THANKSGIVING DAY PROCLAMATION

By the Governor. 'Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion; and unto thee shall the vow be performed, Thou crownest the year with thy goodness; and thy paths drop The pastures are clothed with flocks; the valleys also are covered over with corn; they shout for joy, they also sing.' Following the custom established by our fathers nearly three hundred years ago, it is entirely fitting that we should set apart one day in the year as Thanksgiving

We have gathered this year a most abundant harvest. We have enough and to spare. Our own people will be fed, and out of our abundance we shall help to satisfy the world's hunger. For this and for other blessings, for peace at home and abroad, for the general spirit of content, for work to do and the will to do it, the people of Michigan may well give thanks and make solemn and public acknowledgment of their debt to the Most High.

Therefore, I, Albert E. Sleeper Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby join the President of the United States in designat ing Thursday, the twenty-fifth day of November next, as a day of Thanksgiving and Prayer.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this fifteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty, and of the Commonwealth the eightyfourth

CHAPTER VIII. A Hairbreadth Escape.

Soon after Clinton's flight Doctor Kirkland had been summoned to the sanitarium. When Amy came in by way of the dining room Ellen was pensively watching her mother play solitaire. She looked up and, mistaking the cause of the color in Amy's cheeks, asked delightedly: "Oh, what is it, dear. Has Charlie-?"

"The silly! He made me dreadfully cross!" petulantly replied Amy. She glanced into the parlor, and her vexation suddenly gave place to alarm. "Where is Will? Surely you've not let him go off?"

"No, no, my dear, not even with the doctor," reassured Mrs. Kirkland. "He has gone up to his room.'

A few moments later Clinton, brooding heavily over his pipe, heard a tap at his door. He frowned. The tap became a rap. He called in a brusque tone: "Well, what is it?"

"Me!" came back a soft whisper. "Miss Lowrie-you?" he replied. "What do you want?" "Let me in."

He glanced in consternation at his stockinged feet and bare arms. "I-I must beg you to excuse me," he stammered. "You see, I'm notthat is, I'm about to retire."

"No, no, no!" the whisper shrilled in protest. "I must have a talk with you! If you don't let me in I shall scream!" "Not that, not that," he called back.

"Wait a moment. I'll be out at once." He dived into the closet to seize the lounging robe, which he slipped on as he hurried to the door. He slid back the bolt. Instantly the door was thrust in against him. Amy popped through the opening. She closed the door and spoke to him in a tone as matter of fact as it was affectionate: "The idea of making such a fuss about letting me in. Now we'll sit down and have a good old-time talk while I do my hair."

He stared at her, speechless. She had on a kimono of soft pink silk embroidered with gold flowers. In one hand she held a silver-backed hair-

"Where are your manners?" she reproved, and she went to set two chairs before the full-length mirror on the wall opposite the bathroom passage. "Come. I don't want to have to shout to you over there. Sit down and behave."

He started to obey, and blushed as his stockinged feet appeared from under the edge of his robe. But she had perched on one of the chairs and was studying herself in the mirror.

He seated himself in the chair close beside her. She handed him the hairbrush and put up both hands to her head. The loose sleeves of her kimono slipped down, baring her dimpled white arms. He stared, fascinated, at them and at her shapely fingers, which were nimbly drawing the pins from her hair. Soon the thick coils began to sag.

She shook her head. All the glossy brown locks came tumbling down about her slender shoulders. She turned sideways, with her back to him, and, clasping the hairpins in her lap, sat waiting. He gazed in wondering admiration at the wealth of rippling hair and the shapely little head from which it flowed down.

"Why don't you begin?" she impatiently demanded. "You'll never finish unless you start."

"Start?" "Brushing, stupid!"

"You-do you mean you wish me to -to brush your hair?"

"Oh, no; I'm merely sitting here for you to look at," she bantered. "Don't be a goose." She caught the brush from him and made half a dozen vigorous strokes, each time running her free hand under the brown maze. He took the brush from her backward-stretched hand, and asked in a dèep low tone: "Am I to hold it that way with my hand?" "How else can you do it right?" she replied.

