UNION REVIVALS OPEN AUSPICIOUSLY

EVANGELIST ANDREWS GIVING STRONG SERMONS.

Great Religious Awakening Is Anticipated. Prof. Coffin Has Splendid Chorus.

Hot Shots.

The following are some "Hot Shots" by Evangelist J. B. Andrews:

If you want to be a worthy witness for Christ there are three essential qualifications. The competent witness must possess
knowledge, willingness and courage.

Religion is like the measles.
When you have a genuine case,
it breaks out all over you.

When a person asks me of I think he has religion, it is not necessary to answer the question. I know he hasn't. You can't have real religion without being positive about it.

A 16-year-old boy with his first case of puppy love, who don't earn more than $25 or $30 a month, will spend more on soda water, candy, show tickets and buggy rides for that little sweetheart of his than some of your stingy church folks
will spend on your Lord Jesus Christ in a whole year.

Some of you people speak of your love for your Lord Jesus Christ as though you were ashamed of Him.

I have known church members who would spend $10 on one night's pleasure, yet if you would ask them to give that amount for home missions they would think you had lost your mind.

You can go down the street and stand around talking politics all day and nobody thinks anything strange about it, but if you would go down the street and talk religion all day everybody would say that you had gone crazy and insist that you be taken to the foolish house.

The religion of some people remind me of an old fashioned pump
You have to take water along to prime it.

You needn't be standing out against Jesus because some church members are not right. We never expect to get them all right. That trouble was encountered right at the beginning of the Christian era with Judas, and it almost happened with Peter.

The temptations of the dance
are the most insidious that confront the young people of our churches today. The devil always leads the revelry.

Cass City is at the threshold of a practical religious awakening such as it has not experienced for a long time. The undertaking of this great work is in charge of Evangelist J. B.
Andrews of Siloam Springs, Arkansas.
The evangelist is a preacher of wonderful force and rare accomplishments behind him being a broad history of a man who does things and never falls down in his attempt to make good in his undertaking.

Last Sunday, Evangelist Andrews preached his first two sermons in this city as preliminary to the work
he has come to Cass City to accomplish, and they were strong presentations of gospel truths, inspiring, soul-stirring.

Rev. Andrews has an interesting personality. While some of his say-

Prof. Harold R. Coffin.

ings are reminiscent of the late Rev.
Sam Jones, he is in no sense an imi-tator of the great Georgian divine.
His methods and his mannerisms are wholly his own, and in some instances they are almost startling. For instance, even in this twentieth century, it takes a great deal of nerve power for a Methodist clergyman to appear in the pulpit wearing a red necktie, patent leather shoes and a four-button sack coat, yet that was

STRIFLER-McPHAIL.

Angus McPhail and Miss Lillian Striffler, two young people well known at Argyle and vicinity, stole a march on their friends and were quietly married Wednesday, January
7, at the M. E. parsonage of Rev.
Olmstead at Detroit. The wedding service was performed on the forty-seventh wedding anniversary of the groom's mother, Mrs. Neil McPhail, of Argyle.

The bride had been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. A. Sandham, at Cass City and last Tuesday
went to Detroit, where she met Mr. McPhail and the ceremony was performed. The couple will make their home on the groom's farm, 1½ miles north of Argyle.

MORE DIVORCES, LESS MARRIAGES

ONE DIVORCE TO EVERY 8 MAR-RIAGES IN 1913.

Tuscola County Marriages Show Decrease of 35 Per Cent in 1913
When Compared with 1912.

Petitions for divorce were much more numerous last year than in 1912
in Tuscola county while the number of marriages showed a decrease. Statistics from the office of County Clerk Brown give surprising figures in the marriage relation in Tuscola county
and are the subject of grave thoughts
on this important subject.

In 1912, 328 marriage licenses were issued by the clerk and divorce petitions were requested for 45 couples,
or one divorce petition to seven marriages. Out of the 45 petitions, 23 divorces were granted that year, an average of one separation to every 14 couples united. In 1913, 244 marriage licenses were granted and 61
petitions for divorce were entered,
making one divorce request to every four marriages. Out of the 61 petitions, 33 decrees were given, an average of one divorce to every seven or eight marriages in 1913.

The number of marriage licenses issued last year shows a decrease of 26 per cent when compared with 1912.
Divorce petitions filed with the county show an increase of 35 per cent in 1913 over the preceding year, and the number of divorce decrees granted in 1913 was 43 per cent greater than in 1912.

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT

Shadow Pictures Amuse Members of Woman's Study Club.

On Friday evening, January 9, the Woman's Study Club enjoyed the second social evening of this season's program. Mrs. Charles Wilsey entertained the guests at her spacious home and the committee in charge had "Anything Under the Sun" from which to choose their entertainment.
Shadow pictures cast upon a screen
was the unique result of their choice
and very grotesque and mirth provoking pictures were presented to the view of the guests. Several nursery rhymes, such as, "Little Miss Muffet," "Jack and Jill," "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son," and "The Queen of Hearts," were taken as a theme for the first pictures. Mrs. I. B. Auten read the lines and members of the committee, assisted by Charles Wood and Miss Dorothy Tindale, enacted the comedy or drama. Then several others, "The Fisher Boy," "The Dentist" and "A Serious Operation," were excellently performed.

The one which interested and delighted the club members most was entitled "The Young Man Waited," a poem, descriptive of a young man waiting in the parlor for a young lady, who is in her dressing room.
This was read and very ably acted in such a manner as appealed to all the ladies. After spending a delightful time with the shadow pictures, a dainty and delicious luncheon
was served, consisting of creamed chicken, rolls, pickles, coffee, ice cream and assorted cakes.

LITERARY CONVULSIONS

Being a Series of Dementia Hallucinations Reported Semi-Occasionally for the Chronicle by Ernest C. Foster. Copyrighted 1913 by the Foster Service.

DOMESTIC FELICITY.

Domestic felicity is that peculiar condition into which married life evolves when the grocery bill and relatives get more of the dinner tables conversation than clubs and matinees. It gives the husband permission to use the fern bowl as a cuspidor if he chooses, and assures her it is alright to pare potatoes with his safety razor. It has been known to make life bearable for widowed mothers-in-law and has kept children
out of detention homes.

Domestic felicity sticks better in homes where the marriage certificate is framed and hanged up than where it is chucked into a trunk and sent to the attic. It doesn't make much of a hit with society and the neighbors, but it insures a good appetite, prevents wrinkles, and saves attorney fees. It also induces sound sleep, and routs nightmare in which

loss fortunate husbands find themselves murdered and their wives gone
with the chauffeur.

This rare gift is usually found among the wedding presents when the bride and groom have a mutual interest in the event, but is almost invariably overlooked when the attraction is staged by a maiden aunt of the leading lady, or by a wealthy uncle of the actor in conventional black.

