles J. Purcell of Saginaw, Democrat candidate for congress, and Chas. E. Lown, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, called at Caro last week in preparation for the campaign. The Republican vote for congressman two years ago was 14,000, the Democratic 10,000, and this year with the Republican split, the Democrats are hopeful.—Caro Courier.

The report that Tuscola county Democrats failed to poll enough votes at the primaries to assure the printing of their county ticket on the official ballot at the general election is incorrect. The four county tickets—Republican, Democrat, Prohibition and Progressive—are all entitled to a position on the ballot in the opinion of County Clerk Reavy.

CONSUMPTIVES FAR BETTER OFF AT HOME

Physicians Asked Not to Send Patients to the South-west.

Physicians in all of the eastern and southern states will be asked by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to stop sending consumptives in the last stages of tuberculosis and without sufficient funds to the southwestern part of the United States in search of health, according to an announcement made by that association.

While it is impossible to tell accurately how many consumptives there are at present living in the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Southern California, and Western Texas, it is probable that no less than 10 per cent of the 6,000,000 people in this territory have tuberculosis themselves or have come to the west because some member of their family has had it. Every year, the health authorities estimate no less than 10,000 consumptives hopeless diseased come west to die. For these cases, the climate of this section of the country can do nothing and they are compelled to die in strange surroundings and thousands of miles from home and friends.

The National Association points out further that from 50 to 60 per cent of these advanced cases are too poor to provide the proper necessities of life and they are either starved to death or compelled to accept the meagre charity which this part of the country affords.

In an effort to stop the migration of consumptives of this class to the southwest, the National Association will ask physicians to be more careful in ordering patients to go away, and will also ask railroads to discontinue their practice of selling "charity tickets to Colorado, California, or the west for his health," says the association, "unless he has a good chance for recovery from his disease and unless especially he has at least $1,000 to spend for this purpose, over and above what his family may need."

"Tuberculosis can be cured in any part of the U. S., and it is not necessary for a tuberculosis patient to go west. Whenever possible, the National Association urges tuberculosis patients who have not ample funds to go to a sanatorium near home, and if they cannot do this, to take the cure in their homes, under the direction of a physician."

An Effective Whistle.

A popular English author was wholly incapacitated from work by a lady who lived next door and strummed through Handel's "Messiah." His idea of the inviolability of an Englishman's house did not allow him to send in any message, and he was at his wife's end till he saw in a daily paper that steam whistles could be bought to fit on to kettle spouts.

Straight From the Shoulder.

The colonel was talking to the private soldier. "You are a remarkably clean man, sir," said the colonel. "Thank you, colonel," said the private.

Youth's Idea.

"Always remember, my boy, that your father had to work for a living." "That's what you got for not being wise enough to play a thinking part," was the young man's retort.—Detroit Free Press.

Surprising, but Not Sudden.

Blobs—Did she seem surprised when you proposed? Slobbs—Yes, indeed. She said she never thought I had the nerve and had about given up hope.—Philadelphia Record.

A Comparison.

"I am so chicken-hearted," simpered the lady with the false ringlets, as she explained her scare about the burglars. "Yes'm," agreed the policeman who had searched the house for her, "but," he continued under his breath, "you are not spring chicken-hearted, not by a long shot."

The Icy Mitt.

"That editor," complained the poet, "keeps telling me to write something apt and timely and he will accept it. Today I dashed off a little thing about the beautiful snow and submitted it to him."

A Criticism.

"These cigars," I explained to my friend, "were made for King Edward." "Is that so?" he said, drawing very hard at the one I had given him. "I don't blame him for not taking them."

The Harmony of the Occasion.

O'Tunder—They was th' devil's own foight at Casey's tin widdin' last night till Sar-r-rgent Boyle sint up his prisint. O'Really—Phwat did he sind? O'Tunder—Tin polacemen.

And Crescendo.

"I presume your wife makes life for you one grand sweet song," said the old friend. "Mostly recitative," answered Mr. Henry Peck, with just a tinge of sadness, "mostly recitative."

He Mailed It.

"Speaking of the mailed fist," said the manufacturer of artificial limbs, "it cost me about 50 cents to send a wooden hand to one of my customers."

W. D. Nesbit

The Crucial Point.

"We were having a howling good time on the streets last night, tickling people, till the cops came." "Ay, then came the hard times when we felt the pinch."

A Practical Bull.

"The meeting made something of a bull in the way the members ran it." "How so?" "They had standing rules for seating the delegates."

A Gift for Wifey.

"Nope, that lawnmower is too heavy." "That? Too heavy for a person of your size?" "My wife isn't my size."

The ONLOOKER BY WILBUR D. NESBIT The OLD TINTYPE

He gazed on the oldtime picture— The tintype, faded and stained; And over his face crept shadows That showed how his heart was pained.

He sighed o'er the old, old picture, Dented and scratched and dim; And smiled at the maiden, dimpled, Who sat by the side of him.

'Twas only an oldtime picture, And taken in oldtime style— Each held the hand of the other, And each wore a tintype smile.

An Exigency, indeed. With breathless suspense we watched the bloodhounds take up the trail. To our surprise they crossed one lot and then stopped in front of a tumble-down hut.

Modern Enterprise. "How is this?" inquired the Visiting Potentate. "You have an extra paper on the streets announcing my departure, when I have just arrived."

Smile, Etc. "Funny about young Spenditt, wasn't it?" said the observing man. "Was it?" asked the man of an inquiring mind.

The Voice of Experience. Mother-in-Law—I see where some legislator proposes to tax men for their wives. New Daughter-in-Law—That would make a tremendous increase in the taxes.

