ARMY WORM EATS

FIELDS OF GRAIN DISAPPEAR IN HURON CO.

Oat and Barley Crops Most Affected, but Corn and Beets Are Sampled.

The army worm which was discovered in the vicinity of Pigeon Friday has made its campaign eastward through Huron county. During this time 2,500 acres of destroyed crops are reported, including the farming communities of Pigeon, Elkton, Bad Axe, Verona and Harbor Beach. The army worm has also invaded Mason county and reports from Rochester, N. Y., say the pest has invaded that section.

Instructions as to how best to check the invading worm have been telegraphed to affected districts by the Directors Place $3,000 Into Undivided M. A. C. department of entomology in the hope that the pest may be stopped before it works further havoc, though the losses suffered by farmers are said to have already amounted to thousands of dollars.

"The worm cannot be stopped in those fields in which it has already appeared," declared Prof. Petit, head of the college department of entomology, "but it can be prevented from going further. The best thing for the farmers to do is to plow two or three furrows around those fields in which the worm is at work. It has been proved that the insect will not cross a furrow, because it seems to be averse to climbing, but as a measure of safety it is better to plow two or three furrows, so that if one is passed, the worms will fall into the

"In the beet and chicory districts poisoned bait can also be used effectively. The bait can be made by mixing one pound of paris green with 20 pounds of bran and half a gallon of molasses. To this should be added some water and three oranges, rinds and all, which have been ground up. This mixture, which is sufficient for five acres of land, can then be spread by broadcasting. The worms eat it and die

"Where the ground is too sandy for furrowing successfully, tarred boards or strips may be laid around the edges of fields which the insects have

According to Prof. Petit, the army worm is always present in Michigan, but the late cold, wet spring was unusually suited to its propagation and was at the same time detrimental to had been visited by a fire, and at the the tachina fly, the parasite enemy of the worm, which in ordinary years checks the pest by preying on it.

a caterpillar. Three generations are produced a year, and it is usually the second which is harmful, though the third generation, which is produced in September or thereabouts, is also destructive at times. The worms are particularly fond of oats and corn, though they will eat other grains if they have to. They work at night, so that usually their presence is not observed until after they have done much damage. When one field is destroyed, the worms move in a body to the next, a characteristic which has given them the name "army." It is this habit of the worms, also, which enables checking of their progress by plowing furrows about fields in which they are present ..

Losses Exaggerated.

A report from Bad Axe printed in the Saginaw Courier-Herald Wednesday says that the damage and destruction from army worms is not as great in Huron county as first reported. Not over 40 per cent of the oat and barley crop of Huron county is so far affected, and but small patches of corn and beets have been attacked. If the beans and beets are spared the farmers can stand the loss on barley and oats. It is estimated that one half of the oat crop on the fields ravaged will be sayed, as they are nearly ripe. So far the worms have not touched the beans. If the worst has been realized Huron county will still have more crops than it did last

MOTORCYCLE AND AUTO IN COLLISION.

C. Edgerton Painfully Bruised by Fall from Motorcycle Wednesday.

A. Clifford Edgerton, science teacher in the Cass City high school, lost a toe nail and was painfully bruised when he was thrown from his motorcycle. The fall was caused by a collision with an automobile Wednesday evening near Striffler & Patterson's implement store on East Main street.

The automobile was the property of James Brackenbury, who was taking some ladies and children for a pleasure ride. He was headed east. Meredith Auten in an automobile and Mr. Edgerton on his motorcycle were coming into town from the east and were travelling at a rate of speed that made the "Motor drivers go slow" sign at the village limits difficult to decipher.

Mr. Brackenbury says the Auten automobile was on the south side of the road, and having seen another machine pass the auto and motorcycle on the left, but a few moments before, he concluded to do the same would be the safer way. He had headed his machine across the road to the north side and then noticed that Edgerton was crossing to the same side with the intention of passing him on the right. Brackenbury brought his machne to a dead stop on the roadside and the motorcycle hit the front of the auto at an angle, throwing the rider into the ditch, twisting his machine in several shapes, and tearing the spokes from a front wheel of the automobile and breaking its lamps and one mud guard. Auten says he intended turning south at the corner of Main St. and Woodland Ave. until he saw Brackenbury cross to the north side of the street.

Edgerton is the agent for a motorcycle company and was out negotiating a sale Wednesday evening. He says he's sorry he didn't close the deal and leave the machine with the prospective purchaser. While not injured seriously, he suffered severe pain from the shock and bruises.

