DEATH CALLS TWO WELL KNOWN CITIZENS

ANDREW McKIM LAID TO REST
WEDNESDAY.

Funeral of Mrs. Thos. Hennessey Held at St. Agatha's at Gagetown Thursday.

Mrs Thos Hennessey.

Serious illness which lasted less than three days brought the death messenger to Mrs. Thos. Hennessey Monday and the sons and daughter residing in Pontiac and Detroit, coming home on the evening train, arrived but two hours before the dissolution. Mrs. Hennessey had been poorly for some time, but her death came so unexpectedly that several of her friends and neighbors in Elkland township did not hear of her serious illness until after death had released her from suffering.

Ellen Mullen was born in the Township of King, Ontario, on Feb. 18, 1848. In 1856 she moved with her parents to Greenock, Ont., and was there married to Thos. Hennessey on May 1, 1876. They resided there until 1880 and then moved to Elkland township, locating 1½ miles north of Cass City. Mrs. Hennessey resided here until life's journey ended peacefully Monday evening.

She was the mother of eight children, all of whom with the father were at the death bed. They are: Wm. C. and Thomas of Pontiac, Edward F., John J., Pat and Miss Gertrude of Detroit and Dan and Miss Julia, who are at home.

The funeral services were held at St. Agatha's church at Gagetown Thursday morning and interment was made in St. Agatha's cemetery.

Andrew McKim.

The funeral services of Andrew McKim were held Wednesday at 2:00 p. m. from the Baptist church and interment was made in Elkland cemetery.

Andrew McKim was born at Brockville, Ont., June 12, 1859, and during his boyhood days he made his home at various places in Ontario. While at Watford, he was married to Lucy Towles of Warwick township and one child, Lucy, now Mrs. Joseph Wage of Carsonville, was born. Mrs. McKim died shortly after this and in 1881, Mr. McKim moved to a farm in Novesta township where he made his home until two years ago. In August of 1882 he was married to Hannah R. Hawkins, who has been a loving wife and companion to him. In 1912, Mr. and Mrs. McKim left their farm home and purchased a home in this village. During this time, Mr. McKim has, with his brother, Elias, composed a firm of live stock dealers, which has made Cass City much of the trade center that it is and while engaged in business here he won many friends by the honesty and integrity of his dealings.

Mr. McKim has been in poor health for some time and last December he underwent an operation which seemed to help him and he was well along the road to recovery when a week ago Monday he was taken with a severe pain in his side. Dr. Luree, a specialist of Ann Arbor, was called here Friday and after an examination declared that everything possible had been done by the local physician. Death came Sunday at 1:45 p. m. after nearly a week of intense suffering which was borne patiently.

Besides his wife and daughter, he is survived by one brother, Elias McKim of this city and four sisters, Mrs. Augustus Bergqvist of Prescott, Mrs. C. J. Hall of Maple Ridge, Mrs. David Gould of Detroit and Mrs. Wm. Eymmer of Mangum. These were all present at the funeral and besides these, attending the funeral from out of town were Augustus Bergqvist and son, David of Prescott, Robert Vance, Mrs. Willard Lyman and Miss Hester McKim of Clifford, Miss Ora McKim of Mancelona and Mrs. W. H. Allan of Lake City.

BALL-RIED.

Floyd Ried and Miss Grace Ball were quietly married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Luther Souden, Wednesday at 1:00 p. m. Rev. John Willerton performed the ceremony and the bridal pair were assisted by Miss Edna Ball, sister of the bride, and Glenn Ried, brother of the groom. The bride wore a becoming gown of tan messaline.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the guests present and the young couple left on the afternoon train for a month's visit at Detroit and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will make their home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ball, on their farm, three miles east and 1½ miles north of Cass City.

Mrs. Ried is well known in this vicinity and was a member of the graduating class of 1912 of C. C. H. S. The groom is the son of I. K. Reid, living west of Cass City and has spent a number of years near Cass City.

LELAND POWERS MAR. 6

Talented Impersonator at Cass City
Next Friday Evening.

Leland Powers, who will be the last and the greatest attraction of the local lecture course, will appear at the opera house next Friday evening, Mar. 6. The strongest testimonial of Mr. Powers' ability is the large number of return engagements he has filled at important courses. At the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, Brooklyn, N. Y., he has been re-engaged 27 times, at the University of Michigan Star Course 18 times, at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, 26 times, at Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., 30 times, at the Chautauqua Assembly, Chautauqua, N. Y., 33 times, etc.