Merely a Suggestion. Dr. Dosem—Yes, Miss Wunder, we have carried the practice of vaccination to that point where it is an absolute protection against smallpox.

Busy but Not Gaining. "Well, I be dinged!" observes Mr. Glimber, looking at the freight cars; "that town takes a heap o' cars, but it hain't growed a bit in ten years."

Millions of Dollars. Are cleared every year by the poultry raisers of the United States. A large factor in the production of this huge profit is Harvell's Conditioning Powder.

They Gossip. "Although Mrs. Whooper and Mrs. Chaffing have been neighbors for a long time, they never lend each other anything."

Sure Thing. "There is one man I want to see paddle his own canoe." "Who is that?" "The man who thinks it rummy to rock the boat."

What He Objected To. Visiting Chaplain—Ah, my brother, this world is full of trials. Prisoner—Oh, dry up, guv'nor! Think I dunno that? It isn't the trials I mind; it's the verdicts.—Sketch.

SHABONA.

Joshua Bingleman of Detroit visited with relatives and friends from Saturday to Tuesday.

Mrs. Jas. Ryckman returned home Saturday much improved in health.

Harve VanConant is now employed at North Branch.

Wm. Haney and family move this week to Cass City where they will reside, having sold his farm to Sun Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Guy are the parents of a baby boy left at their home Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. W. F. Ehlers returned Friday after a week's visit at Pontiac, Detroit and Oxford.

Paul Auslander and A. L. Sharrard attended the state fair at Detroit the last three days.

W. F. Ehlers and Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Nique and daughter, Eleanor, drove their autos to attend state fair last Friday, the former going to Detroit and the latter to Oxford.

Mr. Nique's sister, Mrs. W. J. Ross, of Rochester returned home with them. She returned home Thursday.

Guy Granger and Lizzie Slack were quietly married at Sandusky a week last Wednesday.

Miss Mila Granger and Fred Slack attended them. The bride and groom left from there for a trip to Detroit.

They returned here Saturday. We wish them a long and happy married life.

Mrs. E. A. Keyworth and daughter, Marion, of Detroit are visiting here; also looking after their farm.

Frank McGregory is building a barn on his farm north of here.

WICKWARE.

Mrs. John McPhail is spending a few days with her parents at Kingstons.

Miss Daisy Bigelow is home from Detroit.

Mrs. George Brown and Mrs. Keyser were the guests of Mrs. Sterle Spencer one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Dodge were the guests of the latter's parents Sunday.

The elder Mr. Hartwick is still very low.

The contest, which was so long looked for, came on Sunday with a good crowd and success.

Miss Killgore of Deford was the lucky one to win the silver medal.

The W. C. T. U. met at Mrs. George Cridland's last Thursday and the last Thursday of October it will meet with Mrs. James D. Watson.

Mrs. Glen Moore and son, Margaret and Vina McPhail visited at their home at Wickware Sunday.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS?

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Cass City Citizen Gives a Valuable Hint.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself.

CANBORO.

A very pretty wedding occurred last Tuesday, Sept. 24, at high noon at the home of Mrs. Solomon Rolph when her only daughter, Myrtle, Idell, was united in marriage to Richard Jarvis. Rev. Hildebrand of Owendaie pronounced the words that made the happy young couple husband and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Lown and two children attended the Lown reunion at Fred Lown's in Detroit last week.

Miss Sadie Burleigh is home from her school for two weeks on account of potato vacation.

Mrs. Ed. Santhany will entertain the Ladies' Aid this week Thursday.

Rev. Hildebrand of Owendaie preached his first sermon here last Sunday. He will preach again next Sunday at 7:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jerome have moved back from New York state and will reside among us again.

A reception was given Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jarvis Monday night, on their return home from their wedding trip, at the groom's home where they will live.

Mrs. A. A. Freeman is again real poorly.

BEAULEY.

Four of our young men had a narrow escape from being hurt on Sunday evening. In passing a buggy in the road, the buggy and horse were thrown into the ditch because they turned out too much.

The church service next Sunday will be at two o'clock, the Sunday school preceding the preaching. The E. L. at 7:30 in the evening. C. E. Hartsell is leader and has complete charge of the program.

On Saturday afternoon the large barn owned by Duncan McAlpine was burned to the ground. He lost all the hay, straw and contents, save the grain which was saved. The loss is covered by insurance in the Huron Co. Mutual.

Thrashing and bean harvest are the rush here now.

ELMWOOD.

Mrs. Wm. Abar is visiting her daughter in Ohio.

Mrs. May Scarf of Detroit is calling on friends around here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Seekins entertained Mr. and Mrs. Smith Hutchinson of Cass City Sunday.

Ezra Hutchinson is erecting a new house on his farm.

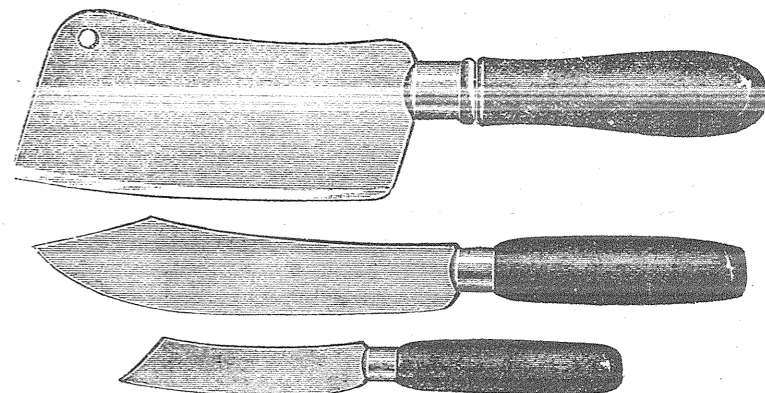

Mr. and Mrs. Rob't. Kelly of Coling called on the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kelly Sunday.

