PLAN TO INCREASE CAPITAL TO $100,000

FARM PRODUCE CO. DESIRES TO ADD LUMBER YARD TO HOLDINGS.

Directors Call Meeting of Stockholders Who Are Asked to Increase Capitalization of Company.

Directors of The Farm Produce Co. have called a meeting of the stockholders of that company for Thursday afternoon, Oct. 30, for the purpose of increasing the capital stock of the company, declaring a stock dividend from surplus earnings with a view of adding a lumber and planing mill industry to the company's holdings and to amend the by-laws of the association.

The officials of the company have been contemplating for some time the addition of a lumber stock and the erection of lumber sheds on their property between their elevators and the Nestle's Food Co. plant and stockholders in the Cass City Lumber and Coal Co. have recently offered to sell their lumber yard and planing mill property to the Farm Produce Co. The directors of the latter believe that this purchase would be a wise move as it would confine the profits of the lumber business to one concern instead of dividing it between two and as many of the members of the Lumber Company are also stockholders in the Farm Produce, it was agreed that stockholders in the Lumber Company were to take a portion of the purchase price in new stock to be issued by The Farm Produce Co., in the event the deal was consummated.

The plan of the directors of The Farm Produce Co. is to increase their capital stock to $100,000, with $80,000 paid in. The company now has a paid-in capital of $20,000 and a surplus of $20,000. The issue of the 100 per cent stock dividend from the surplus earnings would bring the paid-up capital to $40,000. Stockholders in the Lumber Company are expected to take in the neighborhood of $11,000, which will leave $29,000 in new stock to be sold. The Farm Produce directors have had several offers of investors to take liberal slices of this new stock, but they believe that present stockholders in the company are entitled to the first opportunity and wish to place as much of this as possible among the farmers. This stock will be offered pro rata to the present stockholders.

To increase the capital stock of the association, it is necessary to secure a two-thirds vote of the stockholders and officers of the company are urging every stockholder to be present or to send a signed proxy to be voted on Oct. 30.

The Farm Produce Co. was incorporated and commenced business in Cass City nine years ago and has been very successful. Charter members of the company have received more than their original investments in dividends declared during that period.

CASS CITY DEFEATED DECKERVILLE 52-7

ADDED SECOND VICTORY FRIDAY TO GAMES PLAYED LAST WEEK.

Up-to-date Locals Have Edge on Crowell for Championship of Thumb.

The Cass City high school team added a second victory in the games played last week by defeating Deckerville on the latter's grounds Friday afternoon, at a 52-7 score.

The locals found the Deckerville gridiron rather slippery and in the first half lacked their usual pep and ginger. Their opponents put up a strong fight and played fast. Both teams were evenly matched in weight and at the end of this period the game stood 21-7.

Cass City put up better team work in the second half and all the fellows displayed stronger foot ball ability. One touchdown showed remarkable and quick work. Brooker received Deckerville's kick-off, and assisted by splendid interference work on the part of his teammates, made 50 yards and a touchdown. In this half, four touchdowns were made in seven minutes by the locals. Only three were counted however, because of dissatisfaction on the part of the Deckerville team and its supporters over one of them.

Friday's line-up for Cass City: McIntyre and Hutchinson, ends; Bigelow and J. C. Hutchinson, guards; Craft and Colwell, tackles; Cathcart, center; Gowen, quarter back; Pinney, left and Harris right half; Brooker, full back.

Crowell is out for the Thumb championship and is putting up a strong game and Cass City hopes to arrange a contest here with this team in the near future. The locals up-to-date seem to have the edge on Crowell for the championship honor. Recent games among leading teams in the Thumb show these results: Cass City defeated Deckerville 52-7; Deckerville defeated Sandusky 8-6; Deckerville defeated Bad Axe 2-0; Cass City defeated Brown City 54-0; Crowell defeated Brown City 20-0; Sandusky defeated Marlette 17-6.

Cass City plays Bay City Eastern at Bay City tomorrow. Deckerville plays at Cass City October 24.

CANDIDATE FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR

SEN. CHAS. B. SCULLY IS IN THE RACE WITH VERY BRIGHT PROSPECTS.

Prominent Member of All Agricultural Organizations in Community.

Senator Charles B. Scully of Almont announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the office of Lieutenant Governor.

Mr. Scully is a two-term member of the Michigan Senate and is President pro tem. He has worked on the insurance and elections committees two terms and also been a member of the committees on taxation, executive and industrial schools.

He has always favored measures that interest the rural communities, including the small towns and villages; has been a pioneer worker in the interest of good roads and is affiliated with all of the agricultural organizations.

He has also been a strong advocate of Women Suffrage, supporting the Damon bill of equal rights for women for presidential electors and made the first speech on the floor. He also was a member of the conference held in Detroit to launch the constitutional amendment giving them equal rights.

Speaker Tom Reer of the state house of representatives appears to be Mr. Scully's most formidable opponent for the coveted place, but at this time the Senator feels assured that he easily stands 50-50 with the Speaker in the matter of preferment.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN MAINTAINING ROADS

Roads over Which Road Drag Is Used Frequently Prove Best.

From Crowell Jeffersonian.

For many years the Wildcat road has been rightly termed the worst road in the county. The heavy clay land over which it travels make it bad any time, but particularly bad during wet weather or immediately after a rain. The rains of last Sunday were about as heavy as any we have had this year and the Wildcat was on Monday morning as slippery and full of ruts as it well could be. By Wednesday night this road for at least five miles south was as smooth as a floor. This was accomplished by the maintenance man by the use of a small grader and it shows what good results can be accomplished with a very little work. It was a distinct shock to drive off the Wildcat and go east over the Galbraith line at Amadore as the "floor" at once became a series of holes, ruts and bumps that would make any driver believe that dynamite had been used to do the roadwork and that no leveling had been done after the road had been blown up. This continued for a ways to be replaced with the regulation country road and then another stretch of dynamiting south of the Wright schoolhouse. If those in charge of the highways would but learn the lesson shown on the Wildcat there would be better highways and less money wasted in tearing up roads and making them almost impassable until another year's road work is available. If those living on the Wright road had but put their names on for a couple of hours they would not be obliged to bump over hills and hollows. Use common sense and road drags, gentlemen, and have better roads.

MEMBERSHIP OF POST HAS REACHED 20

The membership of the American Legion Post at Cass City has been increased to 20 members and Eugene Schwaderer was chosen a delegate Friday evening to represent the Post at the state meeting which was held in Grand Rapids Oct. 13-15.

Another meeting of the Post will be held Saturday evening, Oct. 18, in the basement of the Cass City Bank when a name will be chosen and other business transacted.

TURN CLOCKS BACK OCT. 26 AT 1 A. M.

General uncertainty as to when the clocks of the nation may be turned back and daylight saving abolished seems to have resulted from the recent action of congress in repealing the daylight saving act. In answer to numerous inquiries officials have pointed out that clocks may not be turned back until the last Sunday of October, or October 26, at 1 a. m.

CHILDREN TO GATHER BEADS.

The annual meeting of the Tuscola Co. Red Cross Chapter at Caro on Wednesday proved disappointing in that not enough directors were present to transact the business which was to be considered. Another meeting will be called in the near future.

Wm. Sanson, secretary of the County Chapter, read a letter to those present at the meeting Wednesday which he had received from his daughter, who is engaged in Red Cross work at Fort Sheridan, Ill. She says that many soldiers are taught trades at Fort Sheridan. Many of the men are learning to do bead work but are hampered in this industry by the scarcity of beads. An effort will be made in Tuscola county to gather beads with the help of school children. Pick up any beads which you may have about the house and have the children take them to their teachers who in turn will hand them to the chairman of the several township Red Cross units.

HOLSTEIN SALES BRING $94,000

ONE HERD BROUGHT AN AVERAGE PRICE $738; OTHER HERDS LESS.

Live Stock Breeders Will Be Interested in Prices at Grand Rapids Sales.

The Thumb counties have been taking an increasing interest in breeding Holsteins and breeders as well as farmers generally will be interested in the results of sales held at Grand Rapids within the past few weeks.

At the West Michigan Holstein Breeders' association consignment sale of registered Holsteins at Comstock Park 60 cows and heifers, 14 calves and four bulls were sold at a total consideration of $27,400, an average of $351.80 a head. The highest price was $1,500 for a cow sold for Harry F. Rice of Kalamazoo to Albert E. Jenkins and M. H. Daniels & Son of Lansing. Higgins & Thurston of Oakland, Ind., paid $925 for a bull offered by Geo. Leffler of Woodland, H. N. Otto of Aurora, Neb.; William F. Cook of Hudson, O., and Fred J. Lange of Sebawing each bought enough stock for a carload.

The three sales held recently, the Cutlar of Wayland, the Buth Bros., and the West Michigan consignment resulted in the sale of 215 head with a total cash return of $94,000, an average of $437, including the calves.

The dispersal sale of the Buth herd of registered Holsteins at the Buth farm north of Grand Rapids Wednesday of last week was 60 head and the proceeds totaled $44,800 or an average of $738, including the calves. Of the herd 52 were cows, heifers and calves and these brought an average of $812. Eight bull calves brought an average of $260 each. The highest price was $3,200 for a 6-year-old cow with a butterfat record of 30.98 pounds per week. She was taken by Elliot G. Stevenson of Detroit for a farm he owns in Canada. One 4-year-old cow went at $2,500 and another at $2,250, and an 11-months-old heifer calf, daughter of a 30-pound cow, sold at $1,725. Four heifer calves under a year, daughters of 30-pound cows, sold at an average of $1,494. The prices are the highest ever noted at a Grand Rapids sale.

