PASTORS WILL SPEAK ON AP-PROPRIATE THEMES.

Plans Are Being Perfected to Get Every Church Worker in the Harness.

"Go to Church Sunday" has been planned for Cass City and vicinity by local pastors for Apr. 19. Each pastor will speak on appropriate themes and they desire that every one in the community attend at least one church service that day.

Among the most popular and impressive church movements of this year is the "go to church Sunday" as observed in many of our large cities as well as the smaller places. With this united effort and emphasis on a designated Sunday the people have been treated to the spectacle of seeing every church crowded and in many instances hundreds of the late comers unable to get in.

Plans are being perfected that will get every church worker into the harness and it is hoped that every stayat-home will break away and join in the general movement. Cass City has always pulled together on every worth while movement and we will be surprised if she does not break the record of any town in the Thumb for percentage of church attendance on that day

SACRED CONCERT

Given Sunday Evening Under Direction of Caroline Fenn-Bigelow.

The choir of the M. E. church has had under preparation for several weeks the cantata, "Cross and Crown" by Ashford and will render it at the evening service on Easter Sunday.

This production of one of the foremost writers of sacred music of the present day has many features entitling it to a place among best modern music, and from the opening chorus to the last note of praise to the risen Lord, commands the most reverent and pleasurable attention. The composer has so interwoven the Prophesies and the Gospels in musi-novelty of arrangement entirely free from monotony.

A cantata of this proportion has that object and the purchase of music. Their friends are desirous of making this offering a token of apglass nut bowl. preciation not only for this special service but for year round faithfulness to the musical interest of the

H. L. Pocklington writes his wife, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Lenzner, under date of March 27 from El Paso, Texas, that no one is allowed to cross into old Mexico to Juarez after ten o'clock at night until Carranza leaves again. All saloons have been ordered closed at Jaurez and anyone caught selling liquor is to be executed without trial. That rule holds while Carranza is there. Mr. Pocklington writes as follows regarding a climb up Mt. Franklin: "The view from the top of Mt. Franklinn is more than you would ever imagine. We could see Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Old Mexico. El Paso lies directly beneath as you look down. The street cars look like the smallest toys. We watched a train coming in from New Mexico. You can see the first two stations on the line beyond El Paso, and watching the steam from the engine when the whistle blew, it took 12 seconds for the sound reach us. We were two hours getting to the top of the mountain and in places we had to climb with our hands as well as with our feet."

Thirty-nine Saloons and One Brewery Were Knocked Off Total in State.

Final returns from the local option elections in the 12 Michigan counties that balloted on the question Monday increase rather than diminish the margin of the victory gained by the "drys."

Although Wexford county which early returns gave to the "drys" developed a "wet" majority of 10 which veloped a "wett majority of 10 which is not likely to be contested, Oscoda, first reported "wet" was discovered to have gone "dry" by 116, 66 more than four years ago, and the margin of the "dry" victory in Ingham increased from something over 700 to one swoop.

In Shiawasse county the "drys" victorious two years ago by 503 barely squeaked through with 26 majority and the "wets" are talking recount and other things as a result.

Although the voting Monday, leaves the "wets" and the "drys" unaffected as to the relative number of counties under prohibition and license the swapping of Ingham and Roscommon for Clare and Wexford cost the mon for Clare and Wexford cost the "wets" 26,031 in population.

The total number now under prohibition in the state is 790,831 (1910 census) in 33 counties and the number under license is 2,019,342 in 50 counties. Thirty-nine saloons and brewery were knocked off the total in the state Monday.—Free Press.

Practically complete returns from Illinois show that 22 counties in that state went into the dry column as the result of Tuesday's election in that state, giving the drys a total of 52 dry counties, one more than half the number in the state.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Burglary at Gilder's.

THE entrance of the butler brought the inspector's thoughts back to the matter in hand.

"My man," he said authorita-Rively, "I want you to go up to the Toof and open the scuttle. You'll find some men waiting up there. Bring em down here. They're police offivers. You get 'em down here, and then you go to bed and stay there till morning. Understand?"

The butler looked at his master for guidance. Receiving a nod, he said: "Very well, sir."

"How do you know they're going to break into the house tonight." Gilder demanded of Burke, "or do you only think they're going to break into the house?"

"I know they are. I fixed it." "You did?"

"Sure; did it through a stool pigeon." "Oh, an informer!" Gilder interrupted, a little doubtfully.

"Yes," Burke agreed; "stool pigeon is the police name for him. Really. he's the vilest thing that crawls."

"But if you think that," Gilder expostulated, "why do you have anything to do with that sort of person?"

