FINEST CATTLE EVER MARKETED HERE

BUYERS WELL PLEASED WITH BEEF CATTLE BOUGHT
SATURDAY.

Nine Two-Year-Olds Past Average
Over $96 Each; Other Sales of Saturday.

Schwaderer Bros. & Striffler, local stock buyers, paid out approximately $3,000 for live stock Saturday for their shipment to eastern markets. J. H. Striffler, a member of the firm, says that the shipment included the finest cattle ever shipped out of Cass City by live stock buyers.

Jas. J. Spence, an Elkland township farmer, received a check Saturday for $865.60 for nine head of young cattle. Eight of these were Grade Durham steers two years old past and one an Angus heifer.

Alfred J. Wallace, a farmer of the same township, received a check the same day for $697.88. Of this amount, $438.00 was for six head of cattle and $259.88 for 16 hogs.

A Livingston was paid $264 for one cow and two steers.

Incidents like these explain the present tendency of the farmer to stick to the farming industry and offer encouragement to the young man to continue in this occupation.

There has never been a year when the cattle industry was in better shape from the feeder's standpoint than the present one and there is a growing desire among farmers to engage in beef making during the approaching grass season.

SPEECH, LUNCH, SMOKER

Entertainment Com., C. C. B. M. A.,
Plans Get-together Meeting.

The entertainment committee of the Cass City Business Men's Association has planned a get-together meeting of farmers and business men to be held in the opera house in the near future. They have written to the Michigan Agricultural College for a live wire speaker, who will give an address on farming topics. Following the address, the company will enjoy a smoker, lunch and talk fest. Watch for the date.

The Agriculture Committee reports several sales of the Rag Doll Tester and expects many more as the season advances. They are selling these at two testers for five cents and two testers will test seed corn for three acres. As the testers can be used over and over again and are sold by the committee at cost, there is no question of their worth and practical value.

The directors of the association have asked the members of the Charity Committee not only to judge the worthiness of subscription papers which are circulated among business people, but also to ask the person circulating a paper having received their OK to agree to report to the committee after the solicitation has been made so that the committee may check over the list of contributors. An honest solicitor of funds will find no objection to this request.

WALTER LAPEER

Funeral Held at M. E. Church Tuesday Afternoon.

Walter Lapeer, who was seriously injured on March 16 near Atlanta, Mich., died at Cass City early Sunday morning. The injury was caused by a falling tree which broke Mr. Lapeer's back and paralyzed the lower portion of his body. Shortly after the accident, his brother, Wm. He was united in marriage in the spring of 1897 to Miss Elizabeth Fountain. To this union, five children were born, four of whom survive the father. REV. S. KELSEY GOES TO SIAM INSTEAD OF CHINA

He Accepts Position as Missionary in Bangkok, a City of One Million People.

The Board of Foreign Missions has had a member of its board, Robert Spur, take a trip around the world visiting all of its principal missions under the Presbyterian Board. He has just returned and reported to them that at Bangkok, Siam, there is urgent need of more workers to assist in the great good that is being done in that mission.

Missions have been established there for nearly seventy-five years and the work has been so well done that the missionaries have the friendship of the king and nobility of the land. Many children of the nobility attend the mission schools.

Siam has a population of eight million people, the city of Bangkok alone having about one million. The Board wrote Mr. Kelsey of the great need there and offered him a position in this city of wonderful opportunities and he has accepted. He leaves the first of September and will remain six years when he gets a furlough home for one year. It is about ten thousand miles via San Francisco, Hawaii, Philippine Islands and Sea of Siam.

FI-FI OF THE TOY SHOP AT CASS CITY NEXT THURSDAY.

Musical Extravaganza Will Be Presented by Home Talent; Seventy in Cast.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the home talent play, "Fi-Fi of the Toy Shop," to be given at the opera house next Thursday evening, April 20, for the benefit of the piano fund of the Presbyterian Sunday School. Seventy people, both children and adults, are to be used in the cast and the production promises to be one of the largest and best home talent extravaganzas ever presented in Cass City.