Wm. Dewitt Hyde, president of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, says: "Mr. Powers' rendering of David Copperfield was most enthusiastically received by the faculty and students of Bowdoin College. His impersonation of character, without the accessories of scenery and cast, is the quintessence of art. Incidentally, through careful selection of sentiments and situations to be represented, Mr. Powers leaves behind valuable moral impressions which can never be obliterated."

The Powers' date at Cass City was first announced as March 5, but has been changed to March 6. "David Garrick" will be the evening's subject. Seats will be on sale at Wood's Drug Store on Friday morning.—Adv.

The M. E. Ladies Aid will serve a 20-cent supper in the church parlors on Wednesday, Mar. 4. All are cordially invited to attend.

TUSCOLA EDITOR HEADS NEW SOCIETY

NEWSPAPER PEOPLE AT DETROIT
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Are Much Impressed by Visit to Giant Plant of Ford Auto Factory.

What is declared to be the most complete organization of printers and publishers ever effected in Michigan, was consummated Saturday in the board of commerce auditorium at Detroit.

United under the newly formed Michigan Press and Printers Federation are the members of the old Michigan Press Association, the Wolverine Press Association, the Western Press Association, the Northeastern Press Association, the Superior Press Association and the Michigan Cost Congress, a printers organization.

A. D. Gallery, of Caro, was elected president of the new federation, Fred Gage, Battle Creek, vice president; J. B. Haskins, Howard City, secretary; and E. J. McCull, Ithaca, treasurer.

The first meeting of the Michigan editors and printers was held in the Board of Commerce auditorium Friday afternoon, following a luncheon given the newspaper fraternity by the Board of Commerce. Don C. Seitz, business manager of the New York World, was the guest of the federation and addressed its opening session. Mr. Seitz told of the advantages to be gained by co-operation, and told of the experience of New York papers in this respect. He then discussed the newspaper business in general, and the small town paper in particular. His speech drew much laughter and applause.

Touching on the part a newspaper played in the life of this country Mr. Seitz told of having to face attacks by college professors and others who knew so much more about how newspapers should be run than the men who conduct them.

"I've got one question I always put up to an audience," said Mr. Seitz, "when the newspapers are attacked by a previous speaker. I ask what do newspapers print that is worse than what the public does? There isn't any answer to that."

"Often we receive protests that there was a very good lecture that we did not report in full. Our reply is, if you want to know all about birds, go to a natural history, not to the newspaper. The reason that we dismiss in a few lines a lecture in the art museum, and devote considerable space to the tipping over of a fire engine, is that a great many people saw that overturned fire engine and wondered who the man under it was. Moreover, it has been discovered that people like to be told something about what they are already somewhat familiar with. The paper that pays attention to home things is the paper that is most interesting."

"The average man doesn't read more than one-eighth of the paper. He reads only what interests him. Therefore the paper has to be divided into departments for his convenience. "The modern newspaper has nothing to apologize for, except when it assails a member of its own calling. It is freer today than ever before, because it is more prosperous, financially; it is a better public servant because it has increased the reading public so much and because it appeals to a wider community."

The newspaper men were entertained at Detroit theatres Friday evening and Saturday morning thoroughly enjoyed a trip through the immense factory of the Ford Auto Co. where they were given the opportunity of seeing the systematic and efficient organization of workmen and machinery which makes possible the manufacture of a complete Ford automobile every 30 seconds.

At the banquet, Saturday night, in the Griswold house given by Fred

LITERARY CONVULSIONS

Being a Series of Dementia Hallucinations Reported Semi-Occasionally for the Chronicle by Ernest C. Foster. Copyrighted 1914 by the Foster Service.

March.

March, this year, brings the closed season on all frivolity. From beginning to end, the month is under the bar of Lent, and the lid will be on the Tango, Texas Tommy, Bunny Hug, and the dozen other modern contortions permitted only in dance halls. The evening gown is laid away, the car's are out of sight, each member of the family is gathered home at night. O, wouldn't it be terrible, if life were always so—no gadding, scandals, gossiping, O, such a world of woe—just staying home with hub and kids, indeed, 'twould be a bore. So hasten, Easter, end of Lent, that agony be o'er.

The first Grover Cleveland was born March 18, 1837, since which time about 499,133 more have come into being. When a man's initials are G. C., no one questions his full name. W. J. Bryan, too, was born March, and his tribe is giving that of Cleveland's race for its money. The month claims still another celebrity in the person of Luther Burbank, the man who can unite an ordinary squash and tomato in the holy bonds of matrimony and produce an off-spring that no one recognizes, but which all of us are willing to use in vegetable soup and declare it wonderful.