Many of the cattle sold were sired by Glen Alix King DeKol, owned jointly by the Buth and Maryland farms. The cattle sold will be shipped to half a dozen states, the West Virginia buyers alone taking about $10,000.

GARY SAFER NOW THAN EVER IN ITS HISTORY

Stories Regarding Strike Conditions in Steel Town Greatly Exaggerated-Says John Thiel.

John Thiel, formerly a school teacher in Pigeon and now an attorney at Gary, Ind., and principal clerk of the Indiana State Assembly, says stories regarding strike conditions in Gary are greatly exaggerated. In a letter under date of Oct. 9 to his brother-in-law, Lester Bailey, of Cass City, he says:

"You no doubt have read a great deal lately in regard to the 'strike situation' in Gary and the Calumet region of Indiana, and a great deal of what is being printed in the newspapers in regard to the situation here is absolutely untrue and has no foundation in fact. It is true we have had a little trouble here and the U. S. regulars are now in charge and the region is under martial law, but some of the stories printed in the newspapers of the country are so ridiculous and so extravagant in regard to the Continued on page six.

PASSING OF A PIONEER CITIZEN

DUGALD McINTYRE PROMINENT FIGURE IN POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

His School Days Were Passed in Picturesque Little Town of Oban, Scotland.

The passing on of Dugald McIntyre of Argyle on Tuesday morning, October 7, has taken from Sanilac county one of its pioneer citizens and from this community an old and honored resident. In his death Michigan has lost a man who was ever watchful of its progress and wide awake to its national importance. His love for the state of his adoption was of the kind that stimulates true Americanism.

Mr. McIntyre was prominent at political conventions in his district. He had the distinction of being chairman of the board of supervisors at the last meeting in the old court house in Lexington and occupied the same position at the first meeting of the board in the new court house in Sandusky.

It is said that the true estimate of a man's character can be found in the heart of his own household. Dugald McIntyre was held in high esteem by his own family and loved by every member of it. His strict integrity and rigid honesty of heart and purpose will ever be an inspiration to Continued on page seven.

FAIR WARNING.

"Several times recently the life of my wife and my own life have been placed in jeopardy by reckless automobiles, selfishly regardless of the safety of no one's life and limb but their own. To all such miserable whelps, I wish to say with all the emphasis which the law will permit me to use in print that I have provided myself with a 48-caliber revolver and have it loaded. When I drive out behind my old family mare and any Kansas City dude or wooden-headed resident of this or any other community tries recklessly to run me down, I will, to the best of my ability, endeavor to perforate his tires and his legs. This is no idle threat, as anyone who tests the matter will find to his sorrow. Things have come to a pretty pass when a law-abiding, tax-paying citizen can not use the highway except at the risk of being killed by some lopeared lout with a 2x4 brain and a 10x12 gall. MANY FARMERS ARE LEAVING FARMS

C. L. BRODY SAYS LACK OF LABOR IS CUTTING PRODUCTION.

Man Who Stays on Farm Will Eventually Be the One Who Wears the Smile.

The uncertainty of having help, together with the almost prohibitive prices necessary to obtain it, is fast reducing most of the farms to a one man proposition. This will mean the cutting of production away below the maximum capacity of the land and equipment. The one man farm will never meet the test thrown upon our agriculture by the great industrial expansion that is now taking place. Furthermore, an alarming number of the farmers themselves, are leaving the land, thus depleting the ranks of the producers and at the same time adding to the number of consumers, and the acres of good productive soil lying idle is increasing at a most rapid rate.

Interviews with a number of leading farmers representing important sections of St. Clair county, by C. L. Brody of the St. Clair County Farm Bureau, shows that 25 per cent of the farmers are offering their land for sale, and too many of them are disposing of their equipment and leaving without having made arrangements with anyone to work the farm. Reports from other farm bureaus indicate that these conditions are general over the state, and the experienced farmer will do well to consider the small amount of food and other necessities the apparently high rewards will purchase in the city rather than the elusive two figure amount he may receive in dollars for his day's labor.

"We are coming to a time," says Mr. Brody, "when the present abnormal demand for luxuries will cease and ultimately the amount of food a day's toil will secure will be recognized as the real measure of its returns. With this in mind, it is obvious, it seems to me, that the man who sticks even though he has to work alone and is unable to accomplish as much as usual, who builds up the fertility of his soil, tile draining a portion of it perhaps, improves his livestock by means of registered sires, co-operates with his neighbors for better business methods, and joins the Farm Bureau will, I believe, receive a reward fully commensurate with the great service he will be rendering. The man that stays on the farm and steadfastly keeps his eyes on the heights will five or ten years hence be the one who wears the smile."

WATCH FOR BAD MONEY!

DePalma requests merchants and bankers to closely inspect notes and report at once to the police or secret service headquarters if counterfeit paper is found.

COVENANT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Complete Text of This Important Document As It Was Signed at Paris and Which is Now Causing Discussion in This Country.

EVERYONE SHOULD READ IT

The people of the United States have been asked, by both the proponents and the opponents of the peace treaty and League of Nations covenant, to give expression to their desires as to the ratification of the treaty as it stands or with amendments or reservations. Some of them have responded, at the meetings addressed by the president and by the opposing senators, or by communications to their senators. But the vast majority of the people are handicapped by their ignorance of the matter. Probably not one in ten thousand has read the covenant of the League of Nations as it was presented to the senate, mainly because few have had the opportunity. In order that our readers may be prepared to do their full duty as citizens in regard to the controversy, the complete text of the covenant is herewith presented, and they are asked to read it carefully.

THE COVENANT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

The high contracting parties, in order to promote international cooperation and to achieve international peace and security by the acceptance of obligations not to resort to war, by the prescription of open, just, and honorable relations between nations, by the firm establishment of the understandings of international law as the actual rule of conduct among governments, and by the maintenance of justice and a scrupulous respect for all treaty obligations in the dealings of organized peoples with one another, agree to this covenant of the League of Nations.

ARTICLE 1.—The original members of the League of Nations shall be those of the signatories which are named in the annex to this covenant and also to all other states named in the annex as shall accede without reservation to this covenant. Such accession shall be effected by a declaration deposited with the secretariat within two months of the coming into force of the covenant. Notice thereof shall be sent to all members of the league.

Any fully self-governing state, dominion, or colony not named in the annex may become a member of the league if its admission is agreed to by two-thirds of the assembly, provided that it shall give effective guarantees of conduct among governments, and shall accept such regulations as may be prescribed by the league in regard to its military, naval and air forces and armaments.

Any member of the league may, after giving notice of its intention so to do, withdraw from the league, provided that all its international obligations and all its obligations under this covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of its withdrawal.

ARTICLE 2.—The action of the league under this covenant shall be effected through the instrumentality of an assembly and of a council, with a permanent secretariat.

ARTICLE 3.—The assembly shall consist of representatives of the members of the league. The assembly shall meet at stated intervals and from time to time as occasion may require at the seat of the league or at such other place as may be decided upon.

ARTICLE 4.—The council shall consist of representatives of the principal allied and associated powers, together with representatives of four other members of the league. These four members of the league shall be selected by the assembly from time to time in its discretion. Until the appointment of the representatives of the four members of the league first selected by the assembly, representatives of Belgium, Brazil, Spain, and Greece shall be members of the council.

With the approval of the majority of the assembly, the council may name members of the league whose representatives shall always be members of the council; the council with like approval may increase the number of members of the league to be selected by the assembly for representation on the council.

The council shall meet from time to time as occasion may require, and at least once a year, at the seat of the league, or at such other place as may be decided upon.

ARTICLE 5.—Except where otherwise expressly provided in this covenant by the terms of the present treaty, decisions at any meeting of the assembly or of the council shall require the agreement of all the members of the league represented at the meeting.

ARTICLE 6.—The permanent secretariat shall be established at the seat of the league. The secretariat shall comprise a permanent general secretary and staff as may be required.

The first secretary general shall be the person named in the annex; thereafter the secretary general shall be appointed by the council with the approval of the majority of the assembly. The secretaries and staff of the secretariat shall be appointed by the secretary general with the approval of the council.

The secretary general shall act in that capacity at all meetings of the assembly and of the council. The expenses of the secretariat shall be borne by the members of the league in accordance with the apportionment of the expenses of the international bureau of the Universal Postal Union.

ARTICLE 7.—The seat of the league is established at Geneva. The council may at any time decide that the seat of the league shall be established elsewhere.

All positions under or in connection with the league, including the secretariat, shall be open equally to men and women. Representatives of the members of the league and officials of the league when engaged on the business of the league shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities.

The buildings and other property occupied by the league or its officials or by representatives attending its meetings shall be inviolable.

ARTICLE 8.—The members of the league recognize that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations.

The council, taking account of the geographical situation and circumstances of nations and of a majority within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, the council shall so report, and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement.

The council may in any case under this article refer the dispute to the assembly, provided that such request be made within 14 days after the submission of the dispute to the council. In any case referred to the assembly all the provisions of this article and of the annex to the covenant shall apply to the action and powers of the assembly, provided that a report made by the representatives of those members of the league represented on the council shall be submitted to the other members of the league, exclusive in each case of the representatives of the parties to the dispute, shall have the same force as a report by the council concurred in by all the members thereof other than the representative of one or more of the parties to the dispute.

