Dr. DeKleine is specially anxious to make the campaign in these two counties a success because of the interest there seems to be here in curbing the spread of tuberculosis. But to make it such the State Board of Health will need the hearty co-operation of all local people, he announces. Especially schools and churches can aid the cause materially. And the local physicians can do perhaps still more. And everybody can help by getting the visiting nurses, when they come here, into touch with persons who are physically run down. The free examinations are fully as much for those who are merely weak as for those who think they have tuberculosis, because mere weakness often developes into tuberculosis.

CHAPTER XVII.

Love In Abeyance. OOR Prince!" she sighed pityingly. He started. The remark was so unexpected that he almost betrayed himself. It seemed profoundly personal. "He will be in very hot water, I fear.' He regarded her coldly. "And you want to be on hand to see him squirm, I suppose.

She took instant alarm. Was she going too far? His query was somewhat disconcerting.

"To be perfectly frank with you, Mr. Schmidt, I am going to Graustark because no one will ever think of looking for me in such an out of the way place. I am serious now, so you must not laugh at me. Circumstances are such that I prefer to seek happiness after a fashion of my own. My parents love me, but they will not understand me. You know that my father fears that I may marry a man distasteful to him, and I suppose to my mother, although she is not so"-

"Are his fears well founded?" he asked, rudely interrupting her. "Is there a man that he has cause to fear? Are-are you in love with some one Bedelia?'

"Do not interrupt me. I want you to know that I am not running away from home, that I shall return to it when I see fit and that I am not in love with the man they suspect.

She was very serious, very intense. He laid his hand on hers, and she did not withdraw it. Emboldened, his hand closed upon the dainty fingers, and an instant later they were borne to his hot lips.

"You have said that I came here in search of a light adventure," he whispered, holding her hand close to his cheek as he bent nearer to her. "You imply that I am a trifler, a light o' love. I want you to understand me better. I came here because I"-

"Stop!" she pleaded. "You must not say it. I am serious-yes, I know that you are serious too. But you must wait. If you were to say it to me now I should have to send you away andoh, believe me, I do not want to do that. I-I"

"You love no one else?" he cried rapturously.

of Mrs. Gaston. Let us have just one little minute to ourselves, Mr. he. Schmidt." When Mrs. Gaston joined Robin and Bedelia at the table, which had been set for them in the salle a manger, she laid several letters before the girl, who picked them up instantly and glanced at the superscription on each. "You will forgive me, Mr. Schmidt," she said nervously. "I must look at them at once.'

An exclamation of annoyance fell from her lips as she read the first one. "This is from a friend in Paris, Mr. Schmidt," she said, hesitatingly. Then, as if coming to a quick decision: "My father has heard that I am carrying on atrociously with a strange young man. It seems that it is a new young man. He is beside himself with rage.'

Bedelia slashed open another envelope and glanced at its contents. Her eyes flew open with surprise. For an instant she stared, a frown of perplexity on her brow.

"We are discovered!" she cried a moment later, clapping her hands together in an ecstacy of delight. "The pursuers are upon our heels. The chase is on again. Quick! We must prepare for flight!

"Flight?" gasped Robin. Her eyes were dancing. His were filled with dismay.

"Tomorrow at sunrise," cried Bedelia enthusiastically. "It is already planned, Mr. Schmidt. I have engaged an automobile in anticipation of this very emergency."

"By the way, why don't you read the other letter?" He was regarding it with jealous eyes, for she had slipped it, face downward, under the edge of her plate.

"It isn't important," she said, with a quick look into his eyes. She convicted herself in that glance and knew it on the instant.

Angry with herself, she snatched up the letter and tore it open. Her

"We are discovered." she cried a demurred. "Call me Rex for the present," said "I will supply you with a better one later on.'

"May I call him Rex?" she inquired of her companion.

"In moderation," said Mrs. Gaston. "Very well, then Rex, I have changed my mind. I shall not motor since you insist upon risking your neck in pursuit of me. I shall go by train in the morning. We will be in Vienna in two days. There I shall say goodby you, for I am going to Graustark, the new Blithers estate. Surely you will not follow me there."

"You are very much mistaken. shall be there as soon as you and I shall stay just as long, provided Mr. Blithers has no objections," said Robin, with more calmness than he had hoped to display in the face of her sudden thrust.

