EXCITING ADVENTURE HAS WHEN THIEVES TRY TO ROB GROCERY.

JOHN MACPHAIL

Howard St., Detroit, Is Scene of Fight With Revolvers by Intended Victims.

John MacPhail, five years ago a pupil in the Cass City high school and a member of the school's foot ball team, had a thrilling experience in the city "Where Life Is Worth Living" on Friday night when hold-up men attempted to rob the cash register in the grocery store of which he is part owner.

"Douglas, Arizona, with its daily battle free of charge," says the Detroit Free Press in its story of the fray, "had nothing on the vicinity of Kays & MacPhail's grocery, 163 Howard street, at 10:45 o'clock Friday night. Bullets fairly got in each other's way. It was an attempted holdup, but the villians were caught.

"In the store at the hour mentioned were John MacPhail, one of the owners, and Lawrence W. Kays, a brother of John A. Kays, the other member of the firm. When a man who is described as 'cock-eyed' walked in and pointed a gun at Kays, the latter, while not certain that the bad man had his eye upon him or was getting ready to hit the painted tomato on a can off to his left, ducked for safety. "He ran into the back room, where MacPhail was going over the accounts. MacPhail seized a revolver and start-ed to the front of the store. He fired one shot as he entered the front room and at the same time two hold-up men started to run. "'MacPhail was after them, and began to empty his gun in their direction. Then Kays ran out and was met by Andrew Burleigh, 255 Howard St., who thrust a revolver into his hand. Immediately Kays joined in the fusillade, until the ammunition was exhausted. Nobody was hit.

"MacPhail meantime was shotless, but still running after the two men. "At Tenth and Abbott streets one of the men ran into the arms of Sergeant Levane Ames and Patrolman David Haines. The 'cock-eyed' man had gone off on a tangent and disappeared. The captured one gave his name as Lawrence Darzis, 71 Jones stregt. He was locked up at the Trumbull station. "The faulty optical arrangement of the other man led to his downfall. Shortly after midnight he was captured by detectives from headquarters. He gave his name as Daniel Meunie,

Rev. J. W. Hamblin, pastor of the Cass City Presbyterian church, re- CASS CITY'S GOAL IN DANGER cently received a very interesting series of letters from 21 of his classmates of the McCormick Theological Seminary of Chicago and Thursday forwarded them, after adding his own epistle, to Spafford Kelsey, another Local Team Will Play Second classmate, at Ontanogan, Michigan. The idea of a class letter originated at a class meeting before graduation in 1913. Geo. H. Scherer, president of the volunteer missionaries to foreign fields, started the series on June 21, 1914, at Sidon, Syria. The letter has since reached Sangli, India, Upper Woodstock, India, Kiungchow, China, Sendai, Japan, and points in Missouri, Ohio, North Dakota, Iowa, New York, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, Tennessee, Kentucky, South Dakota and Michigan and each recipient added his own letter to the series as he forwarded the messages to another member of the class.

The letters have been subjected to several delays; the longest one was for two months in China. It was originally intended to complete the series in time to forward the whole number to Mr. Scherer, the missionary who wrote the first message, so that the letters would reach him at Christmas of 1915, but the delays in transmitting them make this impossible. The class has 52 members.

ARE MOST SERIOUSLY DAM-AGED OF STATE'S CROPS.

The bad weather of the spring and summer played havoc with Michigan crops, according to the monthly crop report of the secretary of state's department. The yield of corn was 19 per cent, of potatoes 40 per cent and of beans 32 per cent under the average for the last ten years, and the quality of each was the poorest in all that period. Corn did not ripen, potatoes rotted in the ground and beans were affected by anthracnose and excessive moisture.

