TERCENTENARY PROGRAM GIVEN BY PUBLIC SCHOOL

The grade teachers of our public school are very busy at the present time preparing a program, celebrating the three hundredth anniversary of the "Landing of the Pilgrims." This program will be given at Opera House on the evening of November 23.

The main feature of the evening will be a play entitled, "The Pilgrims in Their Three Homes." Songs, drills and recitations will help to give variety to the program. With these numbers and the assistance of the high school chorus, the school expects to give a program which will be of exceptional interest to the parents and friends of the school.

This anniversary will be celebrated by the public schools throughout the nation.

Come and let all catch the real "Thanksgiving" spirit. Are you willing to help your children make the program a success?

Attending physician could not determine as to the extent of injury, but gave hopes of recovery. Later reports say the child will recover.

WESLEY WALTERS

Former Elmwood Farmer Passed Away at Home Near Inlay City.

After an illness of several months, James Wesley Walters passed away Nov. 4 at his home near Inlay City. James Wesley Walters was born June 10, 1895, in Elmwood township, Tuscola county. He was united in marriage to Miss Eleanor Lounsbury in 1913. To this union were born three children, Myrtle now six years of age, Stanley two years and Harley, who preceded his father in death.

Mr. Walters was a farmer in Elmwood township until nearly two years ago. In March, 1919, he moved to his father's farm near Inlay City.

He was a member of the I. O. O. F. and M. W. A. orders. The Odd Fellows conducted the funeral services which were held in the M. E. church. Beside his wife and two children, he leaves to mourn his loss, a father, mother and three brothers, Eldon and William of Detroit and Lee at home, also two aged grandmothers.

People from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. T. Lounsbury, Mr. and Mrs. P. Livingston, Mrs. C. Hisey, Mrs. M. Parker, Mrs. Wm. Walters, Mrs. Geo. Peddie, Mrs. H. E. Comfort, James Peddie, B. Crane and daughters, Catherine and Florence, all of Cass City; Mr. and Mrs. T. Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. CASS CITY TRIMS PIGEON; LOSES TO BAD AXE

Visiting Team from County Seat Was Loyally Supported by 150 Admirers.

Pigeon high school was defeated at Cass City by the local high school team Wednesday afternoon by a score of 67-7. It could not be classed as foot ball, but was a walk-away for the local bunch. Carelessness on the part of the local players allowed the visitors a touchdown.

Cass City was defeated by Bad Axe in a hard fought contest Friday afternoon on local grounds by a score of 14-0. Both touchdowns were made by Bad Axe in the first quarter, after which the locals tightened up and kept the visitors from adding to their score. Cass City held Bad Axe exceptionally well on line crashes, but the visitors had the advantage on open plays. This was evidenced especially in the early period of the game when Adams, Bad Axe's star back, made both touchdowns on end runs.

The largest foot ball crowd in years was present on the grounds Friday. Bad Axe schools closed at one o'clock and 150 business men and students accompanied their team to Cass City and supporters of the local team were present in greater numbers.

Saturday, the local team plays Bay City Western here and next Tuesday Caro high school plays at Cass City.

ANOTHER "TEMPORARY" SCHOOL FOR CARO

Unusual interest was shown by Caro citizens at a special school meeting Monday when 498 votes were cast to determine whether the Atwood residence property would be purchased and remodeled as a temporary school building. The proposition was carried by a 330 to 165 vote.

The newly purchased property to be used for a temporary school has served at Caro's only hospital the past few years. As no other building is available for a hospital, Caro will have to cease having such and patronize nearby hospitals. It is understood that the new building will house the county normal and primary grades and will care for about 150 children.

This is the third "temporary" school building Caro has acquired in the past 12 years.

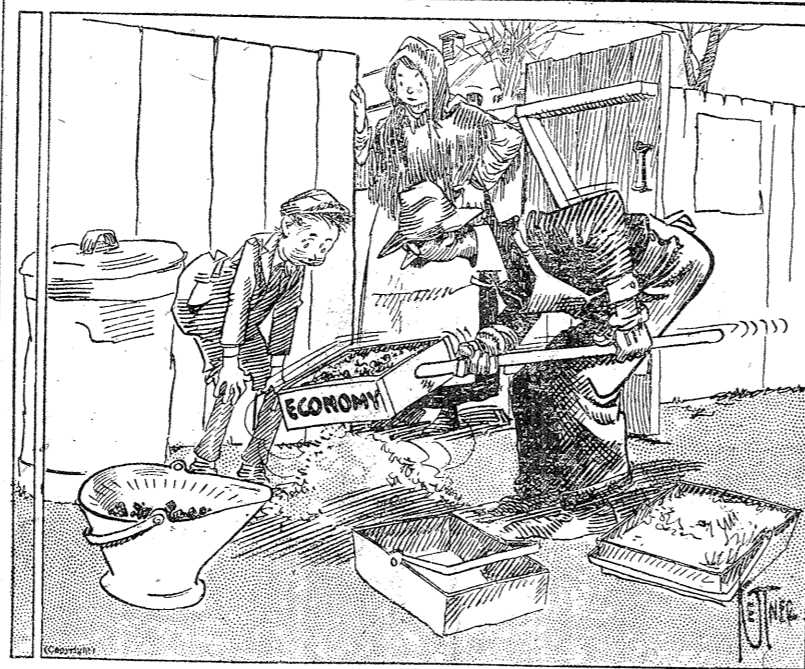

KINGSTON POST OFFICE AND PHARMACY ROBBED

HE IS COMING.

Parsons, the eye man, will make his next regular trip to Cass City on Tuesday, Nov. 16, and can be consulted at Dr. Morris' office where he will test eyes and fit glasses from 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.—Adv.

PASSING OF EARLY RESIDENT OF ELKLAND TOWNSHIP

The Funeral of Mrs. Samuel W. Striffler Was Held Monday Afternoon.

Mrs. Samuel W. Striffler, for many years an invalid, passed away at her home on South Seeger St., Cass City, Thursday afternoon, Nov. 4, at the age of 60 years.

Pauline Ahr was born Oct. 2, 1860, in Bridgeport, Conn. At the age of eight years, she came to Cass City with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Ahr. This family was among the first settlers in Elkland township, saw it pass through the ravages of two forest fires in '71 and '81 and witnessed the transformation from virgin forests to a rich agricultural section. Miss Ahr resided in Cass City until 1882 when on May 9 she was united in marriage with Samuel W. Striffler. They lived on a farm near Cass City, where their children were born, until December 1891 when the family moved to Argyle chiefly because of Mrs. Striffler's failing health. Here Mr. Striffler was engaged in the mercantile business for 28 years.