The seventeenth is Irish day, when lads and fair colleens, do honor to their patron saint by wearing bits of green. And on the twenty-first begins the verdant season, Spring, but it would not be policy to figure on a thing less warm to wear about our shins, or further up the spine, for Spring's a fickle maid we know, and I shall keep on mine.

The first steam cut-off valve was invented March 10, 1849, since which time geniuses of all nationalities have failed in their effort to apply them to politicians and afternoon teas.

GREAT LINE-UP FOR GAME TONIGHT

VASSAR BUSINESS MEN MEET
LOCAL TEAM.

Many of Cass City's Old Stars in Basket Ball Will Be in Contest.

The Vassar Business Men's Club will meet the Cass City Independents at the town hall this evening to decide the supremacy in basket ball.

Many of Cass City's old stars will be seen in this great game. Edgerton, the center, who played with Alma College, is one of the fastest men in Thumb basket ball today. For positions of forwards there is great rivalry in Brown of last year's high school team, McGeorge, who played with Cleary College, Orr who has just returned to Cass City from Ann Arbor, and Kinnaird, who is playing in excellent form.

For the positions of guards, Cass City has excellent material in Auten, Bien, Dodge and Townsend. Townsend has been refereeing most of the high school games in the Thumb and is considered one of the best posted men in basket ball today. He has been interested in the game for the last nine years, playing with Adrian and Cleary College and with some of the fast independent league teams of Detroit.

The local team is looking for a big bunch of boosters at the game tonight and the indications are that they'll not be disappointed. The Boy Scouts and the High School Freshmen teams are scheduled for the preliminary game this evening.

Gradually failing, he slept peacefully away Sunday night at a late hour.

The funeral services were held at the Mission church, Grand River Ave., Pt. Huron on Wednesday morning, Feb. 18. Rev. Bruntage spoke beautiful words of comfort to the sorrowing ones and the remains were taken to Sandusky, and interred beside those of his wife, who died about three years ago.

DON'T BE MISLED

Cass City Citizens Should Read and Heed This Advice.

Kidney trouble is dangerous and often fatal.

Don't experiment with something new and untried.

Use a tested kidney remedy. Begin with Doan's Kidney Pills. Used in kidney troubles 50 years. Recommended here and everywhere.

A Cass City citizen's statement forms convincing proof.

It's local testimony—it can be investigated.

Mrs. B. E. Smith, Fourth St., Cass City, Mich., says: "My back ached severely for a long time and if I stooped, it was almost impossible for me to straighten. A relative advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so, procuring a supply at Wood & Co's Drug Store. They brought me prompt relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents in the United States.

Northern Michigan Grown
Seed Beans

BEANS in this part of the state were so badly damaged last season from blight and rust, we have purchased a carload of Northern Michigan Grown Seed Beans. These beans are free from rust and blight. Farmers who purchased this seed last year got from ten to fifteen bushels more beans to the acre than those who used home grown seed, in some instances receiving $25 to the acre more for their beans than their neighbors who used home grown seed.

The sins of the fathers fall upon the bean crop as well as the human family, and the only way to raise beans free from blight and rust is to secure outside seed grown on sandy land, free from diseases that have gotten in our home crop the past few seasons. Let us have your orders early. Sample can be seen at our office.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Exams this week.

Who threw that rubber? Nobody, I guess.

Mr. E.—"Mr. T., what property of lampblack makes it useful in making printer's ink." J. T.—"The black."

The football team had their pictures taken Friday afternoon. Note the pleased expression on some of their faces.

The concert given by Prof. Veatch and assistants of Alma College, under auspices of the senior class was very good, but ended with the seniors in the hole, due mostly to lack of enthusiasm and lack of support by the other; but they appreciate that which was given.

The Elkton basket ball team played the Cass City teams on Cass City ground. The Elkton girls got the big end of the score of 10-9 and the Cass City boys beat Elkton to the tune of 29-20. The gate receipts were the largest ever taken in at any game and helped the condition of finances of the Athletic Association wonderfully. A large crowd of boosters were out both from town and high school for which the school is very thankful.

Mr. E. (Chemistry)—"Mr. C., what is the color of iodine vapor." L. C.—"A small violet hue."

Mr. K (Am. H.)—"Please be careful how you come down those stairs, they fairly shook this time." H. L.—"Yes, we'll all come down together some of these days."

The freshmen and sophomores gave a farewell party to Miss Vera Bardwell Monday evening as she is leaving for her new home in Elkton.

Adelaide Wallace is on the sick list this week.

Shoemaker has quit high school.