The total yield of all crops for the year is estimated as follows: Wheat, 15,494,517 bushels; corn, 50,208,723; oats, 67,781,363; barley, 2,236,178; rye, 5,717,480; buckwheat, 804,731; pota-toes, 19,681,859; beans, 3,934,714; tasks of illness from the sudden atpeas, 1,193,170; clover seed, 155,100; apples, 10,202,601; peaches, 2,506,316; pears, 583,979; plums, 324,012; cher-ins 1 021 960; cher-tacks of illness. BUT ONCE DURING THE CONTEST.

FOOTBALL, 27 TO O

Game With Bad Axe at

Bad Axe Today.

Cass City high school defeated the Caro team Friday afternoon at the county seat. The game began about two o'clock, and although the Caro team had about three of their best men out of the game, they put up a game fight and succeeded in holding the Cass City outfit to the low score of 27-0. Only in one period of the game was the Cass City goal in any great danger and then it was threatened by the interception of a forward pass by one of Caro's speedy backs. He ran the length of the field for a touch-down, but was driven outside the lines, the ball being called back and placed in play on Cass City's twenty yard line and there they were held for the downs. Only three times did Caro make their first downs and then they made them on a pass. The playing of the Cass City line has helped in solving the trouble in the Marlette game.

When the Caro team comes here on Thanksgiving Day there will be a different showing and it is feared that the local outfit will have some trouble in taking them into camp. Ca-ro has no contest until the Thanksgiving game and they are putting all their efforts into preparing for that. Today (Friday), Cass City again goes into a discussion with the Bad Axe CORN, POTATOES AND BEANS outfit which were beaten a few weeks ago 52-0. Although a fairly easy time is expected, the game should be a good one and a number of the local followers of football will accompany the team to Bad Axe. The local lineup will probably be the same as it was for the beginning of the Caro game.

Passed Away Tuesday Morning; Funeral Held This Afternoon.

On Tuesday morning occurred the death of Mrs. Alfred Randall, a lady well known and respected by Cass City people. The family are all grief stricken over their loss yet feel that Mrs. Randall has gone to a rest where Dougald G. McIntyre, a resident of Novesta township since 1882, died early Tuesday morning. Mr. McIntyre has been in very poor health for two years and death relieved him from intense suffering. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the home.

Since this time construction gangs have been working constantly and the grade has been established as far as nine miles west of Armada. The grade between Armada and Detroit, it is expected, will be finished during the winter and the ties and rails laid so that the cars can be in actual operation by April 1, 1916.

Among the principal towns that will be touched by the new railroad will be Harbor Beach, Bad Axe, Ubly, Argyle, Brown City, Capac, Armada Center, Armada, Mt. Clemens and Detroit. Railroads in the Thumb district feed into Bay City, Saginaw, Lapeer and Flint, at the present time, and the road when completed, will tap the business of this territory and connect Detroit, the consuming center, with the entire district, which is the richest and most productive agricultural territory in the state.

According to the plans, cars on this coad will be of the unit power type, each car being equipped with gasoline engineer or generate electricity for locomotion.

Arthur T. Waterfall, traffic comnissioner of the Detroit Board of Commerce, believes the proposed railroad has a brilliant future and predicts that the territory along its right-of-way will develop rapidly, following the completion of the road.

"No doubt this line will repeat the history of the Michigan, Gratiot, and Woodward car lines, which rapidly dispose of his Ford in order to get prought about the development of the country along their tracks," said Mr. Waterfall.

"Oh, they are horrible! And they could have been made so straight and nice too, by such a little bit of extra trouble. Somebody told me how to do this sort of seaming last week. You put a strip of paper underneath all soft materials like silk mousselaine, chiffon, etc., when sewing them on a machine. You sew through paper and all, and while it does not hurt your fabric in the least, it keeps your seams from puckering and pulling and makes them straight and firm. Then when the seam is completed the paper can be torn away."

"It's a grand thing to have something in one's head besides nonsense," answered the sister, "I think Marge's seams are crooked because of that very thing."