The preparation of the play and training of the cast is in the hands of Harold M. Swift of Chicago, who is busy drilling those participating.

Bonnie, the daughter of Tack Hammer, the old toymaker, wandering in the woods near her father's shop at the close of day, is overtaken by the Sandman, who casts her into a magic sleep.

She dreams wonderful dreams of the Toy Shop. Aurelia, a retired fairy, presents her with a bottle of Fairy Smelling Salts with which she brings to life all the inmates of the Toy Shop.

The Toy Folk have many wonderful, weird and beautiful adventures which Bonnie is permitted to watch and take part in until the light of day scatters the charm and awakens her from her magic sleep.

While a large number of children are used, this is by no means a "child" play, but will be enjoyed by old and young alike.

Music numbers in Fi-Fi (pronounced fee fee) will be given with Mrs. I. D. McCoy as accompanist. The following is the cast of characters:

Geo. Hall's Candidacy for Drain Commissioner Meets with Favor Throughout County.

Since Geo. Hall made the announcement of his candidacy for the nomination of drain commissioner in Tuscola county at the primaries next August, numerous pledges of support have been received thus early in the campaign from his friends and well-wishers throughout the county. He is deemed eminently fitted by them to perform the duties of this important office.

Mr. Hall has been a resident of Tuscola county for 33 years. He was born in McGillvray township, Middlesex county, Ontario, and came here in the spring of 1883. During the first years of his residence at Cass City, he was engaged with his brothers in the lumber business. Ten years later, he commenced farming, and after many years of hard labor, he cleared and improved the fine tract of land which he now owns in the northwestern portion of Elkland township. Mr. Hall's life has been a busy and industrious one; he knows what a hard day's work means and he is in sympathy with the man who toils.

Mr. Hall is not an unknown or untitled quantity in the public service. He is a staunch republican and as such has been elected to serve Elkland township for 13 years in an official capacity. Two years he was highway commissioner, two years a member of the board of review, and he has just rounded out his ninth term as supervisor. Two years ago he was elected chairman of the board of supervisors, and as its presiding officer, he has come in touch with the county as a whole and understands to a considerable extent its advantages and its needs.

As an official, Mr. Hall has been found thorough, painstaking and fair-minded. He does not go at anything haphazardly; he makes sure of his ground and is thorough in his preparation. Mr. Hall is one of the best informed men on township matters in the county today, and if nominated and elected drain commissioner, he will be just as thorough and efficient for the county as he has been for the township—one who will systematize the work of the office and give the county efficient and economical service.

BOAG-LINDSAY

Home of Archie Boag Scene of Pretty Wedding Apr. 5.

(From Shabbona Correspondent). Sixty guests witnessed the marriage of Miss Jean Boag of Argyle to Alex S. Lindsay of Evergreen on Wednesday, April 5, at the home of the bride's father, Archie Boag, near Shabbona. Rev. J. Diben of Shabbona performed the ceremony, the ring service being used.

At 6:30 o'clock the bridal party took their places beneath an arch of pink and white while Miss Mabel Leslie played the wedding march. Miss Grace Boag, sister of the bride acted as bridesmaid, and David Lindsay, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a becoming dress of dainty white messaline with a pretty bridal veil and carried a bouquet of carnations, lilies and ferns.

After the ceremony a delicious wedding supper was served. The room was prettily decorated in pink and white. After spending an enjoyable evening, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay left amid showers of rice and wheat for their home on the Lindsay farm in Evergreen township.

SOCIAL TIME.

A very pleasant surprise was given Rev. and Mrs. J. Diben when about sixty of their Shabbona friends gathered at the home of Dan Leslie on Friday evening, Apr. 7. Rev. Diben has lived in the Leslie home since the conference in 1914 and was recently united in marriage to Miss Ada, daughter of Rev. J. W. Betts of Melvin. The event Friday was in the form of a kitchen shower. They were the recipients of many useful and valuable articles.