Mr. William W. Blithers arrived in Edelweiss, the capital of Graustark, on the same day that the prince returned from his tour of the world. As a matter of fact, he traveled by special train and beat the prince home by the h ter of three hours. The procession o troops, headed by the Royal Castl guard, it was announced, would pas the historic Hotel Regengetz at 5 in the afternoon, so Mr. Blithers has front seats on the extension porch fac ing the platz.

He had lost no time in his das across the continent. In the firs place, his agents in Paris made i quite clear to him that there was likely to be "ructions" in Graustarl over the loan and the prospect of a plebeian princess being seated on the the throne whether the people liked i or not, and in the second place Mauc Applegate had left a note on his desl in the Paris offices, coolly informinhim that she was likely to turn up i. Edelweiss almost as soon as he. Sh added an annoying postscript. She said she was curious to see what sor of a place it was that he had been wasting his money on.

To say that he was put out by Maud's aggravating behavior would be stating the case with excessive gentleness. He was furious. He senv for the head of the detective agency and gave him a blowing up that he was never to forget. It appears that the detectives had followed a false lead and had been fooled by the wary Maud in a most humiliating manner They hadn't the remotest notion where she was and evinced great sur prise when informed in a voice loud enough to be heard a half block away that she was on her way to Graustark Then he dragged Mrs. Blithers of to the Gare de l'Este and took the express to Vienna. He would see to the loan first and to Maud afterward.

Going back a day or two, it becomes necessary to report that while in Vienna the perverse Bedelia played a shabby trick on the infatuated Robin. She stole away from the Bristol in the middle of the night and was halfway to the Graustark frontier before he was aware of her flight. She left a note for him in which she said:

Forgive me for running away like this It is for the best. I must have a few days to myself, dear friend-days for sober reflection uninfluenced by the presence of a natural enemy to composure. And so I am leaving you in this cowardly, graceless fashion. Do not think ill of me. I give you my solemn promise that in a few days shall let you know where I may be found if you choose to come to me. Even then I may not be fully convinced in my own mind that our adventure has reached accompany me to Graustark. I am leave ing tonight for that country, where I shall remain in seclusion for a few days before acquainting you with my future plans. It is not my intention to stop in Edelweiss at present. The newspapers proclaim a state of unrest there over the coming visit of Mr. Blithers and the return of the prince, both of whom are very much in the public eye just now. I prefer the quiet of the country to the excitement of the city, so I shall seek some remote village and give myself up to-shall I say prayer-ful meditation? Believe me, dear Rex, to be vour most devoted though whimsical BEDELIA.

"It is easy to apply-we can do it ourselves-and so inexpensive. It wears well, too, and makes the floors much easier to keep clean, thus making them more sanitary for the children to play upon. There is quite a variety of attractive colors to choose from.

She swaved of resisting the appeal that called her to his heart, and she scarcely breathed the words:

"I love no one else."

A less noble nature than this would have seized upon the advantage offered by her sudden weakness. Instead. he drew a long, deep breath, straightened his figure, and he gently released the imprisoned hand.

She spoke softly. "It is too soon for us to judge each other. I must be sure-oh, I must be sure of myself. Can you understand? Now, I must go in. No; do not ask me to stay-and let me go alone. I prefer it so. Good night, my comrade."

He stood up and let her pass. "Good night, my princess," he said, clearly and distinctly. She shot a swift glance into his eyes, smiled faintly and moved away.

Two days went by, but there was not a word of love passed between these two who waited for the fruit to ripen. They were never alone together. Always they were attended by the calm, keen eyed Mrs. Gaston.

On the third day he was convicted of duplicity. She went off for a walk alone. When she came in after an absence of at least two hours the girl went up to her room without so much as a word with him. Her face was flushed and she carried her head disdainfully. He was greatly puzzled.

The puzzle was soon explained. He waited for her on the stairway as she came down alone to dinner.

"You told me that your friends were not in Interlaken, Mr. Schmidt," she said coldly. "Why did you feel called upon to deceive me?"

He bit his lip. For an instant he reflected, and then gave an evasive answer. "I think I told you that I was alone in this hotel, Miss Guile. My friends are at another hotel. I am not aware that"- "I was morally certain that they were here. Today my suspicions were justified. I encountered Mr. Totten in the park beyond the Jungfraublick. He was very much upset. I can assure you, but he recovered with amazing swiftness. We sat on one of the benches in a nice little nook and had a long, long talk. He is a charming man. I have asked him to come to luncheon with us tomorrow and to bring Mr. Dank."