HERE'S REAL LUXURY. A Box of Silk Hosiery Is Always a

Popular Gift. No woman would scorn a box of silk stockings for a Christmas present. Chosen wisely to match her gowns they need no other embellishments. Our illustration shows how a bit of fillet lace may be daintily appliqued afternoon gown. One girl delighted her friends last year by embroidering clocks in cross stitch on both stockings and socks for Christmas gifts. Colors to match the hose may be used r contrasting shades if preferred. Every woman finds use for a well stocked workbasket, but a workbox can be made at home which is good to ook at and exceedingly handy.

Take four pieces of cardboard 7 by 6 inches-that is, seven inches long by six inches wide. Curve the tops and cut a square piece of cardboard 7 by inches for the bottom.

Lay a pad of cotton wool over the bottom, line all the pieces with silk and cover the outside with figured silk. Sew the four sides to the square bottom and fasten the sides together by ribbons tied in bows.

Fit the inside with button and spool bags, a cushion, needlecase and scissors holder. The little box may be coyered with silk, satin or cretonne.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1915.

Buy Your Christmas Presents on the 10c Movie Plan

This new feature is a very simple one. Come to our store, select any article and pay the first installment of 10 cents. Each week thereafter make a payment, increasing the amount paid each time by 10 cents.

For example, supposing you selected an article from our stock worth $2.00 today. You pay 10 cents; a week later you increase your payment 10 cents, making it 20 cents. The third week you pay 30 cents, the fourth week 40 cents, the fifth week 50 cents, and the sixth week the balance of the purchase price which is another 50 cents. Thus at the end of six weeks you have paid for the article in such an easy manner that you hardly realized you had parted with the money, and it is delivered to you. This plan may be used in purchasing any articles in our store no matter what the price. Purchasers desiring to use the movie plan are not confined to the 10-cent limit, but may increase the size of the payments to any amount they desire.

where alternate rows of pink and white in double stitch, with white shells edged in pink, form a charming finish. The little mittens should be of white, with pink and white wristlets and edge.

The sack is not so easy to make, It is formed of a back piece and two front pieces, narrowing at the neck and graduated about the armholes. The pink sack needs a white border with a pink edge and pink ribbons to match those on the cap. To make it very warm crochet a white sack inside the pink one, sewing them together when finished, or they can be interlined with wool. This is better in the case of a long cloak, which may be lined with two thicknesses of china silk interlined with lamb's wool.

A monthly program has been arranged as follows: 1st week, business; changed hands, Mr. Bullock being the 2nd. week, entertainment; 3rd. week, band practice; 4th week, examinations > Setting Up exercises will be given whenever Asst. Scoutmaster Kaiser thinks best.

In connection with some criticisms we have had from persons fearing to allow their boys these benefits, let us equest them to read the following statements from two great national organizations concerning our work. Notice carefully the distinction the American Federation of Labor makes between the military American Boy Scouts and non-military Boy Scouts of America. Labor favors our local non-military body, contrary to general belief.

Georgia Labor Leaders Endorse the Movement.

The following report was adopted at the 17th annual convention of the Georgia Federation of labor, held in Columbus, Ga., April 21-24:

"After a careful investigation of all papers and documents available bearing upon the subject we find that there are two boy scout movements in this country, one known as the American Boy Scouts and the other the Boy Scouts of America. Although similar in name, they are essentially different in policy.

"The American Boy Scouts organization was condemned on account of its military feature, and its teaching boys 'to be loyal and true to his parents, to his superiors, to his country, and to his employers. He must stick to them thick and thin against every one who is their enemy or even talks badly of them.'

"The ideals and activities of the Boy Scouts of America are for peace and the building up of body, mind and character. The rifle is not a part of their equipment.

