NEXT TUESDAY IS

PLAN TO IMPROVE SEVERAL HIGHWAYS.

Farmers Were Well Represented Monday Evening at Good Roads Meeting.

Tuesday, June 16, is road bee day for the farmers of Elkland and surrounding townships and citizens of Cass City. This date was selected at a good roads meeting held at the council rooms Monday evening.

Farmers were well represented at this meeting and several sections of roadway were selected in Elkland township for improvement. Stretches on the road two and five miles south of town were also considered and it is likely that they will be subject to betterment if farmers in those communities will signify their willingness to co-operate with local citizens in the work. That section was not represented at the meeting.

The plan is for business people to turn out with the farmers of the several districts and do road work under the supervision of an experienced roadmaker in each district. Farmers will furnish the majority of the ed among the several districts to shovel the gravel.

Local citizens and high school athletes who will participate in the shovelling act will meet at the Cass City Bank corner at 7:00 a. m. Tuesday morning where automobiles and other conveyances will take them to the various districts where work has been planned.

Elmwood township was represented by a large delegation at the meeting. The farmers there desire to improve the roadway between the four City, but want to have the road properly graded before they apply any gravel. This could not be made ready for next Tuesday and the citizens of that community wish to do the gravel hauling in August, after harvest time. They were assured that Cass City would gladly assist them in this improvement when they named the day for doing the work.

Josep Dodge of Elmwood was elected chairman at Monday evening's session and presided in an efficient manner.

HIGHEST HONORS FOR ORATORICAL ABILITY

JESSIE DUNCANSON SUCCEESS-FUL IN STATE CONTEST.

Winner of Five Medals Receives Large Diploma and Is Graduate of W. C. T. U. Course.

Miss Jessie Duncanson, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Duncanson of Cass City and now a student at Alma College, won the highest honors at the grand diamond contest at the state contest at the state convention of the W. C. T. U. at Flint on June 3.

She has now completed the oratorical course given by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and beside the five medals which she has won, she is now given a large diploma and is a graduate. There were five contestants taking part in the contest: Dr. Irving Hanna of Detroit who gave "The Drunkard's Dying Soliloquy"; Floyd Lambertson, 'The Question of the Century"; Veola Gifford of Flint, "The Story of Patsy": Citizens Expect to Entertain Many Mrs. Nellie Bair, "How the Church Was Built." All of the above named selections have been given in contests in Cass City, except the last one.

The local Union should feel very proud that one of its own members has thus reached the highest honors offered for oratorical ability. Miss Duncanson went to the contest very reluctantly, as she had no opportunity to receive special instruction at this time, but the ability she has acquired through past contests enabled her to be her own instructor.

A penny saved is penny earned .-Benjamin Franklin.

How to Make a Kitchen Garden. KITCHEN garden on a sunny window sill is a convenience and a delight. It is delightful to work over and look at, and the bits of fresh green that can be gathered in it give flavor and character to many soups, salads and sauces.

The garden can be planted in a shallow wooden box or else in flower pots. It is easier to manage in the box—so far as watering and moving it are concerned. But if it is planted in several pots all parts of it can be given the full advantage of the sun. The first thing to plant is parsley It takes a long time to germinate, but when once it begins to grow it grows surely and steadily, and a single six inch pot filled with parsley will give a supply for months.

Soak the seeds-which should be bought of a reliable nurseryman—for twenty-four hours in tepid water. They sprout much more quickly if treated in this way. Then spread them on a blotter to absorb the superfluous water and then mix them with a little dry sand so that they can be easily han

Have a pot full to the top of rich earth, sprinkle the sand and seeds over it, sprinkle on a little more earth mixed with sand, sprinkle with water and stand in the sun. Keep the earth slightly moist until the seeds come up. Do not soak it as this might rot the seeds. The sandy top soil keeps the earth from caking when the sun is hot and so breaking off the tops of the little plants.

