Rome, Italy. My Dear Father and Mother:

As I wrote you last, I got a ticket to see the Pope. At intervals he makes a public appearance and tickets are issued to those who desire to see him. He appears in a balcony in one of the large buildings connected with the Vatican. There were fully one thousand people there. Pope Pius the X. appeared in beautiful priestly robes with a large red hat on his head with a broad brim on it. The band played while the pope presented himself for about ten minutes.

I was very close to the building and got a good view of him. The people cheered, and then while the Pope sang them a blessing, they all kneeled, then arose and replied by a chant. He stood in the balcony of which I enclose a photograph. A cardinal and other officials were beside him and a soldier at the rear. The Swiss guards of the Pope in their red and yellow uniforms are an interesting sight. The reverence they pay him and the solemnity of the occasion made a great impression on my mind.

I visited the Pantheon, a building containing the remains of a great many kings of Italy; also numerous altars. The porch dates from the The great Coliseum was a wonderful sight. It was here men were made to The Bad Axe ladies, thirty-five in fight with wild animals for their seated forty thousand people. Twostroved. JARED BRADSHAW

Funeral Held at Crocker School house Monday Afternoon.

The funeral services of Jared Bradshaw, who died Saturday morning. November 15, at the home of his son, Bervey Bradshaw, were held Monday afternoon at the Crocker schoolhouse and interment was made in Elkland cemetery. Rev. G. A. Fee conducted the esrvices.

Jared Bradshaw was born near Guelph, Ontario, April 10, 1831. From there he moved to Richport, Michigan, and in 1854 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Angelina Eldred of Richport. In 1873 they moved to Cass City and lived on the farm 2% miles east and 1 mile south of here, which is now owned by his son and where he died. There was a family of five children, four girls and one boy, but two children and his wife, who died eleven years ago, preceded him in death. Those who Greenleaf, Miss Minnie Bradshaw of Pontiac and Bervey Bradshaw of Elkland.

can't understand how I was so short sighted as to marry your sister."

"Well, you see, you didn't catch a glimpse of me until after you were married," she railed. "I was in the Sacred Heart convent, you remember." "Ah, that explains the oversight. I am considered an unusually discriminating person. Let me see: I married a Miss Fowler, didn't I?"

"Yes, Roxbury-four years ago in London, at St. George's, in Hanover square, at 4 o'clock on a Saturday Didn't they tell you all that?"

"I don't think they said anything about it being 4 o'clock. I'm glad to know the awful details, believe me. Thanks! Do you know I decided you were an American the instant I saw you in the door," he went on. quite ir relevantly.

"How clever of you, Roxbury!" "Oh, I say, Miss Fowler, I'm not such an ass as I look-really I'm not. I'm trying to look like"-

'Sh! If you want me to believe you are not the ass you think you look be careful what you say. Remember I am not Miss Fowler to you. I am Constance-sometimes Connie. Can you remember that. Roxbury?"

He drew a long breath. "Oh, I say Connie, I'd much rather be plain Brock to you.

"Please don't forget that I am doing this for my sister, not for myself by any manner of means," she said stifly He flushed painfully, conscious of the rebuke.

"Please overlook my faults for the time being," he said. "I'll do better You see, I've been rather overcome by the sense of my own importance. I'm not used to being the head of an establishment. It has dazed me. A great many things have happened to me since I left the Gare de l'Est last night." He was considerate in not re ferring to his unhappy mode of trav "For instance, I've completely eling. lost my head." He might have said that, but that would have sounded commonplace and earthy.

"One does, you know, when he loses his identity," she said sympathetically. "Edith says you are ripping and all that sort of thing," she went on hurriedly, in perfect mimicry. "You come very highly recommended as a broth er-in-law."

"Heavens, you're not, by any chance engaged, are you?"

the toast poised half way to her lips. "you're not, by any chance, engaged. are you? Appalling thought!"