Mrs. Striffler was brought to Pleasant Home Hospital at Cass City last February where she remained several months. When Mr. and Mrs. Striffler purchased a home on South Seeger St. recently, she was moved there where her death occurred last Thursday.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Evangelical church where Mrs. Striffler was a member previous to her residence at Argyle. Rev. J. A. Yeomans of Midland, a former pastor of the M. E. church at Argyle where Mrs. Striffler was a faithful member, officiated at the service, assisted by Rev. Wm. Richards, pastor of the local M. E. church, and Rev. Bowman, pastor of the Argyle church. Songs were touchingly rendered by Mrs. Grace Wilder Harris of Caro and floral offerings were many and of rare beauty. A large number of friends of the family came from Argyle and Hay Creek and the church never held a larger audience at a similar service.

Rev. Yeomans spoke appreciatively of Mrs. Striffler's helpfulness and encouragement in the church work at Argyle where she served the congregation in several official capacities. Among a host of friends, she ranked always as a woman of refinement and sympathy, a kind neighbor, devoted mother and a true friend, and withal a woman of heroic mould in bravely meeting the disappointments of life incident to prolonged illness. Flowers not thorns, sunshine not shadow, did she scatter everywhere.

Besides her husband, she leaves five children, Mrs. J. A. Sandham and Mrs. Angus McPhail, both of Cass City, Mrs. Wm. Moreton of Detroit, Fred C. Striffler of Caro and Dr. Harry Striffler of Pontiac; three sisters, Mrs. C. O. Lenzner of Cass City, Mrs. Emma Gamble of Flint and Mrs. Lydia Royer of New York City; and one brother, T. H. Ahr of Ferris, Idaho. One son, Edward H., preceded Mrs. Striffler in death in 1903.

Relatives and friends from a distance in attendance at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moreton of Detroit, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Striffler, Mr. and Mrs. Howell and W. H. Cooper of Caro, Mrs. Lydia Royer of New York City, Mrs. Emma Gamble of Flint, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Muel-lerweiss and daughter, Claudia, of Sebawaing, Mrs. Ida Heid, Mrs. Henry Schust, Mrs. Sophia Housner and Mrs. Jos. Ackerman, all of Saginaw, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lagden of Bay City and Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Muck of Colwood.

The Misses Emma and Gladys Lenzner were guests of Mrs. George Carolan in Gagetown Thursday.

HOLD-UPS ON SHORE PIKE

The Lexington correspondent to the Crosswell Jeffersonian says: "It is reported that there have been several 'hold-ups' on the Shore Pike between Lexington and Port Huron. Nothing serious seems to have resulted, the desperadoes seeming to have been amateurs, their victims getting the better of them in each case. However, it will be just as well to go armed, as there seems to be an epidemic of robberies, hold-ups, etc., sweeping the country, and this section is bound to come in for its share sooner or later."

WHOOPIING COUGH AND AUTO ACCIDENTS

The Causes for Both Are Due to Extreme Negligence by People.

Deaths from whooping cough and from automobile accidents, totaling 398 and 238 respectively for the first nine months of this year in Michigan, are both due to the same cause, according to Dr. Wm. J. V. Deacon, director of the bureau of communicable diseases of the Michigan Department of Health. That cause, he asserts, is carelessness.

One-half of the cases of whooping cough occur among children under three years of age, Dr. Deacon declares, and the sole exciting cause is contagion. By far the greater number of children exposed to whooping cough take it. Momentary exposure is enough to transmit the infection to another person. It is here that carelessness enters in.

There would be no epidemics of whooping cough if parents regarded the health of other people's children half as much as their own. Under no circumstances should the child suffer from whooping cough be permitted to come in contact with other children.

Parents who have been accustomed to allow their children to play with a child who "whoops", on the theory that they must have the disease sometime anyway, are nothing short of criminal. Danger from whooping cough is two-fold, danger of the fatality of the disease itself and danger of attacks of tuberculosis and pneumonia following the weakened condition in which the cough leaves a child.

Whooping cough will be more prevalent during the next few months, according to predictions of the department of health: With the arrival of cold weather, children are forced to play within doors and in poorly ventilated rooms, thus coming in closer contact with each other and raising the chances of infection. Then, too, the child is often forced to call upon reserve strength during the cold weather, and due to a weakened condition from colds, is more susceptible to whooping cough.

CIVIC LEAGUE TO DEAL WITH CIGARET QUESTION

Crosswell's citizens who are alarmed at the rapid growth of the cigaret habit among the youth of that town, have formed a civic league to deal with the question. The league will probably investigate other infringements of the law in that community.

OBITUARY—LUCILE BUTLER.

The funeral of little Lucile Butler took place on Friday last at the home, four miles north and one mile west of town. She was suffering from pneumonia and peritonitis and was taken to Bad Axe hospital where she died on Wednesday.

The sermon was preached in Bethel church at 2:30 on Friday afternoon. Rev. Wm. Richards officiated and the following cousins of the deceased acted as pall bearers: Carl Robinson, Kenneth Butler, Orval Karr and Preston Karr. Interment was made in Elkland cemetery.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selah Butler, have sustained a great loss, as Lucile was their only child. The sympathy of the entire community is with them.

VASSAR BOY STABBED BY DEMENTED MAN

Eight-year-old School Boy Succumbs to Most Horrible Death.

R. D. Ward, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Ward of Vassar, was stabbed twice in the abdomen Monday afternoon by Guy Johnson, a paralytic of unbalanced mind. The lad was hurried to a Saginaw hospital where he died Tuesday night.

The lad had entered the home of Mrs. Asa Streeter to sell tickets for a high school "movie." Johnson, a brother of Mrs. Streeter, had been left alone in the house and when the boy entered the home, Johnson grabbed the boy, choked him and then stabbed him with a pair of shears, penetrating the bowels and bladder. Johnson is in the county jail facing a charge of murder in the first degree.

LARGE YIELD OF CORN

IN MICHIGAN IN 1920

This Year's Record Is 40 Bushels to Acre; Total Crop, 66,000,000 Bushels.

The joint crop report for November 1, issued by Coleman C. Vaughan, Secretary of State, and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Crop Estimates, indicates an increase over earlier estimates in the volume of the corn crop, and a slight decrease in the potato, clover seed and buckwheat crops. The month of October was exceptionally favorable for harvesting the late fall crops, and the greater part of the work is completed. There is considerable corn yet to be husked and some fall plowing and threshing to be done. Recent rains are aiding the growth of fall-sown wheat and rye, pastures and seeding.

