PERMANENT OFFICERS WERE ELECTED

C. C. H. S. ALUMNI ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED.

Alumni Banquet New Years Evening Big Success. M. B. Au-ten Heads Society.

The alumni banquet given New Years night at the New Sheridan will be remembered as one of the big events of the year and all who attended felt a rejuvenation of their loyalty to the local high school. The committee who took the affair in charge are to be congratulated on the ability shown to do quick and yet efficient work for the banquet was proposed, planned and brought to pass in scarcely more than a week and the returns were gratifying. Invitations were sent only to those who were in or near the vicinity of Cass City during that week, for the time was too short to receive answers from any graduates at a distance, but the object was to have enough present to guarantee a permanent organization and then do the greater things.

Plates were laid for sixty-five and shortly after eight o'clock the alumni marched from the parlors to the dining room. The room was decorated in red and white; tastefully arranged festoons hung from the chandelier to the corners of the room and a beautiful bouquet of red and white carnations adorned each table, a pretty green vine covered the candle sticks on the tables and vines trailed among the glassware in a very pretty manner. After the guests were seated, an elaborate five-course dinner was served by efficient and competent waiters. Between courses Miss Laura DeWitt took her place at the piano and a number of college songs were sung, proving that the company still had lungs and were able to use them. The menu was as follows:

Cream Asparagus
Salted Wafers Celery
Olives
Fried Chicken
Baked Duck with Dressing
Cranberries
Irish Points Green Peas in Hearts
Charlotte Russe
Sheridan House Rolls
Combination Salad in Boats
Maple Moose
Angul Food Nut Cake
Coffee
Crystallized Ginger

After the dinner was completed, chairs were pushed back and Edward Pinney took his place at toastmaster for the evening. Mr. Pinney began by explaining that he had acted as toastmaster at the last alumni banquet which was held in 1899 and the participants had never rallied from the effect and he rather expected the same result this time for he had again been chosen as first speaker. Then in his own excellent manner, he spoke favorably of the gathering and introduced the next speaker, Mrs. A. J. Knapp, who toasted to "Our Graduates." From this speaker it was learned that there are 265 graduates from the Cass City high school and of this number not more than 6 have passed beyond. Mrs. Knapp spoke of the improvement made of late years along educational lines and showed that local students were to a great extent helping this along. She also mentioned the vast field over which students had spread and were shedding their influence for good. She closed with a number of poetical and inspiring quotations.

Marc Wickware was to have been the next speaker and his toast, "Wild Animals I Have Known," but he evidently knew none for he did not put in an appearance.

Mr. Pinney then introduced Mrs. Ella Turner, who spoke of "Our Class." Mrs. Turner is a member of the class of 1892 and very wittily compared the classes of then and now but always to the advantage of the earlier classes. She spoke of the old time debating classes and mentioned one debate in particular, "Is it more advantageous to be tall or short?" in which the speaker and Fred A. Bigelow acted as captains. Mrs. Turner closed with a toast of a few lines of poetry.

H. C. Striffler was then introduced to speak of "Girls," a topic with which he proved to be very familiar and the jokes, advice and interesting facts which he expounded were enjoyable.

A toast to "Athletics" was given by Alex Duncanson, one of the graduates who has made himself famous along athletic lines. He said Cass City should be proud of the strong, brawny men they send from their school to colleges and that many fellows who would otherwise fall down in their studies are kept up by their desire to participate in the school sports. Mr. Duncanson suggested that the young people of the high school be incorporated in these alumni affairs in some way so that they would feel that they were an important part in the work.

The toastmaster next introduced Prof. J. E. Kennedy, who discussed the "School and its Prospects." "Judging from the past our school has a brilliant future before it," said Supt. Kennedy, "and an alumni association can greatly increase this brilliancy." Prof. Kennedy's toast was short but full of wisdom and the alumni realized that the Cass City schools have a capable man at their head.

Mr. Pinney then introduced the last speaker, M. B. Auten, who boosted permanent organization. In a few

MR. AND MRS. H. KEYSER CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Seventy Guests Enjoy Big Wedding
Dinner Prepared by Bride of 69 Years.