He laughed delightedly. "People won't ask about me. my dear Con I'm already married, you stance. But if any one should ask know. you're not obliged to answer."

She looked troubled and uncertain. "You may be really married, after all," she speculated. "Who knows? Poor old Roxbury wouldn't have had the tact to inquire."

"I'm a henpecked bachelor, believe me."

For the next quarter of an hour they chatted in the liveliest, most inconsequential fashion, getting on excellent terms with each other and arriving at a fair sense of appreciation of what lay ahead of them in the shape of peril and adventure.

She was the most delightful person he had ever met as well as being the most beautiful. There was a sprightly. ever growing air of self reliance about ly, "I must take you under my wing You have much to accomplish in the next twenty-four hours, not the least of your duties being the subjugation of Tootles and Raggles. Tootles is fif teen months old It may interest you to know. We can't afford to have Too tles scream with terror every time she sees you, and it would be most unfortunate if Raggles should growl and snap at you as he does at all suspicious strangers. Once in awhile he bites too. Do you like babies?"

"Yes, 1-1 think 1 do." he said doubtingly "I daresny I could cultivate : taste for 'em; but, i say," with eager enthusiasm, "I love dogs!"

"It may be distinctly in your favor that Raggles loathes the real Roxbury. He growls every time that Roxy kisses

"Has he ever bitten Roxy for it?" "No," dubiously, "but Roxy has had to kick him on several occasions."

"How very tiresome-to kick and kiss at the same time!"

"Raggles is very jealous, you under-

"That's more than I can say for dear old Roxy. But I'll try to anticipate Raggles by compelling Edith to keep her distance." he said, scowling darkly. "Has it not occurred to you that Tootles will be pretty-er-much of a nuisance when it comes to mountain climbing?" He felt his way carefully in saving this.

"Oh, dear me, Roxbury! Would you have left the poor little darling at home—in all that dreadful heat?"

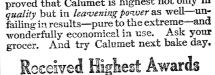

"I'm sure I couldn't have been blam ed for leaving her at home," he pro tested. "She didn't exist until half an hour ago. Heavens, how they do spring up!

The remainder of Brock's day was spent in getting acquainted with his family, or, rather, his menage. There were habits and foibles, demands and restrictions that he had to adapt himself to with unvarying benignity. He made a friend of Raggles without half trying. Dogs always took to him, he admitted modestly. Tootles was less vulnerable. She howled consistently at each of his first half dozen ad vances. His courage began to wane with shocking rapidity. His next half hearted advances were in reality inglorious retreats. Spurred on by the sustaining Constance, he stood by his guns and at last was gratified to see faint signs of surrender. By midday he had conquered. Tootles permitted him to carry her up and down the sta tion platform (she was too young to realize the risk she rany. Fond mothers in the crowd of hurrying travelers found time to look upon him and smile, as if to say, "What a nice man!" He could almost hear them saying it, which no doubt accounted for the intense ruddiness of his cheeks. "Do you ever spank her?" he demanded once of Mrs. Medcroft after Tootles had brought tears to his eyes with a potent attack upon his nose She caught the light of danger in his gray eyes and hastily snatched the offending Tootles from his arms.

Miss Fowler kept him constantly at work with his eyeglass and his English, neither of which he was managing well enough to please her critical estimate. In fact, he labored all day with the persistence, if not the sullenness of a hard driven slave. He did

"Are you to be with us until the end of the play?"

"Yes. The Rodneys are my friends, not'Edith's. Katherine Rodney was in the convent with me. We see a great deal of each other. I'm sure you will like her. Everybody falls dreadfully in love with her.'

"How very amiable of you to permit it," he protested gallantly. "I'm sure I shall enjoy falling in love. Which reminds me that I've never had a sister-in-law. They're very nice, I'm told. It's odd that Medcroft didn't tell me about you. Would you mind advancing a bit of general information about yourself-and, may I say, about my family in general? It may come handy."

