LOCAL ITEMS

Mrs. A. N. Treadgold and Mrs. A. A. Hitchcock delightfully entertained twenty-five of the young ladies of this city, at a St. Patrick's Day party Wednesday evening, March 4. The guests were requested to come to Mrs. Hitchcock's home attired in a costume suggesting "something good to eat." Accordingly many establishments were represented from "Preserved Peas" to "Cream of Wheat." The first part of the evening was spent in guessing the different foods, answers being written in little booklets decorated with shamrock. The guests were then asked to make a menu for any meal using "dishes" represented. Miss Mabel Robinson was given the prize of a two-pound box of Lowney chocolates. Recipes were written out of the food each costume was to portray and handed to the many brides-to-be. A musical romance next required much interested attention after which the ladies found their places at small tables, by names printed on souvenir napkin rings. Inside the shamrock napkins cunning tissue paper caps were discovered. A delicious luncheon carrying out the green and white color scheme was nicely served, Miss Vernita Treadgold and Miss Gladys Hitchcock assisting. Fruit salad, wafers, olive and pimento egg sandwiches, pickles, coffee, ice cream, angel food and chocolate cake. The favor for each guest was a little green pig containing salted peanuts. Mrs. Dora Fritz received the prize for the "Musical Romance," a box of candy. This party was voted one of the most enjoyable events of the season.

The Five Hundred Club which has played a series of games during the past few weeks had a celebration Monday evening at which the losing half of the bunch entertained the winners. The losers were Mr. and Mrs. John Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Reagh, Mrs. H. P. Lee, Mrs. Hersey Young, Lester Bailey and Dana Losey. They invited their guests to meet at Losey's Store at 7:30 p. m. and from there accompanied them to Heller's Confectionery where they were treated to that rare and delightful dainty, all day sucker. The gentlemen also were presented with bumper cigars. Next they were taken to the movies where they enjoyed the pictures and caused much comment among the theater-goers. After the performance, the company were taken to the Losey home where they spent the remainder of the evening and some of the next morning, playing cards, doing the waltz and receiving the initiation of a new secret society. A bountiful luncheon was also provided and the winners feel that they were royally entertained.

The Cass City Independents outplayed the Vassar business men's team in basket ball Friday evening by a 25 to 11 score. The visitors outweighed the locals, but their main strength proved inadequate in overcoming their opponents' skill. The guarding of Auten and Kinnaird and the basket throwing of Brown were features of the game. J. E. Kennedy was referee. After the contest, the visiting team was given a supper at the New Sheridan. A return game will be played at Vassar in two weeks and next Friday evening, the Independents will meet the local high school team.

The members of Miss Audrey Pell's Sunday school class of the M. E. church met with Miss Clara Foster at the home of T. L. Tibbals, Friday evening. Class organization was discussed and officers were elected as follows: president, Mrs. C. R. Townsend; vice president, Amy Fee; secretary-treasurer, Lena Rice. The class will meet on the second Monday of each month and will seek to do more efficient work under their organization. After a social hour, the hostess served refreshments.

E. W. Jones returned Friday evening from Grand Rapids where he attended the 16th annual convention of the Retail Grocers and General Merchants Association of Michigan. Mr. Jones had charge of the question box on the program and was chosen chairman of the committee which will conduct this feature at next year's convention.

L. T. Supernaw is the new druggist at Treadgold's drug store. Mr. Supernaw has moved here with his family from Davison and they are occupying the Treadgold residence on Third St. east. Grover Burke, who has been the efficient pharmacist at Treadgold's, has accepted a position of manager of a new drug store in Brown City.

The coming to Cass City of Mr. Leiland L. Powers marks an event of the greatest interest, which it is hoped all will appreciate. It is safe to say that Mr. Powers stands as the leading representative in his line of work in our country, and whoever misses hearing him at the opera house this (Friday) evening will lose something he cannot regain. The Lecture Course committee have made great effort to procure this number. As his nights are not easy to obtain and the price is $150, it will be seen that the ladies should be congratulated on their success in being able to bring this gentleman's artistic work before our people. It is not often that one has the privilege of hearing Mr. Powers even in the city, so we are the more fortunate in having him here. It was found difficult to make a selection from his long list of plays, but "David Garrick" is the one decided upon. This is a comedy character play, representing scenes from the life of a great English actor of the 18th century. The price of admission is 40 cents. Let us give Mr. Powers the enthusiastic welcome he deserves.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schwieger entertained about twenty of the young married couples at their home Wednesday evening. The guests enjoyed a sleigh ride to the farm and some people thought it was a load of high school freshmen out for their first party. Amusements for the evening consisted of various stunts and contests and much merriment was afforded among them. At midnight the hostess served a bountiful three-course luncheon and the guests all displayed very healthy appetites.

Mrs. Joseph Martus, who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Swan Lindskold at Rockford, Ill., underwent a serious operation on her throat a few days ago at St. Anthony's Hospital. Mrs. Martus writes that she is getting along very nicely and hopes now to have a stronger control of her voice than formerly.

Mrs. G. W. Goff and Mrs. L. E. Dickinson returned home Friday after spending a few days at Detroit. While there Mrs. Dickinson secured a trimmer for her millinery department during the coming season, Miss Gilpin of Ohio, who for the past two seasons has trimmed at a wholesale house in Detroit.

The Priscilla Club were entertained at the home of Mrs. H. D. Schiedel Tuesday evening at a picnic supper. After the supper, one of the members royally entertained her friends with a musical comedy concert which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

A goodly number of the neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Bardwell spent Friday evening with them at their home north of town. Various social amusements passed the evening and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Bardwell went to Elkton Tuesday, where they will now make their home.

A. J. Knapp is on the job again after three weeks' confinement at his home because of injuries received in a fall through a trap door at Schwaderer's Restaurant. Mr. Knapp was out of doors for the first time yesterday and is glad to be back again at the store.

The sad news came Wednesday of the death of Grace Joy, second and youngest child of Henry L. Pinney of Seattle, Washington. She was about 18 months old and died quite suddenly of whooping cough.

Mrs. M. M. Schwieger entertained the Y. P. A. of the Evangelical church at her home Tuesday evening. After the business meeting, a social hour was enjoyed and the hostess served a delicious luncheon.

About 60 people attended a box social at the home of Charles Donley Wednesday evening. The proceeds, amounting to nearly $30 were given to a sick neighbor.

VILLAGE TICKET

All Offices Were Re-nominated Except Treasurer.

The council rooms were crowded Friday evening at the village caucus when all village officers were re-nominated except Treasurer Robinson, who has served two terms.

On the first ballot, J. H. Hays received 56 votes for village president, Joseph Frutchey 38, scattering 6.

For clerk, Marc Wickware received 90 out of the 93 votes cast.