The estimated yield of corn is 40 bushels to the acre. This is one of the largest yields on record and one bushel more than last year. The total crop for the State is 66,000,000 bushels, and for the United States 3,139,126,000 bushels. 34 per cent of the State's acreage went into silos, the average yield being 7.8 tons of silage per acre. The quality is unusually good being 92 per cent, or 15 per cent better than the average of the last ten years. 85 per cent of the crop is estimated to be of merchantable quality. The amount of last year's crop remaining on farms is 3.5 per cent.

The estimated amount of wheat marketed at mills and elevators in the State during October is 1,270,000 bushels, and the total amount since August 1, 4,999,000 bushels.

The yield of potatoes is found to be 107 bushels per acre. This is the largest yield per acre since 1914 but, owing to a considerably less acreage, the production is about 10,000,000 bushels less than in that year. The yield is variable. Some counties in the western half of the State reported as low as 80 bushels per acre, while some eastern and Upper Peninsula counties averaged as high as 150 and 175 bushels per acre. The quality is generally good, the average being 94 per cent against a ten-year average of 87 per cent. The United States crop is placed at 421,252,000 bushels, the largest crop on record with one exception.

The yield of buckwheat is 16 bushels per acre making a total crop of 672,000 bushels or slightly more than was produced in 1919. The quality is 92 per cent, four per cent above the ten-year average.

The clover seed crop amounts to 122,000 bushels, a reduction from last month's estimate of 20,000 bushels. Later threshing returns show a marked falling off in the average yield. The quality is very good. There is considerable seed yet to be threshed.

Michigan's production of pears, grapes and apples proved to be exceedingly large, the percentages being 100, 104 and 106 per cent respectively. The quality was generally good except that apples were severely attacked by scab in some northwestern counties, and by side worms in some of the southwestern sections. The quality of grapes has probably never been excelled, and the prices obtained were very satisfactory. On the other hand, the prices offered for apples and pears were very low in comparison to the cost of picking, packing and marketing, and considerable quantities were allowed to go to waste in some orchards.

The harvesting of sugar beets is nearly completed. The lifting and hauling of the beets was done with unusual speed because of the favorable weather conditions that prevailed during the time. The condition of the crop at time of harvest was 93 per cent as compared with a ten-year average of 86 per cent.

A special inquiry relative to the quality of the bean crop shows the average to be 96 per cent, and that the average pick is 3.5 per cent, which is equivalent to 2.1 pounds per bushel.

Mrs. A. J. Knapp, sr., had the pleasure of casting her first vote for president on her 84th birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Moden were among the early settlers clearing a farm from a wilderness state. They retired from farm life several years ago. After raising their family of two sons to manhood, they brought up two beautiful granddaughters, Beulah and Ellenor. Funeral services were very largely attended and were held at the M. E. church. Mr. Moden is grief stricken over his great loss. Besides her husband, she leaves two sons, three grandchildren, and many friends to miss her.

Farm Auctions.

Are in full swing. No longer can they be considered to be a Fall and Winter epidemic. They are a regular order of things in farming circles at this season of the year and are a proper and legitimate means for a farmer, who is retiring or who is overstocked with live stock, implements, or any other thing of value to dispose of same.

It is evidence of good sense on the buyer's part to patronize these auctions, if he buys only what he needs or can see a profit in. If he cannot pay cash, he has no objection to a credit.

One of this bank's functions is to supply a Clerk for these sales. We handle all the financial details, arrange the settlements, buy the notes that we approve, if the owner desires; all for a very small fee.

If you contemplate having an auction sale, we will be glad to clerk it for you.

UNIFORMITY

Housewives sometimes wonder at the amazing uniformity of DULUTH IMPERIAL FLOUR.

There is no mystery connected with milling flour of uniform high quality.

The advantageous location of our mills affords us a better selection of the choicer grades of wheat, but aside from that the explanation is simply a matter of painstaking adherence to an ideal.

CHAPTER VI.

Propinquity.

When the bland vice president bowed Clinton out the latter's draft had been cashed. Bemm introduced the first assistant cashier, who, smiling curiously at Clinton, handed him his money.

"Time to go, eh, what?" said Bemm. "Needn't remind me. You're not the only one made hungry by watching these laboring slaves of Mammon. We'll stroll up to the club for a bite of lunch."

"The club?" inquired Clinton. "To be sure—the club. That's one on you, old man. It's rich taking you as a guest to one of your own clubs. Come and be introduced to some of your fellow members."

Clinton responded with the quizzical look that indicated a decided streak of waggery in his present personality: "All right. I'm with you."

The answer put Bemm into the best of humor. His geniality became rather forced, however, when at luncheon Clinton not only refused wine but persisted in talking on impersonal topics. This last may have been due either to the reticence of good breeding or to a consciousness of guilt, or to an antipathy toward Bemm.

When they left the club Bemm suggested that they stroll over to the Athletic club.

They entered the dressing room, where Bemm signed to the attendant in charge. "Open Mr. Lowrie's locker, will you, Jones? He has forgotten his key."

"Lowrie?" muttered Clinton. "Saves an awkward explanation, y'know," replied Bemm. "You'll need only the shoes; but it's as well for you to stow your coat and hat in the locker they think is yours."

A few minutes later the two, stripped to their sleeveless undershirts, were facing each other in one of the boxing rooms. The instructor, who had greeted Clinton as "Mr. Lowrie," was even quicker than had been Bemm to note his splendid muscular development.

Bemm paused a moment after Clinton took position. The latter edged closer to him. Bemm dropped his hands.

"Wait!" he said sharply. "That mark on your arm."

Clinton twisted the arm around. "What do you mean? I see no mark."

"Nor do I. That's just it," rejoined

Bemm. "It's not there now. You know, Red—the brownish blotch—birthmark."

"Sure," agreed the instructor, starting curiously. "Have you been to a beauty doc, Mr. Lowrie?"

Clinton looked at the two with a quizzical smile. "You say I used to have a birthmark on my arm?"

"Size of a dollar, on the outside, three inches below the elbow," concisely stated Bemm.

"And now it is not there," remarked Clinton. He held the arm out to the instructor.

"That's a slick job, Mr. Lowrie," the man commented. "No scar; no sign it was ever there. How'd you do it?"

For the first time since mid-afternoon the shadow of doubt in Clinton's eyes gave place to a twinkle. "It's a process not yet fully understood," he answered. "In a few days, however, I may be able to explain it."

"A very few days, I hope," added Bemm.

He put up his hands in response to Clinton's resumption of boxing position, and they began a lively round of sparring. He started a trifle slow, as if his thoughts were not entirely centered on the contest. This was succeeded with a burst of speed that would have disconcerted even some professional boxers. Clinton met it with a cool ring generalship that frequently put his more agile adversary at a disadvantage.

