SIGN-BOARD "EARLE MEMORIAL HIGHWAY"

SENATOR SCULLY WANTS TO DO HIS BIT ON EARLE DAY.

Looks Forward to August 24 as Date of One of the Greatest Events in the Thumb.

Good roads boosters who pian to make their annual hike to Cass City this year to witness the unveiling of the Horatio S. Earle monument on August 24 will be guided on the run from Detroit to Cass City by sign boards which will designate the "Earle Memorial Highway." This information is gleaned from letters written by Senator Chas. B. Scully of Almont to the Cass City Business Men's Association and to Hon. H. S. Earle. Here are the letters:

Dear Friends: I am enclosi

I am enclosing herewith a copy of a letter written my esteemed friend, Hon. H. S. Earle relative to sign-boarding the line of road from Detroit to Cass City in time for your big event on the 24th of August.

I am looking forward to this time as it being one of the greatest events to happen in the Thumb of Michigan, and I trust that all conditions may be most favorable on that date to fitingly celebrate the occasion.

If you should think of anything that I might do to assist you in any way, I will be glad to add my "bit" and you may consider that I am at your com-

With best wishes for a complete and successful day to you all, I am Sincerely yours, CHAS. B. SCULLY.

FOR MOUNTAIN WEAR.

The Kind of Sweater That Gives Best Service.

A STICK OF CANDY.

This silk sweater of maroon and white stripe and natty belt is especially appropriate for the girl going on her vacation. Immense chic is added by the collar and cuffs of white angora. Slip-on sweaters are still the thing.

HERE'S A NEW FISH.

Washington Bureau Recommends the Cod's Cousin of the Lakes.

The secretary of the department of commerce announces that the bureau of fisheries has discovered another new edible fish that in the past has been unjustly neglected. It is the burbet and is being advertised by the bureau of fisheries by illustrated cards, on which is printed a picture of the fish and this legend: "The cod's cousin from the great lakes-practically no waste. Ready to cook. Recommended by the United States bureau of fish-

The burbet flourishes in the great lakes and is plentiful there. The fish is known in some localities as the "eel pout" and "eeling," and "ling" and "cusk." It is prepared for use by skinning instead of scaling. It has few bones, and the flesh is firm, white, flaky and of good flavor. It ships well. A bulletin for free distribution giving information regarding the fish and recipes for preparing it has been issued by the bureau.

THE PEPLUM BLOUSE.

This Natty Garment For Comfort and

To those whose need or habit it is to dress quickly the peplum blouse is a boon indeed, for no intricate adjustment and fastening of shirt and blouse and belt is required. In the matter of convenience the peplum blouse is in this respect on a par with the popular middy, yet having a trigness and smartness of style about it of which the middy blouse can make no boast.

Comfort, too, and ease and grace of movement are assured in these attractive blouses, and there are many different types developed in a variety of materials to suit the many occasions upon which they may be worn.

Pleasingly mannish and businesslike in appearance is the shirt blouse with peplum extension, having the bosom front and shaped sleeves finished with straight cuffs, following the lines of the regulation shirt worm by men.

Masculine Comfort. A man once said that the things he looked for in a room were a comfortable chair, a strong writing table and a good light. That does not seem much for a man to want, but how many men get it? The girls and women of the household decorate and furnish their rooms to please themselves, but it is not often that very much thought or trouble is spent on the men's rooms. One reason that they don't think more about it is that as most men have these bother to voice their opinion about what they might have at home.

Every one who has a boarding house is rather anxious to rent the rooms to men, as they are proverbially less trouble and easier to please than women. How much more easily the rooms might attract men if they should bear in mind the three things this man said were essential to his happiness.

Experts Devising Plan to Comoensate For Injuries In War.

BENEFIT FOR DEPENDENTS

Scheme Will Make It a Tax on the Whole People, Says Insurance Man. The Treasury, War, Navy and Commerce Departments Are Working on It to Avoid Evils of Pension System.

Following a conference in Washington with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, a committee of prominent insurance men have drawn up a plan for pensions or compensation for casualties in the war, which will be submitted to congress.

The details are to be worked out in co-operation with the secretary of the treasury and officials of the war, navy and commerce departments, as well as the Council of National Defense. It was said they will conformeas closely as possible to the principle of the workmen's compensation law.