For treasurer, G. A. Tindale received 86, J. H. Striffler 17, scattering 2.

For trustee for two years, S. F. Bigelow received 86 and W. H. Murphy 22.

For second trustee, H. F. Lenzner was nominated by acclamation.

For third trustee, A. J. Knapp received 61, F. E. Kelsey 35, scattering 4.

For assessor, G. E. Perkins received 72, P. S. McGregory 21, scattering 2.

Not more than one ballot was required for any of the nominations. Edward Pinney presided as chairman, Marc Wickware was clerk and L. I. Wood and J. C. Corkins served as tellers.

JOHN ASHMORE, SR.

Pioneer Merchant at Rescue Buried Wednesday.

Many of the residents of Grant township gathered at the Williamson schoolhouse Wednesday to attend the funeral services of John Ashmore, sr., for many years a citizen and merchant of Rescue. His death occurred Feb. 28 and he was favorably and widely known in the community.

John Ashmore was born in Ontario. In 1876 he was united in marriage with Miss Lydia Halstead and to this union three children were born.

One, a daughter, died 18 years ago. Deceased is survived by his wife and two sons, Wm. Ashmore, of Grant and John Ashmore of New York state.

Mr. Ashmore was a member of the Episcopal church and Rev. Gallagher, a minister of that faith, officiated at the funeral service. Interment was made in the Williamson cemetery.

BUSINESS CHANGES

D. Crawford & Son and Mrs. Parker Sell Stocks.

D. Crawford & Son have sold their meat market to A. A. Ricker and Louis Krabing, who will take possession March 16. Mr. Krabing has had several years' practical experience in the meat cutting and handling and Mr. Ricker has had the advantages of a business training in a Detroit business college. The young men should make a strong team and make the venture a success.

Inventory will be made of the general merchandise stock of Mrs. Anna Parker next week and Walter Walker will soon be the new proprietor. The deal was arranged last fall. Mr. Walker expects to purchase the business block as well as the stock.

ANDREW EDGERTON

Funeral Services Were Held Sunday Morning.

Andrew Edgerton was born in Berlin township, St. Clair Co., Jan. 10, 1854, and passed away at his home in this village, Feb. 26, 1914, at the age of 60 years. He was one of a family of eight children, all of whom survive him. The parents, Clarence and Mary M. Edgerton, passed away some years ago.

In 1875 he was married to Christina Westover of Brockway. To this union were born three sons, Roy C., of Berlin township and Weldon R., of Yankton, South Dakota; the other child died in infancy. The mother passed away in 1880.

On Christmas Eve in 1881, he was united in marriage with Celia Goodwin of Port Huron. To them were born two sons, Richard P. and Andrew Clifford.

The deceased spent the most of his life in Berlin and vicinity, until they came to the farm home 6 miles east of this village about 9 years ago.

He was a consistent member of the West Berlin M. P. church and their moving away was a cause of regret to a large circle of friends, both within and without the church. He was a charter member of the Macedonia of the West Berlin Tent, No. 779.

The funeral services were held in the M. E. church, Rev. Fee officiating, and the remains were interred in Elkland cemetery.

FARM SALES

One for Saturday, Another Mar. 10, and One Mar. 18.

A. A. Ricker uses space on page 3 to announce an auction sale of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, implements and grain on Tuesday, March 10, on the Scupholm farm, 2 miles south and 1/2 mile east of Cass City. Striffler & McCullough are the auctioneers.

S. D. Hill of Charleroi, Pa., has space on the same page in which he offers the James McKarracher farm of 120 acres, 4 miles south and 2 miles west of Cass City, at auction on Wednesday, Mar. 18. Striffler & McCullough, auctioneers.

Because of the unfavorable weather Monday, Bennett Bros. postponed their farm sale 1/2 mile west of Wickware until Saturday, Mar. 7, at 12 o'clock. Full particulars were printed in the Chronicle last week.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

About 375 people witnessed a very pretty and impressive scene at the Baptist church last week when 19 full grown young men and 3 ladies were baptized in accordance to the Baptist belief. The awakening in all our town churches has been remarkable as a result of the recent revival. Sunday morning the pastor expects to give the right hand of fellowship to about 40 new members.

About 80 of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Anthes met at the latter's home last Friday evening, where a very happy time was spent in talking over the many pleasant associations and partaking of the many good things to eat. As a small token of the deep respect Mr. and Mrs. Anthes have won, they were presented with a set of silver knives and forks. Mr. and Mrs. Anthes will have Monday for Rodney, Ont., where they were born and where they will still follow farming. During their 4 years here many strong ties of friendship have been made, and it is with deepest regret their many friends will say good bye. However our prayers and best wishes will go with them and surely it is a consolation to know that someone somewhere is praying for us.

WRITES FROM JERUSALEM

Spafford Kelsey Visits Scenes Famous in Biblical History.

Jerusalem, Syria. My dear father and mother:

After an uneventful trip from Naples, Italy, we landed in Port Said, Egypt. Here we took another passenger steamer on the Mediterranean Sea to Joppa. It is only a night's ride. At Joppa owing to the low water there are no docks. All passengers and baggage have to be unloaded into small-row boats and taken to shore. For a city that has passed through so many stirring events in history, Joppa is about as uninteresting as any place I have seen. Its dirty streets and still dirtier inhabitants make one feel they would like to shake the dust from off their feet and move on to more congenial surroundings.

How Solomon unloaded all the great cedars from Lebanon at this port used in the building of his temple at Jerusalem is a mystery. The streets are very narrow. Often a stone wall is built from one side of the street to the other and you feel as though you were passing through a cavern. We were shown the house of Simon, the tanner, on the roof of which Peter was supposed to have had the vision of unclean animals. It is not probable this is the same house but in all probability is on or near the spot recorded in Bible history. From Joppa to Jerusalem is a steam railroad about thirty-five miles long. The train moves along at 15 to 20 miles an hour through very pretty mountain scenery.

Arriving at Jerusalem a dragoman (servant) with carriage met us at the depot and took us to the school of Dr. Robinson which is just a little way outside of the city proper. The houses here are much like those in Italy built of stone, stucco and plaster. Our school building is built of stone. Young Robinson a student also, and I room together. We pay 50c each a week for our room and seven dollars each per week for day board. The house is kept by a German woman who with her maid looks after our wants. We have eggs each morning and after every lunch and dinner finish with large yellow grapes.

We all take a lesson each day in Arabic of a private instructor and the rest of the time visiting near-by points of interest. In preparation for these trips we study the Bible stories connected with places we visit. Yesterday we took a trip to Beth Schemish about 25 miles from Jerusalem. We took the train part way and then walked about 6 or 7 miles. The weather is very hot and we all wear cork helmets which shield our eyes and neck from the sun. Palestine is still in process of excavation and this site is where the most recent work is being done. We saw the ruin of an old Moslem temple.

