OPPORTUNITY FOR LOCAL CAPITAL

TO INVEST IN WATER WORKS BONDS.

Special Election Monday Resulted in Vote of 167 to 54 Favoring Bonding Proposition.

At the second special election held Monday, July 21, 221 voters participated, 32 of whom were women electors. One hundred sixty-seven voted "Yes" favoring the proposition of bonding the village for the amount of $11,000 for the improvement of the municipal electric light and water works plant and 54 voted "no." This exceeded the necessary two-third majority by approximately 19 votes.

The length of time for which the bonds are to run and the rate of interest are to be determined by the village council.

Before the first special election, Village President Hays reported that he had applications for bonds from local parties to the amount of $2,500. As the bonds are non-taxable, it is probable that applications for a greater amount, possibly for the entire amount to be floated, will be made by local capital soon.

The act relating to municipal bonds is No. 88 of the Public Acts of 1909 and reads as follows:

"Section 1—All bonds hereafter issued by any county, township, city, village or school district within the State of Michigan pursuant to statute are hereby exempted from all taxation."

"Section 2 repeats all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith."

At the time of floating the bonds issued for the installation of the municipal plant, the first payment on the principal was deferred 10 years and during that period $720 was paid each year in interest. This brought a total payment of $7,200 in interest before any of the principal was reduced. In the opinion of many citizens, this action should not be repeated, but the new bonds made payable at an earlier date, making the first payments in two or three years.

GOOD MUSIC FOR FAIR

Famous Lexington Band Has Been Engaged for Aug. 19-22.

Officials of the Cass City fair have made a contract with the Lexington band to furnish band music during the fair August 19, 20, 21 and 22. This organization is above the average country town band as they are practicing and playing practically all the time and are strong competitors with the best city bands.

Six young ladies are members of the organization and they together with the men musicians will present a pleasing addition to the gaiety of the fair grounds. They play not only high grade band music, but make pleasing variations in the musical program with vocal and instrumental solos accompanied by the band.

Officials of the Driving Park Assn. have caused many improvements and repairs to be made to the buildings at the fair grounds and several have been re-painted. New fences have been erected and the grounds are taking on a spick and span appearance in readiness for the big fair Aug. 19-22.

MID-SUMMER REDUCTIONS

Crosby & Son Make Price Concessions in Today's Announcement.

"A Real Mid-Summer Sale" is the heading of an interesting half-page announcement of J. D. Crosby & Son in the Chronicle today. Price concessions on all their standard lines of goods and still greater reductions on special lots of shoes and clothing make particularly "live" reading matter.

These are some hope-making facts for those who think the cost of living should grow less.

SCIENCE TEACHER ENGAGED

Gifford Edgerton, Former Cass City Boy, Accepts Position.

At a meeting of the board of education Tuesday evening, Clifford Edgerton was engaged as science teacher at the Cass City High School for the next school year. Mr. Edgerton graduated from Alma College this spring and is a former student of the local schools. In high school and college, he was intimately connected with athletics and figured prominently in foot ball and basket ball. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Edgerton of this city.

The board of education awarded the contract of painting the woodwork and decorating the walls of the main building to A. J. Spittler. The woodwork will receive one coat and the walls two coats.

THE FAIR'S REAL FRIENDS

Are Those Who Make Exhibits in Various Departments.

The real friends of the Cass City Fair are those who realize the great good that is being derived from these yearly exhibitions; the ones who realize that the fair is held for the sole purpose of advancing the community and live stock of this and surrounding counties; the ones who bring their stock here and enter them in the rings, not for the premiums that are offered, but to show their appreciation of the time, labor and money that is yearly expended for the purpose of holding these fairs, realizing that the fair is not held with any financial gain in view for anyone; therefore the premiums must be necessarily small in order to cover every class of stock that is to be exhibited.