He cautiously took a full stroke from her forehead back across her dainty head and down the rippling mass of hair. His smile was now that of a man completely lost in blissful intoxication. "That's better," she said; "only still harder. Don't be afraid. I'm not a paper doll-There, that's the way. Now I can settle down and talk. First of all. I'm going to tell you the bad news and get through with it." "Yes?" he asked, inhaling the delicious fragrance of her hair.

"You're not listening, and it's very important. It has made me dreadfully cross at Charlie."

He stiffened at the name, instantly attentive. "That fellow? What about him? Has he-?"

"Why should I? Please go on. I fail to understand about the key. But how about it? If it was a detective that found the key, he must have discovered where it belonged and found the missing bonds."

"That's the horrid part of it." replied Amy. "Charlie says they found the safe deposit box, but the bonds were gone.'

Clinton's smile vanished behind a look of blank surprise. "Gone?" "Yes-and all that money in Chicago

She scurried back like a frightened mouse, hid the brush and note under her pillows, and popped into bed. When Tillie came up with the chocolate, the girl was cuddled under her coverlet with only the tip of her nose showing.

"Why, Miss Amy! You're not took worse, are you?"

"The light," came back a muffled voice. "Pull down the blinds, please." As Tillie hastened to obey, the voice called after her: "Don't worry. I'll soon be all right now. Leave the chocolate. I'll get up in a little while. There's the postman's whistle.'

Tillie hastened downstairs for the mail. When she returned Amy was almost dressed to go out. She forestalled the expected protest with a quick explanation: "Now don't say anything, Tillie. I'm going down to consult doctor." "That's good, if you're feeling bad,

Miss Amy." The girl faced away from the affectionate, near-sighted eyes. "Yes. If you'll do my buttons, please." Five minutes later she was running the coupe from the little garage out through the green arbor of the pergola. She reached Doctor Kirkland's office before his regular morning hour, but the attendant was present and admitted her to the private waiting room. When the physician came in his look

"Then you still really believe he is not some one else?"

"He is your brother child" the physician answered with satisfying positiveness.

Amy pressed his chubby hand to her lips and murmured in profound re-

Bemm was effectually silenced. Amy and Doctor Kirkland already were crossing the sidewalk. He followed with Mrs. Kirkland and Ellen, down steps into the old hall.

They turned the corner and passed along the main corridor to a door marked "Private." Bemm rapped police official, who at once recognized the eminent alienist.

The official looked his concern, "Sorry, doctor, but in the case of a warrant-"

"Very true," agreed the physician. "He must be kept in custody, unless admitted to bail. That does not prevent you from deputizing me and placing him in my custody. What he requires is sanitarium treatment. Confinement in jail would probably shatter his mind beyond all hope of recovery. The sanitarium, on the contrary, may restore him to his old self and enable him to remember how he lost the bonds."

Bemm smiled snavely at the police official. "Ah. In that case I venture to request you to accede to Doctor Kirkland's suggestion. I feel sure you may safely intrust Mr. Lowrie in his custody. Consider me as the doctor's second in the matter-er-what is the term?-his guarantor, if I am considered to have any standing.'

"H'm," muttered the official, "It's a queer case. Well, I guess I'll take the responsibility of deputizing Doctor Kirkland and entrusting the prisoner to his custody. There's no precedent for it; but considering the circumstances and the fact that the doctor has often helped out the department with expert advice, I'll risk it."

The physician bowed in acknowledgment and walked over to Clinton. "My boy," he said, "we cannot compel you to give over your fancied idea of a conspiracy against you. However, our friend here has agreed to set you at liberty on my recognizance. All I ask

The vague dread that clouded her dilated eyes swiftly increased to a paralyzing terror. She stared at him as white-faced and immobile as a marble statue. Stricken with concern for her, he bent forward. Instantly her cheeks flushed scarlet with maidenly shame. She clutched wildly at her loose hair and fled to the door. In a twinkling she was out in the hall, with the door shut between herself and Clinton.