The evening was spent in music, singing and games. Lindsay Bros. gave several selections. Light refreshments were served.

MRS. KING VERY POPULAR IN PRINCE ALBERT, SASK.

Wife of Prominent Doctor Very Active in Philanthropic and Red Cross Work.

The remains of Mrs. R. L. King arrived at Cass City Monday evening and funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Wickware residence on Pine St., the birthplace, early home and scene of the marriage of Mrs. King. The funeral was largely attended, many being present from Caro, Colwood, Sebewaing and other points in the Thumb. Mrs. D. L. Clements, a close friend of Mrs. King at Prince Albert, accompanied Dr. King and H. S. Wickware to Cass City to attend the last rites.

The following article is taken from The Daily Herald of April 6, published at Prince Albert, Sask.:

"Mrs. King, wife of Dr. R. L. King, died at the Holy Family hospital last evening at 9:30 as a result of typhoid fever, after an illness lasting almost eight weeks. Her illness was of sudden development, as she had been in excellent health almost up to the time she was stricken with a fainting spell, though she had complained of headaches. She was removed to the hospital, and the best of medical attention procurable was given her, Dr. Chisholm and practically all the medical practitioners of the city being asked for advice. The course of the malady at first was most puzzling, as it resembled typhoid fever. It is a somewhat peculiar incident in connection with her death that Mrs. King entertained a premonition that if she should ever have an attack of typhoid fever she would not recover. Every effort was therefore put forth to disguise from her the nature of the malady. Shortly after entering the hospital she became delirious, and this condition prevailed almost throughout her illness, notwithstanding that frequently her temperature was normal. During the past few days she sank rapidly, and yesterday hope for her recovery was abandoned.

"Much regret was felt in the city today when the news became known as Mrs. King has been well known and very popular here in church, social and home circles. She has taken a very active part in philanthropic work and has been especially energetic in connection with Red Cross work. She was member of St. Alban's Anglican church and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. She was a member of the tennis club and was practically the founder of the women's curling club of which she was the secretary. Even during her illness her interest in the affairs with which she was connected has been very keen, and her death leaves a place which cannot easily be filled. Mrs. King leaves to mourn their loss, her husband, her father and mother, and one brother, Mark, who is with a fire insurance company at Detroit. H. S. Wickware, father of Mrs. King, is at present in the city, having been here since early in his daughter's illness. He is county treasurer of Tuscola county, Michigan, and the family home is at present at Caro, Mich. Mrs. King, however, was born at Cass City, Mich., to which place the body is to be shipped for burial. Dr. King and Mr. Wickware are to accompany the body. Continued on page five.

Over fifteen bushels of seed corn have been brought to the Cass City high school building to be tested by the agriculture class. CHAPTER XI.

The Lieutenant Receives Orders.

THE next day brought not only an agreeable change in the weather, but a most surprising alteration in the manner of Mrs. Gaston, whose attitude toward R. Schmidt and his friends had been anything but amicable up to the hour of Miss Guile's discovery. The excellent lady, recovering very quickly from her indisposition, became positively polite to the hitherto repugnant Mr. Schmidt. She melted so abruptly and so completely that the young man was vaguely troubled. He began to wonder if his incognito had been pierced, so to speak.

He forbore asking when Miss Guile might be expected to appear on deck for her constitutional, but she volunteered the information, which was neither vague nor yet definite. In fact, she said that Miss Guile would be up soon.

Now it is necessary to relate that Miss Guile had been particularly firm in her commands to Mrs. Gaston. In the first place, Mrs. Gaston was given to understand that she was not to breathe it to a soul that R. Schmidt was not R. Schmidt, and she was not to betray to him by word or sign that he was suspected of being the Prince of Graustark. Moreover, the exacting Miss Guile laid great stress upon another command—R. Schmidt was never to know that she was not Miss Guile, but some one else altogether.

