POULTRY and EGGS

GIVE THE CHICKS ROOM.

Overcrowding Cause of Culls and Undersized Fowls.

When taken from the brooder and placed in colony coops on range or in yards, great care should be exercised that plenty of ventilation is provided the chicks and that no crowding is necessitated. The poultry raiser of the future will recognize the fact more and more that overcrowding from the incubator to maturity has caused more culls and undersized poultry than any other one cause. It is not the cause of a great death rate, but is the cause of chicks receiving setbacks that no amount of feeding can overcome.
One can see in the majority of poultry yards a larger number of fowls than can be properly accommodated. This is also seen in brooding. The error is carried on to the laying quar-

Shelter from sun and rain must, of course, be provided for the hen and her flock of young chicks. It is well to have a small run for the hen in connection with the brood coop and a wire door that can be closed at night for protection against marauders. The brood coop shown is one much favored in Rhode Island. It has glass about halfway across the front. The main suggestion in regard to this coop is that a wire door that would pass back of the slatted portion of the front would be an improvement.

ters, where in the majority of cases but from one to two square feet of floor space is given to the fowls. Overcrowding both buildings and land has brought failure to many, and the advice against this practice should be heeded.
Too much heat or too little during the early days of the chicks' lives will cause them to receive their first check. Placing them in growing quarters, where they are compelled to stay in poorly ventilated buildings and are overcrowded after they have been taken from the brooder or hen, is the second check.

The neglect to provide proper feed and the absence of green food is another cause, and when the hot days of summer come the failure to furnish shade, either natural or artificial, will retard growth. Check in the growth of the fowls means that much delay in their maturity.
Properly growing poultry is accomplished only by close attention to the leading essentials. This does not mean the pampering of chicks or stock. They can be checked by overkindness. But it does mean that every one who is successful must pay attention to the known laws of successful rearing. The feed rations of different successful poultry keepers may vary slightly, but the same foundation is behind them—namely, elements to make bone and muscle. There should be at least three to four square feet of space for each fowl.

A well balanced ration of bran, ground oats, meal alfalfa, middlings in a dry mash and placed before the chicks at all times after they are eight or ten days old is a good practice. A good mixture is 200 pounds of bran, 100 of middlings, 100 of ground oats, 100 of meal alfalfa and 15 per cent of high grade beef scraps. The best grade commercial chick feed is scattered in the litter four or five times a day until the chicks are eight weeks old, when coarser grains are fed. When milk can be obtained cheaply enough it is a welcome addition to the ration.

Selecting Breeding Hens.
In selecting the hens for the breeding pen in the spring the following factors have been found by observation and experimentation to be essential to heavy egg production—namely: First, breeding from heavy producers; second, the use of mature birds, preferably hens, not pullets; third, line breeding rather than too close inbreeding or outcrossing; fourth, breeding from birds which were early producers as pullets; fifth, selecting birds which show a good, vigorous constitution; sixth, selecting for egg type long, rather deep bodies, with abundant room for the organs of digestion and reproduction; seventh, selecting large specimens of the breed; eighth, selecting late molters, since they are usually the best winter layers; ninth, breeding from birds which have shown by records to be persistent layers; tenth, selecting birds that eat well, rise early and retire late, for such birds are usually heavy layers.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Keep Young Turkeys Dry.
The main things in raising young turkeys is to keep pullets perfectly dry and never allow them to get wet. They should be kept indoors until the dew is off the grass and never be allowed to be caught in a shower of rain.

WAITING AND WATCHING.

The Old Codger Thought He Had Been Baited About Enough.

A taciturn "old codger" down Cape Cod way sat smoking in a doorway under a sign, which read, "Bate For Sale."
A sun browned, bareheaded youngster motored by without perceptibly slackening speed and called out, pointing to the sign, "A-I, bo'sun; a-I!"
The old fellow gave no indication of hearing or seeing. But a few days later the young fellow again raced by. This time the sign read, "Bate For Sale."

"Hey, cap'n," sung out the boy, "swing your a-I for'ard, and"—But the racing motor had flown by.
Once more the sign was changed and now read, "Bait For Sail."
Evidently it had become a point of honor with the young racer to see that the old fisherman's advertisement was at last correct, for soon after he again scorched through the village. One glance he gave, and then—almost reached for the emergency—but not quite.

"Commodore," he yelled above the shriek of his motor, "drop the a-I astern, and"—He was gone.
This time the old fellow did indeed show that he was neither deaf or blind. Rising in wrath, he shook his fist fiercely at the cloud of dust down the road; then, tearing the offending board from its hook, he bore it indoors.