The earth in the pots should always be almost level with the top of the pots so that the rim then will not cast a shadow on the earth near the edges. Of course if a single plant is in the pot in the center the earth may be an inch below the top of the pot, as the shadow around the edges will not fall on any growing thing.

Onion seeds can be planted in a rather deep box filled with very rich, black earth. These are delicious for cutting when they are no bigger than a small radish, to give flavor to salads. And the flavorsome ends, delicate but pungent, can be used in the soup pot. Of course it is difficult to get these onions to full size grown in this way, but the half grown ones are more delicate in flavor than the older ones anyway.

SUMMER GARDENS.

How to Have a Cheap and Beautiful Flower Plot.

Just at this season of the year our minds are naturally reverting to plans for next summer's gardens. This work begins in early spring. The more carefully we plan the prettier our gardens will be. Even a tiny back yard can be made atttractive. This can also be done with very little expense.

The gladiolus family offer us a variety of choice colors, and the bulbs have two decided advantages. First, they are cheap, and, second, they are easily raised. There is no garden flower that will yield such results as the gladiolus if given a small amount of

It is rarely troubled with insects, which is a great aid to amateurs. Then the blooming season covers a long period of time if the bulbs are planted at different times through the spring. You can plant them almost any place in the garden. Of course in fall they must be taken up. They make attractive blooms for cutting purposes. A jardiniere of these flowers is truly gorgeous.

They have the advantage of many flowers in that they keep well for four or five days after being cut. All that is necessary to keep them in good condition is to change the water occasion-

Gladioli thrive best in a sandy soil. Place the bulb in a hole five inches deep and space the bulbs four inches apart each way. This deep planting prevents the wind blowing them over. They do well if the soil about them is loosened up from time to time during the summer.

If you are planting them merely for garden decoration plant them here and there; it makes no difference where. Of course a few bulbs in a clump is always better taste, because it gives a mass of color, which is prettier than single specimens, which merely make a dot of color. Planted in straight rows they are easier to cultivate, but not so

It is an excellent idea to plant the bulbs fifteen days apart, commencing as early in the season as the ground can be worked and continuing until July. This method gives us plenty of bloom from July until October.

In the fall lift the bulbs and store them in a warm, dry place. Sometimes during the winter examine the bulbs and see that they show no signs of decay.

How to Use Umbrella Rods. The steel rods from old umbrellas make fine plant supports. Disconnect and also where the ring slips the handle, and you have a double rod to slip into your flowerpots, and if they are lives lost. them where they join the upper part painted green they are un oticeable.

SAYS HE CAN SEE PEOPLE HE TALKS TO OVER PHONE

English Scientist Gives Demonstration of a Most Remarkable Apparatus.

"Seeing by wire" is the startling suggestion of Dr. A. M. Low, a well known British scientific investigator.

Dr. Low in London gave a demonstration for the first time in public of a new invention whereby he claims that it is possible "for persons using a telephone to see each other at the same time.'

The New York Times quotes Dr. Low as follows:

"It may be remarkable, but in reality it is quite simple, and I am sure that some day-perhaps not in our time, but some day-people on a liner at sea will be able to witness a spectacle taking place on shore, transmitted to the ship by wireless in the way news is now sent."

Dr. Low explained that he had been experimenting with the reproduction of pictures at a distance electrically for five years. He had been successful already over a distance of four miles, using ordinary telephonic and telegraphic apparatus.

The apparatus which Dr. Low has invented is a screen consisting of a large number of cells of selenium, over which a ruler is moved rapidly by a small motor, worked with a current of high frequency and of about 50.000 volts pressure. It is fitted in a box at the side of a telephone. The receiver at the other end is made up of a series of telephone slabs of steel, through which the light passes.

Another prediction Dr. Low ventured was that one of his machines could be used for the study of military operations taking place at a distance. This, he said, would be introducing a new complication into warfare - "seeing what the enemy is doing on the other side of a mountain."

PLANS GREAT SUBMARINE.

Navy Will Build Boat With Batteries Like Destroyers.