Domestic felicity has greater stamina in a cozy little home than anywhere else. It can stand a short honeymoon, but always is in danger when abroad. Once affected, it is impaired for life. It can, by careful nursing, be kept alive, but its weakened constitution will be susceptible to every little irritation, and the first headache or soggy biscuit will be very likely to close its eyes in its last, long sleep.

FREIGHT SERVICE SLICED

P. M. R. R. Cuts Off Many Trains;
Shippers up in Arms.

Pere Marquette freight shippers on the line of the S. T. & H. division are up in arms because the freight service has been cut in two. Previous to this week there has been a train in and out on the division, but Supt. J. L. Hayes has directed that the service hereafter and until business warrants be a train in one day and out the next.

Bad Axe shippers are very much disgusted with the service. There have been as high as 24 trains a week; under the present arrangements, there will be but six, three in and three out, unless some special freight demands increased attention.

In speaking of the curtailment
Supt. Hayes says the business offered would not support the service that had been given.

MRS. MATTHEW GILLIES.

The funeral services of Mrs.
Matthew Gillies of Sheridan will be held Friday morning from the Catholic church at Sheridan and interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery.
Rev. Fr. Dolan will conduct the services.

Sarah Ross was born in Scotland
in 1837 and came to West Williams,
Ontario, when about 17 years old.
While living here she was married to Matthew Gillies and in 1873 or 1874
they moved to Sheridan township.
Seven children, 4 sons and 3 daughters, were born of and of these only 3
are living. They are Angus Gillies, who is in the State Hospital at Pontiac, Mrs. Richard Honsinger of Grand Rapids and Mrs. John Ball of Sheridan. She also has a brother, Findlay Ross of Cass City and two sisters, Mrs. J. F. McEachin of Sheridan and Mrs. Donald McLeod of Detroit. Mrs.
Gillies has been ill for only a week
but from the first her recovery was doubtful for her age was against her and she died Tuesday morning.

ASKS THAT BUILDINGS BE INSPECTED

TO BRING ABOUT BETTER AND SAFER CONDITIONS.

Churches, Schools and Other Public Buildings Should Be Given Special Attention.

Geo. W. Seed, chief of the local fire department, has received a request from John T. Winship, state fire marshal, that Mr. Seed make a thorough personal inspection of all public buildings in Cass City.

The letter reads as follows:

"The terrible disaster at Calumet
Christmas Eve in which many women and children lost their lives and entire families were wiped out within a few moments, clearly demonstrates that it is not necessary for an actual fire to occur to cause a panic with awful results. The catastrophe in the Northern Michigan city has been the means of bringing many complaints to this department calling
our attention to the unsafe conditions
in many of the public buildings in various cities and towns throughout the state. In a large number of churches and in many halls and edge rooms located on second and third floors sufficient exits and fire-escapes are not installed to prevent a repetition of the Calumet horror in case of a fire
or panic.

"I feel certain that you will gladly co-operate with this department in bringing about better and safer conditions in your city that never again will the state of Michigan be visited with a like calamity which has shocked the entire world and I am asking you at this time to make a thorough personal inspection of public buildings in your city, especially in the buildings where women and children are employed. Churches, schools and other buildings where large crowds are frequently assembled should be given special attention and reports of conditions found and your recommendation in each case filed with this department will be given my immediate attention.

"Of course, you understand that owing to the small appropriation for the State Fire Marshal Department as compared to appropriations of many other states, we must rely on the co-operation of local fire authorities to assist in bettering conditions where danger exists. While it is impossible for the department to extend any remuneration to local fire officials in the work we are asking you to do, we believe that in the general interest of humanity, you will be perfectly willing to give of your time towards this important achievement."

CRAMTON TO AID OF OLD SOLDIERS

SUFFERING CAUSED WHEN PEN-SION PAPERS ARE DESTROYED.

Cramton Planning Bill Allowing Veterans to Get Pensions When Vouchers Are Lost.

Congressman Louis C. Cramton of Michigan will soon be on record as a friend of the old soldier. He is preparing a bill providing that veterans who lose their pension vouchers or have them destroyed in any manner,
may still receive their pensions without an unreasonable delay. Under the present laws and regulations of the treasury department if an accident of this kind happens the soldier is compelled to wait for three and sometimes six months. This long wait sometimes works quite a hardship.

The matter was brought to the attention of Mr. Cramton by George H.
Bowen of Imlay City, Mich., who wrote explaining that the mail sack containing the pension vouchers of himself and two other veterans was run over by a train, and its contents totally destroyed. Mr. Cramton looked the matter up at the pension bureau,
the disbursing office and treasury department and found how things worked in such a case. He found that in case any check on the United States treasury was lost or destroyed a duplicate cannot be issued until the lapse of six months if the check is for more than $50, and not sooner than 30 days if the check is for less than $50. The secretary of the treasury by regulation has extended the time to three months in the latter case.

As a matter of fact most of the old soldiers receive $50 a quarter or more under the present laws giving pensions for age and length of service.
Consequently in case of loss they must wait six months for their money.
In many instances the veterans depend largely on their pension as a means of support and such a wait is a real calamity. The Cramton bill will provide that in cases of old soldiers
a duplicate check may be issued within 30 days. Mr. Cramton believes this will afford ample protection to the government, especially as the soldier in any case is compelled to file a bond when the duplicate is issued.

Harbor Beach Man Pays Taxes in One-cent Coins.

It is nice to be the milk man. For the past few days Henry Kleinknecht of Harbor Beach has been working a system for saving Lincoln pennies to create a fund to pay his taxes. Thursday, says the Times, he made his way to the treasurer's office with a grain bag containing 25 pounds of one cent coins, containing $4.50. If the pennies were placed in a straight line they would reach 210 feet, and if placed in one pile the total height
would be 210 inches.

The work was given out and some had hose to mend, some crocheting, while others worked button holes, etc. Soon leaflets were given out on which was drawn a white elephant and prizes were given to the one who formed the most words contained in the words "White Elephant." Mrs. F. Palmer won first and Mrs. H. Gage, booty. The discarded parcels were then distributed and much laughter was created when the packages were opened. Luncheon was then served in baskets in regular picnic form. Each basket contained some noisy souvenir. Facts About Thread.

Do you ever stop and think when you are sewing away of an afternoon, what a wonderful thing is the thread?

To begin with, it is made in large factories and there, too, are manufactured the wooden spools on which it is wrapped for the market. Perhaps you have wondered why thread is numbered. This is to distinguish between the different kinds of thread.