The week of Aug. 19-22 will determine the number of real friends the Cass City Fair has by the number of entries in each class of live stock shown, the number of entries in the floral hall, the number of entries in the poultry department and the number of entries in every department of the fair. Let's have it said that the Cass City fair had a large number of real friends in every department. What difference does it make with you if your horse or your fowls do not take the premiums? Are you not a friend of the fair? Don't you want to see it prosper and probably grow into a larger organization? If you are you will take a little time to prepare a pen of chickens, a bushel of wheat, a gallon of tomatoes or a piece of fancy work and bring them here the first day and enter them in competition with your neighbor—not for the premium—but just to be a real friend of the fair.

The Chronicle hopes that every farmer within a radius of 15 miles of Cass City will be a real friend of the fair and show their friendship by bringing something for exhibition on Aug. 19-22.

MRS. CHAS. M. SMITH

Funeral Held at F. M. Church Near Laing Saturday.

The funeral services of Mrs. Charles M. Smith were held at the F. M. church, south of Laing, Saturday afternoon at 3:00 p. m. and interment was made in Argyle cemetery.

Ermina Bradley was born in August, 1888, and is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bradley of Crosswell, formerly of Cass City and Hay Creek. In May, 1910, she was married to Charles M. Smith and they made their home on a farm 1/4 mile east of Laing. Mrs. Smith's health has been poor for some time and has been confined to her bed for the past six weeks, but was relieved from her suffering Thursday evening when death called her. Besides her husband and parents, the deceased leaves to mourn her loss four brothers and five sisters: Gould Bradley of Hayre, Montana, Mrs. W. A. Wellemeyer of Vassar, Simeon Bradley of Birmingham and Charles, Florence, Iris, Ruth, Mildred and Lester of Crosswell. All attended the services except Gould Bradley.

Mrs. E. J. Usher and Mrs. Andrew Schmidt and daughter, Evelyn, of this place attended the funeral services.

READJUSTMENT OF SECONDARY SCHOOLS

COURSE OF STUDY SHOULD BE BROADENED.

Plan Presented to Change High Schools to Fit Present Needs.

After a study of the present day high school, Superintendent of Public Instruction Luther L. Wright has devised the following code of fourteen articles for the readjustment of secondary schools:

First. Course of study should be broadened, one route to point towards the university for the few and another towards industrial for the many. In the college preparatory courses, most of the work now offered beyond the fifteen units should be eliminated; foreign language offered only for those preparing for college, and that simply because the college requires it. It ought to be possible in Michigan to get an education in the English language.

Second. Have fewer academic subjects, fewer sciences, but take these for a longer time.

Third. Do away with the idea, that a student, especially a girl, must take subjects for which the student has no aptitude.

Fourth. Provide industrial training for everybody, every day, every boy in the shop and every girl in the kitchen; at least until a pupil is certain that he is to follow the route toward the college, this training to head straight toward a life work.

Fifth. Special trade or continuation schools for those who want a trade, the trades to be taught by a master workman and not by a school teacher.

Sixth. Break the lock-step for graduation. The high school is run on the plan that everybody may or will graduate. For the student who can remain only a year or so the present high school has little to offer. Give any one who is willing to work an opportunity to fit himself for a livelihood in the shortest time possible. This means special classes, graduation in less than four years. It means perhaps, classes started at irregular times. It means teachers who appreciate the situation.

Seventh. Lengthen school day and week and year. High school students are capable of much work. The long vacation and the short school day tend to create a habit of laziness. The great asset that a young man may bring to his life job is the habit of work. The Russell Sage Foundation has recently published a Comparative Study of Public School Systems in the Forty-eight States. On page 11 you will find this sentence, "As a nation the United States has a shorter school day, a shorter school week, and a shorter school year than any other highly civilized country in the world." But there must be a diversity of work, work for the hand and the mind, so that work will be less like drudgery than now. We must hustle more and hurry less.

Eighth. Fewer books, more laboratories, shops and study of things, and greater emphasis on the constructive side.

Ninth. Less written work, more oral, more public speaking; much less of written work intended for the waste basket.

Tenth. Study of modern English classics instead of ancient English classics.

Eleventh. Run the school primarily for the great majority who can never go to college. Give the others their fair share of attention, but do not, as now, let their interest dominate the school.