To give some idea to soldiers, their families and the public of what the government, aided by the insurance men, was trying to work out, the head of one of the large companies, who deprecated any idea of self advertisement and therefore did not wish to be quoted by name, outlined the basis on which the experts are working.

"The government," he said, "is interested in putting something through in this matter that will be a happy solution of a difficult problem. It decided to appoint a committee of actuaries, with the agreement that the insurance companies would help the government. It is not life insurance that is sought. It is casualty insurance or, better still, it is compensatory insurance.

"That Uncle Sam is a great big employer was the idea finally agreed on by the insurance and casualty 'chemists' down in Washington, and the proposed insurance will in effect be a death benefit for the dependents of those who succumb in action. To Avoid Evils of Old System.

"The government, you see, is very eager to do something to avoid pensioning as it has formerly existed, to avoid the evils of the old pension sys-What it wants to work out is compensatory insurance. Age has nothing to do with it. It isn't life insur-

"Of course the companies might have gone into a pool or a bureau, and the government would be sending out checks after proof, but the great desire now is to simplify the whole matter.

"In short, it is proposed to put the pension plan on a workman's compensation basis. Of course it is up to congress, but I think it will go right through without a hitch. Mr. McAdoo stated what was wanted on behalf of the president, and the companies are willing to lend to the government their expert service, their statistics, etc. They have very recent statistics from Canada, where a great deal of insurance is carried.

"The government and the representatives are in co-operation to develop the simplest possible plan, such a one as is being carried out by big business through the workmen's compensation.

"The workmen's compensation law interposes between the workmen and the hazards of labor. By this plan it is desired to interpose between the soldier and the hazards of war. The plan when finally worked out may be varied, according to the condition of the family of a soldier. It might be a matter of compensation by install-

Will Be a Tax on Whole People.

"The principle of the workmen's compensation is being recognized by the United States in this war. The government says: 'We'll meet the necessary tax to compensate, and it will be a tax on the whole people. It will be just the same as if the problem arose in a bridge factory, a shoe factory or on a railroad. We'll tax ourselves. Here's a whole army going up against these hazards, and some must meet

"Such acceptance of this principle amounts to a social evolution. It would be a victory to have it accepted without debate, and with this compensation principle granted and accepted the ground is covered for this war. It will help volunteering, for the volunteers nearly all have dependents and the drafted have not. It simply shows what a great democracy does for itself in this emergency.

"Such a system would supplement a soldier's per diem. His dependents would get his compensatory damages. That is why the government wants the plan crystallized in advance. The plan will probably be uniform, without regard to previous occupation."

Mother's Doll Story

May's Pet Lion

There was once upon a time a very good little girl, who owned a pet rag doll lion. His name was Leo, and, just like Mary's lamb, everywhere May went her Leo was sure to go.

One day, when they were out playing near the big road, along came a great big dog and barked at May. Of course she was much afraid and ran like anything to get over the fence. She could not have been any more scared if it had been a big cow that came at her.

Leo ran like anything too. And when May had scrambled over the fence into the next lot Leo stood on top of the fence and waited for the great, big dog. Now, real lions are much bigger than dogs, of course. But Leo was only a pet rag doll lion. Still, he bravely waited. And just as the big dog leaped upon the fence to jump after May, Leo nipped a little piece right out of his left ear.

"Ki-yi!" yelled the great, big dog. "I guess I will not scare the little girl any more today, after all." So he ran off home, just as fast as May and Leo did.

STOUT STYLES.

What Some Women Look Best In Just Now.