He had not moved. For some time he stood where she had left him. His body was motionless, but it was evident that his thoughts were in a whirl of almost violent emotions. Across his face, in quick succession, passed looks of bewilderment, pity, delight, tenderness. Last of all came contri-

"I suppose so," acquiesced Clinton. "The fact, however, is that nothing was further from my those Lowrie bonds.'

"Frankly," said Bemm, "what puzzles me is that you wished to go at all. You had agreed to stay, and we were all trying our best to treat you well." "I presume the police searched my Bemm took out a cigarette before replying: "One can usually count on their committing such impertinences, Ltake it. Though, if they opened your case, they must have been rather clever in their work. It seemed to be se-"curely locked."

Bemm's gray-brown eyes lost their deceptive shallowness. Clinton looked into their depths and saw the man behind the jester. His steely glance struck flint instead of rubber. But Remm's voice was very soft: "You see, old man, it is still a matter between friends. All you need do is to find the bonds, or their equivalent in money, if they have been disposed of. Doctor Kirkland believes you were irresponsible. If you have used any of the-er-proceeds, there's no doubt he will advance you the amount. If that is done—the bank reimbursed, y'know-the bank will accept his theory of your mental condition, and will allow the matter to be hushed up. This is provided I forget certain facts that, if recalled by me, would knock the doctor's hypothesis into a cocked hat."

"So-you remember certain facts?" muttered Clinton.

"My dear Will, let us say that I do not now remember them. One may easily forget, where a friend is concerned. All I ask is that you, in turn, show your friendship by intimating the situation to Am-er-Miss Lowrie. Nothing raw, y'know. Just a hint. She admits that she likes me, and yo' know how she is. A word from you in my favor, and she would at once-" For all his quickness, Bemm was not quick enough to elude the hand that shot out to clutch his collar. He pulled back to free himself. In the same instant Clinton rose over him, white with anger. Without a word, Clinton jerked him to his feet, whirled him around and rushed him to the head of the porch steps. Clinton's shoe assisted his flight down the

The audacity even more than the suddenness of the attack had paralyzed Bemm's power of resistance. The spell was broken by the shock of his landing on the hard cement walk at the foot of the steps. He scrambled to his feet, his face twitching with fury. He put his hand to his hip.

"Drop that hand," ordered Clinton in a tone barely above a whisper. Bemm's furious glance fell before the look in Clinton's eyes. His hand slipped down, away from the hippocket. Clinton descended a step, and spoke in the same low-pitched ton: "You blackmailer-you cur! Get out of here!"

Again Bemm tried to face the other's look, and again his glance wavered and fell. He turned and walked hurriedly down to the curb. The tires of his big car tore holes in the street surfacing, so violently did he throw on the full power of the engine. A girlish exclamation caused the tense watcher to look about. Amy stood in the doorway, staring after

There he found voice; but the words that burst forth were so incoherent with rage that neither girl could understand what he said. No sound came from within. Her pallor increased. Shuddering with dread of what might be within, she rushed into the room. Ellen followed, still more fearful of what they might find. Clinton was reposing in the depths of a big "sleepy-hollow" chair, as peaceful and still as if asleep. Amy, perched on the arm of the chair, was stroking his forehead and closed eyes. She looked about at the intruders and touched her lips for silence. But her patient had opened his eyes. At sight of the frightened ladies, he captured Amy's hand and sat up in the Clinton's expression became still more peculiar. His features were convulsed. He waggled his hands. "This -this-" he gasped. "Whatever I-! Don't you-Chocolate Soldier?"

They looked at one another in acute alarm. There now could be no doubt as to his condition. He sought to explain: "The-the opera."