"Your committee believes from their findings that the Boy Scouts of America is an organization that, under its present policy, is a developer of the best qualities in a boy and we think that any movement that has for its ultimate object the moulding of better citizens should be encouraged. "The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor recommended to the Rochester convention 'that we do not denounce the Boy Scout Movement; that, on the contrary, the officers of the A. F. of L. shall keep in constant touch with the movement so as to prevent its activities or purposes being directed toward any military movement or militarism in any form, and that in matters affecting the rights and interests of the working people, that the boy scout movement be urged to a constantly closer, sympathetic attitude toward the organized labor movement in its work and struggle for the achievement of a higher material, political, moral and social standard for the toilers of our country.' "Your committee therefore recommends that inasmuch as this organization is under the watchful eye of the officers of the A. F. of L. that we be guided by their conclusions until we feel we would be justified in following some other course."

Another gift sure to be appreciated by the master of the house is made in the form of a bright slumber robe. It is of Germantown wool, knitted in plain garter stitch on large rubber or bone needles, the work being alike on both sides. It is done as follows:

Knit three stripes of the colored yarn and two of black, with sixty stitches on a needle. Five skeins make a stripe. The colors of the fancy stripe are five-red, dark olive, yellow, peacock blue and light olive.

Colored stripe: Ten bouts (once across and back) red, 5 dark olive, 10 yellow, 5 blue, 2 (each three times repeated) of light olive, red, dark olive, yellow and blue, then 10 of light olive, 5 of red, 10 of dark olive, 5 of yellow and 10 of blue. Next another stripe of the three times repeated narrow ones, then 5 of light olive, 10 of red, 5 of dark olive, 10 of yellow, 5 of blue. Again the narrow variegated stripe, then 10 of light olive, 5 red, 10 dark olive, 5 yellow, 10 of blue, followed by the variegated stripe again. Next 5 light olive, 10 red, 5 dark olive, 10 yellow, 5 blue and then® the variegated stripe. Lastly, 10 of light olive, 5 red and 10 dark olive.

This completes the stripe. Make the black ones the same length and join with a crocheted twist of black and yellow. Crochet an edge in shells of black or fringe the ends with the mixed colors.

Words About the Useful Gift. A useful present is sometimes a delusion and a snare, not alone failing of its purpose, but even entailing disastrous consequences.

The present useful to the giver often circulates among the members of the same family, particularly if they live in the same house. A man receives an armchair, for instance, and a woman some towels. These gifts are not primarily intended to please the recipient, but the giver intends to get full use out of them. Thus the father of the family is often presented with a library table or an icebox. One woman in particular gave her husband a lawn mower and a garden hose for Christmas; another spent her money buying a carving knife.

Get a name! If the other fellow's it, Who's to blame?

Spend your money in the town Where you pull the shekels down; Give the mail concerns a frown-That's the game.

If you're used to giving knocks, Change your style Throw bouquets instead of rocks For awhile.

Let the other fellow roast; Shun him as you would a ghost; Meet his hammer with a boast And a smile.

When a stranger from afar Comes along,

Tell him who and what we are-Make it strong. Needn't flatter, never bluff;

Tell the truth, for that's the stuff. Join the boosters-they're the stuff. We belong.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1915.

THE INTENT OF THE LAW -RELATING TO CONSUMPTION

We have now come pretty fully through the law of the state of Michigan with regard to the infectious disease known as tuberculosis in its early stages and consumption in its later ones. There are other sections of the law relating to consumption and the public schools-and where the protection of the community's health is concerned, all schools are public in the sanitary sense-but we shall touch upon that point when we come to consider the schools themselves.

The intent of the law, as we have thus far expounded it, is two-fold: protection and information. Protection by information, and information for the purposes of protection. The law is the community's collective declaration that the public health must be protected, and that the public health agencies must be informed when and where dangerous disease is occurring in order that protection may be given. Our health laws are thus a sign of our civilization and of our advancement in sanitary and medical knowledge. They are drawn with strict regard to the rights of everybody concerned, they are not burdensome, they are not meddlesome, they are impartial. Their purpose is to benefit all equally, and where they are obeyed they do benefit all. Obedience to the law was one of the strong forces that helped stamp out the diphtheria outbreak which occurred in Detroit during the last weeks of 1913. The first step which every citizen can take in the fight against consumption is to obey the laws relating to that disease. As a community we are not yet aware of the danger of the habit of spitting, even amongst ap-parently well folk. We have an ordinance prohibiting spitting, but our ignorance of the deep reasons behind it has hindered our obedience to it.