Robert Jackson was born in Ireland in 1827 and when a small boy went with his parents to Ontario, Canada, where he lived until his marriage to Mrs. Jane Maxwell of Cortland, Ont., in 1874. Shortly after their marriage they came to Michigan, taking up the homestead land where he had since made his home. He is survived by his wife and two sons, John and James, both of whom live in this vicinity. Mr. Jackson was ill only a few weeks before his death and realized that on account of his age his recovery was doubtful. He was a good neighbor and a kind friend to all and his memory will still linger in the vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Farr of Sandusky attended the funeral.

FEW FIGURES ON BEAN SHIPMENTS

CASS CITY SHIPS 285 CARS IN SEASON.

Compared With Croswell's Shipments, Figures Show Cass City Far in the Lead.

That one can understand the magnitude of the bean crop in this part of Michigan, we ascertained the number of bushels shipped out of Croswell during the past season and found that the figures are a little above 50,-000. Some beans and also some market town evidently.—Croswell Jeffersonian.

It is interesting to make a comparion of the bean shipments from Croswell and Cass City. From July 1, shipped from Cass City 138 cars of peans, or 94,875 bushels. The shipof cars of beans shipped out for the reach 285 cars, or 195,937 bushels about four times as many as were shipped out of Croswell the past sea-

Croswell may be "some market town" alright, but Cass City's reputation does not suffer in the comparison when beans are considered.

NO 40c FORD CARS

Takes Five Thousand Five Hundred Dimes to Buy One.

The rumor that Henry Ford would give an automobile to the one having four dimes with the letters F. O. R. D. thereon, has caused many children and grown-ups, too, to scan every dime that came into their hands. Plenty of O's and D's were found but the F's and R's seemed to be lacking. A Belding girl wrote Henry Ford regarding the matter and received the following reply:

your dimes.

"However, you have been misinformed. It takes just five thousand five hundred dimes to get a Ford Touring car-and this price is F. O. B. Detroit.

"We do not care much what initials are on these dimes as long as the dimes themselves are bona fide products of the United States mints.

"You can understand how absurd the rumor you make inquiry about is when you know there are no dimes with mint marks of 'F' and 'R', as the government has no mints located in Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, and Alascities whose names begin with these two letters."—Ex.

FAITHFULNESS TO OPPORTUNI-

TIES.

Luke 19:11-27-July 26. Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."-Matthew 25:21.

E are not to confound the Parable of the Pounds with the Parable of the Talents. They teach totally different In the case of the talents, the amount given each servant differed In the case of the pounds, the amount was the same. This parable, therefore, deals with something common to all the class referred to. Jesus and His disciples were approaching Jerusalem, where shortly Hewas to be crucified. The disciples, on the contrary, supposed that the Messianic Kingdom would immediately be established. This parable was intended to inform them that a long time would first elapse. The kings of Palestine were appointed by the Roman Emperor. One of the Herods had recently gone to Rome. seeking appointment to a kingdom. Some who hated him sent a message to Rome, declaring their preference for another king. Jesus seized upon this circumstance as illustrating His own case. He was the Appointee for the Messianic Kingdom: but He would go to Heaven, and there the Heavenly Father, Emperor of the Universe would invest Him with authority. Later He would return to earth and exercise dominion. This is exactly the presentation of prophecy.—Psalm 2:8.

"Occupy Till I Come."

During the Master's absence in Heaven. He has committed to His disciples, His servants, one pound each. with full liberty to use their best judgment in His service. At His return.

these servants will be reckoned with, and rewarded in proportion to their zeal and efficiency. The parable distinguishes between these consecrated servants of God and the world. It shows

"Occupy Until I Come. that nothing is committed to the masses, and that no judgment, reward, is made in their case at the Master's return. Only His servants will be held responsible for either reward or punishment in respect to their faithfulness.

In considering what is signified by the pound, we must keep in memory that the fulfilment must show some blessing or responsibility given alike to all of God's consecrated people. We can think of but one thing given alike to this class. Their talents and opportunities are very unlike-wealth, mental capacity, environment, etc. None of these varied talents belong to this Parable of the Pounds.

The pound represents justification. The one thing which the Redeemer does for all His followers is to justify them freely from all things, leaving them on exactly an equal footing; for justification makes up to each in pro-

"Be Thou Faithful Unto Death." All who now become Christ's followers must receive from the Lord, as a basis for this relationship, the pound -free forgiveness of sins-justification. Because they are thus alike qualified, loving zeal controlling each servant. As in the parable one servant gained ten pounds, so such noble characters as St. Peter. St. John and others counted all earthly things as loss and dross, that they might be pleasing to their Master, the coming King. These, and such as these, who have gladly spent themselves in the Lord's service, will have the highest rewards. The servant who reported a gain of five pounds represents a class who will receive a less influential place in the Kingdom.