"Because it's good business," the inspector replied. "We know he's a spy and a traitor and that every time he comes near us we ought to use a disinfectant. But we deal with him just the same because we have to. Now. the stool pigeon in this trick is a swell English crook. He went to Garson yesterday with a scheme to rob your house. He tried out Mary Turner, too. but she told Garson to leave it alone. But he met Griggs afterward and agreed to pull it off. Griggs got word to me that it's coming off tonight, and so, you see. Mr. Gilder, that's how I know."

"I see," Gilder admitted without any enthusiasm. "But why do you have your men come down over the roof?"

"It wasn't safe to bring them in the front way. It's a cinch the house is being watched. I wish you would let me have your latch key. I want to come back and make this collar my-

"But why not stay, now that you are here?

"Suppose some of them saw me come in? There wouldn't be anything doing until after they saw me go out again."

The hall door opened, and the butler re-entered the room. Behind him came Cassidy and two other detectives in plain clothes. At a word from his the way was free for the thieves' commaster the disturbed Thomas with ing the door closed behind the servant. "where could these men stay out of sight until they're needed?"

There followed a little discussion which ended in the selection of a storeroom at the end of the passage on the ground floor.

"And now, Mr. Gilder," the inspector said energetically, "I'm going to give you the same tip I gave your man.

"Go to bed and stay there."
"But the boy," Gilder protested. "What about him? He's the one thing of importance to me."

"If he says anything more about going to Chicago just you let him go. that's all! It's the best place for him for the next few days."

"You're in charge here," Burke said to Cassidy, "and I hold you responsible. I'm coming back to get this men bunch myself, and I'll call you when you're wanted. You'll wait in the storeroom out there and don't make a move till you hear from me, unless by any chance things go wrong and you get a call from Griggs. He's got a whistle, and he'll use it if necessary. an entire understanding of the direc-

As the men left the room Burke turned again to Gilder.

"Just one thing more," he said. "After I've gone I want you to stay up for a half hour anyhow, with the lights burning. Do you see? I want to be sure to give the Turner woman time to get here while that gang is at work. Gilder scrupulously followed the directions of the police inspector. Uneasily he had remained in the library until the allotted time was elapsed. He fidgeted from place to place, his mind heavy with distress under the shadow that threatened to blight the life of his cherished son. Finally, with a sense of relief he put out the lights and went to his chamber. His thoughts were most with his son, and ever as he thought of Dick his fury waxed against the woman who had enmeshed the boy in her plotting for vengeance on himself. And into his thoughts now crept a doubt, one that alarmed his sense of justice. A horrible suspicion that he had misjudged Mary Turner crept into his brain and would not out. He fought it with all the strentgth of him, and that was much, but ever it abode there

Mary Turner herself, too, was in a condition utterly wretched, and for the same cause-Dick Gilder That source of the father's suffering was here as well. She had won her ambition of years-revenge on the man who had sent her to prison. And now the joy of it was a torture, for the puppet of her plans, the son, had suddenly become the chief thing in her life.

She had taken it for granted that he would leave her after he came to know that her marriage to him was only a device to bring shame on his father, Instead he loved her That fact seemed the secret of her distress. He loved More, he dared believe, and to assert boldly, that she loved him. Had he acted otherwise the matter would have been simple enough. But he loved her-loved her still, though he knew the shame that had clouded her life, knew the motive that had led her to accept him as a husband. More-by a sublime audacity he declared that she loved him.

There came a thrill in her heart each time she thought of that-that she loved him. The idea was monstrous, of course, and yet- Here, as aiways, she broke off, a hot flush blazing in her cheeks.

Mary Turner was just ready for bed when a note came by a messenger who waited for no answer, as he told the yawning maid. As Mary read the roughly scrawled message, she was caught in the grip of terror. The man who had saved her from death had yielded to temptation. As he had saved her so she must save him. She hurried into the gown she had just put off. Then she went to the telephone book and searched for the number of Gilder's house.