On Christmas day, the pleasant farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Keyser, one mile north of Wickware, was the scene of a joyous gathering when about 70 persons attended the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of the host and hostess.

At twelve o'clock a bountiful dinner was served. The task of preparing the elaborate menu was accomplished by Mrs. Keyser, who is 69 years of age. After the dinner was partaken of, the company repaired to the parlor where Rev. Yeoman of Argyle performed the wedding ceremony, confirming the vows taken 50 years ago. Joseph Keyser of Stratroy, Ont., a brother of the groom, who acted as "best man" 50 years ago and also at the silver anniversary, was present and acted in the same capacity on Christmas day. A five-story wedding cake made by the bride herself was served to the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Keyser were the recipients of several fine gifts in gold and silver.

Hiram Keyser was born in Adelaide Middlesex county, Ont., on Dec. 12, 1841. Sarah Ann Stevens was born Nov. 1, 1844, at the same place. They spent their childhood days in the same community and went to the same school. They were married at Adelaide. Two years were spent in Pt. Huron, three years at St. Clair, and for 17 years they resided on their farm near Wickware.

They are the parents of eleven children, seven of whom are living: Nial of Flint, Mrs. Eliza Rowley of Winlock, Oregon, Leslie and Milford of Wickware, Mervin of Cass City, Vincent of Flint and Mrs. Eva Spencer of Argyle. All the children except the first two named were present at the golden wedding.

MORE MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED IN LEAP YEAR

County Clerk Brown says 1913 showed a falling off in the marriage license business in Tuscola county. Two hundred forty-four licenses were issued, while in the previous year, County Clerk Reavey handed out marriage permits to 328 couples. Whether the fact that 1912 was a leap year had anything to do with the good showing made, officials are unprepared to state.

CALF SHIPPED TO MAINE

Express Charges on Bull Calf
Amounted to $17.55.

Local breeders have a steady demand for their live stock and their sales cover a wide tract of territory. John Murphy & Sons received an order for a Durham bull calf which probably travelled farther than any other animal sold in the Thumb in recent years, to reach its purchaser.

The calf was three months old and was sold to W. E. Plummer of Cooper's Mills, Maine. The animal weighed 450 pounds and the express charges were $17.55. It was shipped from Cass City Tuesday afternoon.

MRS. M. C. SPENCER FOUR CHURCHES CALLED BY DEATH UNITE FOR REVIVALS

A RESIDENT OF TUSCOLA CO. EVANGELIST ANDREWS IS EX-
SINCE 1876. PECTED TOMORROW.

Laid to Rest in Columbia Cemetery on 82nd Anniversary of Birth.

On Saturday afternoon occurred the death of one of Tuscola county's pioneer ladies, when Mrs. M. C. Spencer died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. B. Lauderbach. Mrs. Spencer has been in very poor health for nearly two months and a week ago was taken very sick and on account of her age she failed to rally and went peacefully home to her Maker. The funeral services were held Monday; Rev. Hamblin offered a short prayer at the Lauderbach home and the body was taken to the Columbia Presbyterian church where Rev. Hamblin conducted the funeral services and burial was made in the Columbia cemetery.

Melissa C. Walters was born in Hiram County, New York, January 5, 1832, and when but a small child she moved to the wilderness of Ohio, to what now is Chagrin Falls, thus from early childhood, she was used to pioneer life. Here she spent a number of the years and taught school for several terms.

In 1856 she married John O. Spencer and their wedding tour was a wagon trip from her home to the home of the groom at Spring Boro, Penn. Three children, Linda C. Edwin A. and John E. were born to this union. In 1876 the family moved to the wilds of Michigan, near Columbia, Tuscola county. Here the family endured all the hardships of pioneer life and the howl of the wolf and the growl of the bear were familiar sounds to the inmates of their little log cabin. Ten years passed and death called at the home, taking the youngest son, John E., to fairer lands. A few years passed and bereavement came again to the family when the eldest son, Edwin A. was claimed by death. On January 6, 1900, Mr. Spencer passed away and from that time Mrs. Spencer made her home with her daughter and only child, Mrs. L. B. Lauderbach.