A new type of armed submarine boat which promises to displace the torpedo boat destroyer and revolutionize naval warfare has been developed in the navy department at Washington.

Department experts propose to build a seagoing submarine of about the size of the present destroyer, but considerably larger than existing submarines. It will have a speed of twenty knots on the surface and twelve to fourteen knots when submerged and will have the double function of engaging in under water attack and in taking part in action on the surface.

The new submarine will carry a disappearing battery of three or four guns of four or five inch caliber in addition to the usual torpedo tubes. The guns can be raised above the deck and lowered beneath waterproof shutters when the vessel is under water.

Contributed by Local Union. Mrs. Schwegler, Mrs. Duncanson and Mrs. Fee attended the State Convention at Flint June 2, 3, 4 and 5. There were the largest number of voting delegates present in the history of the Michigan Woman's Christian Temperance Union. "The alcohol question must be setled within the next ten years or a more virile nation will write the epitaph of this republic," is the assertion of the great scientist, Dr. T. Alexander MacNicholl. This conclusion is based on research which has discovered the startling relation which exists between alcohol and degeneracy, crime and insanity. These findings of science give sufficient foundation for the demand of patriotic Americans for state and national constitutional prohibition.

All the saloons in Venango county, Pa., were closed by Judge Criswell, under the Brooks law, because in his judgment, "there is no necessity for them."

The platform unanimously adopted by the Progressive party of Indiana pledges the party to work for the elimination of all breweries and saloons in the state and endorses the Hobson joint resolution.

The next meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be Tuesday afternoon, June 16, with Mrs. Kaercher. The date has been changed on account of the field meet being on Friday.

THINGS ABOUT GUINEA FOWL

Birds Make Excellent Substitute for Game and Many Big Hotels Serve Them as Pheasants.

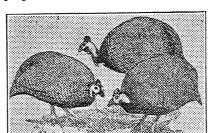

(By MRS. A. JOSEPH.)
The demand for guinea fowls grows stronger every year and is increasing as people become acquainted with the good qualities of their flesh. Those who have learned to appreciate the flavor of the flesh of a plump guinea are not slow to express surprise at the fact that the excellent qualities of this bird have not been more widely recognized.

It is true that the cook book fails to refer to them at all and yet there is not the least question but that they are superior eating to either the duck or the goose.

The young fowl are best broiled, while the older birds may be cooked by any recipe devised for the cooking of chickens, and in any case the result is far more palatable.

The flesh of the guinea is rather dark, but is finely grained, possessing a gamey flavor. For this reason the fowl makes an excellent substitute for game and many hotels in the larger cities serve it for pheasant. The eggs are also much relished on account of their rich flavor.

Every family in the country should keep a few guineas, if for no other

Easy to Raise, Guinea Fowl Are Always in Demand, and Are Considered the Most Delectable of the Domestic Breeds, poultry flock. In fact, in some places in this state they are called the watchdogs of the poultry yard.

The high, shrill notes which they possess will quickly put to flight any hawk or crow mischief bent; while after night no prowling animal or person can approach a house where guineas roost without arousing their discordant cries of alarm. Their senses of smell and hearing seem to be very

The time required for hatching guinea eggs is twenty-eight days. The guinea is naturally a wild bird possessing a strong instinct to wander. For this reason it is better to raise the young birds under hens as they are more careful of their young than the guinea hens, and a great deal of trouble to get them to behave like ford, T. Wallace and V. Cauley autoed domestic fowls will be avoided and if brood when first taken off, so much the better; the guineas will then be inclined to stay along with the other birds and will not be nearly so wild as if kept alone.

OATS WILL PRESERVE EGGS

When Carefully Packed in Barrel and Placed in Some Cool Corner They Will Keep Sweet.