During the diphtheria outbreak, the nealth officer of the city of Detroit and an officer of the United States Public Health Service went about Detroit hailing well persons at random from the streets and taking cultures from their throats. A large percentage were found to be carrying diphtheria germs. School children who are immune from diphtheria—that is, school children who successfully resist the disease itself-were found to be bear ing the germs about with them in their throats. They themselves could not succumb to the disease. because of their peculiar resistant powers, but they were nevertheless diphtheriaearriers. In this sense, a greater number of us than is commonly supposed are disease-carriers. We do not have the disease, possibly we may always be able to resist it, but still we may carry and distribute the seeds of it. In the light of these facts—facts KINGSTON-NOVESTA which may be verified in any random company at any time-the reasonableness of the anti-spitting ordinance is understood. You don't have to be a consumptive or the victim of any disease to have a spittle that is danger-Physician and Surgeon. Office in ous. Therefore, don't spit on the Pleasant Home Hospital. Residence ground. Use a handkerchief, or a two blocks south of Cootes' hardware proper receptacle. Don't work where men are allowed to spit on the floors Pontiac and Detroit. -you don't have to. Ask for or provide spittons or other receptacles, with water as a disinfectant in them, and see that they are used. Promiscuous spitting is a source of danger, even amongst well people. When well people and sick people, especially consumptives, obey these laws, when physicians report their cases, consumption will be dealt a blow in this city that will speedily be felt through all the microscopical colonies whose health is in disease, and whose life is in death. Let us kill the germs instead of cultivate them.

"Three hundred dollars!" Abe cried. "Schaafskopf, make no jokes with us!" "Jokes I'm making it," Barney moanappealing to Morris Perlmutter.

'He says I make jokes. Mr Per confidentially acquainted him with the circumstances of the theft.

It being Max's day off, he accompanied Barney to the cutting room of Potash & Perlmutter. When they entered Pincus Rifkin was laying out his cloth in long, smooth folds on a cutting table, preparatory to chalking out the pattern on the upper layer. He was humming a psalm to the traditional Hebrew melody, for Pincus was a pious man, as becomes the son of a rabbi.

By token of that same piety, his whiskers had never known the refining influence of scissors since they first sprouted. They gave him a venerable. peaceful aspect, and in contemplating their profusion one was apt to lose sight of the well developed chest over which they cascaded. Moreover, Pin-& Perlmutter's cloak and suit cus had a jaunty way of carrying himself that made the other cutters and operators treat him respectfully. But Max saw only the flowing whiskers, cumstance which impelled and he winked confidently at his brother.

"Dis here is a pipe," lie muttered. "Come here," he growled, advancing Pincus smiled and shrugged his shouland prevented many a piece of ders. His English was rather weak, and he relied a great deal upon gesture. "You're Rifkin, ain't yer?" Max went

"Sure," said Pincus.

Max thrust his chin out until it was at least six inches in advance of the rest of his body.

"Who pinched the silk?" he hellowed. "Sillik?" said Pincus. "What sillik?" "G'wan!" Max roared. "You ain't never seen no' silk, have you? You don't know narten about it, do you? Maybe dis'll make you remember!"

He threw back his right arm and, clinching his fist, aimed straight for the point of Pincus' jaw. Unfortunately for Max and fortunately for Pincus, the patriarchal beard obscured a receding chin, and what was intended for a crashing blow glanced harmless past the side of Pincus' neck and nearly dislocated Max's shoulder.

Then it was that the spirit of Judas Maccabeus became reincarnated in the frame of Pincus Rifkin. With a shout that echoed through the cloak and suit establishment of Potash & Perlmutter, he leaped upon the astonished Max Greenberg. After the dust settled, it required the combined efforts of the twenty odd operators to pry him loose from Max's throat.