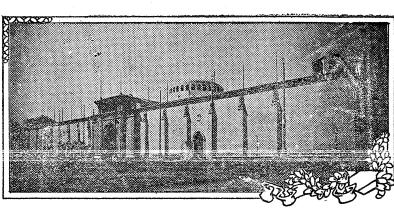

"Those Mine Enemies-Slay Them." The servant who hid his pound represents those who have entered into a covenant with the Lord to be His servants, who have received justification at His hands, but who have not complied with their agreement to sacrifice self in His service. This class is represented by the foolish virgins, who failed to enter in to the wedding. These will fail to become members of the Bride class. Not until He

The Unfaithful Steward. shall have dealt with His servants at His Second Coming will Messiah begin to deal with the world, and especially His enemies. This statement is borne out by numerous Scriptures. The work of the Gospel Age is merely for the selection and testing of His servants, to determine which will be found worthy of association with Himself in the Kingdom.

At first thought we might gather that verse 27 signifies that the King of Glory will be implacable, ferocious, unsympathetic, with His enemies. A picture of this carnage is given in Revelation 19:15, where He is represented in glorious majesty, with a sword proceeding out of His month, that with it He should smite the nations. Blessed smiting! This terrible carnage will mean a great blessing; for the Lord smites to heal. Unless His enemies be thus brought into subjection, nothing remains for them but extinction .- Acts

Where There's a Will

There is Also a Way

By BLANCHE I. GOELL Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co. **`

There isn't any use of living to be as old as the hills as I have unless you can do exactly as you please, especially when your own think-best is a great deal better than anybody else's think-

Now, I'd been thinking secret-like and saying open that 'twas high time my grandniece Luella was married.

It wasn't likely that I could live on indefinitely, and it might be some amusement to me in the hereafter to recollect the features of Luella's hus-

And it would be pleasant to have a little child about, a boy or a girl, for me to pet during the few remaining years to me on earth, when one naturally inclines to the young.

I didn't know where an eligible young man was coming from in these parts. But from the minute I was affairs. born I always had an opinion on every subject, and I knew I'd find the young man somehow.

So when young Dudley Holbrook's auto turned turtle in front of my yard, and young Dudley Holbrook draped himself around my stone post and garden gate with a broken arm and a broken collar bone I had the hired man carry him straight up to the spare

After the doctor had set his bones and bandaged his head I sat awhile by his bed and listened to his blabbing. Then I made up my mind he'd do to marry Luella.

Nothing's so good an index of character and past actions as delirium talk, and, after I listened hard for fifty-five minutes and heard no mention of chorus girls, jack pots or other metropolitan poisons, I decided he'd do.

So, going out from the sickroom, I addressed my grandniece:

"It's a special dispensation for you, Luella, an act of Providence. This young man's name, according to cards and other memoranda in his pockets, is Dudley Holbrook. The newspapers had a deal to say last year about the fortune old Holbrook left his sons when he died. I consider this a most suitable marriage for you.'

Luella's brown eyes opened wide. It's a way they have when Luella is angry. But I won't tolerate anger in a young person and prepared to say so. But all that Luella uttered was:

"What about the young man, and what about Freddie?"

My grandniece has a most annoying habit of bringing up topics wholly irrelevant to the subject under discussion. What had my grandnephew Freddie to do with the question?

"Freddie!" I stormed. "Don't you dare think of marrying Freddie! If ever I had such an idea in my head for you 'twas when he was in kilts and not in college. Freddie indeed! There is too much society about Freddie. It's all frat and varsity and varsity and frat. Too much society, I say. I won't have you marry Freddie!"

I went back to the sickroom and took another look at the injured young man. He had a strong body, a clear, fresh skin and a look about the part of him that wasn't bandaged that told me he hadn't abused the money his father

So, having made up my mind that if the young man didn't die he should marry Luella, I felt quite comfortable to have her future settled.

He didn't die, and I interviewed him often in the days when he was getting well in my front spare room. Everything I learned was to my satisfac-

Luella had often been unruly in her childhood, but I didn't care to punish her to He's the rich New Yorker." the extent of tying her for life to any man of genius

So the third week that the young man lay in my front spare room, up one flight, I came to the point very

"What do you think of my grandniece Luella?" I demanded bluntly. The boy flushed and turned uneasily

"She's ripping, isn't she? So straight and strong! Sometimes I hear her singing when she runs off down the garden. She does all sorts of things, doesn't she? Once, when I was propped up in bed staring out at the apple trees, I saw her run down the slope and leap the little brook. Took it splendidly. Gee! I wish I was up and could go walking with her!"