She lived a happy, useful life and her old neighbors and friends know of her earnest Christian life and how firmly she stood for all she thought to be right. Her daughter mourns the loss of her good mother and her grandchildren call her blessed. To all, who were or intimate terms with her, she was called Grandma Spencer and was loved by all. A strange coincidence is the fact that her birthday occurred on her eighty-second birthday.

George Childs and Richard Harphen of Vassar attended the funeral.

OLDEST MASONIC APRON

Caro Man Has Hairloom 119
Years Old.

Probably the oldest Masonic apron in existence is an heirloom in the possession of Slade Lazelle, a farmer, near Caro.

The apron is of red silk and was given Mr. Lazelle by his father, George Lazelle, who was a Thirty-second degree Mason and a member of the order for 64 years. The present owner of the apron joined the order in Clinton county in 1865.

His father caused its history to be printed on the white back, and the apron, though 119 years old, is still in a good state of preservation.

Committees Were Appointed and Union Services Commence
Next Sunday Evening.

Representatives of the four Protestant churches of Cass City met at the Baptist church Monday evening to arrange for a series of special union meetings under the leadership of Rev. J. B. Andrews, an evangelist, from Silcam Springs, Arkansas.

The pastors of the various churches were chosen as a committee on arrangements and each church is represented by members of two other committees. P. S. McGregory, E. W. Jones, W. J. Schwegler and A. E. Goodall were selected members of the finance committee and F. E. Kelsey, Jacob Maier, F. A. Bigelow and Robt. Cleland members of the entertainment. Miss Ethel McGregory was given a unanimous invitation by the representatives present to preside at the church instrument.

The place of holding the meetings has not been decided upon definitely and probably will not be until the pastors confer with the evangelist who is expected here Saturday. The first union service, however, has been announced for the M. E. church Sunday evening. Meetings will be held each evening during the week. Mr. Andrews will be accompanied by a singer, who besides doing solo work, will conduct a large chorus. The musical feature will be made a prominent part of the services.

Rev. Andrews conducted special services in the M. E. church at Marlette two years ago while Rev. Fee, now pastor of the local M. E. church, was pastor in that village. Over 200 conversions were the result of the services of Andrews and not only that church was benefitted but all the churches of the village and surrounding country were helped and also strengthened by accessions of members influenced by the meetings.

Mr. Andrews also conducted similar services in Carsonville, Sandusky and Pt. Huron that year. He is in the fifties in age and commenced his religious ministry as a pastor in the M. E. South conference. He later took up evangelistic work and in this has been very successful.

DR. MCGREGOR MUST SERVE LIFE SENTENCE

Supreme Court Affirmed Decision of Circuit Court in Case of U-bly Physician.

The supreme court affirmed the decision Monday of the circuit court in the case of Dr. Robt. A. MacGregor, the U-bly physician who was found guilty of the murder of Cyril Sparling on the allegation that the doctor gave Sparling poison. MacGregor is now serving a life sentence at Jackson.

The fact that the doctor was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence and the subsequent rumors of alleged jury tampering, made it appear that the U-bly physician had a chance for his freedom. What disposition will be made of Carrie Sparling, mother of the doctor's poison victim, is a matter of conjecture.

Mrs. Sparling has been at her sister's home at Port Huron ever since she was arrested on suspicion of complicity. She was released on her own recognizance at the court proceedings, but since that time no action has been taken, it is reported now, however, that she will be placed on trial immediately.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge Beach was in Caro on Friday, January 2, and held hearings in several chancery matters. In the case of Mary A. Dale vs. Andrew J. Dale, a decree for divorce was granted.

FARMERS ORGANIZE

To Protect Game and Property in Elkland Township.

The Farmers Game Protective Association is the name of a society organized recently by farmers in the east and southeast parts of Elkland township. A. D. Gillies is president; Morton Orr, vice president; J. A. Benkelman, secretary; G. A. Striffler, treasurer; and a vigilance committee of three has been named.