(By MRS. D. RYMER.) Every year I pack a great many eggs and they keep from two to three months, and even longer in perfect condition. I have tried "water glass" and other things, but find that oats will keep eggs longer than anything

I pack them in half barrels and use plenty of oats. I first place a layer of oats about three inches on the bottom, and then a layer of eggs, never allowing one to touch the other, or the sides of the barrel. And then follow with another layer of oats until within about six inches from the top, when I fill up the barrel with oats. If the barrel containing the eggs is placed in a cool corner of the cellar or in the attic, or any other dry place, they will keep perfectly sweet, but if allowed to become damp they will

I have packed eggs in October in this way leaving them in the barn until nearly Christmas and then bringing them to the house. I have used these eggs as late as the following April and have sold them—always stating exactly what they were—and never had a complaint.

Buy a Good Incubator.

It may cost a few dollars more to buy a good incubator to start with, but the saving in eggs which are apt to be spoiled in a poor machine will more than make up the difference in the cost during the first season's run. not to mention the time and work wasted.

Eggs for Hatching.

Eggs from old hens should not be used for hatching purposes. Select eggs from young birds of good type, color, form and breed characteristics. Special attention must be given to selection if the breed is to be improved.

THE CINDER PROBLEM.

Difficulties of Arresting This Elusive Product of Combustion.

Suppose you had all the money you needed to hire experts, to erect flues with numerous kinds of baffles, water sprays, fans-to even erect a special cinder producing plant to try out apparatus: in fact, suppose you had all the resources imaginable to enable you to take cinders out of smoke. Easy! You would conclude that you had the greatest "cinch" of the age. But you would not. The New York Edison company, at its waterside stations, has all those things and has spent years in trying to solve the problem and knows. Numerous experts have exercised their skill and talent on the problem and have failed. The Edison company's engineers have finally developed a successful cinder catching apparatus. The first scheme was to precipitate the cinders by reducing the velocity of the gases, but this proved futile. Next, settling chambers, baffles, screens, water sprays, etc., were tried. Finally, high gas velocity with sharp changes in direction of flow and impingement on films and surfaces of water proved successful. A special cinder producing plant was erected to try out various cinder catching apparatus. A "wind rose" was charted and showed that 76 per cent of the cinder emitted from the stacks is blown into the river, due to the prevailing winds from the northwest. The other portion represents the area within which the remaining 24 per cent of the cinder was distributed. This rose shows that less than one-quarter of the cinder emitted was deposited in an area from which complaints came. This fact indicates what a large amount was blown from the stacks, when less than one-quarter of it caused the protests that have been made. It is from a study of this wind rose, perhaps, that one can best appreciate how serious this cinder problem is, or, rather, was, since a successful catcher has been devised.-Power.

SUBMARINE TORCH.

Use Discovered For the Oxyhydrogen Gas Flame. Various combinations of gases giving concentrated high temperaturesoxyhydrogen, oxyacetylene, etc.-are now quite widely used in wrecking metal structures. These flames eat through a steel girder or a ship's plating almost as though it were butter. Not only is much time saved by their use, but structures that were not worth saving because of the cost of cold methods of disarticulation can now be sold to the junkman with profit. A new method of applying the oxy-hydrogen torch to such use was recently tried in Kiel harbor. The torch was arranged to work under water-as, for example, in dismantling a sunken ship. It had a bell shaped head and operated in a supply of compressed air. At a depth below the surface of something over sixty feet a cut nearly twelve inches in length was burned through in iron plate of three-quarter inch marine torch in many marine contingencies is obvious.

It is thought, says the New York Sun, that this successful flight of a machine that was completely built before Orville and Wilbur Wright made their first flights may bring about more litigation over the basic patents granted to the Wright brothers. The Langley machine was built for the government and was not patented. It has been contended that the Wrights obtained ideas from Dr. Langley's experi-

Turned Over to Glenn H. Curtiss.

Glenn H. Curtiss had the machine sent to his factory at Hammondsport. N. Y., at the request of Secretary Charles D. Walcott of the Smithsonian institution and fitted it with pontoons. The planes were recovered, and the engine was tuned, but otherwise the machine was left in its original state.