"She's a good, sensible girl, is Luella." I looked him squarely in the eye. "Young man, you'll go a long way before you'll see another such girl as

"I believe you!" he cried fervently. So in my mind 'twas as good as set-

Things went on just as I meant they should. But because I made no more mention of my plans Luella seemed to think I'd forgotten them, and she didn't once demur when I sent her in every afternoon to read to the invalid.

The young man got well, of course, but he didn't go away. He declared my old country place was the most delightful spot in New England and that he felt more at home there than elsewhere. Of course I wasn't fool enough to think my old farm was enchanting a healthy young man who'd traveled over Europe, Asia and Africa, but I didn't say anything. I let him stay. And one day he blurted out what I knew must come: "Mrs. Thayer, I'm in love with Luella. You've been mighty good to me this summer-taken me in off the road, patched up my wounds, kept me on faith. I owe you a let already. Are you willing I should speak to Luella and make my debt of gratitude to you all the bigger?

"Why do you say all this to me?" I demanded. "You're not in love with me, are you?"

"Good heavens, no!" he ejaculated, and then he looked frightened when I glared at him. "Then don't waste your time talking to me," I retorted. Things were going so much to my liking that I felt free to drive to the village and have my lawyer draw up a new will and attend to various other tangled legal affairs. 'Twas somewhat absorbing, because that lawyer thinks he must do things in a certain way, but I know what I want, and my way's always best.

These matters preoccupied my time so much that I didn't have much leisure to give to the young folks' matrimonial arrangements, which' I supposed were progressing according to the lines I'd laid out. But when young Holbrook burst into my presence, looking kind of wild and dejected. I saw at once I'd have to give more time to his

"What's the matter?" He splashed round the room desper-

"I'm six feet tall, broad shouldered proportionately, look manly enough, don't I?" he demanded angrily. "I never thought my worst enemy could say I wasn't masculine. But Luella treats me as if I were sentimental and silly and—effeminate. I've tried in every way imaginable, but somehow I can't get at it-the proposal, I mean. She won't walk or drive with me any more; she won't let me get near the subject. This afternoon I made up my mind I'd say it somehow. And where did I find her? In the barnsuperintending the packing of the egg crates! You don't want your niece to spend her time in the barn counting eggs-now, do you, Mrs. Thayer?"

"It's just as well to keep our own figures as to how many eggs the men ship, when there's nothing more important on hand," I answered sagely. He dissented impatiently.

"Well, I said to her: 'I've something awfully important I want to say to you. Can't you give me a little time alone?' She sent the man and maid away, and then she whirled round with her watch out. 'We've got to get these crates off for the afternoon train,' she declared. 'I can give you just five minutes. Now, say what you want.' Hang it all, how can a man propose across a dozen crates of eggs?"

I had suspected this practical trait in Luella, but never dreamed it had developed to this extent. I seized my gold headed cane and pounded vigor-

"Luella, come here!"

The girl came, flushed from running. "Luella, give this young man more than five minutes. He wants to marry you."

"I-I love you!" he stammered. "Luella, will you have me?" "No! furiously

'Never!" "Hoity toity!" I exclaimed in anger. "Of course you'll have him, Luella. I've made up my mind to it. I won't be gainsaid." "I won't be married offhand to the first stranger who pitches himself across our front door vard!" cried Luella passionately, her eyes widening. "I won't-I won't-I won't!"

I was amazed at Luella. Never have seen such a display of obstinate pigheadedness in any individual, and after I had made up my mind to this advantageous marriage the first day l saw the young man. It was preposterous!

I stamped my cane upon the floor, but forced myself to keep calm. "Luella," I said with finality, "I have decided it is most advantageous for you to marry Dudley A. Holbrook." "Hold on," the young man interrupted: "I'm not Dudley A. Holbrook.

It always irritates me to be interrupted, particularly by young people. And this interruption was especially annoying, as it made Luella flare up. She turned on me like a whirlwind.

"It serves you right, Aunt Myra, that he isn't the rich Dudley Holbrook. It shows you the futility of such sordid matchmaking-trying to marry a girl off in that way-your own niece, too-it's outrageous!"

Something caught in Luella's voice, and the tears brimmed over in her brown eyes. Waterworks don't affect me, but the young man sprang toward her eagerly. "Luella, did you turn me down because you thought I was the Dudley A. Holbrook?' "Yes," came in muffled tones from Luella's averted head. "Will you reconsider now that you

I love you?" Luella's brown eyes met his eager von mit der apron on, didt. gaze, and the anger died away in them. Then she flung back her head and looked at me defiantly.