Farmers have been troubled greatly by irresponsible hunters who have destroyed fences and buildings, torn down rail piles, shot through sap buckets, and committed other depredations. The organization will seek to punish offenders, protect game and make hunting more of a pleasure to themselves and to those hunters who have some regards for the rights of a property owner.

Acetylene Light
in a Modern Cow Barn

WE sell a great many Pilot Acetylene lighting plants to dairy farmers. Because dairy farmers can get even more out of an Acetylene installation than anybody else.

Our dairy farmer patrons make these Acetylene plants do double work. They run an extra line of pipe to each barn—and sometimes to other outbuildings. In these buildings they fasten the great balls of Acetylene light to timbers and rafters.

They also equip these lights with ignition devices—to make them light with the pull of a chain without matches.

Two of these Acetylene barn lights will make a big dairy barn as light as day. They will give more light than a dozen lanterns—and unlike lanterns, they cannot be tipped over.

The same is true of Acetylene house lights. They burn in handsome stationary bronze or brass fixtures securely fastened to ceilings or walls.

You can tell one of these Acetylene lighted dairy barns from the road—a quarter of a mile away. The light is extremely brilliant. It is also soft and white in color—so nearly like sunlight that scientists have used it with success to grow plants on an extensive scale.

These qualities make it a cheerful light. Unquestionably it helps to keep the whole household happy and contented. Weak, dingy, yellow lights, on the other hand, just as surely tend to make people dull spirited and gloomy.

That is why we say Acetylene light is a mighty big help towards keeping the country boys and girls from drifting to the city.

Acetylene is too a boon to the women folks in another way. In addition to the beauty of the light it brings to the country home a great convenience in the gas cooking stove.

For acetylene can be and is used in gas cooking ranges in thousands of country homes, just as its cousin, city gas, is used in millions of city homes.

In every one of these homes the gas range has shortened cooking hours and has done entirely away with the drudgery of handling coal, wood and ashes.

You will be intensely interested in the simple mechanism of the Pilot which makes it different from all other in principle.

Its patent safety features have made it quite "trouble proof." They have given such perfect satisfaction that we have been able to sell no less than sixty thousand Pilot plants in fifteen years.

With these sixty thousand plants working incessantly in country homes, undergoing all kinds of misuse and abuse, we have only heard of two accidents. During the same period there has been over one hundred thousand accidents charged to other illuminants.

For this reason the Engineers of the National Board of Insurance underwriters called Acetylene safer than any illuminant it commonly displaces.

We would very much like to give you a free demonstration of the working of "the Pilot plant." For this purpose we have a portable plant which we can bring to your home. Or if you wish we will be pleased to mail you our advertising books containing the whole story of Acetylene. Just drop a card to—

Northern Michigan Grown Seed Beans

BEANS in this part of the state were so badly damaged last season from blight and rust, we have purchased a carload of Northern Michigan Grown Seed Beans. These beans are free from rust and blight. Farmers who purchased this seed last year got from ten to fifteen bushels more beans to the acre than those who used home grown seed, in some instances receiving $25 to the acre more for their beans than their neighbors who used home grown seed.

The sins of the fathers fall upon the bean crop as well as the human family, and the only way to raise beans free from blight and rust is to secure outside seed grown on sandy land, free from diseases that have gotten in our home crop the past few seasons. Let us have your orders early. Sample can be seen at our office.

THIS TEN-DOLLAR TEST

We will give you a ten dollar bill to place in the door of a Favorite Base Burner. If you can pull it out without tearing it in two when the door is closed, we will make you a present of it.

Favorite Base Burners More Heat - Less Cost

are fitted "paper-tight." It costs more money to make them this way. But it cuts fuel bills in half.

The makers of Favorites invented and patented paper-tight fitting--a wonderful advance in heating stove construction. The doors, registers and frames of every Favorite are fitted perfectly true and tight.

This insures complete control of the fire. Favorites have held fire for five days and nights, without attention. They extract every unit of heat from the fuel. The Favorite soon saves enough in the coal bin to pay for itself.