"Opera?" repeated Amy. "Oh, yes -yes, we understand, dear. You are reminded of that opera, when the hero comes into the castle and the ladies make such a fuss of him. Yes, dear, we understand. So now hush and be

But instead of obeying, he flung himself back in the chair and burst into a roar of laughter. The outburst was far more violent than the first. It did not end until he lay helpless from spent emotion, tears rolling down his cheeks, and his hands feebly beating the arms of the chair. Mrs. Kirkland hovered over him, ready with the bottle of lavender salts. On either side of him knelt Amy and Ellen, each with her arm about his neck, her head against his shoulder, and a hand stroking his face.

"Save-save the pieces!" he panted. The girls redoubled their tender caresses. Mrs. Kirkland held her bottle under his nose. He took a whiff, and groaned: "Alas! Who shall deliver me out of the hands of mine-my Kirkland came in upon them at the luncheon table, the four were conversing as gaily as if none had ever heard of doubt and apprehension. The physician entered briskly, nodded to all in his genial manner, and explained his presence with a casual: "On my way to the sanitarium. Thought I'd stop by for a bite of lunch. My dear, a word about the new case-if I may ask the girls and Will to excuse us."

Mrs. Kirkland followed him from the room with an air of composure that vanished the moment he closed the door behind her. "Karl, you must do something-at

ET us show you the Certificate of Authenticity which Helen Newitt has signed. This is the outstanding fact which comes to you out of the memorable tone-test recital given Oct. 12 in Opera House. A new era in music is here. Mr. Edison has lifted the phonograph to the dignity of a new art.

You can no longer be satisfied with a phonograph that imitates. Now, you want a phonograph that equals the human voice.

You know there is such a phonograph. Mr. Edison made an astounding test with the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison to prove it. Cass City heard the New Edison Re-Create Helen Newitt's voice in direct comparison with Miss Newitt's living voice. So realistic was the New Edison's performance that no one in the entire audience could distinguish it from Miss Newitt's living voice.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

You yourself can have such a phonograph. Let us show you exact duplicates of the Official Laboratory Model, which triumphed in the tone-test. Let us show you the Certificate of Authenticity, which Miss Newitt has signed, after inspecting these instruments and in which she declares that these instruments are the equals in every respect of the instrument used in the tone-test.

You can buy your New Edison on a Budget Plan which so distributes the payments that you'll hardly feel them.

RED CROSS AIDS RURAL DISTRICTS

Michigan Towns Are Benefited by Organized Community Studies In Country.

Counties in Michigan shows how the spirit and breadth of the peace program of the American Red ity life in this country has been along the lines of community organ ization, whereby disinterested, disorganized townships have been organ ized to meet on a common ground, to work together with a joint purpose. The awakening of the community spirit has been brought about largely by means of frequent community meetings in different towns. Bringing people together in this way has resulted in a realization of their common needs and the desire to work out their mutual problems together.

The better understanding which has grown out of these community gatherings has caused the establishment of social centers in various towns wherehy social interest and benefit are afforded the people during the long winter evenings.

In the rural district around Muskegon, Mich., home service has been established so that assistance might be given all the families of soldiers and sailors in the county. The feeling of the citizens throughout the county in regard to home service is well expressed in the statement of a citizen in Muskegon that "This was the dawn of a new and glorious day for the rural community through which has come the realization of the needs and possibilities of rural life."

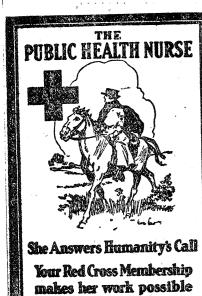

The realization on the part of citisecretary to carry on home service on a peace time basis. The needs, seen through the eyes of the citizens themselves, were presented to the secretary upon her arrival and, with the viewpoint of a social worker, she has adapted programs to meet the

MICHIGAN SCHOOLS PLAN HOT LUNCHES

The school hot lunch is being advocated by some Red Cross workers throughout the state of Michigan as a solution of under-weight among school children. In many of the rural schools of the state the plan has been carried out with much success.