"You're right, my dear," exclaimed Mrs. Gaston in an excited whisper as she burst in upon her fair companion, who was having coffee and toast in her parlor. Marie, the maid, was waiting to do up her mistress's hair, and the young lady herself was alluringly charming in spite of the fact that it was not already "done up."

"He is there—he is just what you think."

"Good heavens, you haven't gone and done it, have you?" cried the girl, a slim hand halting with a piece of toast halfway to her lips.

"Come and done it?"

"You haven't been blabbing, have you?"

"How can you say that to me? Am I not to be trusted? Am I so weak and?"

"Don't cry, you old dear! Forgive me. But now tell me—absolutely—just what you've been up to," and Mrs. Gaston repeated every word of the conversation she had had with R. Schmidt, proving absolutely nothing, but stoutly maintaining that her intuition was completely to be depended upon.

"And, oh," she whispered in conclusion, "wouldn't it be perfectly wonderful if you two should fall in love with each other?"

"Don't be silly!"

"But you have said that if he should fall in love with you for yourself and not because?"

"I have also said that I will not marry any man—prince, duke, king, count or anything else—unless I am in love with him. Don't overlook that, please."

"But he is really very nice. I should think you could fall in love with him. Just think how it would please your father and mother. Just think!"

"I won't be bullied!"

"Am I bullying you?" in amazement.

"No, but father tries to bully me, and you know it."

When she appeared on deck long afterward she found every chair occupied. A warm sun, a far from turbulent sea and a refreshing breeze had brought about a marvelous transformation.

She made several brisk rounds of the deck, then, feeling that people were following her with their eyes—admiringly, to be sure, but what of that?—she abandoned the pleasant exercise and sought the seclusion of the sunless corner where her chair was stationed. The ship's daily newspaper was just off the press, and many of the loungers were reading the brief telegraphic news from the capitals of the world. She procured a copy of the paper from a steward and was glancing at the headlines as she made her way into her corner. Double led type appeared over the rumored engagement of Miss Maud Applegate Blithers, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of the great capitalist, and Robin, prince of Graustark. A queer little smile played about her lips as she folded the paper for future perusal. Turning the corners of the deck building, she almost collided with R. Schmidt, who stood leaning against the wall, scanning the little newspaper with eyes that were blind to everything else.

"Oh!" she gasped.

"I'm sorry," he exclaimed, crumpling the paper in his hand as he backed away, flushing. "Stupid of me. Good morning."

"Good morning, Mr. Schmidt. It wasn't your fault. I should have looked where I was going. I see you have a paper. It appears that Miss Blithers and the prince are to be married after all."

"Yes, it is quite apparent that the Blithers family wants a title at any cost," he said.

Her eyes flashed with amusement at his reply.

"Would you like to take a few turns around the deck, Miss Guile?" he inquired, a trace of nervousness in his manner.

Before deciding she shot an investigating glance into the corner. Mrs. Gaston was not only there, but was engaged in conversation with the gray mustached gentleman in a nearby chair. It required but half a glance to show that Mr. Totten was unmistakably interested in something the voluble lady had just said to him.

"No, thank you, Mr. Schmidt," said Miss Guile hastily, and then hurried over to her chair, a distinct cloud on her smooth brow. Robin, considering himself dismissed, whirled and went his way, a dark flush spreading over his face. Never in all his life had he been quite so out of patience with the world as on this bright, sunny morning.

"Here comes Mr. Schmidt," whispered Mrs. Gaston excitedly a few moments later and at once made a movement indicative of hasty departure.

"Sit still," said Miss Guile peremptorily.