ARTICLE 9.—A permanent commission of conciliation shall be established by the council on the execution of the provisions of articles 1 and 8 and on military and naval questions generally.

ARTICLE 10.—The members of the league undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the league. In case of any such aggression or of any threat or danger of such aggression the council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled.

ARTICLE 11.—Any war or threat of war, whether immediately affecting any of the members of the league or not, is hereby declared a matter of concern to the whole league, and the league shall take any action that may be required to maintain or to secure the peace of nations. In case any such emergency should arise the secretary general shall on the request of any member of the league forthwith summon a meeting of the council.

It is also declared to be the friendly right of any member of the league to bring to the attention of the assembly or of the council any circumstance whatever affecting international relations which threatens to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends.

ARTICLE 12.—The members of the league agree that if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, they will submit the matter either to arbitration or to inquiry by the council, and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the report by the council.

In any case under this article the award of the arbitrators shall be made within a reasonable time, and the report of the council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute.

ARTICLE 13.—The members of the league agree that whenever any dispute shall arise between them which they recognize to be suitable for submission to arbitration and which cannot be satisfactorily settled by diplomacy, they will submit the whole subject matter to arbitration. Disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty, as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact which if established would constitute a breach of any international obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach, are declared to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration.

For the consideration of any such dispute the court of arbitration to which the case is referred shall be composed of arbitrators selected by the parties to the dispute or stipulated in any convention existing between them. The members of the league agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award that may be rendered, and that they will not resort to war against a member of the league which complies therewith. In the event of any failure to carry out such an award, the council shall propose what steps should be taken to give effect thereto.

ARTICLE 14.—The council shall formulate and submit to the members of the league for adoption plans for the establishment of a permanent court of international justice. The court shall be competent to hear and determine any dispute of an international character which the parties thereto submit to it. The court may also give an advisory opinion upon any dispute or question referred to it by the council, or by the assembly.

ARTICLE 15.—If there should arise between members of the league any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, which is not submitted to arbitration in accordance with article 13, the members of the league agree that they will submit the matter to the council. Any party to the dispute may effect such submission by giving notice of the existence of the dispute to the secretary general, who will make all necessary arrangements for a full investigation and consideration of the dispute. For this purpose the parties to the dispute will communicate to the secretary general, as promptly as possible, statements of their case with all the relevant facts and documents, and the council may forthwith direct the publication thereof.

The council shall endeavor to effect a settlement of the dispute, and if such efforts are successful, a statement shall be made public giving such facts and explanations regarding the dispute and the terms of settlement thereof as the council may deem appropriate.

If the dispute is not thus settled, the council either unanimously or by a majority vote shall make and publish a report containing a statement of the facts of the dispute and the recommendations which are deemed just and proper in regard thereto.

Any member of the league represented on the council may make public a statement of the facts of the dispute and of its conclusions regarding the same.

If a report by the council is unanimously agreed to by the members thereof other than the representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute, the members of the league agree that they will not go to war with any party to the dispute which complies with the recommendations of the report.

If the council fails to reach a report which is unanimously agreed to by the members thereof, other than the representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute, the members of the league shall be free to themselves the right to take such action as they shall consider necessary for the maintenance of right and justice.

If the dispute between the parties is claimed by one of them, and is found by the council to arise out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, the council shall so report, and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement.

The council may in any case under this article refer the dispute to the assembly, provided that such request be made within 14 days after the submission of the dispute to the council. In any case referred to the assembly all the provisions of this article and of the annex to the covenant shall apply to the action and powers of the assembly, provided that a report made by the representatives of those members of the league represented on the council shall be submitted to the other members of the league, exclusive in each case of the representatives of the parties to the dispute, shall have the same force as a report by the council concurred in by all the members thereof other than the representative of one or more of the parties to the dispute.

ARTICLE 16.—Should any member of the league resort to war in disregard of its obligations under articles 12, 13, or 15, it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the league, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade and financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant-breaking state, and the prevention of all financial, commercial, or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking state and the nationals of any other state, whether a member of the league or not.

It shall be the duty of the council in such case to recommend to the several governments concerned what effective military, naval or air force the members of the league shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenants of the league. The members of the league agree, further, that they will mutually support one another in the financial and economic measures which are taken under this article, in order to minimize the loss and damage resulting from the above measures, and that they will mutually support one another in resisting any special measures aimed at one of their number by the covenant-breaking state, and that they will take the necessary steps to afford passage through their territory to the forces of any of the members of the league which are co-operating to protect the covenants of the league.

Any member of the league which has violated any covenant of the league may be declared to be no longer a member of the league as a result of any action concurred in by the representatives of all the other members of the league represented thereon.

ARTICLE 17.—In the event of a dispute between a member of the league and a state which is not a member of the league, or between states not members of the league, the state or states not members of the league shall be invited to accept the obligations of membership in the league for the purposes of such dispute, upon such conditions as the council may deem just. If such invitation is accepted, the provisions of articles 12 to 16 inclusive shall be applied with such modifications as may be deemed necessary by the council.

ARTICLE 18.—The members of the league agree that whenever any dispute shall arise between them which they recognize to be suitable for submission to arbitration and which cannot be satisfactorily settled by diplomacy, they will submit the whole subject matter to arbitration. Disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty, as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact which if established would constitute a breach of any international obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach, are declared to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration.

For the consideration of any such dispute the court of arbitration to which the case is referred shall be composed of arbitrators selected by the parties to the dispute or stipulated in any convention existing between them. The members of the league agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award that may be rendered, and that they will not resort to war against a member of the league which complies therewith. In the event of any failure to carry out such an award, the council shall propose what steps should be taken to give effect thereto.

ARTICLE 19.—The assembly may from time to time advise the reconsideration by members of the league of treaties which have become inapplicable and the consideration of international conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world.

ARTICLE 20.—The members of the league severally agree that this covenant is accepted as abrogating all obligations or understandings inter se which are inconsistent with the terms of this covenant, and that they will not hereafter enter into any engagements inconsistent with the terms thereof.

In case any member of the league shall, before becoming a member of the league, have undertaken any obligation inconsistent with the terms of this covenant, it shall be the duty of such member to take immediate steps to procure its release from such obligations.

ARTICLE 21.—Nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements, such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine, for securing the maintenance of peace.

ARTICLE 22.—To those colonies and territories which as a consequence of the late war have ceased to be under the sovereignty of the states which formerly governed them and which are inhabited by peoples not yet able to stand by themselves under the strenuous conditions of the modern world, there should be applied the principle that the well-being and development of such peoples form a sacred trust of civilization and that securities for the performance of this trust should be embodied in this covenant.

The best method of giving practical effect to this principle is that the tutelage over such peoples should be entrusted to advanced nations who by reason of their resources, their experience or their geographical position can best undertake this responsibility, and who are willing to accept it, and that this tutelage should be exercised by them as mandatory powers on behalf of the League of Nations. The character of the mandate must differ according to the stage of development of the people, the geographical situation of the territory, its economic conditions and other similar circumstances.

Certain communities formerly belonging to the Turkish empire have reached a stage of development where their existence as independent nations can be provisionally recognized subject to the rendering of administrative advice and assistance by a mandatory until such time as they are able to stand themselves. The wishes of these communities must be a principal consideration in the selection of the mandatory.

Other peoples, especially those of central Africa, are at such a stage that the mandatory must be responsible for the administration of the territory until such time as they will guarantee freedom of conscience and religion, subject only to the maintenance of public order and morals, the prohibition of abuses such as the slave trade, the arms traffic and the liquor traffic, and the prevention of the establishment of slavery or similar practices, and bases and of military training of the natives for other than police purposes and the defense of territory, and will also secure equal opportunities for the trade and commerce of other members of the league.

There are territories, such as South-West Africa and certain of the South Pacific Islands, which, owing to the sparseness of their population or their small size, or their remoteness from the centers of civilization, or their geographical contiguity to the territory of a mandatory, and other circumstances, can be best administered under the laws of the mandatory as integral portions of its territory, subject to the safeguards above mentioned in the interests of the indigenous population.

In every case of mandate the mandatory shall render to the council an annual report in reference to the territory committed to its charge. The degree of authority, control, or administration to be exercised by the mandatory shall, if not previously agreed upon by the members of the league, be explicitly defined in each case by the council.

A permanent commission shall be constituted to receive and examine the annual reports of the mandatories and to advise the council on all matters relating to the observance of the mandates.

ARTICLE 23.—Subject to and in accordance with the provisions of international conventions existing or hereafter to be agreed upon, the members of the league:

- (a) will endeavor to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor for men, women and children and in their own countries and in all countries to which their commercial and industrial relations extend, and for that purpose will establish and maintain the necessary international organizations;
- (b) undertake to secure just treatment of the native inhabitants of territories under their control;
- (c) will intrust the league with the general supervision over the mandatory powers and with regard to the traffic in women and children and the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs;
- (d) will intrust the league with the general supervision of the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs;
- (e) will make provision to secure and maintain freedom of communications and of transit and equitable treatment for the commerce of all members of the league. In this connection the special necessities of the regions devastated during the war of 1914-1918 shall be borne in mind;
- (f) will endeavor to take steps in matters of international concern for the prevention and control of disease.

ARTICLE 24.—There shall be placed under the direction of the league all international bureaus already established by general treaties if the parties to such treaties consent. All such international bureaus and all commissions for the regulation of matters of international interest hereafter constituted shall be placed under the direction of the league.