Many reasons have been given for the small percentage of schools that have carried out the hot lunch planlack of funds from which to provide it and lack of co-operation on the part of the parents, many of whom feel it is a new fangled idea and most un-

All of these problems are being solved in the communities by the Red Cross through demonstrations of simple methods of preparing the lunches. With the coming of the school hot lunch as a firmly established institution, better nourished children and better students should result.

The Red Cross has not attained such far reaching results in the state as yet, but it is making progress in the right direction and is planning that very thing. It is believed today by many savants that the Old Testament description of Solomon's temple was written the captivity, with the memory of the real splendors of Babylon fresh in their minds. It is possible that the actual temple was a simple place of worship. If it had been otherwise, it is hardly possible that no remains of it would be visible today, seeing that the temples of Egypt, which are so much older, remain, in some cases, almost in toto.-Anstruther Mackay in Atlantic Monthly.

FORGET, AND ACT.

The election is over and the majority has indicated its choice. Now, as good citizens, let us forget the animosities of the campaign and devote every ounce of our energy to restoring the country to a basis of safe and steady prosperity. There is no longer room among us for the unscrupulous profiteer and the profligate squanderer. The brains of the country must assert themselves, and common sense must replace the rule of vanity and waste. A country can only maintain its greatness when its rulers and its people are in harmonious accord. We, as citizens, have our duty to perform, as well as those whom we have selected to govern us. Let us elevate our citiznship by a proper discharge of that duty.

Will the Tractor Work on Side Hills and Grades?

The big, heavy tractor and all tractors with the bulk of their weight high above the ground are bound to have trouble on heavy grades or side hills. This was conclusively demonstrated at Walla Walla, Wash., in April, 1919, where the grades ran up to 38 per cent and there was much side hill work. At that demonstration, as at all demonstrations where similar conditions have prevailed, the Cletrac Tank-Type Tractor negotiated every side hill and grade, doing uniform and perfect plowing and harrowing under ALL conditions, while many competing machines found these conditions too hard for them. They might work fairly well on level ground, but they weren't suited to hillside work.

If your farm is rolling or hilly, don't take any chances. Save yourself a lot of grief by buying a Cletrac in the first place.

> WILL THE TRACTOR WORK IN SANDY, SOFT OR WET GROUND?

That's the most trying tractor test. That's the test where most tractors fall short. That's the kind of work where the Cletrac will demonstrate its superiority every time. The reason is simple.

The weight of the Cletrac is only 3420 pounds. Its weight rests on a track surface of over 800 square inches. That means that the ground pressure on each square inch is about 41/2 pounds. The ground pressure of the average tractor is at least 10 pounds per square inch. Let us illustrate. A man on snow shoes can walk on the top of soft snow where a man on foot would sink in.

> Ancient Remedy for Toothache. The most popular remedy for toothache in ancient Egypt seems to have been a mixture of crushed benbane seeds with cement used as a fillhoney was recommended for tightening the teeth and various forms of plaster were used. The cause of decay in those days was generally attributed, especially by the Chinese, to a little white worm which are its way into the feeth and gums, and many and various are the ancient recipes for destroying this worm.

Celluloid. Celluloid, from which many toiler articles and imitations of ivory are made, is composed from the cellulose found in cotton cloth or raw cotton. It is treated with a solution of nitric acid which forms it into a pulp very much like paper pulp. It is then most of the acid. It is partially hardened and camphor gum mixed with it. when it is rolled into sheets and thoroughly dried. To manipulate it, it is softened by steam and then hardened

Your neighbor may tell you in glowing terms of the goodness of DULUTH IMPERIAL FLOUR, but genuine enthusiasm can only be aroused when you have baked with it yourself.

For bread baking—DULUTH IMPERIAL FLOUR is at its best. It produces big, fine-textured loaves of perfect color, tender crust and unusual flavor.

Biscuits, cakes and pastries made with DULUTH IMPERIAL FLOUR are delightfully appetizing and, because of the high percentage of gluten, are most wholesome and nourishing.