No. 1 is the heaviest cotton thread. It takes 840 yards of this to weigh a pound. With this as a basis, No. 50 must be exactly fifty times as fine as No. 1—in fact, any number you find marked on a spool of cotton signifies that the cotton is precisely that many times finer than No. 1.

The highest number in general use is 100. Of course you know that there are three different kinds of thread—cotton, linen and silk.

Moonshines.

At the beginning of our new year it is interesting to note how the Indians measure time. They count from one full moon to the next. For the year they count twelve moons, and then they add one more, which they call the "lost moon," thus making thirteen moons in all to a full year. The Indians have a different name for each month. They call the month of January the "cold moon," February is the "snowy moon," March the "green moon," April the "moon of plants," and May the "moon of flowers." June is called the "hot moon," July the "moon of the deer," August the "sturgeon moon" and September the "fruit moon." October is known as the "traveling moon," November the "beaver moon" and December is named the "hunting moon." Apples of Gold.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

FOR quick money-making, with small investment and easy work, no branch of farm industry surpasses pork raising. No feature can fit better into a little farm program, and no line of production is safer and more profitable on a large place.

Hogpens may be of the most inexpensive kind, but they must be kept clean. They need to be proof against drafts and storms. Clean premises also are essential in guarding against disease. Two or three acres of rape and an acre of artichokes will provide practically all the fodder required by twenty-five pigs from weaning till fattening time.

If a supply of skim milk or whey is available it will pay to use it, and a light ration of corn or peas once a day will be a help. The rape and artichokes may be depended on to bring the animals on at a fair rate of growth all summer. Liberal feeding of corn for three or four weeks before marketing will assist weight and quality of flesh. Any amateur can grow the crops named and manage a drove of pigs.

There is a distinct public demand for the meat of lightweight hogs ranging from 200 to 300 pounds. The most profitable pork is that grown in eight to ten months, or from April to December, so that there is little winter feeding, and most of the growth is obtained from field forage.

Perhaps as good a plan as any is to market twenty out of twenty-five hogs late in the fall and carry over the remaining five until they are sixteen to eighteen months old. The bacon market calls for the larger animal, and prices are apt to be higher in the late winter months than in the fall. All the breeds of hogs have their advocates. For general purposes nothing is better than to use dams of Chester White, Tamworth or Duroc type, crossed with males of the Poland, China or Berkshire variety. This kind of breeding will give large litters and good sized animals.

In this country the most popular breed has been the Poland-China. This breed has many good characteristics. It is a rapid grower, makes good use of food supplied and can be kept ready for market at any time, either as a sucker, porker or baconer. The litters are rather small, however, and for this reason, as well as to get a more range animal for general purposes, farmers are disposed to cross the breeds. The selection of the male is of great importance, as he directly influences every pig one may have to fatten, and it depends on his breeding very largely whether or not the pigs can make profitable use of the food given them. As in the case of all sires, the male should be pure bred, of approved strain, both with regard to capacity to put on flesh rapidly and to influence the sow in the production of large litters.

The dam need not necessarily be pure bred, provided she is of a good type. She should be selected from a prolific mother, as fecundity is hereditary. The teats should number at least twelve, fully developed, set well apart, even in size, and the front teats well forward on the body. The number of teats does not indicate always the number of pigs she is likely to have. Sometimes sows with ten or eleven teats will have large litters.

Whether on range or in pen, hogs should have a medicinal ration made up as follows: One pound each of wood charcoal, sulphur, salt, baking soda and sulphide of antimony. Pulverize and mix thoroughly. Use a tablespoonful daily for each pig from the time they are old enough to run in the field. Add a tablespoonful of bone-meal for each animal and mix the whole lot with enough moistened meal or bran to make a palatable mess. Clean water and shade are essentials. Dipping also is advisable. In cases of sickness keep those affected away from the sound ones and take prompt action to prevent the spread of disease.

Whitewash.

The following formula for whitewash has been recommended by the United States department of agriculture:

Take half a bushel of unslaked lime, slake it with boiling water and cover during the process to keep in steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer and add to it a peck of salt previously dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot, half a pound of Spanish whiting and one pound of clean glue previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then hanging over a slow fire in a small pot hung in a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well and let it stand a few days covered from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose it can be kept in a kettle or a portable furnace. Coloring matter may be added as desired. Where a less durable whitewash will answer the above may be modified by leaving out the whiting and glue.

An Odd Legacy.

Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the Jefferson family of actors, was remembered curiously in the will of Weston, who was himself an esteemed member of Garrick's company. Weston's will contained this item:

"I have played under the management of Mr. Jefferson at Richmond and received from him every politeness. I therefore leave him all my stock of prudence, it being the only good quality I think he stands in need of."

BIG 1914 AUTO SHOW TO BREAK ALL RECORDS

Thirteenth Annual Exhibition
Under the Auspices of the Detroit Automobile Dealers'
Association Will Surpass
All Previous Ones.

Will Be Held in New Ford Branch
Building, Opening January 17,
Closing January 24.

Good cars with good points will prevail at the thirteenth annual automobile show of the Detroit Automobile Dealers' Association, to be held in the new show building at the corner of Woodward avenue and the Boulevard, opening January 17, which is Saturday night next, and closing the next Saturday night. Cars of great beauty will be the rule and not the exception and he who tries to make himself believe that it will be the same old show of previous years will have another thought after he has traversed the aisles of the three floors of the new show building and after he has either literally or in his mind's eye attempted to pick out just the car to suit himself, his good wife and the children. For all are good cars for 1914, all are pretty cars for 1914, and each car has its own good talking points and worth considering.

1914 Cars Are All Good.

There are cars and cars, and all good, so a selection is made with difficulty and after much consideration. At the New York show, which closed Saturday night, intending buyers found so much to see, so much to discuss in the privacy of the home before buying; so many points to consider that the attendance night after night was an improvement upon the previous night. There was a reason, for buyers returned for more study.

Selection No Easy Matter.

And so it is going to be at the Detroit show, where will be seen all of the greatest exhibits of the New York show, transported bodily to this city for exhibition in the heart of the automobile industry before going to Chicago. It's a great game, this selection of a car, and especially is this true for 1914. Why? Well, because it's up to him who would have the question answered to make many visits to the coming exhibition. The reply is going to be made by the questioner and not by the other man. "Cars is cars," as one man remarked at New York, and then again he pondered and rubbed the dollars in his pocket against other dollars and waited until he could go over them all once more and consider. The 1914 product of the manufacturer was made to create new sales. To refinements of construction, so often talked about in previous years, and a reality, of course, was added beauty and that word should be snuffed with a capital B, for it means much. Few cars for 1914 compare in appearance with cars of previous years, for lines have been adopted for the body, for the hood, the top and for everything else that follow what is termed stream lines—lines of real beauty and lines that count. America has been manufacturing years in the past for utility and no better were made, and with utility gained through years of experience the makers started in 1913 to devise for 1914 the acme of the car builders' art, and succeeded.