Twelfth. Bear in mind that different types of education are required for boys and for girls.

Thirteenth. Make the school to fit the community and the course of study to fit the pupil.

Fourteenth. Emphasize the idea that the school is a work shop and that there is no substitute for work.

Farmers' and Lenox Real Estate Exchange, J. B. Ramsey, General Manager, having opened an office over Pinney's Bank, Cass City, any one wishing to sell or purchase property would do well to call on them. 7-25-2p.

HOME TALENT PLAYS

Hub Dramatic Co. Will Appear During Fair Week.

A number of Cass City's brilliant young people have organized a theatrical club and have taken the name, Hub Dramatic Company. At present the company consists of Leo Tyo, president; Clare Spurgeon, vice president; Cora Schwaderer, secretary-treasurer, Gladys Parker, Frances McGillvray, Leone Kile, Clifton Champion, Hersey Young, Hugh Gardner and William Deming. Mrs. Andrew Schmidt is trainer and manager of the troupe. Several home talent plays have been given in Cass City lately and the young people of this company have participated in nearly all of them with great success.

The first productions of the company will be given during the Cass City Fair, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings and rehearsals are now the order of the day.

SMALL TAX FOR ROAD

First Mile of State Road Cost $135 in Township Taxes.

The first state reward road in Michigan, built in Elkland, cost the citizens of that township just $135 in township taxes. P. A. Koepfgen informed the Chronicle Saturday. Mr. Koepfgen was highway commissioner when the road was built in 1905.

"State reward roads were a new thing in those days and we were rather reluctant in taking hold of the project," said Mr. Koepfgen. "I. B. Auten told me that he would guarantee $300 in subscriptions if we would go ahead with the proposition and business men and citizens were prompt in raising the amount. Three hundred in donations, $500 from the state and $135 raised by taxes totalled $935, the amount paid the contractor for the job."

In mentioning the justices on the township board at the time of building the first mile of state reward road, the name of A. D. Gillies was omitted in last week's article. Mr. Gillies, when the state road was being discussed before the board, made the first motion to bring the good roads and the accompanying state rewards to Elkland. At that time and since he has been a strong advocate of the good roads movement. Mr. Gillies' term as justice and a member of the town board expired on July 4, 1905, and he was succeeded by James Brocker, who was a member of the board, at the time the road job was let and later approved by the state highway commissioner.

MILLINGTON—Mrs. Chas. Wright has some young pullets that are rather classy. One of them, which has only attained the age of four months, laid an egg the other day. The pullet is white leghorn.

LEXINGTON—Fred Stevenson harvested one and one-half acres of peas last Saturday which netted him $110.25, and they were not the best part of his crop at that. He had eight acres of peas this year and is ready to contract for twenty-five acres next season.

MINDEN CITY—Deputy State Oil Inspector H. T. Trumble went to Minden City Monday and secured evidence of a violation of the State law oils. It is case where an agent for the Columbus Oil Co., Columbus, Ohio, filled a gasoline barrel for a farmer near Minden City with kerosene. A complaint was sworn out and the matter placed in the hands of prosecuting attorney Babcock of Sandusky.

SEBEWAING—The village council decided to raise the price of electric current to a flat eight-cent rate per kilowatt. This is to succeed the rate made some months ago whereby the users paid eight cents per kilowatt for the first 25 kilowatts and six cents per kilowatt for all current consumed in excess of 25 kilowatts. The new rate is to take effect the first of August, and will then be the same as the rate made when the municipal plant was first started.

REESE—Last Thursday night after Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sny had retired their attention was attracted by a rig being driven past their house two or three times and then stopping. On getting up to investigate they found a healthy female infant on the front steps and the rig gone. A note was left saying that the little one was from good parents, had been christened and that she be taken care of. Mr. and Mrs. Sny took her in and have decided to adopt her. So far as can be learned the identity of the parents is not known.—Review.