Since then a coarse fishline with an immense fishhook attached hangs from a projecting stick at one side of the door, and fastened in the hook is a particularly large, well scoured, empty clam shell. In the doorway sits a taciturn "old codger" with a wary eye and a menacing look smoking.—Woman's Home Companion.

Do Your Best.

To do anything in this world worth doing we must not stand back shivering and thinking of the cold and danger, but jump in and scramble through as well as we can.—Sydney Smith.

Two Badly Puzzled Ladies.

Vernet, the French painter, was once traveling from Versailles to Paris in the same compartment with two ladies whom he had never seen before, but who were evidently acquainted with him. They examined him very minutely and commented upon him quite freely. The painter was annoyed and determined to put an end to the persecution. As the train passed through the tunnel of St. Cloud the three travelers were wrapped in complete darkness. Vernet raised the back of his hand to his mouth and kissed it twice violently. On emerging from the obscurity he found that the ladies had withdrawn their attention from him and were glaring contemptuously at each other. Presently they arrived at Paris, and Vernet, on leaving them, said, "Ladies, I shall be puzzled all my life by the inquiry, Which of these two ladies was it that kissed me?"

Language Puzzle.

Foreigners are forever having trouble with the English language. A German recently arrived in this country was in line for a good business deal.

"If the transaction goes through," he was told, "you'll have all kinds of money."
Later he met the friend who made the remark. "Veil," said he, "der thing has fallen through."
"That's too bad," replied the friend. "Too bad? Und you is sorry I make a pile of money?"

"Oh, it went through all right?" questioned the friend.
"Yah, so I said."
"Well, I'm glad of it. That's different."—New York American.

Jarred Her Veracity.

When the season was almost over a storekeeper in a small southern town put a lot of dollar shirt waists in the window at 75 cents.

"Say, what kind of bizness you call dis?" asked an old colored woman. "Is dat de way you try to make a liar out of yo' customers? After I been tellin' all de cullud folks in de neighborhood dat I paid a dollah for dis shirt waist you come an' spoil my reputation for veracity. Las' time I erer gwine to do bizness here."

To the Business Men of Cass City

Business fights shy of dead towns. A sure sign of a dead one is the lack of local pride. People who live in a live, prosperous town show it. Their stores are attractive, their streets clean, their homes are well painted.
Nothing shows a lack of pride, a lack of prosperity, like paint-hungry buildings. Let's paint up. As the most durable and economical paint, we recommend and pure linseed oil, mixed right on the job, to suit the job. Have your painter tint it any color you wish.

We carry all other paint necessities also. Consult us on that job of painting you have in mind. Today's the day.

NO ADVANTAGE IN OUTSIDE MARKETS

Continued from first page. grade of material at a less price. Did you ever compare the average of prices of all the staple commodities in your home town with such an average of a similar class of goods in the mail order catalog? Take such an indispensable line of goods as clothing, shoes, groceries, furniture, harness, oils, hardware and lumber, strike an average of the price of the best merchantable quality found in your local market and compare this with an average of the same goods of like quality found in the catalog and in every instance you will find it to your advantage to deal at home. Occasionally, certain small things may be slightly cheaper in the catalog but you must remember that these are their leaders and when you once bite on one of these small articles you usually bite on something larger. Add to this the cost of transportation which you must always pay and you find no advantage in buying away from home. Now when you are ready for your next order make out your list of wants, submit it to your local dealer and give him an equal opportunity with the outside concern.

Almost a Mushroom City.

Cairo is almost a mushroom city, according to the standards of Egypt and the east. It is not yet 1,000 years old. But it had predecessors very nearly upon the same spot. There was the Roman stronghold known as Babylon of Egypt, or even as Babylon simply. To, this in the seventh century A. D. succeeded Fustat, named, it is said, after its founder's skin tent, for which this is Arabic, and the name of Fustat survives today in "fustian," which was formerly made there. Finally came the new city of Masr-el-Kahira (the victorious), which European now call Cairo, while the natives, preferring the other part of the word, call it Masr.—London Chronicle.

Compare The Cost Of Diamond Flour With Other Food

Comparison of the present food prices will show that Flour is the least expensive wholesome food you can buy.

Suppose you call up your Grocer and ask him the price of Diamond Flour. And now just compare it with the price of meat, eggs, beans, rice, etc. Think of how much more nourishment—"punch" and "drive"—there is in a pound of flour than there is in the same amount of any of the other foods.