In all matters of international interest which are regulated by general conventions but which are not placed under the control of international bureaus or commissions, the secretariat of the league shall, subject to the consent of the council and if desired by the parties, collect and distribute all relevant information and shall render any other assistance which may be necessary or desirable.

The council may include as part of the expenses of the secretariat the expenses of any bureau or commission which is placed under the direction of the league.

ARTICLE 25.—The members of the league agree to encourage and promote the establishment and co-operation of duly authorized voluntary national Red Cross organizations having as purposes the improvement of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world.

ARTICLE 26.—Amendments to this covenant will take effect when ratified by the members of the league whose representatives compose the council and by a majority of the members of the league whose representatives compose the assembly.

No such amendment shall bind any member of the league which signifies its dissent therefrom, but in that case it shall cease to be a member of the league.

CHINA, SHANTUNG AND JAPAN

The following are the sections of the Peace Treaty that refer to China and to Shantung Province that are the subjects of discussion in all parts of the nation:

CHINA.

ARTICLE 128.—Germany renounces in favor of China all benefits and privileges resulting from the provisions of the final protocol signed at Peking on September 7, 1901, and from all annexes, notes and documents supplementary thereto. She likewise renounces in favor of China any claim to indemnities accruing thereunder subsequent to March 14, 1919.

ARTICLE 129.—From the coming into force of the present treaty the high contracting parties shall apply in so far as concerns them respectively: 1. The arrangements of August 29, 1902 regarding the new Chinese customs tariff. 2. The arrangement of Sept. 27, 1905, regarding Whang-Poo, and the provisional supplementary arrangement of April 4, 1912. China, however, will accept no arrangement that to Germany the advantages or privileges which she allowed Germany under these arrangements.

ARTICLE 130.—Subject to the provisions of Section VIII of this part, Germany cedes to China all the buildings, harbors and arsenals, barracks, forts, arms and munitions of war, vessels of all kinds, wireless telegraphy installations and other public property belonging to the German government, which are situated or may be in the German concessions at Tientsin and Hankow or elsewhere in Chinese territory. It is understood, however, that premises used as diplomatic or consular residences or offices are not included in the above cession, and, furthermore, that no steps shall be taken by the Chinese government to dispose of the German public and private property situated within the so-called legation quarter at Peking without the consent of the diplomatic representatives of the powers which, on the coming into force of the present treaty, remain parties to the final protocol of September 7, 1901.

ARTICLE 131.—Germany undertakes to restore to China within twelve months from the coming into force of the present treaty all the economical instruments which her troops in 1900-1901 carried away from China, and to defray all expenses which may be incurred in effecting such restoration, including the expenses of dismounting, packing, transporting, insurance and installation at Peking.

ARTICLE 132.—Germany agrees to the abrogation of the leases from the Chinese government under which the German concessions at Hankow and Tientsin are now held. China, restored to the full exercise of her sovereign rights in the above areas, declares her intention of opening them to international residence and trade. She further declares that the abrogation of the leases under which these concessions are now held shall not affect the property rights of nationals of allied or associated powers who are holders of lots in these concessions.

ARTICLE 133.—Germany waives all claims against the Chinese government or against any allied or associated government arising out of the internment of German nationals in China and their repatriation. She equally renounces all claims arising out of the capture and condemnation of German ships in the ports or the liquidation, sequestration or control of German properties, rights and interests in that country since August 14, 1917. This provision, however, shall not affect the rights of the parties interested in the proceeds of any such liquidation, which shall be governed by the provisions of Part X (economic clauses) of the present treaty.

ARTICLE 134.—Germany renounces, in favor of the government of his Britannic majesty, the German state property in the British concession at Shantung at Canton. She renounces, in favor of the French and Chinese governments, the property of the German school situated in the French concession at Shantung.

ARTICLE 135.—Germany renounces, in favor of Japan, all her rights, titles and privileges—particularly those concerning the territory of Kiaochow, railways, mines and submarine cables which she acquired in virtue of a treaty concluded by her with China on 6th March, 1898, and of all other arrangements relative to the province of Shantung.

All German rights in the Tsing-tao-Tsinan-Fu railways, including its branch lines, together with its subsidiary property of all kinds, stations, shops, fixed and rolling stock, mines, plant and material for the exploitation of the mines are and remain acquired by Japan, together with all rights and privileges attaching thereto. The German state submarine cables from Tsing-tao to Shanghai and from Tsing-tao to Chefoo, with all the rights, privileges and properties attaching thereto, are similarly acquired by Japan, free and clear of all charges and incumbrances.

ARTICLE 137.—The movable and immovable property owned by the German state in the territory of Kiaochow, as well as all the rights which Germany might claim in consequence of the works or improvements made or of the expenses incurred by her, directly or indirectly, in connection with this territory, are and remain acquired by Japan, free and clear of all charges and incumbrances.

ARTICLE 138.—Germany shall hand over to Japan within three months from the coming into force of the present treaty the archives, registers, plans, title deeds and documents of every kind, wherever they may be relating to the administration, whether civil, military, financial, judicial or other, of the territory of Kiaochow. Within the same period Germany shall give particulars to Japan of all treaties, arrangements or agreements relating to the rights, titles or privileges referred to in the two preceding articles.

Robert Shaw's intentions were right when he fastened a rope from his auto to Delroy Palmer's car in order to pull it to a Frankenthuth garage for repairs. He carefully made the journey, making wide clearance turns at the corners, but upon arriving at his destination found only the rope dangling behind his machine. Both men live in Tuscola and started on the trip to the nearby village from their home town. Bob plunged forward without noticing his missing passenger until he arrived at the garage at Frankenthuth. Upon "Bob's" return he met Clayton Sheffer with the Palmer machine in tow.—Vassar Pioneer.

The young ladies of the Presbyterian church organized a Westminster Guild last Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. I. D. McCoy. The chapter was named the Spafford Chapter in honor of Spafford Kelsey, who is a missionary to Siam. Mesdames F. E. Kelsey, Chas. Wilsey and A. J. Knapp were chosen as the patronesses. The following officers were elected: President, Catherine Miller; vice president, Beryl Koepfen; secretary, Katherine McLarty; treasurer, Mrs. I. D. McCoy.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Rice received a letter Monday from their son, Roy, at Bakersfield, California, in which the young man informs them that he was in an automobile accident some time ago in which the car was overturned and he was dragged a distance of 30 feet under the machine. He was badly bruised about the face and had his hip and arm injured, but has practically recovered. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Strohauser, formerly of Caro, and his friend, Frank Bowles, were also in the machine at the time of the accident. The former had an arm broken and her back injured. Mr. Bowles escaped without any serious injury.

Mrs. T. A. Sandham, who was called here to attend the funeral of her brother, James Reagh, returned to Detroit Monday. She was accompanied by her sisters, Mrs. Geo. Garnham of Tilsonburg, Ont., and Mrs. E. Rushbrook of Kalamazoo, who will spend a few days with Mrs. Sandham before returning to their homes.

The End.

We cannot see the end from the beginning, but as long as we can see the beginning, whether it be the year we are entering, or some duty that is required of us, we see enough—one step at a time—and we know, that we shall be so guided on to the end. If we sit down and wait for the whole plan to unroll before our view, we shall wait endlessly.

Matter All Settled.

My neighbor's son came into the house the other day, leading a child by the hand. We looked our astonishment, when we saw the little quaint stranger, and he immediately made this announcement: "I adopted her; she was all alone and crying, so I adopted her and she can have all my toys, 'cepting my bicycle."—Chicago Tribune.

United States Senate.

Each United States senator is elected for six years, unless he is chosen to fill the unexpired term of some senator who has died or resigned. On March 4 in every "odd year"—1919, etc.—the terms of 32 senators expire; that is, one-third of the whole number. By this plan there is never an entirely new senate. Even if no members were re-elected, two-thirds of the membership would always consist of men who have had either two or four years' service.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

"There is only a curtain between us, Between the beyond and the here; They whom we call dead have not left us, Nay, they were never so near."

In memory of Brother Dougald McIntyre who died October 7, 1919.

"Leaves have their time to fall, and flowers to wither at the north wind's cold blast, but thou, oh Death! hath all seasons for thine own."

Once again a Brother Mason, having completed the designs written for him on life's trestle board, has passed through the portals of Eternity and entered the Grand Lodge of the New Jerusalem and hath received as his reward, the white stone with the new name written thereon.

And Whereas, the all-wise and merciful Master of the universe has called from labor to refreshments our beloved and respected brother, and he having been a true and faithful member of our beloved Order, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That Tyler Lodge, No. 317, F. & A. M. of Cass City, Michigan in testimony of her loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

Seek to Realize Ideals.

The life that is a "comer" is charged with energy. The best plans in the world must be worked to make them productive. Life with ideals is something, but it's the ideals plus active application that brings the fruits. Many a fellow with small ability, but that ability consecrated to a definite purpose, rises to merited recognition in life. When today's efforts forecast tomorrow's activities there is a continuity that produces rounded character and symmetrical development.

Cure for Rheumatism.

A certain variety of seaweed, known in Ireland as "tope," has been recommended by a famous physician as a cure for rheumatism and throat affections if eaten hot, whilst in some parts of England and Wales a variety of seaweed, known as "lavee," has been in demand for years as a vegetable. Served with roast meats it is said to be extremely palatable.