W. C. Morse and Miss Eliza Evans drove to Caro Monday. While there he swapped horses. Coming home the new horse became frightened at an auto and became unmanageable, running into a deep ditch.

There's often much truth in the saying "her face is her fortune," but it's never said when pimples, skin eruptions, blotches, or other blemishes disfigure it.

Expert Inspection of Studebaker Buggies

Every Studebaker buggy, surrey or driving wagon is set up and carefully inspected before leaving the factory.

In building, the greatest care is taken to guard against the use of defective material.

Then, to make assurance doubly sure, before any Studebaker spring vehicle is crated for shipping it is set up ready to run and (under a strong light) undergoes a final and rigid inspection by an expert.

Every Studebaker buggy we offer for sale has passed this rigid inspection.

You can depend upon any vehicle that has been O. K.'d by Studebaker.

DRESDEN IDEAS COME BACK

Revival is a Natural Result of the Fad That Calls for the Pannier Draperies.

With the revival of the pannier draperies comes back a decided emphasis on dresden silks, with all the exquisite colorings that we associate with the Dresden shepherdesses. Pinks and blue, yellows and pale green are the backgrounds on which are sprinkled fascinating bouquets, garlands and even baskets of flowers.

The dresden silks and satins are particularly adapted to suit the coatees that are incorporated on afternoon and evening frocks for summer. They are not so striking in contrast with a plain, thin fabric and there is great scope for color combinations and flower effects.

The rose season, so noticeable in fashions for the summer, is a timely one for flowered mulls, organdies, muslins, voiles and chiffons with which the dresden silks effectively combine.

Hats covered with dresden taffeta are decidedly chic. Bridesmaids now are favoring hats of this type to continue the idea of the dresden coatee thrown over simple and usable frocks of white or plain colors.

Little dresden silk slippers for the rest hour add a new touch to the negligee set, especially if bindings or trimmings of dresden silk be used on the gown.

Dresden sashes, with an extra line of the ribbon quilling trailing in and out among the bunches of flowers, are accepted by womankind as an idea that makes the assurance of beauty doubly sure.

It is undeniable that the dresden colorings in designs that are varied and inexpensive are a factor in the general beauty of summer styles. Are you using them?

Fascinating Lingerie.

For evening wear throughout the winter undershirts will remain as they are this summer, and some of the charming bargains so dear to the heart of womankind may be picked up at present, as, for instance, a petticoat of the finest satin messaline in the palest blue, with a knee-deep frill of kilted transparent lawn over a pleated frill of silk, slashed at intervals and held together by narrow bands of pale blue ribbon.

To Keep on Pumps.

When pumps slip at the heels and are too loose, paste a piece of velvet in the back, with the nap side out.

If the shoes still spread, take them to a shoemaker and have him put in a casing for a draw string, or a piece of elastic which is tightly fastened.

Overshoes that slip at the heel and are too big may be made more comfortable by gluing a thick piece of chamouis up the back of the heel. Use a glue that stands water.

Silk Apples on Hats.

The black hat is amazingly popular at the moment in London. White is the favorite trimming, but yellow makes a very close rival. A black hat that I admired immensely had the rather low crown completely covered with bunches of small silk apples in varying shades of yellow, brown and pale green. A few apple leaves, very yellow ones, were mixed in between, and both fruit and leaves were kept as flat as possible.

If you have young children you have perhaps noticed that disorders of the stomach are their most common ailment. To correct this you will find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets excellent. They are easy and pleasant to take, and mild and gentle in effect. For sale by all dealers.

An Old Time London Fog.
"There happen'd this week," says John Evelyn in an entry in his diary dated Nov. 25, 1699, "so thick a mist and fog that people lost their way in the streets, it being so intense that no light of candles or torches yielded any (or but very little) direction. I was in it and in danger. Robberies were committed between the very lights which were fixed between London and Kensington on both sides and while coaches and travelers were passing. It began about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and was quite gone by 8, without any wind to disperse it. At the Thames they beat drums to direct the watermen to make the shore."

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says, "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For cough there is nothing that exceeds it." For sale by all dealers.

Hard Luck.

"Does your wife play bridge as much as she used to?"

"No," replied Fleming. "Her interest in the game, however, is about all that we haven't managed to lose."—Exchange.

Saved by His Wife.

She's a wise woman who knows just what to do when her husband's life is in danger, but Mrs. R. J. Flint, Braintree, Vt., is of that kind. "She insisted on my using Dr. King's New Discovery," writes Mr. F. "for a dreadful cough, when I was so weak my friends all thought I had only a short time to live, and it completely cured me." A quick cure for coughs and colds, it's the most safe and reliable medicine for many throat and lung troubles—grip, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, tonsillitis, hemorrhages. A trial will convince you. 50 cts. and $1.00. Guaranteed by L. I. Wood & Co.

N. P. HULL.

Master of State Grange
Advocates Equal Suffrage.

N. P. HULL.

N. P. Hull was born on a farm near Dimondale, Nov. 7, 1867. His father died when he was four years old. At the age of fourteen he and his brother of twelve commenced operating the little farm left by the father. As the years have gone by they have added to and improved the farm until at the present their Silver Creek stock farm is one of the fine farms of central Michigan. For several years Mr. Hull has been a farmers' institute lecturer and an active grange worker. At present he is president of the American Dairy Farmers' association, master of the Michigan state grange and lecturer of the national grange.