The chapel exercises Monday morning given by the juniors were exceptionally good. Miss Palmateer gave two readings and Miss Finkbeiner accompanied by Miss DeWitt rendered several solos, the German songs especially were well liked; also "Solomon Levi" and "America" were sung by the whole school with lusty voices.

Miss P. found out one thing, which was, that not a copy of the national song "America" was in the school. O, yes! she didn't know there was a Bible anywhere in high school either.

Miss F. (Trig.)—"How many problems did you get Mr. Y." Yank—"Aw love 'em."

The work on the annual is progressing fine. All the seniors are hustling and the other classes are lending a helping hand in many ways.

Prof. Veatch of Alma gave a talk to the student body on Japan Thursday morning.

LOCAL WOMEN AGREE WITH STAGE BEAUTIES

Of all women in the world, probably those on the stage are most particular about their personal appearance, and especially in the care of the hair; and when such leading stage beauties as Ethel Barrymore, Elsie Ferguson, Natalie Alt, Louise Dresser, Rose Coglian, Laurette Taylor and many others are so enthusiastic about Harmony Hair Beautifier as to write in praise of it, that is certainly evidence that it does just what they say it does—that is, beautifies the hair. There are many women right in this town, and men, too, who regard it as indispensable, because it makes the hair glossier and more silky, easier to dress and make stay in place. Sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. Contains no oil; will not change color of hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. L. I. Wood & Co., Cass City.—Adv.

The Booster class of the Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Jno. Schwaderer is teacher, spent a very pleasant evening with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Goodall Friday. After a short business session at which the organization of the class was completed, the evening was filled with all the fun and merriment that really truly grown-ups can think of and that is no small thing. Music was a strong number with them and the round, "Old John Brown, he had a little Indian," was given full play. After refreshments the guests returned home and since then have not said much to the younger generation regarding the late news of the hour of their arrival home. The class is increasing in size every Sunday and they promise to do strong work along church lines.

Mrs. G. W. Seed and Mrs. Delia Lauderbach were hostesses at a George Washington party Tuesday evening and the evening's entertainment proved to be unique and interesting throughout. The invitations were written on post cards honoring our countryman and consisted of the following rhyme: "Next Tuesday night at half past eight, We beg you'll help us celebrate, Great George and the immortal tree, His gift to all posterity." Sixty invitations were issued and the guests were greeted at Mrs. Seed's by the hostesses gowning in becoming Martha Washington costumes with powdered wig and snowy kerchief; some of the guests had also donned early colonial costumes for the occasion. The first stunt of the evening excited much laughter and noise. A cherry tree stood in a corner of the room, already for summer except for fruit and each guest was given a cherry and a string, and while blindfolded were to put the cherry on the tree. After nearly all had performed the task they were supplied with pencils and a printed story, "The Romance of a Commercial Man," with blanks which were to be filled in according to each lady's ingenuity. Later these stories were read and much talent was shown in the witty phrases and sentences supplied. Next the ladies were given picture puzzles and each four which matched together were directed to a table where the delicious three-course luncheon was served by Misses Carola, Ruth and Catherine Fritz, Mae Benkelman and Catherine Fisher. The menu consisted of pineapple and marshmallow salad, wafers, potato chips, chicken patties, coffee, sandwiches, pickles, olives, maple moose, angel food, fruit cake and golden cake. The rooms were decorated in the national colors and everywhere evidences of patriotism were seen. The favors were little hatchets and a small American flag. Mrs. C. W. Clark of Caro was an out of town guest at the party.

NEED AMERICAN FLAG

Law Requires Each School to Display National Banner Every Day.

A United States flag not less than four feet two inches by eight feet and made of good flag bunting, a flag staff and the necessary appliances, are essential articles of school equipment, according to the state law and school officials who neglect to supply them are liable to fine or imprisonment or both. The law also provides that the flag must be displayed either inside or outside the school building during school hours.

As this law has been disregarded in so many districts because of the carelessness or indifference of school officials, an effort is being made by the Department of Public Instruction to have county commissioners and teachers insist upon the furnishing of a suitable flag and its display according to law. In one enterprising rural school, the girls' sewing class has made the flag for the school as domestic art work.

HOLIDAYS ARE FIXED

Teachers Cannot Conduct School on Holidays or Saturdays.

Christmas and New Year's Day are legal school holidays and if they are a part of the school year, school sessions are not to be conducted and the teacher draws his or her salary, as such holidays count as days taught. If they come in a prescribed holiday vacation, however, they are not a part of the school year and the teacher is not paid for them. The other school holidays are Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day and Thanksgiving together with all Saturdays. Schools cannot be conducted legally on Saturdays or holidays even with the consent of the school board. Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday and Columbus day, October 12, are no longer legal school holidays but are to be observed in the schools by appropriate commemorative exercises.