"I feel as though I had known you for years," she said, frankly returning his gaze. She leaned forward, her elbows on the table, her chin in her hands. "I'm merely Edith's sister. We live in Paris-that is, father and I. I'm three years younger than Edith. Of course you know how old your wife is, so we won't dwell upon that. You don't? Then I'd demand it of l haven't been in Philadelphia since I was seven, and that's ages ago. I have no mother, and father is off in South America on business. So you see little sister has to tag after big sister. Oh!" She interrupted the recital with an abrupt change of manner. "I'm so sorry you've finished your coffee. Now you'll have to go. Roxbury always does.'

"But I haven't finished." he exclaimed eagerly. "I'm going to have three or four more pots. You have no idea how"-

"It's all right, then." she said, with her that charmed and reassured him She possessed the capacity for divining the same and the ridiculous with splen did discrimination. Moreover, she could jest and be serious with an impartial intelligence that gratified his vanity without in the least inspiring the suspicion that she was merely clever. He became blissfully imbued with the idea that she had surprised herself by the discovery that he was really quite attractive. In fact, he was quite sincerely pleased with himself-for which he may be pardoned if one stops to think how resourceful a woman of tact may be if she is very, very pretty. And, by way of further analogy. Brock was a thoroughly likable chap. besides being handsome and a thoroughbred to the core. It's not betraying a secret to affirm, coldbloodedly, that Miss Fowler had not allied herself with the enterprise until after she had pinned Roxbury down to facts concerning Brock's antecedents. She was properly relieved to find that he came of a fine old family and that he had led more than one cotillion in New York. He experienced a remarkable change of front in respect to Roxbury Medcroft before the breakfast was over. It may have been due to the spell of her eyes or to the call of her voice, but it remains an unchallenged- fact that he no longer thought of Medcroft as a stupid bungler Instead he had come to regard him as a good and irreproachable Samaritan. All of which goes to prove that a divinity shapes our ends, rough hew them how we may.

"I'm sure we shall get on famously," he said, as she signified her desire to return to the compartment. "I've always longed for a nice, agreeable sister-in-law.'

"Her mission in life, up to a certain stage, is to make the man appreciate the fact that he has, after all. been snapped up by a small but deserving family," she said blithely. "It is also her duty to pour oil on troubled connubial highway, so long as her kind offices are not resented. By the way. Roxbury, I am now about to preserve forgotten to order coffee and rolls for your wife."

"Great Scott! So I have! It's 9 rolls to be sent in at once. "I hope she hasn't starved to death." "My dear Roxbury," she said stern-not have time to become tired. There was always something new to be done or learned or unlearned; his day was full to overflowing. He was a man of family.

The wife of his bosom was tranquillity itself. She was enjoying herself. When not amusing herself by watching Brock's misfortunes she was napping or reading or sending out for cool drinks. With all the selfishness of a dutiful wife she was content to shift responsibilities upon that ever convenient and useful creature-a detached sister.

Brock sent telegrams for her from cities along the way-Ulm, Munich. Salzburg and others-all meant for the real Roxbury in London, but sent to fictitious being in Great Russell street, the same having been agreed upon by at least two of the conspirators. It mattered little that she repeated herself monotonously in regard to the state of health of herself and Tootles. Roxbury would doubtless en joy the protracted happiness brought on by these dispatches, even though they got him out of bed or missed him altogether until they reached him in a bunch the next day. He may also have been gratified to hear from Munich that Roxbury was perfectly love ly. She said in the course of her longest dispatch that she was so glad that the baby was getting to like her father more and more as the day wore on.

At one station Brock narrowly escaped missing the train. He swung himself aboard as the cars were rolling out of the sheds. As he sank, hot and exhausted, into the seat opposite his wife and her sister the former looked up from her book, yawning ever so faintly, and asked:

"Are you enjoying your honeymoon. Roxbury?"