Mr. Hull has long believed that women have as great an inherent right to have a voice in making the laws and establishing the policies under which they and their children must live as have men and that it is not only just and right that they be enfranchised, but that improved conditions will come from their entry into the field of governmental affairs.

When the equal suffrage amendment came up at the special session of the legislature last March the suffragists telephoned for Mr. Hull, who boarded the first car and stood by the suffrage workers until the vote was taken. How much the cause of suffrage in Michigan owes to the timely assistance of Mr. Hull at this juncture will never be fully appreciated except by those who were actively engaged in the legislative work at the special session. Mr. Hull paid his own expenses and left his own work to come to the assistance of voteless women, who could do nothing for him in return.

As the perfect family cannot be produced except by the equal co-operation of the father and mother, so no scheme of government will ever be just that does not build upon this principle.—Samuel M. Jones, Late "Golden Rule Mayor" of Toledo.

THEY ARE CITIZENS.

Reasons Why Michigan Men Should Give Ballot to Women.

Women are citizens of this country "whether officially recognized or not." Women should receive their right to vote for the same political reasons that men receive theirs and not because they ask.

What are the political reasons for giving the vote to women?

First.—Women are people. No one dare deny that. Abraham Lincoln defined an ideal republic as a "government of the people, by the people and for the people," but ours is a government of the people by half the people.

Second.—We cannot make this an ideal republic if we leave half the people irresponsible and unprotected.

Third.—The country needs the working power of all its citizens.

Fourth.—Men and women need the chance to make good together and on equal terms.

Who can give women their right to vote? Michigan men can give Michigan women the ballot at the next election.

They Argue For Woman's Suffrage.

None of the Michigan congressional delegation at Washington is opposed to votes for Wolverine women. A few are inclined to await the November referendum. But Senators Townsend and Smith and Congressmen Loud and Hamilton present potential arguments why the voters of this state should vote "Yes" on the woman's suffrage constitutional amendment at the November polls. The Herald prophesies success for the suffrage movement in this state—if right makes might.—Grand Rapids Herald.

The Free States.

The commonwealths that adopt woman suffrage are coming to be known as free states, while those that reject it or do not adopt it are classed as white slave states. It is sincerely hoped that both Ohio and Michigan, by the just action of their male voters, will be known after the elections as the first fully free states formed out of the territory northwest of the Ohio river, in which negro slavery was prohibited by the famous ordinance of 1787.—Jackson Patriot.

Give Them the Ballot.

The social and moral uplift that is so clearly apparent where women are permitted to vote ought to appeal to every man in Michigan and induce him to vote for equal suffrage next fall.—Adrian Daily Times.

Women vote in China. Why not in Michigan?

When Letters Went by Hand.
There was a time when fashionable folk held it discourteous to communicate with a friend through the post when it was possible to do so by messenger. In Miss Louisa Courtenay's "Notes of an Octogenarian," published some years ago, she remarks that "when the twopenny London post was established it was not etiquette to make use of it for private letters. I remember my father's annoyance when a stupid London footman had posted a letter to Sir Robert Peel instead of sending it by the groom. It seems so impertinent," he said, "to send a letter to a man like Sir Robert Peel by post! Invitations and their answers were always sent by hand."

Lobsters.

"Have you any lobsters today?" asked the young housekeeper.

"Yes, ma'am; here's a fresh lot."

"Oh, dear me! I don't want your green ones. Haven't you any that are ripe?"

Away He Went.

"Madam, I'm traveling around the world on a wager. I have to make good time or I lose my bet."

"Well, I don't mind letting my bulldog pace you a couple of miles. Here, Tige!"—Kansas City Journal.

SHE HAD PROOF

Katherine—You ought to have heard Mr. Squeezer's ringing speech last night.

Virginia—Why, I wasn't aware that he could make a speech.

Katherine—Well, he made one, just the same. I can't repeat the speech, but I can show you the ring.

When you have a cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers.

The Horse's Hoof.

In its present elaborate form the hoof of a horse is the most perfect instrument of support which has been devised in the animal kingdom to uphold a large and swiftly moving animal in its passage over the ground. The original toe nail and the neighboring soft parts connected with it have been modified into a structure which in an extraordinary manner combines solidity with elasticity, so that it may strike violent blows upon the hard surface of the earth without harm. The result is that the horse can carry a greater weight at a swifter speed than any other animal approaching it in size.—Exchange.

Saves Leg of Boy.

"It seemed that my 14-year old boy would have to lose his leg, on account of an ugly ulcer, caused by a bad bruise," wrote D. C. Howard, Aquone, N. C. "All remedies and doctors' treatment failed till we tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and cured his with one box. Cures burns, boils, skin eruptions, piles. 25c at L. I. Wood & Co."

Take One Pain Pill, then Take it Easy.

To Head-Off a Headache

Nothing is Better than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

They Give Relief Without Bad After-Effects.

"It gives me great pleasure to offer a word of recommendation for Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, as there are thousands suffering unnecessarily from headache. I was afflicted intermittently for years with headache and after other remedies failed, I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. For the past ten years I have carried them constantly with me, getting instant relief by using one or two on the approach of headache. They are also effective for neuralgia, giving immediate relief." HOW BLOOD IS MADE.