BROWN CITY—Alger, 9-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jarrett, of Mooretown, has been suffering for some time with what was supposed to be an abscess on his left lung. The attending physician not satisfied that the treatment he was giving the child was producing much relief, advised the parents that they take him to Port Huron and have an x-ray examination made. Monday he was taken to the city and the examination made, which disclosed a small stove bolt lodged in his left lung. Upon being questioned by his parents, he stated that about two years ago he was lying out under a tree playing with some children and had a stove bolt in his mouth, and which slipped down his throat.

NEW CITY MAP

Two Medice Public Map of University Town.

James R. Hurley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hurley of Cass City, and John P. Parsons, a fellow medical student of the U. of M., have almost completed the blue print of a new city map of Ann Arbor, which those who have seen it, including the city engineer, say will be one of the most complete city maps yet published.

"Every little detail," says the Ann Arbor Daily Times, "has been brought out with distinct clearness, and the print extends some distance beyond the city limits, giving the location of some larger tracts of land, and the names of the owners thereof. Other properties within the incorporation are located with the names of the owners."

NEW R. R. 18.52 MILES

O. & N. tracks to the Bad Axe station is 18.52 miles and from the Seeger St. yard at Cass City to the northern terminus of the main line 17.89 miles. The Seeger St. yard has 3,000 feet of passing track and 2,800 feet of storage track.

From Cass City to Palmateer's siding is 4.77 miles and the stub siding at the latter place is 400 feet.

From Cass City to Greenleaf is 7.49 miles and the passing track at Greenleaf is 2,400 feet long and the team track 1,000 feet.

From Cass City to Atwater is 11 miles and there the passing track is 2,400 feet and the industry track 1100 feet.

BRYAN FAVORS NEW TREATY

Would Establish An American Protectorate Over Nicaragua Similar to That Over Cuba.

Secretary of State Bryan laid before the senate committee on foreign relations a proposal to establish by treaty what amounts to an American protectorate over the republic of Nicaragua.

Secretary Bryan proposes to incorporate in the pending treaty with Nicaragua three clauses of the so-called "Platt amendment," which constitute the effective control that the United States now exercises over Cuba.

The treaty with Nicaragua, to which the vital clauses of the Platt amendment would be added, was negotiated in the closing days of the Taft administration and provides for the payment by the United States of $3,000,000 to Nicaragua. In return Nicaragua accedes to the United States the exclusive right to construct an inter-oceanic canal across that country, thus foreclosing this route to any European power, and in addition gives the United States a naval base in the Gulf of Fonseca, and several unimportant islands on the Atlantic coast of Nicaragua.

The FAMOUS LEXINGTON BAND AT THE CASS CITY FAIR AUG. 19--22 Strongly Endorsed by the Press

Inadvertently we neglected to mention last week the appreciation that the citizens felt for the services of the Lexington Band at the two days' race meeting the week before. The band is a fine one and there is no doubt but what each member deserved all the congratulations that were willingly showered upon them. Another nice thing about it was that they were not a bit stingy with their music but gave us lots of it. Mayor Stevens publicly expressed the appreciation of our citizens in a few well chosen words from the grandstand.—Yale Expositor.

Praises for the Lexington Band are heard on every side. It is undoubtedly the finest musical organization between Detroit and Saginaw. It is a good advertisement for Lexington.—Bad Axe Tribune.

Lexington can boast of many things which inland towns can never have, and they also possess a band that other towns could have but don't. Our citizens were treated to some of the best band music during the race days that was ever heard in our city, and the boys and girls from the resort town were not stingy with it either.—Yale Record.

One of the most generally appreciated and altogether praiseworthy features of the Fair was the band which came up from Lexington to play popular and up-to-date music and add a more festive note to the occasion by their semi-military appearance and bearing. The Recorder feels that nothing short of the highest praise is due the Lexington bandmen, individually and collectively, both for their work in filling their engagement at the Deckerville Fair and for their proven qualities as a musical organization. Lexington has reason to feel proud of its citizen bandmen and has every reason also to lend them a generous support.—Deckerville Recorder.

CHAPTER XI.

The Counterfeiter's Den.