FINE WESTERN TRIP

Sam Bigelow Writes Parents From Ogden, Utah.

Ogden, Utah, 2-22-14. Dear father and mother:

We are stopping here over Sunday and attended church this morning. We were surprised to see the streets about as busy as any week day. Half the stores and all amusement places are wide open, trucks, drays, delivery wagons, hacks and street cars are going full swing and it doesn't seem much like home. We have had a fine trip so far but the coast is flooded and it will probably not be very pleasant in Los Angeles or any of the farming section we hoped to see. Am afraid from what the coast news says that Santa Ana is one awful mud hole.

This town (Ogden) is in sight of Salt Lake and is built at the foot of the mountains. The population is about 30,000 and seems to be a busy place, but is quite a whisky town—about 50 licensed saloons and bars and an element to keep them busy. We see Indians, Mexicans, Japs, cow boys, sheep herders, and in fact the right kind to make a tough place. The lawns and some of the hedges are green and nice and still is spitting a little snow occasionally. We walked out to the foot hills this morning and saw some cactus growing wild.

We saw about the poorest part of Colorado and Utah as we came across from Colorado Springs, some desert and mountains to scare you. Hundreds of miles of the Denver and Rio Grande winds through country that it would seem impossible to get through in any way.

We leave here at 7:05 tomorrow morning for 24 hours ride to San Francisco, then we go to Los Angeles. It has been a great revelation to us in western matters and ways. If you could see the people's houses and barns on some of these small horse and cattle ranches you would wonder how they could live on, in fact what the stock found to eat. About four-fifths of the cattle we have seen since leaving Chicago have been Hereford grades and some of them are very good. Haven't seen any good horses since leaving Chicago. Well I will have to close now. Hope you are all well and getting along all right.

With love to all,
SAM BIGELOW.

LESS DYSPEPSIA NOW
—HERE'S THE REASON

The fact that there is less dyspepsia and indigestion in this community than there used to be is largely, we believe, due to the extensive use of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, hundreds of packages of which we have sold. No wonder we have faith in them. No wonder we are willing to offer them to you for trial entirely at our risk.
Among other things, they contain Pepsin and Bismuth, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science. They soothe the inflamed stomach, allay pain, check heartburn and distress, help to digest the food, and tend to quickly restore the stomach to its natural, comfortable, healthy state.
There is no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. Your word is enough for us. If Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets don't restore your stomach to health and make your digestion easy and comfortable, we want you to come back for your money. They are sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

LOCAL WOMAN NOW A BIG ADVERTISER

When one of our woman customers recently bought five bottles of Harmony Hair Beautifier to give to her friends for Christmas, she started all by herself a mighty big advertising campaign, because not only does each one of the women to whom she gave a bottle of the Beautifier now consider it indispensable for the proper care of the hair, but each of them has been the means of getting several of her friends to use it. As a consequence, if things keep on in this way for a few months longer, we will be selling more of it than of all other hair preparations combined. Sprinkle a little Harmony Hair Beautifier on your hair each time before brushing it. Contains no oil; will not change color of hair, nor darken gray hair.
To keep hair and scalp dandruff-free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure liquid shampoo gives an instantaneous rich lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet cleanliness.
Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c. Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us.

Keeping the Body in Repair
Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.
Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk.
The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the necessary repairs.

PROFITABLE DAILY TITHING.

"Daily Heavenly Manna." This little book is having the largest circulation of any of its kind and is conceded by Christians everywhere to be the most helpful.

If Christians allow the rush and crush of selfish ambition to deprive them of their daily portion of heavenly food, they must not be surprised if they grow spiritually leaner day by day, and if the peace of God gives place in their hearts to the discontent which is growing in the world, notwithstanding the multiplication of our comforts and privileges.

Daily Heavenly Manna contains a collection of Scripture texts with appropriate quotations for every day in the year. Surely the little tithe of time daily spent in partaking of its morsels of heavenly counsel cannot fail to profit all who partake. It is published to do good—not for profit.

Your Friends' Birth Dates.

An autograph and birthday record feature in this book is a great convenience. Opposite each day of the year are blank lines upon which you can secure the autographs of your friends and be reminded of their birthdays as they occur. This makes the book more valuable yearly. In ten years you would not sell it for ten dollars.

Besides it has a place for Birth Records, Marriage Records and Death Records. Also it has a table showing the day of the week of any date for one hundred and fifty years.

Printed on bond writing paper, blue cloth, handsome. Price, 35 cents postpaid; imitation alligator skin, gold edges, $1.00 postpaid. Order now. Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Metaphor With a History. To "know a hawk from a heronshaw" is a metaphor with a curious history. It is a comparison drawn from falconry. "Heronshaw" is a corruption of "heronshaw," or young heron, a bird which was a common prey of the falcons. To know a hawk from a heronshaw is therefore to be able to distinguish the falcon from its prey. A further colloquial corruption crept into the phrase, "to know a hawk from a handsaw," a form used by Hamlet in one place. Possibly the distinction between a hawk and a heronshaw was found not to be strong enough for the purposes of the proverb.—Manchester Guardian.

WRITES FROM JERUSALEM

Continued from first page. Monastery. It was deserted because the Jews moved into the neighborhood and profaned the shrine. We took our lunch inside the old shrine. This site has been the scene of three civilizations—Cananite, Philistine, and Israelite and has been the place of a number of battles.

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.—Benjamin Franklin.

How to Make Economical Soup. SOUP stock is the foundation of all soups, and the wise, economical housewife will keep a quantity of this on hand.

One pound of meat and bones—the meat cut small, the bones cracked—is the allowance for one quart of water. Allow this to simmer for four or five hours in a covered kettle.

To make soup of this use a portion of the jelly, add water and ingredients, such as rice, barley, macaroni, noodles or vegetables and seasoning.

Another way is to add the seasoning to the stock, such as a small onion stuck with four or five cloves, several bay leaves, one-half a teaspoonful of thyme, three carrots and a stalk of celery or half a teaspoonful of celery seed.

NEW PERFUME BOTTLES.

How to Make Stand For Small Cologne Bottle.

Most women like to have a bottle of eau de cologne on their dressing table, for, apart from the refreshing toilet properties of this scent, it is exceedingly useful in case of a sick headache or sudden attack of faintness.

Scent bottles are made in standard sizes, so before commencing to make the stand procure the bottle of eau de cologne. Then take careful measurements, and your case will fit properly and can be refilled at will.

Cover both the surfaces with fancy silk or ribbon and line with either the same silk or a piece of thin white satin. Oversew all the edges and then stitch the upright portion of the case to the center of the base.

How to Restore Craps. It costs from $2.50 to $5 to restore a widow's veil, the price depending upon the size of it, but the work can be done at home for nothing at all, even by an unskilled person.