It will pay you well to use more flour and less meats, etc. And Diamond Flour will give you the best results in Bread, Rolls and Biscuits. Ask your Grocer to send a sack today.

CHURCH NOTES.

Baptist Church—

Standing room was at a premium Sunday evening when the children gave an excellent program. Those in charge, with the children are to be congratulated for the splendid success. Pastor Hayward, in a few words, expressed his pleasure in being the pastor of a live spiritual church and a progressive Sunday school. The pastor expects to have a boy choir for Sunday evenings in the very near future. We have splendid material hungering for an opportunity to develop their talent. Mrs. Dr. McCoy has willingly offered her valuable talent in music to train the boys.

Subscriptions for our church improvement are being received with most hearty appreciation. The pastor fails to find words that will most fully express his gratitude for the willingness on the part of the people both in and out of the church in helping financially to improve the Baptist property, while a good amount has been promised, much more will be needed and if there are any who have not yet been asked and who feel that they would like to help might inform any member of the Finance Committee, Mr. Landon, Frank Hall, Harry Vicars, who will very gladly receive any amount you will freely give. Regular services next Sunday at 10:30. Morning subject, "The Two Gardeners."

On the morning of Wednesday, June 23rd, at 10 o'clock a rare treat has been promised by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Lane, prominent workers in the churches of Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, missionaries on furlough from China, who will speak and be dressed in Chinese costume in the Baptist church on the above date. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

M. E. Church—

W. A. Gregory, Pastor.

"Jesus Christ and Christianity" is the pastor's topic for Sunday morning sermon. Wherein is Christianity any better than Buddhism or Taoism? Let all members make an effort to be present. No service Sunday evening on account of the high school baccalaureate sermon by Rev. J. W. Hamblin in the Presbyterian church.

Class meeting at 9:30, leader J. W. Withey. Sunday school at 11:45. Strangers and friends heartily welcome.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society will meet at the home of Mrs. H. R. Wager, Friday, June 18. Election of officers will be held and a large attendance is desired.

Christian Science—

Christian Science services are held every Sunday morning and Wednesday evening at eleven and seven-thirty o'clock in the rooms over the Cass City Bank. All are welcome.

The subject for next Sunday, June 20, will be "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

THE WONDERFUL AEROSCOPE, HIGHER THAN THE FERRIS WHEEL, GIVES VISITORS MARVELOUS VIEW OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST EXPOSITION

VISITORS ON THE AEROSCOPE 265 FEET ABOVE THE EARTH

THE GIANT FRAME OF THE AEROSCOPE AS IT APPEARED UNDER CONSTRUCTION

For the seeker of amusement, there is opportunity a-plenty in the unique mechanical achievement, the Aeroscope, on "The Zone," at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The Aeroscope resembles a giant crane of a novel and intricate design, its steel construction recalling that of the Bascule bridge. At the extremity of the long arm of the crane is a two-story car with a seating capacity for 100 persons and standing room for 20 more. At the short end of the crane is a giant mass of concrete, which serves as a counter-balance for the long arm of the crane. Beneath the car are two great water tanks, which take on water or discharge it as passengers enter or leave the car, thus always preserving the balance to a nicety. When, for example, a man weighing 160 pounds enters the car an amount of water of equal weight is released from the tank, and when the passenger departs 160 pounds of water are automatically discharged into the tank below the car. The car ascends without perceptible motion, and perfect safety and a jarless ride of ten minutes is assured to passengers while enjoying this trip of 265 feet into the clouds, or four feet higher than the Ferris wheel. Two motors control the ascent and descent in conjunction with the counter-balance of the huge car, and when it reaches its extreme height it begins to swing slowly around on the wheels at its base, giving a magnificent view of the exposition, of San Francisco Bay and of the city of San Francisco.

A MORNING ADVENTURE.

A very plump torpedo
With a bang extremely curled
On Independence morning
Set out to see the world.

She jumped for joy and stubbed her toe,
Then cut a curious caper.
And, goodness me, she proved to be
Salt-peter, bang and paper!

THEY LIKE "SANE FOURTH."

New York Firemen Heartily in Favor of Reformed Holiday.

"Making the Fourth safe and sane has eliminated the day most dreaded by the members of the fire department," declared a battalion chief.

"The careless use of firecrackers and revolvers in the daytime used to keep the department on the alert from sunrise to sunset. The horses were fretful and nervous, the men were irritable, all because they feared that the gong would pound out a station at any moment.

"And they were justified in being anxious, for before the creation of the safe and sane Fourth alarms sounded so often that in some houses the horses were kept hitched up all day. Many of the fires in the daytime were started by firecrackers in cellars and similar places and caused great damage because they were able to attain a good start before being discovered.