They sent around the corner for a doctor, who resorted to artificial respiration before Max Greenberg recovered sufficiently to go home in a cab at Potash & .Perlmutter's expense, but the moral influence of having a policeman for a brother was dissipated, perhaps forever, in the minds of those twenty odd operators in the cutting room.

"Of course he stole the silk, Mawruss," said Abe the next morning, as they discussed the affray. "Otherwise why should he try to murder Barney's brother? Ain't it?"

"Oi gewoldt!" he cried and ran both first, Abe," Morris suggested. "Maybe Barney's brother hit him "Barney's brother is a policeman, Mawruss," Abe went on; "and you know as well as I do, Mawruss, that a policeman is a loafer. But Rifkin "We are missing in six pieces black in the old country, and his father is a comes from decent, respectable people rabbi. Ain't it? So why should Rifkin fight like a policeman fights? A feller which he acts like a policeman is a thief, too, I bet yer."

Morris lit a cigar and puffed away with a sour expression on his face. "I guess, Abe," he said, "we'd better forget all about this here silk and get down to business." "Forget about it, Mawruss?" Abe repeated. "Forget nothing! I suppose, Mawruss, $300 ain't nothing to you, "Yesterday we got it, and today we | Mawruss. I suppose you pick $300 up in the street, Mawruss. No, siree, Mawruss, I ain't no policeman, and I ain't no rabbi's son, neither, Mawruss. But I guess I got a little gumption, too, and I'll get back that silk if I have to take Rifkin's brother myself and shake the silk out of him." The exterior of Aaron Rifkin's store little betrayed the prosperity of the business transacted within, for entrance was had through a narrow slit between a soda water stand and a fish stall. Above this aperture, however, hung an elaborate sign, on which appeared in gilt letters the English word "Remnants," spelled phonetically in broke in. "You mourned good" and straggling Hebrew characters. If this plenty by now, Barney. Tell us who had not been sufficient to guide Abe's footsteps squarely in the entrance stood a replica of Pincus Rifkin, with flowing beard and apologetic smile

At once the cry was taken up by a hundred voices until it was borne to Max Greenberg, who was summing himself in front of the public school a block away. He secured a fresh grip on his club, and, taking pushcarts two at a jump, bounded toward the corner of Eldridge street.

At this juncture Abe committed a breach of judgment. Had he proceeded down the street as deliberately as he had quitted Aaron's store, no one would have suspected him to be the quarry of the ensuing chase. The impulse to run was too strong, however, and he took to his heels just as Max Greenberg hove into sight. The next moment he tripped over a rejected head of cabbage, and his nemesis, in the person of Max, was literally upon him. If Max's aim had been poor on the previous day, there were at least no errors of marksmanship on this occasion, and when Abe was arraigned before the desk sergeant in the Eldridge street police station, one of his eyes was completely closed, while the other was reduced to a mere slit. "Comes this here loafer into mein store," said Aaron, "and says he wants to see some sillik, and before I could stop him at all, he quick takes the sillik, and runs away from mein store."

"What d'ye want to take his silk for?" the sergeant asked Abe. "Not his silk," said Abe. "My silk!

His brother Pincus stole it from my factory already, and gives it to him. Six pieces black silk worth $300."

'Black sillik!'' Aaron exclaimed. "Why, I ain't got not one piece black sillik in mein store. The store was dark, and this here loafer thinks it was black sillik. It ain't no such thing. It's blue sillik!"

"Blue silk!" Abe cried. "That's a fine swindler. Why, actually the feller told me it was black silk.'

"Wake up!" Max cried, poking him in the ribs with his billy. "D'yer understand de proposition?" Abe nodded slowly.

"Den come on, both of youse," said Max, and once more the trio faced the sergeant.