R. Schmidt again passed them by without so much as a glance in their direction. There was a very sweet smile on Miss Guile's lips as she closed her eyes and lay back in her chair. Once, twice, thrice, even as many as six times R. Schmidt strode rapidly by their corner, his head high and his face aglow.

At last a queer little pucker appeared on the serene brow of the far from drowsy young lady whose eyes peeped through half closed lids. Suddenly she threw off her rug with a brief remark to her companion, arose and went to her cabin. Mrs. Gaston followed, not from choice, but because the brief remark formed a command.

Soon afterward R. Schmidt, who had been joined by Dank, threw himself into his chair with a great sigh of fatigue and said:

"Gad, I've walked a hundred miles since breakfast. Have you a match?"

"Hobbs has made a very curious discovery," said the young lieutenant, producing his matchbox. There was a perturbed look in his eyes.

"If Hobbs isn't careful he'll discover a new continent one of these days. He is always discovering something," said Robin, puffing away at his pipe.

"But this is really interesting. It seems that he was in the hold when Miss Guile's maid came down to get into one of her mistress's trunks. Now, the first letter in Guile is G, isn't it? Well, Hobbs says there are at least half a dozen trunks there belonging to the young lady and that all of them are marked with a large red B. What do you make of it?"

The prince had stopped puffing at his pipe.

"Really, you know, Dank, I ought to dismiss Hobbs," said Robin irritably. "He is getting to be a dreadful nuisance. Always nosing around trying to—"

"But, after all, sir, you'll have to admit that he has made a puzzling discovery. Why should her luggage be marked with a B?"

"I should say because her name begins with a B," said Robin.

"In that case it isn't Guile."

"Obviously." The young man was thinking very hard.

"And if it isn't Guile there must be an excellent reason for her sailing under a false name."

"Have you a theory?"

"There are many that we could advance, but, of course, only one of them could be the right one, even if we were acute enough to include it in our list of guesses. She may have an imperative reason for not disclosing her identity. For instance, she may be running away to get married."

"That's possible," agreed Robin.

"But not probable. She may be a popular music hall favorite or one of those peculiarly clever creatures known as the American newspaper woman, against whom we have been warned. Don't you regard it as rather significant that of all the people on this ship she should be the one to attach herself to the unrecognized Prince of Graustark? Put two and two together, sir, and?"

"I find it singularly difficult to put one and one together, Dank," said the prince ruefully. "No, you are wrong in both of your guesses."

"So be it," said Dank, but with doubt in his eyes. "You ought to know. I've never spoken to her, so?"

"She thinks you are a dreadfully attractive chap, Dank," said Robin mischievously. "She said so only yesterday."

Dank gave his prince a disgusted look and smoked on in silence. His dignity was ruffled.

"Come, old fellow, let's forget Miss Guile," cried Robin, slapping the lieutenant on the shoulder. "Let's think of the real peril—Maud Applegate Blithers." He held up the ship's paper for Dank to see, and then sat back to enjoy his companion's rage.

An hour later Dank and Count Quinnox might have been seated side by side on the edge of a skylight at the tiptop of the ship's structure engaged in the closest conversation.

"He is young enough and stubborn enough to make a fool of himself over her," the count had said. "I wouldn't blame him, 'pon my soul I wouldn't. She is very attractive—ahem! You must be his safeguard, Dank. Go in and do as I suggest. You are a good looking chap and you've nothing to lose. So far as she is concerned you are quite as well worth while as the fellow known as R. Schmidt. There's no reason why you shouldn't make the remainder of the passage pleasant for her and at the same time enjoy yourself at nobody's expense."

"Is it a command, sir?"

"It is."

"Very well, sir. I shall do my best."

Five days later as the Jupiter was discharging passengers at Plymouth Count Quinnox and Lieutenant Dank stood well forward on the promenade deck watching the operations. The younger man was moody and distraught, an unusual condition for him, but one that had been noticeably recurrent during the past two or three days. Something had gone wrong with him, and it was something that he felt in duty bound to lay before his superior, the grim old minister of war and hereditary chief of the castle guard. Occasionally his somber gaze shifted to a spot farther down the deck, where a young man and woman leaned upon the rail and surveyed the scene of activity below.