THE neighborhood of Washington square, like one or two other older sections of New York, is essentially mediaeval. Individualism is its most salient characteristic. Even the many who live there to think thoughts of social brotherhood insist on adhering to their own particular thoughts, and thus, as in the middle ages, when a man enters his dwelling and bars the door he is free of all danger that his neighbors may intrude on his privacy.

Mrs. Martin recognized that this community was the ideal one for her "rooming house." No one would or could inquire as to the character or occupations of her roomers. No one cared. Beyond a little printed sign above the bell pull that protruded from the dingy brick wall by the door she made no effort to secure lodgers. The few who came were told that the house was full. She had three lodgers—all men. These three came when she took the house and remained always. No new lodgers were added to their number and these never left her house.

They occupied rooms on the second floor. It was a two story and attic house, with a dining room and kitchen in the basement. They were not often in each other's rooms, but they met frequently in the garret, which was scantily but innocently furnished. But by the manipulation of certain boards in the floor and sliding panels at the backs of closets and cupboards these men could instantly avail themselves of the tools for a printing trade industry that is most severely frowned upon by the treasurer of the United States.

But that there was no possible occasion for her to appear in the upper rooms of the house, Mrs. Martin would never have consented that Miss Mazuret should become a lodger. She had a back parlor bedroom on the first floor in which she lodged the girl and felt that she was as much out of the way as if she had been in a Broadway hotel.

Immediately thereafter events moved with great swiftness. An organ grinder began haunting the block at all hours of the day and night. There was a new man at the newsstand on the corner across the street. The saloons at either end of the block began to do a surprisingly good business and the attic of the house next door to Mrs. Martin's was rented by a couple of inventors who wanted to work secretly on a new electrical appliance that would make a stir in the world. This new appliance was the dictograph, the greatest of eavesdroppers, which has already made a considerable stir in various quarters of the United States.

This dictograph is a fearsome device. It is so small and unpretentious that it can be concealed in the barest of rooms. It is a telephone produced to the ultimate power of sensitiveness. Placed in a corner of the floor behind the dresser of a great chamber it will transmit over little wires to listeners miles away every syllable of a whispered conversation in the opposite corner.

All of these changes in the neighborhood occurred within a few hours after Miss Mazuret had entered the house in Greenwich village; also one or two men dropped in to call on her in the course of the afternoon and evening.

The next day there were other callers on Miss Mazuret, and finally, early in the afternoon, the four—Mrs. Martin and her three lodgers—left the house in a body. Thereafter there was no caller until nearly 7 o'clock in the evening, when night had fallen. These were unusual visitors. There were two of them, and, though they had never entered the house before, they produced a bunch of keys and fitted one into the front door. The younger of the two men carried a woman's hand bag partially concealed under his coat. Miss

Mothers! Have Your Children Worms?

Are they feverish, restless, nervous, irritable, dizzy or constipated? Do they continually pick their nose or grind their teeth? Have they cramping pains, irregular and ravenous appetite? These are all signs of worms. Worms not only cause your child suffering, but stunt its mind and growth. Give "Kickapoo Worm Killer" at once. It kills and removes the worms, improves your child's appetite, regulates stomach, liver and bowels. The symptoms disappear and your child is made happy and healthy, as nature intended. Mazuret met them in the hall and greeted them with nervous and eager relief. They were Mr. Kayton and his irrepressible assistant.

The assistant had shortly before cleverly possessed himself of Mrs. Martin's bag and the keys while the party lei surely dined.

The girl piloted them upstairs through the empty house to the attic, where Kayton unlocked the door with a key off the same bunch that had enabled them to enter the house.

A rather large work table was between the door and the fireplace, and between the fireplace and the table, but backed against the wall opposite the windows, was a low lounge. A folding bed stood between the windows. To the right of the door was another door which evidently opened into a closet. Kayton tried the handle. It was locked.

"I'd like to search this rat hole," he muttered. Then, "Where's that dictograph, Joe?" he demanded suddenly, looking up. Manning produced the little square box that had caused one of his pockets to bulge. "Connect it out of that window," ordered his chief, indicating the one that opened on to the fire escape.