"Yes!" her voice rang out trium phantly

But, bless you, I only laughed with in myself, for, as I said in the beginning, I know my own think-best is a deal better than anybody else's think-

And I'd known for a long time that the young man wasn't the Dudley Hol-

The Silkworm.

Upon attaining full growth the silkworm becomes restless, stops feeding and throws out silken threads. The silk is formed in a fluid condition and issues from the body of the worm in a glutinous state, apparently in a single thread. From this silk the worm constructs its cocoon, an interval of from three to five days being required to complete its imprisonment in the envelope. In order that the silken strands may not be subjected to the danger of breakage by the moth emerging from the cocoon the cocoons are steamed till the inclosed insects are dead. After this the silk may be wound off .-New York American.

The apples had been kept in the cellar and had somehow been forgotten until last week when Mrs. Hendrick found them. Other specimens of fine fruit received recently for display were a branch heavily loaded with gooseberies from Hiram Keyser and some cherry currants from Mrs. L. H.

F. A. Bigelow and his family had planned an enjoyable day with Caro friends Sunday but the pleasure of the trip was marred by a runaway when the party were within a few miles of the county seat. The accident was caused by the fastening becoming loose and allowing the carriage tongue to drop. The horses were "shaking" along at a good gait, and when the tongue dropped trouble started. The horses broke away and Fred was pulled over the wheel to the ground. Luckily an auto happened by shortly after the norses started to run. The autoists nvited Mr. Bigelow to jump in and he soon reached the team which had been stopped by two men about a mile up the road. One horse had his leg badly cut.

To Interpret "THE MAN FROM HOME" At Our Forthcoming Chautauqua

WELLS WATSON GINN.

HE four act play, "The Man From Home," by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, is to be presented here at the Chautauqua by Wells Watson Ginn. In a personal letter Mr. Tarkington expresses pleasure at being privileged to bear his story enacted by Mr. Ginn.

"I am greatly your debtor for your impersonation of The Man From Home," writes Mr. Tarkington "One feels the whole play growing into tangible existence as you enact it. The characters live and walk before the auditor, and by some rarely concealed and subtle art of your own I seemed to be looking at a crowded stage and not at one man. I have seen the play presented in rehearsal and after probably over a hundred times, and I have myself read it aloud since its inception over and over. If you could hold me spellbound, as you did, what couldn't you do to an audience?

(Contributed by Local Union.) In a circular letter sent to "the trade," Adolph Keitel, a New York maltster, calls attention to some of the unspeakable evils dependent upon and allied with the liquor traffic, and warns the brewers that unless they immediately "reform" they may expect that "within ten years from now no breweries will be in operation, except in a very few large cities.

The Supreme Court of the United States has put into the hands of drunkard's families a most helpful weapon by its decision in the case of Mrs. May Bulger vs. Louis Penica of Nebraska City, Nebraska.

Mrs. Bulger, the wife of an habitual drunkard, entered suit against Louis Penica because he continued to furnish her husband with drink after due notice had been served upon him. The law of Nebraska holds the saloonkeeper responsible for wrecking the bread winner of the family-one of his steady customers.

In the first instance the wife was given a verdict for $5,000 damages. The case was appealed, but the highest state court affirmed the verdict of the lower court. Then on the plea of 'personal liberty," an appeal was carried to the United States Supreme Court, but the appeal was dismissed and the verdict of the lower court sustained. The court viewed personal liberty from another angle—that of wife and children.

The saloonkeeper may sell his liquor but he can be made to pay for its interference with the health, happiness and welfare of those depending upon the victim whom he has knowingly incapacitated. A more vital decision has never been rendered by the court of last resort.

The great Sunday School Convention recently held in Chicago gave much time to planning for greater activity in the study of temperance questions. A most impressive feature was the men's parade down Michigan avenue. A column of men two miles long marched, singing hymns, and carrying banners of Bible texts or temperance mottos. A thought arresting motto was, "Train up a child in the way he should go and go that way yourself." If you have not read something of this great convention it will be well worth your while to look it

Great conventions, great efforts and great political reforms are before the people. This year together with the next two or three promise to mark an epoch of great importance in history. We have nine prohibition states and six more are planning to vote on the question next fall!

Mr. Bush was one of the prosperous farmers in his township, having a fine farm unincumbered, beautiful modern house, and altogether a pleasant outlook on life. At Croswell, the Chautaugua pleased the people so well that the whole 500 season tickets necessary to secure the attraction next year were subscribed in 20 minutes, on a Thursday evening. At Bad Axe tickets for next year's course were pledged readily. Chautauqua audiences in these three towns were apparently pleased with the first events of this character in their communities.