He was now fianked by a stout, peak browed person, whose most salient features were a curled mustache and a diamond breastpin. In consideration of a ten dollar bill from Abe the peak browed person furnished bail in the penalty of $500 to insure Mr. Potash's appearance in the Essex Market police court that afternoon to answer to the charge of violating a corporation ordinance.

"And now get out of here, all of you," said the sergeant after the transaction was complete.

Abe lost no time in making for the door, but Aaron lingered. "Mein sillik," he said, with a conciliating smile. "Please, mister!" "What silk?" cried the sergeant. "I ain't seen no silk." "Blue sillik," said Aaron, showing no disposition to leave. "Officer," thundered the sergeant, 'put this man out!"

Max grabbed the shrinking Aaron by the collar and rushed him to the door. Then with one mighty kick he propelled him to the gutter.

"Give dat to your brudder Pincus," he called after him, "and tell him it was from me!"

I didn't which bade fair to last for months. Morris viewed these badges of his partner's misfortune with marked disapproval.

"Ain't I told you, Abe." he said for the twentieth time, "you should forget about that silk and get down to business? We not only lost the silk, but you lost two days from the store, and $10 you had to pay that loafer what bailed you out. Also you pay $50 by the court for nothing, and now Rifkin's brother says you should pay him $25 for his silk which you took and which he ain't never got from the station house yet."

"I'll pay him $25, Mawruss!" Abe replied with ironic emphasis. "Wait till I get a chance at that sucker. I'll fix him, that thief!"

Morris shrugged impatiently. "Schmoo-es, Abe!" he broke in. "You ain't got no proof that he stole the silk.' "I'm surprised to hear you, Mawruss, said Abe.

Abe sat down heavily and set his hat back from his forehead.

"Yes, Mawruss," he said bitterly, "that's a foreman for you! We are missing in silk $300. Where is it? He don't know. All he could say is some one pinched it, and mind you, Mawruss, his brother is a policeman!"

Barney rocked to and fro and clutched his hair with both fists.

Barney stopped rocking.

"Rifkin," he said. "Rifkin!" Abe exclaimed. "What are you talking nonsense? Rifkin! I know his people from the old country yet. His father was a rabbi."

"I know it," said Barney, "but his brother, Aaron Rifkin, is in the remnant business-all kinds of remnants from sillik, wool, velvet - on Hester street.'

He rocked to and fro for three minutes, and then stopped again.

"Near the corner of Eldridge," he said, and resumed his rocking. "Stop it!" Abe yelled. "You make me dizzy in the head. Why do you think Rifkin done it?"

"Why?" Barney repeated in blank astonishment. "Why? A question! I am just telling you Rifkin's brother is in the remnant business."

"Sure, I know." Abe concluded, "but your brother is in the policeman business, so Mr. Perlmutter and me, we figure it out like this-either you would find the silk by Monday, or you would find another job, and that's all there is to it!"

Max Greenberg, Barney's brother, had never read the works of Gaboriau or Conan Doyle, but he was thoroughly conversant with the methods of detection in vogue with the metropolitan police.

"Leave it to me, Barney," he said on he following morning, when Barney

Two minutes later a short red faced man entered, bearing a large parcel wrapped in brown paper.

I been to some rousin' old weddin's when I was a lad. Many a good crack I got at a weddin' myself. Although maybe it was a wake you was at?"

"It's like this, Mr. Potash," Murray explained, starting to unpack the parcel: "I kept them packing boxes for my honesty. . You sold me them boxes for empty packing cases, but one of 'em had some goods in the bottom of it, and here they are."

He tore away the brown paper wrapping from the parcel and disclosed the missing silk in all its glossy perfection, six bolts of it, and fifty yards in each bolt.

"Now, what d'ye think of that, Mawruss?" Abe gasped at last.

"Think!" Morris cried. "Think! ] think you'd better tell Miss Cohen to charge you up with a cab ride for Barney's brother, $60 for the fine and the bail, $25 for Aaron Rifkin and $6 for them packing cases what Murray here keeps for his honesty."