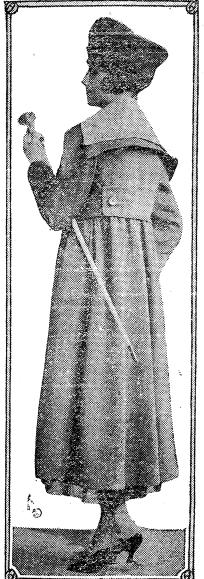

The outlook is not nearly so dark for the stout woman as it used to be. A great nany kind souls in the world of manufacturers, tailors and designers seem to have taken pity on her, with the result that there are almost as many attractive styles for her now as there are for her slimmer sisters. As the summer fashion promonade in a prominent shop there were two models exploiting styles for stout women, and no thin woman viewing the fashion show dared to smile at the large ladies promenading up and down among the lissome and wand like creatures on whom Paris clothes were so truly Parisian, for very compassion of the appalled faces above comfortable double chins, the faces of women who perhaps for the first time saw themselves as others see them. No stout woman dreams how she actually looks, and it is rather an unpleasant shock to find how very stout some other woman appears in the gown she has her eye on. Stout women look over the fashion magazines and imagine themselves in a fancied costume, and they never imagine themselves quite as stout as their dressmakers know they are. Perhaps they are happier, not knowing-at any rate one feels sure that after seeing the gown of their dreams on another figure of equal or superior avoirdupois they will pass up the model in favor of something else to which their fancy may still cling with dreams. There are several things, however, that the stout woman has learned-not to select models of stiff, glistening fabric, not to choose overtrimmed bodice or skirts with ruffles. Draperies are the things for the stout figure, soft draperies that fall in long lines. Chiffon s an ideal fabric and crepe de chine with its clinging texture and richness without the luster of satin. Soutache braiding makes an admirable trimming when applied in long lines and panels; buttons also-when they are not too glittering. The stout woman has often very pretty foot and ankle and should make the most of dainty footwear, for there are all the smart and attractive styles in buttoned boots and slippers, and in this field of fashion may she glean to heart's content.

The Mysterious Sun Spot

He who nection between the sun spot and the built the house referred to became one of the most prominent men of his time. Richard Granville was not his name. but in bringing out the antecedents of his descendants it is a far safer name to use than his own. He began life as a sailor, visiting every country where there was trading to be done, and a few of his older slaves, who were house servants and thus enabled the more readily to become conversant with his secrets, handed down a tradition that their master started his fortune in piracy.

Be this as it may, up to the middle of the last century his descendants did not deny that much of his money had been made in the slave trade. In his old age his conscience troubled him. and those who were nearest him said tion for his misdeeds. He had a statue as the statue. Different generations of his descendants discussed the statue and wondered at the whim which led their progenitor to erect it. One thing about it excited special attention. Every morning the sun, shining in upon it, strikes the eyepiece of the sextant and, passing through the tube, casts a solar image on the opposite wall. The track of this round spot of light changes with the season, traversing a slightly different nath each day. There is another thing that puzzled the owners of the Granville estate. The only inville's birth. And not only is the date given, but the bour and minute.

Of all topics connected with the statue probably the giving of this minute information was most discussed. No one who saw it could remember having seen any memorial giving either hour and minute of a death. But one generation after another passed away, and no plausible reason for either the statue or its singular inscription was Probably the statement had been read a hundred times by Richard Granville's descendants without making any marked impression. But Colonel Granville read it at a time when the negro slave had been just emancipated and called, in all the ignorance induced by his condition, to citizenship. The meaning of the statement, "The time would not come for perhaps one or two centuries," was plain to him. More than one century had passed and brought the changed conditions. This led Colonel Granville, who was eager to help the negro, now that he had become a freeman, onward and upward. crue from such a bequest as was mentioned in the letter.

secretly carried out his intention, leaving a fund for the purpose that would turn up a century or two after his death? And might not the statue have something to do with its location?

Though he did not know it, he had made a mental leap bridging a century since his ancestor's death. He determined to make a study of the statue and everything that pertained to it. Every morning he devoted an hour to sitting before the bronze, looking at it fancied that by thus mentally dwelling upon it through some spiritual process the secret would be imparted to him. The inscription engaged his attention but he could make nothing of it. And yet there must have been an object in putting it there alone, and especially with the hour and minute of birth.

One morning Colonel Granville was sitting, as usual, studying the statue. The sun spot was crawling slowly over idea came to him. Might not this sun

But the slave trade erything, after all, is but a link in an date of birth on the statue?

Colonel Granville sprang from his chair. He was confident that he had made an important discovery. What that discovery would lead to was another matter. He had little expectation that it would work out his first conceptions which had come from the letter he had read, but he hoped it might solve the mystery of the statue and the date inscribed upon it. He was not long in inferring that on the day, hour and minute recorded on the statue the sun spot would rest on a part of the wall which would give some information or injunction intended by the man who had erected the statue.

The inscription gave the year, which could be of no importance since the sun traverses the same apparent path that he desired to make some repara- annually; the day, June 17; the hour, 10 o'clock, and the minute, the twenof himself made of bronze and set it ty-fifth. The eclonel, too impatient to defer investigation for what seemed to him so long a period, was eager to get a computer to come and calculate where the spot would be on the given day. But he knew of no one at hand who would be able to make the calculation. Besides, he had no desire to suffer the obloquy such an act would cast upon him, for when he mit that no more chimerical idea could enter the brain of man.