Manning gently opened the window as Kayton shut off his flashlight. He groped around in the dark, and after much grunting and swearing to himself, reappeared from the outer darkness with two little wires. Deftly and swiftly he scraped the insulation off the ends and twisted them on to the wires that protruded from the dictograph. Then he fastened the little box securely in the angle of the window frame in the corner where it came out several inches from the wall. Only a search with the foreknowledge that the little betrayer was somewhere in the room could possibly have unearthed it.

When he had finished Kayton walked out into the middle of the room, and Manning again thrust his head out of the window.

"If you get this," said the chief in a low voice, "wave out your window." A moment later Manning drew back. "It's all right, governor," he said. "They're waving."

At this moment a cat in the dark regions somewhere outside the house wailed plaintively.

"Here they come, governor," said Manning, and he started to close the window, but Kayton stopped him.

"You hustle right back to the other house by the roof," he ordered, "and get on the dictograph. Don't leave it for a second until you get my orders."

"All right, governor," nodded the young man, and the next instant the darkness of the fire escape had swallowed him up.

"Aren't you going with him?" asked the girl quickly, speaking for the first time since their entrance into the room.

"I'm going to stay here with you," was the quiet reply. Miss Mazuret gasped and Kayton felt his pulses quicken.

"Oh, don't—don't!" she protested in real terror.

He smiled. "I've heard that before!"

Steady as were the great detective's nerves the word was wiped off his lips, and he started like a race horse as an angry buzz burst just over his head.

"Oh! What's that?" gasped the girl, both hands at her throat. Kayton threw his light above the door and discovered the "buzzer."

"That's their warning," he explained softly, hastening her toward the stairs. "They've got the front steps wired. There's some one at the street door now."

The girl hurried down distractedly. "What shall we do?" she whispered. "Right into your room!" he ordered. They were barely concealed from view before the other four members of the household came in the front door.

As they passed the door Kayton could hear them talking uneasily in undertones and now and then catch a word such as "don't like it" and "all the locks," and he smiled to himself. He knew they were discussing Manning's theft of the bag.

On the second floor the party broke up and their voices died away. The woman and the older of the three men went on to the attic, followed a minute later by the youngest member of the confederacy.

They were a strangely assorted trio. The leader and brains of the conspiracy against the currency of the land was the strangest of the three. He was a man of about fifty years, but one terrible experience had taken the stiffening out of his spine and the color out of his face, though it had not dimmed the hot fire of his dark eyes.

The other man was much younger, flashily dressed in the extreme of masculine fashion. His face was flat and pasty. He was small boned and undersized—anaemic, crafty, ratlike.

He chose to be known as Simeon Gage. The older man was known to the secret service and a number of municipal police bureaus as Friedrich Kreisler, and with a certain heroism of crime he scorned an alias. He calmly lit the gas while Mrs. Martin drew the curtain. The younger man stood in the middle of the room and fidgeted.

"Doctor, we'll have to have all those locks changed, don't you think?" he inquired nervously in a high pitched voice that was almost a whine. "We might as well go to bed with the front door open."

"There was nothing in my bag to show what house the keys were for," Mrs. Martin reminded him quietly. "I know, Mrs. Martin, but I've been uneasy lately—ever since that girl came," he confessed. "I thought I was being followed yesterday."

"You're always being followed," commented Kreisler. "You must have a bad conscience."

"I think perhaps I am gettin' too many cigarettes," admitted Mr. Gage. "I don't know, though, now. We've been gettin' pretty easy if people can come and pick our pockets. I don't think we ought to have that girl here. Some cheap divorce case detective will be roundin' us up next. Who is she, anyway?" he demanded suddenly, turning on Mrs. Martin. "I called up Hurley and asked him about her. Why doesn't he know anything about her?"

"I haven't had a chance to tell him yet," replied Mrs. Martin, indifferently. "She came only yesterday."