"What is on your mind, Dan?" asked the count abruptly. "Out with it."

"Pretty mess I've made of the business," lamented Dank surlily. "Putting myself up as a contender against a fellow like Robin and dreaming that I could win out, even for a minute! Good Lord, what an ass I am! Why, we've only made it worse, count. We've touched him with the spur of rivalry, and that could be more calamitous than that? From being a rather matter of fact, indifferent observer, he becomes a bewildering cavalier bent on conquest at any cost. I am swept aside as if I were a parcel of rags. For two days I stood between him and the incomparable Miss Guile. Then he suddenly arouses himself. My cake is dough. I am nobody. The beautiful Miss Guile has bewitched our prince, and my labor is not only lost, but I myself am lost. Mon dieu!"

The count stared at him in perplexity for a moment. Then a look of surprise came into his eyes—surprise not unmingled with scorn.

"You don't mean to say, Dank, that you've fallen in love with her? Oh, you absurd fegdelings. Will you?"

"Why not?" broke in Dank fiercely. "Why should it appear incredible to you? Is she not the most entrancing creature in all the world? Is she not the most appealing, the most adorable, most feminine of all her sex? The—"

The count stopped him with a sharp gesture. A look of real concern appeared in his eyes.

"Do you believe that he is actually in love with this girl?"

"Heels over head," barked the unhappy lieutenant. "I've never seen a worse case."

"We must put an end to this fond adventure. Robin is our most precious possession. We must not—Why do you shake your head?"

"We are powerless, sir. If he makes up his mind to marry Miss Guile he'll do it in spite of anything we can do—that is, provided she is of the same mind. All Graustark can't stop him, nor old man Blithers either. Besides, he says he isn't going to Edelweiss immediately."

"That is news to me."

"I thought it would be. He came to the decision not more than two hours ago. He is determined to spend a couple of weeks at Interlaken."

"Interlaken?"

"Yes. Miss Guile expects to stop there for a fortnight after leaving Paris."

"I must remonstrate with Robin—at once," declared the old man. "He is needed in Graustark. He must be made to realize the importance of—"

"I told him we were expected to reach home by the end of next week, and he said that a quiet fortnight in the Alps would make new men of all of us."

"'Pon my soul!' was all that the poor minister of war, an adept in strategy, was able to exclaim.

For some unaccountable reason Miss Guile and her companion preferred to travel alone to Paris. They had a private compartment, over which a respectful, but adamant, conductor exercised an authority that irritated R. Schmidt beyond expression. The rest of the train was crowded to its capacity, and here was desirable space going to waste in the section occupied by the selfish Miss Guile. He couldn't understand it in her. Was it, after all, to be put down as a simple steamer encounter? Was she deliberately snubbing him, now that they were on land?

It was not until the boat train was nearing the environs of Paris that Hobbs threw some light over the situation, with the result that it instantly became darker than ever before. It appears that Miss Guile was met at the landing by a very good looking young man who not only escorted her to the train, but actually entered it with her and was even now enjoying the luxury of a private compartment as well as the contents of a large luncheon hamper, to say nothing of an uninterrupted view of something far more inspiring than the scenery.

MRS. KING VERY POPULAR IN PRINCE ALBERT, SASK.

Continued from first page. which will probably leave the city tomorrow afternoon. "Mrs. King was 34 years of age, and was married to Dr. King nearly fourteen years ago. Dr. and Mrs. King have resided in Prince Albert for the past eight years, and have made innumerable friends here. The deceased was passionately devoted to her husband and his work, and her demise has brought expressions of sincere sorrow from many to whom she had proved a staunch friend. "The casket containing the body was taken to the home on Thirteenth street west, this afternoon and is to be left open until shipment is made, so that friends may take a last look at the body."