"The coming of night increased the work and worries of the department. Darkness found the men and horses fatigued after a busy day, but there was no rest for them. As a matter of fact, the work increased. Roman candles in the hands of careless people were shot through open windows into rooms, setting fire to lace curtains and other furnishings. Sometimes the fires were attended to immediately, and in other cases they smoldered and then burst into flames hours after, when most of the tenants in other apartments had retired for the night. You can appreciate the danger caused by the careless handling of such fireworks.

Pinwheels and skyrockets caused a large number of fires, particularly the latter.

"In some neighborhoods the engines were on the run from 8 to 12 p. m. The majority of the fires were small affairs, but they had to be attended to. The men and horses were all in, but it was wonderful the amount of endurance and stamina the men and beasts displayed in sticking to their work. Toward the latter part of the evening the horses had to walk to the fires. They were too tired to trot.

"The adoption of the safe and sane Fourth has caused many persons to dispense with the use of firecrackers and fireworks. They believe in celebrating the day in pursuits less dangerous, but furnishing more amusement. You can bet the members of the fire department are glad that the people are using fewer fireworks."

Ate at Public Expense on July 4. During the earlier years of the independence of the United States it was the custom in many of the states to give grand banquets to the general public on July 4. This paternal but costly generosity came to an end with the celebration of 1833.

THACKERAY WAS BORED.

Amusing Incident of the Author's Second Visit to Boston.

During Thackeray's second visit to Boston Mr. James T. Fields, his host, was asked to invite Thackeray to attend an evening meeting of a scientific club, which was to be held at the house of a distinguished member.

I was, said Mr. Fields, very reluctant to ask him to be present, for I knew he was easily bored, and I was fearful that a prosy essay or geological paper might be presented and felt certain that should such be the case he would be exasperated with me, the innocent cause of his affliction.

My worst fears were realized. I dared not look at Thackeray. I felt that his eye was upon me. My distress may be imagined when I saw him rise quite deliberately and make his exit very noiselessly into a small anteroom adjoining. The apartment was dimly lighted, but he knew that I knew he was there.

Then began a series of pantomimic feats impossible to describe. He threw an imaginary person—myself, of course—upon the floor and proceeded to stab him several times with a paper folder, which he caught up for the purpose.

After disposing of his victim in this way he was not satisfied, for the dull lecture still went on in the other room, so he fired an imaginary revolver several times at an imaginary head.

The whole thing was infinitely done. I hoped nobody saw it but myself. Years afterward a ponderous, fat witted young man put the question squarely to me:

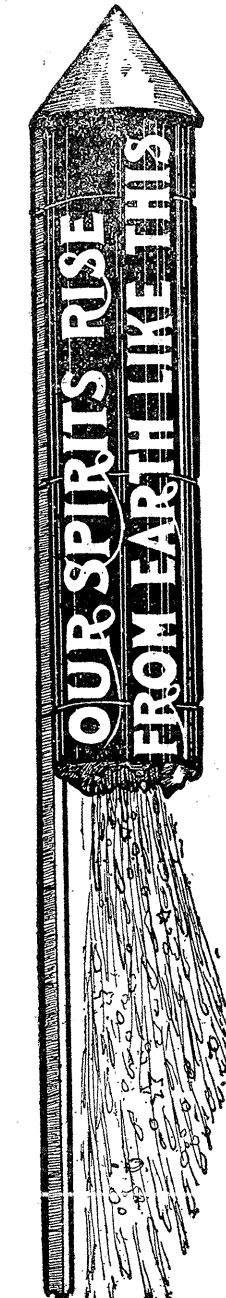

"What was the matter with Mr. Thackeray that night the club met at Mr. —'s house?"

Never Give Up!
Be not uneasy, discouraged or out of humor because practice falls short of precept in some particulars. If you happen to be beaten, return to the charge.—Marcus Aurelius.

Invention of Fairy Tales.

Some of the most popular of the fairy tales told to us in childhood—"Bluebeard" and "Cinderella," for instance—are translations from the French. "Puss In Boots" came to us from Italy. "Jack and the Beanstalk" is German. "Jack the Giant Killer" originated from the old Norwegian sagas, while "Aladdin" and "Sindbad" came from the "Arabian Nights." "The Babes In the Wood," however, is a purely English story, being, in fact, a popular perversion of the murder of the young princes in the Tower. "Little Red Riding Hood," too, is English, though its exact origin is uncertain.—London Answers.