A puffy wind and the erratic performance of the old motor cut the trials short after the first demonstration of the machine's ability to raise itself from the water.

Mr. Curtiss was asked after the flight whether it was made primarily to assail the claim of the Wright brothers that they were the producers of the first successful heavier than air flying machine. He said:

"I acted under the direction of the Smithsonian institution, which has for some time desired to ascertain whether the Langlev machine embodied principles making successful flight possible. The machine demonstrated that the principles embodied in its construction are correct.

"Although this flight proves that Dr. Langley antedated all present aviators. the Wrights have been awarded a court decision, which, so far as I see. stands. In making this flight I acted willingly, actuated by a veneration for achievements.'

Entirely Different, Says Wright. Orville Wright says the performance of the Langley machine will have no bearing whatever on the Wrights' inventions. "There is nothing in common between the two machines," he says. "The Langley system of control is entirely different from that of the Wright machines. It is a very old system that enters into the Langley machine. That machine was tried out ten days before our successful flight in 1903 and failed, although it had four times the power of our machine."

Handy Combination of Oil Can and Funnel.

Any one who makes use of coal oil will see at once the great advantage of the combination oil can and funnel shown in the accompanying cut, which has been recently invented. The funnel is secured to the can by means of a ball, and there is also supplied a brace, which is secured to the can likewise, so that as the can is tilted for transferring the contents the funnel automatically falls into its proper place just under the mouth of the can.

Care of the Sewing Machine.

It is worth while bestowing all possible care on the sewing machine when working it or when unused. Don't jerk either the handle or treadle, but work quite evenly. Keep the machine free of dust and properly lubricated. not soaked with oil, so that the grease is not splattered over the material or detach the driving wheel when not in use to prevent a meddlesome child from interfering with it. Always keep the cover locked and on no account place hot vessels of any kind on the polished surface, which soon disfigure it, a condition that cannot be easily remedied. Wipe over occasionally with a clean chamois leather, wring out in tepid water and when dry thoroughly rub in a little furniture polish.

Coquilles of Fish.

Free a pint of cold boiled fish from skin and bones and break into small pieces with a silver fork. Put the shredded fish into a saucepan, with half a cupful of boiling water, a tablespoonful of thick cream, a teaspoonful of butter rolled in flour and salt and pepper to taste. Stir over the fire until the mixture is thoroughly heated; then fill shells or ramekins, cover with crumbs and bits of butter and set in the oven until nicely browned.

Fish Rissoles.

To a plate of cold fish add one-third s much breadcrumbs, one finely minced boiled onion, the yolks of two eggs Sheridan Tuesday evening and at- and one tablespoonful of butter. Season to taste. Make a rich puff paste and cut it into two inch squares. Place a tablespoonful of the fish mixture on each square and fold over with the pastry. Wet the edges with well heaten egg and fry the triangles in boiling fat. Garnish with parsley and slices of lemon.

Beef and Tomatoes.

Beef that is tough and tasteless can be made tender and appetizing thus: Make smoking hot some beef suet or drippings; add to it a few rings of onion, lay the beef in, seasoned with salt and pepper, and brown it quickly: then put it in a stewpan and pour over it a can of tomatoes, and simmer it slowly for several hours. Thicken the tomatoes slightly with a little flour and butter rubbed together.

Scalloped Fish.

Into a well buttered baking dish put a layer of cold cooked fish, a layer of the dressing with which the fish was originally stuffed and then one of buttered bread or cracker crumbs moistened with a white sauce, sweet cream or milk. Season well and repeat these alternate layers until the dish is filled. Cover the top with well buttered crumbs and bake until an appetizing

Baked Beets.

After carefully washing the beets bake in a moderate oven until tender. Turn frequently with a spoon, not a fork, as that permits the juice to run out. When ready remove the skins and serve with butter, salt and white pepper. Beets cooked this way keep their flavor.

Cornmeal Griddlecakes.