No other stove but the Favorite Base Burner is fitted paper-tight. You cannot afford to place any heater in your home that is not built in this accurate, fuel-saving way.

The Favorite has many other remarkable and exclusive points of advantage that put it in a class by itself.

Yet it costs no more than common stoves. Come and see it.

CHAPTER XII.

"I do love you."

MEANTIME a telegram had preceded a lengthy letter into the department of the police, both directed to Herr Bauer, who in reality was James Githens of Scotland Yard. The telegram had said: "Why do you say M. is there? He is in London. Explain. Letter tomorrow." The letter had come, and Mr. Githens as well as the local police office was "bowled over," to express it in Scotland Yard English. He had wired his employers that "M. is still in Innsbruck. Cannot be in London." It was very clearly set forth in the letter that Roxbury Medcroft was in London and that Mr. Githens of Scotland Yard had betrayed his trust. He was virtually charged with playing into the hands of the enemy "selling out," as it were. It readily may be expected that Mr. Githens was accused of being in the employ of the "opposition." Moreover, it is but reasonable to assume that he took vigorous steps at once to vindicate himself, which accounts for the woe that lurked close behind the heels of a man named Brock.

Brock and Constance had ridden out that afternoon to visit the historic Schloss Ambras. The great castle had been saved for the very last of their explorations. He had just been able to secure permission to visit that part of the duke's residence open on certain occasions to the curious public. Edith had declined to accompany them. In the first place, she was expecting the all important message from her husband. She was "on nettles," to quote her plaintive eagerness. In the second place, she realized that as the crisis was at hand in the affairs of Brock and Constance her presence was not a necessary adjunct. Not only was she expecting a message from Roxbury, but eagerly anticipating an outburst of joyous news from the two who had, it seemed, very gladly left her behind.

The young couple returning by the lower road from the schloss came to a resting place at a little eating house and garden on the hillside overlooking the river inn. It is a quiet, demure, unfrequented place among the crags, standing in from the white roadway a hundred feet or more, clouded by gorgeous trees and somber cliffs. It was to this charming, romantic retreat that Brock led his fair, now tremulous innamorata. She, too, knew that the hour for decision had come. It was in the air, in the glint of his eyes, in the leaping of her heart. And she knew what she would say to him and what they would say to the world a few hours hence. The mountains seemed to have lost their splendid frown. They were beaming down upon her, tenderly caressing instead of bleak and forboding as they always had been before.

A rosy cheeked girl came into the garden to serve them. Swift, cool breezes were scurrying down the valley, bearing in their wake the soft rain clouds that were soon to drench the earth and then radiantly pass on. They were quite alone, seated in the shelter of a wide, overhanging portico. A soft, green darkness was creeping over the mountain side, pregnant with smell of the shower.

Constance ordered tea and a bite of something to eat for both. Brock's gaze never left her exquisite face while she was engaged in the pretty but rather self-conscious occupation of instructing the waitress. After the girl had departed, he leaned forward across the little table and said, a trifle hoarsely and disjointedly:

"It was most appetizing to watch you do that. I could live forever on nothing but tea and sandwiches if you were to order them."

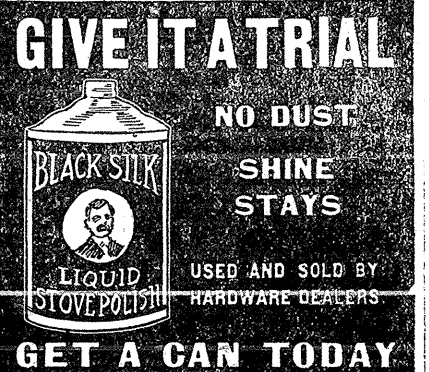

"You've said a great many silly things to me this afternoon."

"I wonder"—he stopped and lowered his voice—"I wonder if you would call it silly if I were to tell you that I love you, very, very much." His gloved hand dropped upon hers as she fumbled aimlessly with the menu card; something in the very helplessness of that long, slim hand drew the strength of all his love toward it—All of this confident, arrogant love that had come to be so sure of itself in these last days. His gray eyes, dark with the purpose of his passion, took on a new and impelling glow; she looked into them for an instant; the wavering smile of last resort on her parted lips; then her lids dropped quickly and her lip trembled.