A few moments before Mary Turner received the note from the hands of the sleepy maid one of the leaves of the octagonal window in the library of Richard Gilder's town house swung open under the persuasive influence of and Joe Garson stepped confidently into the dark room. For a space he rested motionless, listening intently. Reassured, he drew out an electric torch and set it glowing. A little disk of light touched here and there about the room, traveling very swiftly and in methodical circles. Satisfied by the survey, Garson crossed to the hall door, where he listened for any sound of life without and found none. The door into the passage that led to the storeroom

where the detectives waited next engaged his businesslike attention. And here again there was naught to provoke his suspicion. It seemed to him that everything was in readiness for the coming of his associates. There remained only to give them the signal in the room around the corner where they waited at a telephone. He seated himself in Gilder's chair at the desk and drew the telephone to him. "Give me 999 Bryant." he said There was a "tile wait. Then an answer in a voice he knew came over the Garson picked up a penholder from the desk and began tapping lightly on the rim of the transmitter. It was a code message in Morse. In the room around the corner the tapping sounded clearly, ticking out the message that

For a final safeguard Garson search-"Now," Burke went on briskly as ed for and found the telephone bell box and unscrewed the bells, which he placed on the desk. He then took his pistol from his hip pocket and thrust it into the right side pocket of his coat. Once again, now, he produced the electric torch and lighted it as he extinguished the lamp on the table. He then went to the door into the hall, opened it and, leaving it ajar, made his way in silence to the outer doorway. The doors there were freed of their bolts, and one of them swung wide. So nicely had the affair been timed that hardly was the door open before the three men slipped in and stood mute and motionless in the hall while Garson refastened the doors. Then Garson walked quickly back to the library. Behind him, with steps as noiseless as his own, came the three

When all were gathered in the library Garson shut the hall door, touched the button in the wall beside it, and the chandelier threw its radiant light on the group.

Griggs was in evening clothes, seeming a very elegant young gentleman Got that straight?" Cassidy declared indeed, but his two companions were of grosser type as far as appearances went-one. Dacey, thin and wiry, with a ferret face; the other, Chicago Red, a brawny ruffian, whose stolid features nevertheless exhibited something of half sullen good nature.

"Everything all right so far," Garson said rapidly. He turned to Griggs and pointed toward the heavy hangings that shrouded the octagonal window. 'Are those the things we want?" he

"Yes," was the answer.

"Well, then, we've got to get busy." Before he could add a direction he was halted by a soft buzzing from the telephone. For an instant he hesitated while the others regarded him doubtfully.

"We've got to take a chance." Garson went to the desk and put the receiver to his ear.

There came again the faint tapping of some one at the other end of the line, signaling a message in the Morse code. An expression of blank amażement, which grew in a flash to deep concern, showed on Garson's face as he listened tensely. "Why, this is Mary calling," he mut-

"Mary!" Griggs cried.

"Yes, she's on." Garson interpreted a moment later as the tapping ceased for a little. He translated in a loud whisper as the irregular ticking noise sounded again.

"I shall be there almost at once. I am sending this message from the drug store around the corner. Have some one open the door for me immediately.

"She's coming over!" Griggs cried in credulously

"No. I'll stop her.' Garson declared firmly

But when after tapping a few words the forger paused for the reply no

"She don't answer!" he exclaimed. "On her way already," Griggs suggested. "I'll let her in." He drew a small torch from the skirt pocket of his coat and crossed to the hall door as Garson nodded assent.

"t...d." Why did she have to come?" Garson muttered, filled with forebod-"If anything should go wrong ings. now!"

He turned back toward the door just as it opened, and Mary darted into the room, with Griggs following closely at her heels.

"What do you want here?" he de manded, with peremptory savagenes in his voice, which was a tone he had never hitherto used in addressing ber. There was only tender pleading in Mary's voice, though her words were an arraignment.

"Joe, you lied to me!" "That can be settled later!" the man snapped. His jaw was thrust forward obstinately, and his clear eyes sparkled defiantly. "You are fools, all of you!" Mary cried. "Yes, fools! This is burglary. I can't protect you if you are caught. How can I': Oh, come!" She held out her hands pleadingly toward Garson, and her voice dropped to beseeching. Joe, Joe, you must get away from this house at once, all of you! Joe, make them go!"

"It's too late." was the stern an-"We're here now, and we'll stay till the business is done.

'I'm going to see this through," said Garson doggedly. With a gesture of despair she turned away toward the door by which she had entered "You can't go." Garson said sharply.

You might be caught" "And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think "Of course not, Mary. I know you. You would go up for life first. Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift author-

"Come," he said to Dacey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers, turn 'em off Understand?"

With instant obedience the man went to his station by the hall door. that door." He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man obeyed Garson gave further

It Takes A Lot of Watches

To watch-please all the people.

Some men's work requires absolute watch accuracy. We have watches for these men.

Others can get along with a watch that runs relatively true. These are cheaper

Some like solid cases. Others are content with the gold filled.

Some want large models which we have.

But no matter WHAT you wish in Watches, it's here for men, women, boys and girls.

It's here, too, at the most for the money.

First Christmas Gift Book.