Default having been made in the payment of money due for interest Make dates and arrangements for on a certain mortgage dated the 8th day of December, A. D. 1915, made May Lounsbury to John J. Beninger and recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for Tuscola County, Michigan in Liber 139 of Mortgages on Page 507 on December 10th, 1915 and on January 23rd, 1919, said mort-gage was by written assignment duly assigned by said John Beninger Edward Pinney, now deceased. Said assignment having been duly recorded in the Register of Deeds' office aforesaid in Liber 116 of Mortgages on Page 350, on the 6th of February, 1919. That by reason of said default in the payment of interest due on and secured by said mortgage the whole sum secured by said mortgage has be-come due and payable and is hereby declared to be due according to the terms and conditions of said mort-gage. That the sum claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is Two Thousand Three Hundred Fifty-five Dollars and Seventy-eight Cents ($2,355.78).

Now therefore notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be fore-closed by a sale of the mortgaged premises in said mortgage described at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in the Village of Caro, Tuscola County, Michigan on Monday the 7th day of February, A. D. 1921 at one o'clock in the afternoon. The said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage substantially as follows: The Northeast quarter (1/4) of the southeast quarter (1/4) of Section fourteen (14) and all that part of the northwest quarter (¼) of the south-west quarter (¼) of Section thirteen (13) of Township fourteen (14) North, Range ten (10) East, lying west of the angling road running through said NW ¼ of SW ¼, all being in the Township of Elmwood, County of Tuscola and State of Michigan and containing seventy (70) acres of land more or less, which said premises will be sold as aforesaid to satisfy the amount due on said mort-gage and the costs of foreclosure. Dated Nov. 11, 1920. ELIZABETH E. PINNEY,

ELIZABETH E. PINNEY,

SIMS EXPRESSES WARM TRIBUTE TO RED CROSS

"Government officials can make no expenditures, even for the relief of suffering and in aid of our disabled heroes, in the many urgent cases that have not been foreseen and provided for by law; and often the necessarily cumbersome machinery of government departments renders prompt action difficult if not impossible.

"The Red Cross can and will perform these essential services promptly and efficiently to the extent rendered possible by public support. It has demonstrated its efficiency both in the great war and in peace, and deserves the support of all who have the health and welfare of our people at heart.

"WILLIAM S. SIMS, "Admiral."

RED CROSS HELPS SOLDIERS IN CAMP

Life in any military or naval camp at present, especially in the hospitals, would be considerably dull were it not helping Red Cross these veterans, sick or well, find serving them, now, even though two whole years have elapsed since the war ended.

One of the principal features of its work is the entertainments it arranges. Each night in every theater or hut in camp, a movie show is given, with a full vaudeville show as an added attraction at least once a week. In the hospital wards where the patients are too ill to leave their beds, these shows are staged there for them. The convalescent houses and huts of the Red Cross are the enlisted men's clubhouse. In them are held not only the shows, but frequent parties as well, just as was done when most of America's young manhood was frequenting such places. Excursion trins for the wounded, too, are furnished by the Red Cross. Athletic equipment of almost every description invited to come and spend the day can be had at every camp for the

The work of the Military Relief service in the Central Division at present is confined to the five camps in this section-Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Camp Grant, Ill.; Ft. Des Moines, Ia.; Camp Custer, Mich., and Ft. Sheridan, Ill.

Thousands of the wounded, sick and well soldiers and sailors in these camps swear by the Red Cross-not any more stanchly, however, than the many other thousands still in the service and the millions who have left it. They have the Red Cross to thank for many pleasant hours and attentions they would not enjoy had th organization demobilized its army of military workers and let the memory of the men still in the hospitals and camps slip from its mind.