Every day after that the colonel watched the the hour and minute of a birth or the movement of the spot with keen interest, and at the end of a month he could calculate pretty nearly where it would fall on the 17th of June. However, he waited till the date came round.

Now, on the 17th of June the sun stands very high, practically at the time, fought for the maintenance of highest point during the year. Consequently the spot was at the lowest point. In fact, it rested on the floor. The colonel bored a hole in the floorand one of those who traced authority ing, inclining it from the sextant to for slavery from the Bible. GERERAL KORNLOFF NEW IDOL OF ALL THE RUSSIANS Hero of Successful Offensive In Galicia Was Born In a Log Cabin.

Russia is ringing with the name of the latest hero of the war, Lieutenant General L. G. Korniloff, victor of Galicia, whose astonishing feats first proved that the new advance is no mere flash in the pan. General Korniloff is the most daring, chivalrous and scholarly officer in the army. For a romantic rise from humble origin Russian history has only one parallel -that of Michel Vassilievitch Lomonosof, fisherman's son, poet, philosopher, creator of the modern Russian language, in the first half of the eighteenth century.

From log cabin to general is the literal text of the chronicle of General Korniloff's career. Born forty-six years ago, son of a need stricken Karnalinsk Cossack in western Siberia, who later reared a large family on a pittance gained as the village clerk, young Korniloff early began rough forest work. At the age of nine he received his first instruction. When barely thirteen he by his own exertions and all night studies qualified to enter the Siberian Cadets' corps, largely composed of sons of local men of affairs. Thanks again to his own efforts this indomitable Siberian pioneer character gained free training at the Michailovsk Artillery school, where his amazing mathematical faculties brought approval from the authorities, even though he was suspected, with reason, of being a secret revolutionary.

Next General Korniloff was an officer in the Guards and, being penniless. was obliged to serve in Turkestan. Divers Get to Treasure Ship After Years of Vain Effort

Recovered From the Pewabic, Sunk In Lake Huron In 1865. Many Skeletons In Hold

~00********

After lying for more than half a century on the rocks and clay that form the bottom of Lake Huron off Thunder | Wells D. Walbridge, J. T. Whiting and Bay island, south and east of Alpena, the treasure stored in the hold of the steamer Pewabic, sunk Aug. 9, 1865, in waters far beyond the depth at which the diver hitherto has been able to work, is now being brought to the surface safely and without trouble, says the Detroit Free Press.

With the raising of a "clam" load of relics from the long sunken steamer, came at once the breaking of a world's record in deep sea salvage, the fruition of the three years' efforts of a small party of Toledoans and Detroiters to prove deep sea salvage possible and the end of a story that was already treading on the border land of inland seas legend.

Lives Given In Search.

For the Pewabic is a treasure ship in truth. Men have given their lives to reach her treasure in vain. Fortunes have been wasted in the efforts to reach the prize cargo 180 feet under the surface of the water. Now her treasure-pure copper-is coming up. Some of it passed Detroit recently on the way to Toledo, together with a mass of other relics from the long lost vessel.

In the hold of the Pewabic lie nearly 300 tons of copper, worth $200,000 or more at the present market. Besides the copper, there are several hundred and blue colorings of cotton goods tons of pig iron. What else of value lies beneath Thunder bay waters is sion. They were as bright as the day conjectural. There was a story that they were purchased. there was $30,000 or $40,000 of specie in the boat's express safe, but this is denied by Captain George P. McKay of Cleveland, now treasurer of the Lake Carriers' association, who was master of the vessel when she sank.

There is also a story of a belt owned by a woman passenger, which was jet bracelets and haircombs in fashion said to contain a large diamond and a large sum of money.

Divers Find Skeletons.

It is a fact that one of the passengers, who was saved, offered a reward of $1,000 for the recovery of his trunk. His name has been long since forgot-

In the hold of the vessel divers found a number of skeletons.

The successful attack upon the most powerful of all barriers to deep sea work - water pressure - has been brought about by the "armored diving suit," constructed on novel lines by B. F. Leavitt of Toledo. Leavitt made his "suit" more than a diver's suit.