Many Features Which Add to Comfort.

On the cars for 1914 will be found tops that one man or one woman may operate without assistance. This feature has been generally adopted, and so-called "One Man" tops and "One Lady" tops are a feature that will be appreciated. By simplifying the operation of putting up and lowering the top the car makers and top makers have done much to remove from motoring one feature that was ever objectionable. The bringing in of the curtains that collapse and are held at the top until wanted and which may be lowered and put in place in half a minute has also aided greatly towards the comfort of the driver and his guests. Another feature which will be found on many cars for 1914 will be the enclosed speedometer drive. Instead of the unsightly wheels with huge teeth, noisy as a rule, the speedometer cable goes straight to the speedometer, making impossible any noise and adding greatly to the appearance of the car. On the new model cars there will also be found increased brakes, working internally. Cantilever springs will add much to the comfort of the riders. One of the greatest additions to a number of the 1914 models is the electric gear shift, making unnecessary shifting levers. This is the outgrowth of long experimenting, and the success of this feature has been one of the wonders of the age in motorcom. Another addition that is going to be appreciated will enable the use of the low grade fuels sold nowadays, with the minimum of trouble the heating of the carburetor intakes.

Improvements Found in 1914 Models.

Even kerosene may be burned in several cars through the addition of this heating device. Pistons, too, for 1914 are going to be flat and cylinder heads are going to be detachable, allowing of the easy removal of carbon. The six-cylinder car is going to be popular for another year and light six-cylinder cars are going to be found to a greater degree than last year. Fuel tanks are to be found in the eowl dash on many cars and at the rear in others, while some have tanks in both places, enabling the carrying of a greater quantity of gasoline. One of the other features noticeable is the elimination of the troublesome side lamp, the headlights having been made to combine the advantages of both the small and the large light in one. On some cars the small lamps are worked right into the wind shields, which are moulded and concave as a rule. In the car designs the cabriolet pattern, imported from France and closely copied in this country, promises to be a feature. The cabriolet is a closed car when desired or an open car by dropping the back. As in England, the makers are coming to the small bore, high speed motor. Practically every car will be found with left hand control. Two of these features are American, the six-cylinder motor and left hand control, as few have adopted either among the European makers.

Sixes Prove Popular.

One of the great surprises of 1914 is the unparalleled advance of the medium priced light-weight six-cylinder car. Makers who last year brought out their first six-cylinder cars have added light sixes to their line for 1914. Among the new six-cylinder creations that stand out as being the first efforts of builders who have heretofore confined their efforts to the production of fours, are the Buick, Abbott-Detroit, the Imperial and many others, and prominent among those who have already made a name for themselves and who have turned their attention to the production of the lighter six-cylinder models are the Chalmers, Oakland, Lozier, Hudson, Marmon, Franklin and others.

Many new cars will make their first appearance this year, including the Chandler, the Partin-Palmer, the Carnation and, of course, the cyclecars.

Few Cycle Cars Will Be Exhibited.

Some disappointment may be expressed over the few cyclecars that will be seen at the shows, but the cyclecar makers were not prepared. The few cars that will be shown will be centers of attraction, for there can be little doubt of the interest in these little creations of the car builders' brains. The manufacturers of today and of the future have found that to bring out a new model in this field is even more difficult than to bring out a new model of any standard make as every part for the present must be manufactured, as the parts makers have had to prepare for the great business which is coming, and that takes time. However, there will be many of the "early birds" at the show and these will attract enough attention to make their exhibits worth while and inspection interesting.

A land slide marks the adoption of the left hand steer. For many years this form of steer was talked about, and discussions arose which were acrid, but the buyers liked the steering on the left side and found it advantageous, and consequently the makers fell into line gradually for a time, but for 1914 practically all of them have it as a feature.

When the closed door cars came in three years ago the balance of the design of the body did not fit and makers railed at the unsightliness of the combination of old lines of hood with the new. Unbroken lines from stem to stern now prevail, and the stream line effect has been beautifully worked out, as will be seen. The wedge principle is seen in these new bodies, for with the narrowing of the front came the widening of the bodies at the rear. The elimination of the side lamps removed one unsightly effect of every car in the past, while the attention given to the fitting of the fenders and to their shape has again added beauty. But the cars will have to be carefully studied to enable the motorists to learn every point that is new and interesting and the show will see all on display.

RAINY DAISY ATTIRE.

What the Smart Girl
Wears In Stormy Weather.

THE NEWEST STORM COAT.

Doesn't she look natty and, as our English cousins would say, "fit" in her rainy day costume? It's the newest thing out in bad weather attire, and for the matter of that it is quite in place for motor or railroad traveling in any kind of weather.

The material used in this big, roomy ulster is melton cloth in a dark shade of navy blue. The hat is of cloth, as are the gaiters which protect milady's dainty little feet.

New Playing Cards.

Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, society leader and author and leading authority on the history of playing cards, is soon to appear in the role of an inventor.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer has devised a pack of playing cards each one of which will bear the etching in black and white of a distinguished woman. Historical legends will appear below. There will be four suits, the emblems of which will be a crown, a serpent, a Maltese cross and the Liberty bell. The crown denotes royalty and appears on cards bearing the etchings of women of royalty. Upon those bearing the serpent, denoting immortality, appear noteworthy women, and upon cards bearing Maltese crosses will appear oppressed women and upon the Liberty bell American women. Each of the last named cards will bear the inscription, "Taxation Without Representation."

The cards were intended for educational purposes, and although they may be used for certain games, they are so made that they will not appeal to the gambler. The idea is entirely novel.

Milady's Motorcar.

There are several innovations being made at present with regard to the fittings and upholstery of motorcars, more especially in those designed for milady's use.

Some of the latest models, instead of being upholstered in the usual dark colored leather, are being lined with velvet or cloth in exquisite shades, calculated to harmonize well with the toilets of the fair owner.

One lovely model was upholstered in dull silver gray velvet with the fittings of oxidized silver, the latter being far prettier and less ostentatious than those made entirely of polished silver or plate.

The cushions, two square and one oblong, the latter nicely adjusted to fit into the small of the back when on a long and tiring drive, were covered in the same velvet, with the monogram embroidered in silver and gray thread in one corner.

The foot rest, with its tin lined interior making a comfortable warmer in the cold weather, was also covered in gray.

Hat Spoiled Eyes.

Women should beware of the hat which shades the eyes.

"Hats which obstruct the vision of the wearer weaken the eyes," said a doctor recently.