"Good Lord, will wonders never"-She laid her hand gently upon his arm and a serious sweetness came into her eyes. "Come," she said, "let us go in ahead ment later, clapping her hands.

cheeks were flushed. When she had finished she folded the sheets and stuck them back into the envelope without comment. One looking over her shoulder as she read, however, might have caught snatches of sentences here and there on the heavily scrawled page. They were such as these: "You had led me to hope;" * * * "for years I have been your faithful admirer." * * * "Nor have I wavered for an instant despite your whimsical attitude; * * * "there-fore I felt justified in believing that you were sincere in your determination to defy your father." And others of an even more caustic nature: "You are going to marry this prince, after all," * * * "Your father will be pleased to find that you are obedient." * * "If I were a prince with a crown and a debt that I couldn't pay;"

* "admit that I have had no real chance to win out against such odds," etc.

She faced Robin coolly. "It will be necessary to abandon our little luncheon for tomorrow. I am sorry. Still Mr. Totten informs me that he will be in Vienna shortly. The pleasure is merely postponed.'

"Are you in earnest about this trip by motor tomorrow morning?" demanded Robin darkly. "You surely cannot be"-

"I am very much in earnest," she said decisively. "Goodness, I know I shall not sleep a wink tonight."

"Nor I," said Robin gloomily. Suddenly his face lightened. A wild, reckless gleam shot into his eyes, and, to their amazement, he banged the table with his fist. "By Jove, I know what I shall do. I'll go with you!"

"No!" cried Bedelia, aghast. "I-I cannot permit it, Mr. Schmidt. Can't you understand? You-you are the man with whom I am supposed to be carrying on atrociously."

"Well, I can tell you flatly just what I intend to do," said he, setting his jaws. "I shall hire another car and keep you in sight every foot of the way. Where you go, I go." "Do you mean it?" she cried, a new thrill in her voice. "I intend to see you every day," he declared, "from now till the end of time."

"Really, Mr. Schmidt, you"-

"If there is one thing I despise beyond all reason, Bedelia, it is the name of 'Schmidt!' I wish you wouldn't call me by that name." "I can't just call you 'mister,'" she Continued next week.

The Game of "Second Letters."

At a party you can have a good deal of fun playing the game of "second letters." The players form a circle, and after all have heard the general subject of the game the starter begins by giving a word that suits the chosen subject. The person on the left then repeats the saying and gives a suitable word that begins with the second letter of the word that the first speaker gave.

To illustrate, "first names" is a general favorite as a subject. The starter begins, "My name is Anna, and I live at Annapolis."

N is the second letter of Anna, so the second person joins in with, "My name is Nora, and I live at Newark." The following list will show how names follow each other until they run out: Anna, Nora, Olive, Laura, Agnes, Grace, Rose, Olivia, Lucretia, U-out! Taking the name of a city with the personal name adds fun and demands much quickness of thought. The folowing, as overheard by a listener, gives an idea of the game:

"My name is Anna, and I live at Atleboro.'

"My name is Nancy, and I live at New Orleans." "My name is Alice, and I live at Albany." "My name is Lena, and I live at Los Angeles."

"My name is Elsie, and I live at"-"She's stuck! Out!" The master of ceremonies has said her say. On goes the game. Intent are eyes, ears, brains, ready to pounce upon the bit of information needed to continue the game. You will enjoy this game because it is good fun, and when it is over you will realize that you have gained something, too, for it is excellent memory the country's timber.

practice. And then there is the pleasant feeling that comes when you do not fail-you have done your part to keep the game going .-- Youth's Companion.

Game of "Ghosts."

A game that affords much amusement is called "ghosts." A player says a letter. He has in mind a word beginning with this letter. The second player adds a letter, also having a word in mind. This keeps on until a word is constructed. A player who ends a word becomes a third of a ghost. He can usually tell by the next to the last letter where it will end. Take, for instance, the word "delude." The player whose turn it is after the one who said "d" the second time usually can tell that the word is delude. Instead of becoming a third of a ghost, he will think and say "i," having in mind "deluding." When he says "i" probably a player will have his doubts as to whether there could be any word having "delude" for part of it. He challenges the player. When the player has a word the challenger becomes a third of a ghost. If he has not he becomes a "third." When a player becomes threethirds of a ghost (for each time he ends a word or violates a condition he becomes another third) he is "out." When he gets "out" he tries to make the ones in the game laugh or talk to him. If he succeeds they become a third of a ghost.