At the end of the round, provoked that he had come out second best, Bemm called for another. Clinton shook his head. "I am warm enough already," he said.

"Very well," assented Bemm. "We'll call it off for this time. How about a swim?"

"Just a shower," said Clinton. "I wish to go out and learn if Doctor Kirkland has heard."

Bemm nodded and took his companion back to the dressing room, where they shifted into bathrobes. Clinton was first ready, and Bemm waved the attendant to take his towels in to the shower bath.

"Go ahead, old man," he said to Clinton. "I'll be along in half a minute."

Clinton followed the attendant. The door closed behind him. Bemm was alone in the dressing room. The Lowrie locker was next to his own. With a calculated swiftness that lost no instant in unnecessary movements he opened the locker and began searching the pockets of his companion's suit. Everything that he drew out he examined with quick but minute scrutiny and then carefully replaced it.

There was one exception. Almost the last article that he found was a key such as is used for safe deposit boxes. This he did not replace in the deep inside pocket of the waistcoat from which he had taken it. After a single keen glance he thrust it into one of his own pockets, closed both lockers, and hastened to the shower-bath room.

The companions returned to the dressing room together, but Bemm was the first dressed.

"Sorry, old man," he said. "I have an engagement that I cannot break. You might kill time in the smoking room. I'll come back in my car and take you up home."

Clinton hunted up the nearest telephone booth and called the Kirkland residence. Mrs. Kirkland responded in a tone that rendered needless her statement that she was delighted to be talking with him.

"You dear boy!" she cooed. "It's like your own real self to be so thoughtful, calling me up."

"Has that telegram—?" he asked.

"Not yet. When my husband left his office he ordered it delivered at your house. We dine with you and Amy this evening, so—"

"I regret that I am not quite ready to—," hesitated Clinton. "May I ask—You see, on account of Miss Kirkland, I would rather wait until—"

"Wait? The telegram may not come until dinner time. Surely you'll be home to dine?"

"Well—I am not quite—"

"You will not fail us?"

"Very well; you may count on me. Good-by!" Hastily he hung up the receiver.

Less than ten minutes later a taxi-cab brought him to the Lowrie house. As old Tillie opened the door she peered up the street and grunted with satisfaction: "Huh! You're all getting home all right, Mr. Will. There comes Miss Amy with Miss Ellen."

He jumped past her into the hall. "Don't tell them—that is, say I'm in Mr.—in my room, very busy."

His shaving set lay before him on the dresser. He looked from it to the carefully arranged evening clothes. The collar, tie, studs and links had all come from his suitcase. His forehead glistened in a puzzled frown.

"It certainly was locked," he murmured.

As he entered the parlor Tillie announced dinner. Ellen looked at him in tender expectation. He flushed, glanced at Amy, hesitated and stepped across to offer his arm to Mrs. Kirkland.

"Since all of you insist that I am the host, I shall do my duty as such," he smilingly remarked.

"Prim, prudent and precise," mocked Amy, and she transferred her hand from Bemm's arm to Doctor Kirkland's. "We stand corrected! Chawles, you may take in Miss Kirkland."

Clinton avoided Ellen's pitiful gaze. "The telegram has not yet come?" he asked the girl's mother.

"Not yet. . . . We expect it any minute."

"Should have come hours ago," added the physician.

"They're such slow pokes!" complained Amy.

Ellen sighed audibly. Even Bemm looked grave. The suspense of waiting for the delayed telegram was making every member of the party uneasy. Bemm may have had additional causes of worry, for his gravity deepened almost into moroseness.

Old Tillie, still red-faced from her culinary operations but neat and fresh as any young housemaid, brought in her last course. As she entered, the tinkle of the electric bell rang sharply through the open doorway.

"Land sakes! and me with my hands full!" she muttered.

"I'll go!" cried Amy. "It must be the telegram."

Impetuously she rose and flew into the front hall. In a few moments she came darting back, calling over her shoulder: "Hurry, please! please hurry!"

A blase messenger boy, with cap cocked over one ear, appeared in the dining room doorway. Amy waved him to the physician. "This way! This is Doctor Kirkland."

Doctor Kirkland handed the receipt book to the boy and caught up the telegram. He tore open the envelope and read the message. A frown creased his usually smooth forehead.

"O-o-oh, papa!" sighed Ellen. "Bad news!"

"H'm," he cleared his throat. "Listen. This is the answer to my inquiry: 'Regret superintendent away. On return he will wire full particulars.'"

CHAPTER VII.

High Stakes.

Instead of a climax, the message was an anti-climax. For a long moment all stared at the frowning physician.

Ellen was the first to speak. She looked appealingly at Clinton and whispered: "You—you will stay until—?"

"All right," cheerily rejoined Clinton. "On your heads be it! From now on I shall sit back and enjoy the comedy. It is delightful to be petted by a sweet little sister."

"How about a game of bridge?" suggested Bemm.

When, a few minutes later the party left the table, Doctor Kirkland went into the parlor with his wife. The young people stopped in the library. Promptly Bemm began courting Amy with a directness and ardor that at first both surprised and amused Ellen. Soon, however, her interest again centered on Clinton, who was regarding Bemm's gallantries with fast deepening displeasure.

From the parlor Mrs. Kirkland watched the young people with growing concern. Her husband, though his eyes were seemingly fixed on the pages of a newspaper, had not missed a single shade of change in Clinton's expression. Mrs. Kirkland talked in a desultory manner to conceal from the players the intensity of her interest. At last, however, she reached the utmost limits of her patience.

"My dear," she murmured, "something must be done. He is utterly neglecting the poor child. Can you not see how wretched she is? I gave her your advice to keep on trying. She has done so all evening, and yet look at him!"

"If it were not for Amy—" replied the physician. "That is the uncertain factor. I had hoped not a little from his manner toward Ellen during their drive to my office. But now—"

"Now?"

"H'm. It is difficult to say what is the nature of this concern for Amy."

"Karl! It's not possible you can mean—?"

"I do not say, as yet. It may be due to subconscious impulse—his opposition to Charlie before he went East."

"But this is frightful!"

"I give it as a possibility," said the physician. "Stop and consider, my dear. Suppose him what he believes himself to be—a stranger to us all."

"I cannot!"

"You must. As a double personality, he is in effect a stranger. To avert this possibility of a disaster, he must be led to choose Ellen."

"Ah!"

"You see now that it is a matter of greater urgency than we thought; not merely a question of trying to recall—"

"Yes, yes! I am fond of Charlie. If we can get her out of the way for a while— Sit still until I let you know."