"A girl of eighteen who wears the 'beehive' or other overhanging hat will find that by the time she is twenty her sight is almost as weak as that of an old woman."

Another doctor, when shown two models of the beehive hats which are so popular among women nowadays, said that such hats not only weaken the sight, but also induce baldness through being worn so close to the scalp.

Rules For Girls.

Look your best by all means, but be your best also.

A healthy girlhood is the best foundation for a happy life.

Know about cooking, housekeeping and domestic economy.

Remember that a good daughter makes a good wife.

Accept only the best men as your husbands, paying as much attention to their character as to their personal appearance.

Northern Michigan Grown Seed Beans

BEANS in this part of the state were so badly damaged last season from blight and rust, we have purchased a carload of Northern Michigan Grown Seed Beans. These beans are free from rust and blight. Farmers who purchased this seed last year got from ten to fifteen bushels more beans to the acre than those who used home grown seed, in some instances receiving $25 to the acre more for their beans than their neighbors who used home grown seed.

The sins of the fathers fall upon the bean crop as well as the human family, and the only way to raise beans free from blight and rust is to secure outside seed grown on sandy land, free from diseases that have gotten in our home crop the past few seasons. Let us have your orders early. Sample can be seen at our office.

Cards and dancing were the evening's amusements and luncheon was served. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson, who expect to move from their farm to Cass City, were presented with a set of silver knives and forks as a small remembrance of the high esteem given them by their neighbors.

The Venus Rebekah Lodge held their installation of officers at the lodge rooms, Friday evening and the following officers were installed: Past Noble Grand, Lillian Goff; Noble Grand, Mrs. Belle West; vice Grand, Mrs. Lizzie Brian; recording secretary, Mabel Brian; financial secretary, Mrs. Eleanor Usher; treasurer, Mrs. Eliza Schwaderer; right supporter to Noble Grand, Mrs. Margaret Hendricks; left supporter to Noble Grand, Mrs. Cora Striffler; right supporter to Vice Grand, Mrs. Daisy Heller; left supporter to Vice Grand, Mrs. Kate Bailey; warden, Mrs. Sarah Caldwell; conductor, Jennie Gardner; Chaplain, Mrs. Minnie Benkelman; inside guardian, Mrs. Jessie Travis; outside guardian, Fannie Hendrick.

C. W. Heller sent his team to Bay Port the first of the week after a load of the household goods of his son, Earl Heller, who is moving to Cass City. The man driving the team stopped at the store early in the morning before starting on the trip and endeavored to awaken Mr. Heller by pounding on the stairway door which leads from Main street to the residence rooms over the store. Failing to accomplish his object there, he went to the rear of the store. Here he found a ladder, and using it, he ascended to the porch which extends from the rear of the second story. Knocking at the door which opens on to the porch, he succeeded in arousing the occupants. When Mr. Heller appeared, he found Marshal Hutchinson carefully inspecting the horses and the surrounding territory. When Mr. Heller assured the marshal that the horses belonged to him and that everything was alright, the officer turned disgruntled away and retraced his steps homeward. Evidently some of the neighbors thought that the man climbing to the second story via a ladder was bent on mischief and they were not slow in turning in an alarm to the marshal.

Dixie Land.

Where the southern states and the famous southern song derived the title "Dixie" is told in the history of the old Citizens' bank of New Orleans, which the London Financial Times gives. Prior to the war between the states the bank, which had power to issue paper notes, put out several millions of dollars in denominations of $10 and $20. The ten dollar bills were engraved in French, with the word "Dix" (ten) prominently featured on the back. The bills became known as "Dixies," and, this money becoming popular, Louisiana became known as "the land of the Dixies," and at last the term came to include all the southern states under the familiar "Dixie Land."

Concerning Amber.

Many children wear strings of amber beads about their necks, and very often they are curious as to where the pretty transparent yellow beads come from.

Amber is a fossilized vegetable resin, found in great abundance on the shores of the Baltic sea. It is derived probably from a variety of extinct tree. The word electricity comes from the Greek word elektron, which means amber, because amber becomes negatively electric when rubbed.

According to a very old fable, amber is the tears of the sisters of Phaethon, who, after his death, were turned into poplar trees. By some, amber is said to be a concretion of birds' tears.

Snowball Battle.

See the soldiers all in line!
Now the battle's on!
Every man will have to test
His mettle and his brawn.

Ammunition's piled up high
To use throughout the fray,
Which just begins when school is out
And ends at close of day.

The Big Snow fort is near at hand,
And soldiers, great and small,
Will strive to win the victory
With the powerful snowball.

UNION MEETINGS OPEN AUSPICIOUSLY

the sartorial innovation that Mr. Andrews presented.

In voice and facial expression, he strikingly reminds one of the high-class character actor of the modern drama. As an orator he possesses rare ability, a fervent reasoner and a most pleasing speaker. He is a combination of the comedian, the tragedian, theologian, the philosopher and the logician in the highest and most commendable degree, hence it will be seen that such a combination of forces cannot help but appeal to all classes, edifying and electrifying the hearers and therefore give due consideration to the forcible logic of this earnest man in his appeals for the uplift and betterment of humanity, peace on earth, good will to men, and the glory of the Master.

Rev. Andrews is frank in his expressions, but modest and persuasive and is not imbued with the spirit of intolerance, and rasping denunciations that cause the giggle and arouse a feeling of resentment in the men and women of Christian spirit and ethical demeanor so frequently the case with the itinerant, so-called evangelist. This divine appeals to the better nature of humanity, points out its duty in plain and logical language with the least possible offense to the hearer. He appeals to reason and not to the resentful forces of human character, hence his wonderful power and marvelous success in the noble work in which he is engaged. Were one to put in a sentence the thoughts of those who have heard the evangelist it would be this quotation, "It was good to be there."

Music a Feature.

Called to this city as the associate of Mr. Andrews is Prof. Harold R. Coffin, of Chicago, who will have charge of the music throughout the campaign. The professor began his work Monday night in organizing and drilling the large chorus and it was easily seen that this part of the service will be a big feature in the revival meetings. This well known and talented gospel singer and director of music comes from a family of musicians, his father being the voice teacher in the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. From childhood Mr. Coffin has been in a musical atmosphere. When but a wee lad he entered a large church choir and soon achieved distinction as the "Chicago boy soprano soloist." In his boyhood days he was presented with a gold medal, and at the World's Fair he was awarded another gold medal.

Prof. Coffin is thoroughly equipped for his high calling, being a college-bred man and having studied under many of the great teachers and musicians of the front rank. As a gospel singer, Mr. Coffin has achieved marvelous success, having sung with the leading evangelists, both of this country and England. Although he is a musician and a director of music, he frequently makes addresses and gives talks on special subjects, conducts classes and gives Bible readings.