The liquids and the digested foods in the alimentary canal pass through the wall of the canal into the blood. This process is called absorption and takes place chiefly from the small intestine. After absorption the blood carries the food through the body, and each cell takes from the blood the food it needs. A pure glyceric extract made from bloodroot, mandrake, stone, queen's root and golden seal root, and sold by druggists for the past forty years under the name of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, gives uniformly excellent results as a tonic to help in the assimilation of the food and in the absorption by the blood of the food it requires. Bradicate the poisons from the blood with this alternative extract which does not shrink the white blood corpuscles, because containing no alcohol or other injurious ingredients. Thus the body can be built up—strong to resist disease. This is a tonic taken from Nature's garden that builds up those weakened by disease. Sold by druggists everywhere. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. CHAS. FAERBER, JR., 27 3/4 Woodlawn Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I was troubled with my stomach for almost three years. Tried several doctors and most everything anybody recommended to me, but kept getting worse and honestly did not care to live as I was never well even though, at times, I had no pain. My symptoms were as follows: Always tired, my whole body in a throbbing of pain, pain and soreness in the stomach, vomiting, constipation, could not tell what to eat or what would agree with me, and was melancholy. But after taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with the 'Pleasant Pellets' it has made me a well man which is something to live for."

A neighbor of Elijah Randall tells this story about him: A little over a week ago Lige was peacefully sleeping in his home, five miles south of Cass City, when he was suddenly awakened by a man passing his bedside. Lige was thunderstruck and unable to account for the stranger's presence as he had hooked the screen door and locked the house door before retiring. The house is a new one and still uncompleted, and watching the wanderer, the householder soon saw him walk up the ladder which led to the second story of the domicile. Awakening his better half, he procured the shot gun and then summoned his father who lived across the road. The older Randall lighted a lamp, and carrying it, he proceeded to the second story followed by Lige and the gun. When they were half way up the house breaker heard them and jumped from the window to the ground, a distance of 14 feet. Lige made a break for the door, but the fellow got away. He had ransacked one trunk and was beginning at a second one when frightened away. A new suit of underwear is the only property missed.

LUCKY'S WISHBONE

By Izola Forrester

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

The wind caught the restaurant door with a bang, and almost swept it out of the girl's grasp. Harvey sat at the nearest table, moody and tired in every nerve, but he sprang forward and helped her to close it. She laughed up at him, with a murmured word of thanks, and he returned to his lonesome dinner with a vivid impression of pink cheeks, gray eyes and brown hair that mingled with the brown fur of her cap.

Surely the plump German waitress was Cupid's side partner. Deftly she moved back a chair invitingly, and the girl sank into it, facing Harvey.

"Just bring me a real Thanksgiving dinner, please," said the newcomer, putting back her veil with a little gesture of relief, and scattering some snowflakes thereby. "Anything, as long as it's all Thanksgiving fixings. Oh, and please, I do want a wishbone."

Harvey was very good, considering. He hardly looked at her until the waitress came back and announced that it was very late, dinner was over, and the last wishbone had been given to the gentleman.

Guiltily Harvey glanced at his plate. There it was, undeniably—the wishbone! And she wanted it. He lifted the fork invitingly, as soon as the waitress had gone.

"Won't you let me give it to you?" She flushed and smiled.

"Oh, no, thanks. It was only a bit of foolishness on my part. It—it's my first Thanksgiving away from home, and I always have the wishbone there, and so I asked for it—habit, I guess."

"Mother always gives it to me when I'm home, too," said Harvey, brightening up. "Reward of merit, perhaps. Please take it. I tell you, you take it and nibble all the meat off, and polish it up and we'll break it and wish. That's fair; isn't it?"

"It really isn't, but if you insist, I will."

She accepted it doubtfully, and Harvey felt inordinately happy. He had been up all night working on a heavy assignment, then had put in the morning at scheduled routine work, and his head felt light. He longed for the breath of adventure, and lo, it had blown in on him in a gust.

Passed into the Snowstorm.

"I'll bet my share of the wishbone," he put in presently, "that you're not a New Yorker."

"The wishbone remains unbroken on that," she laughed back. "I'm from Tennessee."

"From Tennessee, and spending Thanksgiving all alone on Park place, New York. What's the answer?"

I was on my way to the elevated and couldn't resist the dinner call. Holidays make no difference with my work. I am a private secretary, and had to clear up the day's correspondence, turkey or no turkey."

"My name's Wilfred Harvey. I'm over on the Daily Grind as special galley slave. That isn't a joke. I'm so tired I can hardly talk straight. Do you mind? You'll vanish in a few minutes, anyway. I may as well talk while I can."

She looked down at her plate. "Indeed, I do not mind. We have the place here all to ourselves. Think how lonely it would have been if I had been the only one here."

"Don't you like to tell your name?"

Swiftly the lashes raised, and she laughed at him. He was more boyish then she had thought, assuredly just a boy from out of town, with a fresh, clean-cut face.

"Why, of course, if you want to know—Nan Farnslee."

"Fine!" he said. "If I had two wishbones, I'd trade you another just for the chance to call you Nan for fifteen minutes, to make believe you were my fourth cousin, don't you know? A fellow always takes in his pretty fourth cousin to dinner on Thanksgiving if he gets the chance."

"Don't you love to tell where you're from?" she asked, half shyly.

"Oh, by Jove, you had me, didn't you? I'm from New Hampshire. Here, I'll put the salt cellar on the Mason and Dixon line. But look out! I'm going to march over it."

She laughed at the absurdity of a move, and then sighed.

"How queer it is to eat Thanksgiving dinner this way, when I never saw you in my life before."

"I protest. I'm not 'queer' at all. I carry credentials of all kinds. Want to see them? I'm twenty-two, been in New York four months, and am so doggone homesick that I can feel chilblains on my heartstrings. Maybe before we get through dinner, we'll find out that we know all sorts of people together."

"If we did, they'd all be veterans. I'm from the old southern stock."