Very often a player unconsciously finishes a word. The word may start with "h." He will say "e," probably thinking of heroine. He has formed the word "he" and is a third of a ghost.

About Mammals.

Mammals are called so because they are milk giving animals. The teeth are interesting, differing a little in form in each class and each member of a class f animals.

We have grinders or motars for grinding food, pointed at the sides, or canine, and incisors or front teeth. Humans, who are prepared to eat anything, are omnivorous. A cow is herbivorous, and the cat. dog and lion are carnivorous.

A lion bites, but does not masticate, and the jaws, work up and down. A cow masticates or chews, moving the jaws from side to side.

Man masticates his food.

"Russian Scandal."

A very interesting game is "Russian scandal." The players sit in a long line or ring. The first, turning to the second, whispers very rapidly some remark or a brief story. The second, who may hear it distinctly, but probably does not, then whispers it as exactly as he can to the third player, and so on until the line is finished. The last player then whispers it to the first player, and the first player repeats his original remark to the company and follows it with the form in which it has just reached him. The result is always very amusing.

Lacked Imagination. "I have here an idea for a play," said the moving picture author to the producer. "In the first reel an oil tank blows up, in the second an entire railroad train falls into a gorge, in the third a huge steamer sinks at sea, in the fourth a volcanic eruption destroys a city, and in the fifth we have a battle calling for 10,000 supernumeraries."

"Entirely too small for me to fool with," said the producer, doing some play wouldn't cost mans than $5,000.000 to stage, and I'm not considering anything that involves an expenditure of less than $20,000,000. The trouble with you authors is that you have no imagination."-Judge.

Vermont and Michigan.

Wouldn't it seem funny if the wets should suddenly be found fighting in avor of local option in Ingham couny? Yet that is precisely what happened in Vermont, if the leaders of he prohibition campaign recently closed there with a local option vicory can be believed, says the Lansing fournal editorially.

Vermont's acceptances of local opion and rejection of state-wide proribition possibly requires interpretaion by those who know. Interpretaion is being given not only by ediors at a distance, like ourselves, but by liquor dealers. These last menioned are flooding the mails with eady-to-print editorial copy showing what a calamity Vermont missed by ejecting prohibition, and how signifient it is that Vermont should have deided in favor of local option.

We shall not press home the argunent locally on our friends, the opponents of local option. It really is too funny, that they should be fightng local option in Lansing and other Michigan cities while they, according o report, fought to have local option adopted in Vermont. But for the urther interpretation of the Vermont situation we might refer to the leaders of the dry cause.

They affirm that through the "great victory" of the wets in Vermont the whole state will have fewer saloons han are found today in the single Michigan city of Saginaw. Vermont has now 67, and may add a few more: Saginaw has 101. "The wets of the state rooted for local option with all the means at their command," aver the dry leaders in their statement.

Because the Green Mountain state for ages has been wedded to the old town meeting idea, it is further alleged, it was easy for the wets to frame arguments to show that if local local home rule would be reduced to a minimum.

The further and final explanation is given that the rural vote, on which the drys depended was snowbound in the Vermont mountain fastnesses. hence it could not be counted.

defeating prohibition "which does not prohibit" by demanding that the people save themselves for "personal iberty" and retail local option.

Will Michigan liquor dealers month hence argue for local option tion? Why not start it now and make t unanimous in Ingham county?

The Organization For Work.

Mobilization of the state wide army for a dry Michigan, began at Paw Paw in Van Buren county, the banner dry county of the state. Van Buren went dry in 1890 and has successfully withstood six separate assaults of the enemy. From Detroit to Duluth it is planned to have in every county, an organization run by an executive committee, with a separate chairman in each township for men and for women.

Wayne county supervisors attacked the constitutionality of the law on the ground that it removed millions of dollars worth of taxable property from their rolls and that Wayne county would not be sufficiently benefited inasmuch as the county was already heavily bonded for highway construe-

Judge Bird wrote the opinion declaring the law to be constitutional and his opinion was concurred in by Judges Moore, Stone, Steere and Person. Judge Brooke wrote a dissenting opinion, as did Judge Ostrander. The Ostrander opinion was concurred in by Judge Kuhn.