Guard the Thoughts.

"Thoughts are things." We do not see them as they fly hither and thither at their work, but neither do we see the disease germs of the street and those that are inhaled in shop and car. The irritable, gloomy mood, the discontent and pessimism that steal away courage and hope are things that we can no more keep wholly to ourselves than we can keep a contagious illness if we carry it among our fellows. Carefulness makes others irritable, and gloom, like a pestilence, will make itself felt through the entire family.

Further Elucidation Needed.

Dr. Hugo Ribbert of Bonn, Germany, in a book "Death From Old Age," tells that the way to stay young is to keep going. In other words, if you run around fast enough Old Nick will not be able to catch you. This is good advice, so far as it goes, but it is not all the answer.

Colors of the Sardine.

The fresh sardine is a beautiful little fish. The scales on its back are an iridescent blue-green, the exact tint which the sea so often takes, white beneath the scales there shows up the most wonderful peacock blue. There are bars on its back and sides when it first comes out of the water like those on the mackerel, but they seem to fade and disappear the moment it is exposed to the air. The remainder of its body is pure silver in its color scheme.

Rich Brazilian Forests.

There are more than 300 varieties of woods in the Sao Paulo region alone and as a whole Brazilian forests not only abound in the finest of woods but are of enormous extent. Transportation facilities are developing slowly and the labor supply is a constant problem.

No Written Chinese Music.

Chinese music is not written. The words of some of the favorite songs have been preserved, but the music has been handed down from father to son for generations that go far back before the day of the troubadours. When music is played it is played according to the memory of the musician and his ideas of interpretation. A musician varies the performance as his best judgment dictates, and his strings, reeds or brass may break up at almost any time.

But He Offered No Security.

Little Donald came in one day just as I was taking a pie from the oven. "That's a fine pie," he said. "Can I borrow a piece?"—Exchange.

RED CROSS AIDS AILING SOLDIERS

Organization Asked by Government to Seek Out Disabled Ex-Service Men.

FREE HOSPITAL CARE GIVEN

United States Pays Compensation While Treatments Are Administered in Public Health Institutions.

The American Red Cross has been asked by the United States government to use its efficient organization to seek out disabled and ill ex-service men, and to try to induce them to accept the government's offer to provide free treatment in public service hospitals, and compensation while the treatment is being administered.

The government estimates that there are fully 50,000 men in this country who are unable to work at full capacity because of wounds or disease contracted in the line of duty who should be receiving this treatment. So far only about 4,000 men have applied for such service.

A statement issued from the national headquarters of the Red Cross in Washington shows that a great misapprehension exists among the discharged men regarding the government's plan.

"Due to misunderstandings and misapprehension a surprising number of disabled service men are scattered throughout the country not knowing the benefits which are still theirs," the statement read.

"Back to the hospital" after he has donned 'civvies' and tried to keep going at civilian occupation is about the hardest order a soldier wants to hear. Acceptance of the government offer does not mean a return to service. The hospitals are civilian institutions. They are separate institutions, and are not connected in any way with the army or navy.

"The Red Cross is constantly discovering men who, through ignorance or prejudice, are losing the advantages of this wonderful service. So effective has this work become that the government has asked the Red Cross to make this a part of its regular relief work. All that is necessary is for the ex-service man to apply to the nearest Red Cross chapter. Arrangements will be made there for him to enter one of these hospitals after examination by a district public health officer, and if his trouble is the result of service with the army or navy he will be given transportation and admittance to a public service hospital.

"The Red Cross is now engaged in maintaining a program of recreation, occupational therapy, meeting the problems arising in the homes of disabled men, household and legal difficulties and affording many miscellaneous services to keep the men who are in the hospitals contented with their lot."

This work of the Red Cross is one of the important branches outlined for its post war work and a part of the funds raised in the Third Red Cross Roll Call, November 2 to 11, will be devoted to this purpose.

LOANS $50,000 TO SOLDIERS.

Loans totaling approximately $50,000 have been advanced to about 4,000 disabled soldiers by the American Red Cross for personal uses while these war veterans were adjusting their affairs with the federal board for vocational training. These loans are in no sense looked upon as charity either by the soldiers or the Red Cross, the latter considering this bit of financial assistance a part of its war obligation.

Red Cross liaison officers are in touch with all the district officers of the vocational board and the public health service. These Red Cross men are able to help the soldiers when the government check miscarries, during the interval between approval for schools and placement in school, when subsistence and transportation are needed by those denied training, and under various other conditions.

HUGE OVERSEA SHIPMENTS MADE BY RED CROSS.

Two million crates, bundles or barrels, weighing 218,310,000 pounds were shipped by the American Red Cross to twenty-one countries from ten ports in the United States between April 1, 1917 and July 1, 1919, according to reports sent to national headquarters in Washington. This tremendous volume of business was shipped across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans during the war and after the signing of the armistice from New York, Baltimore, Boston, Montreal, Newport News, New Orleans, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Seattle. In addition to this great store of supplies, the Red Cross purchased supplies in the countries where it operated, both for the soldiers and afflicted civilians.

"Our patriotism should stand the test of peace as well as war. There is a necessary work to be performed before the American Red Cross can withdraw from Europe."—President Wilson.

HOW COAL MINES LAID FOUNDATION OF GREAT BRITAIN'S POWER.

—Britain owes its position in the world of commerce and industry, which means its financial status in the world, to coal more than to anything else. If beneath its soil and in its river beds it had possessed as much gold as Australia, or California, or South Africa, it would not have availed it nearly so much as its wealth in "black diamonds." Not only do the coal mines employ more than a million men, but indirectly they produce employment for the cotton, woolen, iron, shipbuilding, and many other great industries without which the country would soon be plunged in poverty.

It is an amazing fact that Britain produces a fourth of all coal used in the world. Coal is money to Britain. It pays in coal for thousands of commodities which are imported into that country, and which no amount of "reconstruction" could enable them to produce within their own borders. Yet Britain's coal is by no means inexhaustible, and it is estimated that at the present rate of consumption it can only last 500 years.

KEPT BUSY ALL THE TIME

Why Missionaries, Unlike Their More Fortunate Brothers, Can Have No Regular Hours.

The missionary formerly worked months, and even long years, for a single convert, and, when he had secured him, had only a single illiterate man from the lower classes. Now he has accessible, on the one hand, millions of lower-class people; and, on the other, an increasing number of men and women who are already the great leaders among their countrymen. The present mission staff and equipment is adapted largely for dealing with the man of the lower classes, and for dealing with him individually. Slowly the skeleton organization has been expanded and partially filled out; but no church has yet grasped these larger opportunities for personal evangelism which the last few years and decades have brought. As the opportunity has grown, schools, hospitals and publishing houses have been added—designed to care for work already under way. With few exceptions the missionaries on the field are tied down to the direction of these institutions. They must supervise the churches and the native pastors; run the hospital; manage the printing press; keep accounts, and, in the greater proportion of fields, cultivate an American constituency to meet their increasing needs for more money. Many missionaries are now compelled, aside from their own salaries, to finance the greater part of their work. There is a man in India whose mission expenses run from 1,200 to 1,500 "rupees" a month. He receives 300 by appropriation; the remainder he must raise as best he can. More extraordinary still is the fact that he actually raises it.—Tyler Dennett in Asia Magazine.

Why Hospitals in Clouds.

For many years medical men have been hunting for a place that would be absolutely germ-proof, and at last it has been found, the Philadelphia North American states. Now that aviation is becoming a part of modern warfare, we have learned a great deal about the air that we never knew before. If we go high enough, there are no germs and the pressure is less also as we go higher up. The question now is, wouldn't it be a good thing to put our hospitals up there, at least those dealing with open wounds and diseases that needs lots of fresh air, such as tuberculosis? Enormous airships could be anchored above our heads and the patients could be carried up in air-planes. Stranger things than that are happening every day around us, and physicians say that the idea even now is more than a pipe dream. Such a hospital would be ideal for children with the rickets. Up in the clouds, where there was nothing but pure air and sunlight, the very lack of which caused their disease, they would probably come down in a few weeks totally cured.

How Soft Coal is Made Hard.

Converting bituminous coal into an equivalent of hard coal is a late development that will have a far-reaching effect on American industry, according to Popular Mechanics magazine. The new fuel is entirely smokeless and under the new process by-products now wasted are recovered. These largely compensate for the cost of conversion. A plant has been in operation in the East for some time, perfecting the process and making tests of a practical character. The raw coal is subjected to a distillation process at low temperatures, the residue being pressed into hard, durable bricks that are again subjected to distillation and produce an intense heat.

How Bobby Got Dirty.

John and Robert had just been dressed in their new white suits and were waiting near the porch for their mother to take them downtown. When their mother came out John's suit was still clean, but Robert's suit was soiled.

"Why, Robert, I have a notion to leave you at home," said his mother. "Oh, don't, mother," said Robert, half crying; "you know the dirt blows right past John and sticks on me."

GRENADES TO HELP INDUSTRIAL CONCERN EMPLOYES TO SAVE

Government Savings Societies to Be Formed in 100,000 Plants of District to Aid Uncle Sam's Finances.

A fairly generous proportion of the 15,000,000 hand grenades owned by the War Department of the United States when the armistice was signed are to pass into the hands of America's industrial army through the Government Saving Societies of America's industrial organizations. They will be used as savings banks.

Already 20,000 of the country's industrial organizations, those in which Government Savings Societies already flourish, have been "lined up" for distribution. At least 100,000 will be included when the work is in full swing.