"So? It's taken a sudden rise, hasn't it? Oh, I don't mean anything by that, only you seemed so up to date and alive. Say, isn't this the most lonesome town you ever found when you really are from home folks, and hit the place by yourself? I've been throwing coins to ragamuffins all day, and feeling like a real one myself."

"Why didn't you run up home for today?"

"Couldn't. Sent a money order instead. They needed it more than me."

She laughed again, softly, with that sudden uplift of long lashes.

"So did I."

"Did you? Then you understand, don't you? That's why we're here, we youngsters, to make good and send home steady money orders. The governor's been dead up home for five years, and I've got a kid brother in college."

"I've got two at home, little tads, besides mother."

The waitress came with two checks.

"Make it one," said Harvey, but the girl protested and took her own. Before she put on her gloves he lifted the wishbone.

"Ready?" There was a challenge in his eyes as they met his.

"Ready," she echoed, and they pulled.

It snapped, leaving two short parts of equal length in their hands.

"I think we both get our wishes," said Nan seriously. "Tell yours, and then it's good-by."

He leaned toward her.

"I wished that I might never lose track of you, Nan."

"I—I am going uptown on the elevated."

"What did you wish?" he persisted.

"You have to tell; on the level, you do; when you agreed."

"I wished that—that you were going uptown on the same elevated."

Harvey bent down and carefully collected the fragments of the wishbone, and slipped them in his vest pocket.

"That is a magic wishbone," he said. "I am not superstitious, Nan Farnslee, from Tennessee, but I think luck is perching on my left shoulder blade at this minute, and I carry his wishbone here. He has properly introduced us, and I defy you to get rid of me. Ready, fair lady?"

Out they passed into the swirling snowstorm, Thanksgiving waifs. But all the glamour of young love was in his eyes as he looked down at her, and Nan was happy.

WITH A HOPE FOR THE BEST

Elevator Man Willing to Concede That Republicans Might Be Saved.

As the elevator ascended in response to Mr. Topfloor's ring on the morning of election day he heard the elevator "boy" humming cheerfully under his breath.

"That's a fine song you are singing, Algernon," he remarked. "It is a hymn?"

"Yessah, dat am a hymn. It 'bout de mos' beautifules' in de hymn book, I tink. 'Wot de wotds?' Dese is de wotds," and with appropriate gestures he repeated them.

"What were those lines about death, Algernon?" asked Mr. Topfloor. "Say them over." And Algernon, with arms extended and eyes rolled up, recited dramatically: "Oh, L'd, I stretch mah hands to thee. Save me f'om English death."

"English death! What's that?" demanded Mr. Topfloor.

"I never could fin' out jet' w'ot dat was, Md. Topfloor, but it means some'tin' raight bad, I reckon. Mebbe it mean de oberlistin' f'ees."

"Maybe it does," agreed Mr. Topfloor, and to change the subject he inquired if Algernon had voted yet.

"Yessah, I voted befo' I come to wuk dis mornin'." Dis on'y de secon' time in mah life I's voted. De fus' time was las' 'lection day. I made up mah min' den dat it was mah dooty to vote. I owes it to mah wife an' family. Eve'y one dat knows any'tin' ought to vote, an' ef yo' has any business or wu'ke at somet'in', de way I does at dis elevator, votin' de bes' way to make you'self known to de public. WITH THE PARISIAN SANCTION

Postilion Hat Is Sure to Be Copied Though No Longer in the Greatest Vogue.

The fancy for the postilion hat has been short-lived so far as Paris is concerned, and London never greatly cares for millinery which the Parisienne accepts as bien amusante. More or less curly of brim, and with tall stiff crown, these hats trimmed with a feather en fantasia or a floral aigrette had a brief furore, and certainly when new they were most appealing. They could not, however, bear repetition, and since people have taken to wearing them they have lost their attraction. For once the Frenchwoman seems to have forgotten that the fact of a hat being chic when worn by a woman of one type may make it impossible for those who belong to another.

This style of hat is, however, being made for autumn, and milliners are looking favorably upon its possibilities in beaver felt and plush.

Lace and Pearls.

An original headdress is a simple mob cap of lace, encircled with a string of priceless pearls, and with one of the new straight feather aigrettes standing erect in the front. For the girl whose hat is not one of her best points these caps are a godsend; but it always seems to me a pity to cover up so completely a really pretty head of hair.

Table Decoration.

An inexpensive table decoration noted by Harpers Bazar is as follows: A crepe paper rose is hung from the chandelier, ribbons coming to each plate. The centerpiece is a large vase of roses with roses around the base. The bonbon dishes are tall glasses, and the favors are roses painted on cardboard. Baskets of roses are on either side of the table.

Henry VIII's Way.
King Henry VIII. had a good notion of passing bills promptly. Your head or my bill was his short way with dallying ministers. On one occasion he sought the dissolution of various monasteries and fumed at delay. He sent for the influential Edward Montague. "Ho, man, will they not suffer my bill to pass?" he stormed. Montague bowed. "Get my bill passed by to-morrow," he continued, "or else to-morrow this head of yours will be off." And the commons hesitated no longer.

Dr. Bathurst's Lady.
Writing in the last half of the seventeenth century, Anthony A. Wood, an old bachelor who knew his own mind, thus commiserates his friend and confere, Dr. Bathurst: "Dr. Bathurst took his place of vice chancellor, a man of good parts and able to do good things, but he has a wife that scorns that he should be in print; a scornful woman, scorns that he was dean of Wells; no need of marrying such a woman, who is so conceited that she thinks herself fit to govern a college or university."

Keeps Your Stove "Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used.

Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish one-fourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use on your parlor stove, kitchen stove or gas stove. Get a can from your hardware or stove dealer. If you do not find it better than any other stove polish you have ever used before, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. But we feel sure you will agree with the thousands of other up-to-date women who are now using Black Silk Stove Polish and who say it is the "best stove polish ever made."