Risping leisurely, Mrs. Kirkland went into the library. Bemm was taking in the winning trick of a game. She smiled and shook her finger at him. "How have you done it? You've won every time, in spite of Amy. It's wonderful luck."

"All due to my partner," replied Bemm. "She is the best of luck."

Amy jumped up to curtsy.

"Really, my dear, I did not come in to— But if you wish a change," murmured Mrs. Kirkland, and she took the girl's place at the card table. She met Bemm's attempt at a cordial smile with a look of playful severity. "No, you shall have no more chances to defeat poor Will and Ellen."

"Er—to be sure, if Doctor Kirkland wishes to play—" said Bemm, and he rose with alacrity.

Doctor Kirkland stopped in the doorway and stood waiting. His wife had gathered up the cards and was quietly shuffling them. Amy, who had drawn aside closely followed by Bemm, looked at Clinton and Ellen with a sudden change from merriment to grave delight.

Bemm caught the opportunity of her softened mood. "There's a full moon," he challenged. "Dare you to go out in the garden?"

"You think I'm afraid of the glamour?" she whispered. "I'll show you."

Clinton settled back in his chair and took up the cards dealt him by Mrs. Kirkland. Doctor Kirkland had taken Bemm's place. Soon all four players were intent on the game. Clinton gave closer attention to the cards and played better than when pitted against Bemm.

Evident as it was to her as well as to her parents that he still regarded her as a comparative stranger, Ellen was blissfully happy. Every time Clinton looked at her she blushed and smiled entrancingly. Under his gaze, her eyes, melting with tenderness, veiled themselves behind their long lashes, but at no time seemed able to turn away from him more than a moment. Though usually a better player than her mother, she was so overcome with ecstasy that she chose her cards at random.

As Doctor Kirkland announced the score, Clinton suddenly tore his gaze away from Ellen, and rose from the table, his face for the second time flushed and conscience-stricken.

"Pardon me, I—it is not right!" he exclaimed. "I must go—"

"Away?" cried Ellen.

"No, only—," he pointed upwards, and hurried out into the hall, to rush upstairs.

Instead of intruding upon old Tillie's domain, Amy and Bemm had gone out through the porte-cochere. The grape thatched pergola was ghostly dark. Amy darted ahead and out into the moonlit garden.

"I say," remarked Bemm when he overtook her, "what made you run away from me?"

"Run away?" she replied. "Is that the thanks I get for leading you out of the darkness?"

"I might have been lost." "Poor Chawles! But just so you did not lose your head!"

"It is on, fast and level. The proof of it is that I have lost something else—to you!"

"How bright the moon shines!" she bantered.

"Miss—Amy," he besought, "you know that for months there has been something I've wanted to tell you."

"Oh, look; there's a star up there," she teased.

"Look at me, and I'll see the brightest of all the stars!" he declared.

"How poetical! We shall now hear Mr. Chawles Bemm declaim his so-lovely ode to the silly night."

"Why do you keep ragging me?" he complained. "You know I'm in earnest; that I—"

"Really?—really and truly?" "Don't!" he burst out passionately. "Can't you see? If I were only flirting you'd not have such an advantage. But when for almost two years—You know I love you! You know that you're the only one!"

Again he sought to clasp her hand. Again she eluded him. But her look had sobered. She no longer regarded him with a teasing glance and bantering smile.

"I am sorry, Charlie," she said. "I did not believe you could be so serious."

"Not serious?" he rejoined. "Just because I like to enjoy things—as you do!"

"But I am only a girl. It's different when a man—"

"Is there any one else?" he interrupted.

"No," she candidly answered. "There is no young man I like better than you—except, of course, Will!"

He smiled with renewed hope. "Only your brother? Then I, of all the fellows who—Amy, you do love me! You must love me!"

"Don't be silly, just because I said I liked you."

"If you like me you'll soon learn to love me."

"I'm sure I don't know."

"You'll try. Promise me you'll try." She looked at him, her eyebrows peaked with doubt. "I'm so sorry, Charlie," she replied. "Really I don't know what to say. Since Will came home I've—I've felt rather differently."

Bemm frowned and rejoined in an almost blustering tone: "Then he has been knocking me!"

It was the girl's turn to flush. "Mr. Bemm, you forget yourself. You are speaking of my brother."

"You are mistaken. It's he that forgets himself. He forgets—"

"Need you remind me? It's—it's bad enough without your reminding me! Be so kind as to stand aside. I am going in."

"Not until I have told you how he forgets his best interests."

"I asked you to stand aside."

"Oh, certainly; by all means," said Bemm, and he sprang out of the way.

Kirkland's testimony. Without those facts, Will need only return the bonds, or the money he obtained from their disposal. The doctor will make affidavit to the bank that he took them while irresponsible; and the matter will be hushed up without any publicity.

"You—you can do that, Charlie?" "I will if—"

"Oh, you dear boy!" she cried, impulsively clasping his hand.

"Amy! You'll take me!" he exclaimed.

She thrust herself free from the arm that he was slipping about her.

"Don't!" she exclaimed. "It looks too much as if—as if you fished to make a bargain."

"Bargain?" he muttered. "Wishing me to—to let you kiss me because you are going to help Will."

"Why not?" he asked. "If I agree to help him—I am the only one who can."

She looked at him, pale but clear-eyed and very calm, and replied deliberately: "I do not believe it."

"What?" he queried, completely taken aback.

"I do not believe it," she repeated. "Before he could recover his aplomb she had walked past him. She disappeared into the back porch without looking about.

"He may have difficulty in proving that, even with the help of Doctor Kirkland, if it all comes out."

"How do you mean?" "If it all comes out."

A Most Wonderful Assortment of Winter Merchandise is here for you to select from

A general revision in prices has been made in every department of our store, not one article is being sold at the old prices. Swinging back to the more reasonable prices seems mighty good. We are glad that the time has come again that we all can buy and not feel that we are paying two or three times more than the article actually is worth. Where it seems rather hard to sell goods below the actual cost to us, as we in many instances are doing, we are willing to share our burden with the rest. You can rest assured that if you buy from Zemke's that the prices are right considering quality—for it is our policy to carry only good merchandise.

RED CROSS HELPS FORMER SOLDIERS

Many Thousands Are Given Aid Since Leaving Uncle Sam's Service.

When the millions of youths who composed America's war-time army checked in their packs, fingered their discharge fondly and hustled away from camp to return to the joys of civilian pursuit, many of them thought the American Red Cross had ceased to be an important function in their lives. It had furnished them with entertainment and other enjoyment and aid while in camp, but the great majority had never felt the need of the Red Cross before entering the service and they reasoned they would not need its assistance now that they were out of it again.