"I should still think you very silly," she said in a very low voice, "unless unless you do love me."

His fingers closed so tightly upon hers that she looked up, her eyes swimming with tenderness. Neither spoke for a long minute, but words were not needed to tell what the soul was saying through the eyes.

"I do love you," she said simply.

"I do love you—you know I do, Connie. I've loved you from the first day. I cannot live without you. Connie, darling, you won't keep me waiting? You will be my wife—you will marry me at once? You do love me, I know—I've known it for days and days."

She whimsically broke in upon his passionate declaration, saying with a pretty petulance: "Oh, you have? What insufferable conceit! I—"

He laughed joyously: "I never was so sure of anything in my life," he said. "You couldn't help loving me, Constance; I've loved you so. You don't have to tell me, dear; I know. Still, I'd like to hear you say, with those dear lips as well as with your eyes, that you love me."

She put her hand upon the back of the broad one which held the other imprisoned; there was a proud, earnest light in her eyes. "I do love you," she said simply.

"God, but I'm a happy man!" he exclaimed. Forgetful of the time and the place, he half arose and, leaning forward, kissed her full upon the upturned lips.

There was a rattling of chinaware behind them. In no little confusion both came tumbling down from paradise and found themselves under the abashed scrutiny of a very red faced young serving woman.

"Oh, never mind," stammered Gretchen quite amiably. "I am used to that, madam. A great many ladies and gentlemen come here to—to what you call it?" She placed the tea and sandwiches before them, her fingers all thumbs, her cheeks aglow.

Brock pulled himself together. Very sternly he said, "This young lady is to be my wife."

"Ach," said Gretchen, with a friendly smile and the utmost deference, "that is what they all say, mein herr." Then, giggling approvingly, she bustled away.

Brock waited until she was out of sight. "She seems to be on to us, as Freddie would say. But what do we care? I'd like to stand on top of the Bandjoch and shout the news to the world. Wouldn't you, dearest?"

"The world wouldn't hear us, dear," she said coolly. "Besides, it's raining up there. Just look at it sweeping down upon us. Goodness!"

He laughed hilariously, amused by her attempt to be casual and indifferent. "You can't turn it off so easily as that, dearest," he cried. "Come! While it rains we may plan. You will marry me—tomorrow?"

"No!" she cried, aghast. "How utterly ridiculous!"

"Well, then, day after tomorrow?"

"No, no, nor week after next. I—"

"See here, Connie, we've got some one else to consider as well as ourselves. In order to square it all up for Edith we must be able to say to these people that we haven't been frivolling; that we are going to be married at once. That will let Edith out of the difficulty, and everything will look rosy at the outset. If we put it off the world will have said things in its ignorance that she can never refute, simply because the world doesn't stop long enough to hear two sides of a story unless they are given pretty closely together. Now, Edith is counting on us to put the peeping Tom Rodneys and the charitable Carneys to rout with our own little bombshell. They're saying nasty things about all of us. They're calling you a vile thing for stealing your sister's husband, and they're calling me a dog for what I'm doing. No telling what they'll be saying if we don't step into the breach as soon as it is opened. We can't afford to wait, no matter what Roxbury says when he comes. We've just got to be able to forestall even dear old Roxbury. Come! Don't you see? We must be married at once."

"Dear me," she murmured softly, "what will papa say?"

"My dear Constance, I will explain it all to your father when he gets back from South America next winter."

It was now raining in torrents. They moved back into the darkest recess of their shelter and blissfully looked out upon the drenched universe with eyes that saw nothing but sweet sunshine and fair weather.

The clattering of horses' hoofs upon the hard mountain road sounded suddenly above the hiss of the rainstorm. It was quite dark by this time, night having been hurried on by the lowering skies. A moment later three horsemen, drenched to the skin, drew up in front of the inn, threw their reins over the posts and dashed for shelter. They came noisily into the arbor, growling and stamping their soggy feet.