"You've had lots of chances to tell me," grumbled the young man. "It's none of your business, Gage," Mrs. Martin informed him.

"Well," he whined, with a sort of protesting helplessness, "I feel as nervous as a rabbit with a strange woman around."

Kreisler meanwhile had lowered the folding bed and produced from secret crannies in the mattress and structure divers bottles, marble slabs, shallow pans and the usual paraphernalia of a photographer. From a hidden recess of the closet a camera made its appearance. Gage eagerly offered to assist him, but the older man waved him aside with a cunning smile.

"You never let us help at anything but the bleaching," he protested. "I notice you're keeping everything you know under your hat. Some day you'll go off to Scotland with your money, like Andy Carnegie, and leave us all workin' in the mills."

"What I know I know," returned the German grimly.

"Yes, doctor," said Gage, "but I get tired sittin' around here waitin' for you to pull off your masterpieces."

Kreisler had seated himself at the table and slipped a one dollar bill in a bleaching solution. At Sage's last words he threw back his head and his eyes blazed with a fine anger.

"That is the way with you Americans!" he cried. "No patience, no artistry! Half baked, get rich quick! The jalls are filled with such men as you." Then, he added more quietly, in the manner of an instructor, "Perfection is an affair of little things, but perfection is not a little thing!"

"Oh, I know, doctor, I know!" exclaimed Gage hastily, as he drew near the table. Then he added, moving toward the door, "I guess I'll be goin' now. I'm only in the way."

Costly Treatment.

"I was troubled with constipation and indigestion and spent hundreds of dollars for medicine and treatment," writes C. H. Hines, of Whitlow, Ark. "I went to a St. Louis hospital, also to a hospital in New Orleans, but no cure was effected. On returning home I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets, and worked right along. I used them for some time and am now all right." Sold by all dealers.—Adv.

SAILORS AND MARINES IN SEATTLE DENOUNCE RED FLAG.

SACK AND BURN HEADQUARTERS OF SOCIALISTS.

Salvation Army Hall is Also Destroyed By Rioters Who Are Unopposed By the Police in Their Raids.

While the officers of the Pacific fleet reserve of the United States navy were dancing at the army and navy ball in the state armory, at Seattle, Wash., several hundred of their sailors and marines were marching through the streets of the city, denouncing the Industrial Workers of the World and the red flag, sacking and burning socialist and Industrial Workers' headquarters, and in their excitement demolished a Salvation Army meeting room before learning that they had mistaken the place.

The city headquarters of the moderate socialists and the radical socialists were sacked and the books and furniture carried into the street and burned.

A socialist news stand on the principal street corner of the city was destroyed, and the big meeting room of the Industrial Workers of the World, in the southern part of the city, was stripped of its belongings, which were thrown from a second story window and burned in the street.

The police offered no resistance to the rioters. Some of the officers said that all the force was busy handling crowds attending the Golden Potlatch festivities, and no reserves were available to cope with the rioters.

There's Many A Slip

Between "cheap" lumber and a bargain. Some people we know have read the glaring announcements in the agricultural papers, of lumber and sash and door bargains to be had by sending away for the material. And right there they slipped—or had one slipped over on them—for no matter how low the price, such junk as the would be bargain hunter gets is never a bargain at all. They say "a sucker is born every minute" amongst we fellows in the country: that we're easy, and all that sort of rot.

Take this tip from us: Don't buy lumber that you don't see first.

Birds and Cyclones.

It has been suggested that birds habitually make use of storms in traveling from one part of their range to another. It is pointed out that if a bird cannot find shelter it must be more comfortable on the wing than on the ground during a storm, because in the fiercest gale it flies in a moving medium, like a swimmer in a strongly flowing river.

Good Reason for His Enthusiasm.

When a man has suffered for several days with colic, diarrhoea or other form of bowel complaint and is then cured sound and well by one or two doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as is often the case, it is but natural that he should be enthusiastic in his praise of the remedy, and especially is this the case of a severe attack when life is threatened. Try it when in need of such a remedy. It never fails. Sold by all dealers.—Adv.