"Immensely!" he exclaimed, but not until he had searched for and caught Connie's truant gaze. "Aren't we?" he asked of Miss Fowler, his eyes waters and strew flowers along the dancing. She smiled encouragingly "I think you are such a nice man to have about." commented Mrs. Medcroft, this time yawning freely and you from bitter reproaches. You have stretching her fine young arms in the luxury of home contentment.

Brock went to bed early in Vienna that night, tired but happy, caring not p'clock." He ordered the coffee and what the morrow brought forth so long as it continued to provide him with a sister-in-law and a wife who was devoted-to another man.

A Little Book That Contains Some Startling Information.

A little book selling at only five cents, postpaid, is having a very wide circulation-running up into the millions. It contains some very startling information respecting the meaning of the word Hell. It claims to demonstrate, both from the Hebrew and the Greek of our Bible, that Hell is NO'l a place of eternal torment, but merely another name for the TOMB, the GRAVE, the STATE OF DEATH. It affects to show that man was not redeemed from a far-off place of eternal torture, but quotes the Scriptures proving that he was REDEEMED from the GRAVE at the cost of his Redeemer's LIFE and that the Scriptural Hope. both for the Church and the World. is a resurrection hope based upon the death and resurrection of Jesus. The book is certainly worth the reading. The information it furnishes is certainly valuable, far beyond its trifling cost. Order it at once from the Bible and Tract Society. 17 Hicks Street. As a result of a ticket selling con-test at the time of the recent home-talent play, "At the Sign of the Jack-O'-Lantern" in which the seniors and juniors worked against one another and the sophomores versus freshmen, there were two parties Monday evening. The seniors entertained the juniors at a hard time party in the high room and the costumes worn there did no vouch for a very prosperous year but the guests did not seem to feel at all sorry because of the poor quality of their clothes. A hard time luncheon was also served. The freshmen were entertained by the sophomores Doerr's Hall at the same time. The hall was prettily decorated and one of the specials was a form called the "ideal freshman," dressed in the freshman color, green, and wearing a freshie cap. This afternoon we took a long walk partly along the Appian way, in existence long before the time of Christ, to the Catacombs. We had a monk as guide who spoke good En lish but smelled of "booze." We each had a small taper and our guide a larger one. We went down over sixty feet. It is built in layers one above another of holes where dead bodies were laid and sealed up. You can imagine its size when you bear in mind over a million bodies were buried in them. The bones for the most part have been carried away to churches and other places for burial. Cows were grazing over the Catacombs. On the Appian way, telephone lines and automobiles were apparent on all sides. The road is enclosed by a stone and brick wall. One of the near-by churches we visited was a strange sight. There are six or sev-

Now we hold no brief for the city man's stomach, although the urban population in Michigan now comprises about 50 per cent of the dwellers in towns and village, will all be carrying around in their stomachs more or less fertilizer which is obtained from the fertilizer sandwich in the dairy stables. This fertilizer is a plant food and not an animal food, and when we think of the vast amount that will be carried around in the city man's stomach, eventually to be wasted, we want to warn the dairymen of the state that here is a tre mendous waste. The place for fer-tilizer is not in the city man's stomach, where it is liable to impair his digestion more or less, but its true place is on the farms of the state to grow additional crops of corn and clover. This enormous waste can be avoided if the dairyman will only place in his barn the proper kind of stall whereby the cow will keep clean and a vast amount of fertilizer saved to enrich the land of the state.-Ex.

HISHYERE turkey I'm thinkin' of,' said Amaziah Botts, uncrossing his legs and leaning forward so that he might deposit his tobacco juice squarely in the center of the box of sawdust, "thishyere turkey I'm thinkin' of wasn't no ordinary turkey. It wasn't none o' these cold storage birds that was hatched the Lord knows when, an' killed nobody knows where.

It was a scientific turkey." "Where did you know this turkey, Am'zi?" asked Lafayette Allen, smil ing beneath his whiskers.