"What, ho!" called one of the newcomers, sticking his head through a window of the house. Brock and Miss Fowler looked on, amused by the plight of the riders. Two of them were unquestionably officers of the police, the third seemed to be an Englishman. They were gruff, burly fellows, all of them. For a few minutes they stormed and growled about their miserable luck in being caught in the downpour, ordering schnapps and brandy in large and instant quantities. At last the Englishman, a heavy, somber faced man, turned his gaze in the direction of the lovers, who sat quite close together in the dark corner. His gaze developed into a stare, then a look of triumph. A moment later he was pointing out the couple to his companions, all three peering at them with excited eyes.

Brock's face went red under the rude stare. He was on the point of resenting it when the Englishman stepped forward. The American arose at once.

"I've been looking for you, Mr. Medcroft—if that is your name," said the stranger, halting in front of the table. "My name is Githens, Scotland Yard. These men have an order for your arrest. I'd advise you to go with them peacefully. The young woman will not be bothered. She is free to go."

"What are you talking about?" demanded Brock angrily. Suddenly he felt a chill of misgiving. What had Roxbury Medcroft been doing that he should be subject to arrest?

"You are masquerading here as Roxbury Medcroft, the architect. You are not Medcroft. I have watched you for weeks. Today we have learned that Medcroft is in London. Your linen is marked with a letter B. You've drawn money on a letter of credit together with a woman who signs herself as Edith F. Medcroft. There is something wrong with you, Mr. B., and these officers, acting for the hotel and the state bank, have been instructed to detain you pending an investigation."

Mr. Githens was vindicting himself. He may have been a trifle disconcerted by Miss Fowler's musical laugh and Brock's plain guffaw, but he managed to preserve a stiff dignity. "It's no laughing matter. Officers, this is your man. Take him in charge. Madam, as I understand it, you are the alleged sister of the woman who is working herself off as Mrs. Medcroft. It may interest you to know that your sister—if she is your sister—has locked herself in her room and was in hysterics when I left the hotel. She will be carefully guarded, however. She cannot escape. As for you, madam, there is as yet no complaint against you, but I wish to notify you that you may consider yourself under surveillance until after your friends have had a hearing before the magistrate tomorrow. As soon as it has ceased raining we will ask you to ride with us to the city. As for Mr. B., he is in charge of these officers."

At 8 o'clock that evening a solemn cavalcade rode into Innsbruck. There were tears of expostulation in the eyes of the lone young woman, flashes of indignation in those of the tall young man who rode beside her.

The tall young man was going to jail!

Origin of Cemeteries.

In ancient times burials were always outside the walls of a city or town. Indeed, before the time of Christianity it was not lawful to bury the dead within the limits. About the end of the sixth century St. Augustine obtained of King Ethelbert a temple of idols—used by the king before his conversion—and made a burying place of it, and St. Cuthbert afterward obtained leave of the pope (A. D. 752) to have yards made to the churches suitable for the burial of the dead.

A Xantippe Outwitted.

An Englishman of Lymington had the misfortune to live in a continuous quarrel with his wife, who was a modern Xantippe and threatened in case she survived him to dance over his grave. It was her lot to outlive him, but it was not so easy to carry out her threat. The husband had the precaution to make an injunction in his will requiring his body to be buried in the sea near his residence and without ceremony. The injunction was complied with.

GREASING THE BULLET.

The bullet of every cartridge before being inserted in the rifle should be given a thin coating with an automobile grease. This is a thick grease of about the color and consistency of butter. In practice the end of the cartridge is stuck in the grease and revolved until all that part of the bullet projecting from the shell is covered with a very thin but uniform coating. Care must be taken not to get any grease on the shell. The advantages of using this grease are threefold—it prevents metallic fouling in the bore, it increases the accuracy, and it greatly lengthens the life of the rifle.—Lieutenant Townsend Whelan in Outing.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA

D. M. Houghton Says He Gained 10 Pounds in Month.

Citrus Center, Fla., December 25, 1913.