The Legend of Aconite.

Aconite is classed by homeopathic authorities as the patriarch of drugs as far as literature is concerned. "It comes down to the lower regions and is carried then through the wreck of the 'silver age mythology.'" It is told how Hercules went down to the lower regions and carried the three headed bound Cerberus to the upper world. That ferocious beast was raging at this treatment, and the froth that fell to the ground was the origin of aconite, for it grew up from the froth as from seeds. It was on a bleak, wind swept hill or mountain, and it is in such regions that the plant grows today. This hill, in Pontica, was known of old as 'Aconitos.'"—Exchange.

The Perfect Day.

There is, perhaps, one such day in every one's life. It is seldom more—when the whole world seems to hang in a nebulous light, when nothing is quite real or quite certain, when the entire universe might be a bubble to break with touching, when one is beyond one's body, all pure soul, when everything—even the birds in their bursts of song and sudden silences, the flowers, the clouds—conspires for perfection. Such moments come only when one human spirit first touches another and vanishes, or at least is transmuted, with the first kiss, the first spoken word of love.—From "Simpson," by Elinor Mordaunt.

Byron's Proposal.

Lord Byron was led into his unhappy matrimonial alliance with Miss Milbanke, only daughter and heiress of Sir Ralph Milbanke, through being rejected by another young lady. He had proposed to the latter, and as he held her letter of refusal in his hand he said to a friend, "It seems that it is to be Miss Milbanke after all." He sat down and wrote the fatal letter, handing it to his friend for perusal. "A very pretty letter," his friend remarked after reading it. "It is a pity that it should not go." "And it shall go!" exclaimed Byron, and thus opened one of the most tragic chapters of his checkered history.

Higher Criticism In School.

The teacher had told the class how the waters of the Red Sea were divided for the Israelites and what became of the Egyptians who pursued them, says the Manchester Guardian. A little boy with an inquiring mind put up his hand and said, "Please, teacher, if divers were to go down into the Red sea would they find the Egyptians' chariots?" Another little boy instantly burst out laughing. The teacher asked him why. "Please, teacher," he explained, "e thinks it's true!"

We Promise You Relief from All Stomach Troubles—Or Your Money Back

We honestly believe we have the best remedy in the world for indigestion and dyspepsia. We urge you to try it at our risk. If it doesn't relieve you—as we feel sure it will—we'll give back your money without a word. You know us—your family druggist. You know we wouldn't dare recommend anything we didn't know about, nor dare to break a promise. Therefore, when we recommend any remedy it is because we believe it to be better than any other to relieve the ailment for which it is made, and when we prove our faith in it and our sincerity toward you by promising to give back your money if it doesn't relieve you and in every way satisfy you, you have no possible excuse for doubt or hesitation.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets

are, we honestly believe, the best remedy made for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all other Stomach Ills

We Know They're Good

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, in addition to other ingredients, contain Pepsin and Bismuth, two great digestive aids used by the entire medical profession. They soothe the inflamed stomach, check the heartburn and distress, stimulate a healthy secretion of the gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food and help to quickly convert it into rich red blood, and thereby into flesh, bone and muscle. They relieve stomach distress promptly, and, used regularly for a short time, tend to restore the stomach to a comfortable, easy-acting, healthy state. They aid greatly to promote regular bowel action.

Delays Are Dangerous

Don't neglect indigestion, for it frequently leads to all sorts of ills and complications. The pain and discomfort is not the most unfortunate part. The fact that when the stomach is not acting right, the material needed to repair the wastes that are constantly taking place in the body is not being given to the blood either in the proper condition or fast enough is far more serious. Nothing will cause more trouble than an unhealthy stomach. The blues, debility, lack of strength and energy, constipation, biliousness, headaches and scores of other serious ailments result from the failure of the stomach to properly do its work.

You Risk No Money

Our willingness to have you use Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets entirely at our risk proves our faith in them. We always sell them this way, and it is because we know that they have greatly benefited scores of sufferers to whom we have sold them. There's no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. You needn't sign anything. Your word is enough for us. We know that when they help you you will consider it money well spent even if they had cost you ten times as much. If they don't help you, the money you paid for them is yours, and we want you to have it.

Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores—the World's Greatest Drug Stores. In convenient boxes—three sizes: 25c, 50c, $1.00

CHAPTER III.

The Victim of the Law.

Y ES, Gilder did know. The mention of the name was like a spell in the effect it wrought on the attitude of the irritated owner of the store. Instantly his expression changed.