Since that time many thousands have learned to know otherwise. The Red Cross was their friend in the service and they naturally turned to it when trouble and complications beset them in civilian life.

Nearly a Million Aided. Through the Home Service Section, which has taken up the task of caring for the soldier and sailors after they leave the service, and their families and dependents, nearly a million men have been given assistance of various kinds. This consists principally of financial aid, finding jobs, obtaining back pay, allotments and compensation.

The states in the central division are beginning to realize some idea of the volume of information work being carried on by the Civilian Relief, a part of the Home Service department. From 1,500 to 2,000 cases are handled from each state almost every month.

The Red Cross does not confine its activities to service men only. It also takes care of his family. In a little town in Nebraska recently a certain soldier stationed at the Alcatraz barracks for discipline was granted clemency and his term reduced. But he had become so despondent that he threatened to take his life.

Found Family Destitute. The Red Cross investigated the condition of his family and found they were in destitute circumstances and that his mother was ill. Moreover, it was found that he had been absent without leave to go to her. Upon presentation of the facts in the case the sentence was commuted and the Red Cross is helping the family to get on its feet.

The fact that all the returned bodies of dead soldiers are given a military funeral may be partly attributed to the Civilian Relief bureau. While the organization does not attend to the funeral directly, it gives instructions through the American Legion and where the family is financially unable to take care of the matter, the Red Cross comes to the assistance and offers relief.

Public health hospitals are filled with ex-soldiers whom the Civilian Relief Service is taking care of. A large percentage of these are suffering with tuberculosis and shell shock.

Helps Get Compensation. Great service has been rendered by the Red Cross in mental cases in identifying those who have appeared in state hospitals, for the insane, and helping them secure compensation due from the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

In the federal board's various offices in the central division, the Red Cross worker, acting with the Home Service section, makes necessary loans to the men, arranges suitable living conditions, helps collect evidence and supply facts to the board, assists in "appealing cases" and settles various personal difficulties for the men. The workers also follow up and aid all men who discontinue training.

The Western Sea. The Pacific, a calm, cold ocean not much fretted by traffic, adds its curious note of aloofness. It sends forth fogs, but somehow they carry no hint of salt. And in days of sunshine when it sparkles sapphire blue it seems somehow to exhale no breath. You never "smell the sea" as by the Atlantic's verge, and, though you well know that rotting seaweed gives forth that odor, you miss it on this western shore. The oceans you have known seem playful children, by turns gay and irritable, by comparison with this monstrous, lovely, inhuman sea.—Harrison Rhodes in Harper's Magazine.

Lemon Juice. Lemon juice will whiten the skin and remove stains from the hands. Lemon juice will allay the pain from insect bites. Lemon juice and salt will remove rust, ink and fruit stains from white goods.

Offended. Miss Violet Chandler, who is a candidate for county school superintendent has requested the Torchlight not to refer to her friends who are helping her in her campaign as he "supporters."—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

Expert Mice Catchers. The barn owl, when she has young, brings a mouse to her nest about every 12 minutes. As she is actively employed at both evening and dawn, and as both male and female hunt 40 mice a day is a low computation for the total capture.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Evidently She Knew Him. Wife (to husband who has been out for a walk at the seaside)—Oh, George, I'm so glad you've come back. I heard that some silly man had toppled over the cliffs—and I was afraid it might be you.

Iron From Everywhere. A recent investigation of smoke and dust in various iron centers showed that iron can be extracted not only from street dirt, but from rugs, carpets, walls and roofs of buildings, and even from the skins of the inhabitants.

PERSHING'S TRIBUTE TO THE RED CROSS

"It gives me real pleasure to pledge my hearty support to the American Red Cross. While the opportunity for its greatest service comes during times of war, and its achievements during the late World War have been unparalleled, yet there is and perhaps there always will be a vital need for the humanitarian work which it renders.

"The present and former service men can never forget the Red Cross, not only for what it did for them during the war, but for what it is doing now in the army camps and posts and wherever needed in assisting the ex-service men throughout the country. The value of the American Red Cross as a peace time organization can hardly be over-estimated, and we owe it our loyal support and active co-operation.

"JOHN J. PERSHING,
"General."

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME

Teaching First Aid

Every person mentally and physically able to do so should take the American Red Cross Instruction in First Aid Treatment. It's a life-saver and a pain-saver on the farm, in the factory, on the street, at the office, in the home, wherever accidents may occur. Here's a young wife who ineptly wielded a can-opener and received an ugly gash across her wrist from the jagged can lid. Mother was there, however, with the First Aid kit and Red Cross instruction, and probably prevented a case of blood poison by giving prompt and proper treatment before the doctor arrived.

THUMB NOTES.

Messrs. Rankin and Frost, representing the Central Power company of Bad Axe, were in Sebawaing Thursday evening to meet with the council relative to the proposition of Sebawaing connecting with the Bad Axe plant for electric current. The matter was gone over merely in a general way and a definite proposal will be made soon by the Central company, after which the question of granting a franchise will undoubtedly be voted on.—Blade.

The kraut factory at Almont is running full capacity and it is estimated that at least 140 acres of cabbage will be manufactured into this appetizing dish. Some farmers are growing 25 tons to the acre.

Tuscola and Huron counties each voted an increase of $1,000 per year in Judge Beach's salary. So far Sanilac supervisors have failed to come across but the matter will probably come up at the December term.

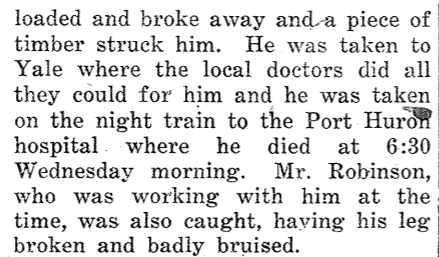

While working at the gravel pit two miles west and one mile north of Yale, Clarence Molesworth was caught while working under the screen which was loaded with stone. It seems that the screen was overloaded and broke away and a piece of timber struck him. He was taken to Yale where the local doctors did all they could for him and he was taken on the night train to the Port Huron hospital where he died at 6:30 Wednesday morning. Mr. Robinson, who was working with him at the time, was also caught, having his leg broken and badly bruised.

The city of Crosswell now owns a team for the use of the city, a move that has been under consideration for several years. A fine span of heavy draft animals has been purchased of Garfield Tood, Bert McCandless installed as teamster and the outfit will be kept at work on the streets of the city, scraping, cleaning up, drawing gravel, etc., in fact doing work that has been done heretofore by hiring by the day. It should work out to the advantage of the taxpayers and will also be a convenience as it has been hard to get teams when wanted at times.—Jeff.