When interviewed last evening, the professor stated: "I am very glad of the opportunity of coming to your city and I am already assured with the splendid representative body of young people who will work hand in hand with me to making the music a feature of these meetings. I anticipate a great meeting and one that Cass City will long talk about."

Review of Important Doings In Old World

Allies Quit Fighting; Turkey Gets Adrianople—Captain Scott and Brave Companions Perish

By JOHN J. BREEN.

WAR rumors of war, suffragette outrages, assassinations, aviation fatalities and the deaths of Captain Scott and four of his antarctic explorers made up the burden of the dismal news from abroad in the year that is at an end. Among the more cheerful tidings were the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of Emperor William and the wedding of Princess Victoria Louise of Prussia and Prince Ernst August of Cumberland.

For months the fight, or, rather, series of fights, between the allies and Turkey occupied the attention of all Europe, and for a time it was feared that some of the great powers would become involved. After they had soundly trounced Turkey the allies fell to quarreling among themselves. Following the signing of a peace pact in London, Roumania invaded Bulgaria, and then the allies, like Kilkenny cats, began to mix it up among themselves. Turkey viewed with ill concealed glee the fine old row that started among her former foes. All during the war with the allies Turkey insisted that she be permitted to hold Adrianople. Finally, when the allies ceased quarreling among themselves, Turkey gained her point and was awarded Adrianople. While as yet no final adjudication of the boundary lines has been signed, there has for months been a cessation of hostilities, and the powers have breathed easier. At one time the peace of entire Europe was threatened by the pugnacious smaller countries.

Early in the year the British house of commons passed the home rule bill for Ireland. This result was attended by joyous outbursts in the south of the country and hostile demonstrations in the north. Some days later the British house of lords rejected the bill by a vote of 325 to 69. This result had been looked for, but it was said that eventually Ireland would get home rule.

Early in February were started the events in Mexico which have caused more than their share of woe in the troubled republic and which threatened the country with intervention by the United States. A band of revolutionists, headed by Colonel Felix Diaz, besieged President Francisco I. Madero in his palace, and in a battle which ensued General Bernardo Reyes was killed. A few days later the Mexican revolutionists and government forces bombarded each other's positions with heavy artillery. The revolution gained fresh adherents, and when the government troops revolted Madero agreed to resign the presidency.

England In Turmoil Over Suffragette Campaign. Emperor William Celebrates Anniversary

Madero Shot to Death.

After Madero had been arrested by General Blanquet, one of his officers, General Victoriano Huerta, commander of the nationalist army, assumed the presidency. Two days later Madero and his vice president, Jose Pino Suarez, were shot to death while being conveyed from the national palace to prison. Huerta and his followers at once disclaimed any participation in the assassinations.

Huerta's rule was not to be peaceful long. He tried in vain to secure recognition at the hands of the United States. President Wilson refused to recognize the government that he set up. Henry Lane Wilson, ambassador to the troubled republic, was recalled and later tendered his resignation, which immediately was accepted by the president.

In the month of October relations between Mexico and this country became more strained. Provisional President Huerta of Mexico assumed the powers of dictator and dissolved congress. Foreign envoys in Mexico asked their governments to send warships to guard their legations. President Wilson demanded that Huerta resign and was met by a flat refusal. Vera Cruz viewed with concern the assembling of warships in her harbor. Near the border were massed thousands of United States troops.

Huerta was beset by enemies in his own land. Rebel forces won repeated victories, and there seemed to be foundation for the report that Huerta could expect no further financial support. A story to the effect that powerful English interests were helping Huerta was met by prompt denials. Apparently it was the purpose of the administration at Washington to let the rebels and low funds take care of Huerta.

On Feb. 10 the world was shocked at the news of the death of Captain Robert F. Scott and four of his companions while returning from an expedition in which they had discovered the south pole. The pole was reached March 29, 1912, and subsequently Scott and his companions perished in a blizzard. The bodies were found in a tent by a searching party. Captain Scott and his companions had run out of fuel and provisions.

Nazim Pasha, commander of the Turkish army, was killed in a political uprising which overthrew the government. On March 18 King George of Greece was assassinated by a Greek anarchist at Saloniki, and three days later King Constantine took the throne. Another statesman met death at the hand of an assassin in Sheket Pasha, Turkish grand vizier. He was slain in Constantinople.

Although there were several unions of royalty, the one that attracted the most attention was the marriage of Princess Louise, only daughter of the German emperor, to Prince Ernst August of Brunswick. The ceremony took place in the royal castle in Berlin and was attended in person or by representatives by all the crowned heads of Europe. Prince Ernst is a son of the pretender to the throne of Hanover, and his great-grandfather was one of the sons of King George III. of England.

Other unions of royal personages were those of ex-King Manuel of Portugal to Princess Augustine Victoria of Hohenzollern and Prince Arthur of Connaught, cousin of King George of England, to the Duchess of Fife. On the 15th day of June Berlin and all the cities of Germany were in gala attire to celebrate the twenty-fifth accession to the throne of Emperor William. On Aug. 18 the eighty-third birthday of Emperor Franz Joseph was celebrated throughout Austria and Hungary.

Suffragette Outrages.

England faced a serious situation in the campaign waged by the militant suffragettes. Railway stations were fired, mail boxes destroyed and bombs set off in many of the public squares. Arrests were freely made, but there didn't seem to be any letup in the campaign of violence. Those who were arrested began hunger strikes in jail and were hailed as martyrs. Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was sentenced to a three years' prison term, but later was released. Then she came to the United States. For a time she was held up as an undesirable at Ellis island, but finally was permitted to enter. Her reception in this country wasn't as enthusiastic as she had anticipated, and she didn't stay here long.

Several met death in attempted conquests of the air. Four officers and a pilot were killed when the French military balloon Zodiac burst at a height of 650 feet at Noisy-le-Grand, France. Captain S. F. Cody, British-American aviator, was killed at Aldershot, England, by the falling of a war aeroplane which he piloted for the government. Fifteen were drowned when Zeppelin airship L-No. 1 was wrecked by a hurricane over the North sea.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. M. SEEGER.

Presented by A. G. Houghton. She tarried here for such a little while,

A little while upon this mortal shore; She, who had come to earth with winning smile,

And left behind her heaven's open door For such a little while.

"She lived for years, for many years," you say—"Upon the earth, before she 'turned to go';"

But then, with her a year was as a day. For time flies swiftly, when we love, you know.

It was a little while. Her ways were tender and her nature kind, Her gentle choosing was the better part;

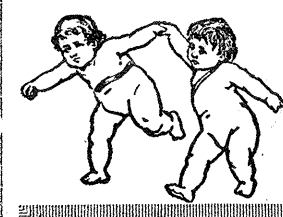

She found the good in all, and left behind Whatever savored of the stinging dart,—

Winning Dorothy

"The Only Fortunate One"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Bert Chesney arose from his seat at the head of the table and lifted his glass.