When the veil is smooth hold a very hot iron over the wet cloth and about two inches away from it. It must never for a moment touch the wet rag. Go all over the craps as directed and do not take from the sheet until perfectly dry.

How to Clean Light Cloth Suit. Buy two large blocks of magnesia. Lay suit or white felt hat on sheet on flat surface and rub into the garment as much magnesia as it will hold.

FEATHER BOAS.

How to Renovate These Modish Much Worn Accessories.

A fine and rather windy day should be chosen for the washing of feather boas. It should be preceded with in the following manner:

Make a nice warm lather of soapy water. Care must be taken to see that the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Into this dip the boas, etc., gently squeezing them. The soil will quickly come out into the water. Dip them thus again and again, then get a second lot of water and repeat the dipping.

When the water remains clean the washing process is finished. Avoid rubbing the boas. Let the water do the work.

After the last water the boas should be rinsed, and if a pure white color is desired dip in a faint blue water.

The boas must now be shaken well. At this stage they will look quite ruined, but an hour or so's hanging in the air will make them perfect once more. The feathers if curly before will be so again, and if not known it would never be suspected that they had ever been in water.

Before putting the boas away they should be gently shaken before the fire, and at any time if the boas are exposed to damp this will revive them.

How to Keep Shoes Clean.

Twenty-five cents is the price of a little contrivance which any man would appreciate, and there is no reason why it should not find favor with busy women too. It is a shoe polisher which can be carried about in the pocket or handbag.

It is a little strip of lamb's wool a couple of inches wide and twice as long, backed with a piece of leather. When the polisher is not in use it is rolled up with the leather side out and clasped shut with a ball and socket clasp.

How to Make Economical Jelly.

One pint of cranberries, four large apples, one cupful of boiling water, two cupfuls of sugar, one-third cupful of cold water, two-thirds inch piece of stick cinnamon, twelve whole cloves, four allspice berries and a grain of salt. Slice and core apples. Add to cranberries with boiling water and let boil until berries are soft. Rub through a sieve, add remaining ingredients, except salt, and bring to boiling point and simmer fifteen minutes. Add salt, turn into mold and chill.

CHAPTER IV. Inferno.

THE inexorable voice went on in its monotone, as if he had not spoken.

"And when you are really sick and have to stop work what are you going to do then? Do you know, Mr. Gilder, that the first time a straight girl steals it's often because she had to have a doctor—or some luxury like that? And some of them do worse than steal. Yes, they do—girls that started straight and wanted to stay that way. But, of course, some of them get so tired of the whole grind that—"

"I'm not their guardian. I can't watch over them after they leave the store. They are paid the current rate of wages—as much as any other store pays." As he spoke the anger provoked by this unexpected assault on him out of the mouth of a convict flamed high in virtuous indignation. "Why," he went on vehemently, "no man living does more for his employees than I do. Who gave the girls their fine rest rooms upstairs? I did! Who gave them the cheap lunchrooms? I did!"

"But you won't pay them enough to live on!"

"I pay them the same as the other stores do," he repeated sullenly.

"But you won't pay them enough to live on!"

"And so you claim that you were forced to steal. That's the plea you make for yourself and your friends."

"I wasn't forced to steal," came the answer, spoken in the monotone that had marked her utterance throughout most of the interview. "I wasn't forced to steal, and I didn't steal. But, all the same, that's the plea, as you call it, that I'm making for the other girls. There are hundreds of them who steal because they don't get enough to eat. I said I would tell you how to stop the stealing. Well, I have done it. Give the girls a fair chance to be honest. You asked me for the names, Mr. Gilder. There's only one name on which to put the blame for the whole business, and that name is Edward Gilder! Now, won't you do something about it?"

At that naked question the owner of the store jumped up from his chair and stood glowering at the girl who risked a request so full of vituperation against himself.

"How dare you speak to me like this?" he thundered.

"Why, I dared," Mary Turner explained, "because you have done all the harm you can to me. And now I'm trying to give you the chance to do better by the others. You ask me why I dare. I have a right to dare. I have been straight all my life. I have wanted decent food and warm clothes and—a little happiness all the time I have worked for you, and I have gone without those things just to stay straight. The end of it all is, you are sending me to prison for something I didn't do. That's why I dare!"

Gilder could not trust himself just then to an audible command. He was seriously disturbed by the gently spoken truths that had issued from the girl's lips. He was not prepared with any answer, though he hotly resented every word of her accusation.

Cassidy faced about, and in his movement there was a tug at the wrist of the girl that set her moving toward the door. Her realization of what this meant was shown in her final speech.

"Three years isn't forever," she said in a level voice. "When I come out you are going to pay for every minute of them, Mr. Gilder. There won't be a day or an hour that I won't remember that at the last it was your word sent me to prison. And you are going to pay me for that. You are going to pay me for the five years I have starved making money for you—that too! You are going to pay me for all the things I am losing today, and—"

The girl thrust forth her left hand, on that side where stood the officer. So vigorous was her movement that Cassidy's clasp was thrown off the wrist. But the bond between the two was not broken, for from wrist to wrist showed taut the steel chain of the manacles. The girl shook the links of the handcuffs in a gesture stronger than words.

"You are going to pay me for this!" she said. Her voice was little more than a whisper, but it was loud in the listener's heart. "Yes, you are going to pay—for this!"

They were grim years, those three years during which Mary Turner served her sentence in Burnside. There was no time off for good behavior. The girl learned soon that the favor of those set in authority over her could only be won at a cost against which her every maidenly instinct revolted. So she went through the inferno of days and nights in a dreariness of suffering that was deadly. Naturally the life there was altogether an evil thing. There was the material fil ever present in the round of wearisome physical toil—the coarse, distasteful food; the hard narrow couch; the constant, gnawing irksomeness of imprisonment, away from light and air, away from all that makes life worth while.

The best evidence of the fact that Mary Turner's soul was not fatally soiled must be found in the fact that still at the expiration of her sentence she was fully resolved to live straight, as the saying is which she had quoted to Gilder. This, too, in the face of some knowledge as to the difficulties that would beset the effort and in the face of the temptations offered to follow an easier path.

There was, for example, Aggie Lynch, a fellow convict, with whom she had a slight degree of acquaintance, nothing more. This young woman, a criminal by training, offered allurements of illegitimate employment in the outer world when they should be free. Mary endured the companionship with this prisoner because a sixth sense proclaimed the fact that there was one unnormal rather than immoral, and the difference is mighty.

For that reason Aggie Lynch was not actively offensive, as were most of the others. She was a dainty little blond, with a baby face, in which were set two light blue eyes of a sort to widen often in demure wonder over most things in a surprising and naughty world. She had been convicted of blackmail, and she made no pretense even of innocence. Instead, she was inclined to boast over her ability to bamboozle men at her will. She was a natural actress of the ingenue role, and in that pose she could unfailingly beguile the heart of the wisest of worldly men.