"It may well be assumed that the legislature gave heed to the growing demand among the people of the state for improved highways and concluded that the motor vehicles, which were largely responsibe for that demand, should bear the expense of the betterments, and accordingly imposed this form of contribution," said Justice Bird in his opinion "The question as to whether this tax should be in lieu of, or in addition to, all other forms of taxation, was one which appealed to the discretion of the legislature. Having exercised that discretion, it is not for the courts to declare that it did not execute it wisely and well."

Pay Up Day In China.

At the Chinese New Year, the houses and other buildings are decked with flowers and the streets are thronged with people who have come out to buy provisions, new clothes and gifts. One good New Year custom in China is that of settling up all debts before the old year has died out. A Chinaman who allows the New Year to dawn before he has settled with his creditors feels himself disgraced. If a Chinaman to whom money is owing is not there to receive it then he is debarred from pressing his claims for some months afterward. The New Year is kins of the Michigan' W. C. T. state Sunday School Association Mrs. Jennie E. Carley of Roch. er, music director. The schedule s far has included Paw Paw, Mar. II. Three Rivers, Cassopolis, Ben-Harbor, Kalamazoo, Hastings and ia, Greenville, Allegan, Manistee

Ludington. The flying squadron for eastern chigan consists of Edwin Simpson, troit district superintendent of the gue, Ex-Congressman J. D. Botkin Kansas, Dr. Lucy Kirk Peel of Ohio and J. A. Carroll of California, music director. Beginning May 1, county rallies have been held at Adrian, Howell, Owosse, Ann Arbor, Lapeer, Bay City and Gladwin.

Every home in Michigan will be visited during the campaign, every church member and every one of the 530,000 Sunday School members in the state will be active in the work.

The financial reports say the liquor business is "in a bad way" because of the wave of public opinion against the saloon. In Roger Babson's report for March, 1916, was this statement:

"Most industries are prospering, Among the few dull lines are liquors sold at retail, which continue comparatively bad almost everywhere, even in cities where prosperity is in full swing. Many distilleries and breweries are doing well on account of war orders for alcohol. But generally speaking this war business does not make up for loss of domestic consumption. Credit men should carefully watch such industries."

One of the powerful elements on the dry side appears in the Holland population of western Michigan. Both Reformed and Christian Reformed denominations who represent many thousands of the best Dutch ctizens in the state are endorsing the Anti-Saloon idea. A fact of much meaning is that the National Synods of both denominations meet this summer in Michigan. The Reformed Church Synod assembles at Holland in June and the Christian Reformed General Synod will meet in Grand Rapids. An indication of the sentiment among these people appears in the resolutions adopted by Classis Grand River of the Reformed Church meet. ing in Grand Rapids and representing a constituency of 14,000 members in 10 forty churches.

joy of living. The joy of living, we say, for it is firmly believed by the best experts in the mental life that more of spiritual depression, of hopelessness and disenergy enter life through the lungs than through any other channel. Likewise, breath dispels more doubts, more "blues," more melancholia, than any medicine could do. If tuberculosis were absolutely unknown, the experts good breathing for the other things which it accomplishes.

We saw last week how the body cannot use the blood that has once passed over the course, because of its impurities. We saw how the body could not live two minutes with the air that is now in it, because of the impurities that air has gathered up to expel. When you choke a man until he is black in the face, or smother him until life is extinct, you follow precisely the following, though he does it more slowly and with less violence, when he sent her during her illnes.

denies himself proper air, or breathes over and over again the air which he or others have already used. The expelled breath is poison. So poisonous that it must be gotten rid of out of the very world itself by ransmutation. If you could see the poisonous exnalations of even the most healthy person, you would quite understand this. If the exhaled breath were bueish in hue like some gases, you would quicky understand `this.

But there are other ways in which you may know it. You may discover something about the volume of the daughter of Kingston visited Mr. and preath exhaled by the individual, by observing people on frosty days. Notice the streams of steam that issue forth from mouth and nostrils Notice two people standing on the street talking—see how the two streams of steam meet and join. Watch this closely and you will get an idea of the facility Fairgrove, Mrs. Freeman of Akron, with which contagion is transmitted from one to another. That steam is Miss Nettie Colling and Warren Mcbreath-the poisonous atoms taken out of the blood by the lungs, and blown through the chimney of the body into the air.