"How extremely awkward!" he cried, and there was a very real concern in his voice. He regarded Smithson kindly, whereat that rather pulling gentleman once again assumed his martial bearing. "You were quite right in coming to me." For a moment he was silent, plunged in thought. Finally he spoke with the decisiveness characteristic of him. "Of course there's nothing we can do. Just put the stuff back on the counter and let her go."

But Smithson had not yet wholly unburdened himself. He again cleared his throat nervously.

"She's very angry, Mr. Gilder," he announced timidly. "She—er—she demands an—er—an apology."

The owner of the store half rose from his chair, then threw himself back with an exclamation of disgust.

"God bless my soul!" he cried. Again he fell silent, considering the situation which Smithson had presented. At last, however, he mastered his irritation to some degree and spoke his command briefly. "Well, Smithson, apologize to her. It can't be helped."

When Smithson had left the office Gilder turned to his secretary.

"Take this," he directed, and he forth with dictated the following letter:

J. W. Gaskell, Esq., Central National Bank, New York.

My Dear Mr. Gaskell—I feel that I should be doing less than my duty as a man if I did not let you know at once that Mrs. Gaskell is in urgent need of medical attention. She came into our store today, and—

He paused for a moment. "No, put it this way," he said finally:

We found her wandering about our store today in a very nervous condition. In her excitement she carried away about $100 worth of rare laces. Not recognizing her, our store detective detained her for a short time. Fortunately for us all, Mrs. Gaskell was able to explain who she was, and she has just gone to her home. Hoping for Mrs. Gaskell's speedy recovery, and with all good wishes, I am yours very truly.

Smithson again entered the office, even more perturbed than before.

"What on earth is the matter now?" Gilder spluttered suspiciously.

"It's Mrs. Gaskell still," Smithson replied in great trepidation. "She wants you personally, Mr. Gilder, to apologize to her. She says that the action taken against her is an outrage, and she is not satisfied with the apologies of all the rest of us. She says you must make one, too, and that the store detective must be discharged for intolerable insolence."

Gilder bounced up from his chair angrily.

"I'll not discharge McCracken," he vociferated, glaring on Smithson, who shrank visibly.

"But about the apology, Mr. Gilder," he reminded, speaking very deferentially, yet with insistence.

"Oh, I'll apologize," he said with a wry smile of discomfiture. "I'll make things even up a bit when I get an apology from Gaskell. I shrewdly suspect that that estimable gentleman is going to eat humble pie, of my baking, from his wife's recipe. And his will be an honest apology, which mine won't." And he left the room.

It was on this same day that Sarah, on one of her numerous trips through the store in behalf of Gilder, was accosted by a salesgirl, whose name, Helen Morris, she chanced to know.

"What on earth do you want?" Sarah inquired snappishly.

"What did they do to Mary Turner?"

"They sent her to prison for three years."

"Three years?" The salesgirl had repeated the words in a tone that was indefinable, yet a tone vehement in its incredulous questioning. "Three years?" she said again, as one refusing to believe.

"Yes, three years."

"Good God!" There was no irreverence in the exclamation that broke from the girl's lips. Instead only a tense horror that touched the roots of emotion.

"Say," Sarah demanded, with the directness habitual to her, "why are you so anxious about it? This is the third time you have asked me about Mary Turner. What's it to you, I'd like to know?"

The salesgirl started violently, and a deep flush drove the accustomed pallor from her cheeks. She was obviously much disturbed by the question.

"What is it to me?" she repeated in an effort to gain time. "Why, nothing—nothing at all, only—she's a friend of mine, a great friend of mine. Oh, yes!"

There was a monotone of desolation as she went on speaking in a whisper meant for the ears of no other. "It's awful—three years! Oh, I didn't understand! It's awful—awful!" With the final word she hurried off, her attitude one of wondering grief.

Sarah was thinking intently of Mary Turner after her return to the office. As she glanced up at the opening of the door she did not at first recognize the figure outlined there. She remembered Mary Turner as a tall, slender girl, who showed an underlying vitality in every movement, a girl with a face of regular features, in which was a complexion of blended milk and roses, with a radiant joy of life shining through all her arduous and vulgar conditions.

Instead of this, now she saw a frail form that stood swaying in the doorway, that bent in a sinister fashion which told of bodily impotence, while the face was quite bloodless.

A man stood beside her, one of his hands clasped around the girl's wrist. It was Cassidy, from headquarters, who spoke in a rough, indifferent voice.

"The district attorney told me to bring this girl here on my way to the Grand Central station with her."

"Mr. Gilder will be right back. Come in and wait."