With the exception of the warehouse, the canning factory at Crosswell has about closed up for the season, the condition of the spinach crop being such that it was hardly worth canning.

Viola Welke, aged 10 years, of Mayville, found a dynamite cap while hunting beechnuts in the woods and took it home with her. The dynamite cap exploded in her hands which were badly mangled as a result. Children should be cautioned about playing with dynamite caps. In fact a large majority of people do not recognize a dynamite cap when they see one and parents might save their children from serious injury by purchasing one at the hardware and explaining its power as an explosive.—Decker-ville Recorder.

About 12,000,000 boys and girls, composing nearly half the school population of the United States, are members of the Junior Red Cross, which is helping the children of Europe, while at the same time it is doing an important work here at home. Kalitan Chetwolt, who wears the engaging smile shown in this picture, is the son of an Indian guide and trapper. He is the youngest Junior living in the neighborhood of Juneau, Alaska—and he sends greetings to fellow Juniors of the United States.

"Thine Is the Glory"

This painting, which hangs in National Headquarters of the American Red Cross, Washington, depicts the homage of America's fighting men to American womanhood as mobilized for service in the World War by this organization. It is the collaborative scientific and art creation of Major Joseph Gray Kitchell, late of the General Staff, U. S. A., and F. Luis Mora, of the New York School of Art. The face of the central figure is a composite of the features of a thousand Red Cross workers selected for the purpose.

Therefore Cuthbert Trotman, in the vernacular of Broadway, was a "dead one."

Will the Tractor Work on Side Hills and Grades?

The big, heavy tractor and all tractors with the bulk of their weight high above the ground are bound to have trouble on heavy grades or side hills. This was conclusively demonstrated at Walla Walla, Wash., in April, 1919, where the grades ran up to 38 per cent and there was much side hill work. At that demonstration, as at all demonstrations where similar conditions have prevailed, the Cletrac Tank-Type Tractor negotiated every side hill and grade, doing uniform and perfect plowing and harrowing under ALL conditions, while many competing machines found these conditions too hard for them. They might work fairly well on level ground, but they weren't suited to hillside work.

If your farm is rolling or hilly, don't take any chances. Save yourself a lot of grief by buying a Cletrac in the first place.

WILL THE TRACTOR WORK IN SANDY, SOFT OR WET GROUND?

That's the most trying tractor test. That's the test where most tractors fall short. That's the kind of work where the Cletrac will demonstrate its superiority every time. The reason is simple.

The weight of the Cletrac is only 3420 pounds. Its weight rests on a track surface of over 800 square inches. That means that the ground pressure on each square inch is about 4 1/2 pounds. The ground pressure of the average tractor is at least 10 pounds per square inch. Let us illustrate. A man on snow shoes can walk on the top of soft snow where a man on foot would sink in.

Why Do We Dream? We often dream about what has occupied our thoughts during the day; if we think deeply just before falling asleep, our thoughts are bound to color our dream. But many people dream of things that they have certainly not been thinking about, so thoughts are not always the cause.

Value of Imagination. Imagination is the supreme gift of the gods and the degree of its possession is the measure of any man's advantage over circumstances—the measure of his clutch of success.—Kehler.

Yes you can have such a phonograph LET us show you the Certificate of Authenticity which Helen Newitt has signed. This is the outstanding fact which comes to you out of the memorable tone-test recital given Oct. 12 in Opera House. A new era in music is here. Mr. Edison has lifted the phonograph to the dignity of a new art. You can no longer be satisfied with a phonograph that imitates. Now, you want a phonograph that equals the human voice. You know there is such a phonograph. Mr. Edison made an astounding test with the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison to prove it. Cass City heard the New Edison Re-Crete Helen Newitt's voice in direct comparison with Miss Newitt's living voice. So realistic was the New Edison's performance that no one in the entire audience could distinguish it from Miss Newitt's living voice.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul" You yourself can have such a phonograph. Let us show you exact duplicates of the Official Laboratory Model, which triumphed in the tone-test. Let us show you the Certificate of Authenticity, which Miss Newitt has signed, after inspecting these instruments and in which she declares that these instruments are the equals in every respect of the instrument used in the tone-test.

You can buy your New Edison on a Budget Plan which so distributes the payments that you'll hardly feel them.

DEFORD.

Old Lady McCain has returned from her summer trip through Ohio and other points to spend the winter at Deford, where there is rest and worth.

The ladies' aid put $38.00 in the till from dinners and suppers on election day, besides the praises of brave men(?) for wheat bread and hen properly served.

A child may need an alarm clock, but people of mature years should be ashamed to admit they are children still. Rise with the sun, do your part well 'till high noon; let its rays guide you 'till eventime. That's what God made the sun for. Have done with alarm clocks.

Deford must have a parsonage, the people of the M. E. persuasion claim; but that brings forth a question. How can it be done? It would not do to erect a shanty of small dimensions in our burg now. Nothing less than a $4,000 manse would grace our town. How can the amount be raised without material injury to self and family is before the minds of men.

Every school boy who reads has been lifted "to higher levels" as he thought of the words of Bazzaris: "To die for my country is a pleasure and not a pain;" but Greece had her one hero then; Ireland has now eleven like minded and yet the bigoted sneer at their strange devotion.

GOV'T OPERATION OUT OF POLITICS

Party Leaders Convinced by Results of National Cans-vass of Editors.

VINDICATES FORMER POLL.