The hand grenades are the genuine articles, just the same hand grenades as those with which the Yanks did such deadly execution in Europe. The only difference, in outward appearance, is that a money slot has been cut through the shrapnel casing forming the body of the grenade. Inside, the explosive chamber has been cleared and a removable screw substituted for the base of the casting. In place of the high explosives so carefully developed by American army experts the grenades, as banks, hold one hundred dimes or one hundred pennies—the shrapnel of the United States treasury. Acquisition of a hand grenade bank will become possible to any United States worker by following the simple plan outlined by Harry Edwards Clay, manager of the Industrial Division of the War Loan Organization, Seventh Federal Reserve District, who has the distribution in charge.

The industrial worker, eager to possess one of these remarkable war souvenirs, has only to purchase, through the secretary of the War Savings Society of his particular plant, factory or organization, three War Savings Stamps at a single time or one War Savings Stamp a month for three consecutive months. The grenade bank then will become his, being received through the Government Savings Society for the industrial organization of which he is a part. Thereafter it may be used for personal and private savings, as well as for money in course of accumulation for further War Savings Stamps purchase or as a beginning toward acquisition of one of the newer Treasury Savings Certificates now issued in denominations of $100 and $1,000.

NEW SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

$100 and $1,000 Government Securities Are Available in September for $84 and $840 Respectively.

Treasury Savings Certificates in denominations of $100 and $1,000 are being distributed throughout the five states of the Seventh Federal Reserve district. They may be bought during the month of September for $84 and $840 respectively. These new government securities are in reality discount bonds. They will mature January 1, 1924, and are issued only in registered form to insure them against theft or loss. The same rate of interest is paid as for War Savings stamps, namely 4 per cent compounded quarterly. War Savings Stamps of the 1919 issue may be exchanged for the Treasury certificates.

The Treasury Savings Certificates are offered to the public at any post office of the first or second class and at incorporated banks and trust companies which are agents for the sale of 1919 War Savings Stamps. The name of each purchaser will be inscribed on every certificate, the registration records being kept at the Treasury department in Washington, D. C. Each month the new certificates will increase in price. They began in July at $83 for the $100 certificate and at $836 for the one which will be worth $1,000 when it matures. Thus the income increase is twenty cents a month for the smaller certificate and two dollars a month for the other. They are tax free except inheritance, surtaxes, war profits and excess profit taxes.

Although the natives of India do not operate on the stock market, they have adopted a unique form of gambling for which the cotton market reports are responsible. Every day five quotations are culled from New York announcing the cotton situation. The natives looked upon this as a direct invitation to them to establish a simple but none the less absorbing form of gambling. The gambling consists simply in guessing what the five figures will amount to, and the man getting nearest to the right amount takes the stakes. Burmese Marriages. A curious idea among the Burmese is that people born on the same day of the week must not marry. GARY SAFER NOW THAN EVER IN ITS HISTORY

Continued from first page. situation here that it might be termed an outrage upon the public, and the writers of said stories are in fact and ought to be journalized as 'infernal liars.' I do not write this to be sarcastic in any way but I do believe that the truth looks better in print than do false statements.

"It is true that many of our people had become terrorized and were afraid to stay in their homes and appealed to the city authorities for police protection, but there was absolutely no excuse for the printing of stories that made some persons believe that the streets of Gary and the other cities in the Calumet district were running with blood.

"I write you this letter because I thought that you might be fearful in regard to our safety down here. We are perfectly safe and while it is true there is a great strike going on here and the business and professional men are all somewhat 'in the air' as the saying goes, yet we have faith that everything will work out all right in the end, and Gary will continue to grow as in the past.

"We have in our midst about 25 or 30 different nationalities and among these there are some radical so-called leaders, who because of a misconception of our institutions and customs have somewhat inflamed the minds of others and filled their minds with revolutionary ideas, but the great majority of our people are still sane and safe. However, there was a time here when it seemed that the mob-spirit had gained the ascendancy and it looked very serious. That was on Monday afternoon of this week, but the mayor exercised good judgment and called upon the Governor for regular army troops, and in a few hours' time the troops landed in Gary and from now on everything will no doubt be orderly. The troops are not here to take any sides but simply to protect property and life and I might add that just now Gary is safer than it ever was in its history and both contending parties in the 'strike' are seemingly happy and feel relieved."

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?

LOOK OUT!

Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to incurable disease.

Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1696 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

those who knew best his sterling worth and understood his dignity and simplicity of character. He was true as steel to his friends and loyal to every cause he advocated.

He was born in Argyshire, Scotland, on July 15, 1840. His school days were passed in the picturesque little town of Oban, Scotland, which is surrounded on the land side by the pine and heather-clad Highland hills, which he loved, and on the sea side by the "Mull of Kintyre," Bay of Oban, and the far-reaching arms of the Atlantic ocean. He never forgot the famous "sunsets of Oban" and often delighted his friends with his Scottish memories. He gave the name to the township of Argyle in memory of his Highland home.

Mr. McIntyre came to Michigan in 1860, and engaged at once in the lumber business in which he continued for many years. In 1870 he was married to Miss Lucy Scooby McKenzie of Kintore, Canada, who preceded him in death twenty-seven years ago. To this union eight children were born, six of whom survive them: Jane and John H., who have lived on the farm with him; Robert of Centralia, Washington; Mrs. E. M. Manigold of Gwinn, Mich.; William H., recently home from overseas where he served in Battery B, 2nd Field Artillery with the A. E. F. in France; and Lorn D., of Detroit.

Mr. McIntyre's death, while not unexpected, came suddenly at the end. He was apparently well as usual and in good spirits, so that the end came as a shock to the community on Tuesday morning. He died, as he lived, a courageous, just and good man, looking fearlessly to the Great Future, feeling that divine justice is the same yesterday, today and forever and that Omnipotent Wisdom is over all. Ever despising hypocrisy and sham, he fearlessly stood for what he believed to be true. So long as ignorance and misery remain, men of his type will continue to be a tower of strength against superstition and greed, and staunch defenders of progress through education and understanding. His memory will long be cherished by a host of friends throughout the state.

Relatives from out of town who attended his funeral were: Lorn McIntyre of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Manigold of Gwinn, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oleson, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacKenzie and Robert McKenzie of Sandusky, Charles McKichan of Lansing, Miss Jane McKichan, Mrs. A. A. Hitchcock and Mrs. Herbert Boughner of Detroit, Mrs. J. W. Morse of Dundee, Ill., Frank Lewis Mankin of Chicago, Mrs. C. W. MacPhail of Ludington, Mrs. James McKichan of Elsie Craig, Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. John McLean and Clare McLean of Port Huron.

STEALS AUTOMOBILE IN DAYLIGHT

'Wm. Ellis drove to Brown City on Friday and parked his automobile on the streets. When he went to get the car it was gone. The telephone was brought into use and the stolen auto found at Crosswell.

The story of the theft is a very sad one as reported here. The boy who took the machine is from one of the best families in Crosswell. He did his part in France for us and was gassed at the front, the effects leaving him unbalanced and with a mania for driving automobiles.

He had taken a machine at Crosswell and driven it over to Brown City. When it ran out of gasoline outside of the city he drove it into the ditch and came up town and got Mr. Ellis' car.

We understand that Mr. Ellis will take no steps to prosecute.—Brown City Banner.

A Characterization.

She was a woman of experience at least if not of wisdom, with strong passions, but with a not ungenerous heart; outspoken from the knowledge of her "great possessions," perhaps as much as from a natural frankness; a warm friend and not a very bitter enemy; and at the bottom of it all with a certain simplicity of character, of which her love of flowers was an example.—James Payne.

CHAPTER X.

A Party and—My Fourth Peril?

It was a rainy Sunday. In the middle of the afternoon Uncle Peabody and I had set out on our spring buggy with the family umbrella—a faded but sacred implement, always carefully dried, after using, and hung in the clothes press. We were drenched to the skin in spite of the umbrella. It was still raining when we arrived at the familiar door in Ashery lane. Uncle Peabody wouldn't stop.

He hurried away. We pioneers rarely stopped or even turned out for the weather.

"Come in," said the voice of the schoolmaster at the door. "There's good weather under this roof."

He saw my plight as I entered. "I'm like a shaggy dog that's been in swimming," I said.

"Upon my word, boy, we're in luck," remarked the schoolmaster.

I looked up at him. "Michael Henry's clothes!—sure, they're just the thing for you!"

I followed him upstairs, wondering how it had happened that Michael Henry had clothes.

He took me into his room and brought some handsome, soft clothes out of a press with shirt, socks and boots to match.

"There, my laddie buck," said he, "put them on."

"These will soon dry on me," I said.

"Put them on—ye laggard! Michael Henry told me to give them to you. It's the birthday night o' little Ruth, my boy. There's a big cake with candles and chicken pie and jellied cookies and all the like o' that. Put them on. A wet boy at the feast would dampen the whole proceedings."

I put them on and with a great sense of relief and comfort. They were an admirable fit—too perfect for an accident, although at the time I thought only of their grandeur as I stood surveying myself in the looking-glass. They were of blue cloth and I saw that they went well with my blond hair and light skin. I was putting on my collar and necktie when Mr. Hacket returned.

We went below and the table was very grand with its great frosted cake and its candles, in shiny brass sticks, and its jellies and preserves with the gleam of polished pewter among them. Mrs. Hacket and all the children, save Ruth, were waiting for us in the dining room.