Scald two cupfuls of sifted meal, mix with a cupful of wheat flour and a teaspoonful of salt. Add three well beaten eggs, thin the whole with sour milk to make of the right consistency. Beat until very light, then add a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little Eggnog de Luxe. Beat the white and yolk of a perfectly fresh egg until the yolk is light and creamy and the white is very stiff. To the yolk add a teaspoonful of sugar and beat again; then beat in the flavoring. Add half a cupful of whipped cream and fold in the white of the egg.

- BIBLE . STUDY . ON -THE FRIEND OF SINNERS. Luke 18:9-14; 19:1-10—June 14. 'I came not to call the righteous, but sinners." Mark 2:17.

HE parable of today's lesson reveals the heart attitude of some of the Pharisees and of the despised publicans. Two men went up to the Temple to pray From God's standpoint both were sinners, and needed forgiveness of sins. But the Pharisee trusted in his own imperfect works, and asked no forgiveness; the publican, however, realized his blemishes and prayed for

We must not get the impression that God is more pleased with those who live in sin than with those who strive to the best of their ability to live in harmony with His Law. On the contrary, we must all realize that we come short of perfection and need Divine mercy. The sinner who recognizes this fact is more pleasing to God than is the more moral person who fails ishes.

Jesus referred to this same error of the Pharisees at another time, saying. "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance." He thus sought to call attention to the fact that although the Pharisees claimed to be righteous, yet they were not so. Until they should learn that they and all other members of the Adamic race were sin-sick and needed the remedy which only the Redeemer can give. they were not in condition to come to Him for forgiveness

Not realizing their need, the Phari-On the contrary, the majority of His followers were publicans and since people who had people who had not been living proper lives, but who earnestly acknowledged their faults, turned from sin, accepted healing from the Good Physician, and became His followers.

A Little Man-a Big Heart.

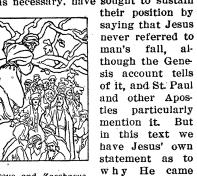

The latter part of our lesson relates to Jesus' journey from Jericho to Jerusalem, just prior to His crucifixion. Multitudes were journeying in the same direction, going up to the Passover. Zacchaeus, a rich man of that vicinity, was curious to see Jesus. He was not a Pharisee; he did not profess holiness of life. He was a tax coldector for the Roman government-a publican. On this account he was despised, and declared to be disloyal to Judaism. Small of stature, Zacchaeus was upable to see Jesus because of the crowd. Therefore he ran ahead and climbed a tree. to have a good view of Jesus as He passed by. When Jesus came near, He called to Zacchaeus to come down at once, for He was to be his guest. The summons was gladly received by Zacchaeus. But the whole circumstance greatly disgusted the Pharisees. who remarked that Jesus would become the guest of one not orthodox. Forthwith Zacchaeus addressed the Master as though urging that the charges against him should not hinder the Master from becoming his guest, and as intimating his desire to do right. Jesus replied to Zacchaeus, "This day is salvation come to this house; forasmuch as he also is a son of Abraham." From the Lord's standpoint all Abraham's sons were eligible to discipleship. The one thing required was an honest confession of imperfection, an honest turning from sin, a hearty acceptance of Christ and an endeavor to walk in His steps. Unquestionably this principle still applies, regardless of what men may think or say to the contrary. The Lord is willing to receive the repentant. The middle wall of partition between Jew and Gentile has been broken down, as St. Paul explains. All who have Abraham's faith may be counted in as Abraham's children by becoming related to the Divine Plan as Jesus' disciples.-Galatians 3:16, 29. "That Which Was Lost." Our lesson closes with Jesus' words. "For the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost." Some who deny that Adam was created perfect, who deny his fall from Divine favor and who deny that redemption was necessary, have sought to sustain into the world. He came to be man's Redeemer-to seek and to recover, restore, that which was lost.