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

LIQUID OR PASTE ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black Silk Stove Polish costs you no more than the ordinary kind. Keep your grates, registers, fenders and stove pipes bright and free from rusting by using BLACK SILK AIR-DRYING ENAMEL. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK METAL POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

MARIE'S UNDERSTUDY

By Susanne Glenn

"What a pity," the villagers were wont to say, "that Vera Hielder has to have an older sister like Marie!"

For Marie was as charming as perfect health and vivacity could make her, in contrast with which Vera's pale prettiness and quiet manner faded to insignificance.

"It will not hurt Vera to stand back a little," Mrs. Hinckley answered. "She is young. She can have her chance after Marie is safely settled."

For truth to tell, the mother was extremely gratified at her elder daughter's popularity, and the number of her suitors.

"It seems to me, Marie," observed Mrs. Hinckley one morning, "it seems to me that Loren Dawson is coming here pretty often of late. I trust you treat him with proper respect and attention."

"But why, mamma—especially?" asked Marie, with a teasing smile.

"My dear, is it possible you fail to realize his availability?"

"But, mamma, he is only a rather quiet and extremely awkward young man, not nearly so attractive as Freddy Haines, or dozens of others."

"My dear child, Loren Dawson's wife will never need to lift her finger unless she wishes! Freddy Haines is a very interesting young person, but he is a mere clerk with no prospects before him. It is time you began thinking seriously of these things, my child."

"Dear old mater," said the girl to her younger sister, when the mother had left the room. "She still looks upon me as a mere child. I am not nearly so innocent as I appear. Don't I see Loren Dawson's fine old house and gardens and antiquated turnouts every time I look at Loren himself? Well, I reckon!"

"But you use him so—so indifferently," expostulated Vera gently.

"Loren is not the sort to induce me to sit in corners alone with him!" answered Marie serenely.

"I thought you meant you intended to marry him sometime," said Vera, perplexed.

"My darling child, that is just exactly what I do mean. I shall make that old stone house a perfect bower of beauty. And I shall have a car and a darling garage where the ugly old barn stands. I shall have stunning gowns, and—"

"And Loren?" finished Vera dryly.

"Yes, and Loren!" said Marie with a sigh. "That is the worst of it. Still, he will be a quiet, easily-managed husband, that is one comfort."

"Are you sure of Loren?" asked Vera smiling a little, for she truly loved her exacting sister.

"That is just the point, Vera dear. He must really want me or he would never have come here. Loren never does things lightly. And he has never before been known to make love to a girl. So I seem reasonably sure of him. But Vera, I feel as if I must have a little time before I settle down. I cannot tie myself to him just yet, still, I must keep him coming! I want you to help entertain him. Make him feel comfortable and contented, then he will not realize that I am not showering all my attentions upon him."

Vera sighed. She had been accustomed all her life to doing Marie's unpleasant duties. She had endeavored to see the world from Marie's viewpoint. But she liked this task the least of any ever assigned her.

Loren Dawson, coming into the lighted parlors that evening, hesitated in his customary diffident way upon the threshold.

Marie paused in the song she was singing, to smile sweetly at him. Freddy Haines, leaning over the piano, scowled covertly.

With a hasty word to Mrs. Hinckley, Loren walked over to the little sofa in the corner where Vera sat reading.

"I'll sit here with you, Miss Vera, because I know you will not ask me to do anything. Please go on with your reading!"

Vera smiled as she resumed her story. But she was acutely conscious that Loren's eyes were fastened upon her sister's sparkling face as she turned the music with the displeased Freddy.

"What does Dawson mean by coming here every night," demanded that young man irritably, drumming lightly upon the keys to cover his words.

"Does he come every evening?" asked Marie, innocently.

"He does!"

"How can you be so sure, Freddy?"

"Do I not see him?" sternly.

"What do you mean by coming every evening?"

"Marie, you know very well what I mean! Do you really wish me to tell you again?—"

"No, no!" interrupted Marie hastily, "how can you be so absurd?"

To Haines, the color in the girl's cheeks was maddening.

"Come into the garden," he pleaded.

"I cannot—there is Loren!"

"Staring at you like a blinking owl. Put your picture on the piano while you are gone and he will never miss you! Come out with me, dear, just this once!"

"Don't, Freddy," murmured the girl, "don't make me want to go!"

"Marie!" he cried, crushing her hand under the music sheets.

"Just this once, then," she said, glancing hurriedly toward her mother.

"Bring Miss Vera, Dawson, and come out into the garden," called Haines lightly, as he drew a scarf about the girl's shoulders.

When Loren looked at her questioningly, Vera rose quickly.

"What a shame for Marie to leave him like this," she thought.

"It is a charming evening for a stroll," she said aloud, noting how his fingers bungled as he spread the soft pink folds of her shawl about her.

Dawson walked stiffly down the path.

"Your sister seems very fond of Haines, and he of her," he observed, brushing off a garden seat for her.

"Do you think there is an understanding?"

"Oh, no," cried Vera, much distressed. "Marie means nothing. It is just her way to seem so happy and bright."

"If she really means nothing, I fear there will be a very disappointed young man," he answered indifferently, sitting down beside her.

"But he has no right to feel that she cares about him," declared Vera.

"I did not suppose you could be so unkind, Miss Vera," he answered in surprise. "How can a man help hoping that a girl will return his affection, even if she does give him no encouragement? I very much fear you do not know what love is like!"

"Oh!" said Vera, with a sob in her voice.

The young man sat in uncomfortable silence.