The two went forward very slowly, the officer, carelessly conscious of his duty, walking with awkward steps to suit the feeble movements of the girl. Sarah at last found her voice for an expression of sympathy.

"I'm sorry, Mary," she said hesitatingly. "I'm terribly sorry, terribly sorry!"

The girl did not look up. She stood still, swaying a little, as if from weakness.

"Are you?" she said. "I did not know. Nobody has been near me the whole time I have been in the Tombs."

"Why," Sarah exclaimed, "there was Helen Morris today! She has been asking about you again and again. She's all broken up over your trouble."

"Who is Helen Morris?" the lifeless voice demanded. There was no interest in the question.

Gilder entered the office with the quick, bustling activity that was ordinarily expressed in his every movement. He paused as he beheld the two visitors, then he spoke curtly to the secretary.

"You may go, Sarah. I will ring when I wish you again."

There followed an interval of silence while the secretary was leaving the office and the girl with her wadded stood waiting on his pleasure. Gilder cleared his throat twice in an embarrassment foreign to him before finally he spoke to the girl.

"My girl," Gilder said gently—his hard voice was softened by an honest regret—"my girl, I am sorry about this."

"You should be!" came the instant answer.

"Come, come!" Gilder exclaimed testily. "That's no tone to take with me!"

"Why? What sort of tone do you expect me to take?" was the retort in the listless voice.

"I expected a decent amount of humility from one in your position."

Life quickened swiftly in the drooping form of the girl. She stood suddenly erect, and her face lost its bleakness of pallor. The eyes opened wide and looked straight into those of the man who had employed her.

"Would you be humble," she demanded, and now her voice was become softly musical, yet forbidding, too, with a note of passion, "would you be humble if you were going to prison for three years for something you didn't do?"

"Don't mind her, sir," Cassidy said. He meant to make his manner very reassuring. "They all say that. They are innocent, of course! Yep, they all say it. It don't do 'em any good, but just the same they all swear they're innocent. They keep it up to the very last, no matter how right they've been got."

The voice of the girl rang clear. There was a note of insistence that carried a curious dignity of its own. The very simplicity of her statement might have had a power to convince one who listened without prejudice, although the words themselves were of the trite sort that any protesting criminal might utter.

"I tell you I didn't do it!" Gilder himself felt the surge of emotion that swung through these moments, but he would not yield to it.

"What's the use of all this pretense?" he demanded sharply. "You were given a fair trial, and there's an end of it."

"Oh, no, I wasn't! Why, if the trial had been fair I shouldn't be here. Do you call it fair when the lawyer I had was only a boy—one whom the court told me to take, a boy trying his first case, my case, that meant the ruin of my life? My lawyer! Why, he was just getting experience—getting it at my expense!"

There followed a few seconds of silence. Then Gilder made an effort to shake off the feeling that had so possessed him, and to a certain degree he succeeded.

"The jury found you guilty," he asserted, with an attempt to make his voice magisterial in its severity.

"Yes, the jury found me guilty. Do you know why? I can tell you, Mr. Gilder. It was because they had been out for three hours without reaching a decision. The evidence didn't seem to be quite enough for some of them, after all. Well, the judge threatened to lock them up all night. The men wanted to get home. The easy thing to do was to find me guilty, and let it go at that. Was that fair, do you think? And that's not all either. Was it fair of you, Mr. Gilder? Was it fair of you to come to the court this morning and tell the judge that I should be sent to prison as a warning to others?"

"You know!" he exclaimed in momentary consternation.

"I heard you in the courtroom," she said. "The dock isn't very far from the bench where you spoke to the judge about my case. Yes, I heard you. It wasn't, did I do it? or, didn't I do it? No. It was only that I must be made a warning to others."

Again silence fell for a tense interval. Then finally the girl spoke:

"Mr. Gilder," she said simply, "as God is my judge, I am going to prison for three years for something I didn't do. Why did you ask the judge to send me to prison?"

"The thieving that has been going on in this store for over a year has got to stop," Gilder answered emphatically, with all his usual energy of manner restored.

"Sending me to prison won't stop it," Mary Turner said drearily.

"Perhaps not," Gilder sternly retorted. "But the discovery and punishment of the other guilty ones will." His manner changed to a businesslike alertness. "You sent word to me that you could tell me how to stop the thefts in the store. Well, my girl, do this and, while I can make no definite promise, I'll see what can be done about getting you out of your present difficulty."

He picked up a pencil, pulled a pad of blank paper convenient to his hand and looked at the girl expectantly, with aggressive inquiry in his gaze. "Tell me now," he concluded, "who were your pals?"