"Thishyere turkey happened to come into my knowledge some years afore I came to thishvere town to abide." Amaziah Botts explained, biting off a fresh chew of tobacco. "Prior to my conferrin' my residence upon thishyere community, it may not be generally known, I was somewhat of a investigator into the mysteries o' life. myself, in a small way. What started me to thinkin' o' thishyere turkey I have in mind was the figger our worthy groceryman, Mr. Lemuel Tidsworth, sets as his lowest limit for a turkey for Thanksgivin' dinner purposes. Not castin' no reflections onto Lemuel, but I may freely say that if he ever had thishyere turkey I have

I give Mr. Gobbler. Next day blame my hide if it wasn't twicet as big as it had been! "That give me my idee. I drove that gobbler away over to the far end o' the farm an' penned it up, and from then on I fed it three times a day. Every day I give it'a peck o' Alphabet's rapid grower. Alphabet kept wonderin' what was becomin' o' his powder, an' finally got to work on a theery that this petickler ingrejunt o' th' system was so pecooliarly constructed that it nachly faded out o' existence, which was, accordin' to his theery, the reason people that don't grow fast or big don't grow at all. Purty good theery, but, like most theeries, it was faulty in jest one petickler.

"Well, you'd ought to 'a' seen Mr. Gobbler. Gentlemen, take my word for it or not, in one month's time it was big as a horse, an' by the first o' November it was bigger 'n an elephant.

"Along come a huckster, buyin' Thanksgivin' turkeys. 'Lowed he'd pay 20 cents a pound for 'em. I sez to him I had one gobbler I'd sell him, pervidin' he'd take it alive. Told him was a busy man, what with my researchin' an' other scientific work, an' didn't have no time for killin' an' cleanin' turkeys. Huckster said he'd take th' gobbler jest as it stood. So I piked off to th' back corner o' th' farm, let down th' bars, an 'druv th' gobbler up to th' college.

"Honest, I was scared of it myself. It stood twenty feet high, an' built accordin'. That turkey was big enough to furnish church dinners for all th' churches in this state. But it was as gentle as a lamb. Only thing about it was its voice. I'd forgot to tell about that. When it gobbled it made more noise than a house afire. Well, I drove it up to th' college, an' th' faculty an' th' huckster an' th' students an' all was there—an' they blame nigh died with astonishment. "Just think how you'd feel if all of a sudden right down a lane would come a turkey as big as a freight car, an' if just when it got about forty feet from you it spread a tail as big as a circus tent and began gobbling in a voice that could be heard in the next county. Why, th' faculty nachly ducked right inside th' college instanter, an' th' huckster was so scaret he jumped into his wagon an' tried to hide in one of his coops that was full of roosters an' hens an' turkeys an' guineas. Then my turkey, bein' a shy and timid creetur, got scaret, too, an' it flew up on top o' th' Hall o' Lib'ral Arts an' let out a gobble that sounded like a million freight trains blowin' for th' flag man all at once. Seemed like that was th' first time it ever knew it could fly. It flopped its wings once or twice, knocking all th' chimbleys off th' buildin' in th 'exercise, an' then started right up in th' air, an' was never seen since. No, sirs, nobody ever seen hide nor feather of it from that day to this.

"So that was why I lost my job at th' college. Alphabet he got sore because I'd stole his quick-growin 'medicine, an' th' rest o' th' faculty got mad because they'd got scared over a little scientific experiment. They passed th' word around an' I couldn't get work at no other college in th' country, so at last I made up my mind to settle down here in what is as near oblivion as I can find an' seek to be forgotten. I wouldn't 'a' told you fellers about thishyere turkey, only I

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condi-tion of the mucous lining of the Eusta-chian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the in-flammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condi-tion of the mucous surfaces. in mind, for sale, he'd have wanted so much money for it that even J. Pierpont Morgan would 'a' had to go hongry on Thanksgivin' day.' "What kind of a turkey was this,

Am'zi?" inquired the grocer. "Just a turkey turkey," Amaziah replied. "Just a common or garden turkey, but it was raised accordin' to scientific principles by yours truly, and if I do say it myself, it was prob'ly the most remarkable turkey that ever was known.