It is in reality almost a "submarine." Constructed of phosphor bronze, it carries its own air supply, condensed. sufficient for a four hour stay under water. What this means in divers' work may be best understood by explaining that at seventy-five feet, the limit for practical work by the present day diver, a human being can stand the pressure for about fifteen minutes. Up on Thunder bay the men going down to the Pewabic descend nearly three times the hitherto practical depth and remain four hours. At seventyfive feet the diver heretofore could move about very little. In the new armored incasement the diver can scarcely move at seventy-five feet. The pressure is insufficient to counterbalance the great weight of his suit. At 150 feet he begins to move freely. Projecting from the Leavitt suit and working in water tight sockets are two steel fingers, manipulated by the hand, posed of flexible copper bands covered

Three divers reached her. One was brought up dead. Another came back with his lungs burst, and the third was brought to the surface a maniac.

Leavitt in a demonstration on Grand Traverse bay descended 360 feet, or 136 feet deeper than did the F-4 divers, and came to the surface feeling as well as when he descended. He remained at that depth forty-five min-

The future is too clouded with uncertainty to warrant predictions, but the work on the Pewabic seems to indicate that untold wealth will be raised from the bottom of ocean and inland sea. The great lakes alone will yield fortunes.

Along the jaws of sawtooth reef, off Keeweenaw peninsula, Lake Superior, he scores of cargoes of iron and conper. Year after year boat after boat with Minnesota's wealth of iron and Michigan's wealth of copper has sunk in Lake Superior.

Many of them lie less than 100 feet down. Lake Huron has scores of wrecks that, if they can be located, will yield fortunes. There's the old Colburn, sunk in 1872 near Port Huron, with copper that is now worth half a million dollars.

The Pewabic was sunk fifty-two years ago in a collision with the old steamer Meteor, well known for a number of years later. The Pewabic > was owned by the Lake Superior Transportation company, consisting of L. McKnight, all of Detroit and all of whom died many years ago. On her way from Duluth to Buffalo the Meteor rammed her.

> She had on board 150 passengers and a crew of thirty. One hundred and twenty-five persons were drowned. Captain McKay was thrown into the water and was picked up by a boat after the steamer sank.

The collision occurred six and a half miles south and east of Thunder Bay island, about fourteen miles from Al-

Because of the depth of water the boat sank below all currents and storm disturbances and has remained more than half a century on the exact spot where she went down.

The Leavitt diver reported she rested on clay and rock, on even keel, with her rigging and deck structure intact. He was able to make his way through the steamer's saloon and cabins with ease, and he sent up for souvenirs one "clam" load of objects that lay at hand. Among these were numerous flue silk and broadcloth garments of fifty years ago.

Old Time Fabrics Endure.

Despite its submersion under 180 feet of water for fifty-two years, a silk gown when dried apparently was almost as good as when the waters closed over the steamer. The crimson were undimmed by their long immer-

A peculiar condition marked woolen fabrics, however. The material that comprised the woof had disappeared, leaving the warp as small meshed netting, but in good condition.

Several watches, an ancient revolver, coins of dates prior to the civil war, of the period, square toed shoes and slippers of that day, the "gentlemen's boots" affected by the dandies-there must have been several on the Pewabic-black silk handmade lace, checks from the Pewabic's baggage room, door keys and locks with the steamer's name stamped upon them, steamer silver and other articles were sent up.

Old Daguerreotype Unharmed.

The silver is badly oxidized. Gold articles were scarcely tarnished. Adaguerreotype in a gold frame, probably picture of a passenger named F. W. Ludlow, was as distinct as the day it was made, the picture being unharmed. A gold stamped card case marked with the name F. W. Ludlow was also brought up, and it may be that if victims of the wreck have relatives alive some of them may yet recover relics of those who went down.

"We have been successful. That is all we care to say about the operations now," said Margaret C. Goodman, formerly of Detroit, who organized the company, is a director and was in Detroit in charge of the shipment sent to Toledo on the steamer City of Mackinuc.

"While we demonstrated last year that deep sea salvage was possible by descending 360 feet in Traverse bay, we were not prepared to proceed with the Pewabic salvage until this summer. The work is now well under

The history of attempts to reach the Pewabic's copper treasures constitutes story of tragedies. Because of the depth in which the vessel sank the owners at once abandoned her to the insurance company. The company late in 1865 sent Billy Pike, a famous diver of those days, in charge of an expedition to attempt to recover the copper.