"I have no pals!" she ejaculated furiously. "I never stole anything in my life. Must I go on telling you over and over again?" Her voice rose in a wail of misery. "Oh, why won't any one believe me?"

"Unless you can control yourself, you must go," Gilder pushed away the pad of paper and tossed the pencil aside in physical expression of his displeasure. "Why did you send that message if you have nothing to say?" he demanded, with increasing choler.

"I have something to tell you, Mr. Gilder," she cried quietly. "Only I—" sort of lost my grip on the way here, with this man by my side."

"Well?" Gilder insisted querulously, as the girl hesitated.

"When you sit in a cell for three months waiting for your trial, as I did, you think a lot. And so I got the idea that if I could talk to you I might be able to make you understand what's really wrong. And if I could do that and so help out the other girls, what has happened to me would not, after all, be quite so awful—so useless, somehow."

Her voice lowered to a quick pleading, and she bent toward the man at the desk. "Mr. Gilder," she questioned, "do you really want to stop the girls from stealing?"

"Most certainly I do," came the forcible reply.

The girl spoke with a great earnestness deliberately.

"Then give them a fair chance."

The magnate stared in sincere astonishment over this absurd, this futile suggestion for his guidance.

"What do you mean?" he vociferated, with rising indignation.

"Why," she said very gently, "I mean just this: Give them a living chance to be honest."

"A living chance!" The two words were exploded with dynamic violence. Gilder found himself unable to express the rage that flamed within him.

The girl showed herself undismayed by his anger.

"Yes," she went on quietly, "that's all there is to it. Give them a living chance to get enough food to eat and a decent room to sleep in and shoes that will keep their feet off the pavement winter mornings. Do you think that any girl wants to steal? Do you think that any girl wants to risk?"

By this time, however, Gilder had regained his power of speech, and he interrupted stormily:

"And is this what you have taken up my time for? You want to make a maudlin plea for guilty, dishonest girls, when I thought you really meant to bring me facts?"

"We work nine hours a day," the girl's quiet voice went on, a curious pathos in the rich timbre of it, "nine hours a day for six days in the week. That's a fact, isn't it? And the trouble is an honest girl can't live on $6 a week. She can't do it and buy food and clothes and pay room rent and carfare. That's another fact, isn't it?"

Mary regarded the owner of the store with grave questioning in her violet eyes.

"I don't care to discuss these things," he declared peremptorily as the girl remained silent for a moment.

"And I have no wish to discuss anything," Mary returned evenly. "I only want to give you what you asked for—"

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Is the Housewife's Greatest Help.

WHAT so tempting to the laggard appetite as a light, flaky, fruit short cake or a delicate hot biscuit?

Royal makes the perfect short cake, biscuit and muffin, and improves the flavor and healthfulness of all risen flour-foods.

It renders the biscuit, hot-bread and short cake more di-gestible and nutritious, at the same time making them more attractive and appetizing.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for the preparation
all the year round of perfect foods.

pews as cots if they have no where to lay their tired heads.

That's most decidedly the spirit of Christianity as exemplified in the teaching and practice of Christ and the early Christians. He preached—yes; but He also fed the hungry and healed the sick and comforted the miserable. And we guess it wasn't half so much His preaching, unsurpassed as that was, as it was His practicing that made the common people hear Him gladly and follow Him with affection.

In large cities are great, fine churches, representing millions invested, but empty and dark most of the week
and not too well filled on Sunday.

And outside, on the streets, are able men, who have no work and are hungry—some, also, bitter men, who think the church is of no use to them and who sometimes, with an oath, doubt even God cares.

Rev. A. N. Kelly of Cincinnati believes that God does care and that at least one church can help. He doesn't stop with believing and saying it—he is proving it.

THE REAL PROBLEM

The farmer and his wife watched their dog as he chased madly down the track after the 4 o'clock train. He did it every day and always returned winded.

"I wonder why he chases that train," remarked the wife with her eyes on a little cloud of dust that showed where Rover was.

"That's not what's bothering me," answered her husband. "I'm wondering what he'd do with it if he caught it."—Housekeeper.

Just Like a Husband.

born men in the world."

him at 3 o'clock."

"Yes?"
"Well, it was nearly 4:30 when I got there, and he won't admit yet that the rest he got while he was waiting did him any good."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Moors of Today.

The Moors of today are the descendants of those who conquered Spain, who were practically paramount in the southern portion for two centuries and relics of whose wonderful buildings are to be found at the present day in that country. Indeed, it is strange to consider the position of the Moors of today when we see the work of their hands in past centuries, and the only explanation lies in the fact that they are unable to adapt themselves to modern conditions.—Strand Magazine.