"Gentlemen," he said with flashing eyes. "I propose the health of the loveliest girl in the world!"

The toast was drunk in silence. It was a singular coincidence that each one of the seven friends who had gathered to celebrate Chesney's birthday was silently drinking to the same girl, beautiful Dorothy Fair. Perhaps Chesney himself guessed the fact. At any rate, his black eyes gleamed triumphantly as they rested on one face after another until they lingered on the homely, rugged countenance of Jasper Dane. Jasper's blue eyes were still tender with thoughts of Dorothy when Chesney's voice cut into the silence again.

"The health of the future Mrs. Robert Chesney!"

Again the brimming glasses were drained, and this time troubled glances sought one another, for the second toast following so closely upon the first suggested that Bert Chesney had won out in the race for Dorothy Fair's hand and heart.

There was a little confusion of voices after that. It was time to go home, and some of the young men were making their farewells.

Jasper Dane could hear Chesney's hearty voice breaking above the murmured words of his guests.

"Thanks, old man—glad of it—surely—I am to be congratulated!"

In this way Chesney accepted the perfunctory congratulations of his friends upon his engagement to Dorothy Fair. Jasper heard, and with dazed eyes looked straight into Chesney's bold ones.

"Good night, Chesney. Many happy returns of the day and congratulations, you know!"

"Thanks, Jasper. Yes, there isn't another girl in the world like her, is there, old man?" Chesney's eyes searched Jasper's grim face.

"There is only one girl in the world for each man," said Jasper soberly and went his way.

Bert Chesney stared after him. "What the deuce did that fellow mean?" he muttered savagely.

Jasper Dane disclaimed the taxicabs of his friends and tramped doggedly down the avenue toward his small bachelor quarters. When he had reached home and snapped on the electric light in his cozy little library he looked uncertainly at the telephone on the desk.

Beside Dorothy Fair's bed there was another telephone. He guessed that because once she had called him up at 2 o'clock in the morning to inquire if he had one of her gloves.

Jasper tossed aside hat and overcoat and sat down at the desk. In a few moments Dorothy's sleepy voice was answering him.

"Who is it? Whom did you say? Oh, Jasper! What is the matter?"

"Only this, Dorothy. I've been to Chesney's dinner party and—"

Dorothy's voice broke in pettishly. "Jasper Dane, do you know that you are the seventh man who has called up to congratulate me on my engagement to Bert Chesney? Won't tomorrow do? Really, I should like to snatch a few hours' sleep."

"I am sorry," said Jasper quietly. "Goodbye."

He moved away from the desk, his hands deep in his pockets. He paced the floor moodily.

This was the end of his steadfast wooing of Dorothy Fair! Only last night she had given him every encouragement, had even given him permission to come again tomorrow evening and impart some especially "wonderful" tidings of which she could not help guess the import, and now, twenty-eight hours later, to be exact, she had calmly admitted her engagement to Bert Chesney.

Poor, patient Jasper metaphorically threw up his hands and went to bed. He was done with women forever.

Professor Digby of the Fanshawe museum scanned Jasper's flushed face and resolute mouth with deep interest. "I am flattered by your offer, Mr. Dane," he said at last, "but I cannot understand why you, a prosperous young lawyer, should want to throw up a lucrative practice and go into the wilds of Africa with me. Of course there's plenty of sport in it, but you assure me that you are not a sportsman, and there's no end of hardship and danger."

"I want to go," said Jasper obstinately. "If you won't let me join your expedition, professor, I'll have to look up another one, but I am no end of a good photographer, and I could shoot dingbats and things with a camera, couldn't I?"

"That would be very interesting and very valuable," mused the professor. Suddenly he turned and shot a penetrating glance at Jasper's blim countenance.

"Who is she?" he asked blantly.

"Wh-what—what do you mean?" stammered Jasper, rising to his tall height.

"Sit down," said the professor kindly. "I always put that question to young men who want to go into the jungle—that is, unless they have a reputation as big game hunters. Lots of men are driven to travel and adventure because they can't get the particular girl they want, and they usually come home to find her grown fat and dumpy or plain and scrawny, and then they wonder why they ever left the comforts and pleasures of civilization for the primitive forests of the tropics. Don't be offended at my frankness, but take my advice, Dane, and stay at home. You won't regret it."

"I am the best judge of that," said Jasper haughtily.

"Very true," said Professor Digby urbanely. "Well, suppose you leave the matter open for one week, Mr. Dane. If at the end of that time you are still of the same mind I shall be happy to have you join my party as special photographer."

"I see no reason to change my mind," muttered Jasper as he returned to his office and flung open his desk. He spent the remainder of the day in going over his affairs and in planning how he could leave his practice in the hands of a brother lawyer. Fortunately there was nothing of importance on hand. If he could come back from Africa with the picture of Dorothy Fair erased from his heart he would be thankful. He thought of Professor Digby's words and smiled ruefully. Dorothy would never be anything but beautiful.

That very evening Dorothy Fair was surprised to receive a visit from her mother's cousin, Professor Digby of the Fanshawe museum.

"My dear Dorothy," began the professor in his stilted way, "I must beg of you to be a little more merciful."

"Merciful?" echoed Dorothy, her hazel eyes wide with astonishment.

"What do you mean, Cousin Peter?"

"You know, I am organizing a special expedition to central Africa, and of course I have had many applications from men who desire to belong to the party. It usually happens that way when any expedition is going out, but in this particular instance I have been overrun with applications."

"But what has that to do with me, Cousin Peter?" asked Dorothy, fearful of the wizened little man's sanity.

"This, my dear. These eight applications all arrived on the same day—that is, this very day. All of these young men are well known to me as being suitors for the hand of my lovely young cousin. Don't blush, Dorothy, you naughty child!"

"Of these eight applications only seven can be accepted. I am asking you to help me make a choice."

"Cousin Peter, I cannot!" cried Dorothy, with tears in her eyes. "I haven't really encouraged them, and if they are so silly to like a girl because of her eyes or the color of her hair I can't help it. There is only one—and, Cousin Peter, I never believed you could be so unkind!"

Professor Digby suppressed a little smile that trickled around his lips.

"There was one chap in particular that I wanted for my right hand man. He has plenty of nerve and grit. I've watched him since he was a boy, but he's sensitive. I told him to wait a day. To begin with, there was Bert Chesney, society man and all around sport. He might do in some minor capacity or just as a guest. Finley Bingham, Rob Blake, young Disher, Judge Barker's boy, Robinson and Medway. Seven of 'em, my dear, and a very handsome coterie, I may say."