"Now sit down here, all o' ye, with Michael Henry," said the schoolmaster. "The little lady will be impatient. I'll go and get her and God help us to make her remember the day."

He was gone a moment, only, when he came back with Ruth in lovely white dress and slippers and gay with ribbons, and the silver beads of Mary on her neck. We clapped our hands and cheered and, in the excitement of the moment, John tipped over his drinking glass and shattered it on the floor.

"Never mind, my brave lad—no glass ever perished in a better cause. God bless you!"

We ate and jested and talked, and the sound of our laughter drowned the cry of the wind in the chimney and the drumming of the rain upon the windows.

Next morning my clothes, which had been hung by the kitchen stove, were damp and wrinkled. Mr. Hacket came to my room before I had risen.

"Michael Henry would rather see his clothes hanging on a good boy than on a nail in the closet," said he. "Sure they give no comfort to the nail at all."

"I guess mine are dry now," I answered.

"They're wet and heavy, boy. No son o' Baldur could keep a light heart in them. Sure ye'd be as much out o' place as a sunbeam in a cave o' bats. If ye care not for your own comfort think o' the poor lad in the green chair. He's that proud and pleased to see them on ye it would be a shame to reject his offer. Sure, if they were dry yer own garments would be good enough, God knows, but Michael Henry loves the look o' ye in these togs, and then the president is in town."

That evening he discovered a big stain, black as ink, on my coat and trousers. Mr. Hacket expressed the opinion that it might have come from the umbrella, but I am quite sure that he had spotted them to save me from the last homemade suit I ever wore, save in rough work, and keep Michael Henry's on my back. In any event I wore them no more save at chore time.

Sally came and went, with the Wills boy, and gave no heed to me. In her eyes I had no more substance than a ghost, it seemed to me, although I caught her, often, looking at me. I judged that her father had given her a bad report of us and had some regrets, in spite of my knowledge that we were right, although they related mostly to Amos.

Next afternoon I saw Mr. Wright and the president walking back and forth on the bridge as they talked together. A number of men stood in front of the blacksmith shop, by the river shore, watching them, as I passed, on my way to the mill on an errand. The two statesmen were in broadcloth and white linen and beaver hats. They stopped as I approached them.

"Well, partner, we shall be leaving in an hour or so," said Mr. Wright as he gave me his hand. "You may look for me here soon after the close of the session. Take care of yourself and go often to see Mrs. Wright and obey your captain and remember me to your aunt and uncle."

"See that you keep coming, my good boy," said the president as he gave me his hand, with playful reference, no doubt, to Mr. Wright's remark that I was a coming man.

"Bart, I've some wheat to be thrashed in the barn on the back lot," said the senator as I was leaving them. "You can do it Saturdays, if you care to, at a shilling an hour. Stack the straw out of doors until you've finished, then put it back in the bay. Winnow the wheat carefully and sack it and bring it down to the granary and I'll settle with you when I return."

I remember that a number of men who worked in Grimshaw's sawmill were passing as he spoke.

"Yes, sir," I answered, much elated by the prospect of earning money.

The examination of Amos was set down for Monday and the people of the village were stirred and shaken by wildest rumors regarding the evidence to be adduced. Every day men and women stopped me in the street to ask what I knew of the murder. I followed the advice of Bishop Perkins and kept my knowledge to myself.

Saturday came, and when the chores were done I went alone to the grain barn in the back lot of the senator's farm with flail and measure and broom and fork and shovel and sacks and my luncheon, in a pushcart, with all of which Mrs. Wright had provided me.

It was a lonely place with woods on three sides of the field and a road on the other. I kept laying down beds of wheat on the barn floor and beating them out with the flail until the sun was well over the roof, when I sat down to eat my luncheon. Then I swept up the grain and winnowed out the chaff and filled one of my sacks. That done, I covered the floor again and the thump of the flail eased my loneliness until in the middle of the afternoon two of my schoolmates came and asked me to go swimming with them. The river was not forty rods away and a good trail led to the swimming hole. It was a warm, bright day and I was hot and thirsty. The thought of cool waters and friendly companionship was too much for me. I went with them and stayed with them longer than I intended. I remember saying as I dressed that I should have to work late and go without my supper in order to finish my stint.

It was almost dark when I was putting the last sack of wheat into my cart, in the gloomy barn and getting ready to go.

A rustling in the straw where I stood stopped me suddenly. I heard stealthy footsteps in the darkness. I stood my ground and demanded: "Who's there?"

I saw a form approaching in the gloom with feet as noiseless as a cat's. I took a step backward and, seeing that it was a woman, stopped.

"It's Kate," came in a hoarse whisper as I recognized her form and staff. "Run, boy—they have just come out o' the woods. I saw them. They will take you away. Run."

She had picked up the flail, and now she put it in my hands and gave me a push toward the door. I ran, and none too quickly, for I had not gone fifty feet from the barn in the stubble when I heard them coming after me, whoever they were. I saw that they were gaining and turned quickly. I had time to raise my flail and bring it down upon the head of the leader, who fell as I had seen a beef fall under the ax. Another man stopped beyond the reach of my flail and, after a second's hesitation, turned and ran away in the darkness.

I Had Time to Raise My Flail and Bring It Down Upon the Head of the Leader.

I could hear or see no other motion in the field. I turned and ran on down the slope toward the village. In a moment I saw someone coming out of the maple grove at the field's end, just ahead, with a lantern.

Then I heard the voice of the schoolmaster saying:

"Is it you, my lad?"

"Yes," I answered, as I came up to him and Mary, in a condition of breathless excitement.

I told them of the curious adventure I had had.

"Come quick," said the schoolmaster. "Let's go back and find the man in the stubble."

I remembered that I had struck the path in my flight just before stopping to swing the flail. The man must have fallen very near it. Soon we found where he had been lying and drops of fresh blood on the stubble.

"Hush," said the schoolmaster.

We listened and heard a wagon rattling at a wild pace down the road toward the river.

"There he goes," said Mr. Hacket. "His companions have carried him away. Ye'd be riding in that wagon now, yerself, my brave lad, if ye hadn't 'a' made a lucky hit with the flail—God bless ye!"

"What would they 'a' done with me?" I asked.

"Oh, I reckon they'd 'a' took ye off, lad, and kep' ye for a year or so until Amos was out o' danger," said Mr. Hacket. "Maybe they'd drowned ye in the river down there an' left yer clothes on the bank to make it look like an honest drowning. The devil knows what they'd 'a' done with ye, laddie buck. We'll have to keep an eye on ye now, every day until the trial is over—sure we will. Come, we'll go up to the barn and see if Kate is there."

Just then we heard the receding wagon go roaring over the bridge on Little river. Mary shuddered with fright. The schoolmaster reassured us by saying:

"Don't be afraid. I brought my gun in case we'd meet a painter. But the danger is past."

He drew a long pistol from his coat pocket and held it in the light of the lantern.

The loaded cart stood in the middle of the barn floor, where I had left it, but old Kate had gone. We closed the barn, drawing the cart along with us. When we came into the edge of the village I began to reflect upon the strange peril out of which I had so luckily escaped. It gave me a heavy sense of responsibility and of the wickedness of men.

I thought of old Kate and her broken silence. For once I had heard her speak. I could feel my flesh tingle when I thought of her quick words and her hoarse, passionate whisper.

I knew, or thought I knew, why she took such care of me. She was in league with the gallowes and could not bear to see it cheated of its prey. For some reason she hated the Grimshaws. I had seen the hate in her eyes the day she dogged along behind the old money lender through the streets of the village when her pointing finger had seemed to say to me: "There, there is the man who has brought me to this. He has put these rags upon my back, this fire in my heart, this wild look in my eyes. Wait and you will see what I will put upon him."

I knew that old Kate was not the irresponsible, witless creature that people thought her to be. I had begun to think of her with a kind of awe as one gifted above all others. One by one the things she had said of the future seemed to be coming true.

As we were going into the house the schoolmaster said:

"Now, Mary, you take this lantern and go across the street to the house o' Deacon Binks, the constable. You'll find him asleep by the kitchen stove. Arrest his slumbers, but not ruelly, and, when he has come to, tell him that I have news o' the devil."

Deacon Binks arrived, a fat man with a big, round body and a very wise and serious countenance between side whiskers bending from his temple to his neck and suggesting parentheses of hair, as if his head and its accessories were in the nature of a side issue. He and the schoolmaster went out of doors and must have talked together while I was eating a bowl of bread and milk which Mrs. Hacket had brought to me.

When I went to bed, by and by, I heard somebody snoring on the little porch under my window. The first sound that reached my ear at the break of dawn was the snoring of some sleeper. I dressed and went below and found the constable in his coonskin overcoat asleep on the porch with a long-barreled gun at his side. While I stood there the schoolmaster came around the corner of the house from the garden. He put his hand on the deacon's shoulder and gave him a little shake.

"Awake, ye limb o' the law," he demanded. "Prayer is better than sleep."

The deacon arose and stretched himself and cleared his throat and assumed an air of alertness and said it was a fine morning, which it was not, the sky being overcast and the air dark and chilly. Mr. Hacket removed his greatcoat and threw it on the stoop saying:

"Deacon, you lay there. From now on I'm constable and ready for any act that may be necessary to maintain the law. I can be as severe as Napoleon Bonaparte and as cunning as Satan, if I have to be."