She had been reared in a criminal family, which must excuse much. Long ago she had lost track of her father. Her mother she had never known. Her one relation was a brother of high standing as a pickpocket. One principal reason of her success in leading on men to make fools of themselves over her, to their everlasting regret afterward, lay in the fact that in spite of all the gross irregularities of her life she remained chaste.

The girl saw in Mary Turner the possibilities of a ladylike personality that might mean much financial profit in the devious ways of which she was a mistress. With the frankness characteristic of her, she proceeded to paint glowing pictures of a future shared to the undoing of ardent and fatuous swains. Mary Turner listened with curiosity, but she was in no wise moved to follow such a life, even though it did not necessitate anything worse than a fraudulent playing at love. So, she steadfastly continued her refusals. She would live straight.

"You will find that you are up against an awful frost," Aggie would declare brutally.

Mary found the prophecy true. Back in New York she experienced a poverty more ravaging than any she had known in those five lean years of her working in the store. She had been absolutely penniless for two days, and without food through the gnawing hours, when she found employment in a milliner's shop. Followed a blessed interval in which she worked contentedly, happy over the meager stipend, since it served to give her shelter and food honestly earned.

The police-informed Mary's employer concerning her record as a convict, and she was at once discharged. The unfortunate victim of the law came perilously close to despair then. Yet, her spirit triumphed, and again she persevered in that resolve to live straight. She found a cheap position in a cheap shop, only to be again persecuted by the police, so that she speedily lost the place.

A third time she obtained work and there, after a little, she told her employer, a candy manufacturer in a small way, the truth as to her having been in prison. The man had a kindly heart and he ran little risk, so he allowed her to remain. When the police called his attention to the girl's criminal record he paid no heed to their advice against retaining her services. The police brought pressure to bear on the man. They even called in the assistance of Edward Gilder himself, who obligingly wrote a very severe letter to the girl's employer. In the end, though unwillingly enough, he dismissed Mary from his service.

It was then that despair did come upon the girl. She had tried with all the strength of her to live straight. Yet, despite her innocence, the world would not let her live according to her own conscience. It demanded that she be the criminal it had branded her—if she were to live at all. She still walked the streets falteringly, seeking some place, but her heart was gone from the quest. Came an hour when she thought of the river and was glad.

So she went through the long stretch of ill lighted streets, crossed some railroad tracks to a pier, over which she hurried to the far end, where it projected out to the fiercer currents of the Hudson. There, without giving herself a moment's pause for reflection or hesitation, she leaped out as far as her strength permitted into the coil of waters. But in that final second natural terror in the face of death overcame the lethargy of despair—a shriek burst from her lips.

On the side of the pier a man had just tied up a motorboat. He stood up in alarm at the cry and was just in time to gain a glimpse of a white face under the dim moonlight as it swept down with the tide, two rods beyond him. He threw off his coat and sprang far out after the drifting body. He came to it in a few furious strokes and caught it.

Then began the savage struggle to save her and himself. The currents fore at him wrathfully, but he fought against them with all the fierceness of his nature. What saved the two of them was the violent temper of the man. Always it had been the demon to set him aflame. His rage mounted and gave him new power in the battle. Under the urge of it he conquered and at last brought himself and his charge to the shore.

Mary revived to clear consciousness, which was at first inclined toward hysteria, but this phase yielded soon under the sympathetic ministrations of the man. His rather low voice was soothing to her tired soul, and his whole air was at once masterful and gently tender. When finally she was able to stand and to walk with the support of his arm she went forward slowly at his side without so much as a question of whither.

Joe Garson had performed, perhaps, his first action with no thought of self at the back of it. He had risked his life to save that of a stranger. The sensation was at once novel and thrilling. Since it was so agreeable he meant to prolong the glow of self-satisfaction by continuing to care for this waif of the river.

Joe Garson, the notorious forger, led the dripping girl eastward through the squalid streets until at last they came to an adequately lighted avenue, and there a taxicab was found. It carried them farther north, and to the east to an apartment house that was rather imposing, set in a street of humble dwellings.

Here Garson paid the fare and then helped the girl to alight and on into the hallway. Mary went with him quite unafraid, though now with a growing curiosity.

The two entered and went slowly up three flights of stairs. On the landing beyond the third flight the door of a rear flat stood open, and in the doorway appeared the figure of a woman.

"Well, Joe, who's the skirt?" this person demanded as the man and his charge halted before her. Then, abruptly, the round, baby-like face of the woman puckered in amazement. Her voice rose shrill. "Well, if it ain't Mary Turner!"

"Aggie!" was the reply.

In the time that followed Mary lived in the flat which Aggie Lynch occupied with her brother, Jim, a pickpocket much esteemed among his fellow craftsmen. The period wrought transformations of a radical and bewildering sort in both the appearance and the character of the girl.

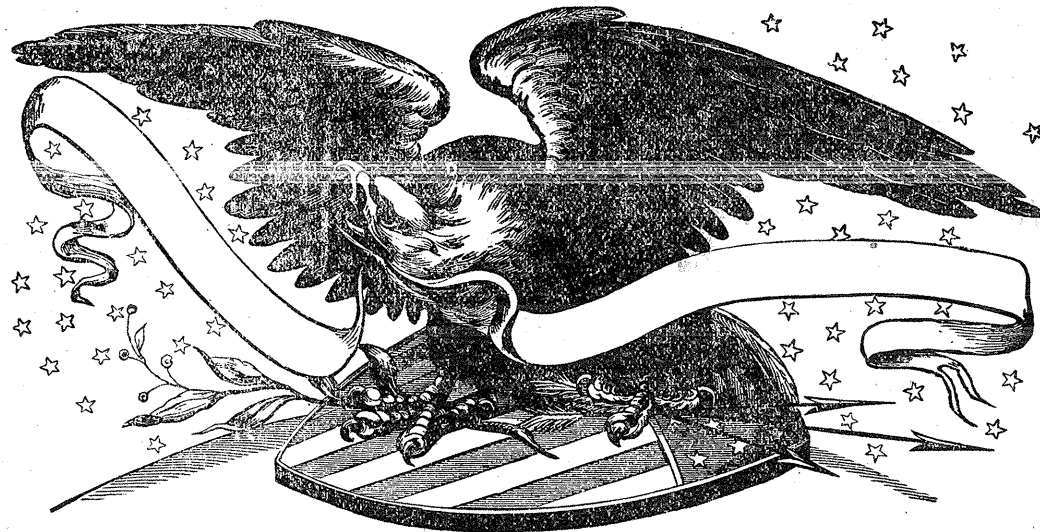

Joe Garson, the forger, had long been acquainted with Aggie and her brother, though he considered them far beneath him in the social scale, since their criminal work was not of that high kind on which he prided himself. But as he cast about for some woman to whom he might take the hapless girl he had rescued his thoughts fell on Aggie. He was relieved rather than otherwise to learn that there was already an acquaintance between the two women, and the fact that his charge had served time in prison did not influence him one jot against her.