The pastor most earnestly asks every member to be present at the Easter morning service. At this service the right hand of fellowship will be given to several new members. Brethren, let us re-dedicate ourselves afresh to God and His service and let brotherly love continue that we may be known by all men that we are the disciples of Christ. Should any member not be able to attend Easter service will they please send the pastor a written testimony to be read at the communion service.

Crabs and Lobsters.

There are many curious points about crabs and lobsters. Every one of either genus is provided with a big claw for crushing and a small claw adapted by its shape for cutting as scissors do. With these two claws they tear the food they capture into fragments and feed themselves literally from "hand to mouth." But there is every reason to suppose that the claws are intended quite as much for fighting as for eating purposes, inasmuch as such powerful hands are not needed for devouring the soft food they prefer.

Wall Paper!

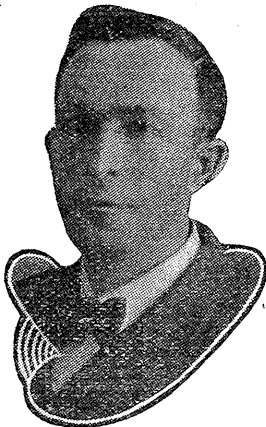

When you buy wall paper of the PAPERHANGER you at the same time SECURE YOUR DECORATOR. You get the best paper obtainable. You don't have to pay for a double roll when a single roll is all that is needed. Ordinary borders are the same price as the paper. You give the profit on the paper to whom it is due, and by so doing cause your decorator to feel obliged to do your job first.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS.

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will not correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is where the danger often lies. You should realize that these troubles often lead to dropsy or Bright's disease. An effective remedy for weak or diseased kidneys is Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of this vicinity are constantly testifying.

Lyle Spencer, blacksmith, R. F. D. No. 2, Deford, Mich., says: "My kidneys were weak and I suffered from pains in the small of my back. There were sharp twinges in my back after I stooped over. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family with excellent results, so I tried them. They cured me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that cured Mr. Spencer. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv. 7

BUSINESS IS BASED ON CONFIDENCE

A Theory Put Into Practice by Well Known Business Man

J. C. BRADY

"A druggist has many opportunities to make lasting friends of his customers," said Mr. J. C. Brady, popular Rexall Pharmacist of Fall River, Mass. "The very nature of his business draws their confidence for little helpful suggestions on the matter of health. Many people have thanked me for recommending Rexall Orderlies as the best relief for constipation and its resultant ills. Put up in dainty candy tablet form, they are pleasant to the taste and make an ideal laxative for the home—for men, women and children alike."

We have the exclusive selling rights for this great laxative.

Your 1916 Bean Crop depends on whether you plant seed FREE from disease or not!

We offer, subject to prior sale, our remaining allotment of specially selected grown in Charlevoix County, Michigan, and guarantee that these Seed Beans are of the same quality as purchased by the Michigan Agricultural College for the State Farms at Lansing.

DISEASE FREE--Michigan Wonder White Field Beans

These were grown on new land in Northern Michigan. We believe that no price is too high, and that it will pay farmers handsomely to have these beans at planting time. The sale of a few bushels of seed next year will more than pay for clean seed this year, to say nothing of the higher yield of from $5 to $10 per acre, and the smaller pick. There is no doubt about it, and in these years of high prices the increased yield from one acre should pay the difference between the cost of home-grown diseased beans and our special seed stock.

"The Red Circle"

This is the strongest link in the wonderful chain of serial successes. This serial is a detective story and is full of mystery and thrills from start to finish. So skilled is the adaption and so good the work of the two stars, Miss Ruth Roland and Frank Mayo, that the picture is a triumph.

Everyone who has seen Ruth Roland in the introductory picture of this wonderful story of heredity, romance and humanity are tremendously pleased. Do not miss the first chapter.