"And the eighth one, Cousin Peter?" whispered Dorothy.

"Jasper Dane," said Professor Digby quietly.

The next morning Jasper Dane found on his desk a letter from Professor Digby. It read:

My Dear Dane—I am sorry to say that it will be impossible for me to consider your application to join my expedition to central Africa. I received eight applications for membership in the party, and as I could accept only seven I placed the list of eight names in the hands of an expert in such matters. Inclosed is the list, and you will see that my expert has drawn a line through your name, thus definitely deciding that you are not to be of my party. This I regret exceedingly, as you would have been my personal choice, but I hope that you will not take this disappointment to heart. The seven chosen men sail with me tomorrow, and I cannot help but consider that the one who is left at home is the only fortunate one. Faithfully yours, PETER DIGBY.

Below was a typewritten list of eight names, headed by that of Bert Chesney and ending with Jasper's own name. A heavy black line was drawn through Jasper's name, and he smiled bitterly as he saw it. Then a puzzled look came into his eyes as he scanned the names of the successful seven and realized that they represented the entire party which had gathered at Bert Chesney's birthday dinner.

Why were they all going to central Africa? Why was he left behind?

A line of crabbed handwriting straggled across the bottom of the page. He bent closely and read it with difficulty:

"I forgot to mention that the expert who decided that you must remain at home is my little cousin, Dorothy Fair."

Jasper caught up the telephone receiver and called for a number.

"Professor Digby?" he asked excitedly.

"This is Jasper Dane. Bon voyage, and thank you, may I say, Cousin Peter?"

The professor's dry cackle came over the wire:

"You are quite safe in calling me that, Jasper. By the time the expedition gets home I suppose it will be a fact. Good luck!"

And Jasper flung down the receiver and raced out of the office like a boy. Dorothy Fair had elected that he, out of the eight, should remain at home, and it meant only one thing, and he was going to make sure of it now.

PUPILS LEARN FARMING

Country Schools Begin Work in Agriculture Throughout the State.

Agriculture will be taken up this month, in every rural eighth grade in the state of Michigan as the State Course of Study requires the teaching of this subject for at least half a year in the rural schools. Last year was the first time this subject was specifically taught and despite the fact that few teachers were qualified to handle it, the results were most encouraging. This year bulletins issued by the Department of Public Instruction and the Michigan Agricultural College are available for the teachers.

The most effective work in agriculture by untrained teachers last year was in districts where the teachers frankly admitted their lack of expert knowledge but worked with the pupils in learning from bulletins, magazines and other available material and in doing actual experimental work in testing and planting seeds, and in the use of the Babcock tester and other farm equipment. The milk testers cost about four dollars each and may be used not only by the school but by the entire community as well.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM NEAR-BY TOWNS

County Clerk Schwalm issued 269 marriage licenses during the year 1913 in Huron county, an increase of 20 over 1912.

Frank Dyer, Caro jewelry man, was recently elected treasurer of the Caro lodge of Odd Fellows for the nineteenth consecutive term.

The runners of a sleigh in which Frank Beith and his aged mother were riding, caught in a railroad crossing at Minden City and the youth had just carried his mother to safety when a train demolished the vehicle.

Mrs. Phoebe Day Trotter, mother of Postmaster Trotter of Vassar, is dead at the age of 95 years. She had been a resident of Tuscola county since 1863.

W. H. Lankin has retired from the firm of Lankin & Dundas, hardware dealers at Bad Axe, and is succeeded by M. McAvoy of Saginaw. Mr. Lankin will move to Detroit where he will devote his time to the real estate business.

Safe crackers broke into the Pere Marquette depot at Marlette and rifled a strong box, getting between $55 and $60 in money. Several thousand dollars' worth of express orders were in the box, which were left unmolested. No trace of the men has been found.

The question of bonding the township of Caseville for $5,000 to build roads is being quite freely discussed and it looks as if the majority of the voters favor the deal. The proposition, no doubt will be submitted to the voters at the annual spring election.

County Drain Commissioner Henry Haley says he is preparing drains to let for 1914 in Huron county which will aggregate $250,000.00 or more. Of this amount extensions to state drain will cost $125,000.00 and Columbia and Brookfield $75,000.00. These extensions will cover nine miles of drain and part of the state drain will be 80 feet wide and as large as any in the state. Releases are being secured from the farmers for new rights of way so that other and important drains may be completed this year.

Unionville needs a strong street light near the P. M. depot judging from a recent incident at that point. The Crescent tells the story thusly: It is rumored that a petition is to be circulated to be presented to the Pere Marquette requesting a light to be put at the depot, so that people can see where and upon whom to bestow their caresses. Recently, when a prominent young professional woman, who is always met by her father, alighted from the evening train she embraced the first large gentleman she saw, and gave him a loving, tender kiss. Not receiving the usual style kiss, on a second look she discovered instead of it being her father, one of the very handsomest looking professional men of town, that it was one of the very homeliest traveling men that makes the village stores. "Land sakes alive, who was that I kissed?" said the young woman, while the traveling man excused himself for returning the kiss and swung on to the train rather pleased with his Unionville farewell.

MUST BORROW PROPERLY

School District Boards Cannot Secure Money Loans on Time Orders

Michigan banks are discovering that unless school boards make loans as prescribed by law, the districts cannot be held for the money. The statutes give to the board the authority to vote any amount of money necessary for the running expenses of the school and for any school furnishings and appurtenances deemed desirable. They also provide that when the tax is voted by the board and the money is needed before the tax can be spread and collected, the board may borrow on the strength of the tax voted a sum not to exceed the total of the tax. School treasurers have no right to honor orders, even if properly signed and countersigned, unless there is a sufficient amount in the particular fund upon which the order is drawn. If the fund is exhausted, money must be voted and borrowed. The tax will be spread the following October.

It has been customary in many places for district officers to give bonds and other parties advance time warrants or orders as security on which a loan is effected. Such warrants or orders are not binding upon the district. The only way for money to be secured on a loan is for the district board to vote the amount needed and authorize a loan on such amount.

HIGH SUGAR PERCENTAGE

Caro Plant Sliced Largest Tonnage; Sebewaing Paid Most Money.

In 1913 farmers who contracted for acreage with the Michigan Sugar company drew more money than for the corresponding period of a year ago, according to figures made public by General Manager W. H. Wallace.

The amount paid was $2,577,645.39. The number of tons of beets sliced does not show the increase as does the money paid out, this condition being due to the fact that the beets contained a higher sugar percentage. The yield was also better per acre.

The factory at Caro sliced the greatest tonnage, and the Sebewaing plant which sliced 4,000 tons less, paid out more money.