Two Divers Die.

Pike went down, and when he failed to signal for a rise after some time had passed he was brought up dead from the terrific pressure. The company made no further effort to reach the copper. In 1880 stories of the Pewabic's wealth caused the organization of several expeditions, and two or three divers lost their lives between 1880 and 1884.

The next effort was made in 1891. and a party from Ashland, Wis., made repeated attempts to reach the wreck with divers. One did. He died. Next the American Wrecking and Salvage company of Milwaukee tried, but with a specially constructed diving bell, capable of holding several men and permitting a considerable movement. Five men in the bell were killed, and he company gave up its efforts. Since then the lure of the Pewabic's copper fortune has failed to overcome the fear of the depths until Leavitt's apparatus was demonstrated. Today calm weather appears to be the only requisite condition for the recovery of the copper. Leavitt's diver reported that the white oak of which the vessel was built was rotted only to a depth of not more than one inch.

AMERICA TO HER ALLIES

I send my men in khaki With singing on their lips-My engineers and artisans. My captains and their ships But yet another sending Shall greet your lifted glance, When the eagles of America Are on the wing to France.

My flerce white eagles. They shall gather in their might.
In hundreds and in thousands
They shall circle for the flight With wings that bear the lightning, With eyes that pierce the night.

Mv soldiers and my sailors Shall prove their wrath and will, My engineers and artisans Shall serve you of their skill. But yet a greater service

The four winds shall advance, When the eagles of America Are on the wing to France.

My fierce, white eagles, They shall gather for the feast, Like a swift cloud of judgment They shall turn them to the east, And God shall steel their talons
For rending of the beast.

TRICKS OF THE TRENCHES WHICH SAVE THOUSANDS

Dummy Soldiers and Feints Fool the Enemy.

There is an old saying that there are tricks in all trades. While arms can scarcely be called a trade, it has, according to Captain Leslie Vickers, author of "Training For the Trenches," innumerable tricks of its own, which have been responsible for the saving of thousands of lives. Captain Vickers outlines them in the thirteenth chapter of his little manual, that headed "Tricks For the Trenches."

"One of the best ruses is to let the enmy get hold of fake orders. These can be placed on bodies immediately after an action, and there will be a good chance of the enemy accepting them as genuine.

"Making elaborate preparations for an attack in one spot and then actually attacking from another point when his reserves have been drawn to the first point also used to work well.

"In the trenches it was sometimes necessary to move about the few men that we had and to keep them firing, first in one place and then in another, to convey the impression that we were in considerable force.

"Ruses had to be adopted to discover snipers. On one occasion I needed to find a sniper who had just killed three of my men and was such an excellent shot that he broke my periscope. For this purpose I made a dummy man out of sandbags and had a soldier put him cautiously above the parapet (head only) while I observed from a neighboring bay. I detected him from the dust that his bullet raised from his parapet, and a few well aimed artillery shots put him and his loophole out of business. My poor dummy was badly wounded in the process.

"The Turks in Gallipoli used to paint some of their snipers a green color and send them between the lines among the small bushes.

"A pretended retreat will sometimes lure the enemy from his trenches to destruction. "Sending out to draw fire while careful reconnoissance work is being done at another spot will sometimes find him off guard. "In short, the whole business is to 'get the enemy's goat.' Keep him guessing. Wear him down with worrying. Break his nerve and spoil his sleep, that his physical resistance may be weakened. On the other hand, learn be weakened. On the other hand, learn to estimate the intention of the enemy.

Do not underrate him. In all cases and under all circumstances follow out the excellent motto of the hoy souts—Be excellent motto of the boy scouts—'Be Prepared."

Small men make as good soldiers as big men in the revised opinion of the war department, which has instructed war department, which has instructed recruiting stations to open the ranks of the regular army to men who are no more than five feet one inch in height and weigh only 110 pounds.

The order was issued on the basis or a recommendation made by Surgeon General Gorgas, who advised that good men were being kept out by the minimum height and weight limit of five feet four inches and 120 pounds.

As a matter of fact, however, recruiting officers had been instructed not to enforce rigidly the height and weight minimum limits, and there are a considerable number now in the army who are below the five feet four requirement.

The new orders will have a wide effect in national guard recruiting and probably in selections for the national army. Regular army standards govern both services in a general way.