Mary let herself drift. It seemed to her that she had abandoned herself to fate in that hour when she threw herself into the river. Afterward, without any volition on her part, she had been restored to life and set within an environment new and strange to her, in which soon, to her surprise, she discovered a vivid pleasure. So she fought no more, but left destiny to work its will, unhampered by her futile strivings.

For the first time in her life, thanks to the hospitality of Aggie Lynch, secretly re-enforced from the funds of Joe Garson, Mary found herself living in luxurious idleness, while her every wish could be gratified by the merest mention of it. She was fed on the daintiest of fare, she was clothed with the most delicate richness for the first time as to those more mysterious garments which women love. In addition, there were as many of books and magazines as she could wish.

Her mind, long starved like her body, seized avidly on the nourishment thus afforded. In this interest Aggie had no share—was perhaps a little envious over Mary's absorption in printed pages. Aggie took a vast pride in her guest, with the unmistakable air of elegance, and she dared to dream of great triumphs to come, though as yet she carefully avoided any suggestion to Mary of wrongdoing.

In the end the suggestion came from Mary Turner herself, to the great surprise of Aggie, and, truth to tell, of herself.

There were two factors that chiefly influenced her decision. The first was due to the feeling that, since the world had rejected her, she need no longer concern herself with the world's opinion or retain any scruples over it. Back of this lay her bitter sentiment toward the man who had been the direct cause of her imprisonment, Edward Gilder.

The factor that was the immediate cause of her decision on an irregular mode of life was an editorial in one of the daily newspapers. This was a scathing arraignment of a master in high finance. The point of the writer's attack was the grim sarcasm for such methods of thievery as are kept within the law. That phrase held the girl's fancy, and she read the article again with a quickened interest. Then she began to meditate.

It was the law that had worked the ruin of her life, which she had striven to make wholesome. In consequence she felt for the law no genuine respect, only detestation as for the epitome of injustice. Yet, she gave it a superficial respect, born of those three years of suffering which had been the result of the penalty inflicted on her. Now, in the paragraph she had just read she found a clue to suggestive thought, a hint as to a means by which she might satisfy her rancor against the law that had outraged her, and this in safety since she would attempt nought save that within the law.

County Drain Commissioner representative was on townline last week to get right of way for a drain across Vohes land, section 3, Kingston. He failed to connect and went home a wiser man.

Ceased to chase the American hare. Courliss, Martin and L. Retherford were "scooped" in the last hunting test by H. Retherford, J. D. Funk and John Retherford so the defeated boys paid for oysters in the shell; that is, speaking after the manner of men.

The newspapers tell of Becker, one of the gang in New York now imprisoned for murder of Herman Rosenthal, when asked for a statement referred them to Ecclesiasticus Chap. 15. First to fifteenth verses inclusive. To the Protestant family who keep only King James Bible in the household this upset them. But if they reach right out to their Catholic neighbor and borrow a "Doray" version all things will be plain.

Three-fourths of a mile west of Wilmet on what is known as the old Hack farm the dwelling burned down on the night of the 23rd of February. The house was occupied by Mr. Goodgill who lost all. The following Thursday Ladies' Aid of townline met at home of John Retherford where "Will" Downey came along asking donation for the burned out man. So they dosed out the proceeds of ten dinners, $4.90, then gathered up scattering pennies making the amount $5.25 and sent the boy away rejoicing.

Made By Many Cass City Residents.

Many people in a misguided effort to get rid of kidney backache, rely on plasters, liniments and other makeshifts. The right treatment is kidney treatment and a remarkably recommended kidney medicine is Doan's Kidney Pills. Cass City is no exception.

The proof is at your very door. The following is an experience typical of the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Cass City.

John Fisher, Grant and Pine Sts., Cass City, Mich., says: "I was caused much suffering from kidney trouble. I had pain and lameness across the small of my back and when I stooped or brought any strain on the muscles of my back, my suffering was intensified. I knew that my kidneys were disordered and when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a box at Wood & Co.'s Drug Store. They soon improved my condition and before long I was in better health. I do not hesitate to recommend this splendid remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

YOU CAN'T EARN MONEY WHEN YOU'RE LAID UP

There are a lot of people in this town who cannot afford to be sick. Perhaps none of you feel that you can, but certainly some of you can't, for as soon as you are sick, your wages stop and worry and debts begin to pile up. The sensible thing for you to do, as soon as you feel run-down and worn out, no matter what the cause, is to take something just as quick as you can to build up strength and health. Make yourself more comfortable and provide against serious sickness.

We don't believe there is any other medicine made that will do as much towards saving your health and thus helping you save your money as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a medicine that gets right at the trouble and relieves it by toning the nerves, enriching the blood, and giving new strength and health to the whole body. It doesn't do this by means of alcohol or habit-forming drugs, because it contains none. Its strength and health-giving power is due to pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites, long endorsed by successful physicians, the one for its food value, the other for its tonic value. Here, for the first time, they are combined, and the result is a real nerve, blood and body-building medicine—a real strengthener that we are proud to tell you about. You don't need to hesitate in using it, because if it doesn't do all we say it will and satisfy you in every way, it will cost you nothing. If it doesn't make you strong and well again, come back and get your money. It will be given to you without word of question. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us $1.00.

Antiquity of the Mortgage.

The legal document known as a mortgage can be traced as far back as the dawn of authentic history. The mortgage comes directly down to us from the Romans, but its antiquity is much more remote than the Roman nation. The Greeks, Carthaginians, Persians, Egyptians, Babylonians, all knew of the mortgage and daily used it in their business transactions. It is safe to say that the custom of giving mortgages is practically as old as settled human society.

Build Your Barn Right . . .

Constructing your barn is a scientific problem in efficiency—just like the construction of a modern factory. You should build it!

To take care of your increase in crops the next few years.

To stand the enormous strains to which it will be subjected.

To save steps and permit quickest handling of contents.

To conserve the quality of your crops and the health of your animals.

The better your barn meets these requirements the more money you will make.

No one is better able than we are to help you make your barn what it should be. For years we have dealt in barn building materials and studied barn construction.

We are confident our knowledge and experience will benefit you.

Talking it over with us will not put you under the slightest obligation.

IT'S THE BEST POLISH I EVER USED

That's What Every One Says Who Tries

Black Silk Stove Polish

DON'T imagine for a moment that all brands of stove polish are the same. Don't get the idea that to keep a nice glossy shine on your stove you must black it every few days. It's not a question of oft-repeated application. It's a question of the stove polish you use.