VARIETIES OF COURAGE

66K ERSMITH is an awful coward," said the retired merchant. "He hasn't as much spunk as a chipmunk. This morning I saw a man half his size twist his nose, and he never offered to defend himself. He trembled all over and was covered with a cold sweat."

other circumstances. Kersmith might show all kinds of courage.' said the hotelkeeper. "It isn't safe to jump to conclusions about such things. A woman will climb a tree, and shriek for the police if and if a real peril comes along, she'll exhibit more courage in five minutes than the average man could dig up in a hundred years.

"There are scores of different kinds of courage in this world, and you can't expect one man to have them all. A man may tremble and cringe when threatened with physical violence, and yet stand up serene and magnificent when the assessor comes to the door, and there's nothing finer than that sort of moral courage.

"There used to be a blacksmith in this town who had a wide reputation as a fire eater. He wasn't afraid of anything, people said. If he heard of a promising bruiser anywhere in the countryside, he couldn't rest until he had mixed things with him. And he didn't ask for purses or other inducements. He engaged in combat just because he loved it, and was happiest when his nose was knocked to one side, and his eyes were bunged up so that he couldn't see whether he was going or coming. He acted the hero on several occasions, rescuing people from burning buildings, and saving gents who were drowning and his nerve became a byword.

"Well, in the fullness of time his teeth went wrong and his head swelled up until it looked like a squash. He bought about a million things at the drug store, and they wouldn't relieve the pain. The doctor told him he could have his sufferings ended in five minutes by going to the dentist's, but that idea turned him faint. At last he had to go, and the dentist told me he never saw such a doggone coward. That invincible blacksmith just had to be lifted into the operating chair, and as often as he could get his breath, he yelled.

"The dentist's chair takes the starch out of many a brave man. I used to have to frequent it a good deal before I bought these hand-made tortoiseshell teeth, and I saw some moving sights when I was seated in the waiting room Women would come in there as calm and cool as though they had just stepped in for a dish of ice cream. I have seen a girl graduate sit chatting comfortably until her turn came, and then she'd step into the chamber of horrors without turning a hair; and then some big policeman, who'd think nothing of fighting a revolver duel in the dark with a burglar, would come into the waiting room as limp as a dishrag, sweating ice tea and groaning every time he drew a breath.

"A man might easily get a lot of false ideas about courage in the dentist's waiting room

"That man Kersmith, who stood and permitted a smaller man to twist his nose, has a sort of courage I'd give a lot to own. I've always wished I could make public speeches. I've a lot of pent-up eloquence inside of me that ought to be turned loose for the edification and instruction of the people. But every time I'm called upon for a few timely remarks, I'm scared stiff, and can't say a blamed word. I just gurgle and splutter like a sunstruck lunatic, and hate myself for three weeks after it.

"But when Kersmith is called, he rises without a tremor, and smiles sweetly upon the audience, and goes ahead saying what he has to say as though in his own arm chair by his fireside. I'd be willing to have my nose and ears twisted several times to have his courage."

Chilean Nitrate Fields.

The nitrate fields, the principal source of Chile's wealth, are limited to a narrow strip of arid desert located on the eastern slope of the coastal range, west of the cordillera of the Andes, at an altitude of from 2,000 to 5,000 feet above sea level, and inland a distance varying from 16 miles in the northern part of the zone to 90 miles in the southern part.

Now, of course, the woman who lives near some large market can pick and choose from a great variety for her table. But the farm woman can follow the reduction diet more easily than she thinks. She can cut out the milk and cream and butter from her diet, she need not eat pork products, and she can stop eating the rich homebaked cakes and pastries. This means a certain self-sacrifice on her part, for the fatter the body the greater the appetite. But no fat woman will starve, no matter how little she eats, for the body immediately starts feeding itself from its own accumulated flesh, and reduces itself while keeping up the proper supply of nourishment.

The farm woman really has many advantages over the city woman in planning a reduction diet. She can raise her own green vegetables, and put up many of them to last out the winter. She can eat fowl as much as she wants, without adding flesh, and incurring expense. She can do without water at meals, since this adds flesh, she can get about in the air, and have the real benefits of work and exercise.