"It happened like this. About ten years ago-which was just afore I decided to settle in this beautiful little city-about ten years ago I was connected with one o' the largest labor'tories and scientific research shops in the world. The professors there depended a great deal on me-me bein' a man who applied the rules o' common sense an' demonstrated knowledge to the execution o' theories an' such. Well, there was a long whiskered professor there by the name o' Alphabet Snoggins. His name wasn't rully Alphabet, but bein' as his initials was W. R. M. H. Snoggins, LL. D., Ph. D., A. M. F. R. G. S. K. B. C., we jest played both ends against the middle and called him Alphabet. Not to his face, mind ye, but amongst ourselves, so to speak. Us scientists is very human people when not before the public.

"So thishyere Alphabet Snoggins he had a system of encouragin' rapid growth in the human system. Done a lot o' researchin' at the stockyards, he had, makin' drugs out o' by-products an' the like. He'd discovered a way to use powdered glands and muscles so's to supply the lackin' incentive to development. You get me? You know there's people that don't grow as fast or as big as they ought to, just because the growin' power isn't in 'em. So Alphabet he had worked out a kind of medicine that would make 'em sprout. Well, come along one fall, and on th' experiment farm where our college was we hatched out a fine bunch o 'turkeys. Hatched 'em out in the early summer, in fact. There was one gobbler I rather liked the looks of, so, just for the fun of the thing, more'n anything else, I took personal care of it myself. One day, just for the novelty of it, I mixed a lot of Alphabet's dope with th' feed you'll respec know my connaence "What became of the huckster, Am'zi?" asked Lafayette Allen, tugging at his whiskers.

"Well, now, that's just what started me to rememberin' thishyere turkey. I saw that same huckster goin' through town today, an' how I knowed it was him was that he kept watchin' the sky all th' time, expectin 'to see thishyere turkey come down to roost."

"That's pretty near as good a story, Am'zi," said the grocer, preparing to close the store for the night, "as you usually tell me when I dun you for that little bill of yours."

Yes, Edwin, I got so much to be thankful for that I can't decide on number three there!"

THE LAST OF THE TURKEY.

Last Thursday, 'twas a glorious sight, All crisp and brown and hot; The turkey graced the festal board And had the honored spot.

On Friday it was there again— As croquettes, served for lunch, In which the white meat and the dark Were gathered in a bunch.

Again it came on Saturday. A salad 'twas this time; And, though it was the same old bird, The salad tasted prime.

Then, Sunday-here it came once more. It seemed 'twas here to stay, For prominent on the menu Was "turkey consomme."

But Monday closed the bird's career, We knew 'twas gone for good, For a big platter full of hash Upon the table stood WILBUR D. NESBIT.

Christmas Presents

A good photographic Portrait of yourself is always a very acceptable gift to your friends, and especially so at Christmas time. It is only a little over four weeks until all our work will have to be delivered to the Christmas trade. We are not as a merchant who takes his goods from his shelf and hands them to you. We have to make ours first and must have time in which to do it, and for that reason we take this early opportunity to call your attention to the fact that you should not put off sitting until a few days before Christmas, but come in early. Rainy or cloudy weather does not interfere with taking photographs. Come any time.

This carnival is for everythey would not think of returning to the use of the common cup.

there isn't any Christian church or society of that denomination in this village, that individual cups for communion services have been used in Cass City churches for years, and that in at least one local church, the common cup was discarded and the individual communion service was installed three or four years before it was adopted in Caro.

"The Caro newspapers are good boosters for their home town," said a memberr of a local church society Wednesday, "but when they attempt to boost their own village by casting reflections on the neighboring towns in the county, the results are not always advantageous. It has been a common fault with county seat papers in years past to try to belittle the other villages in the county and this fact was one of the causes which lead to the defeat of the court house proposition submitted a few years ago."