Black Silk Stove Polish is so much better than other stove polishes that there is absolutely no comparison—it's in a class all by itself.

It makes a brilliant glossy shine that don't rub or dust off. It anneals to the iron—becomes a part of the stove. It makes old stoves look like new and lasts four times as long as any other shine.

Get a can and give it a trial. Try it on your parlor stove, your cook stove, or your gas range. If you do not find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Black Silk Stove Polish has been made by the same formula and sold under one name for 30 years.

Here is what some of the ladies write us:

"I sent you for a can of Black Silk Stove Polish and found it so much better than any I had ever used that I asked my hardware dealer to order a supply. He did so and is now selling nearly every one in the place your polish. I had no idea there could be such a difference in stove polishes."

"I was visiting friends and they used Black Silk Stove Polish on their stoves. It made the best shine I ever saw, and after bincing, the polish did not rub or dust off. It is way ahead of any polish I have ever used."

Ask Your Dealer for Black Silk Stove Polish and refuse a counterfeit brand. Costs you no more than the ordinary kind, so why not have the best. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works, Sterling, Ill.

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel for grates, fenders, registers, stove pipes, etc. Prevents rusting. Not affected by heat or cold. Produces a permanent glossy black surface. Can, with brush for applying enamel, only 25 cents. Ask your dealer.

Use Black Silk Metal Polish for nickel, brass, silverware or tinware. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished your letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Awful.

"I don't know what we are coming to," said Mrs. McGudley, polishing her glasses. "I'm sure we'll have to come to some kind of literary censorship."

A Woman's Exploit

She Was Sent Out as a Spy by President Lincoln

By F. A. MITCHEL

The life of President Lincoln is so thoroughly identified with the four years of war—the last four years of his earthly existence—that we are not accustomed to think of him in any other connection. During that brief period we see him under many lights—now he is endeavoring by wise diplomacy to prevent foreign governments from intervening between the north and the south to insure the separation of the states and on the same day gives to a woman of low degree the life of her son, who has been sentenced to be shot for desertion; at one moment he is urging the generals to move their armies against the enemy; the next he is sending out an individual—a girl in her teens perhaps—to bring him information of the Confederates.

It is this last named field that connects Mr. Lincoln especially with the romance in adventures of the war.

A secret service bureau was organized, with headquarters at the capital, by Allan Pinkerton. It was his business to provide and equip spies, but it was Mr. Lincoln who laid out their work for them. He told them what information he needed, and it was their part to get it for him. The risk they ran was very great, and their pay—when they worked for pay—was proportionately large.

Possibly the most successful of Mr. Lincoln's spies—that is, considering the importance of the information obtained—was a young woman. Kate Beale had lived in Richmond, the capital of the Confederacy, and during her residence there had naturally become familiar with the place and taken on the accent peculiar to Virginia. Moreover, she was supposed to sympathize with the southern cause. She was at the time of Mr. Lincoln's incumbency the only support of an invalid mother and found it difficult to provide the necessary supplies.

It occurred to Miss Beale that she might put her knowledge of Richmond to advantage by going there and bringing information to the federal government. True, if she were caught in such work she was liable to suffer death or at least be kept in a southern prison till the end of the war, leaving her mother without either support or attendance. She went to Allan Pinkerton and told him of the advantages she possessed for secret service work at Richmond and found him a willing listener.

But Pinkerton before employing her must make sure of her fidelity to the Union cause. She proposed to deceive her friends in Richmond, but she might if she chose deceive those in Washington, for her plan was to offer her services to the Confederate government to go to Washington and bring back information for President Davis. Washington was full of southerners ready to convey information to the Confederate government, and it was difficult to tell who could be trusted.

Pinkerton pretended to trust Miss Beale, but before employing her sent decoys to her to try to draw from her a betrayal in case she intended to work for the Confederacy instead of the Union. She stood all these tests, and at last Pinkerton, becoming satisfied that she was to be trusted, sent her to President Lincoln. This was in the spring of '65, when the war was drawing to a close.

On arriving at the White House she was admitted to a room, in which she found Mr. Lincoln alone. He had a very simple but very important work for her.

"Mr. Pinkerton informs me," he said, "that you are familiar with Richmond. I am anxious to learn what provisions they have there on which to subsist in case our armies surround and cut off their lines of supplies. It will be your part to take notice of their depots, to see how well filled they are and if necessary, or you can do so without too much risk, learn what they have from officials. My object is to discover whether they are in condition to stand a siege or must surrender in case General Grant, who is south of them at Petersburg, captures the place, cutting off their only communications southward."

Miss Beale understood perfectly what was required of her and its value if executed. Mr. Lincoln sent her off with a "God bless you and bring you back safely from your perilous work."

Citizens were occasionally passing to and fro between the lines, and Miss Beale, having President Lincoln's pass, had no trouble in getting to Richmond. She pretended to be bitter against the Federal government and securing the acquaintance of the wife of the officer in charge of the commissary department of the Confederate capital was anxious to serve the Confederate cause. She asked the commissary how she could aid in the matter of getting supplies into the Confederacy from the north. She was taken to President Davis for a reply and held a conference with him and the commissary general in the executive mansion.

There were but two ways by which supplies could be introduced into the Confederacy, from the outside—block ade running and landing, a vessel at some point not guarded by Federal troops. The former of these methods was the common one. Miss Beale said that she knew Confederate sympathizers in Baltimore who would be glad to send a load of provisions to some point on the Virginia shore if they could be assured that the ship would be met by a Confederate force. It is not a hundred miles down Chesapeake bay to North Cumberland county, Va., and there were many convenient points on the Potomac and the bay for landing. Mr. Davis and the commissary general were much pleased with Miss Beale's plan and spent some time conferring together in her presence as to the most convenient place for them to send a force to meet the ship bringing them.

All this was but a cloak for the spy to learn of the available stock of provisions in Richmond and to secure a return to the north. While the matter was pending she learned that there were very few commissary stores in Richmond, and if General Grant should cut the only line of supply still open—that through Petersburg—the capital of the Confederacy would be obliged to surrender.

At last, a point for landing supplies by the fictitious Baltimore sympathizers having been agreed upon, Miss Beale was given a pass to go through the lines and resolved on her departure the next day.

But now at the last moment a danger came up in a singular coincidence. A Confederate spy was in Richmond who was playing the same game on the Federal that she was playing on the Confederate government. It happened that this person had seen Miss Beale coming out of Allan Pinkerton's office in Washington. Whether he remembered just when and where he had seen her, or whether he was not quite sure of it, she knew at once by the scrutiny with which he looked at her that she was in danger.

All her faculties were concentrated on losing the man or his losing her before he could take any decided action. Appearing not to notice his interest in her, she walked on till spying an empty cab she called the driver and entered it.