While I was milking the deacon sat on a bucket in the doorway of the stable and snored until I had finished. He awoke when I loosed the cow and the constable went back to the pasture with me, yawning with his hand over his mouth much of the way. The deacon leaned his elbow on the top of the pen and snored again, lightly, while I mixed the feed for the pigs. Mr. Hacket met us at the kitchen door, where Deacon Binks said to him:

"If you'll look after the boy today I'll go home and get a little rest."

"God bless yer soul, ye had a busy night," said the schoolmaster with a smile.

He added as he went into the house: "I never knew a man to rest with more energy and persistence. It was a perfect flood o' rest. It kept me awake until long after midnight."

NEW LAW IN FORCE

When a "Road Closed" sign is posted, practically everybody observes it. But there are always a few wise guys who think it cunning to disregard the signs. In fact, they have even been known to tear down the barricade that has been erected and drive over unfinished roads, much to the damage of the road and annoyance of the builders. Among the new laws which went into effect last week is one that provides a fine of $50 or a county jail term for doing this very thing. An arrest or two in connection with this matter will have a tendency to show these people that they do not own the road.

SEEK PROTECTION FOR MICHIGAN PEA BEANS

BEAN DEALERS OF STATE APPEAL TO CONGRESSMAN FORDNEY FOR HELP.

Committee Will Visit Washington October 13 to Urge Tariff Law

Japanese white beans were sold on the Pacific coast recently for five cents per pound, and with transportation charges added might have been sold in a wholesale way in this section of the United States for 6 1/2 cents per pound. These beans compare quite favorably with Michigan Pea beans, and in the face of such competition, bean dealers declare they are unable to pay Michigan farmers more than they are now paying, or indeed a profitable price for their crop.

Last week the Michigan Bean Jobbers met in Detroit, and invited Congressman Fordney to be present. He replied that it was impossible for him to be there, but that he would arrange a hearing before the committee on ways and means of which he is chairman, for October 13, and suggested that a committee of the bean men should come to Washington and lay before the committee on Ways and Means, such information as would assist in preserving the great Michigan industry. He added that no action was possible before January.

The bean jobbers point to the fact that while grain, hay and other farm products have doubled in price, beans have advanced but little. In October 1915 they brot the farmer $3.40 per bushel and today they are only $3.75. In contrast to that advance, it is further pointed out that a grain binder could be bought in 1915 for $125. The price now is $240. An Oliver plow then cost $14, while today it is $30. Plow points then were 35 cents each, now 85 cents; a team harness, then $45, now $100. Wagons have jumped from $65 to $125; bean pullers from $24 to $45, and farm labor from $2 to $3.50 per day.

Such comparisons are expected to impress the members of the Ways and Means committee of Congress with the importance of protecting the farmers of America from the cheaper labor of Japan, and secure to Michigan growers of beans, a fair price.

At the meeting in Detroit a committee was appointed to visit Washington as suggested by Mr. Fordney, in the hope that the present Congress may impose a tariff on the imported beans which will properly protect the American farmer.

From the length of the list of dates for the auctioneers in Huron county it would appear that most of the farmers are selling their stock and implements, and many quitting their farms entirely. From Sept. 26 to Oct. 28 there is a sale scheduled for every day except Sundays and one Saturday and on some of these dates there are two and three sales.

WOMEN WORKERS FROM 34 NATIONS ASKED TO CONGRESS

First International Conference in History of World Opens at Washington, D. C., October 23.

NEW RESPONSIBILITIES TO BE DISCUSSED

National Women's Trade Union League of America to Act as Hostess—Belgium and Great Britain Send Distinguished Women as Advisors.

Working women from all parts of the globe will gather in Washington on October 23 at the invitation of the National Women's Trade Union League of America to take part in the first International Congress of Working Women ever held in the history of the world.

An official call to the conference has been sent to labor organizations in thirty-four countries asking that they send delegates to the conference. Each country is entitled to ten delegates and to ten votes on the floor of the congress; also to one member on the executive committee. So far Finland, Czechoslovakia, Poland, France, Japan, Belgium, England, the Argentine and Canada have announced delegates for the congress, Belgium being the first to announce that Mme. Victoire Cappe, who had been chosen to serve as an advisor at the international labor conference called for October 29, would arrive in the United States in time to serve as one of the two Belgian delegates at the women's congress. Margaret Bondfield, secretary of the National Federation of Women Workers in Great Britain, who will also serve as an advisor to the British delegation at the labor conference, is coming to take her place on the floor of the Congress of Working Women.

It was Miss Bondfield who, during her visit to the United States in the spring and early summer, presented to the Women's Trade Union League, assembled in the seventh biennial convention of that organization in Philadelphia in June, the resolution of the standing committee of the Women's Industrial Organizations of England that the American league be asked to call an International Congress of Working Women to meet in the United States in the autumn. Such a conference had been previously discussed by women's labor organizations of various countries and would have been held in a European city probably had not the League of Nations society decided upon Washington as the meeting place for an international labor conference.

The committee on international relations of the Women's Trade Union League, which is in charge of the congress, has as its chairman Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the league; Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor; Miss Agnes Nestor, vice president of the International Glove Workers' union; Miss Julia O'Connor, president of the Telephone Operators' union, and Miss Rose Schneidermann, president of the New York Women's Trade Union League.

In discussing the congress, Mrs. Robins says: "Women must come forward now and accept their responsibilities. They can no longer have their affairs attended to by proxy. Men cannot bear the entire responsibility for the world. They must be assisted by women, and the women should come forth willingly, prepared to take up their share of the burden of seeing that things go right with the world. At the Congress of Working Women we will discuss problems affecting women which we, as women workers, are particularly able to consider, that we may recommend how conditions of the labor of women and children can be improved."

CZECHO-SLOVAKS TO ATTEND CONGRESS

Two Women Delegates Will Represent Poland at International Gathering on October 23.

Two industrial women workers are on their way from Czechoslovakia and four on their way from Poland to attend the International Congress of Working Women in Washington, October 23d, according to cables received by Miss Mary Anderson, secretary of the committee on International Relationships of the National Women's Trade Union League of America, who is in charge of arrangements.

Miss Anderson has also been advised that the Telephone Operators' Association of the Argentine will send a representative to the Congress at the earliest possible moment that transportation facilities will permit. Two delegates are also en route from Belgium, and others from England, Switzerland, Japan and Italy.

DEFORD.

At the corn cutting contest on the farm of John Clark, west of town, R. E. Johnson came out ahead with the Massey Harris corn harvester, being able to elevate a heavy growth of corn and sunflower stalks combined.

We notice several families of foreigners moving west of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Benedict have gone back to Royal Oak, Mr. Benedict is some better but not fully recovered from the effects of the stroke.

We see the familiar form of Clarence Chadwick in town again.

We notice the Thomas family here again to attend to their auction sale and other business.

R. E. Johnson has the new doors on his implement house.

Oscar Valentine is helping F. E. Johnson in evertroughing round about the settlement.

The household goods of Charles Osburn, went to North Branch by moving van the past week.

Retired teachers and married women, who taught in the long ago, are pressed into the work again.

Daniel Cole of Pontiac came Saturday evening to call on friends and kindred.

The new minister will move here this week.

Crosby, of the Bargain Store, will move into the Daugherty house this week, vacated by Charles Osburn.

If we could have a gravel donation and fill up from R. R. depot to Hack's hotel, high as the beet station road, it would be fine.

Henry Hilderbrand of Ferndale was in town the past week.

Our potato market has been up and down the past week. Imlay City man was paying $1.00 per bushel, then a local buyer appeared on the ground paying $1.10, but lasted only one day. Even money is all that is in sight now.

Gravelling on the mile south of the schoolhouse will commence this week if teams are to be found for the work.

Mrs. Josephine C. McCracken of Santa Cruz, California, is the oldest newspaper woman in the United States, still in active work at 80. Of course, all who possess said name heave forth a broad and beautiful smile.

Sugar Beet Notes—A beet picked from the wagon of Frank Hegler weighed 8 lbs., and 7 oz. Largest load brought in by Henry Cooklin, full weight including wagon, 9600; weight of beets, 7,330 lbs. Beets brought in Oct. 11, 140 tons, one weighing station alone taking in 95 tons. There have been shipped out from here 205 tons. There are now on the dump ground 680 tons. This makes a total of beets delivered here to date Oct. 13, 885 tons. It is safe to say that less than half the growers have commenced beet harvest and readers of the Chronicle will hear surprising figures before Dec. 1. Will not take notice!

Talk about adventures!

Men in the Navy come home with the kind of experiences that most chaps read of only in the books.

Here's your chance!

Uncle Sam has, as you know, a big Navy and gives red-blooded young fellows like you an opportunity to step aboard and "shove off".

What will you get out of it? Just this:

A chance to rub elbows with foreign folks in strange parts of the world.

The chance for good honest work on shipboard—the kind of work that teaches you something real; the kind of work that puts beef on your shoulders and hair on your chest.

You will get 30 care-free vacation days a year, not counting shore leave in home or foreign ports.

You will have the kind of comradeship in travel that sailors know.

You will have regular pay, over and above your meals, lodging and your first uniform outfit—good stuff all of it.

You can join for two years. When you get through you'll be physically and mentally "tuned up" for the rest of your life. You'll be ready through and through for SUCCESS.

There's a Recruiting Station right near you. If you don't know where it is, your Postmaster will be glad to tell you.

To any Father and Mother:—

In the Navy your boy's food, health, work and play, and moral welfare are looked after by responsible experts.