Everlasting life was lost, Eden was lost, human perfection was lost, the image of the Divine character was lost. These could not be recovered by humanity, all of whom were under death sentence-the curse. But God's compassion arranged a Plan, whereby Jesus came into the world and gave Himself a Ransom for all-to be testified in due time. The very fact that the Master speaks of His work as a ransoming one (Matthew 20:28) corroborates the declaration that man needed to be ransomed from death.

FACTS ABOUT AMMONIA.

How it Acquired Its Old Time Appellation of Hartshorn.

Ammonia, so called because originally prepared from camels' dung near the temple of Ammon, in Egypt, is a compound of hydrogen and nitrogen. It is a colorless gas at ordinary temperatures and pressures, but at about minus 27 degrees Fahrenheit it becomes liquid at the pressure of the atmosphere and, of course, at higher temperatures if greater pressures are employed.

Ammonia gas is very soluble in water, the solution constituting the so called aqua ammonia that is employed absorption systems. The capacity of water for absorbing ammonia gas varies with its temperature, but ordinarily it will take up from 500 to 800 times its own volume.

Following its discovery by an ancient alchemist ammonia was in time manufactured through the destructive distillation of horns, hoofs and hides, and its production from horns gave an early name to aqua ammonia of "spirits of hartshorn." Now ammonia is chiefly obtained as a byproduct in the manufacture of illuminating gas from coal and from the manufacture of coke in byproduct coke ovens.

Anhydrous ammonia, by reason of its idaptability to liquefy under comparatively low pressures, is the medium most generally employed in refrigerating and ice making machines. As an indication of the growth of the industry it may be stated that in 1890 there were not more than 1,000 ammonia using refrigerating and ice making plants in operation in the United States. At the present time there are at least 12,500 plants, while the increase of like plants in foreign countries, though not as rapid as in the King George of England is the only | United States, exhibits a healthy

RAILWAY BRIDGES.

Many Spans Become Obsolete Because of Traffic Demands.

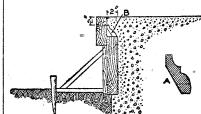

Railroad bridges do not get a chance to rust and wear out. The rapid evolution of railway engineering has made them obsolete long before they cease to be serviceable.

In the last five years many railway bridges built less than twenty-five years ago have been removed and replaced by much heavier bridges. This strengthening process was only one step in a long series. Ever since the early days of railway bridges the continually increasing weight of locomotives and trains made bridges obsolete long before they rusted or wore out. The history of railway bridges has been a record of evolution from light to continually heavier bridges. At various times in this evolution bridge engineers decided that the weight of trains then in use was substantially the maximum that could ever be expected on our railways. The event proved them wrong.-Engineering News.

The molding piece is prepared by ripping the piece on the line shown in the cross section A. The strip is then fitted in the offset, as shown at B.

First a neat cement is filled in against the form, then the coarser mixture placed on the inside.

A Large Dutch Wind Motor.

It is reported that a wind motor, claimed to be the largest of its kind in the world, has lately been brought into use at Harlingen (Friesland) for draining a polder (tract of lowland redeemed from the sea by high embankments) with an area of 1,850 acres. This machine, which has steel sails and is mounted on a steel tower, has a diameter of fifty feet and is said to be capable of dealing with 64,000 to 70,000 cubic feet of water an hour. It is an interesting fact that first the wooden windmills were replaced by explosion motors, but now again the steel wind motors are said to be more and more employed, especially in the draining of polders.

In the plant of the Toledo Railway and Light company two forty horsepower turbines have been operating almost continuously since 1909 at 1,800 revolutions per minute, driving No. 9 sirocco blowers for forced draft. Under present conditions it is said the producers sell ed, thus flooding the market, and daugh. usually obtaining a small price for their crop. Speculators then buy up the crop, hold it, and sell it later after the price has advanced. In this way the consumer suffers because of high prices, while the producer or farmer does not get the benefit of the high prices. It is the purpose of the agricultural department, if possible, to devise some way of remedying this condition.—Port Huron Times-Herald.