To the Chronicle: When I first arrived here I had an attack of bowel trouble same as some others in our party; was quite bad for four days. After that I grew better very rapidly and have gained ten pounds by the scales in one month. Am much stronger and sleep much better than when I left Cass City. We had a few nights that were pretty cool from a north wind, but it always got from 70 to 83 during the day. Was 83 yesterday, but rained at four this morning, and a strong breeze today, though it is comfortable without a coat.

We had the most tender lettuce and beets for dinner you ever tasted. Vegetables grow so quickly here, they are wonderfully tender and sweet. The people are all northern people, intelligent and very friendly. Oranges are 12c per dozen and apples 40c.

Fish and game are plentiful and they hunt deer and wild turkeys with an automobile. Some, when they read this, may ask what kind of tanglefoot I have been drinking, but it is a fact. Two hunters sit in the back seat of the machine and one in front. They start across the prairie, and when they start a deer or wild turkey, the machine is stopped quickly and the hunters fire right from the

Miss Elsie De Wolfe Fights Income Tax.

MISS ELSIE DE WOLFE.

Miss Elsie De Wolfe in her rather short career has played many parts—first society woman, then actress for a short time, then interior decorator with an enviable reputation on both sides of the Atlantic, and now she is the first woman to fight the new income tax.

Speaking of the injustice of this tax, Miss De Wolfe said recently, "I made my money, and I'll see if the government can take away a percentage of it that is not in proportion to that taken from those with larger incomes."

This is the defense of Miss De Wolfe to the United States. She has brought a test case in the federal courts which is expected to have a far-reaching effect.

Miss De Wolfe says that she never inherited a dollar and all that she has has been spun by her own brain. "I think, then," said Miss De Wolfe, "that the great fortunes of the country should be taxed in proportion to that of the woman who makes her own fortune. I am simply questioning the legality of the government deducting from my purse."

Miss De Wolfe in her early work was associated with the late Stanford White in the decoration of the Colony club, the fashionable woman's club of Gotham. She has done work for Miss Anne Morgan and other well known people of wealth and cultivation.

Twenty years ago Miss De Wolfe and Miss Elizabeth Marbury, another successful business woman, began living together in the old Washington Irving house in New York city, which the former transformed into an ideal home. To this establishment they eventually added the Villa Trignon, at Versailles, France, which since Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's death his daughter Anne has shared with Miss De Wolfe and Miss Marbury.

This is also a wonderfully beautiful home which has excited much interest and where the three ladies live as bachelor maids. The two acres of the Villa Trignon adjoin the park of Versailles. In the deed there is a very interesting clause reserving a right of way to the king. The old lease goes back to 1750.

The "salle de verdure," or outdoor drawing room, is Miss De Wolfe's especial joy, and she regards the trelis which surrounds it as her best piece of work. It is a bit of old world beauty in the shadow of the magnificent palace of the grand monarch.

Richest Princess Lives in Cheap House.

The richest princess in the world is Princess Victoria Louise, the newly wed bride of Prince Ernst August. The Kaiser presented his daughter with a dowry of about $2,000,000. This sum exceeds by $750,000 any marriage portion previously given to a princess of the house of Hohenzollern.

Prince Ernst August, until the death of his father, the Duke of Cumberland, will receive $1,000,000 per year, but after he succeeds to the dukedom his income will be more than $2,000,000 per year.

In spite of all this wealth, however, the young royal couple are starting out simply enough in their married life. They will live as tenants in a house at Rathenow, the rent of which is said to be only $750 per year.

Women in Action.

Wishing to be able to say truthfully that she was "over eighteen," a Fort Collins (Colo.) girl placed a slip of paper with the figures 18 on it in her shoe when she applied for a marriage license.

Miss Margaret Delmont of Chicago, finding her purse had been stolen at Menominee, Wis., walked to St. Paul, carrying her heavy suit case all the way, a distance of seventy-four miles.

Leaving behind them the irksome tasks of office life, the three Silverton sisters have spent a year on a fifteen acre ranch near Eureka, Cal., and have made a good living and prospered far beyond their expectations.