If you want to test the quality of this exhalation, observe its effects on children in a close school room. Or make any of the numerous tests which may be made. The breath of a man exhaled into a glass of pure water has been shown to be so poisonous that the water thus contaminated, if injected into a rabbit, will cause marked and rapid depletion of vigor. Acting on the circulation, bad air causes headache. Acting on the nervous system, bad air causes drowsiness and inattention.

GEESE EASY TO RAISE. Plenty of Fresh Grass Necessary to the Well Being of Goslings.

I prefer geese to any other kind of fowl; they are so easy to rear, and mine have never had any diseases, writes a correspondent of the Farm and Fireside. I have never lost one gosting after it was out of the shell. Geese make good hatchers, but poor mothers. I dampen the eggs every other day during the last week before hatching. For twenty-four hours after hatching I do not feed the goslings anything. I

The Toulouse is the heaviest of the domestic geese. This breed was de-veloped in France. It was taken to England about 1840 and first appeared in America twenty years later. These fowls are massive in appearance and very domestic in habits. The plumage is gray, mark-ed with white. The geese shown are of the Toulouse breed.

then give them some stale bread dampened with sweet milk.

When three or four days old I let them out on the grass. They are never too young to eat grass.

it, or water.

I salt the feed slightly and mix in a tablespoonful of fine, sharp sand for each eight to twelve goslings. Until the goslings are four or five weeks old I feed three or four times daily.

I give the geese all the fresh water they can drink, and that is a lot.

For the first two days I keep them in boxes where they will be comfortable and also house them in boxes at night when they are small. I use wide boards to make pens, which can be easily moved so the young goslings can have fresh grass. The fresh grass is very important.

After the goslings are a month old fresh grass will furnish most of their living until it is time to fatten them at Thanksgiving. When fattening I just throw them some broken ears of corn and let them run to grass as usual. They need the grass and will fill up to their bills on it. NOVESTA.

VOTER CAN PUSH WORK ON

The Steady Cooperation Is Inspiring and Results Will Benefit Every Good Citizen of Michigan

Five points in Michigan history mark the progress of the fight against the saloon: statutory prohibition in 1853, constitutional prohibition defeated in 1887; local option begun in 1889, liquor laws amended in 1909, 1912, 1913 and the submission of constitutional prohibition in 1916. Statutory prohibition was adopted in 1853 and remained on the statute books until 1875 when it was replaced by the present license law. Prohibition by constitutional amend. ment was submitted to popular vote in April 1887. The issue had been troublesome for several campaigns in state politics. Leaders of the dominant party agreed that it could no longer be avoided. In a total vote was defeated by a majority of 5,645. In 1889 a local option bill was passed with the county as a unit. This law has been frequently amended and improved. Under its provision Van Buren county in 1890 was the first county in the state to vote out saloons and although several contests dampened with sweet milk, if I have all take an interest in it and try to ties, at different times, outlawed the saloons but owing to lax law enforce ments, due largely to serious defects in the law itself, all of them returned to the license column. In 1896 the Anti-Saloon league of Michigan was organized with W. R. Fox of Grand Rapids president and J. F. Brant of Ohio superintendent. During the twenty years passed, this organization, in co-operation with many other Anti-Saloon agencies and societies in the state has done heroic service for entire abolition of saloons for Michigan.

Through persistent co-operation of many forces allied against the saloon a total of forty-five counties was secured up to April 3rd, 1916. Since 1887 no legislature would consent to submit again a prohibition amendment to the constitution, but at the 1913 session the legislature agreed to permit the electors to vote on a prophsi tion so the constitution could be amended by the iniative and referen. dum as well as by the old way of direct submission after a two thirds

CASS CITY CHRONICLE, FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1916.

Why is the distance between the front wheels of a car greater at the top than at the bottom?

The reason for this is to make steering easier. The object of tipping the wheels in this manner is to bring the point of contact between the wheel and the ground in a vertical line below the axis of the steering knuckle. When the line of the center of the steering knuckle produced is coincident with the contact of the tire and the ground there is no tendency for the wheel to be thrown out of line when an obstruction is met on the road. On the other hand, were this point to be somewhat inside of the point of contact of the wheel and the ground there would be a tendency for the wheel to be turned about the steering knuckle whenever an obstruction was met, with the result that there would be an interference with the steering.