And now comes one of the most remarkable cases of assurance under peril that have ever been manifested by either man or woman. With lightning rapidity she formed her plan. "Drive me to the executive mansion," she called to the driver.

She was whirled away, but a glance at the man she was trying to avoid assured her that he was watching her, though he was endeavoring to make it appear that he was not, and when she reached the mansion and alighted at the door she saw him hurrying after her. Entering the house, she asked for the president and was shown to the anteroom to wait her turn for an audience. She had nothing to communicate to Mr. Davis, her object being to indicate to the man who followed her that she had business with the government. Finally, when she thought this had been effected, she determined to make an exit.

If her shadower were outside waiting for her, she felt that she was lost. Her heart was in her throat as she passed from the house. She dare not look about her, but so far as she could see the man had vanished. At any rate, she saw nothing of him. If he were still shadowing her he was keeping out of sight.

But she must seek safety in flight. A few miles from Richmond to the southward are the battlefields fought over by Lee and McClellan during the peninsular campaign. Miss Beale directed the cabman to drive out to these fields. Having reached her destination she dismissed the cabman and started for Fortress Monroe, some seventy miles to the southeastward.

The story of this journey, on foot, by wagon, by boat on the James river, is a romance in itself. It was a flight from prison, a flight from the halter. At last, worn with fatigue and exposure, the fugitive reached the fort, on whose battlements floated the stars and stripes, and she knew she was safe.

The closing act in the drama is when Miss Beale reappeared at the White House. Mr. Lincoln was in his office one morning when a messenger gave him the name of Kate Beale as one desiring to see him.

"Thank God!" muttered the president. "Bring her to me at once."

Mr. Lincoln's joy at his emissary's safe return was enhanced by the news she brought him that the Confederate capital was without supplies. General Grant was hammering at Petersburg and was destined a month later to capture the place. So Mr. Lincoln was assured by Miss Beale's report that as soon as Grant had finished his work the capital of the Confederacy would be at the disposal of the Federal government and that the end of the war was in sight.

Kate Beale was well paid for her work. Indeed, she received enough to supply her mother's and her own wants for a long time to come. Luckily, the war soon after her exploit ended, or doubtless the fascination of the danger involved would have led her to risk her life again. But the pitcher that goes often to the well is at last broken.

Such episodes as this have connected Mr. Lincoln's name with adventurous story. But this is but one of the many branches of romance that, taken together, have woven a charm about him which will last as long as his name and his work are remembered. But that which especially endears him to the American people is his many acts of mercy to the humblest of those who begged for it during the period when the shedding of blood seemed to move the clock of the world back twenty centuries, necessitating a new message of peace on earth and good will to men.

Woman's World

The Fair Virginian Whom Kermit Roosevelt Is to Marry.

MISS BELLE WYATT WILLARD.

The entire country is interested in the girl whom Kermit Roosevelt is to marry. Kermit is the second son of ex-President Roosevelt, and while the Roosevelt family occupied the White House he was a great favorite with the public. He is now twenty-four years of age and engaged in business in Brazil. Recently came the announcement of his engagement to Miss Belle Wyatt Willard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Willard of Richmond, Va.

Miss Willard's father is at present ambassador at the court of Spain. Her mother was Miss Belle Layton Wyatt, a member of one of the oldest Baltimore families.

Miss Willard made her debut two years ago and is one of the most admired of the younger society set in Richmond. She is blond, rather small and with clear cut features. During the last two seasons she has been prominent in the social life of Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, New York and Hot Springs, Va., and it was while at the latter resort that she met Miss Ethel Roosevelt, now Mrs. Richard Derby, who was the guest of the Willards on a long motor ride through Virginia.

Miss Willard visited the Roosevelt home at Oyster Bay, and it was while there that she became acquainted with Kermit. She was a guest at the Derby-Roosevelt wedding in New York last winter, after which young Roosevelt sailed for Brazil, where he has been engaged in engineering.

The romance between the Virginia girl and the son of the ex-president was little talked about or suspected. She has been abroad since September with her mother and younger sister.

It is understood that following the wedding the young couple will take up their residence at Sao Paulo, Brazil, where Mr. Roosevelt is established in business.

Card of Thanks. We desire to express our gratitude to the neighbors and friends for the many kindnesses extended in our recent bereavement. Mrs. Andrew Edgerton and Family.

When Burned.

An excellent home remedy for slight burns may be made as follows: Take half a pint of kerosene. Add half a pound of gum camphor in small quantities, shaking until dissolved. Add to this one-half its bulk of sweet oil. To use, saturate a soft cloth with the mixture, wrap the injured part in it and leave undisturbed for several days.

This is also a good remedy for sore throat. Swab the throat with it two or three times a day until relieved.

There is no substitute for Royal Baking Powder for making the best cake, biscuit and pastry. Royal is Absolutely Pure and the only baking powder made from Royal grape cream of tartar.

POPULAR PLOWS

The Oliver O-98 and O-99 are especially popular where new ground is being opened up—and in sections where stones prevail, the steel beam plow takes the lead, its great strength being a very desirable feature where it is subjected to severe strains and severe usage. Fitted with reversible wings and slips, with solid shares as extras, if desired. Jointers or hanging coulters, as well as rolling coulters can be supplied on these two plows. The usual Oliver quality—the best.

SICK PEOPLE SHOULD INVESTIGATE

In Fact, My Entire Life Has Been Devoted to Curing Where Others Have Failed. I Have Changed Hundreds Upon Hundreds of Nervous Wrecks Into Fine, Strong Men and Women. I Accept No Case I Cannot Cure.

FIFTY YEARS OF PRACTICE OF MEDICINE IN THIS STATE.

I CURE NERVOUS TROUBLES from overwork, etc. I promptly and positively cure, no matter of how long standing.

I CURE FITS—Epilepsy, St. Vitus Dance, Paralysis, etc., by striking direct at the cause, restoring the diseased nerves to perfect health.

I CURE PILES in 30 days to stay cured and to never return.

I CURE CONSUMPTION, the great White Plague, in the first and second stages. Have made a special study of this disease for 50 years. Have cured hundreds given up by home doctors. Those I cannot treat at home by seeing or my mail, I will take to my Sanitarium, where best of medical skill, nursing and private rooms are given for $10 a week.

I GUARANTEE TO CURE, to stay cured, liquor, morphine, cocaine, nicotine or cigarette habits. Most cases treated at home.

Any unfortunate girl given best of care. May work out fees. Call and see me or write to either Sanitarium as below. No matter what disease you are suffering from, write me fully today. I will answer at once, and my advice which costs you nothing, may be worth hundreds of dollars—life itself—to you. If I cannot cure you I will tell you so. WRITE TODAY.