"I used to think love was a beautiful thing, but now I think it is cruel," said the girl at last a little wearily.

"There seems to be so much trouble. Every one seems to love the wrong person, and no one is to blame. Every one loves Marie, yet she cannot love them all in return, and some one is hurt."

Unconsciously she placed her hand protectively upon his sleeve.

"And you are sorry, Vera?"

"Yes," she breathed.

"You are sorry for me?" he asked, covering her hand with his own.

"Oh, I do not need to be sorry for you," she cried in distress. "Believe me, Marie is not so indifferent to you as she may seem! Only have a little patience with her, Loren."

"But it is not Marie that I love, child. What made you think I loved her?"

"You came to—see her!"

"Because it was the only way I could see you, dear little girl. Do you suppose they would have let me in if I had come openly to call on you. Vera, can you care for such an awkward, silent fellow as I?"

"You are not awkward," objected the girl, then stopped in confusion.

"I am awkward and silent," he repeated, "and I have outdone myself in your presence, because I am so conscious of my own unworthiness. But dear, I want you—I never wanted anyone else for my wife and I never shall. I have waited months for a chance to get near you, but I wanted in vain until I thought of paying court to Marie. Then when I saw to what disadvantage I showed among the other fellows I lost courage to ask you!"

"Oh, Loren," said the girl with a happy laugh.

Marie coming silently and miserably along the path, paused in astonishment at sight of her gentle little sister in Loren Dawson's arms.

"Freddy," she cried, turning to the silent young man beside her with sudden joyous gladness, "I'll take back everything I said! Come, let us all face the maternal displeasure together!"

The Prince's Majority.

The famous "mad" King of Bavaria, Louis II., and Prince Otto, his brother, were brought up with great strictness and simplicity.

Their father, Maximilian II., an excellent constitutional king, but in private life not particularly genial, allowed them no pocket-money but what they earned by good marks at their lessons on the modest scale of one penny per mark; and he would fine them a thaler without compunction if they were reported idle.

Their table was more frugal than that of the sons of most country gentlemen. When Louis attained his majority at eighteen, he was provided with an establishment of his own, and sat down on the first day of his emancipation to his usual dinner—one dish of meat and some cheese.

"Am I now my own master?" he asked with a smile of his servants.

"Yes, sir," was the answer.

"Then," said the prince, gleefully, "you may bring me some chicken and a mehlspelsen (pudding)."—Youth's Companion.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

WHOSE FAULT IS IT?

Whenever we see the "Sheriff's Sale" sign go up and a man and his family turned out of their home, we always wonder, "whose fault is it?" In nine cases out of ten you'll find it due to the man's carelessness. You'll find expensive machinery that is, probably, not all paid for, standing out in the field; his stock poorly housed and everything about the place indicating slipshod methods.

If YOU need a new building, for goodness sake don't put it off. It's a lot cheaper to go ahead and get things in shape right now. Let us quote you on the material.

"DIVIDING UP."

How often do we hear that Socialism means "dividing up." This antiquated, moss-covered scarecrow is still doing duty where one could expect more enlightenment.

Socialism is going to put a stop to dividing up.

Granulated sugar can be produced for less than two cents per pound, so when we buy sugar, we divide up with the sugar trust. Coffee can be produced and delivered to U. S. for less than five cents per pound, so when we buy coffee, we divide up with the coffee trust; tea, with the tea trust; steel or iron, with the steel trust; lumber, with the lumber trust; binders, with the International Harvester trust, etc., etc.

This must be plain to everyone that we are dividing up.

Socialism means the public ownership of all natural monopolies and the means of production, and that everyone should receive the full social value of the product of his toil; so those who will not do useful labor in the production and distribution of wealth, either physical or mental, shall get what they produce.

There could be no millionaires, because no man could become a millionaire by his own labor.

Just imagine what a millionaire would be worth if he had to produce what he used.

Socialism will put a stop to dividing up by destroying the means of exploitation, so every one will get what rightfully belongs to him.

J. A. Wayland (in Appeal to Reason) expresses in a few words how socialists feel when they are accused of wanting to divide up other people's property, "Go and soak your head in a treatise on socialism for an hour or two and let in some sunlight."

Next week, "Capital and Labor."

This adv. is paid by Solomon Striffler, F. Lenzner and several others who believe every effect has a cause.

THUMB NOTES.

About the only people in Kinde who haven't asked us to roast the mail order people are the dentists, but we have none here now. Not many people are getting their teeth filled by mail, although a farmer admitted a few days ago that he had his eye teeth cut once by a mail order house.—Kinde Farmer.

In less than a week the Pere Marquette has had two accidents of a derelict nature on the Bad Axe division of their road. Both accidents were caused by spreading rails. This is nothing to be wondered at, the only wonder being that more accidents and more serious ones, have not happened. If one cares to take the time to take a tramp along the Pere Marquette tracks for only a short distance, he may disclose to himself some startling conditions. Many ties are so rotten that spikes might be pulled out with an ordinary claw hammer. They have been in so long that they, in places, have long since ceased to be of any use holding the track rigid. Some of the ties are so decayed that the rails have sunk into them nearly an inch. Be on hand some day when one of the big mogul engines comes in and note how the track sinks as the heavy machine runs over it and you will not wonder why the Pere Marquette has had so many wrecks the past summer directly due to track conditions and poor equipment. It is positively dangerous to travel over such a road, and the company takes the lives of its passengers and employees in its hands every time a train is run over it. It is time the patrons of the road began protecting against such conditions. They have as much right to ask the company to protect them against accident as the company has in taking their money for transporting them from place to place.—Sebewaing Blade.