In the General Advertiser of Jan. 9, 1750, appeared the earliest known announcement of a Christmas gift book, and in this case it was undeniably a gift book:

"Given Gratis. By J. Newberry, at the Bible and Sun, in St. Paul's Churchyard, over against the north-door of the church tonly paying one penny for the binding. Nurse Truelove's Christmas Box; or The Golden Plaything for Little children, by which they may learn the letters as soon as they can speak; and know how to behave so as to make everybody love them; adorned with thirty cuts."—London Mail.

Thomas Hardy at Home.

A London paper, commenting upon the standing of Thomas Hardy with his townspeople, says: "In point of fact the presence of Thomas Hardya legend to the great world-means practically nothing to the life of Dorchester. Its farmers, factors, shopkeepers, keen, plump, rosy, practical men, who are hard as nails at a bargain and 'do themselves well,' look upon Thomas Hardy as the son of his father and the brother of his brother. They know dimly that he has 'made a good thing out of book writing." They respect him. They are proud to know that the world rings with his fame. But they wonder why."

EASTER.

Easter, like all moveable festivals, is one that annually causes a great deal of discussion as to the exact date it will fall upon, and, while the controversy might easily be settled, since the date is regulated by the moon, most of us are willing to wait until the yerly almanacs and calendars are printed, in both of which the date usually is established.

The encyclopedia says in regard to Easter: It is a festival commemorating the resurrection of Christ. There was a long dispute in the Christian church as to the proper time to observe Easter, but the council at Nice settled the controversy in 325 when it fixed the date for the first Sunday after the full moon on or after March 21 of each year. If the full moon happens on a Sunday, then Easter is the Sunday following.

Reps Your Stove ant afternoon was reported. The little Misses Martha and the 'Always Ready for Company''

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used.

Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish one-wourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use on your parlor stove, kitchen stove or gas stove. Get a can from your hardware or stove dealer. If you do not find it better than any other stove polish you have ever used betore, your dealer is authorized to retund your money. But we feel sure you will agree with the thousands of other up-to-date women who are now using Black Silk Stove Polish and who say it is the "best stove polish ever made."

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

LIQUID OR PASTE ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black Silk Stove Polish costs you no more than the ordinary kind. Keep your grates, registers, fenders and stove pipes bright and free from rusting by using BLACK SILK AIR-DRYING ENAMEL. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK METAL POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

Elisha Allen died at her home one mile south of Kingston village after an hour's illness. She was in the 66th year of her age. Allen lived for many years in Novest township two miles east of Deford and was well known here hence the writer went on the 4th inst to help pay the last tribute of respect to a parting friend whose remains were buried in Kingston cemetery, one mile east of the town. She was a member of the Baptist church of Kingston and the services were held there. Rev. Sutphen selected for text words of Ezekiel, the Prophet, "And there shall be a light in the evening." The sermon was a thought prompter as he showed his hearers that the prophet spoke not of natural things for we look for a light in the morning and not in the evening. He told of how the spiritual light came to the deceased in the evening of life, how to thinking minds the light of truth comes more clearly toward the close of life whether they accept the light or not, and to this world Christ's second coming will be the great light in the evening time. When you Build a Home

Get the Most House-Value for Your Money

Everyone who owns a home pays for it "by the year." There is no other way. The building cost is the first payment. Then there is the cost of repairs every year.

The house that requires least patching and altering will give you best house-value. The original dollar's worth is worth a dollar longest.

Spend your building dollars wisely

Buy the right kind and quality of building materials. Then you'll have no regrets, no useless repair expense.

Quality does not mean mere "showiness." Quality refers to the backbone of the material—the sound, clear, strong, uniform fiber and texture of the lumber, brick, cement, etc.

That is the quality you|want—backbone quality. It is the "only quality that will insure you real house-valuethe pleasing, comfortable home that lasts longest at least expense—a daily source of satisfaction and bringing full value if you want to sell or rent.

Take Plenty of Time To Look Into the Matter of Quality

See and know every building material you buy.

Come to our store and see the different grades of mater-We'll show you the different grades of material that are so "awfully cheap" and, therefor, so "awfully expensive" in the end; also the grade that is the most economical in the long run—the kind with backbone quality and reasonable price. You will readily see and feel the difference. You will be surprised at the big difference in quality and the small difference in price.

Let us help you. This puts you to no obligation.

of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

WYOMAN'S delicate system requires more than ordinary care and at-

That backache, so common among women, brings with it the sunken chest, the headache, tired muscles, crow's-feet, and soon the youthful body is no more youthful in appearance—and all because of lack of attention.

There is no reason why you should be so unfortunate, when you have at your disposal a remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Frescription—recommended