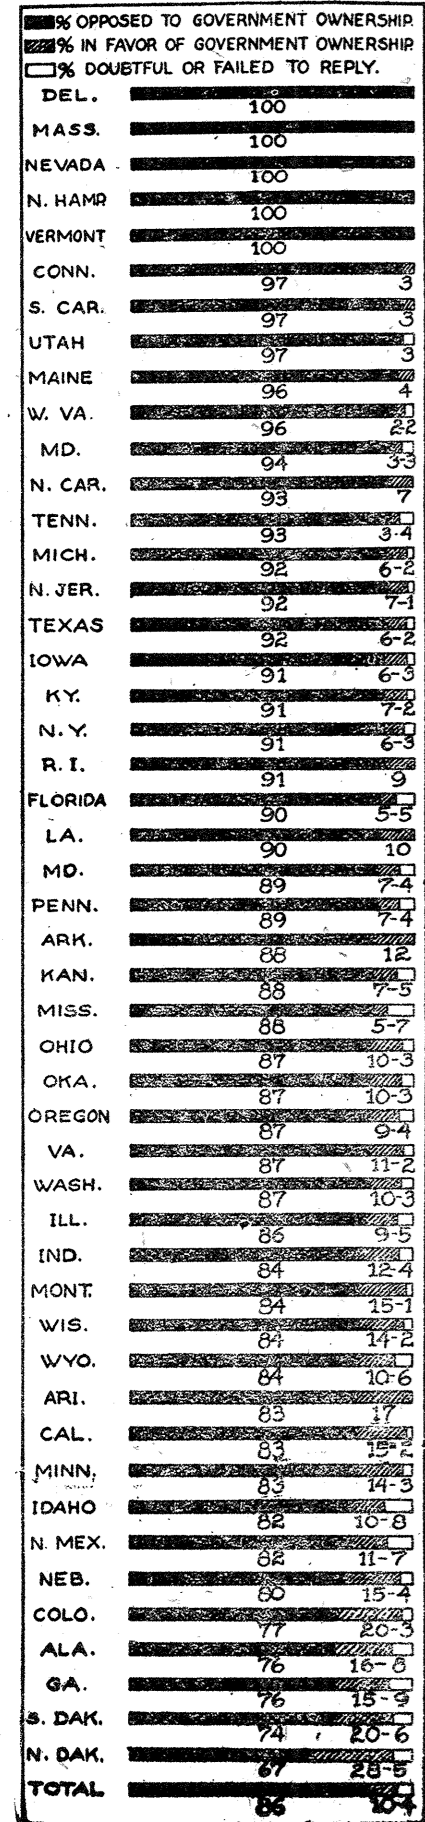

Overwhelming Veto Like That of Before From Both Sides of Political Fence.

Washington.—Inner circles of both political parties here are greatly interested in the results of a national poll on the question of government operation among over 5,000 newspaper editors throughout the country. With 86 per cent of these editors, regardless of political faith, giving it as their impartial opinion that the public is more than ever opposed to the government going into business in competition with its citizens, observers here see little chance that either political party will find it a profitable campaign issue.

In the opinion of party leaders this sort of a canvass among newspaper editors is the best possible index of public opinion. They recall a similar questionnaire sent out a year ago in connection with the proposition that the government take over the railroads permanently. Replies at that time from approximately the same number of editors showed 83 per cent against the principle of government operation. They recall also that within ten days from publication of the result of the former questionnaire the sentiment for return of the railroads to their owners had definitely crystallized.

Comparison of present results in detail with those of a year ago convinces the political student not only that these editors have been accurate in their judgment, but that party considerations played no part in forming it. From Democratic and supposedly radical Texas, for example, the present questionnaire brought replies from editors of 244 papers, only three of which are Republican. Yet the percentage against government operation was 92, which is exactly the same as that given by 200 editors from Republican Michigan, among whom were representatives of only three Democratic papers. Other states that pair percentages significantly are Massachusetts and Nevada, with 100; Connecticut and South Carolina, with 97; Maine and West Virginia, with 96; Kentucky and New York, with 91; Missouri and Pennsylvania, with 89; Ohio and Oklahoma, with 87.

The result of the present poll as to government operation in each state are graphically shown by the following chart:

SANILAC SUPERVISORS TRANACT MUCH BUSINESS

The annual meeting of the board of supervisors of Sanilac county came to an adjournment last Saturday when the October session closed to meet on the first Monday in December for the acceptance of county officers' bonds and such other routine business as may come up. The session was full of important matters and a spirit of retrenchment was in evidence among the members.

The salary of the county treasurer was fixed at $1,800 and 15c on each dog license issued by him. This is a raise from $1,500 but his bill of $900 for clerk hire was rejected. The salary of the clerk was made $1,500 with the statutory fees and an additional $600 for clerk hire. The prosecuting attorney will have to worry along on $1,800 with no stenographer. The road commissioners will each receive $6 per day with 5c per mile for travel. The sheriff's salary will consist entirely of fees.

An appropriation of $4,000 was made for a soldiers' monument at the county grounds and this with the $4,000 voted last year, makes $8,000 for the county to pay, probably the whole cost of the testimonial.

A committee was appointed to investigate the matter of buying a park on the lake shore, to report at the next session. This is a move that has been wanted for a long time and one that should have been made years ago before the price of shore frontage went sky high.

The state tax for 1920 is $164,128.66, and the county tax totals to the same amount.

The roads of the county were given $86,628.66 for the ensuing year, or nearly all that was asked. There is considerable cash now in the fund and it is thought the amount appropriated will be sufficient.

Another resolution that was adopted was one excluding all private meetings from the court house. This was taken because of the fact that many organizations have been using the building for their meetings and the privilege has been abused. A private school for pharmacists has been conducted in the supervisor's room and the young people of Sandusky have been using the supper hall for a dancing pavilion. In fact, the county building has been made to serve as a public hall for the convenience of private individuals to such an extent that the board thought it proper to call a halt. Any public meeting in which the general public is interested will be allowed the use of the court house, but those to which a few of any class or any organization attend, must go and hire a hall.

We understand that the attention of the board was brought to the matter by the janitor of the building and the owner of the local opera house.

A resolution was adopted asking the members of the legislature from this county to use their best endeavor to secure the repeal of the law creating the state constabulary, and we understand that this action has been taken by nearly all the supervisors of the state.—Crosswell Jeffersonian.

True Courage.

True courage has so little to do with anger that there lies always the strongest suspicion against it where this passion is highest. The true courage is cool and calm. The bravest of men have the least of a brutal, bullying insolence, and in the very time of danger are the most serene.

Examine Opportunity Well.

Every opportunity needs to be looked at through the glass of principle. It may mean, apart from conscience, a chance of making money or gaining social position, of grasping power; but if it does not pass muster morally, it also means loss.

The Cheney Orchestral Chambers

Are situated back of the CHENEY VIOLIN RESONATOR (see cut) and are built similar to the wood pipes in the PIPE ORGAN, the grandest of all large musical instruments. The rich resonant tones of the PIPE ORGAN are produced in the CHENEY by employing the Acoustic principles embodied in the resonating AIR CHAMBERS of the organ pipes.

ACOUSTIC THROAT AND PALATE BAR

(back of the Orchestral Chambers—see cut). As tones purified and increased in volume leave the TONE ARM, they reach the CUBICAL AIR CHAMBERS of the CHENEY ACOUSTIC THROAT and there brought under perfect control and then released past the PALATE BAR which make the TONES of the CHENEY come forth CLEAR, PERFECTLY ARTICULATED and TRUE. It is difficult to describe the accomplishment of the CHENEY ACOUSTIC THROAT, but its important function and the results of its application are immediately apparent when you hear the Cheney phonograph played.