What is the difference in connecting the battery cells in series or in parallel?

When batteries are connected in series the positive poles of one cell are connected with the negative of the next, and so on. When in parallel all eighth inch thick to the top of the pis- People's State bank. the negatives are connected and all the | ton by riveting through the piston positives. Connecting in series gives head. the effect of adding the voltages, while connecting in parallel adds the amperage. Thus if six one volt cells were connected in series the result would be a six volt current, while in parallel the voltage would be about one.

Will a self starter operating from a storage battery of six volts and eighty amperes work from a dry cell battery -that is, four dry cells that make six volts and about twenty-five to thirty amperes?

No. Dry cells are not intended for such heavy discharges as the starter requires. A dry battery would not last long enough to pay for the trouble. much less the cost. Storage batteries are rated in ampere hours, while the dry battery rating of simply amperes means that they will deliver current of their rated capacity for an indefinitely short time. Your storage battery will give you eighty ampere hours, say ten amperes for eight hours.

Has a cut-out any material effect on the power of a car?

With most cars the use of the muffler cut-out increases slightly the power to be derived from the motor. How much increase may be obtained depends so much upon the condition of the muffler and arrangement of the cut-out that no exact figures may be given. One should expect at least 5 or 10 per cent increase in an old car.

In cone clutches I notice there are two different types where the action of the spring is in opposite directions when it engages in the flywheel. Can you give the name of each type and explain their action?

The types you refer to are the inverted cone and ordinary type. In the former type the spring is on the inside and in the latter on the outside of the clutch itself. gives this trouble is that the intake and exhaust valves open and close at the same time, the theory being that the incoming charge of fresh gas blows the burnt gas out of the combustion chamber. However, at certain motor speeds the combustion of the charge is not entirely complete when the intake valve opens, with the result that the incoming charge of fresh gas is prematurely ignited and fires back into the carburetor. Usually a two cycle motor runs smoothly at one or two rates of speed, but is prone to backfire at all other speeds, especially when the motor is accelerated or retarded

Can you give me some information on the care of tires?

The most important thing is to keep them pumped up to correct inflation all the time. Never run in car tracks nor take bumps at high speed. Avoid running too close to curbs, as you are apt to snag the tires against the rough stones. Be careful to avoid sharp stones in the roadway, and examine the treads frequently for cuts and stone bruises. Remove any stones or other foreign matter that may work itself into small cuts in the casings. Such are apt to get farther and farther under the tread the longer they are allowed to remain, and this loosens the tread disastrously. Never let the car stand in water if it can be prevented. and avoid a garage floor that is covered with grease and oil. If you are going to store the car or leave it standing in the garage for any length of time jack up the wheels so that the car weight is off the tires. Never run on a flat tire. This is likely to chew up. the inner tube and rim cut and other wise damage the casing.

Before starting I open the needle valve two turns and open throt-tle about half. What is the matter? What might cause knocking when my car is descending a hill and the spark visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. is fully retarded?

The question is rather broad, as you do not state whether the knock is one from the motor or whether it is coming from the rear end or gear set. If D. H. McColl. in the motor, it may be caused by the looseness of some part. The bearing City spent Sunday at the home of Anends may be flattened, causing the crank shaft to move back and forth slightly. There may be excessive play in the driving mechanism, causing slapping back and forth of the clutch unit. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patrick. The flywheel may be loose.

Can you give me a formula for mix-ing sulphuric acid, nitric acid and water for cleaning brass parts?

The best mixture of sulphuric acid and nitric acid for cleaning brass parts is a 50 per cent of each solution without any water. For regular cleaning purposes this should be kept in a five gallon jar with an earthenware cover to prevent the fumes coming off. It is best to have the jar seated in a wood tray and perhaps water flowing through the wood tray so as to dilute the acid in case the jar should break. When dipping brass articles into this bath the utmost care must be taken not to inhale the fumes, as they are almost fatal, and every care must be taken in handling the solution. It is not a bad plan to put a half handful of table salt in a four gallon mixture. In using a cleaning dip of this nature, which will cut off spots of nickel, etc., be sure that the parts to be dipped are perfectly dry. They should be cleaned in gasoline and entirely free from water, otherwise a pitting action will take place.
